Carrizozo homecoming Sept. 10-14

Carrizozo will be playing Ft. Sumner for its homecoming game on Sept. 14 at 7 p.m.

Throughout this week, homecoming celebrations will include theme days. Monday is Hat Day, and every student is encouraged to wear a hat to school. Freshmen initiation is on Tuesday, which is Paint the C Day. Wednesday is Simpson Day, when students will dress up as characters from TVs The Simpsons. Thursday, girls get ribbons tied to their shirts, and they are not allowed to talk to boys. If a boy can get a girl to talk to him, he captures her ribbon. The boy with the most ribbons at the end of the day wins a prize. This is named Mute Maiden's Madness.

At 8 that night, the bonfire will be held. Friday is Color Day, and it includes the pep assembly at 10 a.m., the homecoming parade at 1 p.m., and the game and crowning of the queen at 7 o'clock. Afterwards there will be a dance until 1 a.m.

Fly-in visitors get a taste of Lincoln County

By P. E. CHAVEZ

"We all like to fly. We like to see new people. We like to see new things." —Roy Bailey, Ontario, Canada, summing up the reason he and his fellow pilots board their airplanes and criss-cross the US and Mexico checking out the sights.

This time the plans include a stop in Carrizozo and a bus tour of points in historic Lincoln County. Bailey, in the real estate business, was one of 20 persons, including his wife, who flew into Carrizozo Municipal Airport on Tuesday. Mostly retired, the tourists were from Florida, Texas, Canada, North Carolina, Nevada, Nebraska and Kansas.

As each of the planes landed, the pilots and their passengers were welcomed by Carrizozo Mayor Cecilia Kuhnel and Chamber of Commerce president Dale Goad. Chamber members and airport personnel greeted the air travelers with coffee and sweets before they boarded a bus for a trip to nearby Valley of Fires Recreation Area, now under the administration of Bureau of Land Management.

Tour members each received a "goodie bag" filled with business brochures, chamber publications and the latest issue of the Lincoln County News established in 1905. As they headed for the lava park, local history buff Johnson Stearns told of Carrizozo's beginnings. Stearns, retired railroad and banker, told the group about small town living conditions and how the area came to be "cattle country."

Carrizozo eventually took the county seat status from Lincoln in 1909 due to the fact that the railroad was established in 1900. Controversy resulted in that decision. "The demise of the railroad" put the town in a gradual economic bind. Lacking a railroad payroll, Carrizozo now depends on other sources of revenue.

At the Malpais (Spanish word for badlands) the visitors were awed with the vast expanse of badlands. Located three miles northwest of Carrizozo, the area is one of the youngest and best preserved lava fields in the US. The visitors learned that geological and archeological evidence suggest an age of approximately 1,500 years, which now supports abundant plant and animal life.

A history bit included the story of a goat herder who built his cabin at the Malpais. Rumors have it that the cabin was also a moonshiner's distillery.

A whirlwind tour by bus to downtown Carrizozo included lunch, then back in the bus and an afternoon trip to Lincoln, which started as a little Hispanic farming community over a hundred years ago. When Lincoln County was created in 1869, La Placita was designated county seat, its name officially changed to Lincoln.

Betty Schreengost and Bob Hart, Lincoln residents, provided visitors with a presentation, a walking tour and more brochures. The group learned how two men formed a mercantile partnership and gained control of the county—politically and economically. The out-of-state visitors also learned that the resulting five day battle ruined the economy. Lawless elements were brought in to carry on the war.

The history-filled tourists boarded the bus and headed toward Carrizozo and their waiting Twin Comanche, Grumman Cheetah, Seneca II, Bonanza and Beech aircrafts. Time and weather did not permit sight-seeing at Capitan and White Oaks.

The nine planes headed back into the sky in a light rain. Twenty visitors to Carrizozo left the area educated in Lincoln County history, in which Billy the Kid played a minor role or a major role, depending on whose promotional brochure they read.

