Health nurse schedule

Lincoln County Health Nurse Theresa Luna will not be in the office Oct. 15-19 as she will attend a training session in Albuquerque.

The Lincoln County Health Office in Carrizozo will be open during the week to take appointments for the Oct. 30 Family Planning Clinic or for the WIC program in November. Only one day has been scheduled for the WIC program in Carrizozo, the first Tuesday of November and each month following.

For more information or to set an appointment call 648-2412.

Hondo Schools to hold open house

Hondo School teachers, staff and students are working together to host an open house for the general public. High School Open House will be Oct. 23, 6:30 - 8 p.m. Refreshments will be served.

The colorful Hondo Valley is a perfect setting for Hondo Public Schools and this year the school is even more attractive. Classrooms have been freshly painted, new blinds and fixtures sparkle, and new equipment is noted everywhere.

According to Supt. Maria Fuentes-Leas, "We want to show off our school. Being small presents opportunities for us to have a one-on-one working relationship with not only our student body, but their parents as well. It also allows concentration on the basics which are really the solid foundation employers, college and military recruiters are searching for. Parents will also have an opportunity to visit with teachers, and discuss classroom behavior and to view their children's work."

Leas also noted that by coming to this open house, parents and other interested parties will be able to see how the 4-Day Alternative Schedule is working. Morale and enthusiasm are incredibly high and student absenteeism has dropped dramatically.

For additional information call the school at 653-4411.

Council tackles airline subsidy, resort issue

By BLAKE MARTIN

Ruidoso City Manager Charles Norwood presented a report on the Mesa Airlines subsidy at Tuesday night's council meeting.

Because scheduled air service is not economically feasible, a subsidy is paid by the village for continued service. This payment is based on number of block hours and number of passengers. When these increase, the subsidy decreases.

Mayor Alonso restated his position that if the chamber of commerce wanted to continue with the airport subsidy, it would have to find additional funding through the private sector. The chamber is currently working on a questionnaire, he said, to decide whether or not to enter into fundraising toward continuing the subsidy for Mesa Airlines.

John Underwood presented an update on an extension agreement with Sierra Blanca Resorts Inc. (SBRI). The addendum to the contract includes a 12-month extension for hotel completion, and a 10-month extension for civic center construction. This will allow SBRI to obtain financing and complete hotel construction by October 1991.

Alonso added that the extension will save money by preventing winter construction costs.

The mayor also noted that council members and he had the right to express their own opinion, as well as that of the council. From now on, he said, personal viewpoint will be symbolically stated from the podium so that it is clearly personal in representation.

Councilor Al Junge adjusted a statement made at the previous council meeting. Last year, he continued, the school board spent around $1,220,000. This year they are going to spend about $1,233,000. "I want to correct the impression that I gave that they were really out of line," says Junge. In light of the decrease in property appraisals, the $13,000 increase in their spending is not surprising.

In response to Junge's question of the status of expiring bonds, School District Supt. Mike Gladden is compiling information for this reporter later this week.

Also, the issue of televised council meetings was addressed by Junge. If people do watch the taped recordings on television Wednesday, how many do and would they rather have it scheduled in the afternoon or evening time slot? Call 257-9808.

Senior center opens at San Patricio

A center for the valley. A dream which took more than two years of visiting the state legislature finally became reality when the San Patricio Zia Senior Citizens' Center opened its doors at the St. Jude's Parish Hall Oct. 1.

On that first day 33 Hondo Valley seniors ate the green chile stew, pinto beans, cornbread, salad and pudding prepared by staff cook Theresa Chavez and served by senior volunteers, and socialized. Site Manager Yolanda Baca served, welcomed the group and bubbled with enthusiasm, dancing with the kitchen crew to traditional Mexican songs coming from her cassette player.

By the second day, 51 seniors came to eat lunch and 19 carry-outs were delivered to home-bound seniors unable to travel to the center.

"This is the best thing that ever happened to San Patricio," said Alfred Gomez, one of the seniors who helped organize the center. He, Victor Brooks and about 25 other valley seniors went with Zia director Barbara Ward and county commissioner Rick Simpson to the state legislature in January. There the group lobbied for money to initiate the center. It wasn't the first time at the legislature for the valley seniors, the year before a group went, only to be turned down.

Brooks had visited the Capitan Senior Center and was so impressed he began to work toward getting such a center for the valley. He and Gomez went to state representative Ben Hall two years ago and began the lengthy process that led to the appropriation.

"I like it and enjoy coming here—this is good," said Elizabeth Coggin of Hondo.

By the end of the first week, there were 40 seniors eating lunch.

It has already become a place that gives seniors like Frank Gomez, who lives alone, a place to get out. "We can see each other every day," said another.

Site manager Baca plans plenty of recreation for those hours when lunch isn't served. She already had her sights on a pool table, dances every Friday night, bingo, movies, arts and crafts and quilting. The center opens at 8 a.m. and closes at 4 p.m.

Transportation, in addition to the nutrition program, is a part of the senior program. Those without transportation can contact the center for either a ride to the center or to the doctor.

Valley senior Gerald Tully said, "we owe this place to our forefathers." He told of the first family to come to the valley in 1834 and continued with his history lesson. "The vegetables served here come from valley gardens," he added.

Seniors eating at the center are requested to donate something for the meal. Suggested amounts, based on age, are posted near the entrance.

For those seniors who need a ride, a meal brought to their homes, or more information about the center call 653-4405. Baca will answer questions and respond to requests.

Wednesday, Oct. 10, the valley seniors celebrated the first open house at their center. Politicians, Area Agency on Aging officials from Santa Fe and Clovis, Roswell Joy Center director Olivia Reed and others attended.

