

Hearing held on WIPP procedures

Lincoln County on route for transporting radioactive waste

By Doris Cherry

Residents along US Highway 380 may never see a Tru-Pac container on the back of a semi-truck trailer, but residents of the tiny Lincoln County community of Ramon surely will.

The reason why the Ramon residents will see Tru-Pac containers is because they live on US Highway 285—the preferred transportation route for transuranic radioactive waste to be taken from different nuclear weapons plants to the Waste Isolation Pilot Plant (WIPP) near Carlsbad.

Formal hearings about the preferred and alternative routes were conducted in three different New Mexico cities in the last two weeks by the New Mexico Environmental Improvement Board. EIB consists of five members—chairman Travis Dollar of Farmington, vice-chairman Roy Walker of Clovis, Frank McClure of Grants, Anthony Burris of Los Alamos, and Mary Blakley from near Portales—appointed by Gov. Garrey Carruthers. At each of the hearings conducted in Santa Fe, Albuquerque and Roswell, EIB took testimony from those who are against the transportation of wastes over New Mexico roads and from a few who were in favor of WIPP.

Although vocal protesters were present at the hearings in Santa Fe and Albuquerque, only a handful of people were present at the first day of hearings in Roswell Monday.

Official testimony was given by Chris Wentz from the NM Energy, Minerals and Natural Resources Dept. and coordinator for the NM Radioactive Waste Consultation task Force (created by the governor) and Dr. James Brogan, a professor of civil engineering at University of New Mexico and a research worker for the Risk Assessment and Transportation System Analysis Division of Sandia National Laboratories.

Wentz gave a background on WIPP, which originally was designed as a depository for mid- and low-level radioactive wastes produced at 10 generation plants in the US which make plutonium for nuclear defense weapons. The transuranic radioactive waste will come from Colorado's Rocky Flats plant; a plant in Idaho; Hanford, Washington; Lawrence Livermore Labs in California; Nevada Test Site; Oregon National Lab; Mound Lab in Ohio; Savannah River Plant in South Carolina; Oak Ridge in Tennessee and Los Alamos National Lab.

The Dept. of Energy's (DOE) most recent proposal for WIPP, however, is to have a five-year test phase to provide information on whether the site is suitable as a permanent repository. For the test phase, DOE plans to have waste transported from Rocky Flats, the Idaho lab and possibly Hanford, Wentz added.

Last year the New Mexico Attorney General's office advised EIB the state should designate preferred transportation routes in accordance to US Dept. of Transportation (DOT) guidelines and regulations. DOT defines preferred routes as either or both an interstate system highway or a state-designated route. If EIB fails to act on designating routes, DOT guidelines will govern the routes to be used. However, no interstate system goes directly to the site southeast of Carlsbad, requiring an exit from the interstate to deliver the wastes.

Because of the most recent plan for the five-year test phase, Wentz said about 105 shipments of radioactive waste will be brought down the preferred northern route during the next five or seven years.

I-25 has been designated the route for the state of Colorado. Because of the designation, New Mexico's preferred route from the northern plants will come down I-25 at Raton, south on I-25 until the exit Lamy until the US Highway 285 exit at Lamy, a few miles north of Santa Fe. Radioactive wastes then will be transported south on US 285, through Clines Corner, Vaughn, Roswell and Artesia to junction with bypass US 295 north of Carlsbad. From the 285 bypass junction with US 62/180, east to junction with the WIPP Access Road to the site.

US 285 cuts through a tiny corner of Lincoln County at Ramon.

In addition to the preferred northern route, the EIB also considered routes from the east, west and south. All routes but the southern utilize the interstate. In addition to the preferred routes, 40 alternatives were considered. Texas and Arizona have not designated routes as yet.

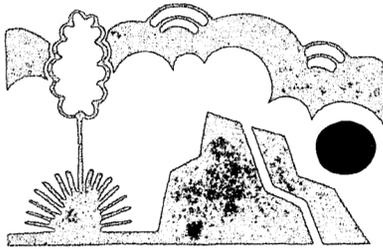

Brogan was contracted by the state to help determine the routes. His computer research at Sandia involved the study of highway routing of radioactive materials and the use of accident rates and other data to identify alternate routes. DOT guidelines provide a methodology for comparing and analyzing the safety of alternative routes under consideration. By using this methodology, the routes which minimize the radiological impacts from radioactive shipments are identified. The routes were determined on a comparison basis with categories of primary and secondary factors.

Data was from census information and New Mexico State Highway Dept. information.

Wentz said a great deal of misinformation has been during the public hearings. A 1981 consultation and cooperative agreement with DOE has been modified twice

Carrizozo Board of Education

Teachers rehired, budget of $1,392,000 proposed

Carrizozo Board of Education rehired teachers and heard about a proposed $1,392,185 budget for the 1990-91 school year at the regular meeting Tuesday.

After a lengthy closed session to discuss personnel, board members Wally Ferguson, Hoot Gibson, Eugenia Vega, Nick Serna and Nat Palomarez approved hiring the following certified staff: Sharon Baker for a two-year contract, Gretchen Becker for one year; Ron Becker for three years; Linda Caldwell for one; June Caster for three; Mercedes Epperson for two; Mike Gaines for three years; Robert Hemphill for three; Pat Holland for two; Nixie Holst for one; Gerald Jarrard for one; Donald Montes for two; Mariann Patterson for three; J.C. Richmond for one; Evelyn Schwartz for one; Mike Schwartz for one; Mary V. Shafer for one; Rosemary Wilmore for three and William Wise for one.

Everett Bannister was not rehired as a part of Reduction in Force (RIF), due to budgetary restraints.

Before the closed session, Carrizozo resident Sandra Morales contacted the board should retain teacher Richmond, because of his excellent teaching abilities. She said she heard Richmond was not to be rehired.

Richmond was among those teachers recommended by Supt. Danny Burnett to be rehired.

Burnett reported on the budget process which involves a budget committee that has invited the entire school staff to participate. After several meetings, a tentative budget of revenue and expenditures has been developed.

A budget does not mean the school has money to spend, rather it is a plan to spend money the school might get, based on a prediction of how many students will attend the school on the 40th day of the next school year.

