Only residents can serve on boards, village council rules

By DORIS CHERRY

Ruidoso Village Council approved an ordinance that created the Arts and Film Commission and Transportation Advisory Board, but to serve, members must be residents.

The original draft of the ordinance creating the two boards included an amendment to the Ruidoso Municipal Code to allow non-or business within Ruidoso to discretion.

Planning and Zoning, Parks and Lodger's Tax Committee, but state law is not specific on residency for members of other boards. Since an attorney general's opinion dency, village attorney David pal code when it came to resi-

Councilor J.A. Junge said, "I think members should be residents."

in Ruidoso, agreed with Junge, something he said he seldom does. He feared outsiders would create a wideopen situation where the council could be swayed against the general good of the local populace. "There is a general wealth of talent in Ruidoso waiting to serve."

Radziewicz suggested creating a committee to seek out those talented Ruidoso residents to serve on village boards and committees. Junge agreed that was a good Radziewicz also thought the councilors would pass up votes by selecting nonresidents who could not vote for them. "Please keep it local," he appealed.

Councilor Ron Andrews said he asked Thomsen to draft such an ordinance because Ruidoso is a small community where many of the volunteers in village government often serve on more than one committee. By allowing non-residents the village would have a larger pool of people to draw from. He argued if potential board members meet the requirements of the proposed ordinance, business and property owners, then they will be paying taxes, perhaps more than some who live within Ruidoso.

Councilor Barbara Duff defended the attempt to allow non-residents because of the little interest among the villagers to serve on boards since she took office.

"It's not as easy as it seems." Mayor Victor Alonso explained that some potential board members were not acceptable to the council, which brought a response of low chuckles from the audience. He said it seems the public is talented, aware and eager to serve, but it is not always the case; rather, people with one special interest will have the drive and organization for that interest only. He mentioned a person from Aito who was willing create a program for Ruidoso youth. The only problem, she was not a resident and therefore could not serve on a board.

Alonso did not believe the "purse strings" of the village would be adversely affected by appointing non-residents to village boards and committees, since they are advisory in nature.

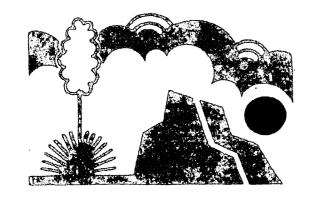

He spoke of the trend toward the regionalization concept where it can be more effective to work across local boundaries.

However, he said, "I have no strong feelings (about the residency) one way or another.'

Resident Dick Shaw encouraged the council to take any recommendations from any advisory board seriously. "Do something about

BEWARE OF FOMITES

"Fomites may transmit harmful disease and those wishing to avoid illness should avoid contact," reads the medical textbook of M. Anne Kegley, M.D.

Kegley says in her Union County Leader column that the first time she saw this word she conjured up images of little crawling termite things that could never be killed, and continued to multiply despite the strongest germicide.

Where are these things hiding? They may be the things you have on your desk and your counter top.

Formites are objects, including books, phones, pens, handkerchiefs and hands, which can retain viruses on their surfaces and act as a means of transmitting them.

"You may avoid the latest resurgence of epidemic viral bronchitis by avoiding contact with these objects," or at least washing your hands frequently if you do share objects with others.

What usually happens is that someone who is ill coughs into his hand, or blows his nose, and then uses the phone or your pen. Then vou see these objects and the virus has now been transmitted to your hands. But you haven't caught it vet. Viruses must be inoculated into your system through the mucous membranes of the eyes or nose to cause disease, says Kegley.

Washing your hands will spare you two weeks of coughing and feeling miserable. The good news: If you're over 60, you may well be immune to most cold viruses. But be on the safe side and don't let the fomites get you down.

DOGGIE SEAT BELTS

Unrestrained animals weighing as little as 15 pounds, or so can become dangerous projectiles in an accident, says a marketing manager for veterinary supplies. To keep automobileriding dogs (and cats) in their place a Rockford, IL pét supply cataloger is selling the Pet Love Belt, a safety harness used with the car's standard belt. The belt not only protects the animal but also could prevent an accident from happening by keeping the pet from crawling on the driver's lap or getting underfoot. What will they think of next?

