

It's no forest fire

What appeared to be a major forest fire on Tucson Mountain, east of Carrizozo, Monday was only a controlled burn.

According to a US Forest Service (USFS) spokesman in Ruidoso, the fire was part of a 750-acre prescribed burn intended to improve wildlife habitat.

The burn was approved and financed under the Sike Acts program, a joint venture between New Mexico sportsmen and government agencies that manage wildlife and their habitat. The Tucson Mountain burn was a project between the USFS and the New Mexico Department of Game and Fish.

According to the spokesman, fire supervisor Steve Makowski and personnel from the Smokey Bear workstation in Capitan began the controlled burn to decrease the amount of undergrowth and stimulate regrowth of deer forage, which will improve the wildlife habitat.

The program is authorized by the Sikes Act, Public Law 93-452, according to information provided by USFS. The law authorizes state wildlife agencies to collect money specifically for managing wildlife populations and improving habitats on public lands.

New Mexico sportsmen support the projects through purchase of wildlife habitat improvement stamps. Funds collected under this program can only be used for wildlife projects within the areas cov-

Three vehicular murderers remain free and uncharged

The driver of a truck which rear-ended a vehicle driven by a young Carrizozo mother remains free of charges.

Michael R. Velasquez, 18, of Santa Rosa and a soldier at Fort Bliss, TX was the alleged driver of a 1959 Chevrolet truck which ran into Cynthia Morales' Ford Ranger II south of Carrizozo on Oct. 7.

The impact sent the Morales truck off the pavement and caused it to roll two and a half times. Morales and her five-and-a-half week old infant Naomi were thrown from the truck.

Morales was severely injured and the infant died on arrival at Lincoln County Medical Center in Ruidoso.

State police investigating at the scene resulted in no citations or charges. Investigating officer Jim Long told the News there was no indication of alcohol consumption and he did not give a breath or other test to detect such. Velasquez claimed his brakes failed and he could not stop from hitting the vehicle.

Riding with Velasquez was Ed Valentine, 20, of Chi-

First Legislative Day

Legislators, residents debate county needs

By Doris Cherry

Although state legislators present at the first Legislative Day complimented Ruidoso for its newest recreation projects, landfills occupied much of the discussion.

Representatives Ben Hall of Lincoln County and Toots Green of Otero County and senators Tim Jennings of Chaves County and Joe Harvey of Lea County discussed their opinions about economic development, landfills, road and schools during the evening designed to give local politicians time to meet with state lawmakers before the legislature convenes in January.

Lincoln County Commission chairman Karen Petty presided over the forum which was at Cree Meadows Restaurant in Ruidoso Monday night. Legislators and politicians representing Capitan, Carrizozo, Ruidoso and Lincoln County, the press and other interested persons heard Petty praise county manager Nick Pappas who initiated the idea of the forum.

"I think it's a step in the right direction," Petty said.

Harvey, who does not represent Lincoln County, but who said works for the good of southeastern New Mexico, claimed a small stake to Ruidoso as he recently purchased property in that resort town.

He envisioned Ruidoso and all of Lincoln County as the future recreation site of the southwest.

"I assure you whatever is good for Ruidoso is good for Carrizozo," he said, "despite those who say they don't want progress."

He said the future recreation projects—the proposed golf course, convention center and performing arts center—are economic development tools to attract the Texas dollars to Ruidoso and Lincoln County.

Jennings said he was more welcomed to Ruidoso than similar resort town Angel Fire in northern New Mexico. This he attributed to the difference between southern and northern hospitality. He praised R.D. Hubbard's revitalized race track and various projects such as the golf course and art museum. But he said the community must realize other issues that it will face as tourism grows and increased population bring the problems of crowded streets, sidewalks and the need for improved transportation to Ruidoso.

He questioned whether Ruidoso wants gambling.

He also advocated Highway 70 be improved to interstate status to further bring the Texas dollars into Lincoln County.

Green said she considered improvement of Highway 54 as a major need for economic development of Ruidoso, Lincoln and Otero Counties area. Since so many Texas visitors come to the area on Highway 54, she considered its improvement an economic development tool.

Hall agreed roads are a vital part of economic development, but he pointed out that the new airport, which was constructed partly through his efforts in the state legislature, will also be a transportation "boom."

Ruidoso is a front runner of tourism and recreation in New Mexico, he said.

"If Ruidoso prospers, so will all Lincoln County communities," he added. He envisioned Lincoln County will become an art center which will rival or overwhelm Tass and Santa Fe.

Ruidoso village manager Frank Potter addressed the legislators about two Ruidoso projects and the county-wide concern—the landfill.

Potter said Lincoln County has received $10 million in revenues from the state legislature in the last two years—including the $6.2 million spent on the Sierra Blanca Regional Airport and its access highway. He said the reason for the appropriations is the excellent support from legislators and the commitment from Ruidoso to "put one foot forward" toward economic development with the proposed recreational and civic center projects.

All legislators agreed the landfill situation is the most pressing statewide problem facing the upcoming session. Currently the New Mexico Municipal League is sponsoring a lawsuit against the State of New Mexico calling for funding to make landfills comply with Environmental Improvement Division regulations.

Green said she faces the problems of transportation of garbage from very rural communities such as Weed and Timberon on poorly maintained roads to the Dog Canyon landfill south of Alamogordo. Her main concern is if people have no place to dump, they will do it anywhere.

She gave an example of Socorro County which employs senior citizens to supervise their landfill sites.

Although Harvey advocated regionalized landfills, Hall and Jennings both said the Roswell area was not the location due to the rechargeable water basin which lies under the gravel surface of Chaves County.

Hall said protecting the water is one of the major concerns about landfills.

"The new landfill regulations are one of the most costly things to come down the pike," Harvey said.

A suggestion that additional gross receipt taxes be imposed statewide to fund landfills received mixed reactions.

"I don't think Santa Fe handling your dollars as far as landfills are concerned is the best idea," Hall said, as funds could be diverted to other projects by lawmakers.

The legislators were questioned if they considered the use of state lands as an answer to the landfill problem.

"State lands aren't the answer for the garbage we have," Jennings said. The solution is to locate the landfills where the least amount of environmental damage will occur.

Harvey said no city or county can afford to comply with the new regulations, which "mandate" regionalization.

Petty said Lincoln County has taken the landfill situation seriously. The county needs a landfill close to the most populated areas. Currently more than 500 people are estimated to use the existing county landfill a

First it was Hugo, then the earthquake—now it's tax time

It's tax time again. Lincoln County property owners should receive their 1989 tax bills this week, said Lincoln County Treasurer Shirley Goodloe.

