County Commissioners

What to do about garbage? Nobody seems to know

By DORIS CHERRY

The Lincoln County landfill on Fort Stanton Mesa will close Aug. 4.

Lincoln County Commissioners Rick Simpson, Robert Hemphill and Karon Petty heard of the closure at their meeting Monday when they also approved a six-month extension of the solid waste collection contract with Southwest Disposal Corporation.

County manager Nick Pappas said the road supervisor and landfill personnel agreed the county will be "lucky to make it to Aug. 4 at the rate of fill." The filling is due to the dumptruck loads of contractor garbage going to the dump, primarily from Ruidoso and the Alto area.

The major question was, where will the loads of contractor garbage go after the Ft. Stanton landfill closes. The discussion led to the possibility of Capitan turning its present Class B landfill, for all types of household garbage, into a Class C landfill just for construction trash.

The village has applied for such a classification with the state.

Commissioners heard that Capitan Mayor Frank Warth requested the county's D-6 Caterpillar tractor to dig a pit at the landfill for contractor garbage. County road supervisor Tommy Hall said he had no problems with letting Capitan use the D-6, but he estimated it could take as much as 30 days to dig a pit big enough. Instead he suggested the village rent a scraper.

Some doubts were raised at allowing the use of the D-6 since Capitan leases its landfill to a private contractor.

Pappas said the county will not be a partner in the Capitan Class C landfill at all, rather will work with the village in a "spirit of cooperation."

Petty suggested the county look into providing a "roll-off" container at the Ft. Stanton Landfill site after the actual pit closes, since a number of homes are being built in the Alto area.

Environmental Improvement Division regional director Gary McCaslin said the roll-off containers will not be sturdy enough for construction trash and would quickly fill with the bulky materials.

After a brief discussion about the contract with Southwest Disposal Corporation (SDC) and some of the problems encountered in the first six months of contracting with the Alamogordo-

DRIVERS AND/OR occupants of the vehicles that collided just past noon Sunday are shown gathering up their belongings. The impact between a 1989 Pontiac coupe and a 1986 Ford pickup pulling a travel trailer occurred at the base of the overpass at the crossroads of US 380 and US 54, site of many past collisions.

Two Sunday crashes at US 380, 54 crossroad

Several passers-through had a bashing time in Carrizozo Sunday when two separate auto accidents congested traffic for several hours at the crossroads of US 380 and 54.

According to police reports, the first accident occurred at 11:53 a.m. when Marvin A. Seal, 50, Rio Rancho, ran the stop sign in his 1989 Pontiac two-door coupe. He was going north on US 54 when he ran into Roger Powel's 1986 Ford pickup pulling a travel trailer. Powel, 50, of Denver City, TX, was traveling east on US 380.

The impact crushed the front end of the Seal auto and caused it to spin around. The Powel truck was forced partially over the guard rail near Four Winds Restaurant and the travel trailer was turned onto its side across the entire roadway on US 380, blocking traffic for 98 minutes.

Carrizozo police officers John Northrup Jr. and Rick Emmons investigated the accident and directed traffic through town along other routes.

Carrizozo Ambulance was called to the scene but was not needed because there were no injuries. Police credited the use of seat belts by all occupants of both vehicles to the lack of injuries. Means Motor Supply towed the Seal vehicle away.

Seal was cited for failure to yield right of way.

Just when police had finished the investigation and left the scene, another accident occurred at the same intersection at 3:56 p.m.

Charles Anderson, 35, Albuquerque, and his family were in their 1975 Ford sedan traveling north on US 54 when he briefly stopped at the sign then continued on without looking for traffic.

Anderson collided with Bob Berger, 67, Monticello,

Capitan faces landfill crisis; questions benefits of EDC

Capitan is in a major transition with solid waste, Capitan Village Trustees learned at their regular meeting Monday.

During discussion about the solid waste collection contract for the village for the upcoming year, trustees heard Mayor Frank Warth say the Capitan Landfill, which presently has a Class B status, will become a Class C landfill after Aug. 9. The Class B landfills takes all household garbage, but Class C is restricted to just construction trash.

Trustee LeeRoy Montes did not like the idea of Capitan's dump becoming a Class C landfill for the county, but Dr. Bernhard Reimann questioned whether the village can afford to continue a Class B under the new landfill regulations. Montes worried the village will give the landfill to the county, which is not the case.

Currently, the New Mexico Municipal League is involved in a lawsuit, initiated last year when the new Environmental Improvement Division landfill regulations went into affect. However, many officials believe the lawsuit will soon be settled. The lawsuit stalled the regulations and allowed government entities to continue operation landfills under the old regulations.

The basis of the lawsuit was for the state to provide some type of funding mechanism for governments to establish landfills which meet the new regulations.

Senate Bill 2, passed by the 1990 legislature, provides for funding of solid waste in the form of environmental services special gross receipt taxes. Municipalities are allowed to impose one-sixteenth of one percent without referendum. The tax also funds waste water, sewer systems and water facilities.

Warth directed the village attorney to draw an ordinance for the tax which will be discussed at the next regular meeting. The mayor said one advantage to passage of the tax is to show Community Development Block Grant board and the state the village is trying to help itself as much as possible. The tax funds will be earmarked specifically for special projects and will not go into the general fund.

Capitan will continue using its dump for household

EDC asks financial aid, but trustees question benefits

Even though the Carrizozo Town Trustees did not have a quorum at their meeting Tuesday, they heard from representatives of Economic Development Corporation of Lincoln County, then met in closed session to discuss personnel and pending litigation.

EDCLC executive director George Puckett, treasurer Frank Seynor and members Cindy Lynch and Hal Sims first thanked the council for its support in the past then asked if the town could budget any funds to help the corporation raise money to meet the matching requirements set by the Lincoln County Commissioners.

The town council was to have reviewed and given final approval to the 1990-91 fiscal year budget but was unable because trustees Dale LaMay and Patsy Vallejos were absent. Trustees Harold Garcia and Gilbert Archuleta were present. The budget hearing was rescheduled for 6 p.m. Tuesday, July 17.

EDCLC is financed by mill levy funds approved by the Lincoln County Commissioners. A one-quarter mill was guaranteed and an additional one-quarter will be given by the county if EDCLC can match the amount dollar for dollar. If the entire one-quarter amount is not raised, whatever funds are raised will be matched by the county.

