County commissioners

Five-member commission, four-year terms approved

by DORIS CHERRY

When Lincoln County voters go to the polls next year, they will select five people to serve as county commissioners, for four-year terms.

Lincoln County Commissioners Stirling Spencer, Bill Elliott and Monroy Montes unanimously approved the ordinance which establishes the five-member commission, creation of five commission districts and provision for staggered terms of office for county officials at their meeting Tuesday in Carrizozo.

Along with the five-member commission comes the four-year terms for commissioners and all other county elected officials.

Far fewer people came to the 1:30 p.m. public hearing to voice opinions about the proposed five-member commission, but two who attended before still told of their disfavor of the ordinance.

Orlando Montes Jr. said too many people did not know enough about the proposal and thought the commissioners should have set night public hearings, since many cannot attend during the day because of work. He maintained his opposition and asserted someone in Santa Fe dreamed up the idea and put the burden on the three commissioners to get "this thing" passed. He said he talked with 2-300 working people of whom 12 knew something about the proposal. He considered it the duty of the commissioners and county manager to inform the people, not just with "two-bit" legal notices.

He also commented on Republican Party Chairman Jack Page's endorsement of the five-member commission as a "disgrace to the Republican Party."

Page had earlier voiced his approval of the five-member commission.

Yvonne Lanelli of Alto again spoke against the proposal because of the one district-one vote, rather than voting for all three as now. She worried she could not contact any of the commissioners about problems, and would be limited to just the one from her district. She also worried a "bad apple" candidate could not be removed as easily with the four-terms, and the added expense to the county in light of state cutbacks and deficits. "Please don't disenfranchise us," she said.

County elections will be held every two years with the new system, and a recall procedure is included after two years in office.

Genevieve Sewel was for the five-members to give a broader base of information to create more solutions to county problems.

Noema Page also voice her approval.

New county resident Dave Skeen was for the five members, to avoid seeing "two gang up on the third" to pass decisions.

Bill Hays from the Ramon area of northeast Lincoln County approved the five-member commission, because his area rarely receives any kind of representation and hopes with five members it will. "In the first time in Lincoln County history maybe the northeast part will have representation," Hays said. He said his area is always out-voted by those from "this end of the county."

County attorney J. Robert Beauvais clarified how the county was able to consider the five-member

THE INTERSECTION at the base of the overpass at Carrizozo saw lots of action — again — on Wednesday morning. Officer John Northrop is shown measuring skid marks. Janet Syling, Alamogordo, driving a 1978 GMC van, stopped at the stop sign and seeing no traffic proceeded north on Hwy. 54. Johnny Durham, Ruidoso, heading west on the overpass, slammed the brakes on his '85 Olds but still hit the van in the right rear, spinning the van off the road. A citation is pending for Durham for excessive speed.

Meeting to discuss design for Hwy. 48 in Ruidoso area

SANTA FE—The state Highway and Transportation Department is planning to four-lane New Mexico 48 from Sudderth Drive north to White Mountain Drive in Ruidoso.

The agency will conduct a design public hearing at White Mountain Elementary School cafeteria in Ruidoso to explain these plans, Wednesday evening, April 24.

From 6 to 7 p.m. staff representatives from the department and Boyle Engineering Corp., the agency's engineering consultant, will informally discuss the project with people on a one-to-one basis.

At 7 o'clock the staffs will make a brief technical presentation covering various aspects of the proposed design. Plans call for the widening of the two-lane road to four driving lanes with a continuous left turn center lane.

The proposed work also includes concrete curb and gutter, provisions for bicycles, storm sewers, retaining walls, sidewalks and other accessories.

Following the presentation, members of the audience will have the opportunity to ask questions and offer comments. Written comments should be submitted to the coordinator at the Environmental Section, New Mexico State Highway and Transportation Department, Box 1149, Santa Fe, NM 87504-1149.

Anyone having questions about the project or the meeting can call Pamela Bumsted in Santa Fe, using the agency's toll free number, 1-800-432-4269.

Preliminary plans and right-of-way maps are available for public inspection at the village of Ruidoso offices, and may be seen during regular business hours.

Commissioners propose utility franchise fee

A county proposal to impose franchise fee to utilities using county rights-of-way did not sit well with the two natural gas utilities considered at the Tuesday county commission meeting.

