Former County Manager Cox honored at dinner

By Ruth Hammond

Suzanne Cox was honored at a dinner March 18 at Cree Meadows Restaurant in Ruidoso. More than 100 people attended to pay tribute to the former Lincoln County Manager.

Cox served in that capacity from 1982 until she resigned Feb. 20, 1989.

Cox was presented with a plaque that stated; "In Appreciation To Suzanne Cox for Excellence in Service as Lincoln County Manager 1982-89. Presented by friends and co-workers who appreciate your loyalty and devotion to Lincoln County. 'Thanks, Suzanne, We Love You!"

Speeches praising Cox for her work for the county were made by former county commissioners John Allen Hightower, Bill Karn, Ralph Dunlap, Bill Elliott, A.W. "Nat" Gnatkowski, and Ben Hall. Hall is now state representative.

Other speeches were made by master of ceremonies Mack Bell, county attorney Gary Mitchell, former Lincoln County Sheriff Tom Sullivan, Lincoln County EMS Director Nancy Guck, Lincoln County Road Supt. Tommy Hall, Lincoln County Treasurer Shirley Goodloe, and Yvonne Lanelli.

Lanelli noted that Cox had helped the county ambulance service and the county fire departments, but added, "I think of this woman every time I dump my garbage." Lanelli went on to tell about how Cox had helped the county start a county solid waste collection system.

Mitchell said Cox constantly sent him notes of things to do for the county. Betty Schrecengost told

MARCH HAS BEEN designated Student Art Month nationally and statewide. Carrizozo's school board conference room is exhibiting art of students kindergarten through 12th. Corona stabbing is under investigation

The Lincoln County Sheriff's department assisted state police in investigating a stabbing in Corona March 17.

The victim was Jesse Romero, 23, of Corona. He was treated at Lincoln County Medical Center in Ruidoso and released.

J.W. Gilmore of Corona turned himself in March 20 and was charged with aggravated battery and assault. He made a first appearance before Magistrate Judge Gerald Dean Jr.

Bond was set at $10,000 and reduced to $5,000, no 10 percent allowed. A property bond was posted for Gilmore's release.

Sheriff James McSwane reported his department is continuing the investigation of an alleged embezzlement in Carrizozo. The victim was a senior citizen.

The sheriff's department also assisted the state police at a one-vehicle rollover south of Carrizozo. Two patients were transported to Holloman.

A one-vehicle accident with injuries was reported March 21 at mile marker 53 on Highway 380. The victim was treated at Carrizozo Health Center and taken to Smokey Bear Motel in Capitan.

There are 30 prisoners in the county jail in Carrizozo, three females and 27 males. McSwane said six of the prisoners are serving jail time for DWI offenses, three of these are serving sentences of 364 days in the county jail.

Six Otero County prisoners are also housed in the Lincoln County jail due to overcrowding in Alamogordo.

McSwane said one reason for the high number of prisoners in jail is because his officers are making arrests on old warrants.

JOHN TORRISON has been pastor of the Carrizozo First Baptist Church since June 1984. Easter Sunday will be his last Sunday to preach in Carrizozo. He will begin duties as pastor at the Central Baptist Church in Grants on April 2. During their five years in Carrizozo, the Torrisons have been involved in many community activities. John has been EMT-Basic for more than three years and his wife Trudy has been EMT-Intermediate for more than four years. Shown with them are daughters Jamie and Sarah.

—The school budget was discussed. Burnett said the school will receive $21,000 more than had been projected for the 1988-89 budget because of increased enrollment on the 40th and 80th days.

The money will be added to revenues for the school and will be used where needed. Two advertisements must be published before the budget hearing can be held to include the money in the budget at the next meeting.

—New board member Nick Serna asked if the board could get copies of the operational check register before the meeting. He said, "I would feel more comfortable seeing it before the school board meeting."

Eugenia Vega said that the School Board Member Institute held March 3 and 4 had stressed the importance of board members receiving check registers before the meeting.