The bills were mailed in Carrizozo Monday and should begin to arrive during the week.

Payment of the taxes is due by Nov. 10 and will become delinquent after Dec. 10. After that date penalty charges of $5 or 5 percent of the total bill, whichever is less, plus one percent per month interest will be added to the bill.

Taxpayers have the right to pay half of their bill, if more than $10, now and the other half by April 10, 1990, Goodloe said.

Property owners in the Capitan School District (28) will realize an increase over last year's bill due to a mistake made by the New Mexico Office of Education which gave the wrong rate to the Department of Finance, Goodloe added. As a result of the mistake, the taxes were undercollected.

The tax rate mistakenly collected last year 1988 was 3.646 per thousand dollars of taxable value for residential owners and 3.684 for non-residential. This year, the rate to be collected is 3.720 per thousand dollars of taxable value for residential and $ 760 for non-residential owners.

The rates were adjusted this year so the proper taxes can be collected for the debt service for Capitan Schools.

Valuations have not changed, only the rate that comes down from Santa Fe.

An update on Carrizozo streets, and what to expect in the future

Carrizozo streets are a patchwork of wonderful and terrible pavements.

In March 1986, Carrizozo voters approved a one-quarter of one percent special municipal gross receipt tax (SMGR) specifically for streets and alleys. The increase brought the amount paid to the New Mexico Tax and Revenue Division by the almost 90 businesses in the village to five and three-quarters percent of every dollar collected. From this figure, the state takes four and three quarters, leaving one and a half percent for the village, one fourth of which is for the SMGR.

The 1986 tax took effect at the same time Bob Hemphill took the oath of office for mayor. Projects began as soon as the village applied for and was granted a Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) and funds from New Mexico State Highway Department (NMSHD) co-op program.

According to Hemphill, the first projects paved roads on the eastern section of Carrizozo beginning with Aspen Street. At that time, Aspen carried the load of traffic. However, with the railroad overpass project on Highway 389, Aspen was closed to through traffic and Birch became the major access to that main highway.

Other streets paved in the project were 3rd, 4th and 5th Streets and 14th Street to the intersection of 3rd. On the west side of the railroad tracks, streets paved were C Avenue from 14th to 10th Streets at the school and continued to 3rd Street.

Third Street from B and D Avenue and D Avenue from 3rd Street to Drexel, 10th Street from E to B Avenue, 13th Street from E to B Avenue, and B Avenue from 13th Street to Highway 54 also were paved.

Parts of 12th and 11th Street and the drop-in gutter under B Avenue at 8th Street were included in the CDBG project also.

CDBG funds are Housing and Urban Development (HUD) federal dollars administered by the state of New Mexico. The village is required to contribute 10 percent of the total cost of the CDBG project. So far about $250,000 in CDBG and matching funds have been spent on Carrizozo streets.

NMSHD co-op projects, paid with 60 percent from the state and 40 percent from the village's SMGR funds, included the intersection of E Avenue and 8th Street, 5th and E Avenue and 5th Street to E and B Avenue. Currently 18th Street is being graveled by the county through a cooperative agreement and funded by SMGR funds.

Paving projects are expensive. One intersection alone, near town hall, cost about $70,000 of which the village paid $30,000 as its share.

Currently the village has about $40,000 in the SMGR infrastructure account. Hemphill said the funds are strictly for road improvements, although the referendum listed alleys as well as streets. He said the alleys month. However that landfill will be full by early 1990. Lincoln County attorney Bob Beauvais said the county and its municipalities need "absolute commitment" the legislature will address the landfill problem. He implied lawmakers to stay in session until a solution is found.

Ruidoso Municipal Schools superintendent Sid Miller questioned legislators about school funding.

Although all agreed education needs funding, Jennings said districts need to show legislators how the funds are being used.

"I believe we need more money in the schools," he admitted, but also expressed his fear when he sees districts out of compliance of educational standards. He used the example of school districts with new Oldsmobile cars at school expense.

While schools need more money, Jennings said the universities need to "gear up" to turn out the professionals, such as physical therapists, needed in the state.

"I want accountability. We'll (legislators) raise taxes, but show us we need it," he challenged.

After the group ate dinner, Pappas concluded the forum with his observations.

He said the county needs to preserve its historic heritage Lincoln and the valuable records now stored in the basement of the courthouse in Carrizozo. He advocated improvement of Carrizozo streets.

"Time has changed," he said. Lincoln County has a pristine beauty everyone wants to preserve, yet promote to those who are coming to enjoy it.

"We're getting over the economic set back," he concluded.

Angry . . .

two men by the side of the road and one walking away from the scene. He also saw two beer bottles, which one of the young men picked up and tossed into the bushes beside Highway 54.

Matthews said he was extremely angered by the attitude of the young soldiers, who were joking with local police at the scene. It was his opinion that the police officers' attitude changed when the men showed their military identification.

Both vehicles are impounded at Meigs Motor Company wrecking yard in Carrizozo. The Morales vehicle was totally demolished. Its cab crushed from the roll over and then crushed pushed up from the impact. Company staff said the investigators have studied both vehicles several times.

Morales was not wearing a seat belt and the infant was not secured in an infant seat. However, according to those at the scene she most likely would not have survived if she had been strapped into the crushed truck.

Last Friday, Cynthia was released from Presbyterian Hospital in Albuquerque where she was taken by airplane after the accident. She now remains in Carrizozo and is doing quite well, said family members.

belong to the property owners, but the village mows through the centers to keep the weeds down. The edges are not mowed by the village because many utilities are placed there.

It is the property owners' duty to mow or improve the edges of the alley, Hemphill said. He would like to close the alleys but finds it impossible as they are the only utility access.

SMGR funds are earmarked for street projects. Funds for street repairs are not taken from the account, rather come from the general funds, said village clerk Carol Schlarb.

Hemphill said the $40,000 is in a special account and is not invested at the present as the village is planning to apply for another CDBG. Last spring the village was turned down because it was "too frugal" with spending and had too many funds to qualify for a CDBG, Hemphill said. But the funds are there to be used as the village's share of any project that might be approved.

The last CDBG application included paving streets around the county courthouse, which are in bad repair. He hopes the village will be successful in its bid for another grant, but there is no certainty.

At a recent public meeting, Hemphill said he is checking into a main street project with the NMSHD. The mayor hopes NMSHD will upgrade Central Avenue (Highway 54) to make it similar to Estancia's main thoroughfare. That community now boasts a four-lane curbed and guttered stretch with updated streetlights at no village expense, Hemphill said.

