Carrizozo show for KOAT-TV to be retaped

Carrizozo was not featured on KOAT-TV on July 30 as planned. Something happened to the tape made on the football field July 19 of Carrizozo residents yelling, "We love you New Mexico."

A spokesman for KOAT-TV Channel 7 in Albuquerque called town clerk Carol Schlarb Monday and said the segment is scheduled to be retaped on Aug. 17 or earlier if possible. Verification of taping date will be confirmed with town officials.

Channel 7 anchorman Bill Sandefur with cameraman Mark Buslee and helicopter pilot George Gay taped the original segment. More than 400 people stood in front of the Channel 7 helicopter for the taping.

Residents will be informed of the confirmed date for the next taping.

Man convicted in 'check kiting' scheme in county

Robert Edmondson of Ruidoso was convicted on two counts of forgery and 11 counts of worthless checks following a three-day trial in front of District Judge Robert Doughty in Alamogordo recently.

According to assistant district attorney Scott Key, Edmondson was involved in a "check kiting" scheme that involved seven banks including the Bank of Ruidoso and the Ruidoso State Bank and all of its branches. The banks lost a lot of money.

Edmondson was sent to Grants for a 60-day diagnostic evaluation prior to sentencing. Key said the case was put together by Ruidoso police detective Mike Lovelace.

The first trial was declared a mistrial in district court in Carrizozo in March and was moved to Alamogordo on a change of venue. Key expressed his thanks to all personnel and witnesses for their help in bringing the case to a conviction.

Assistant AG explains status of Ft. Stanton lawsuit

By Ruth Hammond

Chris Coppin, New Mexico Assistant Attorney General, visited Fort Stanton recently. He was guest speaker at the first annual Families for Fort Stanton picnic held in July.

Coppin told parents, guardians, and family members of Fort Stanton clients the status of the pending lawsuit filed by the Protection and Advocacy (P&A) against Fort Stanton Hospital and Training School, and Los Lunas Hospital and Training School.

The case was filed two years ago in July 1987. P&A wants to close the Fort Stanton facility and downscale the Los Lunas facility.

Parents and guardians of clients at both facilities have intervened and are asking the court to not close Fort Stanton and not to downscale Los Lunas.

Coppin said the AG's intent is to protect the institutions and the state of New Mexico. "The state's position is that we think the most important aspect is for the state to retain control," Coppin said. "Our position is to protect."

The first scheduled court dates for the case are Sept. 18-22 in federal court in Albuquerque. Federal Judge Parker will hear the case. Other court dates will be Oct. 16-20, Oct. 30-1, Nov. 1-3, Nov. 13-17, and Dec. 11-15.

Kent Winchester is the attorney representing the clients and their parents and guardians. He is assisted by attorney Roberta Beyer.

Coppin said the federal judge knows some parents do not want the institutions closed and said, "The court will get a definite picture from parents that institutions provide important services."

P&A alleges that all clients should be moved into communities. Many parents and guardians insist community settings are not appropriate for all clients. Many clients have been placed in community living arrangements and were returned to institutions because the needs of the clients were not met in the community.

Families for Fort Stanton FFPS is the parents and guardians association that was organized Sept. 17, 1988. FFPS meets every other month. Members agree that Fort Stanton provides freedom and services for clients that cannot be furnished

Electric Coop celebrates 50th anniversary

The Otero County Electric Cooperative, Inc. will celebrate its 50th anniversary during the 50th annual membership meeting Aug. 5 in Cloudercroft.

While many people today take electricity for granted, it was much different when the company started 50 years ago. At that time electricity in Cloudercroft was provided by a generator belonging to the railroad company and was used mainly to provide power to pump water for the trains.

Since the generator only ran when there was a need to pump water, the few other electric customers that were permitted to use power were at the mercy of the pumping schedule.

From these meager beginnings, the coop has grown to a company that provides power to 11,000 accounts in an area from Roswell to Carrizozo to Orogrande.

Otero County Electric Coop was the third electric cooperative formed in New Mexico after the Rural Electrification Act was enacted in 1936. Today there are 17 electric cooperatives in New Mexico.