The company also sells a truck safety belt that is used to prevent a dog from jumping out of the back of a pickup truck. The item is popular in California and Washington where state laws require the cross-tethering or caging of any dog in a pickup.

Capitan trustees will hire a second police officer

Complaints of not enough police protection finally got to the Capitan Village Board of Trustees.

Monday night, at a special meeting, trustees Norm Renfro, Leroy Montes, David Rouleau and Gilbert Montoya, voted unanimously to hire a second, full-time police

Since last year, when former chief Randy Spear resigned, the village has had only one officer, a situation which some citizens thought left the village underprotected: During former village coffers to hire a regumayor Benny Coker's term. present officer Tom Hammontre's position was dissolved leaving the village with only one officer and the Lincoln County Sheriff's Dept. to serve as back-up-during that officer's time off.

But, no verbal or written agreement was formally made between the village and Sheriff James McSwane. only an assumption that the sheriff's department would provide law enforcement since the sheriff and two deputies live within the village.

After current Mayor Frank Warth was elected in early 1990, Hammontre was reinstated. But shortly after, Spear resigned as chief and went to the Ruidoso Police Dept.

Now, with incidents of domestic violence, burglary and vandalism on the rise, trustees were faced with the decision of hiring a part-time officer, which they could afford easily, or hiring a fulltime officer which they need, but are not sure they could afford, budget-wise.

Concerned citizens and parents wanted trustees to hire an officer who can work with school kids. Officer Hammontre also wanted a full-time second officer, years. because a part-time officer would not provide enough off-time hours. With a fulltime officer, Hammontre said shifts could be arranged so one would work days and the other nights, then rotate. Montoya voted no on Montes' Now, he must divide his motion to hire another officer hours between some days or chief, then talked about it and some nights. He could in closed session. But the now work just nights, but quorum carried the motion. that would leave days open

Spear also said the village needs another officer.

The question of how to fund another officer worried trustees. Montes said Capitan was the only village in the county to have less evaluation, which will result in less funds for the next fiscal year's budget. He worried the village did not have enough to pay a "police chief." There also was some worry the state will be asking for extra gross receipts from the villages.

There is enough money in lar full-time officer, Mayor Frank Warth acknowledged. "We can afford one at this level next year too," he said.

McSwane said he wouldn't mind losing or decreasing the amount of the $5,000 annual animal control contract his office has with the village, if trustees would hire the extra officer. McSwane said the $5,000 will go a long way toward the extra officer, since his department cannot continue to cover for the village.

The sheriff also volunteered his department for. any background check or other information or assistance needed for another police officer.

Renfro reminded trustees of the upcoming summer months, when the need for another officer will be critieal. He also did not think a part-time officer would save any money for the village.

Village clerk and treasurer Jan Starnes said the village can afford another officer, but not the salary for a chief. McSwane then mentioned how Carrizozo Police Chief Choncho Morales has worked in that capacity for 31 years. To which Montes replied. Morales now is paid $1687 a month for those 81

"It's a question of getting a chief or a peon," he added. After an hour and half of discussion, trustees and mayor went into closed session to discuss personnel.

- I like that sign posted on the wall surrounding the Kennedy Compound in Palm Beach, FL; 'Trespassers will be violated.' It followed stories about how a woman was allegedly raped at the Compound by Sinator Ted Kennedy's nephew. One of which told of how Sin. Kennedy paraded before a visiting female at the Compound without his trousers. Why? one writer asked. Blame it on the Boy Scouts from whom the distinguished sinator snitched the motto: "Be Prepared." The sex exploits of Teddy Kennedy reminds me that women used to wear floppy underwear called "teddies." They may be coming back in style, except today they should be imprinted with the revised name of "Teddy's." A popular game these days is trying to figure out how many waitresses Ted can "serve" at one time on a restaurant floor

One would think that after more than 10 years of sabotaging Star Wars (SDI) because it won't work, is too expensive, isn't needed—and besides we need more daycare centers—the campaign would slow down. Some SDI technology used successfully in the recent Gulf War proved there's merit in SDI. But our idealogical "experts" continue to deny it, supported (as usual) by a good portion of the media.
- THE whole process reminds me of other thoughty, famous, respected, educated experts who have inveighed against things unthinkable. Let's review some of their stupid assessments that even top the SDI program.