Next day's stop: Double Heart Ranch, near Reserve and the adventures of a working ranch—branding cows, trail rides by horse or wagon and western style dinner by campfire.

RC&D meeting to focus on Smokey Bear's 50th

The South Central Mountain Resource Conservation and Development (RC&D) Council will host a meeting at 9 a.m. Tuesday, Sept. 11 at the Lincoln County Fairground in Capitan.

An announcement concerning the future management of the Smokey Bear State Park will be made by Jim Norwick, director of the State Forestry and Resource Conservation Division, and Noe Villarreal of the State Parks and Recreation Division, Santa Fe.

"The whole purpose of the meeting is to kick off a campaign to focus a lot of attention to Smokey Bear and related activities," says Clem Weindorf, chairman of the RC&D Council. "We also hope to get a lot of community involvement to generate ideas that will result in some good, positive things for Capitan and the entire area."

Merle Glenn of the US Forest Service, will outline plans for the 50th birthday celebration in Smokey's hometown of Capitan. The event will draw national attention, and is planned for Aug. 9, 1994; however, national activities will occur throughout the year leading up to the celebration.

Dorothy Guck, a local resident, will give a historical view of Smokey and it is rumored that a special guest will make an appearance.

A great deal of enthusiasm and interest has already been generated and some good ideas have surfaced, such as a large statue of Smokey and even a fire fighting museum.

The meeting is open to the public and local people are especially encouraged to attend.

THE LAST OF 20 air travelers, interested in the Land of Enchantment, made a stop at Carrizozo Municipal Airport last Tuesday. Leaving behind their aircraft, they boarded a school bus and were educated in the geology of the Valley of Fires Recreation Area. In a visit to Lincoln they learned about the county's wild and crazy days.

Grizzlies win opener 9-7 over Laguna-Acoma

Carrizozo Grizzlies football team started its season with an exciting last-minute win over Laguna-Acoma Friday.

Winning with a score of 9-7, the Grizzlies played a scoreless game until the third quarter. Then on a 33-yard run by Chris Barela, the team scored its first touchdown. The extra points were missed.

Laguna-Acoma rallied for its first touchdown working the ball to the goal line and jumping for the point with a one-yard run. With an extra point, Laguna-Acoma was ahead with 3 minutes and 36 seconds left in the game.

Again the game was stalemated with the Grizzlies unable to move the ball and forced to punt, but no points were earned.

With just a bit over one minute left in the game, the ball came back to the Grizzlies. A 30-yard pass from LeeRoy Zamora to Guy Archuleta gave the Grizzlies some valuable turf and put them near the goal. The ball went out on the five-yard line and in three plays the team got down to the three yard line. An incomplete pass stopped the Grizzlies had no time outs.

On the fourth and one downs, Archuleta kicked a field goal on the 11 yard line, with only 17 seconds remaining on the clock.

Laguna-Acoma unable to move anywhere in 17 seconds, the game belonged to the Grizzlies.

Beginning lineup in the Laguna-Acoma game was: receiver Archuleta, back Nikko Chavez, back Rebel Sandoval, back Barela, line man Alfonso Lucero, back Heath Rickman, back James Silva, back LeeRoy Zamora, lineback and offensive lineback Justin Portillo and alternates Nathan Portillo and Brent Racher.

The Grizzlies will play Hatch on their home field beginning at 7:30 p.m. Friday, Sept. 7. Although Hatch was the team that cancelled its game with Laguna-Acoma, Holland was assured the Hatch team will be ready by Friday.

Grizzly Homecoming is set for Friday, Sept. 14, against Ft. Sumner.

Hiking sales tax may help the solid waste problem

Carrizozo Board of Trustees began the process of adding another 1/16 of one percent to the gross receipt taxes (sales tax) for an environmental special gross receipt tax.

Adoption of the ordinance to allow the tax will be considered at the Sept. 11 meeting, trustees learned at their last meeting Tuesday, Aug. 28.