Puckett said EDCLC is a countywide organization which spends as much effort to get jobs to the smaller communities as it does for the larger. He credited Carrizozo's assets—industrial park, airport, large buildings, railroad—for helping attract possible businesses.

Three prospects concur that Carrizozo is a good area. One is an aqua culture indoor oyster farm, another is a machine tool operation owned by a Japanese firm which will hire five people and train them for the computer-controlled operation, and the third is an electronics firm which manufactures speaker systems which, for technical reasons, found Carrizozo ideal. The elevation and low humidity are needed for the manufacturing.

Puckett was excited about prospects of the high-quality companies interested in Carrizozo.

He also said EDCLC had a lot of foresight in its county-

THE LOCAL wrecking service, Means Motor, conducted brisk business last Sunday when a second car crash occurred at the crossroads of US 380 and US 54, this time at 3:56 p.m. A 1975 Ford sedan collided with a 1981 Chevrolet pickup pulling a stock trailer. Both accidents were without injuries.

Southern Pacific owns garbage dump land

The foul trash, garbage dump near town limits reported in last week's issue of The NEWS is on Southern Pacific Railroad land.

According to Albert Baca, appraiser in the Lincoln County Assessor's office, the land's ownership does not show on the county maps because the railroad is regulated and taxed by the state and thus does not pay county taxes.

Jack Harkey does not own the land either. He only leased the area for a scale years ago when he operated a rock operation in the area. The Barham family does own the land which extends to the north of the old rail spur, behind the fence, but must cross the rail spur to get to there.

Despite repeated calls to the Southern Pacific Railroad real estate department in Dallas, TX, with messages left to contact The NEWS, John Terrell, head of the department did not call back. Every time The NEWS called, Terrell was "away from his desk," and one time he was out because the secretary said he was sick.

The NEWS will keep up with the situation and will continue to try to contact Southern Pacific about the garbage situation on the old rail spur which is open to

Immunization of children available

Lincoln County Health Office encourages parents of school-age children to check their immunizations before school starts.

If immunizations are not up to date, they are available at the county health office in Carrizozo, Tuesday and Friday, 8 a.m. to noon and 1-5 p.m.

Immunizations available are DPT, oral polio, tetanus, Hib, MMR (measles, mumps and rubella). County Health Nurse Teresa Luna said it is especially important to check if the child has immunizations for MMR if it will be going into an at-risk area.

One case of measles was reported in Lincoln County in May.

The office also is setting appointments for Family Planning Clinic in August. Appointments can be made by either calling 648-2412 or dropping into the health office in the Lincoln County Courthouse Annex in Carrizozo.

Jack Page new GOP chairman

Jack Page of Alto was elected Republican County Chairman June 30 during a special party convention in Carrizozo.

He will fill the unexpired term of Kent Shannon, who resigned, until the party's regular convention in November.

Vice-chairman Bill Rawlins of Ruidoso was acting chairman until Page's election. He reported Saturday on the party's successful Meet the Candidates fundraiser in May.

Immediate plans for the party include participation in the annual July 4 Smokey Bear parade in Capitan as well as staffing a booth at the Lincoln County Fair in August.

Page invites any county Republican wishing to become involved to call him at 336-4050.

Some county employees find paychecks smaller

Lots of Lincoln County employees were grumbling Tuesday.

The reason? When paychecks were delivered some employees found they made less money with the pay increase which took effect this pay period than before.

County financial administrator Mignon Sims and county manager Nick Pappas explained the reasons for what appeared to be decreases.

Everyone received a pay increase; however, reclassification of all employees set some salaries at different levels which affected the 10 percent. Although commissioners approved a 10 percent raise, it was on the classification rate set by the type of job.

Pappas said some county employees were getting much more money than others who were doing the same jobs. To make an equitable and fair system, the manager's office undertook the reclassification to give equal pay for equal work.

Because of the reclassification, some employees received more than the 10

NOTHING TO DUST

Brunschwig & Fils, a home furnishing manufacturer, suggests creating a library with wallpaper that looks like stacks of leather-bound books. Insight magazine quotes designer Richard Neas: "There is nothing to dust."

If you like the library look but lack the room for "Volltaire, Vonnegut or other volumes," this may be the solution for creating a ready-made library. The paper is priced at $158 for a roll that is 27 inches wide and 5 yards long.

The wallpaper features predominantly 19th century French volumes on such topics as ancient history and gardening. They are arranged so that some books appear leaning, some have torn dust jackets and a few have bookmarks.

TURNER APOLOGIZES

Cable broadcaster Ted Turner has apologized for calling Christianity a religion for "losers." Human Events, the national conservative weekly, reports that during a recent appearance on CNN's "Crossfire" program, the owner of CNN said, "I want to officially apologize to all Christians for saying that." Turner said that it was a very uncalled-for statement. "At one time or another I've offended just about everybody. I was making a talk off-the-cuff when that just popped out and I feel very sorry for that."

Turner has been under fire by Christians and conservatives since last year for saying: "Christianity is a religion for losers," and, "I don't want anybody to die for me," adding, "I've had a few drinks and a few girlfriends and if that's gonna put me in hell, so be it."

WORTH REPEATING

"Vacation time in New Mexico means more than just two weeks of goofing off. An even bigger treat is no political ads on TV for a couple of months."—Chuck Mittlestadt (Hobbs Flare, "The Left Hand Side of the News.")

"I hate it. I hate it with a passion. It's biased, it's prejudiced and it lies. It's pure fabrication, and it drives me nuts."—Economist Pierre Rinfret, expressing his opinion of the New York Times (The Spotlight, "News You May Have Missed.")

"If Serrano wants to put a crucifix in urine and call it whatever he wants on his own time and his own money, that is fine. If you want government money to do it that is a whole other issue. We don't have a national endowment for carpenters, electricians or garbage collectors, and they all contribute as much to society, I'd say. We don't even have a national endowment for reporters. Why do we need one for the arts?"—Rev. Donald Wilson (Insight on the News, "A Hell-bent Crusade Against Pornography.")

"Oh, golly, gee whiz, oh ginger peachy, now we can have a nationwide search!"—Guy Acuff ("Arizona's Final Pioneer", "Off the Cuff," mocking what some "bumbling" official or board member would say when a vacancy occurs in government agencies and a search at great expense would be conducted.)