Because of a decline in enrollment in the last three school years, Burnett said enrollment projected for 1990-91 will be 248.5 students, which translates to a loss of about $70-80,000 from last year. The loss is despite the increase in the school funding formula—from $1811 per unit (type of student instruction) to $1884—approved by the special session of the state legislature.

Burnett said enrollment has dropped about 10 students a year in the last three years, from 285 in 1987-88 to 263.5 in 1989-90.

Funding other than the state equalization guarantee, based on the number of students, comes from local revenues, which also experienced a decline, and federal sources such as forest reserve.

The main affect of the loss of enrollment, and thus loss of funding, will be on the teaching staff. One position will be RIFed and other positions will be reorganized to cover the program needs of students, Burnett said.

All personnel on salaried scheduled will receive a 2 percent average raise.

Burnett also recommended no salary increase for administrative staff and a "dramatic" increase in purchased services which includes speech, physical and occupational therapy, psychological evaluations and diagnostic services.

Other significant increases (from last year), of which the school has no control, included a 7 percent increase for energy and utilities; 8 percent increase for health insurance; 45.5 percent increase for workman's compensation and 70 percent increase for unemployment insurance.

The cafeteria did "really" well in 1980-90, Burnett said, which will allow the school to budget only $3500 of the $15,000 traditionally budgeted. Also because of increased participation in

Ft. Stanton closing opposed by parents

Ruth Hammond of Carrizozo appeared in federal court in Albuquerque Tuesday as one of a group of parents who testified in favor of keeping Fort Stanton Hospital and Training School and Los Lunas Hospital and Training School open as facilities for the developmentally disabled.

Testimony of the parents was presented before US District Judge Parker in the pending lawsuit filed by Protection and Advocacy Systems, Inc. (P&A) against the state. P&A is asking that both hospitals be closed and that the state provide community services for the clients now living at the two facilities.

P&A filed the federal lawsuit in July 1987. The actual trial began last October and has continued intermittently since then.

The state has attorneys representing their side of the case. The state's position is to protect the institutions and the state of New Mexico.

More than 120 parents and guardians of clients at Los Lunas and Fort Stanton have intervened in the lawsuit and are asking the court to not close the hospitals.

Kent Winchester is the attorney representing the clients and their parents and guardians. He is assisted by attorney Roberta Beyer and attorney Vernon Salvador.

Many parents and guardians insist community settings such as group homes are not appropriate for all clients. Several clients have been placed in community living arrangements and were returned to the institutions because the needs of the clients were not met in the community.

Hammond told Judge Parker that Fort Stanton Hospital and Training School provides a good home

Lincoln writer honored

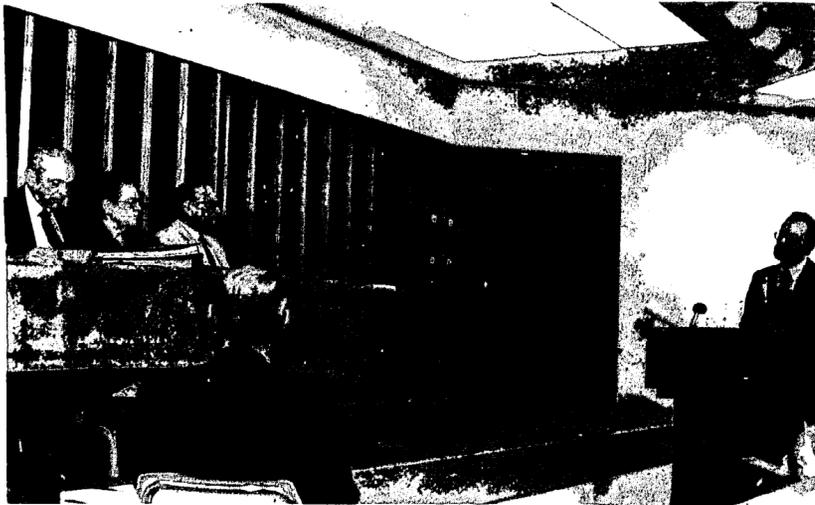

Lincoln author Albert Booky has been named membership in the Western Writers of America, Inc.

The Western Writers of America is a professional writers' organization with more than 600 members worldwide. WWA members produce and sell both fiction and non-fiction books and articles concerned with the American West.

Booky, a former history teacher at Hondo, is the author of two published Booky has been invited to attend the annual convention of the Western Writers of America, scheduled for June 24-28, in San Angelo, TX. Some 400 writers and editors from all over the world are expected at the event hosted by noted Texas author Elmer Kelton.

Firm to pay $50 million to clean up contamination

Houston-based Transwestern Pipe Co. has agreed to pay the US Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) a fine and will spend an estimated $50 million to clean up PCB contamination at the Corona compressor station and three others in New Mexico.

According to a report in last week's Albuquerque Journal, Transwestern agreed to pay a $375,000 fine for improper PCB disposal at the four sites, in a consent decree filed April 12 in US District Court in Albuquerque. Transwestern also agreed to clean up PCB-contaminated equipment, soil and disposal pits at its natural gas compressor stations near Corona, Laguna, Mountainair and Thoreau.

Under terms of the consent decree, Transwestern did not admit guilt. Rather, the company negotiated the settlement because the sites need to be cleaned up, and it was in the best interest of Transwestern and the federal government to proceed without a lawsuit, said company counsel Rockford Meyer of Houston, TX.

EPA and US Department of Justice claim Transwestern violated EPA requirements for PCB disposal, storage and recordkeeping under the federal Toxic Substance Control Act.

The company must hire an independent contractor to monitor the cleanup and must install a groundwater monitoring system to determine if the groundwater beneath the stations is contaminated.

The contamination at the stations is not a health threat to the general public because of the isolation of the compressors.

According to an EPA spokesman, the Transwestern case developed from another investigation in 1987 which involved PCB contamination by Texas Eastern Gas Pipeline Co. The firm was fined a $15 million civil penalty and cleanup costs were estimated at $400 million.

Transwestern was purchased by Enron Corp. from Texas Eastern Pipeline Co. in December 1984.

EPA officials believe the contamination in the Transwestern compressors came from the use of PCB laden lubricant in the gas turbine at the Corona compressor station between 1968 and 1972. Seal failures in the gas turbine allowed the oil to seep into the pipeline, contaminating downstream facilities.