The special tax will be earmarked and may eventually combine with similar taxes from all other Lincoln County municipalities to form a solid waste authority. If the cooperative plan now being considered by the municipalities succeeds, the authority may eventually take over all solid waste collection and perhaps have a landfill within the county.

Carrizozo town attorney Robert Beauvais told trustees

Dale LaMay, Patsy Vallejos, Gilbert Archuleta and mayor pro-tem Harold Garcia about plans in all the municipalities and the county to enact the special tax. Combined, the tax could generate an estimated $125,000 annually. The funds could then be utilized as collateral for revenue bonds.

Since the authority kind would be the first of its kind in the state, Beauvais predicted the state would be receptive to giving grants.

Another advantage to a solid waste authority would be uniform service and fees countywide. However, mandatory participation by all county residents will be required for the authority to succeed.

At the Carrizozo town meeting Garcia said the passage of the special gross receipt tax does not require or force the town to be part of the solid waste authority. The town is the only municipality in the county with a viable solid waste collection contract for more than six months. Ruidoso owns its solid waste collection, compaction and transportation system.

Garcia also said adoption of the special tax does not force the town to take any avenue. All funds raised by the special tax are returned to the town by the state.

Garcia noted a letter addressed to the county commissioners and signed by all county mayors, including Carrizozo Mayor Cecilia Kuhnel. The letter requested the commissioners keep the free dumpster collection system it proposed to abandon Sept. 7. Bowing to the pressure, commissioners voted to

White Oaks visitors increasing

More than 1200 visitors have registered at the White Oaks Schoolhouse Museum since August of 1989.

Twenty-five of the 50 states have signed in, along with visitors from England, Sweden, Taiwan, Chile, France, Ecuador, Switzerland, Canada, Belgium and Spain.

The increased awareness of the recently restored historical landmark is evident in the fact that while 100 visitors registered in August of 1989, August of 1990 brought 445 people through.

The schoolhouse now has four rooms that are rapidly filling up with memorabilia of the White Oaks of the early 20th century. It will remain open through September on weekends only.

CARRIZOZO'S CLAIM to fame may lie just three miles out of town, where erupting lava and volcanic explosions created a recreation area, Valley of Fires. Malpais was the name given to the lava flows that acted as barriers to early explorers and travelers. Shown are some of the 20 visitors in Carrizozo and Lincoln last Tuesday.

Capitan is saddened at the sudden death of Efron Montes. He was killed Sunday night in an automobile accident east of Capitan. We all convey our condolences to his family, and especially to his mother, Lucy Montes.

Tigers lose season opener to Eunice

A strong AA Eunice was too much for the young A Capitan Tigers and easily took the first season game with 28-0.

With an inexperienced team this first season as head coach James Fowler said the Tigers' offense was not good, with the backs not on time and defense trying to run coordinated, but still not there.

"It'll be mid-season before we'll be competitive," Fowler said.

The Tigers had a chance to see the Eunice team in a scrimmage against Cloudcroft the weekend before and found the Cardinals a tough group with lots of weight and experience.

Many of the Tigers are either young boys or older boys returning to football after a few years away from the game. Fowler said his freshman starting quarterback made mistakes. "We're going to improve," he predicted.

And the Tigers are still learning.

The next game is with Tatum, which was beaten by Jal last Friday. "They'll be tough," Fowler said. The Tatum game will be in that town, beginning at 7:30 p.m. The next home game will be with Texico on Sept. 14. Texico also is looking tough, having beaten AA Estancia Friday.

The beginning Tiger lineup in Friday's game was: quarterback Danny Seay, defensive corner back Damian Roybal, running back and corner backs Bobby

FORGOTTEN SONS

"We're the forgotten sons of Dona Ana County. Everything that comes in seems to favor the south. We just don't have any revenue. We need some industry." —Robert Duran, mayor of Hatch, N.M. Las Cruces Bulletin.

Hatch voters will be given the opportunity this month to decide whether or not they want a privately run prison located six miles west of the community. It doesn't have to go to the voters. No vote is required because the facility will be built utilizing revenue bonds which will be paid off from funds earned by the facility when it becomes operational. There will be no obligation to the village.