—Spring break will be March 27 through March 31. There will be no school.

—The next school board meeting will be April 18.

Work starts on highway project

Work starts this week on a project to improve a portion of US highways 70/380 in Lincoln County.

The project begins about six and half miles east of the junction of US 70/380 and continues for about eight miles. Department project manager William Morrow said the work includes in-situ cold recycling, widening and an overlay.

Wylie Corporation of Albuquerque is doing the work for the department at a cost of $4.37 million.

Flagmen will be directing traffic and a pilot car will lead motorists through the construction area. Morrow said that motorists may expect waits up to 20 minutes during some phase of construction. The project should be completed by the end of October.

Voter list to be purged

Warning on measles epidemics

There are measles epidemics in Texas and California.

People planning to travel to Houston, Lubbock, Monahans, Odessa, and San Antonio, TX; and Los Angeles, CA should exercise care. If children are involved in travel plans, or a person is younger than 33, the New Mexico Department of Health and Environment recommends you review one's measles immunity.

Dr. Arlene Brown and Dr. Michael Spence, family physicians, will review any person's shot records, free of charge. Phone 257-7712, Monday through Saturday, and ask for "measles advice."

Tombstones placed on Nogal Cemetery graves

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Hust of Raeford, NC, were in Carrizozo this week to place tombstones on the graves of Howard's grandparents in Nogal Cemetery.

While the Husts were in Carrizozo they researched more of the family history. They learned that older people knew the Cochrans as Coughran, pronounced Cohorn.

Joseph Cochran was born in Polk County, Arkansas Nov. 2, 1856 and moved to San Saba, Texas in 1868 or 1869. He joined the Texas Rangers March 10, 1881 and later met and married Eliza Jane Wilson.

The Cochrans and their two children joined a wagon train of about 20 wagons in 1887 and came to New Mexico. Their first stop was at Parsons where Joseph worked in one of the mines.

Joseph later opened his own blacksmith shop and became a foreman at the Helen Ray gold mine. While at the gold mine he made a watch fob using gold from the mine. Later he carried the mail, mostly by horseback, from Nogal to Bonito.

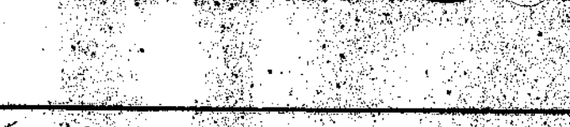
The Cochrans lived in Nogal for many years and reared their 12 children there. Joseph owned a saloon, was a justice of the peace, and ranched in the area.

Eliza died Feb. 21, 1915 in Nogal and was buried in Nogal Cemetery. Joseph died in Hot Springs (now Truth or Consequences) May 5, 1929 and was buried in Nogal Cemetery next to his wife.

The Husts said they had visited the cemetery three years ago and found no marker on one grave and a simple stone marker on the other grave. It was at that time they decided to have tombstones made. Several of Howard's cousins contributed to the cost of the gravestones.

Further research of the Cochran family in old newspapers contained information about Joseph's father coming for a visit in 1902 and being accidently shot in a hunting accident. The paper said Joseph's father was 75 years old and had served two terms in the Arkansas legislature.

The Husts plan to continue the research in old newspapers in Santa Fe and in Arkansas.



Broadway, New York's main thoroughfare, became the "Great White Way" in 1880 when it was illuminated by electricity for the first time between 14th and 25th streets.

about how Cox helped the county get the Lincoln Historic Preservation District established.

Ruth Hammond of the Lincoln County News told of how Cox prepared packets of information for the media and ran an "open door" policy in keeping residents informed of county business.

Entertainment for the evening included songs by Sherry Underwood and poems written and read by John Underwood.

Cox thanked everyone for the farewell party and noted she had received a letter from US Senator Jeff Bingaman soon after she resigned. In her thanks to the people, Cox said, "Lincoln County is fortunate to have people like this." She added, "I have never worked with men of such high caliber as the commissioners. They are all special to me."