As a non-profit corporation any profits, also referred to as capital credits, made by the coop are paid back to the users on a pro rata allocation. The company keeps the money for 15 years to use as patronage capital and then returns the money to the members.

General Manager Bill Mershon said the capital credit checks for 1973 will be paid at the annual meeting to those attending and other checks will be mailed.

Mershon began working full time at the coop in 1970 when there were 4,000 accounts. He became general manager in 1982. He has watched the coop grow and looks forward to more growth in the future.

"We will charge into the next 50 years with the mission to provide reliable power at the lowest possible price," he said.

The coop headquarters in Cloudercroft with sub offices in Alto and Carrizozo. There are 42 employees who help keep the 2,100 miles of powerlines working properly to provide service to the 11,000 accounts.

The electricity for Lincoln County comes from either Glen Canyon in Arizona or a power plant in Grants. It is transmitted through power lines to Albuquerque and then to Alamogordo before going to Ruidoso. The power then goes to Glencoe and on to Capitán before being transmitted to Carrizozo.

New computer program this year

By Bartley McDonough

Capitan Municipal Schools will be using a new computer program this new school year. The program is by Computer Curriculum Corporation of Palo Alto, CA and will involve the areas of math, reading and language. The program will be implemented in grades K through 8 this year and the entire school next year.

The advantages of this program are many. It ties directly to curriculum and state competencies. It is an integrated learning system by which the student can progress at his/her own pace. It will accommodate students who need remediation as well as learners who learn at a faster pace.

It will indicate to the teacher at any time the grade equivalency of the student in any strand. A strand is the entire scope of the subject being taught.

Research has shown that students can gain up to 2.5

years in their grade equivalency in only one year of use in the lab.

There are a total of 35 different courses available including GED preparation for adults who have not earned a high school diploma.

Belco reduces work force while OSHA rules are met

Belco Industries, Inc. has been in business in Carrizozo continuously since 1973. Through the years the company has paid more than $34 million in wages to employees and has had as many as 50 employees working at a time.

Tuesday morning Belco had 23 employees working to paint parts and assemble and ship welders around the world. Tuesday evening Belco's work force was reduced to nine because 14 employees were laid off.

The reason for the lay-off was because of violations discovered during an inspection by the New Mexico Environmental Improvement Division (NMEID) of the Health and Education Department (HED) which operates under state and federal legislation certified to enforce Occupational and Health Safety standards.

NMEID conducted the inspection of Belco on June 30. Charles Steele, compliance manager with NMEID in Santa Fe, said the inspection was based on periodic inspections of high hazard industries.

Steele declined to make further comment concerning the Belco inspection. He said, "I feel uncomfortable making a statement on the specifics because our office does not have verification that the official notice to Belco was received."

According to Jim and Carolyn Cantrell, owners of Belco, the notice was received Tuesday and cited several violations that were discovered during the inspection. The Cantrells said many of the violations have already been corrected and other minor violations are in the process of being corrected.

A major violation was that the spray booth where the welder parts are painted before being assembled did not meet standards required. Use of the spray booth was discontinued Tuesday.

While only one person of the 14 laid off worked in the spray booth, the other 13 jobs were related to the painting. All components and parts of the welders were painted before assembly.

"We have tried to have a safe place to work," Jim Cantrell said. He explained the most serious accident had been when an employee mangled a finger.

As to a solution to the spray booth problem, Cantrell said, "We don't know what our options are." One option could be to purchase painted parts and another option might be to contract with another company to paint the parts.

"We do plan to stay in Carrizozo," Cantrell said. "And we do plan to keep operating." He said the welders are in demand. Recent shipments were made to China and England. Belco has built

Maggie Bohks hired as EMS coordinator

Maggie Bohks has been hired as Director of Emergency Medical Services in Lincoln County. She will begin her duties Aug. 14.

Bohks has been dispatcher for the Lincoln County Sheriff's Department for 10 years and has worked closely with the EMS during this time. She became a certified first responder in 1985.

