Town meeting heats up over grant

By RUTH HAMMOND

Grant money and EPA procedures were discussed at the Nov. 12 Carrizozo Board of Trustees meeting.

Verbal battles erupted when trustees debated spending the $5,000 grant money to refurbish the old ice locker plant for the town's new industry, Log Lam, Inc.

Log Lam will manufacture laminated beams to be used in building homes and will hire seven or more local people.

The $5,000 grant comes from Lincoln County for economic development for Carrizozo with the stipulation the work on the building be generic in nature, such as to bring the building up to code and improve appearance of the building, etc.

Log Lam had three written bids for the electrical work submitted by Lincoln County contractors. The low bid of $7,800 included $3,500 in parts. Carrizozo trustees took action at the Sept. 24 meeting and agreed to use the grant money to pay $3,500 of electrical costs and $1,500 of painting and glass replacement costs.

Trustee Harold Garcia wanted an itemized list of the parts to make certain none were specific to Log Lam.

Gary Christensen, one of the owners of Log Lam, provided a list of the individual electrical components used in the building to verify the parts are to bring the building up to code and not for specific Log Lam production.

Now, seven weeks after approving spending the funds, trustees refused to cut checks for the money.

During the meeting Tuesday, Garcia publicly announced, "We will not move any direction." The $5,000 grant money waits to be disbursed.

Log Lam wants the money in order to move forward and begin production.

Garcia says he has problems with the process not complying with the town's procurement policy. Town attorney Bob Beauvais said he had no problem with the amount and quoted section B of the procurement policy. He said the procurement policy would not apply to a third party.

When Garcia continued to object to using the money for costs already approved by trustees, Beauvais suggested using the money on any more work to be done on the building.

Trustee Johnnie Johnson recommended and then

4.25 mill levy continuance up to voters

By DORIS CHERRY

Voters will be asked to continue a 4.25 mill levy at the general 1992 election to finance operations of Lincoln County Medical Center and the Carrizozo Health Clinic.

But the resolution which calls for the recontinuance of the mill levy from its previous eight years, will allow county government to be flexible enough to lower that millage. Commissioners Bill Elliott, Stirling Spencer and Monroy Montes approved the resolution for the mill levy with 3.25 mills for LCMC and 1 mill for the Carrizozo Health Clinic.

Indications are the state legislature will require counties to create indigent medical funds to pay hospital and other medical bills for those who cannot afford to pay. That fund would be created by addition of another percentage to the gross receipt taxes. Commissioners were not against such a fund, but did not want to be bound to assessing a 4.25 mill levy to property owners, if part of LCMC and the Carrizozo Clinic's funds came from gross receipts. The continued mill levy would allow use of those tax dollars to pay for indigent services and commissioners saw that as a double taxation.

Negotiations with LCMC administrator Valerie Miller resulted in a resolution that will allow decrease of the mill levy during the eight-year period if approved by voters. Commissioners approved the resolution. If passed, the levy will not increase taxes for the hospital.

Lincoln County Sheriff James McSwane made an appeal to commissioners to increase the amount the county pays for employee medical insurance. Currently about 35 employees do not participate in the county medical plan because they would have to pay 40 percent of the costs. The county pays 60 percent of the medical insurance premiums. Even with the county's share some employees with families could pay as much as $87.50 every two weeks.

Most employees surveyed by McSwane would prefer the county pay 100 percent of the insurance over a raise. If the county goes with 100 percent participation, most companies polled will offer a discount. Commissioners were willing to consider a higher percentage of payment, but could not afford 100 percent. They indicated preference for payment of 80 percent of the costs.

Also at the commission meeting Tuesday, the precinct maps to be used in the 1992 primary and general elections were approved. The maps, sent from the secretary of state's office, show boundaries of the five commission districts, 13 precincts and their polling places. The maps will be returned to the secretary for final approval. Commissioners passed a resolution with

BLM, commissioners make commitments on land exchange

Bureau of Land Management will get a definite decision on the proposed land exchange in the Rio Bonito valley east of Lincoln from county commissioners.

At their meeting Tuesday Commissioners committed to deciding if they approve or disapprove of the exchange at their next meeting, Dec. 3. And BLM official Sandy Allen committed the BLM to maintain the area for multi-use.

Dialogue with BLM over the proposed exchange began several months ago, a few weeks after a public hearing was held in Lincoln to take input from residents on the proposed exchange. BLM proposes to acquire about 1,400 acres in the valley from the Lincoln Valley Land Company in exchange for lands of equal value in the Las Cruces and other out-of-county areas.

Initial reactions were not against the proposal, however, residents wanted more information from BLM on what it plans for the valley property if it becomes public lands.

Fears of BLM forcing adjoining private owners out to expand the public lands, restricting use of the land to just wildlife habitat and others prompted commissioners to call a moratorium on the exchange until questions were answered. In a series of response from BLM and counter response from county commissioners, some questions have been answered.

Further clarification of the multi-use concept was made by Allen Tuesday, when she told commissioner Stirling Spencer the area will be leased for grazing up to 100 head of cattle. Spencer feared that number would be reduced or never run because wildlife needs would be considered first. Allen assured the 100 head number was arrived after allowing for the wildlife needs first. Management of wildlife problems, such as proliferation of deer, is the responsibility of the Game and Fish Dept., Allen said. BLM works well with Game and Fish on such situation. Spencer wanted BLM to make written commitments to the multi-use of the valley lands.

Commissioners take measures on development

By DORIS CHERRY

Problems created by rapid, underplanned development of Lincoln County lands in the 1960s and 70s prompted commissioners to take some steps.

County commissioners Bill Elliott, Stirling Spencer and Monroy Montes considered and satisfied some issues pertaining to road problems at their all-day meeting Tuesday, Nov. 12.

Commissioners lifted the affidavits which were filed in 1990 on deeds of subdivision properties where roads were never completed and accepted by the county, under advice of county attorney J. Robert Beauvais. The affidavits had done their job, land owners knew the county was not obligated to take care of the private roads.

Road discussion started when commissioners accepted Leotta Pfingston's resignation from the road review committee. Discussion continued with reports from that committee and during consideration of a resolution which amended the road review committee rules to provide $25 a day and mileage and included residency, attendance and registration requirements.

All the talk about roads, prompted commissioners to discuss what precluded the current problems. Development and land speculation in the last two decades resulted in more than 100 subdivision plats being filed with the county. Many of the roads did not meet standards and some were never built.

Also during the development period government reasoned subdivision roads needed more maintenance. To pay for the extra maintenance taxes were imposed, based on an amount per foot which fronted the subdivision roads. The tax was imposed as soon as the plat was approved by county commissioners. Some of those roads were never built. Some that were built and accepted by commissioners were not to standard.

Now the county is faced with deciding to what extent it is obligated to provide road services to dedicated roads.

The October snow alerted county road manager Bill Cupit to the hazards on some of the steep, narrow, paved streets in the Alto area. The streets do not meet current county road standards, but were dedicated in the past. Cupit requested approval to place signs warning motorists to travel at own risk on French, Holly and Alto Drives, El Camino and InnCredible Lane. Holly is the only street people drive on. Cupit said county equipment cannot negotiate the streets safely and the only alternative is for a man to hand-salt the streets.

Commissioners approved Cupit's plan to place the warning signs Beauvais said the warning would lessen the county risk of liability. Commissioners directed the county road review committee to survey the streets in question for a report to the county planning and zoning commission. Also during the meeting, commissioners, county manager Nick Pappas and Beauvais discussed the process of referring subdivision problems to P&Z and the road review committee.

The problem of providing major maintenance or building of roads for the 10 cents a front foot tax imposed on all subdivision properties was not resolved Tuesday. A request from Ralph R. Saylor, who owns property on Rockwood Road in Capitan North Subdivision, to upgrade the road may go to court. Saylor wants the county to improve the road, because he has paid hundreds of dollars in the subdivision road tax.

The county contends the tax was intended for a pool of funds for maintenance of all county subdivision roads and thus is not obligated to upgrade the road for just one property. Research has yet to

Ruidoso Council goes against nuke facility

By DORIS CHERRY

Ruidoso Village Council went on record Tuesday night opposing the Monitored Retrievable Storage facility proposed by the Mescalero Apache Tribe.