A center for the valley, the best thing that ever happened to San Patricio.

Carrizozo Chamber elects officers

Carrizozo Chamber of Commerce elected new officers, started its fall membership drive and agreed to sell surplus T-shirts left from a former 10K run.

President-elect Ruth Hammond presided at the meeting where members elected her as the 1990-91 president. Sean Hill was elected president-elect, Dorothy Forsythe recording secretary, Marilou Webster corresponding secretary and Patricia Serna treasurer.

Scott Shafer, Janice Christopherson, Ina Hooten, Phyllis Schlegel, Dale Goad, Hammond and Hill were named to the board of directors.

All officers were elected unanimously. They will be installed at the November meeting.

Membership dues will be

Woody Schlegel brought a T-shirt left from the Malpais Classic 10K and 2 mile fun run sponsored by the chamber in 1984. He said 91 shirts, paid for with chamber funds were left from the event and he wanted to sell them. After some discussion, members voted to sell the shirts at $5 each. Not all members agreed the shirts should be sold so cheaply, as they have a black and red design of an erupting volcano on the front and printing about the run, which includes Carrizozo, New Mexico, on the back. There are 14 small, 43 medium, 27 large and four X-large. A shirt will be on display at United New Mexico Bank and shirts can be purchased by contacting Schlegel.

Morales demotion case is aired at trustee meeting

By Doris Cherry

Is the town of Carrizozo falling apart?

At least one town resident who attended the Tuesday night board of trustees meeting asked that question of the group.

Lonnie Mathews asked the board what happened to Chief Choncho Morales and why he was demoted, which he learned about by reading THE NEWS. He also told of finding both doors open on the fire station bays during early hours of a morning, which disturbed him enough to say he would not pay any more taxes if the police situation in the town does not improve.

Mayor-pro tem Harold Garcia said Morales was demoted by Mayor Cecilia Kuhnle only, as the council had nothing to do with the action. He told Mathews of the appeal hearing set for Morales' Wednesday night (Oct. 10), which was closed to the public because Morales had not asked for the hearing to be open in his written request. Garcia did say Morales was demoted for certain charges on an investigation, or the lack of investigation, involving a family member. Then he asked for recommendations.

Mayor Kuhnle was not present; she was out of town on city business.

Mathews said Morales was 50 percent of the reason why he moved to Carrizozo. "In my opinion he does exactly what a small town police chief should do," Mathews said.

He told of Morales' good attitude with the town's teenagers and passers-through. "I never saw him added. Mathews most objected to Morales' demotion by the mayor and not the whole council.

Garcia said the council could not sit at the first hearing, then come back and be the same people to sit on the appeal.

"There are many who believe the same way you do

Duane Vinson is relieved of duty

Carrizozo Town Trustees relieved a part-time officer of his duties at a special hearing Oct. 3.

Duane Vinson had been hired to serve as a part-time police officer by Mayor Cecilia Kuhnle.

However, Vinson does not live in the town of Carrizozo, rather in White Oaks. This one thing was to become a major reason to relieve Vinson of his duties and request he return the police car to the town.

Trustee Patsy Vallejos, at the end of the closed session that Wednesday night, felt the public should know Vinson was relieved of his duties because he refused to move into town, to work part-time even though he was given that chance. Vinson did not want to work part-time.

Also the board reviewed a number of applications for the positions, which were then given to the mayor. Steve Graham, Michael Monreal, Sam Ruiz and Raymond Lueras Jr. have all applied for the police position.

A three-step procedure for considering the applicants was approved: each will be checked through the sheriff's office; check the latest reference with each supervising officer and the mayor will check the latest reference with the supervising officer. If both checks are positive, then the applicants will be interviewed.

sythe suggested donating one of each size as a door prize from the chamber for the Lincoln County Association of Retarded Citizens' Harvest Moon Ball set for Oct. 31 at Club Carrizo. All members voted for the proposal.

Forsythe also promoted the ball, and invited all members to attend, since it would promote ARC, New Horizons and Ft. Stanton Training School. She told of the many employees and the benefit to the town from New Horizons Developmental Center. Raffle tickets and posole will be sold. Ball-goers are encouraged to come in costume and dance to music by Selmo from Alamogordo. Political candidates have been invited also. Phyllis Schlegel further explained the purpose of the ball, which is a fundraiser for ARC-Lincoln County.

Members also discussed the proposal to have a chamber office and agreed with Hammond who suggested to request space in the Zia Senior Citizens Center for a table and perhaps a phone. A request letter to center director Barbara Ward will be mailed.

Cowboy Symposium is Friday and Saturday

Cowboy poems, stories and music mixed with Mescalero Apache Ceremonial dancing and traditional Mexican dancing await visitors to the Lincoln County Symposium Friday and Saturday, Oct. 12-13, at the Super Select Sale Barn in Glencoe.

Planners hope to bring back a little of the Old West with two days of cowboy festivities and food from trails rides to chuckwagon cookoffs.

Cowboy poets, storytellers, singers and musicians

Carrizozo trustees in this town," Garcia said.

He assured Mathews the council would look at everything "up front."

Resident Roy Dow agreed with Mathews.

The trustees also reviewed the town's purchasing order policy, which had set an hour limit early each Monday only. Trustee Patsy Vallejos, who works for the Lincoln County Sheriff's Office and trustee Gilbert Archuleta were assigned to review the policy and make suggestions.

Vallejos said the policy should be that POs can be made every day, when needed.

"An hour just doesn't cut it," she said.

Town clerk Carol Schlarb is the town purchasing agent. Vallejos did not suggest allowing everyone in town hall to issue a PO.