I think we can leave it out of our thinking."—Vanneyer Bush, at a US Senate hearing, December 1945, just before Hitler's rockets went off.

Inside The Capitol

By Jay Miller

SANTA FE-Will Democrats ever find someone to run for president?

The volunteers so far have been less than inspiring, Virginia Gov. Doug Wilder and former Massachusetts Sen. Paul Tsongas are the longest of long shots. Former presidential candidate George McGovern stands even less of a chance in'92 than he did in '72, when he lost every state but Mussachusetts to Richard Nixon.

Among the unannounced póssibilities, Ted Kennedy once again has been touched by scandal. He's almost sure to stay out. Jesse Jackson might try again, but other than establishing a definite home address, by being elected Washington, DCs shadow senaton he hasn't done much to proaden his base in the past four years.

New York Goy. Mario Cuomo and New Jersey Sen. Bill Bradley were embarrassed by much closer re-election campaigns than expected last year. They have not sounded at all serious lately.

There's a whole flock of Southerners who'd love to be president but aren't sure this is the right year to run. THe list includes Sens. Al Gore, Sam Nunn and Chuck Robb, Rep. Dick Gephart and Gov. Bill Clinton.

It seems highly possible the national Demo Party could find itself next year with no candidate able to generate much more than a "flavorable son" following.

It may be time for Demos to do a little recruiting for someone with the name recognition and media exposure to have an immediate following. Famous actors, athletes or generals are all good possibilities. The move is not precedented. Both parties tried to recruit Gen. Dwight Eisenhower in 1952. The GOP got him and look what happened.

Gen. Norman Schwarzkopf is a natural this year. Demos are saying he is one of them, but it appears the good general has always stayed very apolitical. Still it wouldn't be a bad idea. Schwarzkopf has disagreed publicly with Pres. George Bush about ending the Gulf War too soon. The general has clarified, apologized and retracted, but the position may look increasingly wiser as time passes.

If Stormin' Norman turns 'em down, Demos can always go looking in Hollywood—a launching pad for governors, congressmen and even a president.

How about George Burns? The riame is so close to George Bush, it might confuse a few voters. The trick has been tried often in New Mexico, Burns has already served two terms as God, so he should be ready for the supreme challenge.

If Burns isn't available, maybe Demos could try the world of sports. Retired professional athletes are starting to find the move to politics a natural. Football is becoming the most popular sport with TV watchers and television exposure is what's needed for a presidential campaign. Americans love to think of their president as a quarterback and who better to run for president than Roger Staubach, the former signal caller for America's team, the Dallas Cowboys.

Mexico, could pledge a strong defense by activating Dallas' old Fearsome Foursome into his cabinet. Current Cowboy quarterback Troy Aikman has all the necessary tools to be an excellent understudy around with Staubach's long bomb capability?

If actors and athletes don't work, how about grabbing a TV newsman off the presidents.

And if all those don't pan out, Demos still might have an ace in the hole. This could be the year for a woman can-Staubach, who played didate. Ann Richards is busy, some of his football in New Besides, she and Geraldine Ferraro both carry too much baggage for the scrutiny of national media. It would be best to find someone with a spotless reputation and proven executive ability. New Mexico's own Alice King as vice-president. And what fills that bill perfectly. Many foreign power would mess figure she'd have won the governor's race even bigger than Bruce. But maybe she was saving herself for the big stop. The fear of the new, the unknown and the unexpected are terrors in themselves. If we are alive and kicking, don't change anything—it might get worse.