Zia Natural Gas Co. president David Hamilton and vice-president Denise Capshaw, with their attorney Thomas Olson from the Santa Fe firm Montgomery and Andrews, occupied most of the 11 a.m. public hearing about the proposed 2 percent franchise fee with a limit of five years. Representatives of Capitan-Carrizozo Natural Gas spoke only briefly, stating Zia had covered most of their questions.

Lincoln County was first granted the ability to impose a franchise agreement in 1909 but could not attach any fee until the state gave approval for such in 1987. In exchange for the fee, the county would have to provide some type of service such as a planning department, for which the county has no funding now.

Commission chairman Stirling Spencer had the Planning and Zoning Commission check how many other counties have franchise fees. Only four—Otero, Taos, San Miguel and Chaves. Taos, San Miguel and Chaves only have franchise fees with cable television.

Olson, however, had major problems with the franchise fees proposal, the fee the biggest issue. The fee would be an "easement rental" which is equal to 2 percent of the annual gross receipts of the sale of natural gas within Lincoln County, payable quarterly. Olson claimed none of the large corporations, Public Service Co. of New Mexico, US West and so on, do not pay a fee based on gross receipts, rather a permit type fee system tied to actual administrative costs, or on a service area licensing for new construction.

Zia was concerned about the "tax-type fee," which it would challenge legally. Olson wanted to delineate the distinction between the regulatory responsibility of the county as opposed to the state corporation commission. Zia did not want conflicting requirements from the county and state.

Another concern was the five-year term of the franchise. Hamilton said the previous 25-year term was customary, due to costly installation. The uncertainty of short-term franchise renewals make it hard to make a long-range investment plans. Hamilton explained his company makes money based on those long-term investments rather than the actual sale of gas.

The forfeiture provisions in the proposal also made Hamilton uncomfortable. He preferred to end the section on forfeiture with acknowledgement of the county's right to terminate if the utility is in violation of the franchise and makes no effort to cure the problem. Hamilton said the last two sentences of the section suggest it is the obligation of the utility to sell operations in the county if the franchise is terminated (due to violations.)

Hamilton said the corporation commission and Dept. of Transportation have the authority to regulate safety concerns and hopes the franchise will acknowledge this.

Hamilton did acknowledge the county's authority of where facilities go in the rights-of-way.

Provisions in the ordinance would give consumers a sounding horn directly to the county commission, which Hamilton said the county did not really want.

Commissioner Bill Elliott agreed and county attorney Robert Beauvais said consumer complaints should go to the public service corporation. "We're not in the utility complaint business."

County manager Nick Pappas explained the franchise fee situation arose over a pipeline construction problem.

Democrats elect precinct officers

Lincoln County Democrats met for their county convention at the Capitan Fair Building in Capitan April 9.

Chair Cece Griffin was re-elected chair of the Lincoln County Democratic Party. Fred Hansen was elected vice-chairman.

State Representative John Underwood spoke about his experiences as a freshman legislator and how redistricting would affect his district. Underwood informed Democrats of a new law that was passed to choose jurors from drivers licenses instead of voter registration, which should increase voter registration.

Underwood made the announcement that Cece Griffin and Fred Hansen have been appointed to Gov. King's Business Advisory Council. In that position they will be closely associated with Bill Garcia, secretary of economic development, and Mike Cerletti, secretary of tourism.

Griffin spoke about her goals for the Democrats of Lincoln County. She will encourage precinct chairmen to hold several meetings a year and challenged them to see how many they could get to attend. She also spoke of goals to increase voter registration.

The following were elected precinct chairs and officers at the March 21 meeting:

Precinct 1, chair Inez Marrs of Ft. Stanton, vice-chair R.L. Van Norman, secretary Mona McEuen and treasurer Benny Coker, all of Capitan; Precinct 2, chair Fern Sawyer of Nogal and vice-chair Genevieve Duncan of Capitan; Precinct 3, chair Ruth Armstrong of

Firefighters head off a major fire

What could have been a major fire was averted Friday when volunteer firefighters and those from the US Forest Service responded quickly to a report of a blaze near Baca Campground, north of Lincoln.

The fire, started by a campfire, was 1/4 mile east of the campground on private property.

Firefighters from Capitan, Ft. Stanton, Glencoe, Hondo and Lincoln Volunteer Fire Depts. and USFS quickly surrounded the two-acre blaze in grass and timber and extinguished the flames within 50 minutes. USFS sent three units, Lincoln, Capitan, Ft. Stanton two each, Glencoe three units and Hondo sent one unit, mostly tankers and pumps.