Lincoln County EMS honored Bohks in July by selecting her as the EMS person of the month. Bohks was surprised and pleased at having been selected prior to the announcement July 21 that she would become the EMS director to fill the vacancy when Nancy Guck resigned.

Bohks lives in White Oaks with her husband Bob, a retired US Marshal. They have three grown children, Robbie Bohks and his wife Brenda of Albuquerque, David Bohks of California, and Melissa Leslie and her husband Rusty of Carrizozo, and two grandchildren, Joel and Ward Leslie of Carrizozo. Maggie's mother is Halimae Robertson of Casa Manana, Carrizozo.

Maggie said she has tremendous respect for the Lincoln County EMS system and thinks it is the best EMS in the state. "We are very fortunate to have this group of people to serve us," she said.

"I am looking forward to working with them and for them," she said of the new position. She plans to work with all EMS personnel to continue the high quality service it provides.

During her years as dispatcher, Bohks has received two appreciation awards from the EMS. She is also a member of the Lincoln County Community Right to Know Committee and developed the hazardous materials incident emergency response plan for the communications section of the Lincoln County Sheriff's Department.

The plan was implemented during the mock disaster held in Lincoln County June 20, 1988 which received a high rating from the state.

Maggie is a certified police radio dispatcher. She received her certification from the New Mexico law enforcement academy in 1981. She is a member of the Trinity United Methodist Church, Order of the Eastern Star, Canyon CowBelle, and Federated Republican Women of Lincoln County.

Before moving to White Oaks 12 years ago, she was a part-time matron for the US Marshal's office in Texas where Bohks was marshal. She received training from professionals in being a US marshal matron.

Lincoln County Sheriff James McSwane said he will miss Maggie and wishes her the best in her new job. Her last day as dispatcher will be Aug. 4.

Man killed in vehicle accident

Jack W. Ingram, 66, Odessa, TX, was killed while riding a three-wheeler Aug. 1 in the Ruidoso area.

Lincoln County Sheriff James McSwane reported the accident happened in a trailer park on Gavilan Canyon Road north of Boggs Springs Road. Ingram was driving the ATV down a steep gravel driveway and attempted to stop. The brakes failed and the vehicle sideswiped a parked motorhome and then hit a tree where it overturned, throwing Ingram from the three-wheeler.

Ingram was transported to Lincoln County Medical Center in Ruidoso and later taken to a hospital in El Paso where he was pronounced dead at 11:55 p.m.

McSwane reported other sheriff department activities for the week included a burglary report at a residence on Fort Stanton road July 27 and a breaking and entering of a cabin at High Country Lodge in the Alto Lake area July 29.

Officers responded to a call at the Gallacher Ranch north of Carrizozo July 28 where a motorhome burned. A car towing a U-Haul trailer was on fire July 31 at mile marker 132 north of Carrizozo on Highway 54 at 3:17 a.m. The Carrizozo Volunteer Fire Department was dispatched to both fires.

Documentary to be filmed in Lincoln

Melvin Coe, a native of the Hondo Valley and son of Charles Coe, announced he will begin filming a documentary in Lincoln Friday. He plans to film the Billy the Kid Pageant and old-time personalities.

Coe now lives in Beverley Hills, CA and Austin, NV. He said the story will be about his 60 years spent on ranches and "in the saddle."

Coe said he is negotiating with Double M Enterprises out of Tulsa to do the actual filming. Double M is owned by Waburn D. Martin. Coe owns Billy the Kid Film and Associates, a production company in Salem, OR.

Means to be tried in district court

Burdette Means, 34, Carrizozo, remains in custody in the county jail on charges of criminal sexual penetration. He made a first appearance before Magistrate Judge Gerald Dean Jr. where bond was set at $50,000, no 10 percent, allowed.

Means waived preliminary and was bound over to district court.

In magistrate court action this week, Donny Corn, Roswell, was charged with running a stop sign, speeding, reckless driving, resisting, evading or obstructing an officer, and possession of controlled substance-marijuana under one ounce.

Corn was arraigned on July 31 and entered a plea of not guilty. A court date has not been set.