- TAKE the case of Charles Burton of New York City who in 1848 incurred the wrath of New York pedestrians by inventing the baby carriage, a harmless vehicle by today's standards. New Yorkers, however, viewed the baby carriage as a physical danger and a menace to public health. An epidemic of collisions and barked shins sent Mr. Burton to England, fleeing for his life. There he opened a factory, manufactured perambulators instead of baby carriages. They became acceptable only after Queen Victoria, Queen Isabella of Spain and the Pasha of Egypt bought and used the baby carriage. Today a baby carriage provokes no mass hysteria, probably because we have been hit by them for more than 150 years!
- CONSIDER Joseph C. Gayetty, also of New York City. In 1857 he invented toilet paper, marketing it as "Gayetty's Medicated Paper—a perfectly pure article for the toilet and for the prevention of piles." It was made of unbleached, pure manile hemp paper and watermarked with the inventor's name. He suffered social ostracization and public ridicule from hemmorrhoidals reluctant to end their love affair with corn cobs and pages from Sears' catalogs.

proposed ordinance, Junge continued to speak against the non-resident provision. He approved of 80 percent of the proposed ordinance, but wanted to amend the proposed ordinance to strike the non-resident wording and retain the old wording requiring residency. Councilors Junge, Duff, Bill Karn and J.D. James voted for the amendment, Andrews against. The residency requirement was retained.

As for removal of absent beard members, Karn worried people would lose valuable members if the provision was enforced. But Andrews argued certain boards often have 25 percent of the year go by without a quorum and thus no decisions. He wished there was an easier way, but did not want to get into defining Junge suggested a wording change from "shall be deemed to have resigned, from the board" to "may be deemed.

After a 10-minute break with refreshments from Bob and Inez Tanner, Shaw said the councilors should make an example of themselves on missing meetings, because she has seen them miss many times in the past, yet she didnot think councilors should be removed because of this. Also she agreed the council should listen to those members on the boards who otherwise might become discouraged and resign.

Councilors unanimously approved the wording of "may be deemed" as suggested by Junge.

As for the voter registration for LTC members, Alonso said the village has never checked that status or even residency for any board member before. However, a registered voter in Ruidoso must be a resident. Thomsen reminded.

Councilors approved the amendment making registration a requirement for LTC, as was in the municipal code.

Andrews then worried the residency requirement will undo the Library Board which already allowed noncommunities.

After discussion on the amendments, Alonso said it appears if the proposed ordinance is smended so much, it would just be back to the original ordinance to create the Arts and Film Commission and Transportation Advisory Board.

Thomsen said even with the amendments, the new draft eliminates some redundancies in the old ordinance. "There's some positive on this." Alonso commented.

All councilors approved original wording requiring residency for all boards but Library and voter registration for LTC.

James asked if the later the state. Thomsen explained the lodgers' tax does not go to the state. rather directly to the village. Only gross receipts go to the state, then a portion is sent back to the village. The ordi- new NMSHD Sec. Lou Med-nance was approved. LTC chairman Ed Hyman approached the council for approval to increase the LTC budget by $27,120.14, an estimated amount of tex to be receivedfrom lodgers for April, May and June. The figures are based on last year's collections. Hyman also told of requests from four groups wanting funds for promotion out of next year's budget.

James requested LTC wait until budget review to youth government day, in present the requests.

Problems which resulted in violations at the Regional Wastewater Treatment Plant were addressed when councilors approved a resolution which commits the village to comply with clean water regulations, Seven goals are outlined in the resolution: to repair broken and leaking sewer lines; rental or purchase of belt presses, centrifuge and/or other necessary equipment to reduce the volume of waste water sludge which is drying at any one time; develop a plan for disposal of dried solids: expansion of the plant to accommodate increased population over the next 5-10 years; operation for 16 hours per day, up from the present 8; staffing with enough persons with levels of certifica-. tion required by the New Mexico Environment Dept. (NMED); and make application to the New Mexico Wastewater Facility Construction Loan fund for renovation and further repair and replacement of sewer lines.