EPA officials also said Transwestern disposed of fluids collected during pipeline cleaning—including PCB-contaminated condensate—in open pits.

Transwestern said the company stopped using PCBs in 1972. But when the seals failed, no one knew PCBs could cause contamination problems.

PCB, or polychlorinated biphenyls, are toxic chemicals which do not easily degrade the environment. Human exposure to PCBs can cause painful skin lesions called chloracne.

Cleanup at the four compressor stations is expected to take a year and a half.

Federal law and EPA regulations have banned the manufacture, processing, distribution and new use of PCB-contaminating equipment.

Hearing on WIPP procedure and now requires DOE to comply with all US Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC) standards and US EPA standards and regulations. Because DOE has had problems with the Rocky Flats plant, which were not made public until recently, New Mexico is not taking on faith that DOE will comply with safety regulations, Wentz said.

So the state is developing a number of transportation safety programs, including independent inspection of trucks before leaving the generation sites. Trucks and containers will be inspected mechanically and radiologically before leaving the site. New Mexico EID and the Environmental Evaluation Group (EEG) have authority to inspect based on waste acceptance criteria which limit and require records of the type and radioactivity of the wastes being shipped. Periodic checks of shipments will be done to see if DOE is complying, Wentz added.

A driver audit program will make checks of the Donn Trucking Company (contractor for the Tru-Pac transports) facilities to check records and certification of drivers and training programs.

Development of criteria for safe parking areas for the trucks when making stops for fuel, food and during inclement weather and other emergencies will be established. According to the EEG a large portion of the radiation dose will be to people at the stopping places.

Donn Trucking Company was selected by request for proposals. It will transport waste on a mileage based fixed price, giving no incentives for hurried movement or speeding. Drivers will be randomly tested for drugs and must meet an age requirement and can be fired for a single moving violation or deviating from the established routes. Trucks will be tracked with a satellite system or with modular phones.

If an accident should occur, DOE is liable for any at WIPP or on route, regardless if New Mexico is at fault because of poor highway maintenance, Wentz said. By the Price-Anderson Act, a federal insurance policy will include coverage up to $7 billion per incident if an accident should occur which involves the release of radioactive materials.

If no radioactive materials are released, Donn Trucking will have a $5 million policy for damage to persons or property.

"DOE is pretty much on the hook, the state of New Mexico is covered," Wentz said.

As for response training of emergency personnel, DOE has trained about 1300 emergency responders in New Mexico to date. DOE also said it will train responders along any designated route in New Mexico. A medical emergency course which focused on radiological emergencies was taught at five New Mexico hospitals last year and one is scheduled this year also.

"There are some problems," Wentz said about the Tru-Pac containers. New Mexico will not allow DOE to use the containers until NRC gives final approval. The containers are made of three layers of steel and the entire trailer with the containers weighs about 79,000 pounds. Because of the weight of the containers and possible radioactive exposure for anyone along the routes, Brogan used computer programs to analyze the best routes based on these and other data.

Most of the persons who testified and commented to EIB members Blakley, McClure and Walker about the exposure of radiation to those who live along the proposed routes. Since US 285 goes directly through the cities of Roswell and Artesia, some were worried about a loss of property values.

Blakley was concerned about health risks, and how individuals exposed to radiation could have proof of exposure in order to file a claim. Wentz said it would be like any other claim which carries the burden of proof on the citizens or community affected. If any radioactive releases occur at an accident, health experts will document such a release.

Other concerns were about the training for hospital emergency personnel and the levels of radioactivity of the wastes.

Some of the wastes will be low level enough that personnel at the generation sites will be able to load the materials on the trucks directly, other materials will be radioactive enough to require handling remotely, or with a robot.

Currently plans to open the WIPP site has stalled because of land transfer between DOE and the Bureau of Land Management. Wentz said Congress will not act on the withdrawal bill until DOE completes all prerequisite studies. Since it is an election year, Congress plans to adjourn in October to allow congressmen to campaign, which will set the withdrawal bill until the next session.

Also a number of public interest groups have threatened to initiate lawsuits, which might delay opening again.

Because of all these factors, Wentz said WIPP will not open until some time next year at the earliest.

During the portion of the hearing concerning routes, Dr. Brogan explained his reasons for selecting the preferred routes.

During the selection process, alternative routes were reviewed.

Two alternative routes proposed to bring waste from the north, which will comprise the vast majority of shipments to WIPP, down I-25 to US 380 at San Antonio east to Roswell through Carrizozo, Capitan, Lincoln and Hondo. Another alternative proposed to bring waste east on US 380 to Carrizozo, turn south on US 54 to US 82 near Alamogordo. This alternative was definitely deleted because of the tunnel on US 82.

Two western alternative routes also would bring waste on US 380 through Carrizozo, but at least one of these was totally thrown out because of a route on US 82. And two alternative routes from Los Alamos also included US 380 through Carrizozo. One would take waste on through US 380 through Capitan and other towns east.

Brogan said most of the alternative routes were deleted because of the conditions of the highways and other factors, including accessibility to truck stops and repair shops.

Wentz did say some alternative routes could be considered at a later date if those routes are improved; however, the federal government is cutting back its funding to New Mexico for highway improvements.

During the 25-year life span proposed for WIPP, it is estimated 17,714 shipments will come from the northern routes; 1,049 from the west, 6,297 from the east, 2,640 from the south and 2,166 from Los Alamos.

One person commenting at the hearing said the entire process will be paid for by the taxpayers. He was concerned about expensive training for emergency personnel which might never be utilized.

It is estimated an accident is very improbable. Opening date for WIPP to take wastes after the testing phase is summer 1994.

DOE will meet with representatives from seven affected states in San Diego this week to send message to Congress that more money is needed to improve the WIPP designated routes.

The Roswell hearing concluded the open meetings for public input. However, anyone with testimony or comments may send written copies within 30 days to the EID office of the EIB, Harold Runnels Bldg, Room S. 4100, 1190 St. Francis Drive, Santa Fe, NM 87503.

FmHA election for county committee

The Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) is accepting nominations for county committee elections for Lincoln County.

This notice is issued to inform eligible voters of the right to nominate candidates by petition. Copies of the petition and instructions on its completion can be obtained from any local FmHA office.