Hatch trustees have been negotiating with the Oklahoma-based company of PEC (Professional Equity Consultants) Enterprises, Inc., which predicts the prison will cost in excess of $25 million. The president of the firm says the facility will stabilize the Hatch economy. The area was targeted for many reasons, including the support services available in Las Cruces, which can supply the facility with educational and medical services.

The correctional facility will employ 175 workers and is expected to generate $2 million annually for the regional economy.

IT BUGS ME

I spent the summer battling mosquitoes, ants and flies. Not at the lake side near a mountain cabin.

Did you know that there are over 87,000 different fly species? Other fly facts: a fly's vision is sharp only 24 to 36 inches. . . one successful hatch can be well over 2 million. . . one season can breed as much as 25 generations. . . in China campaigns were organized to reduce and possibly eliminate the fly population. People devoted a few minutes of their day to swatting or killing flies.—from package information on Flyshooter, the original bug gun.

Time magazine had an article with a few things to keep in mind the next time "ants show up in the potato salad."

Twenty years of collaborative field and laboratory studies by Bert Holldobler and Edward O. Wilson resulted in a book, "The Ants." Among their finding: Ants are the most dominant social insect in the world, found almost everywhere except in the polar regions. . . ants turn more soil than earthworms; they prune, weed and eat most of the earth's carrion. . . ants have arranged their social life so that the unit of survival is the colony. . . when ants go to war they enlist old ladies, not their young males.

A series of Hirschfeld postage stamps is on the way from the US Post Office, a tribute to the globe-trotting artist known for watercolors of Bali. He is also known for caricatures of Broadway as seen by his artist's eye.

First ranch rodeo is off to a good start

The first Lincoln County Ranch Rodeo was an outstanding success.

Dedicated to old-time ranchers and livestock producers of Lincoln County, the rodeo drew crowds who filled the stands at the fairgrounds arena in Capitan Aug. 25 to see teams compete in events somewhat different from the regular professional rodeos.

Team penning, wild cow milking, team roping and doctoring, wild horse race and team branding kept the cowboys and cowgirls from eight Lincoln County and Chaves county ranches going all afternoon, much to the delight of the crowds.

Probably the most exciting event was the wild horse race, for one horse, brought from the wild on the Navajo Reservation was indeed wild and had to be turned out of the starting gate to prevent injury to itself and the cowboy from Seco Ranch who was to have ridden it.

After a full afternoon of excitement, Roswell Livestock Auction took first place with a total of 34 points. Smiley, Benny and Craig Wooten, Kim Chesser, Aubrey Lynch and Jeff Ellis took home trophy buckles for their win. They took 1st place in the team roping and doctoring and team branding, with times of .30:98 and 1.02:89 respectively; 2nd in the wild horse race with a time of 1.22:12; 3rd in the team penning with a time of 1.13:79.

Wes, Cindy and Bobby Smith, John Sisk, Scott Daniel and Ron Merritt of the Bonito Ranch (Lincoln County) was second with 26 points. They were 1st in the wild cow milking and the wild horse race with a time of 1.20:02.

LE Ranch cowboys Randall Jones, Ray Gainer, Allen Cox, Steve E. Murray and Bob Van Winkle were 3rd with 22 points. They tied with Block Ranch cowboys Grover Hall, Floyd Goodloe, Dale Shrock, Preston Stone, Jim Mooney and Jesus Vargas for 3rd. A tied breaking roping put Block Ranch into

4th. Block Ranch was 1st in team penning with a time of 54:57.

Bogle Ranch cowboys Jeff Wells, Eddie Davis, Jim Parker, Daniel Chavez, Waddy Hobbs and Greg Molyneux were 5th overall; Truckey Track Ranch was 6th; Loma Grande Ranch hands John and Sherry Underwood, Jason Muller, Mike Marley, Kenny and Nancy Walton were 7th and Seco Ranch hands Den Shear, Don Studdard, Bill Bird, Phil Fifer, David Cox and Jason Price were 8th.