SEZ HERE

A farmer with an enterprising and literate dairy herd wrote a letter to Pennsylvania's Reading Eagle. Excerpts follow:

"I'm writing this letter in regards to an article announcing the beginning of newsprint recycling for animal bedding. . . As a dairy farmer open to new ideas and in need of bedding, I recently tried this shredded-and-baled product. I would like to report on the disastrous effect it is having on my dairy herd. . . In the first week of use, milk production went down 50 percent. Instead of the cows spending their time eating and sleeping, they are awake all day trying to piece all those little strips of paper together so they can read them. Now that they have, the trouble has really begun. . . Today was insane. First thing this morning, I found No. 6 with a completed sports section on the barn phone trying to get tickets to a Philadelphia Sixers game, because she read the Chicago Bulls were going to be in town. . . Apparently around 2 p.m., No. 21 and No. 22 got into an argument over which was the best investment firm (the majority of the herd likes Merrill Lynch.) Please don't ask me to explain how, but No. 21 fell and scraped her leg pretty bad, No. 14 ran in and dialed 911, and at promptly 2:45 p.m. the paramedics pulled up with sirens blaring and lights flashing. . . I don't know how much of this I can take."

EARTH DAY FUN

Astonishing figures are listed in Harper's Index. Did you know that people attending Earth Day festivities in New York City's Central Park left 100 tons of trash after everything was said and eaten?

Sales of Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles merchandise since the film was released: $500,000,000.

Percentage of American children under the age of 6 who say that the first US flag was sewn by Betsy Ross: 15.

Percentage who say it was sewn by Barbara Rush: 29.

NM in his 1981 Chevrolet pickup pulling a gooseneck stock trailer. The Anderson vehicle was extensively damaged but the truck was only slightly dented on the front right fender.

Again Northrup and Emmons responded as did sheriff's deputy Gilbert Sambrano, and rerouted traffic through town for 69 minutes.

There were no injuries in this accident either, and all occupants of both vehicles were wearing seat belts. Anderson was cited for failure to yield right of way.

Although the weather had been slightly wet earlier in the day, police reports indicated the pavement was dry. There was no alcohol involved in either accident.

A warning light flashes red to vehicles traveling on US 54 and yellow to those on US 380. US 54 traffic must stop, but US 380 is through with only the yellow warning light.

The stop for US 54 traffic is indicated only about a block before the intersection with a generic sign, with no wording, at both the south and north sides.

US 380 traffic has only signs telling of the Junction with US 54 and no warning about the danger of the crossroad.

Nogal Mesa Camp Meeting begins

The 51st Nogal Mesa Ranchmen's Camp Meeting will begin July 18 with evening service at 8 p.m. and western supper at 6:30 p.m.

This interdenominational gathering is one of Lincoln County's oldest and outstanding summer activities. It is an interesting camping experience for young and old, in the wooded 23 acres of the Lincoln National Forest atop Nogal Mesa. For half a century it has provided inspiration for all who attend, to savor the basic good things of western life, and renew faith in God and their fellow man.

The beauty of the land on the Mesa, and panoramic view of the Tularosa Basin; the lusty singing of favorite hymns; woodfire cooked meals; the words of men devoted to their ministerial vocations; and all the camaraderie of the volunteers, will fill four days with memories to strengthen and enhance the other days of one's life.

The preachers will be Rev. Rick Steele and Rev. Royal Jacobs. Rick is being replaced as manager for the Nogal meeting this year by Steve Cody of Oklahoma, so as to devote all his thoughts to his preaching. Paul Biggs will direct music with the help of Jane Shafer, and most other volunteers will be the same as other years. Local ministers, and all newcomers will be given a welcome hand.

Daily services in the tabernacle will be at 11 a.m., 3 and 8 p.m. Meals are served at 6-8 a.m., 12:30 and 6:30 p.m. Group prayer meetings are at 5 p.m.

The registration booth will list schedules, directions, simple rules, and give information. The camp is financed by freewill donations. A memorial service for those who died during the year will be held Saturday afternoon, and business meeting Sunday afternoon.

Bring own gear if you plan to camp. Water, restrooms, and electricity is furnished. Jackets and warm bedding is a necessity for comfort in the 7000-foot altitude where nights are cool and days can be rainy. Children must be sponsored by adults. If unable to camp, come for as many meals and services as you are able to attend.

Direction signs are posted on US 380 west of Capitani and east of Carrizozo, and on State Road 37. For further information contact LaMoyné Peters, Alto Route, Capitani, 88316 — 354-2302.

The final workday will be Saturday, July 14 for floors to be swept and chairs set up. All are invited to bring a basket lunch and lend a hand.

Capitan faces crisis

garbage until the lawsuit is settled, but in anticipation of the settlement, Warth and Dr. Reimann set up a rate schedule for the Class C landfill.

One concern among the audience was whether Capitan residents will be able to use the Class C landfill for such things as tree branches, without paying the rates charged contractors. Warth said the landfill will be opened to Capitan residents, with a water bill, on Saturdays for no extra charge. Contractors will be able to dump on Monday, Wednesday and Friday.

When the landfill does become Class C, Capitan solid waste collection contractor Wayne Hobbs will pick up garbage in Capitan and transport it to the Ruidoso compactor station. From there Ruidoso will truck the Capitan garbage, with its own, to a landfill in the Roswell area.

Because of limited space at the Capitan Landfill, Warth and trustee Norm Renfro foresee the landfill closing. "It's a matter of time," Warth said.

Warth said he hopes the village will be out of the landfill business, once the Class C landfill closes.

Dr. Reimann said the landfill also might become the site of a composite operation, utilizing sludge from the wetlands sewer project. "It is really what we should go for," Dr. Reimann said, because of the state mandate to reduce solid waste by 50 percent in 10 years. "This is one way to do it, we have the area."

Trustees also received a request from the US Forest Service, New Mexico State Forestry and South Central Resource, Conservation and Development (RC&D) to make Capitan the center of the Smokey Bear Fire Prevention Program and to help celebrate Smokey's 50th birthday in 1994. Steve Makowski, USFS, said all interested agencies want a partnership in establishing the center.

Merl Glenn, USFS public relations officer in the Smokey Bear Ranger District, said the program will be national in scope and Capitan is the natural center of attraction since it is both the birthplace and burial place of Smokey the Bear. The goal for the celebration is to upgrade the existing displays at the Smokey Bear State Park in Capitan and possibly establish a fire prevention museum. The museum will be a place for fire-fighting education.