Persons nominated should have an interest in a farm as an owner, tenant, or sharecropper with the county or area in which activities of the county or area committee are carried out. They must be citizens of the United States or aliens lawfully admitted to the United States for permanent residence, and be well qualified for committee work. Spouses of those persons who meet the eligibility criteria are also eligible for nomination for election to the county committee. Nominations must be received in the Ruidoso, NM, County Office located at 1096 Mechem Drive in the Ruidoso, Financial Center Building, no later than May 21.

Perry is the father of graduating senior Tennie Trolinger and a minister of Four-Square Church in Capitan. Also presented by the senior class was the itinerary for the senior trip. Similar to last year's trip, the seniors will travel to California on May 28. While there they will visit Universal Studios and eat at the Hard Rock Cafe in Los Angeles. They also will tour Knotts' Berry Farm, Catalina Island (by ship), eat pizza and play at the beach.

The final night of the trip, the seniors will travel to Disneyland for an all-night party at the Disneyland Grad Nite. After breakfast Friday, June 1, they will board their plane for the trip back to Albuquerque.

Senior sponsor Hemphill said 21 of the 26 seniors have elected to go on the trip, although some have not yet reached the 80 percent goal set by the class. No student was not allowed to go on the trip, Hemphill added. The six who are not going chose to do so for various reasons.

So far the seniors have collected about $9000 of the $9300 needed for the trip. The money will cover all expenses except extra items purchased by students on the trip.

the cafeteria, the price of lunches will not be raised.

Even though the FFA team anticipates a trip to the national contests in Kansas City, Burnett said the non-instructional student support budget will decrease by $2000.

Transportation will be decreased, but the school does not get funds for the buses, rather it acts as a fiscal administrator to distribute funds to bus contractors.

An estimated $1,356,918 is budgeted for operation in 1990-91 with an emergency fund of $35,267, which is 2.6 percent of the budget and falls within public school guidelines provided by the State Dept. of Education. The total estimated budget is $1,392,185, if enrollment meets the projected figure.

"This is a plan to spend money," Burnett said. The plan can be modified. However, the finalized budget must be sent to Santa Fe by May 10. At least one more board meeting will be scheduled to finalize the budget.

"It's like pulling rabbits out of a hat," Burnett said.

The board also approved Kelly Racher as 1990 valedictorian and Connie Najjar as salutatorian, based on class rank and hard work. Based on a request from Najjar, class president, Dr. Milton Garrett will be graduation speaker and Harold Perry will be baccalaureate speaker.

Garrett is a professor, administrator and internal management consultant at University of New Mexico. Garrett has reputation of being an advocate for change, management model and a good teacher. A community volunteer for various civic groups and projects, Garrett is also known as an excellent speaker.

Los Lunas provides services for clients of all ages from infants to older adults with a range of mental and physical handicaps.

Even though the testimony presented by parents was very emotional, P&A attorneys kept asking if the parents would agree to community settings if adequate services were available in communities. The parents testified they want their children to remain in the state hospitals.

An expert witness for P&A had previously testified that all handicapped people can work at jobs if the handicapped person is capable of moving even one finger one inch. One parent told P&A attorneys, "That is fantasy."

Another parent was scheduled to testify Wednesday and Winchester said an expert witness will testify later this month on behalf of the clients and their parents and guardians.

The state will present its case next week.

● In a more sensible social era, to remark that someone was a "discriminating person" was a form of high praise. It meant that person was one of discernment, judgment and distinction. It meant he had good taste and refinement. In today's less sensible society it means just the opposite. The word's meaning today is as obscene as the word "gay." It is only used, it appears, to describe an evil person who commits the horror of practicing racial discrimination or discrimination against women or discrimination against the physically handicapped.

● Everybody practices discrimination, and no laws are going to change that pattern. Today we're hung up with the idea of giving job preference to blacks, Hispanics, Asians and any other racial minority large enough to hold a protest rally or camp out in front of the US Capitol. It has become so apparent that the less-than-gutsy white race is discriminating against itself economically, politically, socially and morally that one astute observer was prompted to confess that the person today with the greatest chance of success "is black, uneducated, unskilled and lazy." The pearls of American culture are being tossed at the feet of such people today.

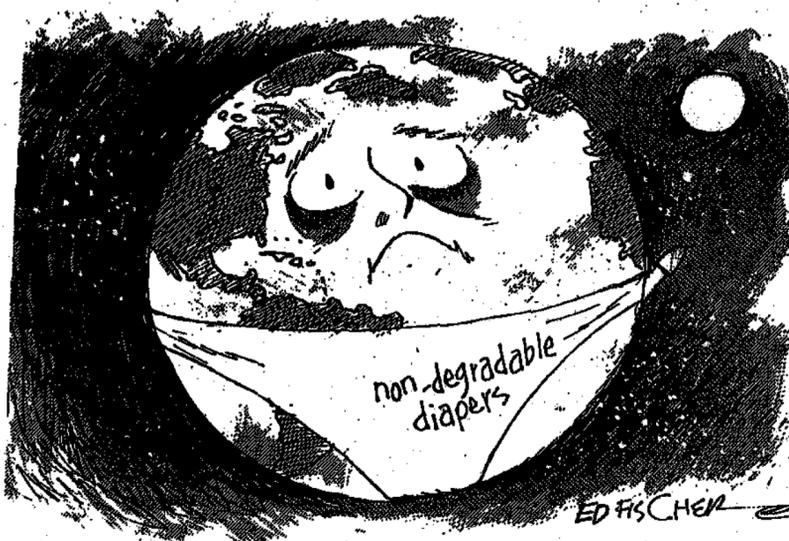

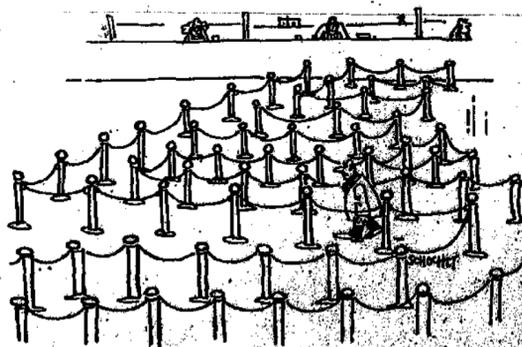

● Discrimination in itself is a commendable virtue. A girl practices discrimination when she chooses to marry one man rather than another. Business discriminates against the unskilled by hiring the skilled laborer. The family that buys a Datsun has discriminated against General Motors. When the United States government set up import quotas and imposes tariffs it is discriminating against foreign producers and political regimes. Catholics discriminate against Protestants, and vice versa. The Christian and the cannibal haven't reconciled their differences, either. When we ship 500,000 tons of wheat to China, American housewives have been discriminated against. I know some bourbon drinkers who wouldn't be caught in the same social gathering with a confirmed scotch drinker.