At the last regular village meeting, councillors requested staff pursue a grant to track the economic feasibility study of the facility to store high level nuclear waste now being conducted the Tribe's consultants. A grant application packet finally arrived at the administration center Tuesday morning, after numerous calls to Washington D.C. offices, including Senator Jeff Bingaman and Rep. Joe Skeen. Deputy village manager Gary Jackson said he got "mixed signals." The village qualifies for the grant to track the study because of the potential impact to the community by the MRS.

Jackson said it appeared to him many in Washington do not want to throw a wrench in the gears of trying to get the high level waste storage facility. "They don't want us to fool with the operation."

Councillor Bill Karn, who proposed the village apply for the grant, said he saw a television interview where the Department of Energy (DOE) was looking at two sites for storage, one in Arizona and the other in New Mexico. "Even before the study, they (DOE) were looking at New Mexico," Karn said. Jackson will get assistance in writing the grant from Ruidoso resident Dave Dale. Deadline for submittal is Dec. 31.

Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce requested and received up to $15,300 from the village Lodgers' Taxes for postage and an 800 tele-

Ralph Dunlap, above, said the chairs are for a planned 1880-style Masonic Lodge room in the old Lincoln County Courthouse in Lincoln. This has been an ongoing project of Carrizozo Masonic Lodge No. 41. The exhibit should be open to the public by summer of 1992.

Town meeting

made a motion for the town to ask the state if the money could be spent as approved. The board agreed.

Carrizozo resident Joan Means commented about the situation and said, "We need to make sure before we negotiate that things are in writing." She spoke about people and businesses leaving Carrizozo and added, "Let's don't let this happen again. We need to turn the economic situation around."

An equally emotional issue discussed at the council meeting was the proposed action by EPA to pump cyanide-contaminated water into Carrizozo's wastewater treatment plant.

Mayor Cecilia Kuhnel explained her concern that EPA had not obtained necessary state permits before beginning drilling wells at the Cimarron Mill site. After she told officials of her concern, EPA did apply for and received the permit for exploratory drilling.

Kuhnel wants EPA to comply with state regulations during the clean-up process and stated concerns the community should have regarding EPA's actions and costs involved.

Garcia, disagreed and said, "What will it matter?" He went on to say, "We need to get this done as fast as possible." He objected to her asking EPA to take more time and spending more money.

Some members of the audience claimed there is no danger of contamination while others are wanting the clean-up to proceed quickly.

Kuhnel said she is in favor of getting an agreement requiring EPA to pay if there is any problem with the town's wastewater system after having the contaminated water pumped through it.

Another concern Kuhnel had was the negative publicity surrounding Carrizozo after being designated a Superfund site. She wants to require EPA to publicly give Carrizozo a clean bill of health through the media—national and local.

The board agreed the town needs a contract with EPA. Among the items to be included in the agreement: a clause to indemnify the town if there is any third party damage, inspection of the wastewater treatment plant before and after EPA use to make certain there is no damage to the plant, and fees designated for water purchase and sewage discharge with a requirement that bills be paid in accordance with regular customers. Beauvais is to draft a contract.

In other business, trustees received the lease agreement with John Oliver for hangar space at the airport. The agreement will be sent to the airport committee for approval before trustees approve it.

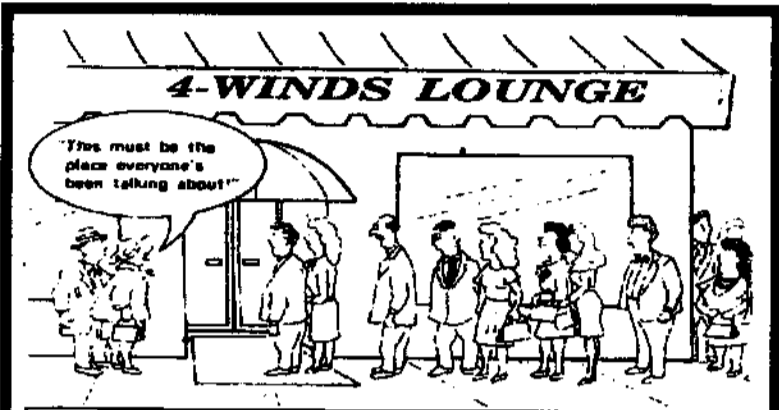

Mayor Kuhnel announced the town will receive $487,828 from the Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) for street improvements for 1991-92.

The town will not lose CDBG grant money and the $45,000 House Memorial Bill money for the current paving project for street improvements because the state granted an extension through the spring of 1992.

The town will proceed with plans to participate in "Light Up New Mexico" where several communities across the state will light a living tree at the same moment the New Mexico living Christmas tree is lighted in Washington on Dec. 11.

Commissioners take find the original resolution or ordinance approved by county commissioners establishing the frontage tax, however.

At this time subdivision roads must undergo a two-year test period before acceptance. Commissioners discussed whether they had to accept the roads even after the two years. The subdivision ordinance states "shall" which bothered commissioner Spencer. He wanted flexibility to reject the roads after the two years. Currently there are no roads in that two-year test period.

"I don't think it is the responsibility of government to guarantee development for private enterprise," Spencer said. "We can't take care of everybody."

He did not mind development, but not paying for its problems. Requiring future developers to have "cash in hand" as surety for roads was Elliott's answer.

Finally commissioners directed Beauvais to draft an amendment to the subdivision ordinance that removed "shall" and inserted may and other clarifications. Beauvais told commissioners to be careful the way they amend the ordinance, because it would take more changes than one word.

Commissioners denied a request to open a one-fourth mile extension off County Road C-046 off Indian Divide to the properties of Birgit LaMothe and Ken and Louise Kirkland. The extension was located totally on private lands and would cost about $9,000 to upgrade. The owners also requested just snow removal, which commissioners also denied, since it is on private land.

In other business, commissioners:

—Directed Cupit and Pappas to meet with the U.S. Forest Service (USFS) and the city of Alamogordo on Nov. 16 regarding a cooperative agreement to repair the Bonito Lake perimeter and access roads.

—Approved the replat of Lots 7-9 in High Sierra Estates Subdivision, as recommended by P&Z.

—Continued a cooperative agreement between the USFS and Lincoln County Sheriff's Dept. for forest patrol.

—Met in closed session for personnel discussion.

Another part of the multi-use will be recreation. Lincoln resident Joe Salazar asked whether BLM would take private property for access to the public lands. Allen said BLM would provide access to private lands across public lands.

During the months-long dialogue with BLM, commissioners set up an Agricultural advisory board to review and make recommendations on proposals by agencies which administer public lands. Bill Hays was elected chairman of the board at an early morning meeting Tuesday. Hays then reported the board's recommendation about the proposed exchange to commissioners—the members were against it.

He said laws require federal agencies to protect the custom and culture of the area in such a situation, which the board saw being violated in the proposal if it is to be used as a wildlife refuge. He also said the exchange would violate the Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo.

"If we bow down to them and allow the trade to go through, it will violate the rights of the people of Lincoln County who would lose more freedoms," Hays said.

The board hopes to make the government fear the people, and recommended commissioners vote against the trade.

Commissioner Bill Elliott, who chaired the meeting because of Spencer's recent eye surgery, finally said he personally believed they had "wrestled this to its limits," and called for the final decision by the Dec. 3 meeting.

The advisory board will forward a report on the county interim land use plan at the Dec. 7 meeting also.

An audience member, who owns land adjoining to the those proposed for exchange, also challenged the BLM plan. He claimed the land company bought the property in bankruptcy court and is now demanding a much higher price per acre than what they paid for it. He contended the county would lose considerable amount of money in property taxes, since the federal payments in lieu of taxes would be much less than what comes from private landowners, something not fair to taxpayers.

Commissioners tabled county manager Nick Pappas' request adjust the budget to create a planning department. Elliott said he would have advocated such a department about six years ago when development was at its peak in the county, but since activity has slowed, he was reluctant to endorse the concept. Spencer was not ready to endorse the department, and wanted to wait until January after the county meets with the forest service about roads.