Garcia explained the PO policy was set at the limited time because Schlarb had to stop her work on budget or banking to make a PO.

Trustee Dale LaMay suggested a certain time each day be set for POs. But Vallejos thought Schlarb should stop what she is doing to issue a PO.

Garcia predicted the PO situation would "add fuel to the fire of nitpicky stuff" in town hall and said Schlarb could not always stop what she was doing to issue a PO.

Vallejos agreed nitpicking had to stop in town hall, and Garcia replied if the mayor could not stop it, then the council would.

Unanimously the trustees agreed to allow POs to be issued any time during working hours, and be submitted by department heads only. A letter was to be drafted and sent to all department heads concerning the PO policy.

Garcia read a letter from Zia Senior Citizens Center director Barbara Ward requesting a commitment by the town to allow the center to expand into the fire department bay which adjoins the center. The bay will be vacated when the fire department moves to its new facility.

LaMay said the town should give Ward the go-ahead so she can keep the money appropriated by the state. Otherwise, Ward had written, the money will be reverted, if it is not encumbered for the project soon.

Garcia directed a letter be written to Ward authorizing her to encumber the money, even if the trucks have not been moved yet.

The question of what to do with the antique furniture in the old town hall was settled when trustees agreed to have town foreman Faustino Gallegos devise a plan to move it from the old town hall (which has a leaking roof, threatening to totally ruin the furniture) to a more weather-proof place and look into refurbishing, mostly the roll-top desk.

At least two persons have asked to buy the desk from the town; the town attorney Robert Beauvais for exchange of legal fees and local antique dealer Harold Dejardins.

Garcia said several town residents requested the trustees not sell the desk, rather repair it and place it in a more visible location.

A contract for water submitted by the New Mexico State Highway Dept. was discussed and trustees agreed they needed further explanation.

The dangerous intersection of Highway 54 and 380 will be the subject at a future meeting if the state highway department district manager responds to an invitation from trustees to come and discuss what can be done to improve the dangerous situation. Numerous accidents have occurred at the intersection.

Trustees met in closed session but took no action following the session.

New Mexico is fortunate to have three facilities to care for the needs of youth, some of which have no home. Hawes stressed that guests are always welcome at the three ranches to meet the children and administrators and take a look at the everyday life on the ranches.

The birthday members of October were Rene Burton and Aileen Lindamood.

Chuck wagons from several noted ranches from different states will compete in the cook-off. This is a three-day affair with Western singers, bands, rodeo events, polo, and all kinds of dancing. Plans are to make this an annual event.

Linda Gibson won the door prize.

The next meeting will be Nov. 7 at 11:30 at the 4-Winds Restaurant, with Margaret Stearns as hostess.

The meeting ended with a surprise baby shower for Pres. Lisa Shivers, and a money tree.

Sheriff's report

Jail inmate tries suicide by hanging

About mid-morning Oct. 6 Erwin Boyd Bartlett tried to commit suicide by hanging himself in his cell in the Lincoln County Jail.

Bartlett, 26, formerly of Ruidoso, was arrested on two counts of attempted first degree murder for assaulting two women with an axe Thursday, Oct. 4, in Ponderosa Heights in Ruidoso. The women were Bartlett's ex-wife Bobbi and her friend Theresa Martin. He struck Martin 12 to 15 times and told the women he was going to kill them. Bartlett reportedly had a history of domestic problems with his wife.

Martin was taken to Lincoln County Medical Center (LCMC) then to New Mexico Medical Center in Roswell, where surgery on her arm was indicated.

Boyd Bartlett overdosed on Xanax and alcohol and was hospitalized under guard, Ruidoso police stated. He was in the Ruidoso area to seek counsel from his lawyer about the reopening of a rape charge made against him in 1988. That charge ended with a hung jury in May, 1988.

Bartlett was confined in the padded cell at the Lincoln County Jail where he tried to hang himself by tying his boxer shorts to the cell bars and putting the elastic around his neck. The dispatcher noticed the unusual situation on the jail monitor and contacted the jailer. With the help of a deputy, Bartlett was taken down from the make-shift noose. He reportedly was already "witching." He was taken to LCMC, then later to New Mexico State Hospital in Las Vegas.

Hondo Fiesta Dancers a big hit at the fair

By special invitation this year, the Hondo Fiesta Dancers were invited to perform twice at the New Mexico State Fair. Fair organizers have invited them for next year.

They performed in the colorful Hispanic Village before a large audience. Porfiria Zinn, Fiesta coordinator, noted that many who attended the 1:30 show returned with family and friends for the evening presentation.

Elementary, junior high and high school couples graced the stage and popular elementary student, Bethany Sanchez, sang "Rosa Maria" and "La De La Machila Azul."

These dancers represent a long history of song and dance that distinguishes their Hispanic culture.

Hours of practice are part of the process. The fair was only one of their many scheduled performances. They were part of the Ascencade Parade, and plan to be at the Lincoln County Cowboy Symposium, Oct. 14. Other presentations will be at the Inn of the Mountain Gods and the annual St. Jude Fiesta in late October.

OPINION

● The president of the independent Dartmouth Review quit a few days ago. His high crime was that he allowed the off-campus newspaper to publish a quotation from Hitler on a Jewish holiday. Terrible. That's as bad as in this newspaper coming out on the evils of Hitler in an issue that comes out on Yom Kippur. Forget the First Amendment.

● Yasuhiro Nakasone, Japan's prime minister in 1986, touched off an uproar in the United States when he said blacks and minorities lowered the IQ of Americans. There are studies that confirm this, but we're dubbed racist if we mention them. New Mexico's Department of Education is calling for an end to IQ tests because, officials say, the tests "discriminate against minorities and the poor." There is a familiar solution to this problem. Petition congress to mandate an IQ score of 130 for everybody. Presto! No more discrimination over the matter of brains and intelligence.