● Like you, I practice discrimination. I choose my friends and associates on whatever basis I please—not in conformance with rules laid down by sophomaniacs in congress. Racial minorities are entitled to political and economic equality in this country, and that doesn't include special privileges they currently enjoy. Political and economic equality doesn't give the black, yellow, red or people of whatever skin hue any special right to work for me or to be invited to dinner at my house. Nor is it any reason for me to drink, eat or associate with them. I happen to have a preference for the white race because I belong to it. I am not ashamed of being white. I will not apologize for it, in spite of the fact that we have our share of knotheads, bunglers and bums. In spite of many mistakes, the white race has been responsible for most of the progress we enjoy, and for all of its democratic processes. It has brought blacks, browns, yellow and pinks, kicking and screaming in protest, right along with it. When the anointed minorities whine about a lack of social justice in this country, they forget that while the white man may not have invented it, he has done more to implement and promote social justice than all the combined "colors" of the world.

● There are innumerable ways by which a person can achieve the dubious honor of being a damned fool, and this passion for making minorities God's chosen people is one of them. When all the blacks are bank presidents, all Hispanics are in congress, the Japanese and Chinese are the top business executives, and the Indians have been given the country it claims was stolen from them, I still won't have one as a guest in my house unless I like him personally and unless he has had a bath within the last week.

● Discrimination lawsuits are escalating. This was inevitable, considering that lawyers make up about 25 percent of state legislatures and the US Congress. So, lawyers make the laws. And, like other people, they look after their own interests by supporting programs that result in profitable lawsuits. Already, Americans are paying out hundreds of millions of dollars a year to lawyers to defend themselves against discrimination lawsuits. This is why the United States has more lawyers than all the other nations of the world put together. Which is why a University of Texas finance professor has proposed boosting the gross national product by banning the production of new lawyers. In an issue of the Texas Business Review, Professor Stephen P. Magee proposes "a constitutional amendment which would prohibit the creation of new lawyers." Such a proposal is patently discriminatory. But it does prove my point: discrimination is a great idea!

Some had predicted Gov. Garrey Carruthers would call the session to deal with soaring workers' compensation rates as early as next month. But they overlooked the fact that several members of the House will be involved in primary election battles at that time. There would be no surer way for Carruthers to get off on the wrong foot with lawmakers in the special session than to interrupt their campaigning.

The session will be called sometime after the June 5 primary. The date will depend on when Carruthers and the legislative leadership feel they are close enough to agreement on needed changes to the workers' comp act. The first special session of the year dealt with several topics and ended in four days. This session will be limited to only one topic so could end even sooner if it is possible to get all the affected interests together.

Workers' comp is not an easy subject, however. There are too many oxes to be gored. At stake are interests of employers, employees, the medical profession, trial lawyers, the insurance industry and labor unions. Carruthers says all the studying of the subject has already been done. "There is little we don't know about workers' comp," he explains. "Our task now is to discover the bill that a majority of lawmakers can support. We don't have to reach consensus and we never will," the governor says. "All we need is a majority."

Carruthers and House Speaker Raymond Sanchez have indicated their willingness to roll up their sleeves and try to get an agreement pounded out. They have worked closely all year.

But, not so, with Senate President Pro Tem Manny Aragon. The Albuquerque Democrat is quoted as saying, "I hope Carruthers knows what he is talking about better than last time. I don't think this man has the intelligence or political ability to put together a special session on workers' comp." So much for diplomacy.

Aragon is upset with Carruthers for vetoing an increase in the auto excise tax after the governor had said the extra money was needed for next fiscal year's budget. It put most Democrats in the position of having to vote for another tax increase at the request of Carruthers. The governor then made himself look good by vetoing the measure. Aragon called that "game-playing."

Carruthers lost some credibility with Democrats because of his veto but he sorely needed to take the action in order to partially redeem himself with fellow Republicans after successfully advocating a quarter-cent gross receipts tax increase.

Some had said Carruthers' close association with Albuquerque car dealer Ken Johns and Las Cruces car dealer Frank Borman would lead to the governor's veto. But fence-mending in his own party was probably the prime cause. Calling the special session to address worker's comp costs will also help him with Republicans statewide.

Forging agreement on the controversial workers' comp issue will be aggravated by the necessity of meeting in temporary quarters once again. It has to be chalked up to bad luck that two special sessions had to be called in the year that found lawmakers homeless. Once again House and Senate members will be without offices and separated from each other by about three blocks. Physical conditions argue strongly that all agreements be made prior to a session.

Lack of sufficient lodging is another problem lawmakers will face. The Capital City's hoteliers are not exactly thrilled with the additional business. Nearly every downtown hotel had to bump guests and, in some cases, meetings and conventions had to be cancelled the last time lawmakers came to town in the summer. That was in July of 1987. Some of those who lost their bookings are still mad. If the Santa Fe lodging industry had its way, lawmakers would take a day trip to Santa Fe, attend to their business and leave before sundown.

A one-day session would also be most welcome to the beleaguered Legislative Council Service. Moving its offices plus staffing two special sessions, all within three months of ending a regular session, should be enough to make some of them a bit crazy.

But don't plan on any one-day sessions. It'll take longer.

National effort to protect soil, water resources

Emphasizing everyone's role in protecting the soil and water resources for future generations, the Upper Hondo and Carrizozo Soil and Water Conservation Districts are encouraging local churches, organizations and individuals to join the nationwide observance of Soil and Water Stewardship Week April 29-May 6.

Local districts, which work throughout the year on soil and water conservation measures, are providing literature that highlight man's responsibility to be active stewards of the nation's soil and water resources. The districts can also provide assistance to those planning celebrations for the 20th anniversary of Earth Day on April 22.

Both districts feel that everyone needs to learn about the impact of their actions and the actions of those around us.