County mapper Rod Taylor's temporary position was extended up to another six months, to allow him to finish mapping all county roads and rural addressing.

phone number for the present fiscal year. A request for $2,779.01 for postage from last year was not acted upon. Village attorney Dave Thomsen will research the validity of reimbursing the chamber for last year's debt.

Economic Development Corporation of Lincoln County (EDCLC) director Anita Sanders sought endorsement of a plan to market an industrial park at Sierra Blanca Regional Airport. The original airport master plan set aside areas for various types of business and industrial development, councillors learned from Planning and Zoning (P&Z) chairman Robert Donaldson.

EDCLC recently promoted the Carrizozo Industrial Park, but Wicker said the Ruidoso park could offer so much more. After discussion Mayor pro temp Barbara Duff directed Donaldson to work with Sanders and staff member Cleatus Richards to develop a concept plan for the industrial park at the airport.

Councillors also approved an agreement for EDCLC to provide economic development services for the remainder of this fiscal year with monthly reimbursements totalling $17,500 in budgeted funds.

An ordinance regarding the loan application and agreement with the New Mexico Environment Dept. for the Wastewater Treatment Plant improvements and collection system improvements was tabled until language could further be clarified. Village manager Ron Wicker and Jackson told councillors of the future need to raise the basic sewer rates to pay back the $1.2 million loan, if the state approves it.

The week of Nov. 12-19 was declared Domestic Violence Awareness Week, to honor the work done by the Family Crisis Center to assist battered women and families. The Center will have its annual fundraiser Spaghetti Classic at 5:30-8 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 19, at InnCredible Restaurant in Alto. Cost of the meal is $5.25 for adults and $3.75 for children.

A new beer and wine license was granted to Arts Taco at 656 Sudderth Drive. There were no protests to the license application.

In other business, councillors:

—Directed a draft ordinance to ban the use of cedar shake shingles on new and replacement roofs to P&Z. Donaldson will contact the builders association and others in the construction industry to attend the P&Z meeting for input.

—Approved a resolution which amended the village Open Meeting Resolution to allow for less than three hours public notice on emergency meetings only. A section allowing no notice to meet for threatened or pending litigation was deleted also.

—Approved the replat of Navajo Condominiums after five conditions set by staff were satisfied.

—Paid $38,096.60 as the second payment to Bradley Construction for the Civic Center project.

—Authorized continuance of the Avis Vehicle Rentals Inc. at the airport, contingent to payment of $4,040.95 for lease of space.

—Approved publication of a request for proposal for engineering firms to establish costs for assessment districts for paving and sewers in various village subdivisions.

—Endorsed application to the New Mexico State Forestry for $50,000 to purchase trees as a beautification project. Main Street project will also participate in the tree project which might result in additional funds available.

—Purchased a 1988 Chevrolet pickup seized in a drug raid. A $7,308 lien to a local bank will be paid.

The next regular meeting is set for Tuesday, Nov. 26.

Ruidoso Downs trustees enter into agreement

By AL STUBBS
RUIDOSO BUREAU

Ruidoso Downs trustees entered into an agreement Tuesday night with the Humane Society of Lincoln County whereby the society will accept delivery of animals from the Downs.

A payment of $300 a month will be made to the contractor. Meanwhile, Ruidoso Downs is seeking an animal control officer after trustees rejected an applicant at the meeting Tuesday night.

Trustees dealt with animal control, tearing down of the old municipal building, housekeeping and a number of routine items. Pending a check by the village attorney on a legal matter, trustees approved a contract with a Mr. Montgomery to raze the old village hall. The New Mexico Environment Department has mandated the razing because of health considerations. Broken sewer pipes under the concrete floor are the apparent cause of the problems. The village attorney was instructed to find out if a person must have a contractor's license to raze a building.

The agreement with the humane society will run for one year until Ruidoso Downs can accumulate enough money to provide its own kennel facilities.

"Let's go with the humane society until we can get some money built up," trustee Jackie Brannum said.

Estimated cost of removing the present kennel and building a modern facility is $18,000 to $20,000. If a large animal holding pen is included the cost would be about $30,000, trustees were advised in a memo.

Trustee Ray Frederickson said he favors finding an animal control officer who lives in the Downs and who has a family to support.

Mayor Bonnie Addy said she will go back to applications received when the village advertised for such a person.

In other action, trustees accepted a bid from Oscar Hoffer for janitorial services. For $500 a month, Hoffer will clean both the senior citizens center and village hall once a week, with the village to furnish supplies and equipment. Other bids were from Betty's Janitorial, Janet Hazel and Murray Janitorial.

Water technicians Denis Riddle, David Weibrecht and Bill J. Page were authorized to attend a Water School, Nov. 18-22 in Albuquerque at UNM.

Brannum said because waste water facilities must be updated and improved in conjunction with Ruidoso, sewer rates will have to rise by $4 per month by 1995. She suggested an ordinance be drafted effective after the first of the year to raise rates by $1 per month the first year and $1 per year in subsequent years.

Ruidoso has to go seek a $1 million loan to upgrade facilities, Brannum said. Ruidoso and Ruidoso Downs share sewage disposal facilities.

A meeting was scheduled at 7 p.m. tonight (Thursday, Nov. 14) at the Older American Center in Ruidoso Downs to discuss the pros and cons of annexation. The village proposes to annex the Agua Fria area east of Spring Road. Mayor Addy had invited the county manager, county road manager and others to attend.

"I hope it will be an amicable meeting," she said. "It's just for exchanging annexation ideas."

Saving labels for education

Mal Pais Colts 4-H Club members, as a community service project for 1992, will be participating in a label collection drive in conjunction with the students of Carrizozo Schools.

'Zozo chamber members protest

Carrizozo Chamber of Commerce members were unanimous in a decision at the Nov. 12 meeting to protest the negative publicity of Carrizozo printed in a travel handbook.

The book states: "Carrizozo, the sleepy seat of Lincoln County," and after comments about how travelers usually pass Carrizozo by, goes on to state, "If you're traveling east-west, between Roswell and San Antonio, you drop down onto the sweeping brown Carrizozo plain after winding through gorgeous green mountains and sensuous foothills. You're probably not particularly taken with the town."

The book also states, "If you're traveling north-south between Albuquerque and Alamogordo, Carrizozo is little more than a place to release your cruise control for a few minutes before resuming your cross-country stride."

Members asked that a letter be sent to the publisher and/or author protesting the negative publicity of Carrizozo.

Printed November 1991, this is the second edition of New Mexico Handbook and contains listing about accommodations, food, services and recreation in the area and the chamber address for more information. The food and accommodation listing for Carrizozo are not up-to-date.

During Tuesday's meeting held at Carrizozo Airport new officers were installed. Officers for 1991-92 are president Ruth Hammond, president-elect Doug Whitaker, treasurer Patsy Serna, recording secretary Cleve Powell, corresponding secretary Mary Lou Webster, and board of directors will be Ralph Forsythe, Woody Schlegel, Hal Marx, Doris Cherry and officers. Lunch for the meeting was prepared by Hal Marx.

Chamber membership was discussed. The annual Christmas ad will be printed in Dec. 19 issue of the Lincoln County News with a list of all paid members.

- Thinking back, literally, I don't know when this writer had a stranger week. Bent over to get a drink of water and there it went — the back. Can lift weights, but can't bend the incorrect way (incorrect as far as have been told).
- Once was polishing furniture; bent down to do the coffee table and was felled as if shot with a large rifle. Lay there quite awhile before being able to crawl to the sofa.
- Friend Chuck says go to the chiropractor; would do, but can't bear to think of what happened once in Texas, or twice. Chiropractor nearly killed me. Had one, the late Dr. Herman L. Gibson, who was a magician. But a couple of others, who shall remain nameless, seemingly attempted murder.

Republicans bickering

By JAY MILLER

SANTA FE — Lest you get the idea from these columns that Democrats have all the fun when it comes to internal battles, read on.

True, Republicans know such bickering is not really proper, but sometimes they just can't resist.