● Victor Kiam, noted for his Remington shavers and owner of New England Patriots, was incensed when a woman reporter edged her way into the football players' locker room for interviews. Kiam called the reporter a "classic bitch." He has apologized, and a special counsel for the National Football League is investigating whether or not to burn Kiam at the stake for his "insensitive" remark.

● This type of paralogical action sent me back to a column I wrote in California in 1980. Here it is. See if it fits.

● I live in constant fear of getting "demised" and have to miss the social and legislative inenities that issue forth from day to day. Each day brings some new wacky events that make even the most hardened cynic swear they can't be topped. And next day they are. This one happened several days ago, which means my preoccupation with it puts me 15,000 foolish things behind. The State Civil Service Commission, and later the San Francisco Civil Service Commission, has ruled that an employee who loses his temper and says something offensive to another person can lose his job. In the San Francisco case, action will be taken against any employee who chooses "to use slurs against any person on the basis of race, color, creed, national origin, ancestry, age, sex, sexual orientation, or disability." Phew!

● Under this enlightened policy a person would be hounded out of a livelihood if he correctly called somebody an idiot, for "idiot" impugns one's mental condition, and is a "disability" covered in the regulation. If this rule were enforced nationwide, the existence of Jimmy Carter and Ronald Reagan alone could cause half the working force to be fired. Because the rule is so silly, I am confident that California's lead in this regard will become a model for the nation.

● A term of endearment is to call someone an "old goat." Don't do it if you're a civil service worker. Any Rose Bird Court will find the reference to both ancestry and age a slur within the meaning of the regulation. When I think of how the term "son of a bitch" has served society so well it grieves me to see it in enforced disuse. We could never field an army without it, and we never did. The famous four-letter word and its connectives credited with winning World War II is in jeopardy—except on the stage, in movies, and on television.

● I wouldn't even suggest saying that a person has a "hang-dog" look, much less use words like dago, greaser, cracker, mackeral-snatcher, chink, red-neck, spic, limey, kraut or Texan. These terms constitute slurs. They are degrading to people whose tender sensibilities have been squished thin by piling one civil rights act upon another to the point where injured feelings must be protected by the majesty of law.

● The San Francisco Chronicle in editorializing on the subject said that it is human to cuss and swear. However, "people shouldn't call people such names, but they do." Wrong. What, pray, would you call a "horse's ass" except just that? In a world largely run by bastards, what's the slur in calling one? Take away the famous "mfer" and you've all but eliminated communication among blacks and made it difficult for a black to carry on a decent conversation with a white person. At a time when communication among people alarms our dwindling literati, and when ghetto gutter-talk is being promoted in schools so students can better express themselves, it seems counter-productive to forbid the use of "slur words" that have served the world well and whose meanings are so well understood by all races, ages, and sexes.

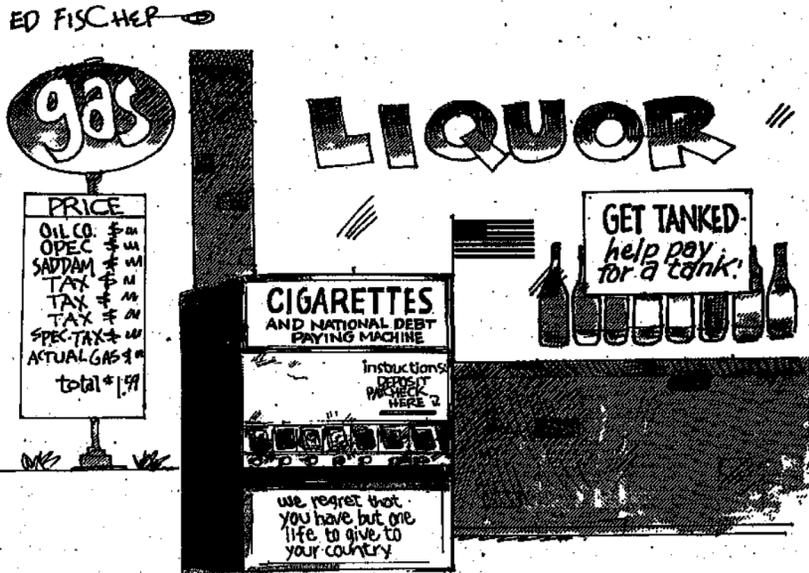

● The "Slur" envisioned in this unfortunate civil service regulation would do violence to Alexander Dumas who, when his ancestry was questioned by a detractor, replied: "My father was a Negro, his father was a Negro, and his father, a monkey. My family, it seems, begins where yours left off." Classy. There would be no chair for M. Dumas in California's civil service. Nor could former President Harry Truman, went as he was to question the casual canine background of columnist Drew Pearson and other inkstained wretches. Burges Johnson in his "The Art of Profanity" (1948) lamented the decline in the art of vilification: "What a

Inside The Capitol

By Jay Miller

SANTA FE—Two major trade organizations held statewide conventions last week. The Oil and Gas Association met in Santa Fe while the Retail Liquor Dealers met in Albuquerque.

Both groups are facing major changes in conditions affecting their business. Everyone is waiting to see what spiraling oil prices will do to the cost of a tank of gasoline and to New Mexico's oil dependent economy. Liquor dealers are vitally interested in seeing what the 1991 legislature will do with the 10-year phase-out of liquor-license ownership passed in 1981.

The message coming out of the Oil and Gas Association meeting was one of cautious optimism about the possibilities for increased production in New Mexico. The key word is "stability" when oil companies make decisions about whether prices are high enough to justify the expense and risk of increasing production.