Since 1955, the National Association of Conservation Districts has sponsored Soil and Water Stewardship Week, in cooperation with nearly 3,000 local districts nationwide, as one way to emphasize the importance of good stewardship of basic soil and water resources. Materials especially designed to convey the 1980 theme, "Citizens of All Creation," are being distributed by Carrizozo and Upper Hondo districts, and may be obtained by calling the district office during business hours. Upper Hondo office is located on Highway 380 West, Capitlan, phone 354-2220; Carrizozo office is in the Lincoln County Courthouse annex, phone 648-2941.

DENNIS WEAVER, television and film star, will serve as grand marshal of the Falls 'n' Trails Day Parade, Saturday, May 28 in Las Vegas, NM.

What's good about Lincoln County?

EDITOR—We're making plans regarding moving to the Lincoln County area and would like to know how much a year's mail-subscription to the NEWS would be. Also, perhaps your readers would enjoy helping us with a question we have...

"What makes Lincoln County a good place to live?" We need advice on the things that we couldn't learn in a week's visit... things that would make Lincoln County a better choice for a new home than two other counties we're considering. (Employment is not a factor—as an artist and author we take our jobs with us.)

Anybody who can give us advice or comments, please write us at 2310 East 101st Ave., Crown Point, Indiana 46307.

INTOXICATING FACTS

Leslie Morgan in teen magazine "17" writes that in El Salvador your first drunk driving offence could be your last. The reported penalty there for boozing and cruising is execution by firing squad. Things aren't quite so harsh in the US yet, says Morgan. But laws are getting tougher, especially for teenagers. Below, some reasons (besides the obvious ones) to avoid driving drunk:

Teenagers in Maine caught behind the wheel with a blood alcohol level of .02 percent (one to two beers) lose their license for a year.

Orange County, CA teenage drunk drivers can be required to tour the morgue and view autopsies of people who died of alcohol and drug related deaths.

Judges in 16 states can now require convicted drunk drivers to install an electronic device hooked to a breathalyzer in their cars that prevents them from driving if they've been drinking.

In New York if you're under 21 and caught even possessing alcohol you can be fined $50.

In some Illinois suburbs, police now take down license plate numbers of cars parked outside parties where there's underage drinking going on, then send a letter to the car's owner (usually a parent) saying: "Your vehicle was parked outside a known underage drinking party."

OVER THE YEARS

Last month marked 18 years that I have written this column. It seemed like only yesterday that then editor/publisher Paul Payton tapped me on the shoulder to ask me if I would do a column. Over the years I have mentioned teenage alcohol use and abuse.

Twice I was snubbed, not by drinking teens, but by their parents. From the column I branched out to many areas of reporting, to taking pictures, developing the film and printing the pictures. One time a group of drinking teens mocked me with their beer bottles. I reached for my camera and they disappeared like magic. Another time I received an anonymous phone call: I would get hurt if I didn't quit bringing up the topic of teen drinking.

Eighteen years ago when I started writing this column, these teens were toddlers and eventually teenagers. Now some have toddlers of their own. When these teenagers are 13 years old I will still have the same opinion about underage booze users. Help them learn the facts about alcohol abuse.

MINORS LOITERING

Last month the Rio Grande Sun reported that owners of the Casa Nova Bar in Alcalde were cited for eight misdemeanor counts of minors loitering. Parents tipped off police about the dance. Tickets had been sold at Pojoque and Espanola High Schools.

CONTRIBUTING TO DELINQUENCY

Last month Robert Chavez, 26, pleaded no contest in Espanola Municipal Court to contributing to the delinquency of minor counts and received four weekends in jail and a year's probation. According to the court complaint, Chavez purchased a case of Budweiser beer and a fifth of Jack Daniels whiskey for the consumption of five high school-age youths.

The youths skipped school and went to Chavez' mobile home during the afternoon. Other charges are pending. A 14-year-old girl apparently passed out from drinking and claimed she was raped while passed out.

DON'T COVER UP

How many of us are enablers?

Drug treatment centers say that "enabling" by parents and others allows abuse to continue. By failing to insist that children suffer the consequences of their drug use (that includes beer, folks), adults enable them to continue to use. Treatment personnel say this kind of behavior goes on every day at home, in school and in the community, by people who only want to help.

Examples of cover-ups:

A 14-year-old boy comes home drunk on a school night and throws up on the living room rug. His mother cleans up the rug and the boy and gets him to bed before his father comes home and finds out. In the morning, when the boy is too hung over to go to school, his mother calls the school and says her son is "sick."

A 15-year-old girl is ordered to appear in court to answer charges that she was selling marijuana in school. Her mother intercepts the letter, does not confront her daughter and appears in court herself, saying she has put her daughter in treatment. The girl is getting stoned at school.

A 12-year-old girl rarely appears for her science class after lunch because she is high, hiding in the restroom. The teacher talks to her: "You're going to get yourself in trouble. I like you, so I'm not marking you absent, but you might think about showing up once in a while."

A police officer stops a 16-year-old boy for driving recklessly about midnight on a Saturday and asks him to get out of the car. The boy is drunk and cannot, so he tells the officer he has torn ligaments in his knee and can't stand. The officer says "Ok, Ok, drive home carefully." Have we been enablers?

CRACKING DOWN

Cracking down on perpetrators of violations of the code prohibiting the use or possession of drugs on school property, Espanola Junior High Principal Art Salazar sent two youths to the city jail to await pickup by their parents. Sheriff's report

Lincoln County Sheriff's officers responded to a fatal accident at midnight Tuesday, April 17 on Highway 70 in the Hondo Valley.

According to sheriff James McSwane, Danny M. Lovato, 27, and his wife Norma C. Lovato, 29, both of La Luz, were driving west on Highway 70 when a horse ran across the road in front of them. Unable to avoid a collision, Lovato hit the horse, killing it and ejecting Norma.

Deputy medical examiner Dave Pfeiffer pronounced Norma Lovato dead at the scene, and Danny was transported to Lincoln County Medical Center (LCMC). According to state police report, no seat belt was used, but it would not have prevented the fatality.

Sheriff's officials and the Lincoln County Sheriff's Posse were also busy last week when six-year old Jeremy Hill of Cloudercroft strayed from his camp at Three Rivers Campground Wednesday, April 11. According to Jeremy's mother, Jan Hill, Jeremy and a group of older boys went exploring just a short distance from the camp when Jeremy became separated.