Cox asked the people, "to pray for our leaders, whether we agree with them or not."

She received a standing ovation after her speech. Attending the dinner with her were her husband Charlie, son Jeff, and daughter Jody Hopkins. Son Chuckie was at a track meet. Three other children were also unable to attend.

Rosalie Dunlap presented Cox with a photo album of pictures from the six-and-a-half years Cox served as county manager.

READY OR NOT

Ready or not, spring sprung back to winter last Monday evening. Many county residents awoke Tuesday morning prepared to shovel "partly cloudy" from their front walks.

Monday kicked off the first day of spring, astronomically the spring equinox, one of two days in the year when day and night are of equal length. The other is the autumnal equinox on Sept. 22.

The vernal equinox, as the first day of spring is also called, has historically marked a time for planting. Ancient cultures erected stone calendars which were set according to the shadow cast during the equinox.

If my clock batteries stop working I can tell the time of day by the shadow cast by the "spring snowman" the kids made in the backyard.

I AM GRATEFUL

Here is some advise from an early Kentucky grandmother to a new bride. Perhaps it will lighten your spirits on laundry day. Spelling and grammar of the grandma was not corrected in the Cooperative Extension Service newsletter I received from NMSU. "Blew" is a blue liquid used on white clothes during the laundry process. If you do not understand the term, you are too young for this borrowed clipping and should pass it on to your grandmother.

1. Bilt fire in backyard to heet kettle of rain water.

2. Set tubs so smoke won't blow in eye if wind is pert.

3. Shave one hoel cake of lie soap in bilin water.

4. Sort things, make three piles. 1 pile white, 1 pile cullord, 1 pile work britches and rags.

5. Stir flour in cold water to smooth, then thin down with bilin water for starch.

6. Rub dirty spots on board, then bile, rub cullord, don't bile, just rench in starch.

7. Take white things out of kettle with broom stick handle, then rench, blew and starch.

8. Spread tee towels on grass.

9. Hang old rags on fence.

10. Pour rench water in flour bed.

11. Scrub porch or outhouse with hot soapy water.

12. Turn tubs upside down.

13. Go put on clean dress, smooth hair with side combs, brew cup of tea, set and rest a spell and count your blessings.

TEARS IN MY BEER

The publication "The Voice in the Wilderness" reports that many parents are ardent fans of country and western music while at the same time, vehemently objecting to the rock-n-roll that has their children in its deadly grip.

Teens, says The Voice, see this as an inconsistency, adding that if there is any difference in rock-n-roll and today's country and western, the difference is only a hairline and hardly distinguishable.

While some rock musicians sing about drugs, illicit sex and revolution, the country and western groups sings about beer drinking, cheating hearts, and of course, sex is usually one of their themes too.

You'll need no assistance in guessing the message of the titles of the country and western songs listed in the publication:

"I love That Woman Like The Devil Loves Sin," "Head Back To My Bed," "Bedroom Eyes," "Wake Up On The Warm Side Of You," "You're Out Doing What I'm Doing Without," "Heartbreak Motel."

Oh but there are some good songs too, you and I say.

"Granted! However," says The Voice, "do we think we are doing right by leaving our radio on to await good one while wading through beer suds, tear jerking, or somebody pleading "Help me make it through the night," until our good song comes on?"

We don't pay attention to the words, we just like the music. Right?

"That old horse won't ride!" says The Voice.

WHAT'S COOKING

The day before Easter a newspaper's food editor took a call from a youthful-sounding woman who asked how long to roast a 19½-pound turkey.

"Just a minute," said the food editor as she turned to consult the chart on her bulletin board.

"Thanks a lot!" said the caller and hung up.

800 NUMBERS

A free booklet, published by the National Library of Medicine, that gives "800" numbers (free again) for health information and advice is now available to the public. The booklet, called "Health Hotline," is a compilation of organizations that will give a caller free information on subjects ranging from aging to asthma, eating disorders to poison control, hearing to dyscrasia. It's available free from the National Library of Medicine, Information Office (HH), 8600 Rockville Pike, Bethesda, MD 20894.