Winds were at 20 miles per hour and gusting higher, the temperature was 66 degrees and humidity was 28 percent, according to information at the New Mexico State Forestry (NMSF) office in Capitan, which dispatched units, but sent no firefighters.

The fire did not burn any of the campground. One report was that cowpaddies gave firefighters trouble, because they would appear extinguished, then the wind would cause the smoldering heat to flame again.

Although USFS shows fire danger at "very high" at the work station in Capitan, NMSF reports the total number of fires for the southeast region of New Mexico down from last year.

Capitan Schools

School athletics win support; drug policies are strengthened

Members of the Capitan community are helping the school rebuild its athletic programs.

Troy and Rudy Padilla were recognized at the Capitan Board of Education meeting Thursday for their basketball tournament last month which brought in about $700 in registration fees. The Padillas donated the funds to the school to send students to the summer basketball camp.

The Padillas also have organized a coed volleyball tournament set for April 20. The tournament will help raise money for the girls volleyball program.

Board member Ron Roybal commended the young men for their work and their attitude to get the program off the ground.

The board also commended Terry Cox for his help with the basketball program. The board had voted to provide an increment to Cox for assistant coach during basketball season. He recently donated his increment to the Capitan Booster Club. Cox is not a member of the school staff. The board commended Cox for his "type of spirit of cooperation and helping for the kids." His hard work and donation were acknowledged.

New member Jack King also acknowledged Jody Roberts' reping, organized to raise funds for the summer basketball tuition.

Before taking action on personnel re-employment and resignations, the board went into closed session for about an hour to discuss personnel.

When they returned they accepted the resignation of Lila Heitman and Shelly Tate, then re-employed high school and elementary teachers, based on recommendations by high school principal Bill Stowe and elementary principal Jerry Newsom. Teachers are: in elementary: Dottie MacVeigh, kindergarten; Linda Turnbow and Rebecca Ferguson, 1st; Mary Shanks and Laura Jones, 2nd; Bobbe Fowler and Joanne Washburn, 3rd; Kit Hall and Amy Riddle, 4th; Idy Schweitzer and Mary McIlwain, 5th; Ruby Johnson and Mecca Aldridge, 6th and Mary Lee Daniel and Tommie Neal, special ed. in high school: Pam Allen, Jacque Childress, Norman Cline, Joel Edwards, Sidney Hammontra, Jan LaRue, Bill MacVeigh, Annie McKay, Jerry Rice, Diane Riska, Dick Valenzuela, Pat Ventura, Earl Wafer, Molly Weber and Myrum Whitaker.

James Fowler's re-employment was kept separate from the other high school staff. When the vote came to re-employ him, the board voted unanimously no.

Norm Cline was approved as head girls basketball coach and athletic director and Pam Allen was approved as head volleyball and girls track coach.

Pat Ventura was accepted as football and boys track coach previously, but the board held off on approving him to serve as head boys basketball coach. "I see a young man head coaching three events," board president Preston Stone said. He considered coaching all three

LIBRARY WOES

National Library Week began April 14 but public libraries have little to celebrate. The cost of new books, periodicals and computers soar and budgets are being cut. President Bush has proposed a 75 percent cut in next year's federal library appropriations. On April 16, more than 800 librarians were expected in Washington to lobby Congress on that and other literacy issues.

JOB STRESS

The reading interests of two 16-year-olds in Miramar, FL caused the arrest of a grandmother of 10. Plainclothes police officers arrested the granny for selling the young boys a Playboy magazine. Who said this: "The budget should be balanced, the treasury should be refilled, the arrogance of officialdom should be tempered and controlled, and assistance to foreign lands should be reduced lest the State become bankrupt. THE TROUBLE

The trouble with installment buying is that by the time you own the thing you're sick and tired of it.

The trouble with jogging is that by the time you realize you're in no condition for it, you've got a long walk to get back home.

The trouble with microwave ovens is that dinner is ready before the table is set.

LCMC administrator addresses teachers

"The goal of Lincoln County Medical Center for this year is to educate county residents as to the realistic capabilities of the hospital. Other than the very high-tech procedures, LCMC can do anything," said Valerie Miller, LCMC administrator when she spoke to the April meeting of Alpha Delta Kappa teachers' sorority.