When he did not return with the older boys, Jan, the boys and other adults camping with the group went to look for Jeremy. After 45 minutes of searching, Jan went to a nearby ranch house and called the Lincoln County Sheriff's office.

Jan said they were about ready to leave the campground to return home in Cloudercroft when Jeremy was separated.

White Mountain Search and Rescue, the posse, state police and several Lincoln County Emergency Medical Services personnel arrived at the scene and began a search. About 13 posse members covered a large area around the campground on horseback. Sheriff McSwane said they rode from 10 p.m. to 3 a.m. but called off the search when the boy was not found.

About 9 a.m. the next morning (Thursday, April 12) Jeremy came back to the campground on his own. He said he saw a tent that looked like the one he stayed in with the family.

He had spent the night under a tree, he said. He was wearing only a short sleeved t-shirt, jeans and sneakers.

His mother attributed his ability to withstand the middle-30s temperatures to being raised in the mountains.

The search also involved the Alamogordo and Search and Rescue at least one helicopter.

Other sheriff's activities include:

—April 8, at 8:53 p.m. Crossroads Motel in Carrizozo called about a prowler. The report was referred to Carrizozo Police.

—April 4, at 8:28 p.m. three small fires were reported on Highway 70. Hondo Volunteer Fire Dept. (VFD) responded but could not locate the fires.

April 5, at 7:44 a.m. a New Mexico Highway Dept. employee found an illegal dumping in the Hondo area. An officer responded.

April 6, at 8:45 p.m. a complaint was made of a drunk man at Wright's Trailer Park in Capitan. The man was reportedly causing a disturbance. The incident was referred to Capitan PD.

At 10:29 p.m. New Mexico State Police responded to a report of horses on Highway 70 near the border of the Mescalero Reservation.

PROPERTY TAXES DUE

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that 1989 Property Taxes became due November 10, 1989 and will become delinquent December 11, 1989. Taxes may be paid in full by December 10, 1989, or in two equal installments, with the second half becoming due April 10, 1990 and delinquent if not paid by May 10, 1990.

Pursuant to Section 7-31-50 of the New Mexico Property Tax Code, a minimum penalty of five dollars ($5.00) or one percent per month must be charged on all delinquent taxes, and pursuant to Section 7-31-49, one percent per month must be collected on all delinquent accounts.

Pursuant to Section 7-38-53, property taxes are the personal obligation of the owner of the property and the sale or transfer of property within that tax year does not relieve the former owner of personal liability for property taxes in that year. Failure to receive a bill is not sufficient cause to ask to have penalty and interest waived.

Owners of personal property, such as mobile homes or office equipment, who have allowed taxes to become delinquent more than two years will be served with a demand warrant for collection of these delinquent taxes, pursuant to Section 7-38-53 of New Mexico statutes Annotated 1978, if delinquent taxes are not paid in full by May 10, 1990.

If you have questions concerning your property taxes, please contact the Lincoln County Treasurer's Office at 505/648-2397 or 505/648-2525.

NOTICE OF BOND SALE $300,000 CORONA MUNICIPAL SCHOOL DISTRICT NO. 13 COUNTIES OF LINCOLN, TORRANCE AND SOCORRO GENERAL OBLIGATION BONDS SERIES: May 1, 1990

PUBLIC NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Board of Education of Corona Municipal School District No. 13, Counties of Lincoln, Torrance and Socorro, New Mexico (the "Board" and the "District" respectively) will receive and review sealed bids for purchase of the District General Obligation School Building Bonds, in the aggregate principal amount of $300,000 at the Administration Building, Corona, New Mexico, on April 24, 1990, at 10:00 a.m., prevailing Mountain Time. At said meeting, the Board will publicly discuss and consider such bids, award such bonds, adopt a bond resolution and consider such other matters as may properly come before such Board, provided, however, that a satisfactory price be obtained for the bonds.

DESCRIPTION OF BONDS Said bonds will be dated May 1, 1990, will be issued as fully registered bonds in the denomination of $5,000 each or any integral multiple thereof and will mature on May 1 in each of the following years and in the principal amounts as follows:

Table with 2 columns: Date Maturing, Principal Amounts. Rows include years from 1991 to 2002 with corresponding principal amounts.

Both principal and interest on the bonds will be payable in lawful money of the United States of America, and the principal of each bond will be payable at the principal office of the paying agent/registrars to be selected by the Board. The interest on each bond shall be payable by check or draft mailed to the respective registered owners thereof at the address as it appears on the registration books of said paying agent/registrars or any successor paying agent/registrars, or by such other customary banking arrangements acceptable to the paying agent/registrars and the person to whom interest is to be paid; provided, however, that such person shall bear all risk and expense of such other customary banking arrangements. Said issue constitutes all of the bonds which were authorized at an election held on March 20, 1990 and are for the purpose of erecting, remodeling, making additions to and furnishing school buildings or purchasing or improving school grounds, or any combination of these purposes, and will constitute general obligation bonds of the District, payable from general taxes which may be levied without limitation as to rate or amount.

REDEMPTION The bonds are not subject to redemption prior to their stated maturity.

QUALIFIED TAX EXEMPT OBLIGATIONS The District intends to designate the bonds as "QUALIFIED TAX EXEMPT OBLIGATIONS" for purposes of Section 265 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended (the "Code"). Section 265 of the Code permits the designation of governmental bonds such as these bonds as qualified tax exempt obligations, based upon certain representations made hereinbelow:

- (a) The bonds are not private activity bonds;
(b) The District does not reasonably expect to issue qualified tax exempt obligations in an aggregate principal amount exceeding $10,000,000 during calendar year 1990; and
(c) The District will not designate more than $10,000,000 in aggregate principal amount of qualified tax exempt bonds during calendar year 1990.

INTEREST RATE Interest on said bonds will be payable on May 1, 1991, and semi-annually thereafter on November 1 and May 1 of each year until maturity.