Albina Chavez, 34, Carrizozo, was charged with assault on July 31 and arrested. She was arraigned Aug. 1 and posted a $20 cash bond and was released.

Grizzlies return from summer camp

Carrizozo High School basketball coach Ron Becker and nine Carrizozo students returned recently after spending six days at the University of Texas at El Paso (UTEP) basketball camp.

"We had a very successful camp," said Becker. "The kids showed a lot of hard work and hustle and were well behaved throughout the camp. The town was well represented by these young men."

The camp was attended by 35 schools from Texas, New Mexico and Arizona and included Class 'A' schools through 4-AAAA schools. Each team participated in 12 scrimmage games during camp competition.

The Carrizozo team ended with an 8 won and 4 lost record. A victory over Sabino High School from Tucson, AZ, a school with an enrollment of more than 2,000 students, was the highlight of the Carrizozo competition. The Grizzlies defeated Sabino 43-42.

Notable instructors at the camp included Norm Ellenburger, former UNM coach and presently UTEP assistant coach, on defense, and Jim "Bad News" Barnes, former NBA player, on offense.

This was the fifth year in a row that Grizzly team members have participated in the UTEP basketball camp. Sponsoring the team were Willie Silva, Harold Garcia and Ted Turnbow.

Players making the trip to El Paso were Dennis Vega, voted Outstanding Defensive

Harvest Moon Ball Oct. 28

The 7th annual Harvest Moon Ball will be held Oct. 28 in Carrizozo. The event is sponsored by the Association for Retarded Citizens (ARC) of Lincoln County.

Plans for the ball were made during the quarterly ARC meeting held July 31 in Carrizozo. A dance and cake raffle will be features of the affair.

Proceeds from the ball and other money-making projects are used for retarded people in Lincoln County. A date was not set for the annual bowling tournament that is usually held in March to coincide with Mental Retardation Month.

During the meeting Jenny Kelly reported on legislation that may affect group homes and training schools for the retarded.

Ruth Hammond reported on the pending lawsuit filed by the Protection and Advocacy (P&A) against Los Lunas Hospital and Training School, and Fort Stanton Hospital and Training School.

P&A wants to close the Fort Stanton facility and downscale the Los Lunas facility. A federal judge will begin hearing the case in federal court in Albuquerque, Sept. 18.

Parents and guardians of clients at both facilities are intervening in the case and asking the court to not close

Personal use firewood program in place

The Smokey Bear Ranger District has several areas open for personal use fuelwood gathering.

The Big Pine Area will be for dead/down fuelwood and is located near Ancho. Dead/down fuelwood is generally scarce and hard to locate. The area that will be open is located in a juniper push area which provides a somewhat heavier concentration of material. Two green fuelwood areas will be opening July 31.

The East Capitan divide area is located 7 miles north of Capitan and east of state highway 246. The North Capitan area is located approximately 28 miles northeast of Capitan near Copland Canyon.

The harvesting of standing trees, as fuelwood, creates openings in the pinon/juniper type. This provides additional forage for livestock and wildlife, which is the management emphasis for the area as directed by the Lincoln Forest plan.

The cost of a permit is $10 per cord for dead/down wood and $14 per cord for green wood. Fuelwood must be removed with a permit in possession and from the designated area shown on the permit. Removal of fuelwood when soil conditions are wet and soil disturbance results is a violation of the terms of the permit. This can result in the seizure of fuelwood and the issuance of a violation notice.

Maps of the open areas and fuelwood permits will be available at the district office at 901 Mechem, Ruidoso. Office hours are 7:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday. Saturday hours are 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., with the office closed during the noon hour. Questions, comments and concerns regarding the Smokey Bear District fuelwood program are welcomed and will be addressed by district personnel during business hours.