In the middle of many a GOP fray, of course, is former Democrat Les Houston of Albuquerque. But it's not as though Houston is an unwanted convert. Senate Republicans have elected and re-elected him as their leader.

A year ago, it appeared state Republicans would get in a major battle completely devoid of Houston's involvement. U.S. Sen. Pete Domenici and Interior Department Secretary Manuel Lujan had decided to reassert their long-time leadership of the party by backing Lou Gallegos, a former employee of both, for state GOP chairman.

Domenici and Lujan felt the affable Gallegos would be a welcome relief from state party chairman John Latta, who had embarrassed many party stalwarts with blistering attacks on the opposition, while losing all statewide offices in the 1990 general election.

It appeared that the Washington-based GOP leaders would have their way until Houston entered the scene. The Senate leader convinced several of his colleagues that Republican lawmakers needed to get more involved in their party.

Supporting Gallegos would not get Houston and friends anywhere, so they backed Latta, who wanted another term. Latta won and Houston now has a finger in that pie.

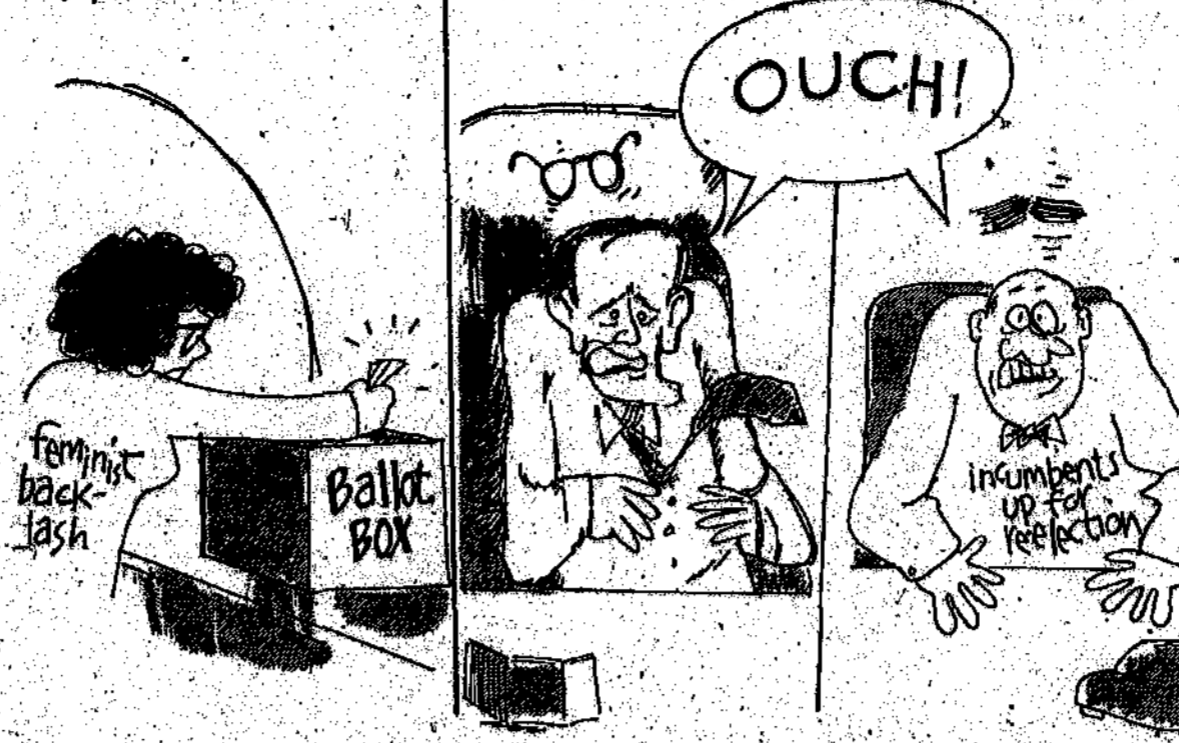

The most recent Republican battle does not involve the party structure, however. It dates back to when Houston was a Democrat, disillusioned by a party that couldn't accept his brand of conservatism. From across the aisle came offers of assistance in the 1984 general election from a group headed by Senate GOP leader Joe Mercer.

Houston accepted the support but found it wasn't unanimous. Head of the Republican Legislative Campaign Committee that year was Rep. George Buffett. He didn't like the idea of giving money to a Democrat, no matter how conservative he might be.

Buffett thought Houston's Republican opponent, Jerry Lee Alwin, should get the help. Houston beat Alwin, and the following year switched to the Republican party.

In 1986, Alwin won a seat in the House. He and Buffett have not been able to patch up relations with Houston during the years since.

SANTA FE—Los Alamos scientists may have figured out a way to solve some of the nation's nuclear waste disposal problem.

First we buy our plutonium from the Soviets. Then we put it in nuclear-powered batteries that we send to the far reaches of space.

Earlier this year, scientists at the Los Alamos National Laboratory quietly analyzed a sample of Soviet plutonium to see if it's as good as we make.

The answer was yes. That's good news because one year's production of plutonium-238 at the Department of Energy's Savannah River Site in South Carolina generates 166,878 cubic feet of solid radioactive waste—enough to cover a football field two feet deep—and another 32,000 gallons of liquid radioactive waste.

All that waste yields only 32 pounds of plutonium. And a lot of the waste might eventually wind up being trucked across the country for burial at the Waste Isolation Pilot Plant near Carlsbad.

Why not let the Soviets figure out what to do with the nuclear garbage?

Oh, sure, we'll pay 'em a pretty penny, but the way things are going, nuclear waste disposal may end up being much more expensive than the production process. And as economically starved as the Soviets are, the U.S. government should be able to get a good deal for its money. Or is that an oxymoron?

Someone may worry about carting all that plutonium a third of the way around the world to get it here. But in a strange case of myopia, nuclear protesters never have been able to see a danger in the two million shipments of nuclear material the DOE has made in the past 40 years. The only danger seems to be in carting the waste around.

Of course, the same people who won't worry about an air accident during the plutonium's travels from the Soviet Union, are deeply troubled by the possibility of a space vehicle accident with a nuclear battery aboard. Granted, there are more accidents in the space program, but the possibility of getting any radioactive material out of our solar system should appeal to the anti-nukes.

One possibility for nuclear waste disposal has always been to fire it into the sun. As rocket science becomes more sophisticated, that may become a possibility, but for now it has too many detractors.

Nuclear batteries are used on space probes that go beyond the range that a solar-powered battery can operate. LANL now is playing a greater role in the manufacture of plutonium fuel cells for nuclear batteries because the Savannah River facility that used to produce them has shut down.

Purchase of the Soviet plutonium is not a reality yet, but U.S. production of the material is falling behind schedule and there already has been a thawing in the Cold War policies that prohibited trade in anything nuclear between the superpowers.

Earlier this year the United States purchased a Soviet Topaz II space nuclear reactor that will be brought to Albuquerque for study by scientists from the Air Force, the University of New Mexico, and Los Alamos and Sandia National Laboratories.

HIDEOUS CREATURES

A Lincoln County News reader noticed an inaccuracy in a list of mythological creatures in this column. Sleuth that I am, I uncovered evidence that a monster that lurks in newspaper offices the world over had stopped at this newspaper office that week. The dreaded "Typo" played havoc with two of my creatures from mythology.

Column readers may one day get an opportunity to win diamonds, trips or refrigerators on TV game shows by their knowledge of little known facts. So that I can sleep nights I want to correct the error and give prospective TV game show contestants a winning chance. A minotaur is not a woman whose hair was made of snakes and whose face turned people to stone. (By the Way Oct. 31, 1991)

The mythical monster, Minotaur has a head of a bull and the body of a man. King Minos of Crete kept it in a Labyrinth, a maze-like building. Minos sacrificed seven Athenian youths and seven Athenian maidens to it each year.

Medusa is the mythical creature whose hair was made of snakes. Medusa had been beautiful in her youth and proud of her hair. She boasted of her beauty to Athena, who became jealous and changed her into a hideous person. Medusa has staring eyes, protruding fangs for teeth and writhing snakes for hair. She was so ugly that anyone who saw her turned to stone.