Until another grant or project is okayed, the SMGR will continue to collect funds. Hemphill said if another CDBG is not approved soon, the village will consider placing the funds in short-term investments to gain interest.

Meanwhile, repairs and other work will be done by village maintenance crews of foreman Faustino Gallegos, Christy Mourreal on heavy equipment, Carlos Gallegos on the blade, Manuel Vigil in the water department and Paul Samora in solid waste.

So until another project comes along, villagers will have to slow down or visit the front-end alignment shops more often.

Card of Thanks

We wish to express our heartfelt thanks to so many people who have been so kind and helpful, the Dr. and nurses of Ruidoso, Rosemary Zink, Fr. Burge, Fr. Griffin, the St. Rita Outlets, the people of St. Rita and Sacred Heart Churches and all other denominations who in brotherly love offered their prayers in their churches and homes for the speedy recovery of our loved one. The money, calls, food and sympathy cards for the great loss of our little one were greatly appreciated.

Hansons push idea of 'organic beef'

Warren Hanson and his wife Kathie are pursuing a fierce tradition of independence that started when they grew up as neighbors in the rural area of Corona.

Now the couple, who make their real living from 35 oil wells they own and maintain themselves, have started a new venture—organic cattle.

According to an article in the El Paso Times, the Hansons who live south of Artesia, have a herd of 20 calves which they consider contaminated even though they don't eat feed treated with pesticides and never have been dosed with medicines or growth hormones.

"We believe it will take two complete generations before you have pesticide, insecticide, fertilizer and grungy crud-free beef," Hanson said.

He takes the organic beef seriously and has secured an extremely hard-to-find source of organic feed. He said the source is secret.

It might be 12 years before his organic cattle will show a profit. But what he said matters is the challenge.

"When I hear doctors talking about the ills of red meat, I don't think red meat is the problem—the problem is what goes into the red meat," Hanson said. "A lot of people are going to disagree with my theories."

The New Mexico Cattle Growers Association has issued statements that anti-

Carrizozo Little Theatre rehearsing Christmas play

Get set for some Christmas fun, for the Carrizozo Little Theatre Group (LTG) will start some giggling cheer with their next production.

"Rudolph's Blinker is on the Blink" by Rick Kilcup is guaranteed to bring out some humor, says LTG director Beulah Moore. The one-act, three-scene comedy is about a surprise visitor to Santa's workshop who tries to cast a magic spell on Christmas.

Rehearsals are under way now for the special Christmas show with the first performance to Carrizozo school students scheduled on Nov. 30 and final performance at 7:30 p.m., Dec. 2 at the old Carrizozo gym.

The program will be built on the play and also will include music and sing-alongs during scene changes, Moore said.

When considering a fall performance, Moore looked at the Carrizozo library for a play and found the light-hearted comedy. "I thought the public would enjoy a comedy," she said.

The characters are rehearsing weekly. Roy Dow is Santa, Eileen Serna is Matilda the witch, Bill Wise is Harry the cat, Ruth Birdsong is Rudolph, Dr. Amy Barton is Dr. Diagnosis and a great addition to the cast are the three elves played by Carrizozo High School students; James Smith is Clumsy, Nathan Tate is Bumpy and Yvette Hernandez is Bouncy. Birdsong is in charge of costumes and Moore is director.

"We're having fun, the kids are bouncing around," Moore said about rehearsals.

LTG began two years ago with no props and no place to perform. Since, the group has purchased and constructed props and a portable stage and lighting system which enables LTG to take performances anywhere. Anyone wishing to help with the performances is welcome to join the group.

"The group is non-profit and organized for the entertainment of the town and ourselves," Moore said. All profits go back into LTG for costumes and other needs.

LTG's goal is two performances a year, one in the spring and one in the fall. This year they will fulfill that goal, with the melodrama presented in the spring and the upcoming Christmas program.

Advanced tickets for the night performance will be available at Roy's Gift Gallery and from Lucy Rickman at United New Mexico Bank. The cost is $2.50 per person.

The group hopes to take their Christmas program to Capitan Schools also.

Huey-Stepp vows are exchanged

Michelle Lea Stepp of Dallas, TX and Nicky Dane Huey of Corona, NM were wed Saturday, Sept. 16 at the Corona Presbyterian Church in Corona. The Rev. Ray Wells officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Danny Stepp of Dallas. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Huey of Corona.

The bride wore a white satin dress with a square lace collar. Her floor-length veil of lace was accented with pearls and rosettes. The bouquet carried out her colors of lavender, yellow and aqua.

Jeanette Huey was matron of honor. Amy Flohrschutz of Peoria, AZ was bridesmaid. Both wore floral tea-length dresses of lavender, yellow and aqua.

Ricky Huey served as best man. Groomsman was Micky Huey. Ushers were Allen Brown and Brad Gage.

Harvest Moon Ball winners announced

Bonnie McEuen of Capitan was the winner of a $100 savings bond Saturday night, Oct. 28, at the 7th Annual Harvest Moon Ball.

The Association for Retarded Citizens (ARC) of Lincoln County sponsors this event, including a raffle and door prizes donated by area merchants.

Plains Realty donated the savings bond. Two certificates for $50 worth of groceries, donated by the local Furr's Store (Shop Rite), were won by Sammie Serna and Ralph Forsythe of Carrizozo.

A $25 meat certificate, donated by King's Food Mart, was won by Rene Burton of Carrizozo.

Framed certificates of appreciation were presented by ARC president Phyllis Schlegel to the above donors and to the Carrizozo Recreation Center, the site of the ball. Val Reyes, manager of the center, was a promoter of this charity event.

Door prizes awarded were given by LaMay Distributing, Theresa's Beauty Salon, Taste Freez, Ft. Stanton Training School and ARC.

Lucy Vega, senior art student of Polly Chavez, designed the Harvest Moon Ball posters.

Those attending Saturday's dance enjoyed the music of Billy G. Mowell's "Lone Star Express" of Capitan.

Convention held for area Woman's Clubs

Cloudercroft was the site for the gathering of 16 clubs representing the New Mexico Federation of Woman's Club, District IV.

Members of the Ruidoso Woman's Club and the Carrizozo Woman's Club were among the 120 women attending the Oct. 13-14 event.

District president Charlotte Jarratt of Ruidoso was in charge of the convention. Ruidoso Woman's Club hosted the event.

Sue Stearns, editor of the "New Mexico Club Woman" and member of Carrizozo Woman's Club installed Susie Hall of Alamogordo as incoming president of District IV.