Ernest V. Joiner's OPINION

● The debate goes on as to whether military assault weapons like the AK-47 should be banned by federal law. These guns are semi-automatic capable of firing up to 75 rounds depending upon how fast the trigger is pulled. Fully automatic rifles can fire up to 600 rounds per minute merely by holding the trigger. Semi-automatics can be modified to automatic by any gun expert. The National Rifle Association, whose policies I generally support, wants assault weapons to remain legal for three reasons: (1) it sees the ban as a "foot in the door" approach to ultimate government control of all guns; (2) assault weapons are used by many Americans for hunting and other sporting events; and (3) such a law outlawing any type of gun cannot be enforced.

● First, congress is constantly under pressure to ban the manufacture, sale, ownership and possession of any handgun. The NRA is correct in viewing a ban on assault weapons as a foot in the door to even more restrictions on ownership of firearms of whatever type.

● Second, to maintain that the use of assault rifles is a sport borders on the ridiculous. You don't take an AK-47 out to shoot rabbits. Where is the sportsmanship in spraying a deer with 60 to 600 rounds of high caliber ammunition? Why not just tow a howitzer behind the hunter's car so he can really shoot up the landscape? In my opinion, sportsmanship went out of hunting with advent of the telescopic sight. What we have now is little more than animal slaughter, not sportsmanship.

● Third, no law restricting the sale or ownership of any type gun has ever been effectively enforced—and never can be so enforced except in isolated and sometimes selective cases. Gun control laws are an exercise in futility. As long as Americans want guns Americans will have guns. We should have learned something from Prohibition.

● Gun control laws are as useless as those laws against drug pushers. The war on drugs is already lost—lost because as long as Americans want drugs Americans will have drugs, and it doesn't matter how many pushers are jailed or how much cocaine and heroin is seized. The demand for drugs exist and will be satisfied. If guns are denied the people they will be smuggled. Guns can be made in home basements and attics. A few years ago high school students in Sebastopol, CA were found constructing handguns in the school's manual training department.

● Banning guns, like banning drugs, just doesn't work. First, because law enforcement officers cannot be expected to lay their lives on the line to arrest a criminal when they know the subject will be released through courtroom cockamania and be back on the streets next day. Second, the judicial system is in shambles. It permits plea bargaining whereby a criminal can get a murder charge reduced to the size of a parking ticket. The courts can't wait to release criminals to rehabilitation centers. They suspend sentences and abuse the parole system. If a judge gets tough and imposes a 20-year prison sentence, the system permits the felon's release in from five to seven years. Then, of course, there are "kind and gentler" judges who tearfully impose the minimum sentence, often suspended.

● Laws banning guns or drugs are not the answer. Law enforcement, as currently practiced, is not the answer. Courts are not the answer. Prisons, already costing American taxpayers more per year than the entire American education system, are not the answer. Then what is?

● Start working to eliminate the cause of all our social problems. It may take two generations to inject moral values in the people. These values have been lost, mainly because of the breakup of the family. This breakup is reflected to the schools, churches, judicial system and even unto congress itself. It has encouraged social and moral dissolution and moral decay. But in this long-term interim, drastic action could be taken. Such action will trample on individual rights, violate the US Constitution (not without precedent today), and restrict some of our freedoms. A small price to pay, however, for a crimeless nation.

● I would favor banning assault rifles, but only if harsh penalties are mandated for violators. If such a gun owner is caught and given a mandatory 20-year prison sentence with no plea bargaining, no parole, no time off for good behavior, no psychiatric claptrap and no rehabilitation outside prison, I would vote for such a ban. If we're going to have a law, make its application certain, harsh, fast, and equally applied to all

Inside The Capitol

By Jay Miller

SANTA FE-The end of the regular session of the 1989 legislature marks the beginning of the 1990 statewide political season.