OPINION

● I wonder why the United States can't respond to terrorists in Lebanon as we did in Grenada and in the bombing of Libya? Is it because we are afraid the Soviet Union, which is giving Iran $6 billion in aid. Are we at the point where we can't go the bathroom without a friendly nod from our Soviet counterparts? Are we so afraid of triggering another war that we will sit idly by and see American citizens hanged, tortured, and held hostage? Some say we cannot obliterate Beirut with bombs because innocent people would die. Strange thinking in a country that drafts its men and women into uniform so they can die in combat with our enemy. If that isn't consigning innocent people to death, I'm a Chinese stunt flyer. When we bombed enemy cities like Berlin in World War II how much compassion did we have for the thousands of innocent women and children who perished? There now exists another war, this one between the United States and Iranian backed terrorists in Lebanon and the Middle East. The Shiite Moslems know about this war, but we refuse to recognize it. Congressmen are trying to kill the Stealth Bomber because it is expensive and hasn't been tested. I suggest a good test of the bomber would be a quick strike on Beirut with the hope of reducing all its garbage to fine powder. Where is Oliver North when we need him?

● As usual, we have one of those famous statements from the White House: "We hold the kidnapers of American hostages fully responsible for their safety." Bullshit. We can't hold the kidnapers responsible and the president knows it. We haven't the guts it takes to take quick, strong military action against these enemies. The country is getting pretty tired of Washington rhetoric. How about a little action for a change?

● As controversy continues over taxpayer-funding for grants to the National Endowment for the Arts (NEA) it is time to mention once again that the US Constitution nowhere guarantees "freedom of expression" except through speech, press and assembly. The fiction of freedom of expression comes only from murky minds on high courts who delight in telling us what the founders "really" had in mind when they wrote that wonderful document.

● The idea that displaying obscene photographs of the late photographer Robert Mapplethorpe in art galleries at a cost to taxpayers of $30,000 is, in the words of Congressman Joe Skeen, "absolutely insulting and disgraceful." Obscene photographs cannot be equated with speech, press or otherwise. Ever hear a photograph speak?

● Congress should put a cap on further obscene displays of subsidized art. Such could not violate the First Amendment. That leaves pornography supporters to bawl about censorship. A congressional end to subsidizing art regarded as obscene would in no way involve censorship. What the congress would be doing is saying only that such displays will not be financed with taxpayers' dollars. Such a law would not prohibit obscene art, only stipulate that tax dollars not subsidize it. The "artist" will be free to fund his own obscene art display, or seek funding in the private sector. If the private sector buys the trash, fine. But tax dollars? No.

● Hassle over the NEA is nothing new. Ten years ago I was in California and I was lambasting the California Arts Council for spending tax dollars on sheer lunacy. Things haven't changed, as you will see what I reported in this column:

● Of course you remember the California Arts Council? It should have been an issue in the last gubernatorial campaign but it wasn't. This outfit is a repository for many of Gov. Brown's favorite cashews, of which Jane Fonda is representative. It is also the only state agency to receive a 500 percent budget increase shortly after the governor underwent quick conversion to Prop. 13 and austerity in state spending. The Arts Council is the cherished candy in Brown's kingly menagerie of tax-supported suckers.

● The Arts Council is best remembered for its funding of an Indian rain dance in the Mojave Desert at a cost of $2,000 in tax dollars and a lot of sore feet and smelly armpits for a band of God's noblemen who forgot that beseeching the wrong gods for favors is fraught with disappointment. It didn't rain. All of them are back on the Arts Council Reservation heading breach clouts and otherwise savaging the council's available cash.

● Another contribution to California art was the council's project to design musical instruments upon which to play tunes howling enough to spiritually uplift the whales off California's coast. The cost of this musical comedy has not been reckoned, but it has

Gold in them thar hills

By CONGRESSMAN
JOE SKEEN

Tucked inside the House Defense Authorization Bill, an omnibus piece of legislation that sets the course for future defense spending in this country, is a little known provision that will allow a Florida treasure hunter to put a New Mexico legend to rest once and for all.

There are few people in our state who haven't heard the saga of Milton "Doc" Noss who claimed to discover a hidden treasure inside Victorio Peak in 1937. Noss said he found a natural cavern deep within the peak containing several hundred gold bars and Spanish artifacts. He contends that he removed several bars before a dynamite blast, intended to enlarge the cave's opening, sealed the treasure deep underground.

Noss died before he was ever able to go back into the cave.