Howard Shanks, representing RC&D, said they are seeking community input and cooperation.

Without the cooperation, none of the plans will happen in Capitan, Glenn added. USFS plans to publicize the 50th birthday celebrations through the National Ad Council and other media campaigns.

Shanks reported a meeting of RC&D will be held in Capitan in September to make further plans.

Don Shaw and George Puckett of Economic Development Corporation of Lincoln County (EDCLC) thanked the community for supporting the corporation, told of the one-quarter mill funding guaranteed by the Lincoln County Commissioners and the one-quarter mill in matching funds. The men then asked the village to consider any type of contribution to help EDCLC meet the match. Already the Village of Ruidoso has contributed $37,500 for the next fiscal year.

One village resident asked how EDCLC has helped Capitan. Shaw, president of EDCLC, said one business is interested in Capitan, but the village will have benefits in terms of increased tax base for the county and so on, even if most of the business do locate in the Ruidoso area. The Ruidoso area attracts business because of its size primarily.

Warth said comments he's heard are that EDCLC winds up to be a Ruidoso promotional financed by the rest of the county.

"Capitan and other small communities have been stunned by the likes of this before," Warth said.

Shaw replied EDCLC has done more to draw the Lincoln County communities together in 25 years.

Puckett, executive director, said small communities rarely get industry, but EDCLC does mean that the village has a professional representative. He told of two businesses interested in Carrizozo because of a large building and the industrial park.

EDCLC spends about 60 percent of the mill levy funds on administrative costs, because of the nature of it, Shaw said.

Shaw also commended Capitan resident and EDCLC board member Dorothy Smith for her work with the corporation.

Warth said the village will consider a contribution at the budget hearing Monday, July 16.

In other business, trustees:

—hired Janice Starnes as municipal clerk.

—accepted the proposal for village attorney from J. Robert Beauvais.

—approved the proposal for solid waste collection from Wayne Hobbs.

—opened two bids for lease of Smokey Bear Museum—one from Willie Hobbs, who has run the museum for the last 17 years, for $1 a year and the other from Curt Temple for $125 a month. Gilbert Montoya and Jimmy Wright were named by the mayor to a committee to review the bids for recommendation at the next meeting.

—accepted the bid for gravel from H. N. LaRue and Sons for $9 a yard delivered and $7 a yard picked up at the mine.

—signed the ordinance for the Taylor Annexation.

—heard the mayor appoint Dr. Reimann as chairman of the Capitan Solid Waste Commission. Dan Davenport, Wayne Hobbs, Jimmie Luna and Norm Renfro also will serve on the commission.

—opted out of the New Mexico Retiree Health Care Plan because no portion of the contributions are refundable unless an employee retires from the village.

—accepted the proposal for animal control from the Lincoln County Sheriff's office.

Paychecks

percent while others received less. The majority, however, received the 10 percent.

One major difference which affected all county employees was the reduction of the employer contribution toward health insurance. Last year the county paid 75 percent of the health insurance. However, the state noted this was not allowable by state law and should have been kept to the maximum 60 percent. The 15 percent increase in what employees pay will affect paychecks from now on.

Also on this first paycheck, employees will pay the one-half of one percent of their pay toward the Retiree Health Care Act. To avoid the payments, the county must choose to opt out of the program.

Pappas acknowledged employees who were too highly paid relative to the classification rate are "yelling the loudest" about not getting a "big raise."

He said employees would have realized much less on their paychecks if the county had not given the "liberal pay raise," because of the insurance situation.

Some county employees thought they knew nothing about the pay increases or insurance increase.

Sims and Pappas said they talked with department heads, all of whom were satisfied with the reclassification. They left it up to those department heads to inform their individual employees.

Party growing in state

Libertarians call for less government, more freedom

An estimated 1500 voters in New Mexico are fed up with traditional political parties.

They have joined the New Mexico Libertarian Party in search of less government and more personal freedoms.

The party was founded in 1971 by people who were tired of the Republican and Democratic parties which offered a choice of more government and more government, said New Mexico Libertarian Party coordinator Joseph Knight.

The traditional parties are "no-win" situations for individuals, while the Libertarian party advocates less government and more personal freedoms in a type of self-government. Libertarians see a very limited role for government with protection from criminals and defense of our shores from foreign enemies as major roles, Knight said.

Libertarians are opposed to zoning and taxation. Hard-anyone who wishes to drive in and dump.

Lincoln County Manager Nick Pappas is aware of the site.

New Mexico Environmental Improvement Division was notified about the situation and those taking steps to inform those dumping at the site of the illegality of such action.

Pappas said the solid waste problem in Lincoln County is fast becoming a major situation. With dumpsters overflowing in some densely populated areas with lots of tourists, county commissioners are questioning whether to keep the county collection services or just throw the whole thing out the door.

At their meeting Monday, commissioners voted to extend the collection contract another six months and agreed to close the Ft. Stanton Landfill Aug. 4.

OPINION

● Already the United States is the largest landowner on earth—750 million acres, and it grows daily. In June, another batch of New Mexico land was gobbled up by the National Park Service, the bureaucracy appointed to acquire land "for the enjoyment" of Americans. It is the new Petroglyph National Monument near Albuquerque. Plans are now underway to expand the Capulin Mountain National Monument, 793 acres at present. Ever heard of it? It celebrates an extinct volcano. Big deal. Too, the Pecos National Monument of 365 acres is being expanded to include the 5,500 acres that constitute the Forked Lightning Ranch. The reason given for these acquisitions is that they contain historic and prehistoric artifacts, like rocks with funny scratchings on them. Cultural values, the landgrabbers declaim, must be preserved on such lands. That could be said about every inch of the entire earth—shall we go after that, too? Elsewhere we are allowing the federal government to buy up land for habitats for such historical and cultural preservation as the Houston toad, spotted owl, rampant piss-ants, and other treasures. Nobody seems to give a damn where our tomato patch will be planted or where we can build a house.

● Every time privately owned land goes into the US government ownership, all our taxes go up. Public land pays no taxes; privately owned land does. Private entrepreneurs cannot compete with the bottomless pockets of the government, for the government's voracious appetite for land and more land makes competition impossible.