Carrizozo Woman's Club president Sharon Hefker gave a report of club activities. Hefker accepted ribbons awarded Carrizozo Woman's Club members for arts and crafts judged during the event. Betty McCreight placed first for sweatshirt embellishment, a process involving the application of cloth design and outlined with paint. Ramona Ortiz placed second in the embellishment art and first with a quilted pillow. Barbara Langley received honorable mention for a Levi cowboy quilt.

"Penny art" entered by Carrizozo 8th graders received second place and honorable mention. Christy Brown received a second place ribbon for a pencil drawing of a mare and colt.

Amy Samora an honorable mention ribbon for a colored pencil drawing of a rose and cross. Nicole Vallejos received honorable mention for a pencil drawing of a flower. Penny art originated from the idea of pennies contributed representing each club's membership and presented us a monetary award to a student whose art is selected "Best of Show" during the convention.

Corona Elementary wins state birthday award

Corona Elementary School received the first place award for its unique celebration of New Mexico's 77th birthday celebration from Keep New Mexico Beautiful, Inc. at their annual meeting on Oct. 28.

Sally Toles, awards chairman for KNMB, presented the plaques during the awards luncheon at the Rio Rancho Country Club in Albuquerque. Superintendent Lou King received the award for the elementary school.

The birthday celebration included: New Mexico highlights shared by each class from kindergarten through 6th grade, hanging a New Mexico flag in the gymnasium, and preparing and eating a New Mexico snack. Each student received a flour tortilla, a slice of cheese, two raisins and a toothpick. Students used the toothpick to carve the cheese slice into the outline shape of New Mexico. Next, they placed raisins on their cheese maps to represent Santa Fe and Corona. In conclusion, they sang Happy Birthday to New Mexico, and ate the snack.

● New Mexico, like all other states, are concerned about the problem of garbage. Nationwide, Americans turn out about 160 million tons of garbage a year, and space is running out. Lincoln County is facing a crisis in landfills for garbage and debris, and the cost can't be estimated, especially considering new environmental regulations governing the nation's 6,000 dumps.

● According to a friend of ours who was in Washington and Virginia recently, a new solution to garbage disposal has been found. He found himself in Virginia Beach, and in receiving directions as to how to get to a client's place of business he was told it was near "Mount Trashmore." Enterprising inhabitants had built Mount Trashmore out of trash and debris, and covered it with a thick layer of earth. In summer, the "mountain" is covered with well-cropped grass, flowers and hedges. It is a mecca for vacationers, with swimming pool, bike and hiking trails, parks, tennis courts—the whole enchilada. In winter, Mount Trashmore provides skiing, snowmobiling, tobogganing and other winter sports. A dump heap has been turned into a thing of beauty that provides healthy outdoor recreation. If the idea catches on, there will be Mount Trashmores in every state of the union—which is much better than what we are used to. Turning trash into treasure might interest New Mexico towns and cities. Why not?

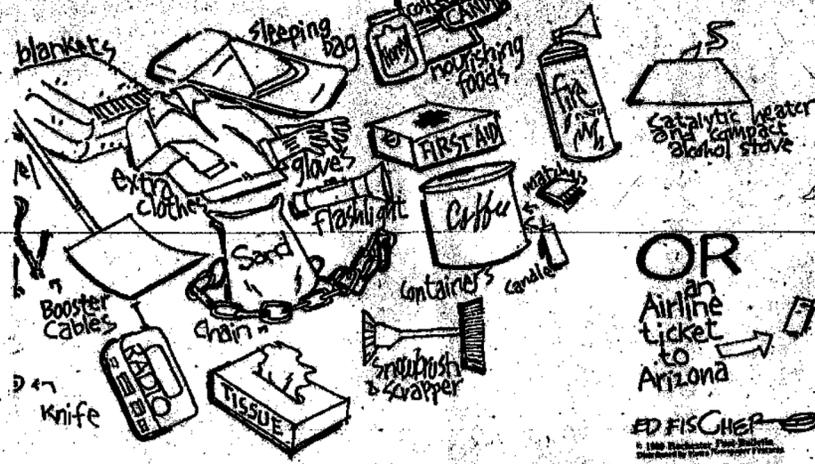

● The second annual National White Ribbon Against Pornography (WRAP) is under way. We are bombarded with requests to urge citizens to wear white ribbons during the week of Oct. 29-Nov. 5 to protest pornography in a time of heavy porn pollution that comes from cable-TV, video cassettes, magazines, dial-a-porn and computer porn. There are other kinds of pornography, like topless dancing, which provoked an outburst in this column, but which turned out to be protected by the First Amendment as an "art form" and as a means of "expressing" whatever one has in mind. It read something like this:

● Our Jugheaded Judge Award this week goes to New York State Supreme Court (whew!) Judge John Doerr. (If that's pronounced Do-err, he sho' do!) In declaring unconstitutional a 1977 law prohibiting topless dancing in places populated by drunks, he ruled: "Whether or not it rises to the plateau of artistic endeavor in the minds of all, to some it is an art form and a type of expression protected by the First Amendment right to free expression." Your Honor, the First Amendment says nothing about freedom of expression, but it says enough about freedom of speech, press, and assembly. The judge's decision could (and probably does) apply to the accomplished "flasher," or to a rapist. Both flasher and rapist make statements through their conduct. For example, psychiatrists say rapists are motivated by their hatred of women, which makes the act an expression of hatred, and thus protected by the constitution. If topless dancing is an art form as well as a type of self-expression, how would the judge rule if the dancer covered her "top" and uncovered her "bottom"? Does this change his definition of free expression? Is it still art, and if not, why not?

● This newspaper is protected by the same First Amendment that shields the woman who jiggles her breasts for profit. While the dancer is protected, the newspaper is not, except to a limited extent. There are at least one hundred state and federal laws that dictate what a newspaper can and cannot print. One of them allows the Carrizozo mayor to keep secret arrest reports which are, also by law, public records. Each of these laws infringe upon a newspaper's constitutional right under the First Amendment to publish public records. Now, if all our female employees came to work topless, would His Honor uphold their conduct as an art form and as freedom of expression? No, a newspaper can't get away with that. But a heavy of busy broads can "lewd it up" before a bunch of drunken bums and enjoy First Amendment protection no newspaper can.