THANKS TO US

According to Channel 7 News this past Monday evening, a living 80 foot Christmas tree is trying to make its way to our nation's capitol in time for Christmas. The 18-wheeler used to transport the big tree had a set back due to road and road conditions.

The tree is a gift to the nation from us New Mexicans and the Carson National Forest.

The Northern New Mexico evergreen, the first ever living U.S. Capitol Christmas tree, will also help celebrate the centennial of national forests in the United States.

After the holiday, the tree will be taken to its permanent home near National Forest Service headquarters, where it will serve as a symbol of forestry conservation.

NINETEEN YEARS AGO

When I started compiling this column 19 years ago I began sharing with readers bits and pieces of fact and fiction items that I gathered from here and there. The subject always includes this, that and the other.

Let's see how many of these questions you can answer this week:

What is a flivver?
What is a mythomaniac?
In the Mother Goose rhyme, for whom does Hickety Pickety, my pet hen, lay eggs?

What does a fluviologist study?

If you bumped your sinciput, what would you bump?

According to legend, who cut the Grand Canyon by dragging his pick behind him?

What is nyctophobia?

What is a pottle?

In the Mother Goose rhyme, what problem did the little old lady who lived in a shoe have?

STUMPED FOR ANSWERS?

An old or inexpensive car.

Someone who has an abnormal tendency to lie and exaggerate.

For gentlemen. Rivers and streams. Your forehead.

Fear of night or darkness. A container that can hold a half gallon of liquid.

She had so many children, she didn't know what to do.

YOU'RE GROUNDED!

Parents usually tell their children what to do and not to do. "Go practice the piano," and "Don't make fun of your sister."

When have you heard grown-ups talk to each other like this:

"Do you want me to wash your mouth out with soap?"

"Now, say you're sorry."

"Stay in your room until I say you can come out."

"And just where do you think you're going?"

Free seminars on (NTTCs)

Any business person with questions about the new non-taxable transaction certificates (NTTCs) should plan to attend the Taxation and Revenue Department's free seminars held in various locations throughout the state.

Businesses will be required to start using the new NTTCs January 1, 1992. Information can be obtained at the following seminars:

Friday, Nov. 14, at 9 a.m. at Roswell Public Library Bondurant Room at 301 N. Pennsylvania. Contact Amy Joy at 624-6065 for more information.

Monday, Nov. 18, Santa Fe, at 9 a.m. at the ballroom of The Picacho Hotel (formerly the Sheraton) at 750 N. St. Francis Drive. Contact Maria Clokey at 827-0948 for more information.

Legislation passed in 1991 cancelled all outstanding NTTCs as of January 1, 1992 and imposed a $100 one-time fee for NTTCs to be used after that date. At the seminars Taxation and Revenue officials will give a legal overview of the program.

Letters to the Editor

EDITOR—A recent study reveals that the present tax structure is "rigged against middle class America." As if we never knew. But, we do have the right to wonder about a lot of things.

For example, the article tells us that "almost half of all Americans... earned less than $20,000 a year." Why not rule that anyone making less than $20,000 per year be totally exempt from income taxes, in fact, not even required to file?

What better way to help the poor than to allow them to keep the money that they earn? What better way to reduce the size of government. It might even require that we reduce foreign aid. We might even have to get along with less government. Most of us could get along with that.

RAYMOND C. WILSON, San Juan Bautista, Ca.

The Other Side

By OWEN RUSSELL

Hump Day (Wednesday) seems to be a tradition that is beginning to become popular to those who have nothing else to occupy their time with than to think up weird event things. We used to have clock watchers, and now we have week watchers for those who can't move fast enough to keep up with hourly periods. We have NAWISL, Tuesdays, Hump Day, GIWIWF, and TGIF. By the way, for those of you who aren't current on strange acronyms, TGIF of course stands for "Thank God, it's Friday", GIWIWF stands for "Gee, I wish it was Friday", and NAWISL for "Never again will I so indulge".

Now you know why we don't have a three-day work week. We would have a cuts designation with nothing to designate.

The reason I haven't mentioned Hump Day earlier is that my practices has been to write this column about thirty minutes before it has to be in the mail on Mondays so it will get to Carrizozo in time to be published on Thursday, and as you will note from the above discussion, the last thing on my mind on Monday is Wednesday.

It seems that people have a need to impress others because doing so makes them feel good about themselves, but the problem with trying to convince someone else that you have some outstanding attribute is that you need a new one every day. You might be successful in convincing me today that you are the best thing that has happened to the world lately, but what are you going to do tomorrow? I may buy your argument once, but don't push your luck.

You can be whatever you want to be if you have any time left after trying to convince others you are something more than you are.

As you go through life, you select certain individuals to emulate, depending on your mood at the time. You feel inadequate about your lot in life so you select a role model which you feel will improve your image of yourself as seen through the eyes of others. The strange thing about this process is that you actually take on some of the characteristics of your idols.

In my case, I am a victim of mixed emotions. I have developed the vocabulary of Gary Cooper, the vocal patterns of Jimmy Stewart, the facial features of Charles Bronson, the muscles of a Charles Atlas student, the figure of the Frito Bandito, the mental agility of Mortimer Snerd and the sex appeal of Fred Flintstone. Next week I'm going to add Clark Gable's mustache.

Now, if I ever run into whoever it is I am trying to impress, my efforts will be justly rewarded.

I remember everything except organized detail. I usually can recall my name, address, vital statistics and shoe size without too much lead time, but when it comes to having to relate specific details about what day it is or why I am where I am, then I have to have a bit more research opportunity. More about this later, if I don't forget.

When I say I'm 99% sure, I mean if it doesn't happen, you can't blame me. When a lawyer tells you you have better than a 50% chance of winning your case, that means he still wants his fee up front. When the weatherman says there is a 40% chance of weather occurring, he is usually right, but what has become known as the 2% rule is "in case it happens, we predicted it."

Because it seems to be a developing controversy, I think in a future column I will try to say something about the plans the Mescalero Apaches have for considering the construction of a nuclear waste storage facility. I don't know anything about nuclear things, but lack of knowledge has never stopped me before.

When I started doing this column, I set up a procedure for saving everything I wrote so I could hopefully avoid repeating myself. I may later expand on some items I have mentioned before, but I hope to add new insights and information when I touch on the subject again. Plagiarism is excusable, but you are supposed to do it to others, not yourself. I can't find the word "autoplagerism" anywhere in the dictionary.

My son once told me the reason he copied a section out of the encyclopedia for a class paper he was writing was that the guy who wrote the encyclopedia article said it better than he could. When his teacher complained about it, he said he should at least get some credit because he had put the effort to read the material. That didn't work either.

I was once asked if I enjoyed reading as well as writing, and I emphatically informed the individual that I was not ambidextrous. I might be able to read or write, but not both at the same time. That is like patting your stomach and rubbing your head. It works fine if the operations are conducted on different days, but don't ask me which is appropriate on Hump Day. In fact, I'm not sure what is appropriate on Hump Day, since I don't understand what a hump is. It sounds like one of those ambiguous phrases I mentioned last week.

Governor declares education week

SANTA FE—At the request of the National Education Association of New Mexico, Gov. Bruce King has issued a proclamation declaring the week of Nov. 17 as "Education Week" in New Mexico. The governor's proclamation saluted both America's and New Mexico's public schools, calling them "the surest pathway" to a future of prosperity, justice and freedom for all Americans. King's action in proclaiming "Education Week" is part of the national observance of the 70th annual American Education Week, started by the American Legion and the National Education Association in 1921. The 1991 theme is "Schools and Communities: Partners for a Strong America." In his proclamation King notes, "The youth of New Mexico are our most precious natural resources... the future of American democracy is in the hands of our children in today's classrooms (and) quality education demands the active involvement and collaboration of all segments of the community and state." President Ima Lee Walls said, "The governor's message is on target with what public schools need—cooperation and collaboration among all citizens and educators to give all students the skills they'll need for the next century." She added, "Public schools can rise no higher than the communities that support them." Wells, president of the 8,000 member NEA-NM, said American Education Week is "an ideal time for school personnel to form partnerships with business, civic groups, senior citizens, employers and community service agencies." NEA-NM locals throughout the state will be celebrating the week with a number of special events honoring both teachers and education support staff.