● The National Park Service has 12,500 employees and spends about $2 billion a year of our tax money to sustain the bureaucracy. But the National Park Service spends a lot of that money on things we seldom hear about. Like sending some of its bureaucrats to India as consultants in the restoration of the Taj Mahal. Could someone explain to me why our National Park Service personnel are in India, on our time and money, messing around with the Taj Mahal? Building the Taj Mahal began in 1630, before there was a United States. For 350 years India has done a pretty good job of taking care of the white marble mausoleum. Our National Park Service is also sending personnel to Thailand, Mexico, and the Bering Strait—to name a few places where they have no business.

● Hats are off to Mayor Dan King of Alamogordo for refusing to take part in the city's Fourth of July parade. Veterans' organizations also refused to participate in the annual event because the theme of the parade was promotion of anti-alcohol and drug abuse. This theme, as worthy as it is, could be promoted on any other day of the year; not, we believe, to displace the traditional celebration of the nation's independence. King stated his conviction that the Fourth of July should be "a positive day, an uplifting day, a day for our nation and our flag; a day for God, mother, country and apple pie." There is an increasing tendency in this country to scorn, ignore or denigrate any action that smacks of patriotism, love of flag and country. What has been done to religion is being done to patriotism. The liberal-left has long scorned the patriotic American who believes in his country's freedoms, and who push hard for socializing our form of government. They want a socialist state. Thanks to people like Mayor King and veterans' organizations, it will take a long time for socialists to turn this unique Fourth of July celebration into a propaganda tool for the homeless, the abortionists, the flag-burners, peace mongers and radical environmentalists. Let Old Glory have her day!

● In 1985 the US government spent more than $132 billion on welfare programs. But few seemed to get out of poverty. The National Journalism Center in Washington conducted a study to find out why. Results showed that the War on Poverty actually traps people in poverty! NJC called welfare agencies in major cities to prove the point. It asked how much a welfare single mother with three school-age children could receive under present welfare rules. In each of the cities, the value of the welfare package is greater than the current poverty line of $11,600 a year. In New York this family would receive $14,850; in the District of Columbia $14,905; in Boston $15,495. Suppose this mother began full-time work at $5 an hour. She would earn about $10,000. In each of the cities mentioned, she would be paid more staying on welfare than she could earn at a $5 an hour full-time job. It gets worse. If she went to work she would have to pay taxes, whereas if she stayed on welfare she pays NO taxes. Considering this, in Boston where welfare payments are highest, this single mother would have to find a job paying more than $19,000 just to equal her welfare package she gets for doing nothing. What kind of an idiot would give up welfare in order to work at a full-time job? You see the trap?

● Several years ago in California I offered a welfare recipient a job at $125 a week as a beginning reporter. He ran the proposition through his computer brain, then replied: "I already get $100 a week from welfare, so I'd be working for you for $25 a week—and I wouldn't work for anybody for $25 a week!"

"If you pick up a starving dog and make him prosperous, he will not bite you. This is the principal difference between a man and his dog." Mark Twain

Inside The Capitol

By Jay Miller

SANTA FE—Did the school board give adequate notice for that special meeting when it fired the football coach? Was it legal for the county commission to go into executive session when it hired that $60,000 manager? What about the city council when it wouldn't let me record the zoning meeting? Can these guys do this stuff? Who can tell me?

The state attorney general and local district attorneys are charged with enforcing the Open Meetings Act. Jon Barela, director of the Division of Legal Counsel in the Attorney General's Office, handles open meetings violations for A.G. Hal Stratton. Barela says he used to get one or two calls a day from public bodies, news media or interested citizens with inquiries about possible violations. Recently that rate has doubled.

As a result, Barela held a seminar last November for state agencies to provide them with guidelines on how to comply with the Open Meetings Act. He reports the seminar was highly successful with 135 agency representatives attending.

Barela is now ready to take his show on the road. He and Assistant Attorney General Carol Baca will present a series of half-day seminars in five cities around New Mexico during the week of July 16 to 20. They will be at the Farmington Civic Center on Monday, the State Land Office in Santa Fe on Tuesday, the Albuquerque Publishing Company on Wednesday, the Roswell Public Library on Thursday and the Las Cruces City Council chambers on Friday. The Farmington meeting will begin at 12:30 p.m. All others will start at 8:30 a.m.

These seminars will also involve a closely related item, the Inspection of Public Records Act. "New Mexico statutes and court cases do not offer clear guidance about which records are confidential and which are not," says Stratton. The Open Meetings Act has been amended often enough that it is now pretty clear, but a lot of work remains to be done in the area of who can see which public records.

In a further effort to clean up the records law, the 1990 legislature passed a measure creating an Open Records Task Force to study laws, court cases and regulations regarding what government records should be made available to the public and to make recommendations for changes in the law.

Gov. Garrey Carruthers gets to appoint seven members to the task force and legislative leaders will appoint eight, most of whom will be lawmakers. Carruthers' appointments primarily represent state and local government. Interested citizens had better hope Attorney General Stratton rules these task force meetings to be open. Otherwise, the general public will not have much representation in deciding which records should be open.

Normally, the attorney general is the lawyer for the state. He renders opinions for state agencies and for lawmakers. But in the cases of open meetings, open records and consumer protection, the office can also be of direct assistance to the public. If you feel you have been unfairly excluded from a meeting, prevented from examining a public record or defrauded by a merchant, you can call the office at 827-6000.

But for comprehensive answers on open meetings and records, plan to attend one of the seminars scheduled for later this month. This is a tremendous service of the Attorney General's Office in an area that is often of great public interest.

You'll learn which bodies are covered by the Open Meetings Act, what meetings must be open to the public, what kind of meeting notice must be given, how a meeting can be closed and under what circumstances, how the act is enforced and the penalties for violating the law.

Seven other groups are co-sponsoring the seminars. They include associations of local governments and the New Mexico Press Association.

SO-CALLED "ROBIN HUD" IS CONVICTED AND VERY BADLY NICKNAMED

Marilyn Louise Harrell got herself tagged with the internationally irresistible newsman's nickname "Robin HUD."

While an employee of the Department of Housing and Urban Development, she stole six million, one hundred thousand dollars from the United States Government—and, just incidentally, the government is you and me, folks! We elected it, and we pay for it.