Jeff Ellis of Roswell was named top hand and Bear, named by Benny Wooten, was named top horse.

In the cowgirl steer riding, which gave a lot of thrills with a spilled cowgirl, Sharon Betancourt of Roswell was 1st and Sherry Underwood of Capitan was 2nd. Other cowgirls who rode in the contest were Cindy Smith, Becky Barber, Rosegens Clees, Audrey Davis and Malin Lindstrom.

The rodeo, the first of its kind to be performed in Lincoln County, was such a success the newly formed Lincoln County Ranch Rodeo Association plans another next year.

The group formed to provide a different kind of rodeo other than the same athletic-type events in the professional rodeos.

OPINION

● Things have gotten pretty exciting at Carrizozo Town Hall. First, about a month ago a few firemen falsified a requisition which, had they not been caught, would have cost the town more than $500 to provide a beer bust for thirsty firemen while attending the annual fire training school. The incident was discovered by Mayor Kuhnle. Vengeful firemen decided to make the mayor pay for depriving them of getting drunk. So they told her (and others) that if her house caught fire they would not respond to put it out. This group is also under suspicion of having broken into and vandalized the mayor's business, Club Carrizo, a few days later. Then this group offered to support Harold DesJardines, who has been trying to get the mayor's old Hotel Girard torn down. They said they would join him in an effort to impeach the mayor. DesJardines protested that all he wanted was the hotel torn down, and that he thought the mayor was doing a good job. The firemen planned to be out in force at the last scheduled town council meeting to begin impeachment proceedings against the mayor. Just before the meeting they found out that the hotel had been sold, and that the mayor no longer owned it. They were dejected. Then they learned that this mayor cannot be impeached anyway. Now they have launched a campaign to get her "recalled." In the meantime, the booze stolen during the Club Carrizo breakin mysteriously appeared Sunday morning at the entrance to the club, unopened. Somebody either had a twinge of conscience or a certain town police officer was close to nailing the culprits.

● John Saucedo, whose run-in with Police Officer Rick Emmons got that officer suspended, may face other charges. An alcohol blood test volunteered by Saucedo came back from the Albuquerque lab this week with a positive test reading of .19 alcohol content. Emmons says he will now file DWI charges against Saucedo, along with one for theft of his citation book.

● Attorneys with the Municipal League informed Mayor Kuhnle that Emmons' suspension was illegal, and that the Town of Carrizozo "has already lost the lawsuit" that Emmons is bringing against the town for the illegal suspension. A hearing will be announced later, because the one scheduled for 4 p.m. Tuesday has been declared illegal. The hearing will have to be advertised. Emmons has told the News that he will demand an open meeting so any interested citizen can attend and hear all the evidence on both sides.

● On it goes. A hearing at the town council is scheduled for Sept. 11 on still another matter. Kathy Palomarez, a town employee, was recently put on administrative leave with pay pending the filing of charges against her for inappropriate procedures, improper disposition of funds, and other charges triggered by the mayor's invitation of auditors from Santa Fe to check town records. The auditors say they found evidence to support charges against Palomarez. There may be other people involved in the "inappropriate action."

● Two federal undercover agents have been in Carrizozo for several weeks. They are investigating everything from murder to drug pushers. Last Friday a local rancher knocked on the door of one of the agents (Room 4 at the Crossroads Motel) and told him that if he didn't get out of town, and drop his investigation, he would be killed. Not surprisingly, he packed up and left.

● Carol Schlarb has been Town Clerk since Jan. 1, 1981, and it is high time she is commended for her work. She is knowledgeable of local and state law, dedicated to her work, efficient and conscientious. She is highly regarded at the New Mexico Municipal League, and misses no opportunity to improve her work. In the past, mayors have relegated her to little more than a clerk/secretary. Whenever she brought an "irregularity" to attention of the mayor and trustees, action was seldom taken and the matter swept under the rug. Now she is being listened to. The present mayor relies heavily on her skills, understanding and knowledge. Which is why things are getting accomplished at town hall, to the dismay of some.