● Like the war on drugs, the war against pornography is a losing battle. If people want drugs they'll get drugs; if they want pornography they'll get pornography. No red or white ribbons waving in the breeze will change that. But there is a way. Vote your congressman-for-life out of office. Never vote for a sitting congressman, for congress is where the leadership in containing pornography must come from. If congressmen knew voters would do this, they would pay attention to the problem of drugs and pornography. Congressmen are short on moral values, and they enforce the law selectively, just as is the case in Lincoln County. If congress adhered to moral values it would oust that velvet-butted homosexual profligate Barney Frank from his seat of power. Want to end pornography? Throw every congressman out of office and replace them with ones dedicated to ending it. If the new ones fail, beat them out, too. In only 8 years the battle will be won—and the people will be in control of congress for the first time in history.

It's that time again... What you need for safe winter transportation:

Inside The Capitol

By Jay Miller

SANTA FE—Many stories circulate around the Capitol about haunted state office buildings.

After 379 years, Santa Fe has more than its share of ghost stories. Many persist. Several involve buildings in the state Capitol complex.

One is the universally told La Llorona story. According to the Santa Fe version of this children's fable, over a century ago a woman threw her children to death in the Santa Fe River. After a change of heart, she chased along the riverbank trying to save them but tripped, hit her head on a rock and died also.

Because of her evil deed, the priest would not allow her to be buried in the church cemetery. He ordered she be buried at the spot near the river where she met her death.

Years later, the state of New Mexico built its Capitol on that site. For many years building custodians reported sightings of La Llorona—the crying woman—as she left her resting place on the nightly search for her children.

One custodian claimed the apparition passed through him as it hurried down a basement hallway. He reported the incident the following morning—and then submitted his resignation.

That Capitol building now houses several agencies of state government. A new Capitol was built in 1966. But, when the story is retold around the village, La Llorona is still buried "under the state Capitol."

As a result, some custodians in the new Capitol still worry that La Llorona may have moved along with the seat of government.

Stories similar to that of La Llorona reportedly exist in cultures throughout the world, possibly as a warning to children not to play too close to the river or the ditch. Some of these stories may predate La Llorona. However, an entire body of fables has developed over the centuries around the Santa Fe figure. A book of La Llorona stories is available in Capital City bookstores.

Our top state officials, along with executive and legislative staff will be moving out of our present Capitol building soon to make way for renovations. The Department of Finance and Administration will relocate across the street to the west in the new building. That is the old Capitol, the one haunted by La Llorona since its construction in 1809.

Everyone else will move to the Public Employee Retirement Association building across the street to the east. For Capitol relocation and other questions, please call the Capitol office at 441-2100.

church cemetery (probably the one that was denied to La Llorona). The cemetery dates back well into the previous century. By the time the church converted the area to playing fields for St. Michael's High School and College, grave markers had long since disappeared.

Santa Fean Mike Varela relates that when he attended St. Mike's, he was a shot putter. He says many times when the shot would land on that field, it would make an unusual sound and cause a right-angle pattern, similar to the corner of a grave site.

When excavation began for the PERA building, Varela says workmen were told to save any caskets they found for burial in another cemetery. But since most of the caskets were pine boxes, they had rotted. The result was a considerable disturbance of the old cemetery.

Ever since the building opened in the early 1960s, workers have told stories of the supernatural. The PERA ghosts have all been friendly. Elevators will go up and down with no one in them. Lights flick on and off. Doors open and shut mysteriously. Drafts appear from nowhere in the two windowless subterranean stories. And items taped to walls become crooked, no matter how well they are anchored.

Sure, this story sounds straight out of Poltergeist. But it started long before Steven Spielberg began making big bucks writing about such things.

In addition to being the Capitol City, the Royal City, and the City Different, Santa Fe is also a city of ghosts and goblins. Maybe state employees should apply for hazardous duty pay.

Letters to the Editor

'Certain observations'

EDITOR—The recent article in the Albuquerque Journal about dying rural communities in New Mexico featuring Carrizozo and Vaughn, among others, gives rise to certain observations.

There is prevalent in this town an attitude among the local power structure that they desire new industry and people, but only on their terms. This attitude manifests itself in many ways among which are arrogance, contempt for and price gouging of local consumers and hostility toward newcomers who do not show proper obeisance.

The truth is, the main requirement for leadership in Carrizozo appears to be that one chew tobacco and smell like a horse.

Another example of this town's negativism is the recent attempt by local know-nothings to destroy the school system. If they are ever successful they will complain just as loudly about their children being bused to a different town.

Then there is the local law enforcement situation. This is a real farce. While crime runs rampant local officers fight among themselves and are noted for their favoritism and selective enforcement of the law. One officer appears to have the IQ of a carrot.

This brings me to the local gossips. These small-minded people spend most of their waking hours spying on their neighbors and racing madly about town spreading gossip and lies to equally benighted souls who actually believe them.

In light of the above is it any wonder that rational people are not standing in line to come to Carrizozo?

While I feel it is too early to hold a funeral for Carrizozo, perhaps it is time to get its affairs in order in the eventuality it does sink back into the fields of caliche and tumbleweeds from whence it sprang.

Then again something good could happen here. After all, the railroad did come here 90 years ago giving birth to the town. So anything is possible—but I am not holding my breath.

DONALD QUEEN, Carrizozo.

A lesson in journalism

EDITOR—While I can appreciate your opinion on abortion, I find it unthinkable that you are a decade behind in the political arena.

Taxpayers have not paid for abortions since shortly after R. Reagan's first election. Taxpayers in New York still provide funds (state) for poor women's abortions. Perhaps your opinion should be published in New York rather than New Mexico.

Opinions are of little value if they are based on personal assumptions rather than facts. I cannot believe any newspaper would print that type of misinformation! May I remind you, your job is to inform the public—not misinform them. Why don't you check it out and set your public straight on the facts.

LINDA DAVIS, Alamogordo.

KICKING UGLINESS

Socorro's KIG Campaign and the Chamber of Commerce are hoping for some major clean-up efforts, especially along commercial and well-traveled streets. KIG stands for Keep It Clean and the committee is driven by those buzz words "economic development," observes the editor of the Defensor Chieflain.

Ridding the town of trash and weeds climaxed last Saturday in Socorro with all-out attack by members of the town's civic clubs.

PUBLIC'S IGNORANCE

White ribbons are available from Carrizozo's First Baptist Church at 214 10th Street as part of their campaign to spread the word that porn is illegal. Members of the church introduced in town the national project White Ribbon Against Pornography (WRAP). Their message to law enforcement and elected officials: Get pornography out of Carrizozo—if it exists.

Last year's WRAP campaign resulted in millions of white ribbons being displayed in hundreds of communities across the country. Civic clubs and other churches provided and pinned in their town in the past. Now's our chance to do the same. The message is: Get pornography out of Carrizozo—if it exists.