You may not have wanted to hear that information. You may have wanted to stay away from everything political for a while. In that case, you'll like the Republicans approach to doing political business. They are all hanging back—as proper Republicans should do—to be sure the time is right and to avoid appearing overanxious.

Did you ever notice how it's the Democrats who are out on the dance floor first? Republican couples worry about being mortified if no one else joins them. They usually wait until there are a bunch of Democrats dancing and then they inconspicuously blend toward the middle of the crowd.

David King became the first to officially announce his candidacy. The greater Moriarty Democrat traveled to Las Cruces, Albuquerque and Santa Fe, a stop in each congressional district, to make his announcements on Saturday, March 18, the final day of the regular legislative session.

King, 42, has held top-level state governmental positions during both four-year terms of his uncle Bruce King and during the four years Toney Anaya was governor. He now serves as deputy state treasurer under the popular James Lewis, who is prohibited by state law from seeking another term.

The treasurer's office has custody of more than $9 billion in state funds. That includes the general fund for the daily operation of government and schools, two large retirement funds, and the giant permanent and severance tax funds.

One of the most important functions of the office is the daily investment of readily available state cash. At the end of each workday the treasurer "sweeps" over 600 state agency accounts and invests that money in the short term financial markets, called "overnights," instead of letting it remain idle.

An average of more than $600 million is invested daily under this program, returning to the state more than $60 million per year. Last year King guided a bill through the legislature to allow local governments throughout the state to join in this program, allowing the treasurer to earn them millions of dollars each year.

King already has his campaign going full steam. Betty Fiorina, a former secretary of state will be his campaign chairman. In addition to his career in government, King has been a partner in the family ranching and farming business for more than 25 years. He served six years on the board of regents of New Mexico State University.

Meanwhile, Uncle Bruce has passed the word among friends and former campaign workers that he will be making his announcement for a third gubernatorial term on April 15. Anyone not frantically preparing tax returns that day is cordially invited to attend. Bruce's first two terms were separated by a constitutional prohibition against successive terms. That restriction has been lifted, so the 64-year-old King could stick around for eight years assuming voters like the idea. A chief executive in his 70s used to seem old, but Ronald Reagan changed all that.

As of April 15, there will be two officially announced candidates for statewide office and both will be Kings. What effect will that have on the two candidates? It won't be positive but Bruce and David are betting it won't be fatal. If both happen to make it through the primary elections a year from June, it could hurt more in the general election.

Four years ago David stayed away from a statewide race figuring Uncle Bruce would once again seek the governor's office. But Bruce played a waiting game and eventually announced he was staying out. It seems he had done some polling that showed any Democrat would have trouble going for the top spot. By that time, all other experienced Demo possibilities had lost interest.

This year, party chiefs and former campaign workers told Bruce he would have to put out the word early. Other interested candidates, former Attorney General Paul Bardake especially, have been combing Demo ranks for experienced workers. Former King chief of staff Linda Kehoe is expected to head Bruce's campaign again.

Letter to the Editor

The apple scare scam

EDITOR—A few self-appointed health experts, led by actress Meryl Streep and the activist Natural Resources Defense Council, are telling the public that apples and apple products are unsafe to eat. They're totally wrong. They have nothing to lose by making the wild claims, but innocent family farmers are being hurt by all the confusion and bad publicity.

The mess has been created by irresponsible science and bad reporting.

A highly manipulated, alarmist report by the Natural Resources Defense Council, using data rejected three years ago by reputable scientists, claimed our nation's children's health was being jeopardized by the use of agricultural chemicals. This is not true, even though the report was treated as gospel by the "60 Minutes" television show.

Our food supply is safe. The Environmental Protection Agency establishes safe chemical residue levels after exhaustive testing. Tolerances are then set at levels far below those shown to be safe in the laboratory.

Food and Drug Administration inspectors were able to detect and thwart recent terrorist sabotage of produce imported from Chile through normal testing procedures, which is evidence of the effectiveness of monitoring systems and the caution exercised in protecting our food system.