BIG MEDIA BACKPAGES SOUTH AFRICAN SLAUGHTER OF 4,500 BLACKS - BY BLACKS

QUESTION: What would be the US Big Media reaction if 500 blacks had been killed by the white South African police in one week?

ANSWER: If the white South African police had killed FIVE blacks in one week, it would be all over page ones and prime times.

Last week's slaughter of more than 500 black South Africans was done, however by OTHER BLACKS. And therefore it was relegated to the back pages of the Washington Post and the New York Times; as well as the hundreds of additional newspapers who subscribe to their news services.

Possibly this obscuring of mass black slaughter is due to the guilt feelings of the liberal-dominated Big Media. For they failed to report — or else they loftily disdained as Boer Propaganda — the decades of South African government warnings about the problem of tribalism (which is also tearing up Liberia, as it has Zimbabwe, among other places.)

There are now 4,500 dead in South Africa's tribal wars. One Zulu fighter told the New York Times: "Since Mandela was out in February, they have been telling us we will be ruled by a Xhosa; that Mandela is king and all Zulus are dogs. So, we had to fight to live."

Another Zulu was at the head of a band of fighters, who in the tradition of their warrior ancestors, had removed their shoes prior to going into battle. He told police: "Let us through. Give us one hour to show these Xhosa dogs how it is to fight!"

Elsewhere in this township of Kagiso, the Times reported that Anglican Archbishop Desmond Tutu was giving an outdoor sermon to appeal for peace — even as a mob was burning down a home around the block. When the Archbishop finished preaching, the mob ignored him, picked up axes and spears and marched on a Zulu hostel, where they were turned back by police tear gas. And even though there are 4,500 blacks who have been killed since his release in February, Nelson Mandela refuses to meet with Zulu Chief Buthelezi.

Apparently the only thing that stands in the way of a tribal bloodbath is the much maligned army and police of South Africa.

Inside The Capitol

By Jay Miller

SANTA FE—New Mexicans have been watching the fluctuating price of oil with great interest. Concern has centered in two primary areas. What will it mean for the price of gas and what will it mean for New Mexico's oil-dependent economy.

On the gas pricing front, New Mexicans are getting frustrated. Why does a $5 increase in the price of a barrel of oil cause gas pump prices to increase 20 cents the next day when a $5 decrease does nothing to gas prices, they ask?

The oil barons have cooked up a lot of good excuses. Oil isn't priced at the well-head, they say. That means when the price of a barrel of crude goes up, the market immediately responds. Shouldn't that mean that when the price per barrel goes down, gasoline prices do so too? Oh, it's much more complicated than that, say oil company spokesmen. In fact, it's so complicated, they have trouble explaining why gas prices can only increase.

Gov. Garrey Carruthers worried about gas pricing so he appointed Marty Blake, one of his public service commissioners, to study the situation and report to him. Carruthers said since he and Blake are both economists, he would be able to understand Blake's report. In fact, the governor seemed to delight in explaining the report at a news conference 10 days ago. Blake was present but was spared the need to speak because of Carruthers' lengthy explanation.

The governor said Blake's figures show the price increase was actually buffeted by middlemen and retailers as it traveled down the line to the gas pump. That means we paid less than we would have if the increase had not been absorbed by some segments of the oil industry.

The moment of truth, Carruthers said, comes when the prices start back down. Profiteering, if any, will be on the back end. It all has to do with how inventories are evaluated by oil companies. Some companies, the governor says, use a last-in-first-out method of valuing their inventory. This justifies an immediate jump in gasoline prices. But if that valuation method is changed when the price of oil declines, then is the time to get upset.

It appears it may be time for Carruthers to start getting upset. People standing around gas pumps are expressing a lot of outrage. One woman said she wishes Pres. Bush would turn his attention from the Middle East and start waging war on the oil industry's corporate boardrooms.