"The public's ignorance, of course, is the pornographer's bliss," states WRAP literature. Leaflets for the asking are available from the Baptist Church. Among them: "Video Cassettes - Porn in the Parlor" and "Cable Porn - How can they get away with it?"

Have your kids been watching any good movies lately? And have you "really" listened to the words on video music? Check out the country music also. It isn't all gospel singing.

KICKING OBSCENE

Our mayor proclaimed Oct. 29 through Nov. 5 as Pornography Awareness Week. The WRAP leaflets say that letters to the editor is your forum. A letter can reach the entire reading audience of the newspaper. This is power—if it is signed, that is. A letter writer may ask who is to blame for no obscenity law enforcement: a liberal judge? a silent religious leader?

The off-on button on a television set is a unique enforcer for stamping out porn in the family living room, if the channel selector doesn't seem to help. That there is a little booklet called "TV Guide" that tells you who's doing what is whom and what time. Have you tried these methods in the past to stamp out porn?

ARE COPS MISSING?

Police Officer John Smith of Santa Fe has this to say about the use of unmarked vehicles to patrol the state's highways: "The idea is not to go out and issue a zillion tickets. The idea is to go out there and act as a deterrent. With the unmarked cars, the public will ask, 'Are the cops here?' This will be another deterrent." (Sierra County Sentinel)

The law-enforcement agency was established 50 years ago, and unmarked cars to deter speeding is a first time plan for not increasing citations for traffic violations but to deter speeding.

BATMAN PATROLS

Socorro High principal Fred Hase states in the Defensor Chieflain: "The kids are learning that we need to know where they are at all times. We are trying to lighten up on attendance."

Hase and his assistant Bernard Sals are credited for improved security in and around the school parking lot. Students who drive to school are now required to show proof of insurance, and must submit a parking permit issued by the school office.

People were surprised during a recent dance when all the cars entering the AREA SENIOR citizens participate in the first-ever Senior Citizens Forum conducted in Carrizozo last week.

Forum trying to provide services to the elderly

Maintaining current programs and a senior center for the Hondo area were the key issues identified by participants at the first-ever senior citizens forum in Carrizozo last week.

The forum, attended by about 35 senior citizens representing Carrizozo, Corona, Capitan, Alto and San Patri- cto, was called to collect opinions to present to the state legislature, said organizer and Zia Senior Citizens Center director Barbara Ward.

By the year 2,000 it is estimated Lincoln County, outside of Ruidoso, will have about 3,300 seniors who are 60 years or older. In Hondo Valley alone, there will be about 300 60-plus seniors.

Seniors identified trans-school grounds were searched for illegal substances. The administrators have picked up the nicknames "Batman and Robin."

STATE POLICE RESPOND

Mountainair town council member Merle Jones claimed the scuffle between her and the mayor over a tape recorder sprained her wrist. The town meeting was brief and uneventful, according to the "Citizen," but some time later, the State Police were contacted about the struggle over the recorder. Eyewitnesses were summoned during the night to give statements.

Before the meeting convened, while most people were still outside chatting, Mayor Shovelin, clerk Debra Kelly and council members Jones and Val Gilley had seated themselves at the council table. Jones started to plug in her tape recorder, on which she customarily records town meetings. Shovelin told her not to use her recorder, and Jones refused. A brief struggle between them ensued over the tape recorder, cord and plug.

portation as the major duty and cost of the centers. Ward said the centers are legally obligated to transport anyone over 60 who requests such. Corona has the most miles traveled due to the remoteness of that village. Each trip has to be documented, and all are for medical trips, said Corona center employee Dorothy Bradley.

Because so many family members work and are unable to take their elders to the doctor, the centers assume that responsibility.

Federal dollars are in question because of the Gramm-Rudman law, Ward said, leaving the state, county and local governments to carry more of the funding for the centers statewide. Zia operates under the South-eastern Agency on Aging, with its office in Clovis. Currently budgets are drawn by the agency, with input from local centers. Lincoln County also sponsors the county centers and administers funds through the county treasurer's office.

All funds, even those earned at the individual centers, through various fund-raisers, go into a central account. From that account the money is distributed where it is needed most, Ward emphasized to the group.

Capitan senior Bob Stephens suggested each center develop its own set of needs, as each community deals with different problems.

Corona has no meals program and transportation to doctors is a major expense. Capitan has a need to reach seniors who require assistance in meals, transportation and visitation.

All agreed Capitan and Corona centers need another full-time person. Now Bradley serves Corona and Linda Padilla serves Capitan.

Ward said she has submitted a request for more funds which will allow the additional employees. However, the state agency in Clovis submits the budget request to the state legislature, which acts upon them. Donations which helped supplement the local centers' budget in the past have dwindled, which Ward partly blames on the general economy.

"It is a very difficult program to run, dollars are very hard to come by," Ward said.

Currently there is great emphasis on volunteerism, which the centers do at this time. Many volunteer transportation in individual vehicles, some volunteer time at the centers themselves.

However, Ward said more could be done by creating a lobby group which will approach the state appropriations committee during the legislative session in January 1990.

If the centers show the legislature documented volunteerism, programs might receive more funding, Ward said.

"It (volunteerism) shows we're not here with our hands out, it shows people helping people in the community," said Dr. Amy Barton of Carrizozo.

Another concern is the need for additional home health care to fulfill the centers' goal of keeping the elderly at home and out of nursing homes. The cost of keeping elders at home is less than half of what it costs at a nursing home. However, home services require personnel which are hard to find, Ward said. The rural nature of the county also adds to the problem of home health care.

A program called Senior Companions pays minimal stipends to volunteer seniors who check on other seniors, but the program is not in place in Lincoln County.

Isolation is another major problem, said Bradley who related a touching scene when visiting a senior.

"Everybody needs company," she said. Often her job requires more time than a normal-length day because of the nature of visiting elders who otherwise have no company.

Capitan and Carrizozo participate in meals programs. Lunch is served at the centers and to home-bound individuals in the community. All seniors present agreed they should support their local food stores when purchasing food for their programs. Capitan seniors said they want to purchase food from Cummins Food Market because they might get a discount.

Ward had no objection to such, and Carrizozo senior Dorothy Forsythe encouraged all seniors to shop locally first, not just for the centers. She said traveling out of town for groceries was too tiring, expensive and did not result in great savings.

Suitable housing and living conditions also were a concern. Bradley and Padilla said they found many seniors live in unsuitable houses, mostly because they are unable to afford anything better or are unable to repair their existing homes.