Village manager Ron Wicker said the loan application has already been made and the village must match the $1.2 million loan 50 persince the library cent: Ruidoso Downs also receives funds from other uses the plant and will be required to pay its share of the loan match.

Wicker also said the village hopes to incorporate the sludge into a composting program being organized by Lincoln County Solid Waste. Authority. Staffing has been increased to 12 hours a day now, and he hopes to go to 16 hours a day soon, since "so many things that can go wrong can cause a great deal of damage."

Santa Fe NMED office had offered to send staff to write the resolution, but the proposed ordinance with Alonso told them to keep the amendments to retain their staff in Santa Fe. "We understand we're in deep, deep trouble."

points north of Ruidoso.

Karn recommended talking to Sen., Pete Domenici and Rep. Joe Skeen for helpwith the federal funding formula for the street project.

Alonso proclaimed May 8 support of the Ruidoso Elks Lodge 2086 youth government programs.

The week of May 5-10 was declared Tourism Week in Ruidoso, in support of the travel and tourism industry which is economically important to the village.

Wicker reported on the recent spring clean-up, which he deemed a "very big success" despite mistakes and piles of garbage depo-sited at the Chamber of Commerce Building, Wicker considered the mistakes a way of learning how to conduct the rano who is in the process of next risan-up, something evaluating the input and very important for the image of the fourist village. Alonso read a letter received from R. D. Hubbard concerning financial help with the extra costs incurred by adding meeting rooms to the civic center in order to make a compromise with Hubbard's hotel project. A letter was drafted and mailed April 16, noting the additional $13,285 in architectural fees created by redesigning the center to add the meeting rooms. The letter included the village's appreciation of Hubbard's commitment totoffer assistance to obtain funds to cover the cost, then asked Hubbard to review his potential sources of funding for the additional architectural fees and hoped for a solution. Alonso said Hubbard had indicated he would try to get extra funds from the New Mexico State Legislature, which did not materialize.

Hubbard's short reply, dated April 18, read: "Dear Victor, I appreciate your problem with the architect and the additional cost you've encountered. However, I feel this is a problem between the City and the architect and do not have a recommendation where the funds could come from I look forward to seeing you in Ruidoso in May." Signed R. D. Hubbard.

Alonso said the council expected as much, and the letter confirmed their expectations. He predicted the council would reconsider the changes and options that have created the $13,285 costs.

Valley of Fires Dedication

MANUEL LUJAN, Secretary of the Interior, joined other state and federal dignitaries Wednesday, May 1, for the formal dedication of Valley of Fires Recreation Area operated by the Roswell Bureau of Land Management. Lujan said the Malpais (Spanish for badlands) provides suitable habitat for several species of animals.

PLANT GROWTH AT THE VALLEY OF FIRES Recreation Area is quite different from that of surrounding country. Visitors to the area will notice choils, yucca, prickly pear cactus, hedgehog cactus, sotol, juniper trees, algerita, salt brush and various grass species. In the background is the new visitor's center. Carrizozo and Sierra Blanca and Nogal Peak are in the far distance. Cacti and wild flowers are now in bloom at the area, but not for long.