Miss Harrell claimed that she had given five of this six million to the poor. But the prosecution showed evi-

Letters to the editor

No aid to USSR

EDITOR—The Soviet Union is launching $1.5 billion in aid against the Freedom Fighters in Angola. The Soviets surely don't need a loan from the US (which they usually don't pay back) to bolster their economy if they can afford this. This is a violation of a UN agreement. Why hasn't the US raised a protest? To give the USSR Favored Nation status is outrageous. All aid and trade with the USSR should be stopped. They already owe us over seven billion.

Harkey says no

EDITOR—This is to state that Jack Harkey does not own, nor has ever owned the acreage on the northeast side of Carrizozo, behind the reservoir where the illegal dumping is taking place. Referring to the July 5 article on the dump. He suggests that anyone wishing to establish the correct ownership of this property should check with the county assessor, and take the guess work out of it.

dence that in addition to being a monumental thief, this woman is a liar as well. For they found that only about one fifth of this amount was ever given to the poor. The rest of the six millions was squandered on herself and her friends and relatives, on failed business schemes.

While we share in our media colleagues' love of coining appropriate nicknames for the more notorious of those in the news, this takeoff on Robin Hood is absolutely terrible. Or, will anyone seriously compare the tyrannical government of England's horrendous King John to our present federal and state welfare-oriented governments, which already provide so many billions to the poor?

Had the original Robin Hood ever been caught by the Sheriff of Nottingham, he would have suffered an agonizing execution. Compare this to the 46 months, plus fine, imposed on this six million dollar thief—which the sometime silly New York Times headlined as "GIVEN A STIFF SENTENCE." Miss Harrell was sentenced to one day for every $5,000 she stole!

This should provide an object lesson to all potential embezzlers: if you're caught, lie. Claim you did it mainly for the poor. Then, consider that $5,000 a day is rather impressive venture capital.

Small business throws a 'finger' at legislature

AZTEC—A "Small Business Voting Record," made public today by the state's largest business advocacy group, gives the 1989-90 legislature a thumbs-down rating.

The picture painted by the voting record shows that "New Mexico's small-business community has experienced two years of less-than-king treatment at the hands of the legislature," said Jerry Walker, director of the 2,400-member New Mexico chapter of the National Federation of Independent Business.

The NFIB/New Mexico report tallies how individual lawmakers voted on key small-business issues during the last two years. It shows most legislators voted against small-business interests more often than not during that period.

The votes covered in the report address several worker's compensation reform bills, two gross receipts tax measures and other issues ranging from labor legislation to solid waste regulation and funding. In all, eight votes in each chamber are reported.

Five senators and three representatives compiled "perfect" small-business voting records, supporting the positions favored by the majority of NFIB/New Mexico members on all eight votes.

Senators receiving 100 percent ratings were: Chris Donisthorpe (Blomfield), Stuart Ingle (Portales), Ken Kammerman (Albuquerque), Raymond Kysar (Farmington) and Billy McKibben (Lovington). Senator Skip Vernon (Albuquerque) also rated 100 percent on the five votes he cast.

Reps. Blake Curtis (Clovis), Stuart Hill and Linn J. Tylter (both of Albuquerque) were eight-for-eight from the small-business perspective. NFIB/New Mexico also gave 100 percent ratings to Reps. Richard Cheney (Farmington) and R. T. Toliver (Blomfield), who voted on seven of the bills considered in the report.

The lowest ratings went to three representatives from Albuquerque: Delano Garcia (17 percent), Cisco McSorley (17 percent) and Ray Vargas (14 percent).

NFIB/New Mexico sets its legislative agenda on the basis of membership surveys, advocating the positions endorsed by the majority of small-business owners in legislative testimony and discussions with lawmakers. Prior to the final vote on a bill, NFIB/New Mexico again communicates with legislators, reminding them of the based corporation, commissioners unanimously approved an extension for another six months at the current rates for collection. Pappas said, with the exception of the problems with dumpsters at Sun Valley, there have been no major problems with SDC. SDC manager Joe Lewandowski was alerted to the problems with clean-up around the dumpsters.

The dumpsters at Sun Valley were removed after some residents complained of the smell and unsightly mess. The problems have now shifted to the dumpsters at J.R.'s convenience store on the corner of Gavilan Road and Highway 48.

Currently the Village of Ruidoso Downs dumps its solid waste in the Ft. Stanton Landfill. The county will inform the village of the closure so that municipality can arrange to take its trash elsewhere. In a meeting with the village of Ruidoso, Ruidoso Downs learned it was invited to use the Ruidoso compactor and transport system.

Discussion led to problems of the county dumpsters, which are filling with trash from private collectors, schools and other groups.

Pappas said the county is slowly addressing the problems, but is mostly concerned with where Sun Valley residents will dump their trash. A roll-off will give them a place to dump after the landfill closes.

The idea of forming a district with private pick-up based on residential assessments was presented to Sun Valley Sanitation District chairman R.A. Ross who said, "heck no" since he felt it is the county's obligation to find a place for dumpsters.

Petty opined a lot of people assume the county will pick up trash from people who live outside of municipalities. "This has just kind of happened, it is not our obligation to collect at residences," she said.

The county's 31 dumpsters are being paid for by all taxpayers of Lincoln County, she continued, which she felt should be billed to just those using the dumpsters.

County attorney Robert Beauvais suggested a corporate district to closely correlate responsibilities of who must pay for the services. He also suggested a workshop to further discuss the situation.

Petty wanted Lewandowski or SDC owner Len Stokes to attend the workshop also.

Pappas said John White of the Ruidoso Solid Waste Committee plans to meet with county municipalities to further discuss the situation of solid waste. The meeting is set for 2 p.m. Wednesday, July 18, in the Ruidoso Administration Center on Cree Meadows Drive.

McCaslin said EID is ready to participate in talks, since it has much information on design criteria for roll-off sites, methods for collecting fees and services for a variety of trash sorting and so on. Long-term management plans also could be made available.

"Invite the people," said chairman Simpson.

"Let's just keep working at it," added Hemphill.

Commissioners also gave final approval to the 1990-91 fiscal year budget, which was placed on the Monday agenda because just one commissioner attended the special budget approval meeting that was set Thursday, July 5.

When the budget was reviewed Monday, Pappas said the county is in "extremely good financial shape" with a budget that Mignon Sims, county financial administrator, played a major, major role in developing.