"It's okay to get nosy," go check on your neighbors," Bradley suggested.

If problems are detected, she told seniors to ask for professional help through health and social services and adult protection agencies.

Ward said the seniors have some good friends in the state legislature, mainly Dick Knowles and Maurice Hobson.

She encouraged as many seniors as can attend the appropriations committee meeting during the January session.

"If the room is filled with senior citizens, the appropriations committee will listen," Ward said.

Sign-ups for Cub Scouts

Carrizozo youngsters will have a chance to sign up for the Cub Scouts Thursday, Nov. 2 (today).

The organizational meeting will be held at the Carrizozo Elementary School's multi-purpose room from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m.

All elementary school children are invited to attend.

B. Walker visits area

Old Timer Buster Walker visited the area this past week, and had a friendship reunion at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Davis Greenwood, and her husband in Ruidoso which many of his old friends and associates enjoyed.

Buster lived in Carrizozo during the late 1920s and early 1930s, attending the Carrizozo School and worked many years for Vincent Reil at the Chevrolet garage. He is presently consultant on West Coast for Groendyke Transport Inc., of Enid, OK.

Grizzlies host Coyotes

Carrizozo will host the 'Class A' semi-final football game between the hometown Grizzlies and the defending champion Tatum Coyotes Saturday night at Laabs Field — game time set for 7:30 p.m.

Top rated Loving will host Springer in the other semi-final game. Winners of these two games will meet for the state Class A championship next week.

The visiting Coyotes will come into the game as Class A State football champions for the last three years and again seem very capable of repeating. Carrizozo comes into Saturday's match with a 6-3 record after winning only three games in the previous three years. The home field advantage for the Grizzlies should make this game a toss-up.

Carrizozo would love to win this game and have another shot at #1 rated Loving—who defeated the Grizzlies 12-6 earlier in the year. Loving should be favored over Springer in their matchup.

Admission for the game Saturday will be $4 for adults and $3 for students. . . no passes allowed.

SPORTS

CARRIZOZO GRIZZLY running back Dennis Vega (7) is shown during Friday's game against Capitan Tigers. Carrizozo won 41-0 and have a season record of 6-3. They will next play for the right to advance to the state championship game. The Class A state semi-final playoff will be in Carrizozo Saturday, Nov. 4 at 7:30 p.m.

Grizzlies end volleyball season

The Carrizozo Grizzly volleyball season came to an end last Thursday night—when district foe Mountainair defeated the local team 3 games to one in District 3A playoffs. Mountainair thus advanced to the district championship game against Ft. Sumner (both teams also qualify for regional play next week.)

The four-set match saw the Mustangs win by the close scores of 15-12, 10-15, 16-14 and 15-13. "We could have won and should have won the match," said coach

Ron Becker. "We just couldn't get it done." Carrizozo ended the season with a 9-9 record.

Seniors playing their last game for the Grizzlies were Tannis Trolinger, Rachel Monreal, Cindy Silva and Connie Najar. Rachel Monreal and Tannis Trolinger were named to the All-District team. "I really enjoyed working with this group of girls," commented Becker. "I guess the only thing that would have made it better was that if we had beaten Mountainair Thursday."

Carrizozo Grizzlies wallop Tigers, 41-0

By Bartley McDonough

The fighting Carrizozo Grizzlies defeated arch rival Capitan 41-0 Friday evening and advance to post season playoff competition.

The Tatum Coyotes visit Carrizozo Saturday for a 7:30 p.m. shootout on Laabs Field. Springer plays at Loving in the other Class "A" playoff game. Both games are on Saturday at 7:30 p.m. The winners play each other Nov. 10 or 11 for the state championship.

Carrizozo scored on its first possession going 57 yards. Dennis Vega was the primary ball carrier. The extra point was no good.

The Tigers got one 1st down before Najar intercepted a Heath Huey pass. After penalties against Capitan and Carrizozo, Schlarb connected on a 5 yard pass to Guy Archuleta and another TD. Dennis Vega ran for two points. Carrizozo 14, Capitan 0.

Four plays later Abe Padilla covered a Tiger fumble. Carrizozo moved the ball to the Tiger 17 yard line before turning the ball over on 4th down.

Capitan couldn't move the pigskin.

The Grizzlies began their third touchdown drive from the Tiger 36. The TD came on a long pass play, Schlarb to Michael Chavez. Carrizozo 20, Capitan 0.

Warren Russell got a 1st down for Capitan and Roybal got another.

It was here that Lee Najar intercepted a Tiger pass on the Grizzly 15 yard line.

An unsportsmanlike penalty against Carrizozo forced the Grizzlies to punt after a beautiful ramble by Vega. There was no further scoring in the 1st half.

Capitan fumbled on the 1st play of the 2nd half.

Vega scored at 7:48 of the 3rd quarter and got the 2 point conversion. Carrizozo 28, Capitan 0.

A bad pass from center on 4th down set the Grizzlies up on the Tiger 10 yard line. The score came on a pass play to Archuleta. Rod Serna kicked the extra point. Carrizozo 35, Capitan 0.

The final Grizzly TD came on the 1st play of the 4th quarter culminating a 70 yard drive. Chris Barela took the ball in for the tally.

Others contributing to the drive were Archuleta, Sheehan and Michael Chavez. Carrizozo 41, Capitan 0.

Lady Tigers win district tournament

Head coach Pam Allen of the Capitan Lady Tigers was named coach of the year for the third straight year as Capitan defeated Cloudercroft to win the district tournament.

The Lady Tigers ran their record to 17-0 by defeating the Lady Bears 15-6, 16-14, 8-15 and 15-10.

The regional "D" tournament will be played this Saturday, Nov. 4 at Ft. Sumner. Capitan plays the Mountainair Lady Mustangs in its first game. If the Tigers are victorious, they will meet the winner of the Cloudercroft, Ft. Sumner game. Both teams in the game will advance to state competition next week in Roswell.

Karie Cox led the way in the first game with 8 points. Lesley LaRue followed with 5. Cindy Castillo was the big gun in the 2nd game, with 8 points. Lesley LaRue got 4 points in the 3rd game. Coach Allen got 5 points from Lora McKay, and 4 from Vickie Sedillo in the final game.

Coach Allen said her girls played very well. "Our two seniors, Lora McKay and Kim Eckland, ended the season with outstanding performances."

The sportsmanship award for the tournament went to Cloudercroft and Loving.