The possibility of hostilities breaking out in the Middle East is not enough to encourage additional production. Prices could skyrocket briefly due to events surrounding the Iraqi aggression but oil companies are much more interested in what forecasters predict will happen over the next two to three years.

According to Darwin Van De Graaf, the association's executive vice president, the possibility of oil prices stabilizing a $30 a barrel is fairly good. Such a prediction by forecasters would cause New Mexico oil producers to begin some enhanced recovery efforts such as water or carbon dioxide flooding of wells. Prices of $35 to $40 a barrel would encourage more exotic methods such as coal liquefaction and recovery from oil shale and tar sands.

At its convention, members elected Raye Miller of Marbob Energy Corporation in Artesia as the new president. Dale Fisher of Hobbs will be vice-president and Mark Murphy of Roswell will take over the treasury. The group also presented its annual Pete Porter Award for Excellence in Public Service to Maralyn Budke, chief of staff for Gov. Garrey Carruthers and director of the powerful Legislative Finance Committee for 16 years.

Liquor dealers don't sound nearly as optimistic as the oil and gas folks. Ten years ago they asked for some breathing room to phase out the licenses that were selling for well up into the six figures. They are not ready for that time to be up.

One of the major problems is what to do about projects such as hotels and shopping centers that are willing to pay most anything for a license. These enterprises are vitally important to any community but they are also the businesses that drive up the price of a license. Normally a hotel or a shopping center will purchase a license from another county through a broker who gets a big cut, according to some of those in the business.

The situation calls for some compromises and some creative solutions. The liquor dealers must be ready with firm proposals for lawmakers in January. Those proposals are not ready at this point. The group is fragmented between large and small businesses. It also has not found a lobbyist to replace Ray Davenport who worked for the group for years. Old pro Pancho Padilla has been called in to do some heavy duty consulting but Pancho says he's not young enough anymore to do the aggressive lobbying that would be required.

Politicos never tire of trying to "bond" with their audiences. After 25 years in the education business, I know there is not a single political candidate who does not have a relative who is a teacher. They also qualify themselves as education experts because they've all been to school.

It became especially amusing last week to hear candidates addressing the liquor dealers. It was amazing how many of them had relatives in the business—and how many qualified themselves as experts because of the time they had spent in lounges.

MERCHANT KINGS

San Antonio, located 10 miles south of Socorro, has given many distinguished citizens to the state. During the 1850s General Estanislado Montoya banded the citizens of San Antonio together to form a citizens militia to fight off Indian attacks. He also served throughout the Civil War. After the war, he opened a mercantile business and later gave his sons a partnership in the business. He worked hard to promote the interests of the town and was one of the first to recognize that there was coal in the area. It was the railroad's need for coal that helped promote the area and add to the industry of San Antonio.

Meanwhile, Augustus Hilton arrived, built another store, traded with miners and trappers, and established a stage line connecting the mining towns of Nogal, Carthage and Magdalena. During the panic of 1907 Hilton converted part of his store into hotel rooms. This apparently gave his son, Conrad, the inspiration to build the hotels that eventually spread to nearly every major city of the world. All that remains of Hilton's father's general store and boardinghouses are ruins. Legend has it that the front bar in the Owl Bar and Cafe came from Hilton's store.

HISTORY BOO BOO

Readers who know their math may have caught the unintentional error in my history tidbit about the Lincoln County Sheriff's Deputy killed near Corona. My copy (typed column) said 1933, which is the correct year, but 1922 is what you read because proofreading did not catch the error. Those of you who recalled the incident or knew the posse participants know that 57 years ago was in 1933.

By the way, Jones was married to Ola Jones, county superintendent of schools, at the time of his death in July 1933. Deputy Jones was born in Carlsbad. He was raised and educated in Roswell, but since his marriage, to Ola Casey, made his home in Glencoe. He served as constable at Glencoe before his appointment as deputy sheriff.

GOOD IDEA

A Carrizozo item that made the news on Oct. 21, 1933 was the forming of a new club. The Gooftus Club was organized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C.O. Garrison. Its motto was "Laugh a Lot." The purpose of the club was to make cheery the evenings of coming winter months.

EDITOR—I would urge all LINCOLN COUNTY NEWS readers to submit the lower portion of your editorial on Oct. 4, which relates to the federal budget. Your timely and pertinent advice should be passed on to our congressmen. AG vs GG

EDITOR—Because Alexander the Great's youthful success at conquering a good part of the known world around 323 B.C., he became filled with self-seeking ambition and visions of himself as a god. He went so far as dreaming of Mt. Athos carved into a vast statue of himself and even required anyone who approached him to kneel and kiss his feet.

By this time, all his former friends and those loyal to him had either been executed or imprisoned. His futile attempt to achieve divinity suffered a serious and permanent setback however, when Alexander the Great (also known as AG) fell sick and died after a drunken debauch at age 33.

Perhaps there is wisdom and a lesson in offering at least a partial analogy between AG and anyone in our small community who would find themselves in similar circumstances with reference to self-image.

PAUL W. COLLINS, Carrizozo.

Local Corruption

EDITOR—The law enforcement situation in this town has sunk to a pathetic level. Contempt for the law and civil rights violations have become the norm, not only by the usual criminal element but by people in positions of authority sworn to uphold law and order.

Normally, I wouldn't lower myself to wallow in the cesspool of local politics but this has reached the point where it affects me personally.

Apparently people run for office in Carrizozo not to do anything worthwhile for the town but instead to gain control of the local police and other employees to keep their friends and relatives out of jail and to carry out vendettas against their enemies. This selective and discriminatory enforcement of the law is not only unethical, it is highly illegal.