Family farmers are being hurt by the public's misplaced trust in the anti-chemical movement. Apple growers are bearing the brunt of the problem now but all farmers will suffer if current misconceptions are not straightened out quickly.

The public must be assured that America's food supply is safe.

Those electric rates

EDITOR—This letter is sent as an open letter to all Otero County Electric consumers: Some of you have recently received a letter from William F. Mershon, general manager of Otero County Electric Cooperative, advising you that you may soon be faced with an increase in your electric rates due to a ruling by the Public Service Commission, which eliminates the capacity (demand) charge from residential customers. However, before you respond, I think you should know that there is more to this story than the small amount of information which was given to you by Mr. Mershon.

In 1986 a group of consumers sought an opinion from the Public Service Commission as to whether or not the demand charge was a fair and equitable charge to impose on residential customers. This question was raised due to the fact that: (1) Otero County Electric Cooperative is the only electric utility company in the entire state of New Mexico which imposes a demand charge on its residential customers; (2) Not all of Otero County Electric's customers are subjected to the demand charge; and (3) the demand charge has resulted in exorbitant electric bills for some of Otero Electric's customers ranging from $500-$1,000 per month during cold winter months. An electric bill in the area of $500 has not been unusual for some of our part-time customers, even though they may have been in their home here as little as 2-5 days during a given month. We sought a ruling from the Public Service Commission to determine if there was a more equitable way for Otero Electric to collect monies needed to run the utility.

Regardless of what you may think of a person who is financially able to afford a vacation home in the mountains, you should keep in mind that tourism is the lifeblood of Lincoln and Otero counties, and without the tourists, this area cannot continue to exist. They provide a means of livelihood for many, many people in Lincoln and Otero counties. Also keep in mind that there are plenty of full-time, local residents who have been paying extremely high electric bills because of the fact that they built all-electric homes, not knowing about the existence of residential demand charges. Many of those customers have spent a considerable amount of money converting appliances to gas and eliminating electric power usuage just to avoid the demand charge. This has been to the detriment of the electric company, whose business it is to sell electricity! Good reasoning will tell you that some of the increases in rates which you have experienced over the past several years have been directly attributable to the fact that the co-op is having to charge more per kilowatt hour simply because they are selling less electricity.

The course of our case before the Public Service Commission has taken almost three years. After many months of legal work and several hearings before the PSC (both formal and informal), the PSC ruled in our favor and ordered the elimination of demand metering. The co-op appealed this decision and took the matter to the Supreme Court. Our case was heard before the Supreme Court on Feb. 14, 1989, and we are still awaiting a final decision from that Court.

You should be aware of several things:

The demand charge will not be eliminated until the Supreme Court affirms the ruling of the PSC.

There are several proposed rates being considered in the event that the demand charge is eliminated:

(A) Proposal by the co-op would increase the rate of the small consumer (up to 1000 kwh per month) by as much as 12.6 percent;

(B) Proposal by the PSC would increase the rate of the same small consumer by 1-4 percent per month, and the majority of any increase in rate would be absorbed by the part-time, recreational homeowner. (This increase in rate, however, would apply only to the rate per kilowatt hour, and there would be no additional demand charge)

The merits of both of these proposed rates will be argued at the hearing before the PSC on April 3, 1989. Nothing has been finalized to date.

My main purpose in writing you this letter is to let you know that you have been given a very small amount of information, and before you react or respond in any way, you should get more facts. The consumers who took this question to the PSC had no desire to hurt their fellow consumers in any way. We simply sought a rate which would be equitable for each and evey consumer, and a rate whereby each consumer could comfortably use the electric power which the co-op is obligated to provide to its consumers.

JEANIE CLANCY,

offenders. Some say education is the answer to our social ills. Are you telling me there's nothing educational in sending all gun law violators to prison for 20 years? When a person contemplates the pleasure of owning an illegal handgun against an almost certain 20 miserable years in prison, that's education!