Many other people have since claimed to have found the gold, as well. But in the 1950s, the Army took over the land for testing rockets and missiles, barring treasure hunters from the peak.

A short, unsuccessful expedition was allowed by the Army in 1977. But that dig, led by Florida treasure hunter Norman Scott, was hampered by bad weather and poor equipment.

Now Scott has been hired by two grandchildren of Doc Noss to lead another excavation of Victorio Peak. Scott says that electronic sensors have detected a cavern beneath the peak. And he plans to dig a shaft to that cavern to search for the treasure.

But, Scott must first obtain the approval of the Army to enter the secure area of the missile range where Victorio Peak sits. The Army has said that it will allow the expedition if it can be reimbursed for its expenses.

The Noss Family Partnership is willing to pay the cost of the expedition, estimated at $1.2 million. But the hitch is that federal law requires payments to the federal government to be deposited into the US Treasury, not into individual federal departments.

Thus, language has been added, at my request, to the House Defense Authorization Bill to allow the Noss Family Partnership to search for and recover any treasure buried beneath Victorio Peak and to directly reimburse the Army for any expenses incurred in the dig.

Meanwhile, Norman Scott is negotiating with the Army as to the terms and conditions of the planned dig.

Not for the first time, the story of the alleged treasure in Victorio Peak is attracting national attention. The story has been featured on the nationwide broadcast of "Unsolved Mysteries." And the notion of a second treasure hunt is attracting other treasure hunters, the national media and individuals who claim to have found the gold since the days of Doc Noss.

I appreciate the importance of settling, once and for all, the issue of whether or not gold is stored beneath Victorio Peak. Although we may never know who buried the gold—Spanish Conquistadors who mined it in nearby mountains, as one theory suggests, or Apache chief Victorio who accumulated the loot and stored it in the mountain which bears his name, as others contend.

But if a dig reveals gold, or signs that someone has removed the gold recently, this would still not be the end of the Victorio Peak saga. Any treasure that is located will be analyzed by researchers to determine its age and possible origins. Then it would be turned over to district court in Albuquerque, and anyone who claims the gold will have to file a formal declaration with the court.

If everything goes well, Norman Scott plans to dig for the gold later this year. And Terry Delonas, the grandson of Doc Noss, could make his grandfather's dreams come true more than 50 years after the original find.

Inside The Capitol

By Jay Miller

SANTA FE—The legal profession has been taking its lumps recently—and it couldn't happen to a more deserving bunch.

The biggest flap concerns the tremendous amount taxpayers are shelling out for law firms that are hired to do the state's work. Attention was called to this alarming state of affairs a couple of weeks ago when the state settled with a Minnesota highway contractor for over $8 million. The contractor isn't walking around with that in his pocket, however. Both sets of lawyers were paid out of that amount. The contractor only had about $3 million when it was over. The other $5 million was eaten up by two large Albuquerque law firms.

Stack waves from that little paper are outstanding a lot further than the legal community realizes. These sorts of things are supposed to be kept secret so that judges won't find out what the judge's state of mind is. While judges do not get out of court, they do get out of their heads, making settlement amounts secret is not the solution to that problem. The public good is seldom served by withholding information, especially information on how large wads of taxpayer dollars are being spent.

The public disclosure of the latest settlement has come to the attention of politicians on both sides of the party line. When Gov. Garrey Carruthers first announced the appointment of new General Services Department secretary Charles Thomas last week, he mentioned that Thomas would be looking closely at what could be done about the high legal fees the state is paying. Thomas, himself, then mentioned the problem in his remarks.

On the other side of the fence, the Democratic-controlled Legislature's Insurance Committee quickly called the state's top insurance division responsible to change the system last week.

The first priority is to monitor the outrage in the collection of legal fees. The state's top insurance division is to look out for the state's interest to several media outlets but didn't get his name mentioned in conjunction with the expose because of problems inherent in reporting on just one political candidate in a race.

Scarborough attributes the exorbitant legal fees to poor case management practices on the part of other private attorneys hired by the state specifically for controlling runaway costs. He suggests the state develop a pool of attorneys who are expert in different areas of defense against civil complaints.