Lady Tigers region champs

JAMES SILVA advances the football during last Friday's Class "A" playoff game in Hagerman. Hagerman won 24-0. The Bobcats will host the Loving Falcons at 7 p.m. Friday, Nov. 15. The game will determine the state Class A champion.

Grizzlies lose to Hagerman 24-0

By BART McDONOUGH

The expected "shootout" never developed.

Hagerman's Conrado Bejarano scored all three Bobcat touchdowns, and Scott Swope kicked a 33-yard field goal to lead Hagerman past Carrizozo 24-0 at the football playoff Friday, Nov. 8.

The Grizzlies were penalized 11 times for 95 yards. The penalties seemed to come when it hurt the most.

Hagerman scored with 1:43 left in the first quarter following a 62-yard drive. Bejarano went in from five yards out.

With two minutes left in the first half, a Bobcat field goal attempt was no good.

Carrizozo got the ball on its own 20-yard line. The Grizzlies completed a long pass which was called back. The football had been thrown beyond the line of scrimmage. The half ended with Hagerman out front 7-0.

The Bobcats' second touchdown came with 4:31 left in the third quarter. Bejarano went four yards on a quarterback keeper. Swope kicked the extra point.

Hagerman 14, Carrizozo 0. Moments later Mike Ollivas intercepted a Grizzly pass and ran it back to the Carrizozo 25-yard line. It was here that Swope kicked a 33-yard field goal. It was Hagerman 17, Carrizozo 0 as the third quarter ended.

James Silva caught a nifty pass early in the fourth quarter for the Grizzlies, but penalties again hurt the Carrizozo boys.

Silva soon intercepted a pass, but Carrizozo couldn't do anything with this break.

The final Bobcat TD came on an 11-yard run by Bejarano capping a 61-yard drive.

The game ended with Cory Colling at quarterback for the Grizzlies.

The Capitan Lady Tigers are Region D Champs.

And are on their way to the state contests in Moriarty to compete with the state's other best Class A volleyball teams.

"The girls played with reckless abandon and absolute determination," said Coach Pam Allen. "They played extremely well, they had their best serving game all year against Ft. Sumner."

The Capitan girls won their ticket to the state contest by playing two tough contenders in the Region D tournament Saturday—Ft. Sumner and Cloudcroft, the two teams which defeated the Lady Tigers during regular season.

The Lady Tigers played five games with the Ft. Sumner Vixen to win—15-4, 5-15, 15-13, 2-15 and 15-9. Jennifer Eldridge and Stacy Gowen made five service points each in the first game, Kelly Cox made three and Tylic Traylor made two.

The girls lagged in the second game, Eldridge and Gowen made two each.

Tammy Payne had a good service game in the third, making six points. Gowen made four and Cox three. In the fourth game the girls over-served to lose it quickly to Ft. Sumner.

The girls knew they had to win the last game, to get to the state games. "I felt the kids wanted it awfully bad," said Allen.

So they played the best match. Coach Allen and assistant coaches Norm Cline and Sherry Gowen had ever seen. Ft. Sumner had gained the lead and the Capitan girls were down 8-3.

Traylor came to the service line and served six straight points, bringing her team to tie with the Vixen, then moved ahead and 9-8. A side-out ball gave Ft. Sumner another point to tie the teams at 9-9. Then the Vixen missed the serve and the ball went back to the Lady Tigers, but no score. The Lady Tigers broke serve and Gowen served up the 10-15 for the win.

"They worked real hard on their serving game," Allen said. She noted that 95 of the 100 balls served in the game were put into play.

That win alone provided a way to the state games as a runner up. But the Capitan girls wanted to defeat Cloudcroft girls, who had shut them out of the district championship.

Capitan advanced to the regional final with Cloudcroft Saturday night. Cloudcroft defeated Carrizozo earlier that day.

And they won in four—13-15, 15-8, 15-7 and 15-5.

Kelly Cox dove and dove during the match with Cloudcroft and did well at the service line in the second game.

In the first game Eldridge made five service points, Payne four and Cox one. The Lady Tigers shook off the first game loss and played with abandon to take the game in the next three wins. Cox made eight points in the second game, three in the third and four in the final. Gowen had a good game at the service line with her four in the second and third and three in the final. Eldridge made two points in the third and one in the final.

"As a team they are about as good as you can get," Allen continued. There really are no heroes in volleyball, she said. Team members play in highly specialized positions, each member doing her own job at maximum—that is why they are successful, she added.

"They did a super job, I'm extremely proud," Allen said. "It felt good."

The Lady Tigers will

Good season seen by Carrizozo's Lady Grizzlies

It was a good season, with honors well deserved.

Carrizozo's Lady Grizzlies ended their volleyball season with a loss to Cloudcroft at the regional contest in Ft. Sumner Saturday. And they ended the season with three all-district players and two good sportmanship trophies.

Lady Grizzly Coach Kay Patterson said the girls played real good, but their few lulls were enough for Cloudcroft to move ahead to win the match in three games: 12-15, 13-15 and 6-15.

Patterson also was real proud of the girls' performance all season. Coaches and fans from other schools also complimented the Carrizozo team for its great improvement this season.

At the match with Cloudcroft, Yvonne Estrella served six points in the first game, she also had four hits and one block. Rachel Archuleta made three service points and had three hits. Micha Schlarb made one point and had five hits, Renee Roper made one point and two hits, Amy Funk had one point and two hits and Cheryl Hightower had three hits.

In the second game, Archuleta made four points, including an ace and she had one hit. Roper made three points and had one hit; Hightower, Estrella and Funk made two points each.

In the final game of the volleyball season, Roper made three points, one hit and two kills. Estrella made two points and had one hit. Schlarb made one point, three hits and two kills. Hightower had two hits and one kill.

Carrizozo girls now move on to basketball. The junior high team started practice Monday and the high school girls began Wednesday. The first game of the basketball season is set for Dec. 3.

compete in the state games for the fifth successive time this year. During those years the team had never finished below fourth. In 1988 the Lady Tigers won the Class A final, they were 3rd in 1989 and second last year.

"We've always made it out of the first round," Allen said of the state contest.

By the time THE NEWS hits the stands today (Thursday), Nov. 14, the Capitan girls will be Moriarty playing Region B runner ups, the Tatum Lady Coyotes, whom they defeated in regular season. Also playing today (Thursday) are Region A Champ Cimmaron against Region C runner up Quema-

do. The winners of that match will play the winner of the Capitan-Tatum match at 9 a.m. Friday in the auxiliary gym.

Region B champ Dora will play Region D runner up Cloudcroft at 1:30 p.m. today. The winner will play the winner of the contest between Region C Champ Rehoboth and Region A runner up Roy at 10:45 a.m. Friday. The consolation match is set for 7:45 p.m. Friday.

The final Class A match will begin at 6 p.m. Saturday in the main Moriarty High School gym.

Admission to the state matches is $4.50 for adults and $3.50 for students.

Laggs put spirit into wood crafts

By DORIS CHERRY

The spirit of wood inspired Georgia and Mike Lagg to begin their line of fine wood crafts.

With Georgia's steady hand and Mike's quick construction the couple produces a popular line of wooden boxes. Although Georgia calls them "utility" boxes, the finely-detailed small containers feature leaves, vines, birds, hidden cats and other creatures, all cut with a fine blade.

The Nogal couple constructs the boxes of native and exotic hardwoods. Georgia creates the designs for each box based on the look of the wood, or a mood, such as a hidden cat, or flying birds. The leaf and other cut-outs are often not larger than one-fourth of an inch long. She accomplishes the fine work with an equally fine power tool—a scroll saw with a .05-inch blade.

"I find it as easy to use as a pencil now," Georgia said as she cut out a vine and leaf design on the side of a disassembled box. Mike prepares the boxes for Georgia's handiwork by making the various pieces. After Georgia finishes her work on the boxes, Mike assembles and finishes them.