The recent episode of an officer being fired for enforcing the law against the "wrong" person is one example. Another is the demotion of the chief of police for failure to report an accident involving his son.

The next example is the cover up by the former chief of police and the new chief of an accident involving a councilman's daughter. Not a minor accident, but one in which the car was totalled.

Now this same councilman is trying to get his son on the police force—talk about conflict of interest! From what I know his son has never been anywhere or done anything in his life to qualify for such a position. No education, no military service, no training, no nada. People who know him tell me he is "slow." Do the people of Carrizozo really want someone like this wearing a badge and pistol? What of an emergency? Will he wait for his father to tell him what to do? It seems obvious to me that he will serve as a puppet for his father, who desperately wants to be a cop.

Besides, this boy already has a job as a garbage collector due to the influence of his father. How many more jobs is he going to get? Is the rest of the council going along with this exercise in nepotism.

How many people are aware that last year this councilman and his boy both were given six months suspended sentences for disorderly conduct? This, too, was covered up.

And this is only the tip of the iceberg. There have been bomb threats and death threats made by a local goon squad against the school, its teachers, administrators and other citizens. One wonders how long it will be before these yokels show their true colors, don white hoods and robes and begin burning crosses in peoples yards?

The police will not act, even if they wanted to, for fear of losing their jobs. And where does the judicial system stand while this madness continues?

The so-called leaders of this town are ripe for an investigation by the district attorney or even the Attorney General of New Mexico.

My recommendation is that they clean up their act and start behaving like Americans instead of a tribe of Stone Age cannibals.

Otherwise, I'm in favor of whatever it takes to clean up this rat's nest of corruption.

DONALD QUEEN, Carrizozo.

pity that vituperation—the communication of feeling by word symbols hot from the furnace—should no longer be an art or even a common skill!"

● The human race has used the slur (swearing) to lighten its burden since the dawn of civilization, according to Ashley Montague, anthropologist and social biologist. All this vituperation, he says, constitutes a little understood form of human behavior which serves a worthy social and personal purpose. "It's a thing, you know, swearing is like pimples, better to come out, cleanses the moral system. The person who controls himself must have lots of terrible oaths circulating in his blood."

● There will be little or no enforcement of this stupid regulation because there aren't enough cops and courts. But we have a regulation, and that's what's important. Americans just love laws and regulations. They don't want them enforced, they just want them on the books. If laws already on the books were enforced, as they should be, most of the population would be in irons now. What this regulation does is make some Chinese activists, who long to be dragged into the mainstream of racial flummery, satisfied that a law exists to prevent them from being called "chinks."

● Question: Who is to decide whether the slur one person makes to another is one within the meaning of the regulation? That's going to depend upon tone of voice, facial expression, gestures, language of the eyes, how the mouth is held during enunciation of the slur—and what the transgressor was thinking at the time. On the other hand, what if an offender is smiling broadly, oozing racial love at every pore, but stands with arm upraised and middle digit extended in the classic Rockefeller salute?

● This honky can't wait for tomorrow and all the fascinating idiocies it portends!

UP AGAIN

The Postal Service has changed its mind about using the alphabet stamp that would have been temporarily used next year when postage rates are jumped again, 25 to 30 cents. Every time stamp prices go up, an alphabetical stamp is used. The last one was the "E" stamp. Officials decided that putting the "F" stamp into circulation next year would be a public relations disaster. Instead it is going to come out with a flower stamp. Next year the Postal Rate Commission is expected to OK a 20 percent hike in the cost of mailing a first class letter.

Help available for area's mentally ill

By FRANCES M. JONES

Mental Illness Awareness Week is being observed all over the nation the first week in October, but for those of us who have a mentally ill family member or friend, our awareness of the problems created by this illness lasts all year long.

In small towns such as Carrizozo, Ruidoso or Lincoln, most of us try to deal with our problems by ourselves. There are so few professionals to turn to, and often the answers we seek are unknown. We learn there is no "cure" for most forms of mental illness, and some medications relieve the symptoms but have side effects that are difficult to bear. Often, the person with a mental illness feels better, and decides that he doesn't want or need medicine anymore.

Most people don't know that about one third of all people who suffer some form of mental illness recover with or without medication. What happens to the other two-thirds? Their difficulties vary, often depending on the support systems in a community. If families and friends stand beside the individual, treating him as a person, allowing him to live and perhaps hold a part-time job in the community, he has a better chance. Unfortunately, there is a stigma attached to mental illness which is hard to overcome.

There is much to learn about the human brain. Mental illness is a chemical imbalance that affects the nervous system, sending false messages, causing us to behave differently. Severe depression can also be caused by these chemical imbalances, and also lesser known illnesses such as compulsive behavior, panic attacks or paranoia. When our nervous system is out of order, other things begin to go wrong: our judgment, personal grooming, relationships, and our day-to-day behavior. People start avoiding us. Some are afraid of us. Is it any wonder we isolate ourselves and feel that the world is against us? New Mexico is rated the 38th in the nation in its care of the mentally ill, according to the Torrey Report. Dr. Torrey is an authority on mental illness, specializing in the study of schizophrenia. We are especially deficient in the area of housing. Most people who suffer from a mental illness cannot find a safe, affordable place to live.

Ten years ago, families of the mentally ill met together and formed the National Alliance for the Mentally Ill, or NAMI, for short. New Mexico formed an Alliance group just over six years ago. Now there are 14 affiliates, with more groups forming. These support groups include some people who are recovering from mental illness, as well as those fully recovered. A consumer organization has recently formed in the state, with an all-state conference to be held at Glorieta, NM, Oct. 18-20. This will be their 2nd Annual State Conference.