The question may be whether the state can ever get that sort of thing past the big law firms that have developed incredible power in the legal profession and in their control over many areas of state government. With lawyers being the predominant occupation in the legislature, it is easy for them to pass laws to their benefit. They have themselves a closed shop in which every pathway opens into the state bar association. And they

● Mostly, the Arts Council suckles the fuzzy poetious californicus, genus of the New Poesy that is native to the state. I am reprinting here an example of what the Art Council applauds as poetry, good enough to publish at taxpayers expense. The title of this pestiferous pile of doggerel is: "The Three Stooges at a Hollywood Party." Kinda grabs you, doesn't it? You just know it's going to be uplifting. Let us proceed to what may be the greatest outpouring of creative literary genius since Shelley Unbound Promethens. (So that you may fully understand the cadence, the measure and meter of this work, understand that when I use the symbol: / it indicates the end of a line and the beginning of another.) As a respectful hush falls upon our readership, the California Arts Council proudly presents "The Three Stooges at a Hollywood Party."

● "The Three stooges get an invitation to a big part at john wayne's house/ but/ besides the stooges/ the only people who show up are/ randolph scott/ glen campbell and/ stuart whitman who all drop acid and/ beat the shit out of john wayne just for the hell of it/ john wayne looks to the stooges for help/ but/ they're too busy/ melting down his oscar." What beauty! What transcendent grace! What nobility of purpose! What garbage.

The light rains last week totaled one inch. It's cool.

Smokey Bear Museum had 2150 registered visitors last week. Among them a Tauck Tour of 44 people, nine children and two adults from College Station at Holloman Air Force Base Youth Center, and 23 Okmulgee, OK Mission Trip.

The class reunion held in Capitan last weekend was successful and happy though the crowd was not as large as usual. The death list was larger this year. It was a joy to see the ones present. Louise Ferguson and son Billy attended.

The Capitan Lions had a successful garage sale last Friday and Saturday, and they thank all their good customers as well as participating Lions.

The Capitan Lions Club will have a booth in Lincoln for Billy the Kid Day, Aug. 5-6 located in front of the Trading Post. There will be goodies for sale.

Pauline and Alton Whitaker have had some interesting visitors the past month but none as unusual as four lovely ducks that seemed to have lost their way. They were on the street in front of the Hitchin' Post. Alton lured them to their lodging quarters in their beautiful English courtyard, enticing them with raisin bran and melba toast. Anyone having information regarding the ducks, please call 354-2498.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Zahn and family from Toronto, Canada are visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Payton.

Art Holmes, his daughter and his son shared a birthday. I wish them many more happy ones.

Pattie and Chuck Wood-dell and two children spent the weekend in Capitan.

A special thank you to Sandy and Jim Robinson of Roswell for the fine job they did sponsoring the Ward family reunion in White Oaks last weekend. There was a dance, barbecue and dinner.

I enjoyed the visit of Ver-

Lincoln Ramblings

This will be known as the year of the skunks. Last week's writeup at the Shrecengost had some words left out (when I retyped the news.) The Shrecengosts had a family of skunks in their feed and hay preventing them from feeding the livestock.

The neighbor's dogs and a neighbor have had encounters with the skunks, who are getting bold and belligerent. Lincolnites are now trying to trap the skunks.

Pageant practice is going well. Everyone is showing up and the weather has cooperated. A group of the cast were on KBIM TV, Roswell, Tuesday morning.

In spite of the rain, everyone enjoyed the "Lincoln Bal-ladeers" Sunday afternoon. Due to the rain, the Balladeers presented their program at the Visitors Center.

Jack Rigney, State Monuments ranger, and Bob Hart, director of the Lincoln County Trust report attendance at the museums is up over 70 percent.

The delicious smell of the homemade cookies emit from the Dr. Wood's house now-a-days. Mary Lou Sidwell found a lemon cookie recipe in the front room. So now the cookies are being baked in the old kitchen range and tourists can enjoy them.

The Lincoln County Trust is putting up a fence around the garden west of Dr. Wood's house. With the rain, the deer are not so much a problem.