Design comes second nature to Georgia, who earned her BA in art at Texas Tech. Then she continued school in Houston, after which she worked with the Houston Museum of Fine Arts. From the museum, where she learned "soft sculpture," she went to Mexico, then south Texas where she learned woodworking while an artist in residence at a sawmill. The mill cut mostly with native hardwoods, and those scraps attracted Georgia's eye. She began to make jewelry from the scraps, then evolved into the box sculptures.

Now, with Mike's help, Georgia's boxes are made of black walnut, mesquite and maple, cocobolo and bloodwood from Brazil, purpleheart from Africa. The boxes with cut-out designs can be used for potpourri. Georgia and Mike also made larger boxes with drawers for jewelry.

"The boxes have been real good sellers," Georgia said.

The Lagg's work is not restricted to boxes, they also make wooden jewelry, wooden Christmas decorations and Mike's specialty, toys and windmills. The sunflower windmill, with blades that spin in opposite directions, colors the yard at the Lagg's Nogal residence and wood studio. Toys include rocking horses and wagons, complete with handbrakes.

Mike also makes a line of wooden clocks constructed of such woods as Algerita and mesquite. He found the wood of the local Algerita, a bush with prickly leaves and red berries, to be very oily, but colorful. Mike's craft is self-taught.

"I'm still learning," he said.

The Lagg's work can be seen at the Blue Door Gallery in Capitan, The Treasure Box Gallery in Mid-town Ruidoso, or the Weems Gallery in Albuquerque. The Treasure Box will have its grand opening Nov. 24.

The Lagg's also have wooden creations at their studio in Nogal, located just west of Highway 37—where the wind mills decorate the yard.

"Functional" art, that is what Georgia and Mike prefer to call their work. Beautiful creations which capture the spirit of wood also can describe their work. The public is invited to meet Mike and Georgia Lagg at the Blue Door Gallery in Capitan from 1-5 Saturday, Nov. 16.

WOOD ARTIST Mike Lagg checks on wooden creations outside his Nogal studio. Mike constructs windmills, toys and basic boxes. His wife, Georgia does fine scroll cutting on the small "utility" containers. The couple's work is featured at Fosley's Blue Door Gallery in Capitan.

Skeen applauds review board

Congressman Joe Skeen, R-N.M., today applauded the work of eight men and women from southern New Mexico who have completed their work on Skeen's Academy Review Board. The board convened on October 26 in Las Cruces to meet with the students who had asked to be nominated by Skeen to the military academies.

"Nominating these young men and women to the nation's military academies is one of the toughest and most rewarding jobs I have as your Congressman," Skeen said. "I rely on the recommendations of the Academy Review Boards in making my nominations." Representing Lincoln County on the board is Mr.

Nick J. Pappas. Pappas, who will serve a 2-year term, is presently Lincoln County Manager. He and his wife, Beth, are the parents of three grown children. They reside in Nogal.

Other Academy Review Board members include: Mrs. Bobby Hettinga, Las Cruces; Mr. Dave Kimble, Las Cruces; Mr. Ward Ball-mer, Silver City; Mr. Bryan Forcher, Deming; Mr. R.B. Holmes, La Luz; Mr. James Grider, Truth or Consequences; and Mrs. Alma Green, Socorro.

Based on the results of this review board and another board which met in Roswell, Skeen nominated ten students to the Air Force Academy at Colorado Springs, Colorado; ten students to the Naval Academy at Annapolis, Maryland; and nine students to the U.S. Military Academy at West Point.

"I'm grateful for their efforts."

immensely helpful to have members of the local community assist me in the nomination process," Skeen said.

HIGH SCHOOL COMPETENCY EXAM Grade 10 Results

The New Mexico High School Competency Exam, a graduation requirement, measures basic skills in reading, English (including a written composition), mathematics, science, and social studies. Scores are reported for each of the sub-tests, and student mastery is determined within each sub-test. The performance of New Mexico Students on this examination reflect high levels of achievement.

Seventy-four percent (74%) of all New Mexico tenth-grade students passed all sub-tests in 1990-91.

Over eighty-one (81%) of Capitán's tenth grade students passed all sub-tests in 1990-91. Students have opportunities in the eleventh and twelfth grades to pass the sub-tests failed. All students in the Classes of 1989, 1990 and 1991 passed the examination.

COLLEGE ENTRANCE EXAMS

The college entrance exam used most frequently in New Mexico is the American College Test (ACT). English, math, social studies, and science are measured on a scale ranging from a low of 1 to a high of 36. The composite score is an average of the four main sub-test scores. The average ACT score for New Mexico students are slightly below those for the nation. Capitán's student scores have increased gradually each year for the past five years, to surpass the state and national averages. All seniors at Capitán High School are encouraged to take the ACT rather than just college bound students. A student may take the test several times. The 1989-90 and 1990-91 state and national averages are unavailable at this time; District scores for Capitán students are below:

OF SPECIAL INTEREST

The students of the Capitán Municipal Schools are to be commended for their hard work and superior performance in attaining excellent results in National and State Examinations.

The teachers of the Capitán Municipal Schools are to be commended for setting high standards and for expecting students to achieve.

The parents of the students of the Capitán Municipal Schools are to be commended for their support of the teaching staff and reinforcing the schools quest in achieving its mission.

The Integrated Learning System (Computer Lab) is meeting our expectations as an excellent teaching tool. There are 36 different programs in this system. The majority of the students in grades K-8 are in both Concepts and Skills and Reading Programs. Students are averaging a gain of one (1) month for each hour spent in a program. The Lab provides reinforcement or enrichment of the basic curricular objectives.

STUDENT ACHIEVEMENT

DIRECT WRITING ASSESSMENT

The Direct Writing Assessment, a performance-based assessment, is administered to all fourth and sixth grade students in New Mexico. This assessment was mandated by the Public School Reform Act (1985). The Direct Writing Assessment is designed primarily for determining student problem areas while at the same time providing comparable district test data. Using the essential writing competencies, the writing assessment requires that students produce a narrative story in the fourth grade and a descriptive composition in the sixth grade. The student samples are graded holistically on a scale from 1 to 4. In focused holistic scoring, readers assign scores that reflect the general impression of quality of each composition. Readers are trained with sample papers, called range finders, to recognize what is established as a "1" paper, a "2" paper, a "3" paper and a "4" paper. A "4" paper is considered excellent. Two readers read each paper, and the two scores are averaged. If the readers disagree by more than one point, a third reader reads the paper, and the final score is the average of the two closest scores. The New Mexico Direct Writing Assessment reinforces the teaching of the writing process.

NEW MEXICO SCHOLARS PROGRAM

This program makes scholarship money available to certain students who rank in the top five percent of their graduating class, earned an overall score of at least 25 on the ACT, and come from homes with a total family income of $30,000 or less. The Class of 1991 had 2 students eligible for this program, and each received the scholarship available.

COMPREHENSIVE TEST OF BASIC SKILLS

The Comprehensive Test of Basic Skills, Form 4, (CTBS) includes measures of reading, language, and mathematics. The total battery indicates overall achievement. These scores compare the performance of students in the state and district with the performance of students in the 1988 national norm group. The average performance of students in New Mexico was near or above the average performance (50th percentile) of the 1988 norm sample. In comparison to national and state average performance, the district continues to score above the state and nation.

Carrizozo students produce own yearbook

By DORIS CHERRY

Each year the annual staff at Carrizozo High School dedicates the yearbook to a member of the teaching or administrative staff.

Each year the annual has a theme.

This year the theme is "Winds of Change," to reflect the many changes of staff and administration at Carrizozo School.

Since 1989, the Carrizozo Grizzly yearbook staff has produced camera ready copy for the annual at school. Not only did that cut production costs, it cut the cost of the yearbook to students. Last year's annual was so successful and affordable, there are none left.

Last year, the staff produced its first truly camera ready copy. With the laser printer, purchased with bond money, staff was able to produce high quality written copy, headlines and captions. Last year's annual was so successful and affordable, there are none left.

To get to the camera ready stage, the yearbook students go through various levels of learning about their publication—from theory to actual hands-on work with the camera, darkroom and computer set ups for ads and copy.

The 17 students on staff first learn the theory behind the yearbook and its purpose.