The rising prices of oil also affects New Mexicans in a favorable way. During the energy crisis of 1974 to 1982 our state experienced one of its few periods of rapid economic growth. That growth had an even greater effect on state government revenues because our tax system puts a heavy bite on the severance industries. In addition to taxes, oil and gas companies pay the state for leasing its land for drilling operations and for royalties on what they produce.

That all adds up to a lot of money. The last energy crisis also benefited the uranium, coal and carbon dioxide industries in New Mexico and greatly increased the size of the state's permanent funds due to the interest rate increases that accompanied the energy crunch.

The net result was an unprecedented increase in state general fund revenues. New government services were added. The number of state employees and their salaries also increased rapidly.

Legislative Finance Committee members, meeting in Las Cruces two weeks ago warned against the urge to assume the good old days are back. Oil prices of $35 a barrel will not produce the same economic bonanza they did 15 years ago, they warned. It would take $60 a barrel prices and gasoline would have to shoot up to $2 a gallon to equal the benefits we received in the 1970s.

State agencies which must start submitting next year's budgets to the LFC later this month were told not to build any optimistic revenue projections into their budgets. Prices will have to get much higher and remain there for a sustained period before much difference will be noticed.

Nevertheless, says Sen. Mike Alarid, D-Bern, "the feeding frenzy has already started."

Letters to the editor

Take that, Jay Miller!

OPEN LETTER TO JAY MILLER, NEA LOBBYIST AND COLUMNIST.

DEAR JAY: If it's a newspaper's job to print columnists that people will read more than agree with, the Lincoln County News has an ace in you.

I read you religiously, even if it is only to satisfy a sick fascination in noticing how often you miss the mark.

You are much too smart a fellow not to know how little a foundation your opinions are constructed on. Your jaw-dropping ignorance is calculated.

But in my role as State Chairman of the Republican Party, I feel compelled to clarify certain points you made in a recent column for those who take your work more seriously than a modicum of brains would warrant.

In a recent column under the headline, "Salazar, Luna Benefit from Previous Campaign Tries," you truly outdid yourself, Jay.

In what can only be described as a sterling piece of journalism that evoked scenes from the movie, "Foreign Correspondent," you slogged through the forgotten and dangerous backroads of New Mexico to uncover "political observers" and "Republican leaders" willing to part with "Speculation."

All of it off the record, no doubt, since you didn't cite a single political observer or Republican leader by name.

Smart move! protect those sources, Jay, so you can quote them again.

For the record, however, Frank Bond received encouragement to run for governor from a wide range of New Mexicans, and not solely from "highrollers," as you termed them.

Incidentally, Jay, why is it that you never refer to Bruce King's backers as "highrollers." Could it be because the candidate himself is richer than rich, or Bond will ever be, and the term can't be applied from the top down?

Also, Jay, we quite mean it when we say we are out to win every statewide race.

Forgive my periodic righting of the record, Jay. I sit at this very moment poised with another 35 cents anxiously awaiting your latest gleaning from the lunch houses of Santa Fe.

You are a riveting columnist, Jay. But as long as you perform your dual role as lobbyist for the state's teachers' association, the need for competency testing is ever great.

JOHN LATTAUZIO,
Chairman,
Republican Party
of New Mexico.

Here we go again

Another park bought with our tax money

By ERIK L. NESS

In the jagged mountains of Southern New Mexico the US Bureau of Land Management recently spent a huge chunk of taxpayer money to buy a ranch and turn it into a big park.

The news releases from the so-called environmental groups said it was to protect the land from certain destruction.

Funny thing is—the ranchers that had the place for a century did a fine job taking care of it. It was such a beautiful spot that environmental groups were falling all over themselves trying to get the government to spend your money to buy it. And they did—in great fashion with a big concert and a bunch of hoopla, the BLM gave us the "Dripping Springs Natural Area."