Pappas also credited the good-shape budget to "outstanding and prudent investments of county money" by treasurer Shirley Goodloe; the large amount of funds (more than $100,000) in housing of non-county prisoners in the county jail; the lowered legal costs for the commissioners (relative to the former commission) and conservative requests from all departments.

Some adjustments were made to the preliminary budget, with some added revenue for the county volunteer fire departments after the county sent a letter of protest and grants for EMS and fairgrounds.

A total of $10,367,345 in revenue and a total of $6,375,279 in expenditures were approved by the commissioners.

The interim budget received approval from the Department of Finance and Administration June 25, contingent on the setting of the maximum employer contribution for group health insurance not to exceed 60 percent. The conditions were met and the budget received its final approval, which was required before Sept. 1.

In other business, commissioners:

—acknowledged a letter from Bill McCarty of Ruidoso about the dangerous situation of bicyclists on the narrow Gavilan Canyon road. Commissioners directed Pappas to work with Sheriff James McSwane, Ruidoso Mayor Victor Alonzo, Tommy Hall and Ruidoso Police Chief Bill Newman to make signs warning riders of the presence of large utility trucks.

—approved having the county engineering firm of Pajo retained on a temporary basis to work on the assessment of roads in county subdivisions.

—rejected the proposals for pens for the county fairgrounds.

—approved the proposal for an auctioneer for the county surplus equipment auction from J. T. Winiford of Ruidoso.

—signed an agreement with Economic Development Corporation of Lincoln County as how the mill levy funds are to be used. The commission guaranteed a one-quarter mill which is about $54,395 and a 1/2 based on dollar-for-dollar match for promotion of economic development in Lincoln County.

—heard from county clerk Martha Proctor that a company in Albuquerque will purchase used computer and other types of paper and aluminum cans from the county at variable rates. Goodloe said her department is willing to participate in a paper sorting program, but has nowhere to store it.

—met in closed session to discuss pending litigation.

On washdays it can be a bright idea to pause before you tackle the week's wash. Taking this kind of break tends to help you remember all those time-saving ideas you've accumulated. Such as pulling the seams of blue jeans very hard before you hang them up to dry so they won't need pressing. wide dedication because it gives professional representation to the small communities with no budget for economic development.

Garcia questioned what EDCLC is and what exactly it has done.

Puckett first said EDCLC is not trying to attract large businesses like General Motors, rather the entrepreneur seeking a lower-cost environment. Then he reviewed the businesses which have come to the Lincoln County area beginning with Apache Futures, which located on the Mescalero Apache Reservation but has since moved into the Ruidoso area. The company maintains passenger buses mostly for TMC of Roswell. It relocated from New York.

Juma Farms, which relocated from Arkansas to Carrizo Canyon near Ruidoso, manufactures wooden letters from scraps at the Mescalero Saw Mill.

Warp Speed Light Pens hires about 20 people now and came from Los Angeles, CA. The company recently became partners with IBM and stands to "grow a great deal."

Stroud Crop Insurance recently relocated to Ruidoso and purchased the former Ruidoso Financial Center. It employs about 20 people. Micrographics is located in the Stroud Building. It hires about three people and makes computer-aided designs of computer circuit boards.

One company attracted by EDCLC, H&H Enterprises, recycling collection center, failed.

Garcia said the town has had a lot of "talkers" and much experience with promised businesses which never materialized.

Puckett acknowledged this, but said EDCLC has achieved a fair amount of notoriety across the state. Even with its smaller budget, EDCLC has more results than larger economic development budgets.

Sims added the corporation has become a role model with its countywide approach, which other counties in the state are now considering.

Mayor Cecilia Kuhnel congratulated the corporation for its efforts to benefit Lincoln County and agreed the countywide format is the hope for the future.

Lynch said one of the major accomplishments was the unifying of the county. She then paraphrased Henry Cisneros, who talked at the first EDCLC seminar, that the key element to success is pulling everyone together.

After the EDCLC representatives spoke, Garcia said the town's budget is pretty tight. Since the final approval could not be given that night without a quorum, Garcia said they would review it for any possible means to provide the $500 EDCLC requested.

Because of the state anti-donation laws, the town cannot just give the funds to EDCLC, rather it must contract with the corporation for its economic development services.

Puckett concluded a lot of economic developments groups spend time and money on community development, but EDCLC wanted to get results and did not go that route. In the future the corporation hopes to develop a master plan for community development.

Communities which lack certain services will have a hard time attracting businesses, he said. Especially those without medical facilities, because medical services with machinery require medical services beyond a general practitioner.

Sims then touched on the problems created by Environmental Protection Agency superfund cleanups, such as the two in Carrizozo. He said the town can't afford to tie up its wells or assets with expensive taxpayer-financed monitoring.

All present agreed the state legislature needs to be lobbied to change the anti-donation laws which prevent towns from offering services or facilities to businesses as incentives.

Garcia and Archuleta also heard from Val Reyes, manager of the Carrizozo Recreation Center. Reyes presented his copy of the insurance policy for the center. The $500,000 general aggregate for general commercial liability far exceeded the $50,000 stipulated in the management contract and exceeds the liability held by the golf course manager. The policy matched what was suggested by the Municipal League.

Garcia also questioned how to get rid of weeds on a vacant business in town, but no one knew what to do because the absentee owner could not be contacted.

"The town has no obligation to (cut the weeds), if we don't, who suffers? The town," Garcia said.

Trustees heard that the state fire marshal's office appropriated the maximum amount of $29,645 for the Carrizozo Volunteer Fire Department.

When it came to the agenda item for closed session on personnel, the two trustees questioned whether they could just go into session to discuss, since it involved a temporary replacement officer for one policeman who is to go on vacation.

After town clerk Carol Schlarb called an attorney for the town of Moriarty for advice, the group went into closed session.

line taxation in reality is theft, Knight added.

"We advocate laissez faire enterprise," he said.

The party is opposed to censorship, although it does not push pornography or gun control, it considers the war on drugs the worst thing to happen to the US since Prohibition.

The war on drugs, as with Prohibition, makes the drug problem worse, Knight said. In fact any type of service driven out of the free market to the black market creates observable phenomena—failure to solve associated problems and creation of additional problems. Knight said the party does not go out of its way to defend drug practices.