Miller explained the costs involved in operating a hospital facility in "the black." Lincoln County's hospital is presently in good shape due in large part to two factors—the dedication of employees in taking a cut in hours last year, and the strong auxiliary at the hospital. The auxiliary raises an average of $100,000 a year for the hospital's use. Miller complimented the well-trained physicians now employed at the facility.

She plans for the hospital to become more visible to county residents, and hopes everyone will use its services, physicians, and care offered by LCMC.

Hondo FFA heads for nationals

Hondo students who were members of the FFA Land Judging Team placed third in state finals during recent competition held at New Mexico State University.

As a result they are now eligible to head for a week of contests, field trips and excitement at national finals to be held in Oklahoma City April 28-May 3.

In addition to placing third as a team, James Salas, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Salas, placed third overall in the state at the individual level.

Members of the winning team are Tonya Carmichael, William Lucero, Ricky Montez and James Salas. Alternates were Victoria Baca, Larry Gonzales and Chris Gutierrez.

FFA members Dominic Prudencio and Tanya White also helped coach the winning team, and they participated in Horse and Wildlife Judging.

He added that one drawback is the need for funds. FFA students will be raising money during the next two weeks. FFA Boosters will sponsor a dance for the benefit of the students April 20th at the Capitan Fair Building. The Gutierrez Roping Arena will also help in raising funds.

Anyone wishing to donate to this worthwhile cause can contact Mr. Burchett at the school or call 658-4411.

OPINION

● The sale of the Lincoln County News to Chuck Rominger was not announced here sooner because everybody knew it anyhow. Our "rumor underground" here is one of the best—fast, accurate and efficient. Most local news is public knowledge before we hear about it. If and when the country goes to war again, and the need for an intelligence underground increases, I suggest the local rumor mill take the place of the Central Intelligence Agency! My new title at the NEWS will probably be curmudgeon emeritus.

● An insurance company reports that famous scientists live longer than any other human category. Next come clergymen, educators, and military men. Then comes executives, judges and lawyers. At the bottom of the list are writers and editors, who have the shortest life span. No wonder, we take a lot of beating! This report prompted some way to compose this prayer for us muckrakers: "Lord, we ask Your grace upon such as these. Help them, God; to get their stories factual and straight. Guide their fumbling fingers on the typewriter keys, and for whatever good it may do, strengthen the connections between their fingers and their minds. Give them a good story now and then to keep their editors civil, their readers happy, and their minds off their own degradation. And, when the day comes for their final '30' dashes, mercifully grant them just a glimpse of Your glory before they travel to the eternity to which they have been consigned so frequently by so many."

● Amen.

● While you are still enraged over having to pay the highest income tax bill in the history of the United States, I suggest that taxpayers abolish the National Endowment for the Arts, which spends so many millions of tax dollars on obscene, degrading, and phoney art forms. You've read about such atrocities in all newspapers. Nobody in Washington seems to want to end public support for obscenity and depravity. They whine that art is for the masses and thus deserves public support.

● "Arts are not for the masses," according to Schuyler Chapin, former general manager of the Metropolitan Opera and head of the Columbia University School of Arts. "My concerns," he says, "are that the greater number of people that enter the arts, the greater the chances of lower quality. The problem, he says, is keeping people out of the arts. There is too much bad art floating about, and far too many people acquire a box of crayons, a watercolor set, or a zither for no better reason than that the government supports them in a bohemian lifestyle they like. Just as bad money chases out good money, bad art chases out good art. Bad artists should never be encouraged. They should be put out of their misery as quickly and painlessly as possible. The source of good art is talent, not money."

● The Congressional Arts Caucus complains that only private contributions would kill the arts. Nonsense. Private funds nourished art in America for 150 years before liberal busybodies thought of hitting on taxpayer support. Taxes didn't build the Metropolitan, but men of wealth did. The finest American painters, sculptors, writers, composers, musicians and dancers somehow made their contributions to America's Golden Age of Arts long before government moved in with taxpayer money and turned the arts into trashy, obscene political statements.