But wait... after they opened the place up to the public the BLM found out what ranchers have known for a long time. A lot of people don't take care of the land. They leave gates open, let their dogs run wild, they chase and harrass the wildlife, they dig up the "ecologically" sensitive plants, stomp on the ferns and leave lots of non-biodegradable trash behind.

The BLM has now announced that the "Dripping Springs Natural Area" near Las Cruces will be closed most of the week and when it's opened there will be an admission fee and lots of new rules.

In trying to save us from ourselves the BLM, as one New Mexico politician once said, "opened up a whole box of pandoras."

The hordes of people that have overrun this sensitive area make a lot of people wish it was a private ranch again, protected by the real environmentalists—the ranchers.

(Ness is Director of Information and Public Relations for the New Mexico Farm and Livestock Bureau, Las Cruces.)

Hiking taxes

keep the dumpsters at their Aug. 27 meeting.

Beauvais also updated the board on the progress of an attorney general opinion on whether the trustees of Carrizozo and Capitlan have any say about sale of the Capitlan-Carrizozo Gas Association. Assistant AG Jon Barola is working on the opinion which Beauvais expected in the near future. Once received, the gas board will talk with both sets of trustees about the offer from Hamilton Gas Company.

A nuisance which had troubled Mayor Kuhnle and bed and breakfast owner Harold DesJardines may soon be gone. DesJardines reported to the trustees he was the new owner of the old Girard Hotel.

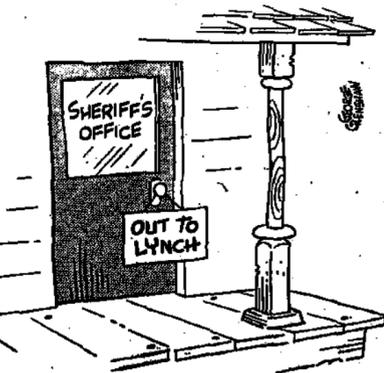

The old two-story hotel, made of adobe, is deteriorating and was deemed a hazard by the last town administration.

DesJardines proposed using the building as a simulated fire, for the volunteer fire department to practice skills using ladders and other drills for a two-story building. No real fire will be set in the building, since it is very close to other occupied structures.

"It is coming down," DesJardines said.

Garcia had no problems with using the building for the practice and was pleased the building was finally coming down. "It will take a lot of pressure off this council."

Kuhnel and town clerk Carol Schlarb were in Taos for a New Mexico League annual meeting. Kuhnel is a voting delegate for the town. When the Rec Center was brought up a town resident questioned where the books which were gathered years go for a town library in the center have been placed. Garcia thought most were still in the center but requested town foreman Faustino Gallegos to check.

The parts to repair some of the bowling lanes have been ordered.

After all other business, the trustees retired into a closed session to discuss personnel, pending litigation and other contract negotiations. When they returned, they announced the suspension, without pay, of police officer Rick Emmons.

Emmons is scheduled to have an open personnel hearing after the Sept. 11 town meeting.

Sheriff's report

A call from a Carrizozo woman that another woman was threatening her turned into two arrests on a restraining order violation.
Aug. 27

Mrs. Hawkins of Carrizozo called the Lincoln County Sheriff's Office and reported Jann Moberly was threatening her. Carrizozo Police Officer Rick Emmons was dispatched and talked with Moberly at her home. Moberly said she only wanted to use the telephone. However, her husband Brad, who was ordered to stay away from the home by District Court Judge Richard A. Parsons, was at the house. Emmons then arrested Brad Moberly on the violation of a domestic order. Brad said that Jann had called him and wanted him to come over to the house. Emmons then arrested Jann, 34, on a charge of violation of restraining order, because she called Brad to come over.

Later that day, after the Moberly couple was booked into the jail, Paul Wetzel, jailer, discovered smoke coming from the padded cell in which Jan Moberly had been placed. When he opened the door he found Jann's uniform on the floor, burning. Moberly was searched for more matches and none were found. Jann was charged with criminal damage to property and violation of restraining order. She had no bond set. Durwood Brad Moberly was sentenced to 90 days in jail.