If you need information in order to help a family member or a friend who is mentally ill, volunteers in the support groups are ready to help.

In Otero County, call Bettie Anderson, 434-0832.

In Chavez County, call Charlotte Price, 347-2615.

There is not an affiliate in Lincoln County, but you may call Frances Jones, 257-7601, for information. She is serving on the Board of Alliance for the Mentally Ill—NM, and heads the Housing Committee for the State. There is also a toll-free number you may call: 1-800-950-NAMI. This reaches the office of the National Alliance for the Mentally Ill, and they will help you.

All of us who work in the Alliance for the Mentally Ill are volunteers; most of us have a family member who is mentally ill. We have looked for help ourselves, and have tried to educate ourselves about mental illness, medications, and solutions to our own problems. We are sometimes discouraged, but we never give up. We believe that things can be made better for our family members with some concerted effort on our part, but we need the help of our community leaders and those who represent us in Santa Fe.

The most shocking thing about mental illness is how little people understand it.

The Corona Cardinals and Lado Cardinals traveled to Hondo Friday and took home the wins.

A disappointing loss for the Hondo Eagles on their Homecoming, the 65-18 was a victory for the Cardinals.

Cardinal Les Owens drove right into the 1st quarter with two touchdowns. Jesse Post added his own touchdown to the Cardinal 1st-half score. Paul Miller kicked for two points and connected with James Miller for extra points in the 1st half to end it with the score of 22-6.

Quarterback Garrett Marshall went out of the game with an injury at the end of the 1st half, but is expected to play by the next game.

In the second half, Owen, James Miller and Post all made a touchdown each. Creighton Manness made two touchdowns, as did Paul Miller who played as quarterback. Paul ran in for the extra point, to end the game 65-18.

Other outstanding players were Joe Shaffer, Orlando Chavez, Lynn Parker and Marcus Johnson. Randy and Russell Lueras remain on the injured list.

The Cardinals take a weekend off play this week.

The Lady Cardinals also had a good day in Hondo, winning their match with three wins in four games; 15-11, 15-6, 14-16 and 15-16. Candice Byrd made 18 service points, Jennifer Patterson made 12, Katrina Archuleta made 12, Denise Garnard 8, Angel Shaffer 4, Kallie Young and Callie Gnatkowski 2 each and Rhonda Miller 1.

Recently several Cardinal fans cleaned the Corona football stadium: Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Chavez, Charlie Lueras and family, Kim Riley, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Parker, Joanna Romero, Denise Byrd, Neal Reader, Sara Stewart, Walter Gensler, Anna Garza, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Salina, Phillip Lueras, Mr. and Mrs. Byron Yancey, Stanna Chavez, Gayle May and son, Bill Post, Tommie Lightfoot, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Archuleta and others.

Grizzlies outfight Anthony

By CHRIS SCHLARB

A great Grizzly team effort led to the 28-0 blowout against Anthony last Friday night at home.

Getting the action started was sophomore Nathan Portillo who, on first possession, ran the ball back 60 yards to the 20, setting up the initial Grizzly score. Chris Barela scored from two yards out, then Guy (Slider) Archuleta kicked the extra point for a quick 7-0 lead.

Second quarter action saw the Grizzly defense hold Anthony inside its own territory. Chris Barela added another six points on a 15 yard run; Archuleta kicked the PAT. James Silva scored in the third quarter with a two yard plunge followed by a missed kick.

The party continued in the final period when second stringers Cory Collins and Blas Herrera connected on a 23 yard pass play with 53 seconds left in the game. A Collins to Archuleta pass added the final two points.

Sack artists Justin (Neon) Portillo and Archuleta combined for five sacks and led the Grizzly defense to its second shutout of the season.

Alonso added that home-bound people as well as public interests benefit from the recorded broadcasts. "It helps them become more in tune, aware, and civic minded," he says, "the more the public understands and participates, it makes us better government." Additional sponsors and money are needed for continued television coverage of meetings.

From the podium, and in regard to his personal comments made on Sept. 25, Junge expressed his desire to "put the matter to rest." He also included an apology to the editor of the Ruidoso News for any distress incurred from his remarks.

Lack of interviews and questions on the part of the press, according to Junge, have led toward past misunderstandings. He said he is always accessible to any and all investigative reporting.

Councilor J. D. James congratulated Tammy Maddox and Larry Hill for their work on the float in the Aspenfest parade. Tammy Maddox added that many people from many departments contributed.

Councilor Barbara Ruff reported on the mayor's meeting in Clovis, which she attended in Alonzo's behalf. Mayors from the region gathered for discussions including the constitutional Amendment 4, WIPP, solid waste, the 1/16 raise of gross receipts taxes, right-to-work, recycling grants and many other concerns of this part of the state, remarks Ruff.

City attorney David Thomsen presented the Ruidoso State Bank's application for the transfer of ownership of a liquor dispenser license. Neither zoning prohibition nor hazard to public safety appears to exist, advised Thomsen to the council. The motion was approved to transfer the license from Cochera to the Ruidoso State Bank Inc.

Thomsen also presented an ordinance providing for a lien procedure for delinquent lodger's tax payments. A public hearing for the adoption of it is scheduled for the next regular meeting on Oct. 30.

A dilapidated buildings ordinance was also proposed by Thomsen. State law can allow for clean-up and sale of property by the city in response to property owner noncompliance. The council instructed Thomsen to proceed.

Mayor Alonso commented on the need of enforcement in addition to ordinances. "The laws on the books don't get the job done," says the mayor.

This ordinance however, he continues, might present the opportunity to see if the village has the will to force the clean-up.