Mistakes, however, are one of the risks of freedom. Sometime the wrong decisions are made, but the alternatives are the many concepts of government that lead to the loss of ability for citizens to make decisions for themselves.

Knight was on a reconnaissance mission recently to recruit party members. The party encourages all citizens who are fed up with government encroachment on their personal liberties and property rights to either organize a party in the county or register where the party is recognized. Already Chaves and Eddy Counties have official Libertarian Parties registered with their county clerks.

Seminars, one and a half hours long, are available and Knight will mail information on the party to anyone who requests it by writing Box 698, Flora Vista, NM 87415.

However, he stressed, the report does not reflect all aspects of a lawmaker's performance on small-business issues. July 4, 3 gentle rain then cloudy and cooler. 2 later in different clouds. To have that moisture was great.

The July Fourth parade was great. I was so proud of town for all of their involvement, and for the crowds. The floats and the meaning was great. All of it was good. The crowds at the rodeos and dances is appreciated. Everyone seemed so happy. The coolness made the day.

The Smokey Bear Museum had 2232 registered visitors last week, among them, Elden Etier, who is retired from the United States Weather Bureau. He knew Ed Guck, who told him about Smokey Bear dedication and wearing the Smokey Bear suit. Mr. Etier stated that—in his own words—“We had a lot of cooperation between the Weather Bureau and the Forest Service in climatological work—temperatures, rainfall, snow depth, etc. They had Winter Snow-fall Station on top of the Capitan Mountains. Also on Monjeau.”

Survey to determine needs for mental health services

People who have mental illness in their families are urged to give comments about the need for mental health services in southern New Mexico.

The Alliance for the Mentally Ill (AMI) is helping HED conduct two surveys in Lincoln County and other southern counties. One survey is for individuals who receive counseling and other services from physicians and community agencies or shelters. The other survey is for the families of the mentally ill.

The 1990 New Mexico Legislature passed a bill (House Memorial 7) requesting that Health and Environment conduct the survey to determine whether a mental health facility needs to be provided in southern New Mexico. The surveys were developed by the HM 7 subcommittee.

To ensure confidentiality, no names are used on the surveys, and all information will be used to comply with the requirements of HM 7.

To obtain a copy of the survey form, call Frances Jones at 257-7601. Jones is the county survey coordinator for Lincoln County, and is also a member of the Board for New Mexico Alliance for the Mentally Ill.

FORT STANTON Training School and Hospital employees and clients wave to the crowds at the Smokey Bear Stampede July 4 Parade in Capitan. The float won first place in the float category of the parade sponsored by the Capitan Chamber of Commerce and dedicated to Virgil Hall Sr.

White Oaks Haunts

By MISTY PEREA

Gary Neiderstadt has returned from a vacation in Colorado. Nice to have you back, Gary.

Ruth's float in the parade in Capitan took 2nd place. All of White Oaks congratulates you.

We have a visitor from Washington State. He is Curtis, grandson of Ruth and Bud Hammond.

Friday night we had a nice jam session in White Oaks with Berry, Gail and Kenny playing oldies and some blues. We had a dance contest.

Welcome to our beautiful Lincoln County, Bill Meeks, Kathy and Wendyl Jordan and Celesta Meeks from Mesquite, TX and Troy.

The fireworks display was really beautiful this year. Thanks, Carrizozo!

Cheech and Chong were at White Oaks on Saturday night. Best comedy team we've ever seen.

Crazy Mary is still waiting for the big mean stud horse. She declined from checking out our famous marooja. Thinks its too spooky.

Don't forget Pony Express meeting and work day on July 15 in White Oaks.

We of the Pony Express committee, would like to apologize for the cause of any ill feelings, and or wrong doings in our past races, that has been reason for our newspaper editor, Mr. Joiner, to believe we have not conducted our race in a humane manner. We are an entirely new committee this year, and we will produce a fun and safe race for men and horses. Thank you for your concern.

Bob Boulard won the pretty afghan we had raffled off to help the Pony Express. The winning ticket was drawn at 4 p.m. at the rodeo in Capitan. Thanks for all the help.

EPA
THE UNITED STATES ENVIRONMENTAL PROTECTION AGENCY invites
PUBLIC COMMENTS
on the
PROPOSED PLAN
for the
CIMARRON MINING SUPERFUND SITE
CARRIZOZO, NEW MEXICO

The United States Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) invites public comment on the Administrative Record and Proposed Plan to remedy cyanide contamination of ground water at the Cimarron Mining Superfund site in Carrizozo, New Mexico.

EPA will conduct an informal open house to discuss the Proposed Plan on Monday, July 16, 1990 at 5 p.m. at Carrizozo City Hall.

EPA will host a public meeting to discuss the Proposed Plan and to receive comments on Monday, July 30, 1990 at 7 p.m. at Carrizozo City Hall. The Proposed Plan details the following six alternatives to remedy ground water contamination located approximately 55 feet below the surface of the site:

1. No Action
2. Institutional Controls
3. Pump & Evaporate Ground Water
4. Pump & Discharge Ground Water to Municipal Sewer System
5. Pump, Treat & Discharge Ground Water to Municipal Sewer System
6. Pump, Treat & Recharge Ground Water

Based on available information, EPA has proposed Alternative 4 to correct ground water contamination problems and protect the public's health at the Cimarron Mining site. This alternative includes pumping contaminated ground water and discharging it to the public sewer system. Biological activity occurring in the treatment lagoons, coupled with plant chlorination and the decomposing effects of sunlight, would reduce the concentration of cyanide in the ground water. Water discharged from the treatment plant would be monitored throughout the remedial process.

Regardless of the ground water remedy selected, EPA also proposes the following onsite remedial measures:

- Remove process chemical drums and tanks
- Fill in a discharge pit and cinder block trenches with onsite soils and waste pile materials and cover with clean fill
- Plug the onsite abandoned water supply well

Although this is the preferred ground water remedy, EPA invites public comment on all the alternatives considered in the Proposed Plan. EPA, in consultation with the New Mexico Environmental Improvement Division (NMEID), will choose the final remedy after the public comment period and may choose a remedy other than the preferred alternative identified here.

The Proposed Plan summarizing the analysis of the alternatives and rationale for EPA's preference will be mailed to all interested parties. Also, complete documentation of the analysis will be available for public review at the EPA office in Dallas* and at the following information repositories.