● Art, I believe, is the glorification of man's highest ideals, and an exaltation of beauty. Great artists are creative, not interpretative. Such geniuses almost always appear in aristocratic societies where the well-born rule in behalf of the well-born. Sure, art appears in other than aristocratic domains, but never on a level approaching that of Greek sculpture and drama; Gothic cathedrals, Renaissance painting, Shakespearean plays, German music, or Russian novels. Artists in these cultures had aristocrats as patrons, and these patrons appreciated art and artists. Art does not flourish in a culture fragmented by racial minorities, in a climate of warring cultures. Minority artists, and others who yield to minority interests, use their work as weapons in a political and economic war that has nothing to do with art. What we have are shrill messages of cultural frustration, devoid of beauty and idealism essential to true art. What passes for art in a democratic America is the poetry of bums like Allen Ginsberg, the obscenity of LeRoi Jones and Mapleshorpe, the painting of a Campbell Soup can that Andy Warhol sold for $60,000, and those two "paintings" done by two "subsidized" chimpanzees. Artists survive today because they are willing to reduce themselves to dealing with exotic and erotic cults, religions, harebrained exploits of civil disobedients, African flummery, phy-

UTAH MAYOR WITH NINE HAPPY WIVES SAYS IT'S ESSENTIAL TO UNDERSTANDING THE BIBLE

Alex Joseph, Mayor of the town of Big Water, Utah, near the Arizona border, told the New York Times last week:

"Every writer in the Old Testament, except for Daniel, was a polygamist. The way I see it, if you're going to get a degree in electrical engineering, then you have to learn a little something about engineering. And if you're going to understand the Bible, you have to adopt the life style of those who wrote it."

And Mayor Joseph has done that—or at least part of that life style. For the Times has a three-column photograph of the mayor—with all nine of his wives.

And what is liable to send Molly Yard and Barbara Mikukki into paroxysms of rage is the fact that he is sitting in the center of the picture—and they are all smiling!

They have presented this patriarchal mayor with 20 children. But he says he knows of one sturdy husband who has fathered 80 children.

Mayor Joseph did not identify this prolific progenitor. Nor does he own any slaves or concubines—which was another Old Testament life style, about which New York Times reporter Dirk Johnson apparently did not ask.

One of Mayor Joseph's wives, Elizabeth, is an attorney who notes: "I see it is the ideal way for a woman to have a career and children. In our family, the women can help each other care for children. Women in monogamous relationships don't have that luxury. As I see it, if this life style didn't already exist, it would have to be invented, to accommodate career women."

The Josephs' 20 children refer to eight of their father's nine wives as "AUNT." They are fundamentalist Mormons, who split with the main body in Salt Lake 101 years ago, when they disagreed with the president of the church's divine revelation, that polygamy is wrong. The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints excommunicates polygamists—despite the many wives of church founder Joseph Smith, and western pioneer Brigham Young.

Polygamy is against the law, but Utah's Attorney General Paul Van Dam says: "We all know what is going on. But trying to do anything about it legally would be opening one Pandora's box after another."

Many of the polygamists obtain only one marriage license. And the attorney general noted: "Once you start going after people for cohabitation and adultery, where do you stop?"

The Utah ACLU has petitioned the national organization to make polygamy a national cause, like homosexual and lesbian rights. And the Utah Supreme Court ruled in March that polygamy, while still illegal, did not by itself make a family ineligible for adoption.

Mayor Dan Barlow of Colorado City, Utah told the Times: "In this liberal age, with all the alternative life styles that are condoned, it is the height of folly to censure a man for having more than one family."

Mayor Barlow has 5 wives.

Some 50,000 people in the Rocky Mountain States live in households made up of a man with two or more wives.

On the reverse side of this, there are Elizabeth Taylor and Zsa Zsa Gabor, who between them have had 13 husbands. But they were one at a time.

Inside The Capitol

By Jay Miller

SANTA FE—What sort of a Bruce King administration is this one going to be? Will it be like the previous two? Or did old Bruce mean it during the campaign last year when he said things have changed and so will his administration?

King's appointments to top offices passed muster well. There were enough new faces that any cronyism charges fell on deaf ears. That part of his administration can be rated as a change.

How about King's approach to the legislature? For 79 days nothing appeared to have changed much. During the 60-day legislative session Bruce had his door open for lawmakers to come chat about their bills. He spent time daily in the lobby of the temporary Capitol shaking hands with everyone in sight. He had a large, experienced lobbying staff but no major, aggressive program.