Student Publications teacher and annual sponsor Linda Caldwell tells students the yearbook is a historical record of the school year and needs to be factual. Since it is a record of memories, students need to learn the importance of pictures and copy which evoke those memories.

They also discover how the yearbook can be a tool to learn proper journalism, style and procedure, said Caldwell. The students also learn libel and copyright laws and the seriousness of what they put into print.

And they learn what pays for the yearbook—advertising. By role playing with each other, students learn how to sell an ad. They learn the importance of appearance and conduct when it comes to selling ads.

After the advertising segment, students are in the dark—the dark room that is. Students learn the techniques of film development and photo processing first hand in the darkroom. Each student was given a 10-exposure roll of black and white film. With the knowledge they gained on how to operate a 35 MM camera, such as shutter speed, f-stop, ASA, lenses and so on, students have the freedom to take pictures of various school events. Then they developed the film and printed pictures. From the darkroom, students moved to composition and how to use space and copy to please the eye. Now, the students are in the computer lab, learning the Page-Maker software to layout copy and graphics. Each student is assigned a different section of the yearbook and must produce appropriate copy. Lay-out of every page also is done by the students, including photos.

After years of searching for a reasonably priced publisher, Caldwell found one last year that produced a high-quality yearbook at a cost within all students' budgets.

With the in-house copy production, Carrizozo yearbook staff also is able to have a summer deadline. Because of this the students can include all spring events, including the prom, track season, graduation and senior trip. A complete year of memories.

Senior Kelly Caldwell is editor this year. James Smith and Micha Schlarb are business managers and Amy Offutt is head photographer. The four students are in Student Publications II.

Last year students dedicated the annual to Board of Education president J.C. Richmond, former teacher. This year, Kelly Caldwell said her staff will decide to whom they will dedicate the yearbook sometime before Christmas. But the secret dedication won't be revealed until the yearbook is published, sometime in Fall 1992.

ANNUAL STAFF Blas Herrera, Davin Epperson, Amy Zamora, their teacher/sponsor Linda Caldwell and Dana May work with the Page Maker software on the school's Apple Computers to learn layout and composition. Last year's annual was so popular there are none left.

GRIZZLY YEARBOOK editor Amy Offutt checks out the negatives from the Carrizozo-Hagerman football game hoping to select one for the 1992 annual.

Ruidoso voters endorse bonds

Voters in the Ruidoso School District turned out in record number to support the $5.5 million bond issue.

Of the 760 votes cast, 492 were for the bond issue and 268 were against it. The first bond sell will be held in January 1992 for $2.5 million. It will be used to finance the remodel of the administration office, remodel of Nob Hill school to house only preschool and kindergarten, reassignment of White Mountain school for 3rd and 4th grades, the intermediate school for 5th and 6th and the middle school for grades 7 and 8.

The next sell, for $3 million, will be held in January 1993 and will finance construction of a new building at White Mountain campus for first and second grades, said Ruidoso Schools superintendent Mike Gladden.

Gladden commended voters for their support of the bond. With 2,030 students enrolled in Ruidoso Schools, Gladden reported the number met his projected enrollment and all funding for this school year is secure.

Allergy sufferers, beware!

by Betty McCreight
Lincoln County Extension Home Economist

Allergy sufferers, beware! Taking allergy medication and driving can be dangerous as drinking and driving.

This includes both prescription and over-the-counter (OTC) medications. Many allergy medications contain warnings against taking the medication and then driving, but most people admit that they ignore the warning.

Consumers mistakenly view allergy and cold medications sold over the counter as harmless, but many such medications have a sedative effect. As with a person who drinks alcohol, judgement can become impaired and reaction time slowed as much as 25 percent with some allergy medications. One dose of some OTC allergy medications is like drinking two shots of whiskey.

Some OTC medications contain antihistamines and varying amounts of alcohol. Both can cause drowsiness. When a variety of medication is taken for the many symptoms of an allergy, trouble for a driver can be compounded if all contain an antihistamine.

Prescription medications for colds and allergies may contain codeine. Codeine has a sedative effect. When it is combined with an antihistamine or alcohol in a prescription, judgement can be impaired and the individual may become drowsy when driving.

An individual taking allergy or cold medication should not compound the situation by drinking alcoholic beverages. Alcohol can intensify the sedating effect of the medication. If a medication makes an individual sleepy, combining it with alcohol will make a person even sleepier. Combining alcohol and medication can be more dangerous to health and safety than either taken alone. Some combinations can result in death.

Use caution when taking medications. If your illness is not keeping you in bed, but you are taking drugs, follow these simple rules:

- Heed your physician's instructions about the medication. If he or she cautions you not drive, take the warning seriously.

- Read the package label for information on side effects.

- Check with your pharmacist about non-prescription drugs. Inquire about ingredients which might make you sleepy.

- Avoid alcohol when taking any medication.

County boundaries fall to redistricting plans

By JAY MILLER

SANTA FE—Who will rise when the chair recognizes the senator from Bernalillo, Los Alamos, Sandoval, San Miguel, Santa Fe, and Torrance? Republican Sen. Steve Stoddard of Los Alamos holds the seat now. It is Senate District 39, which currently includes only Los Alamos and Sandoval counties. But the 1991 redistricting session paid no respect to county boundaries as had previous redistricting sessions.

Counties have long been traditional political boundaries. State legislators have normally represented only one county, when possible, and seldom more than two. For the next 10 years, unless the federal Justice Department or federal court says otherwise, three lawmakers will represent six different counties and 25 of our 112 legislators will represent three or more counties.

Neither the Justice Department nor the court is likely to throw out a redistricting plan because it doesn't respect county boundaries.

That consideration comes toward the bottom of a list of priorities that is headed by racial and ethnic considerations.

But representing five or six counties is going to be quite a shock to the lawmakers who've drawn such a big hand. Sen. John Morrow and Rep. Ken Wallin, who represent the northeastern corner of the state are accustomed to serving the largest number of counties because of the sparse population in the ranching country with no big population centers. But six counties is a lot even for them.

Stoddard's new district may be the most radically changed of any. It begins with about one-third of his home county of Los Alamos, then meanders down to lop off small chunks of rural Sandoval and Bernalillo counties and ends with most of Santa Fe County outside the city limits.

The most distinctive feature of Stoddard's new district is that it is rural—not particularly suited for a retired national laboratory employee. District 39 includes big chunks of Torrance County farmers, ranchers from southern Santa Fe County and western San Miguel County, and northern Santa Fe County Hispanics.

This isn't the first time Stoddard has been dealt an incompatible district. At the beginning of the 1980 redistricting, Stoddard was slated to represent an area extending all the way through Navajo country to the Arizona border. Compromises later were made to lessen the chance of a court challenge and Stoddard ended up with a more compact district.

It isn't possible to pair Los Alamos' 18,000 population with any compatible area of northern New Mexico to achieve the 36,000 people necessary for a state Senate district. And therein lies the problem. Many northern New Mexico residents feel Los Alamos and its lawmakers have not been good neighbors to the mostly rural poor of the surrounding area. Thus the attempts to make it difficult for someone from The Hill to be elected—especially a Republican.

How about a diverse area? How about a member of a major ranching family, who gets along well with Hispanics, has a Ph.D. in chemistry and is married to a Ph.D. physicist employed by Sandia National Laboratory? Or an articulate Hispanic, with deep roots in the farming and ranching areas of Torrance and southern Santa Fe counties? Democrats Gary King and Steve Anaya are both looking at the possibilities.

King enjoys his current position in the House and would love to follow his father's footsteps to the speaker's post some day. But Senate seats are attractive with their four-year terms that allow a run for statewide office or maybe even the Schiff congressional seat.

Anaya is currently helping his father Mike with the family restaurant properties, which serve as gathering places for the farmers and ranchers of the Moriarty area. He has extensive state government experience and ran well last year in the Demo primary for state land commissioner.

It is very likely several other candidates with varied backgrounds will also consider the race. Sam King, oldest of the three brothers of Moriarty, also is said to be taking a look.

It's good Bruce King already has a job. He couldn't run for this Senate seat. The strange district lines in the area put him in... you aren't gonna believe this... Sen. Les Houston's district.