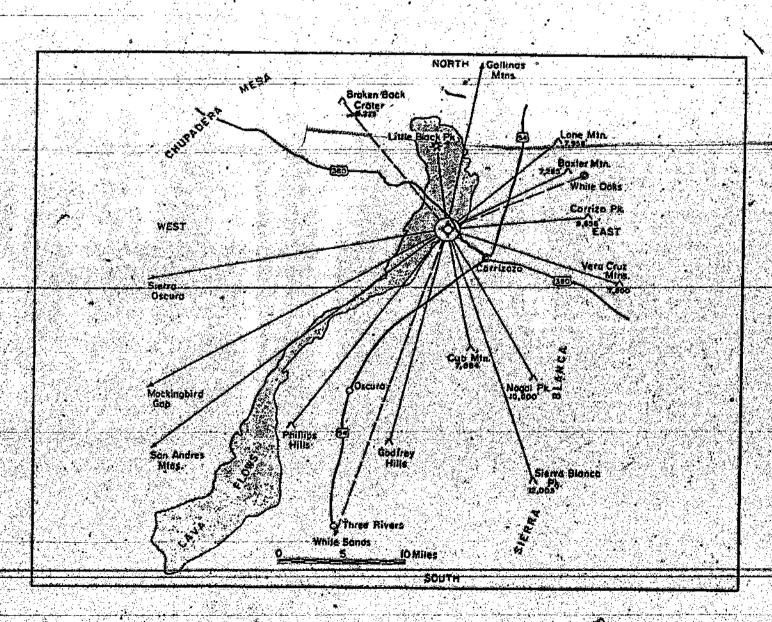

CARRIZOZO MAYOR Cecilia Kuhnel chats with Manuel Lujan, Sec. of the Interior, inside the newly constructed visitor's center at the Valley of Fires Recreation Area. At the dedication ceremony Kuhnel spoke of visiting the lava flows as a youngster. Her father filled her in about the geology, plant life and other points of interest of this historical area.

SECRETARY OF INTERIOR Manuel Lujan is shown going into the visitor's center at Valley of Fires Recreation Area. The building, recently constructed, serves as a historical information distribution area and includes restroom facilities. The area sits atop an "Island" of sedimentary rocks surrounded by lava flows estimated to be 2000 years old. Inclian legend told of the smoking area, thus the name "Valley of Fires." Bureau of Land Managment hopes to turn the lava flows into a 10,000 acre wilderness area.

HOME - A BLUE CHIP INVESTMENT

QUESTION: One normal-ly refers to stocks and bonds as blue chip investments. Shouldn't real estate be in-cluded in this category?

ANSWER: A well-build home in a good neighborhood is, indeed, a blue chip investment. In fact, real estate values have consistent ly increased far more than the value of stocks and bonds. And housing values have always more than kept abreast of the general rise in consumer prices.

There is no reason to believe that this situation will change in the future. There is an increasing demand for homes. Also, real estate tax breaks allow you to keep more of what you carn. It's a blue chip investment - plus!

McSwane said it will be no problem, if the village is willing to allow its officers to assist the sheriff's department in case there are no deputies to respond to a problem in the county, in order to compensate the county officers' time with the village cfficers' time.

"I have no dispute with Capitan (police) officers," McSwane said.

The situation as it is now, McSwane added, is very difficult as there is no way to compensate county deputies who deal with problems within the village. County dispatchers also have a problem with the way Capitan is dealing with law enforcement.

Capitan needs a fulltime officer available," McSwane said. Then he assured trustees his depart-ment would assist the village if the second officer is hired.

The Corona Youth Fellowship will host a senior will continue at the senior bash May 8 at the Indian rocks on the Bond ranch.

Wednesday afternoon Mrs. Lloyd Maness was searching a sink hole on the Richards Latham ranch for a discarded log salt trough she planned to use for a planter. A prairie rattler bit her on the ankle. There was a dash to ranch headquarters, 94 miles from Roswell, Her mother, Eve Latham, applied an ice pack and drove her to State road 42 to meet the Corona ambulance. Elapsed time from bite to hospital, about two hours. She was dismissed Friday, but doctors say it will take about three months for complete recovery. The snake survived.

Bob Bond, Roswell DVM. was testing bulls at the ranch Thursday, Mrs. Bond accompanied him for the day-long visit with Mrs. Dimmitt Bond.

Sue Hughes spent the weekend with Mrs. R. L. Sharp while Jerry Sharp made a business trip to Oklahoma. He came home with pigs for a nephews's 4-H project.

District Judge Richard A. Parsons sentenced several people last week.

Debbie Ortiz, 35, Carrizozo, was sentenced to 18 months probation for harboring or aiding a felon on March 29, 1990, The $100 to CrimeStoppers was waived, but she will have to pay $15 a month for counseling. She had entered a plea of no contest Feb. 18.