Following the end of a legislative session, the governor has 20 days to act on bills he received during the last three days of the session. Most bills that passed the 1991 legislature did so in the final days because both houses were extremely cautious about passing equal numbers of each other's bills.

After a bill passes the legislature, it must be proofread, or "enrolled and engrossed" in legislative parlance. That gets tricky when bills have been heavily amended as many were this year. Some bills took a long time to get to King's office.

That delay in getting the final flood of bills to King was part of the reason for the second major change in this

Bruce King administration. For the first time in 30 years, lawmakers witnessed a massive use of the "pocket veto," a process in which bills automatically die on the 20th day after the legislature adjourns because of inaction by the governor.

It has been more common since Jack Campbell beat Ed Mechem in the 1962 governor's race for chief executives to send word to the legislature that certain bills should not reach their desk. Jerry Apodaca did a lot of that. Both Campbell and Apodaca were known for their small number of vetoes.

King's veto totals have always been high during his previous eight years in the state's top office. But the first year of this administration has to be rated as a change. King vetoed 77 measures, 71 of them by inaction. His general statement to both houses accompanying the "pocket vetoes" sent a strong message—both written and unwritten.

On paper, King said the 71 bills were an intrusion into executive power, obligated future legislatures, created public debt without a vote of the people, endangered the permanent fund or served no public need.

But the much louder message King was delivering put lawmakers on notice that he is assuming control.

Known for his lifelong desire to "work things out," King's next move has to be a much greater degree of involvement in preparing with lawmakers for the 1992 legislature. Any other action would be totally inconsistent with the Bruce King voters thought they were electing.

choanalysis, political ideology, narcotics, sex, and homosexuality. Statements maybe; but art? No.

● In our culture today where art revolves around political revolution, racism, environment, genitalia, and peace movements, real art that has stood the test of time is being destroyed. The New York Board of Rabbis protested the TV showing of "The Merchant of Venice," and the play was banned from the English curriculum of New York City high schools—all because of the character Shylock. Chaucer's "Canterbury Tales" has been published without "The Prioresses Tale" because it tells of a murder committed by a Jew. The Oberammergau Passion Play, a cultural fixture since 1634, is attacked by the American Jewish Congress as "anti-semitic." The Philadelphia Board of Education banished "Huckleberry Finn" from public school libraries and replaced it with a castrated version in which references to "masses, darkies, and mammy" are deleted. Mother Goose has been rewritten to accommodate black racists. Little Black Sambo is gone. Stephen Foster's music has been howlerized. One of America's greatest poets, Ezra Pound, had all his works barred by Random House's poetry anthology.

● Of 58 plays in the 1967-68 Broadway season, sex perverts produced 18 and directed 22. It is worse today. H. Rapp Brown, author of "Die Nigger Die," a black racist and criminal, was given space in the New York Times to announce he "saw no sense in reading Shakespeare because the bard was a racist and a faggot." Eldridge Cleaver ("Soul on Ice") wrote of the joy of raping white women, and his hook is required reading in some high school English courses. A Broadway play turns Indians into a superior, virtuous race while picturing whites as low-lived gangsters. A black senator in Virginia objected to the state anthem, "Carry Me Back to Old Virginia," as being abhorrent to his race, and the song was revised. It caused one congressman to predict, not without logic, that the days of the "White House" are numbered.

● Civil rights and the trappings of democracy do not inspire great art. When Bach was concert master in Weimar and composing his best works, nobody could vote. On the other hand, 220 years later in the Weimar, there were millions of voters and no Bachs. The Golden Age of Latin literature was the Rome of Augustus when only patricians were favored and everybody else was dirt. But in 211 A.D. Caracalla's Rome gave full citizenship to all free inhabitants of the Empire, and no art was produced. Dostoyevsky and Tolstoy were literary geniuses under the Czars. They have never been duplicated under commissars of a "people's republic."

● If this country continues to follow the lead of the National Endowment for the Arts, prepare to live with rock music, outhouse literature, obscene paintings and photographs, and reproductions of Campbell Soup cans.

dismantled as we speak. Son Bill will go back to the ranches Gary O'Dowd will be busy with his duties as head of the compilation commission that blends the laws King signed into the statute books. And longtime aide Linda Kehoe will move into an exciting new position outside the governor's office. Look for an announcement on that any day.

It would mean King has turned into a confrontative head of state, who now likes to pick fights.

How does King work things out with lawmakers to get their issues through the next legislature without violating the principles he enumerated in his veto messages?