Named to the all-district team were: Cloudercroft, Michael Warren, Gail Coleman, Shana Jackson and Amber Hendrickson; Loving, Adrian Fuentes and Angie Grijalva; Hagerman, Christine Batista; Lake Arthur, Rainy Hill; Capitan, Lora McKay, Kim Eckland, Karie Cox and Vickie Sedillo.

The Capitan Chamber of Commerce will hold its regular meeting at the Smokey Bear Restaurant Nov. 6.

A large crowd of Capitan residents supported our football boys in their last game last Friday night in Carrizozo. Score 41-0 in favor of Carrizozo.

Mr. and Mrs. Grville Trammell of Ruidoso were guests of the Terry and David Stricklands last weekend.

Evelyn Grover returned Tuesday from a visit in Kentucky.

David and Amber Montoya of California have been visiting relatives in Capitan and Roswell. David has returned to California and Amber remained to continue visiting in Capitan and Albuquerque. When she returns home her grandmother Pearl Coor and Aunt Patsy will go with her for a visit.

Nathan Stone, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Stone of Capitan, and Gayla Williams daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Williams of Albuquerque were married Oct. 23 in Albuquerque. They will make their home at Coronado State Monument in Bernalillo where Nathan has been employed for the last six years.

Capitan welcomes Susan and Randy Vinson and sons back home from Washington. It's great to have you back with us.

Georgia Maples just returned from a trip to California via Atrack. While there she went to visit her brother and his wife, and attended the wedding of her grandson, Michael Beck. She spent three weeks visiting her daughter Francis Beck and family.

Louise Hester is spending a few days in Roswell with her daughter Ruth and Ed

Ronald Joiner and friend Teresa Cone were home over last weekend.

Pauline and Alton Whitaker spent the weekend in Carlsbad with their daughter, Jackie Parker, and Laverne Neatherlin.

Frances and Jim Prince of Midland, TX are spending a few weeks at their home here in Capitan. It is always a pleasure to see them.

Walden Thiedth of El Paso, former resident of Capitan, is out of the hospital and we are happy to report doing nicely.

Jerry and Elsie Sheppers of Oak Harbor, WA visited Roland and Pat Bailey last weekend. They were Army friends.

Tony and Herman Otero attended the district meeting of the American Legion and the Legion Auxiliary at Carrizo Lodge in Ruidoso last weekend.

Patty Wooddell and family visited the Herman Oteros last weekend. They are enjoying their travels, especially at this time of year. Patty looks great and happy.

Michael Otero-Flanagan and Clint Henson left last week for South Carolina. They plan to help rebuild the devastation left by Hurricane Hugo. Capitan is proud to be the home of such fine young men.

The Capitan Roundtable met Thursday in the party room at the Smokey Restaurant. Amolene McIntosh of Roswell was hostess. All members were present except Alice Traylor. Plans were made for the Christmas Party to be held at the Inn of the Mountain Gods.

A large crowd attend the Lincoln County Postmasters annual meeting at K-Bob's in Ruidoso Sunday afternoon. The postmasters attending from Lincoln County were delighted to have several special guests attend their meeting. Those attending were Frank and Veronica Vigil, Mary Williamson, Chip Clemmons, Mr. and Mrs. Kezar, Mr. and Mrs. Russell, Jean Chamberlain, Bonnie Rogers, Catherine Grantham, Wayne Bradley, Betty Rickman and daughter. Dutch treat was served by K-Bob's at 1 p.m. and then training by Mary Williamson, with the meeting following the training session.

Old business was discussing if the organization ever had any by-laws. Since there seems to be none, Shirlene Fitzner and Faye Womack were appointed to draw up a set.

The updating of the LCPM books was discussed and hopefully the third book will be published updating all new postmasters. This book is very informative on Lincoln County history. Bake sales were suggested to help raise funds to publish the new book.

Bob Chamberlain expressed his desire to have more than one meeting a year. Trainings, information, and visiting between associate offices is very informative.

New business was a report from state president Frank Vigil on the national convention held in San Francisco, and the state convention coming up in June at Tameron, CO, and the national convention that will be held in New Mexico in 1994.

A 1994 Christmas party was planned for the second week of January. The week place will be decided on at a later date.

A potted plant will be sent to Louise Joiner for her many years of dedication to this organization as historian and other offices. Louise continues to get stronger every day.

Election of officers was held. It was decided to keep the same ones from the previous year. President is Bob Chamberlain, vice-president is Della Bonnell, and secretary-treasurer is Betty Joiner.

A place to display old post office keepsakes is still being looked into. Hopefully we will acquire a place for these interesting teams.

An organization meeting to start planning for the 1994 convention held at the home of Julius and Shirlene Fitzner. Several attended with many chairman being selected for several committees.

Lincoln Ramblings

By Rosalie Dunlap

After an absence of two months I will get a few news items in this week's News.

Leota Pfingsten, Dorothy Talley and Rosalie Dunlap enjoyed a 10-day trip to San Diego in September. They visited Balboa Park, Wild Life Park, Disneyland, Catalina Island, Universal Studios and Halop date farm. They went with the Hi-Neighbor group from Roswell.

While in San Diego, Rosalie's mother Christina McKinley, fell and broke her hip. Rosalie stayed to take care of her mother when she returned.

Mrs. McKinley suffered three breaks but did a fabulous recovery. In four weeks she was going to church, visiting friends in the hospital, and caring for herself with the aid of a walker.

Ralph Dunlap put a new roof on his building in Lincoln. He is now busy putting in a new ceiling in the front room.

Happenings in Lincoln town during my absence:

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Hart and Beth made a trip to Seattle, WA. Linda and Beth visited Linda's mother, Melba Gaw, and cousin Samuel Alexander and Phyllis Lesnett, a distant relative of Lincoln's Lesnett, and a friend Nina Goss, a distant relative of Pat Garrett.

Bob, Gary Miller, Jack Rigney, Ann Buffington and Alice Blakestad attended the meeting of American Association for State and Local History at Seattle, WA.

Later Bob Hart, Gary Miller, Beverly Hammond, and Karen Petty attended the National Preservation Meeting on historical properties in Philadelphia, PA.

The Wortley Hotel closed for the winter months on Oct. 9.

Our condolences to the families of Ramon Maes, Clinton Meigs and Bronson Corn.

Linda Hart spent the weekend in Silver City. She attended a workshop on Southwest New Mexico prehistoric ceramics.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Dunlap visited Mr. and Mrs. David Coleman and family and Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Dunlap in Willcox, AZ over the weekend. While there they attended the high school girls volleyball state championship game in Florence, AZ. The Willcox girls won. Their granddaughter, Patricia Coleman, was one of the team members.