● Have you ever considered that if we rigidly enforced the thousands of laws heaped upon us over the past 200 years, there would be no murder, no rape, no robbery in the US? But the criminal is smarter than we are, else law and the courts would not be on his side. The felon knows that his chances of being caught for a crime is 1 in 100; then he knows that if he is indeed apprehended, his chances of conviction are 1 in 100; further, he knows that if he is somehow convicted his sentence will be mild enough to enable him to be on the streets again in five to seven years. Here again his education is being pursued. With such odds in my favor, he reasons, and given the fact that I have no moral values anyway, why shouldn't I make a career of crime? Take those odds to Las Vegas and the chances of your coming back a rich person are 100 to 1.

● Get tough on criminals or criminals will get tougher on us.

Howard Puckett is EMT of the Month

By DOROTHY GUCK

One of the busiest organization volunteers in Lincoln County is Howard Puckett of Alto. He retired after 17 years of Wrangler Company salesman work in December 1986, and took his EMT basic training in January 1987 in Ruidoso.

While still working at his regular job, he joined the Alto Fire Department nine years ago. This is his eighth year as fire chief there, and was also ambulance driver several years.

He encouraged his daughter and son-in-law, Pam and Gene Viele, to certify as EMTs.

Howard is field coordinator for Search and Rescue, and at present manages the Lincoln County recycling efforts at their depot in Ruidoso Downs.

He was chosen Rookie of 1988 by the Lincoln County EMT Association, and is currently a member-at-large on the board.

"I am on call at all times," he said, "for fires and search and rescue, but have regular hours of duty as an EMT. During the EMT duty hours, that is my prior volunteer work. I am vitally concerned about the welfare of people in our county, their health and environment, and will always strive to improve the livability of Lincoln County."

His wife remarked, "Howard is a super handyman, and ready to help anyone in need. He thinks EMT is one of the best ways of showing his care for people. Being chosen EMT of March is a special honor for him as he celebrates his birthday March 25."

Mrs. Tyree will give the highlights and Mrs. Holleyman will present awards. The next meeting will be April 17 at the home of Mrs. Smith. The hostess served coffee and snacks from a table with the Easter motiff.

Mrs. Holleyman and Mrs. G. Perkins reminisced about their 30 years with Beta Sigma Phi, from the time the chapter was organized by Olive Murphy to the present.

Preparations for a large high explosive test are underway in the northern portion of White Sands Missile Range.

The test, code name Misers Gold, is scheduled for June 1989. The explosive charge consists of 2,440 tons of ammonium nitrate and fuel oil (ANFO). The ANFO will be placed in a 70-foot diameter hemispherical container at ground level.

The purpose of Misers Gold is to expose US and foreign civil and military equipment and structures to an air blast and ground shock environment to test their vulnerabilities.

The program is sponsored and conducted by the Defense Nuclear Agency (DNA). The test site on WSMR is about 34 miles west of Carrizozo and 38 miles southeast of Socorro. An environmental assessment for the test has determined that there will be no significant environmental effects.

What kind of a kid do you suppose Thomas Edison was?

Bet he looked at problems and saw solutions. Like Maurice Scales who invented Baby No-Mash to prevent doors from closing on little fingers.

Bet he saw how things were done, and imagined better ways to do them. Like Lillian Lukas who invented the Puddle Detecting Cane for the blind.

Bet he watched how things work and thought of ways to avoid wasting time or effort. Like Caitlin McCracken who invented the Orphan Kitten Feeder for Three.

Maurice, Lillian and Caitlin were three of the thousands of winners in the Invent America! education program.

And you know that small genius can grow up to become big genius—with the capacity to make a big difference in the world. That difference will make America number one again.

To participate, just write Invent America!, 510 King Street, Suite 420, Alexandria, VA 22314, or call 703/684-1836.

If you're wondering if it's all worthwhile, just imagine what Edison would have said.