It won't be through his lobbying staff. That is being task forces of competing special interest groups to shape compromise proposals between now and next January. Sometimes they work; sometimes they don't.

King's message is likely to be "You guys make it work."

On October 18, 1967, an abstract Matisse painting entitled Le Bateau was carefully hung in the Museum of Modern Art in New York, upside down.

Carrizozo Board of Education

Board names teachers, argues honor student selections

Carrizozo Board of Education rehired teachers, accepted resignations, and got senior activities in motion at its meeting Tuesday night.

All board members accepted the resignation of Bill Wise, Wayne Mason, Gretchen Becker and Ron Becker.

They're employed, for the 1991-92 school year, Nancy Maxwell, Dana Rhoten, Gabriel Papponi, Douglas Jarrard, Linda Caldwell, Ginger Shafer, Evelyn Schwartz and Michael Schwartz.

Sharon Baker, Mercie Epperson, Pat Holland and Gerald Montes have contracts through 1991-92. June Caster, Mike Gaines, Mariann Patterson, Wini Wilmore and Bob Hemphill have contracts through the 1992-93 school year.

Members met in closed session about two hours to consider personnel before approving staff in the open meeting.

The room was crowded with teachers, parents and seniors who were interested in who was to be rehired and who wanted to voice their feelings about senior activities.

After the board accepted

Supt. Danny Burnett's recommendation of Candace Wilcox as Valedictorian and Val Archuleta as Salutatorian for the Class of 1991, two parents spoke about school policies affecting the top two seniors. Linda Archuleta had talked with Capitan and other schools on rules about valedictorian when a student jumps a grade by taking correspondence courses. Capitan allows only two credits for correspondence courses, which would "not bump off" other seniors who want to be valedictorian or salutatorian.

Archuleta and Bea Sheehan had approached the previous board about the subject of imposing strict rules on students who transfer into Carrizozo Schools with a high grade point average. The mothers argued their children have worked their way through the Carrizozo School system with good grades hoping to become Valedictorian or Salutatorian. However, they received no reply, not in the form of a policy statement or phone call. The mothers considered the situation unfair to those Carrizozo students.

Board president J.C. Richmond said the board decided to go with the existing policy and could not make any changes to it now for this year.

Member Gary Hightower asked how long Candace Wilcox had been at Carrizozo Schools, which has been two years. He indicated that is long enough to determine her ability to make the high grades in the Carrizozo school setting. His opinion was the policy should be changed only to reflect the length of time a student has to determine abilities.

Richmond promised to look at the policy.

Senior Class sponsor Bill Wise then approached the board with a tentative itinerary for the senior trip to Texas, including Padre Island, the Alamo in San Antonio and Sea World with an estimated total cost of $4191. However, a problem arose that day about the amount of participation by each student to earn a share in the senior trip.

Two years ago the seniors set an 80 percent participating requirement for the trip.

Now seven seniors lack the 80 percent. Wise recommended eliminating the 80 percent requirement because record keeping has been inaccurate since the students' freshman year.

Students lacking percentage can make it up with cash.

Member Jan Barham agreed on the inaccurate bookkeeping, and Burnett worried some students with enough percentages also had inaccurate bookkeeping, but how to figure that out.

Kevin Sheehan, a senior, said it would not be fair to people who worked to let those who were not at 80 percent to get a "free ride."

Senior Nancie Vega said all students knew about the 80 percent rule and also thought it unfair to let those without 80 percent to go without paying.

Wise said most of those without the 80 percent have indicated they would pay out of pocket to go on the trip.

The board directed Wise to meet with the seniors and come back to the board about their decision on the 80-percent rule.

Wise also presented his recommendation for baccalaureate and graduation speakers, Rev. Hayden Smith of Carrizozo Baptist Church and Rev. Tom Broom of Carrizozo Methodist. The board approved the speakers.

Burnett presented a certificate from the State Dept. of Education signed by Supt. Alan Morgan, honoring Candace Wilcox for her outstanding academic achievement and ACT score, as a 1990-91 ACT Scholar. Wilcox scored 31 on her ACT overall and a perfect 35 in the English section. She is in the 95th percentile in the nation.

The design work for the new football field lighting project was reviewed. The old poles will be removed and replaced with poles and halide type lights which will boost candle power on the field from the current 6-8 to 34-40. Estimated cost is $55,000. Funds will come from the bond issue passed in 1990.