In new business, Bill Karn Sr. was appointed by the council as chairman of a Ruidoso City Council meeting television broadcast finance committee. This was in response to Karn's appeal for the council to assist continued televised service.

The council then adjourned for executive session regarding personnel, threatened and/or pending litigation, and acquisition of real property according to the agenda. No action was taken.

Lady Tigers back on a winning streak

Capitan's Lady Tigers got back on their winning track last week defeating Carrizozo Thursday and Loving Saturday.

The Lady Tigers defeated the Carrizozo girls in three straight games on their home court for the match; 15-1 and 15-4 and 15-10. In the 1st game, Karie Cox made 7 service points and Cindy Castillo 5. In the 2nd, Castillo made 12 service points. Kerri Runnels made 5 and Tycie Traylor made 4 in the 3rd game.

Yvonne Hernandez made 3 points for the Carrizozo team in the 2nd game, Laurie Zamora and Yvonne Estrella both made 4 in the 3rd.

Saturday, Lady Tigers played at home against Loving for their first district match, winning in three straight games; 15-6, 15-11 and 19-17.

Coach Pam Allen credited Castillo for playing extremely well in the Loving match. Castillo made 17 service points in all three games, 6 in the 1st and 3rd and 5 in the 2nd. Cox made 3 in the 1st game, 5 in the 2nd. Vicky Sedillo made 3 in the 2nd and Lesley Lahue made 7 service points in the 3rd game.

The junior varsity volleyball team also had a busy, successful week defeating Hondo JV, Carrizozo JV and Loving JV.

Playing on Hondo's court Oct. 3, the Capitan girls won the match in four games; 15-10, 15-10, 12-15 and 15-4. Stacy Gowen made 5 service points in the 1st, Crystal Dalton made 3. In the 2nd game Tycie Traylor made 5 and Marisa Valenzuela made 4. Gowen made 4 in the 3rd game and Christina Imhoff made 4. Jessica Newcomb made 5 in the 4th game.

Hondo's Roberta Chavez made 6 service points in the 1st game and Emily Flores made 3. Celena Copeland made 8 in the 2nd game, Erica Copeland made 5 in the 3rd.

The Capitan JV volleyball team played Carrizozo JV team in Capitan Oct. 4 and won two games and lost one for the match; 15-5, 9-15 and 15-2. Traylor made 6 in the 1st game, Shadow Tate made 3 in the 2nd and Jessica Newcomb made 6 in the 3rd.

Amanda Vega, for Carrizozo, made 4 in the 1st game, Christi Brown made 7 in the 2nd and Vega and Julie Gallegos made 3 each in the 3rd game.

In the game against Loving, the Capitan JV girls won two and lost one, 15-4, 9-15 and 15-9, to win the match. Gowen made 7 and Crystal Dalton made 5 in the 1st game, the players scored evenly in the 2nd and Gowen made 6 and Laurie Griego made 5 in the 3rd.

The next district volleyball game was against Lake Arthur Tuesday in that town.

The Lady Tigers play Ft. Sumner before home crowds Saturday, Oct. 13 beginning with a junior high game at 2 p.m. The next district game will be with Hondo at 6 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 18, in Capitan.

Capitan Tigers found top-five ranked 2AA Jal too tough to tackle and lost 46-0.

The only glimmer of hope came when Bobby Griego returned a kick-off for a touchdown, but the points were disqualified because of a penalty.

Jal ended the first quarter with 13 points made with a deep pass and returned pass for touchdowns. Then they made a long drive for another.

Capitan coach Jim Fowler said Jal came from a loss to Texico the week before and it was homecoming. He said the Capitan boys did not play aggressive football and were not intense in the game.

The Tigers play Reserve Saturday, at 2 p.m. in that town for their first district game. Fowler said the Reserve team has big boys but are not too fast. He plans to work with the Tigers on problems encountered during the Jal game.

Another serious crash at highway intersection

Once again the intersection of Highways 54 and 380 in Carrizozo was the scene of an accident which resulted in injuries to the drivers and extensive damage to three vehicles.

According to Carrizozo Police reports, 76-year-old Paul W. Meeks of Manteca, CA was northbound on Highway 54 when he briefly stopped at the intersection. He claimed he did not see the eastbound 1968 white Chevrolet pickup driven by Gabriel Lopez, 24, of Pharr, TX. When Meeks' 1988 Dodge sedan hit the Lopez vehicle, it forced the truck through the guard rail and into a 1987 Nissan pickup belonging to Pete Narvaez, which was parked at Four Winds. Lopez also was towing a trailer.

Both drivers were cited, Meeks for violation of vehicle entering an intersection without caution and Lopez cited for no insurance.

Meeks was taken to Lincoln County Medical Center in Ruidoso with visible injuries, the two passengers in the Lopez vehicle were checked by EMTs but were not transported.

Tuesday night, the Carrizozo Board of Trustees discussed the dangerous situation at the intersection and feared it would lead to a fatality.

Trustees considered several ways to alert motorists about the intersection, which is not a four-way stop, rather one-way on Highway 54. Numerous times, vehicles stop briefly and then proceed without looking on Highway 380. Speed bumps, more flashing lights and more, larger signs were suggested.

Finally, the board agreed to have the clerk write the New Mexico State Highway area manager and invite him to a town meeting to talk about ways to make the intersection less dangerous.

Currently motorists are warned about the intersection with relatively small signs which show a "generic" stop sign, (one with no letters). Although there is a flashing red light for the Highway 54 traffic, and a yellow caution light for Highway 380 traffic, trustees agreed it was not enough.

So, drivers beware, and slow down at the crossroads of 54 and 380.