The maximum net effective interest rate permitted on said bonds is twelve percent (12%); provided, however, that if the net effective interest rate on such bonds is greater than ten percent (10%) per annum (based on the actual price to be paid to the District for said bonds, calculated as maturity according to the standard tables of bond values), such rate must be approved in writing by the New Mexico State Board of Finance, and the District may not issue the bonds before such approval is given. It is permissible to bid different or split rates of interest, provided, however, that: (1) no bid shall specify more than one interest rate for each maturity;

(2) the maximum interest rate permitted is twelve percent (12%) per annum;
(3) each interest rate specified must be stated in a multiple of one-eighth (1/8) or one-twentieth (1/20) of one percent (1%) per annum; and
(4) the maximum interest rate specified may exceed the minimum interest rate specified by no more than two percent (2%).

BIDS Bidders are required to submit a bid specifying (a) the lowest rate or rates of interest and premium, if any, at which such bidder will purchase such bonds. For informational purposes only, each bidder is requested to specify (b) the total net interest cost to the District in dollars and cents and (c) the net effective interest rate in a stated percentage. Proposals should be enclosed in a sealed envelope endorsed "BID FOR GENERAL OBLIGATION SCHOOL BUILDING BONDS OF CORONA MUNICIPAL SCHOOL DISTRICT NO. 13, COUNTIES OF LINCOLN, TORRANCE AND SOCORRO, NEW MEXICO", addressed as follows: CORONA MUNICIPAL SCHOOL DISTRICT NO. 13, ADMINISTRATIVE OFFICE, P.O. BOX 258, CORONA, NEW MEXICO 88318, ATTENTION: SECRETARY, BOARD OF EDUCATION. Only unconditional bids will be considered. Bids should be submitted on the official bid form which may be obtained from the District's financial consultant (see "INFORMATION" which appears hereafter).

BASIS OF AWARD Said bonds will be awarded to the best bidder considering the interest rate or rates specified and the premium offered, if any, and subject to the right of the Board to reject any and all bids and re-advertise. The best bid will be determined by deducting the amount of the premium bid, if any, from the total amount of interest which the District would be required to pay from the date of the bonds to the respective maturity dates at the rate or rates specified in the proposal and said bonds will be awarded on the basis of the lowest net interest cost to the District. The purchaser must pay accrued interest from the date of the bonds to the date of delivery. The bonds will not be sold for less than par plus accrued interest. The District reserves the privilege of waiving any irregularity or informality in any bid.

GOOD FAITH DEPOSIT All bids shall be sealed and, except the bid of the State of New Mexico, if one is received, shall be accompanied by a good faith deposit of not less than $5,000 (i.e., two percent (2%) of the principal amount of the bonds) in cash or by cashier's or treasurer's check, or by certified check drawn on a solvent commercial bank or trust company in the United States of America and payable to "Corona Municipal School District No. 13." Such good faith check shall be returned if the bid is not accepted. If the successful bidder shall fail or neglect to complete the purchase of said bonds within forty-five (45) days following the acceptance of the bid or within ten (10) days after the bonds are offered for delivery, whichever is later, the amount of the deposit shall be forfeited to the District as liquidated damages and, in that event, the Board may accept the bid of the one making the next best bid. If all bids are rejected, the Board shall re-advertise said bonds for sale in the same manner as herein provided for the original advertisement. If there be two or more equal bids and such bids are the best bids received and for not less than par and accrued interest, the Board shall determine which bid shall be accepted.

TIME OF AWARD AND DELIVERY The Board will take action awarding the bonds or rejecting all bids not later than 24 hours after the expiration of the time herein prescribed for the receipt of the bids. Delivery of the bonds will be made to the successful bidder at some bank or trust company in Albuquerque, New Mexico or elsewhere at its request and at its expense, within 60 days of the acceptance of the bid. If for any reason delivery cannot be made within 60 days, the successful bidder shall have the right to purchase said bonds during the succeeding 30 days upon the same terms, or at the request of the successful bidder, during said succeeding 30 days, the good faith deposit will be returned and such bidder shall be relieved of any further obligation. The successful bidder shall make final payment for said bonds with Federal Reserve Funds or other funds acceptable to the District for immediate and unconditional credit to the account of the District. It is anticipated that the delivery of the bonds will be on or about May 30, 1990.

INFORMATION Information concerning the bonds, including the District's Official Statement may be obtained from the District's Financial Consultant, Quinn Southwest, 2925 San Pedro N.E., Suite 1A, Albuquerque, New Mexico 87110 (Telephone (505) 889-7777). The Official Statement is deemed final by the District for purposes of SEC Rule 15C2-12(b) (1) (15 CFR & 240.15C2-12 (b) (1) except for the omission of the following information: the offering price(s), interest rate(s), selling commission, aggregate principal amount, principal amount per maturity, delivery dates, any other terms or provisions required by an issuer of such securities to be specified in a competitive bid, ratings, other terms of the securities depending on such matters, and the identity of the underwriter(s).

TRANSCRIPT, PRINTED BONDS AND LEGAL OPINIONS The written approval of the New Mexico Attorney General of said bonds as to form and legality will be supplied. The legality of the bonds, in addition, will be approved by Simons, Cuddy & Friedman, Attorneys at Law, Santa Fe, New Mexico 87502, ("Bond Counsel"), whose opinion approving the legality of the bonds will be furnished to the successful bidder at no cost to the successful bidder. The opinion will state in substance that the issue of the bonds in the amount aforesaid is valid and legally binding upon the District, that all of the taxable property in the District is subject to the levy of a tax to pay the same without limitation of rate or amount, that interest on the bonds is excludable from gross income for purposes of federal income tax, and that the District has properly designated such bonds as "Qualified Tax Exempt Obligations." The successful bidder (without cost to such bidder) will also be furnished with the printed bonds (with the opinion of Bond Counsel printed thereon), and a complete transcript of the legal proceedings, including a no-litigation certificate transcript of the legal proceedings, including a no-litigation certificate which will state that no litigation is pending to the knowledge of the signer or signers thereof as of the date of the delivery of the bonds affecting their validity or the levy or collection of such taxes for their payment.

CUSIP NUMBERS CUSIP identification numbers may be typed or printed on the bonds, but neither the failure to provide such number on any bond nor any error with respect thereto will constitute cause for failure or refusal by the purchaser thereof to accept delivery of and to pay for the bonds in accordance with the terms hereof. All expenses in relation to the CUSIP Service charge for the assignment of said numbers will be the responsibility of and will be paid for by the purchaser.

DATED at Corona, New Mexico this 21st day of March, 1990.