Activities are shaping up for Old Lincoln Days. The parade is shaping up. Arts and crafts and food vendors are ready to go, national

They had breakfast at the Wortley Hotel, after which they visited the area. The Lyric Opera claims to be the only one that runs in the black. The 60-member board raises $1.5 million of a $18 million budget. Shown here are Carol Stitzer, Annelise Gramm, Clara Freeman Farah, Dolores Jusca, Maive Campbell, Linda F. Taylor and Dede Freeman. All are from Chicago.

In the service

Staff Sgt. Charles G. Easley has participated in a short-term tactical deployment to Wittmundhafen Air Force Base, West Germany. He is a weapons inspector with the 49th Tactical Fighter Wing at Holloman Air Force Base. Easley is the son of Linda A. Brewington of Ruidoso, and Billy C. Easley of Albuquerque. The sergeant is a 1978 graduate of Ruidoso High School.

Carry an open-ended eyeglass case in your purse to store pens, pencils, fingernail files, small scissors.

There are tours of Lincoln by the Trust personnel everyday. These seem to be very popular with tourists.

WOMAN SCORNED

"She mentioned by name more than seventy-five persons and gave reasons why they were her enemies. She discussed the local jealousies, the petty crimes, the carousing activities of many citizens, with considerable emphasis upon their marital infidelities."

The preceding quote is not from the latest supermarket tabloid or a scene from a soap opera or even overheard goings-on in an average small town.

It is a glimpse of the details of life and society in New Mexico in the mid-17th century, according to Teresa, wife of the governor appointed in 1659.

It all started with the appointment in that year of a new governor, Bernardo Lopez de Mendizabal, who got off on the wrong foot by arresting the former governor, who had many friends, especially among the clergy. Charges were made against Mendizabal, accusing him of maltreatment of the Indians by using the natives to work in his business enterprises. He was also accused of being irreligious and of showing disrespect for the church.

He died before the hearing could be completed, but the case against his wife, Dona Teresa, continued. She was accused of Jewish inclinations because of her custom of bathing and changing linen on Fridays. She had the habit of primping on Saturdays "as if specially celebrating that day which the dead law of Moses orders to be observed." Emphasis was placed on the fact that the governor and his wife liked to sleep alone in their bedrooms.

One of the most significant charges against Dona Teresa was that she read a book in a foreign tongue, and was even heard to laugh as she did so. The book was Ariosto's "Orlando Furioso." Teresa had been raised in Italy and learned to read in the Italian language.

In her defense she prepared a lengthy document which answered the various charges against her and then for good measure she blew the whistle on 75 cheating, cardusing and conniving citizens.

she actually looked.

If your parents displayed your school photo in the garden instead of a scarecrow you entered the first stage of terminal ugly.

"By the way, what are you growing?"

"Potatoes, spuds," said the Englishman, striving to contain his irritation.

"These are potatoes?" said the American. "We grow huge potatoes in the States, some as large as melons. These are more the size of marbles."

Replied the Englishman: "Here we grow potatoes to fit our mouths."—Borrowed from The Rotarian, July 1989.

frown on anything that might reduce their "take" from the state.

Taking as many disputes against state agencies into an arbitration procedure would be better than spending $5 million on legal fees reaching an out-of-court settlement. But the legal fraternity has never been too excited about arbitration as an alternative to the expense of court suits.

Something has to be done before the legal system runs completely amok. The California child day care center case has now gone on almost 2 1/2 years. The judge says with procedures he is implementing to speed up the process, it will end in less than three years. At that point there is almost sure to be a mistrial because of the problems keeping jurors for that long a period.

The legal types are also taking a beating about the new judicial selection procedure they sold us. It has become obvious the public politics of selecting judges has been replaced by the private politics of the legal profession. Most of the appointments thus far have been Anglo males with connections to big law firms.

Something that has escaped mention about the new judicial selection system is the $125,000 price tag taxpayers are paying for expenses of the 14 nominating commissions. Although that pales in comparison with what a law firm can bill the state in a matter of weeks.