John Beltran, 31, Capitan, was sentenced to 12 months jail and fined $3600 after a probation revocation hearing. He was under 18 months probation for larceny under $2500, ordered Aug. 13, 1990. He violated probation Sept. 12, 1990, during an assault-incident at Rodeo Bar. In February 1991, Beltran was extradicted from California after which he admitted to the violations. He was remanded to the Dept. of Corrections to serv time for the balance of the original probation period.

Alan David Sunderland, 23, Ruidoso, was sentenced to five years probation which was deferred contingent he accept, and successfully complete, the STOUT program for the charges of transferring LSD and methamphetamines, conspiracy to distri-bute controlled substances with intent to distribute, two counts of transferring cocaine and two counts of conspiracy to traffic cocaine.

Sunderland was sen-. tenced after he was eva-luated at the Western Correctional Facility in Grants.

Several persons also made first appearance before Judge Parsons on various criminal charges last week.

John D. West, 76, Capitan, pled not guilty to the charges of attempted crimi-nal sexual penetration of a minor and criminal sexual contact with a minor. The first offense is a 2nd degree felony which carries a maximum sentence of mine years prison and/or $10,000 fine. The second charge is a Srd degree felony with a maxi-

Dr. Scott Childress, Capitan Schools superintendent. handed in his formal letter of resignation to the board of education at a special called meeting Monday night.

Childress had indicated his resignation at a special meeting on Monday, April 22, when the board voted to rescind its action to not rehire high school teacher James Fowler. At the regular board meeting April 11, board members voted to fire Fowler, despite the recommendations from both Childress and high school principal Bill Stowe to re-hire the teacher.

Fowler has more than 30 years teaching experience, mostly in Texas. He not only taught math at Capitan Schools but served as head football coach last season, during which time the team had only one win. At the April 22 special meeting, Fowler talked with the board in closed session dealing with personnel. He did not address the board in open meeting. After the closed session board members Preston Stone, Tom Trost, Ken Cox, Ron Roybal and Jack King voted to rescind their determination made at the April 11 meeting and to accept Fowler's letter of resignation. They also accepted the resignation of Earl Wafer, junior high English, social studies and science teacher.

At the very end of the meeting Childress told the board of his appointment to Lincoln County-Commis-meet with the Animas Board of Education, to which he had applied as superintendent. He indicated he would resign his position after he had a definite answer from Animas.

Monday, April 29, Childress formally resigned. His last day will be June 3. His contract ends June 30, but he has several days of accrued annual leave. He will take dent June 10.

In his letter of resignation, Childress thanked the board for his opportunity to provide vision and direction for the education of students at Capitan Schools. "They are excellent kids."

He also thanks them for the opportunity to work with the "finest group of teachers I have seen in any school district" and the highly supportive community.

Childress post-scripted the letter with, "please be assured that my decision is not based on the Fowler incident."

Also at the special meet-ing Monday (April 29) the board instructed Childress not to authorize any purch-ase orders which will impact the next school year budget, rather leave any for the new the remainder of this school year, however.

improved the average salary, which was ranked 28th in the state when he came in 1988, to the 10th rank now.

Childress also helped the schools develop an objectivebased curriculum for grades K-12; added a lot of "neat" electives at the high school such as the drama class, art, Bill MacVeigh's Street Law and Lincoln Colinty History, and Latin; and continual improvement of course offerings at the high school.

The schools did extreme-Jacob Peters, 27, Stir- ly well at the state level in student senate, mock trial and Odyssey of the Mind (both of which were implemented during his tenure). Athletic programs saw successes at the state level during his stay, and the school was able to financially support academic and extracurricular programs such as sports, FFA, FHA, mock trial and student senate.

"All of these would not have been accomplished without the excellent teachers who spend a lot of time on things," Childress said.

When Childress leaves, so will his wife Jacque, who is the school librarian, and their daughter, Stephanie, in the 3rd grade.

Teachers who have resigned so far this year are Lila Heitman, who taught high school math; Wafer in the junior high and Fowler, who taught junior high science