The school will contact designer Gary Anderson and a call for bids will be advertised within one month. The board hopes to get the project completed before football season in the fall.

Another project, to remodel the chemistry lab, was debated when member Gary Hightower wanted to hold off until the school bought equipment for a physics lab. Science teacher Mariann Patterson argued only three students want to take physics and could not justify a course and ensuing equipment just for those three. She suggested correspondence physics course. But Hightower insisted the school should provide a lab for those in a correspondence course.

Patterson was anxious to get the lab remodel underway, to be ready by the fall. She cited safety problems which need addressing now. She was not against the physics. "I would love if all wanted physics," she said. But most students indicated their preference for Biology II.

Student teacher Ralph

Ramos supported the Biology II, which fits the needs of students going to college in related fields. "Carrizozo does stand out above the rest (at college)," he said.

Patterson debated with Hightower for a time and supported her views that her program was working. Former board member Hoot Gibson told Hightower board members must realize they cannot do all things, rather should have the responsibility for the majority of kids. "Offer physics to three or Biology II to eight?" he asked.

Gibson said the chemistry lab in its present state is an "accident waiting to happen."

Board members favored the chemistry lab remodel, then directed Patterson to compile a list of needed physics equipment and costs for consideration later. VoAg teacher Mike Gaines volunteered to pursue any avenue of outside funding in the way of grants to finance equipment.

Budget time has arrived at the school and the board talked about a proposal sports making a long season. The board will select a head boys basketball coach at a later date.

The schools' alcohol/drug policies and procedures and employee assistance program policy were approved. Noted by the state as "excellent" policies, which could serve as a model for other districts, the policies bring the school into compliance with the federally funded Drug and Alcohol-free Schools and Workplace program.

In the policies and procedures students are prohibited from using, possessing, selling or transporting of alcohol and/or illegal drugs on school property at school or at school-sponsored activities. Additionally, the schools prohibit students from selling or giving away alcohol and/or illegal drugs and from possessing, selling, giving away and/or using drug paraphernalia on school property, at school or at school-sponsored activities.

The superintendent has the authority to expel or long-term suspend students who, after a notice and a hearing, have been found guilty of an alcohol/drug related violation of school rules or state law.

The policies outline procedures for determining legal responsibility of a school employee to report known or suspected alcohol or drug use or abuse by any student.

The drug-free workplace policy deals with school employees. No employees can unlawfully manufacture, distribute, dispense, possess, be under the influence of a hallucinogenic drug, amphetamine, barbiturate, marijuana, or any other controlled substance. Workplace includes school buildings or premises; vehicle or school approved vehicle used to transport students; off school property during any school-sponsored activity, event or function.

Each employee shall notify the supervisor of any criminal drug related conviction occurring in the workplace within five days after such.

When violations occur, the employee will be removed from the work area, meet with the superintendent for conference, suspension up to three days while an investigation is conducted and a final conference will be held at the end of the suspension period. Final disposition will depend on the outcome of the conference.

Employees will have the opportunity to participate in the Employee Assistance Program which deals with persistent personal problems. A guideline was set up to help supervisors become aware of the problems and how to deal with them.

The school district will continue to get federal funds for the program.

Supt. Scott Childress requested permission to make a baseball diamond on the old football field for use during the summer months. Childress said a lot of kids play baseball in the summer, but have to travel to either Ft. Stanton or Eagle Creek to practice on a real field. The field, with some related type of baseball program, will give Capitan kids something to do in the summer. He suggested an American Legion program for boys over 16 years old.

Some objection came from Francis Traylor who wanted a baseball program which will include girls. "We don't like to be discriminated against."

Childress also told of how the summer program could bring pressure to start a school sanctioned baseball program in the spring. But fears were baseball would conflict with track. Board member Ken Cox said a lot of kids would participate in baseball. He called the Activities Association and found there is nothing to prevent the school from having track and baseball simultaneously. Loving has such a program.

Any liability would be covered by the school's insurance, Childress assured.

Childress plans to work with Terry Cox in "scratching out" a diamond from the old field. He was given the greenlight to determine if a baseball field is feasible.

The board was invited to attend the regional school board meeting at 6:30 p.m., April 23, at Ruidoso High School cafeteria. The region includes Capitan, Carrizozo, Corona, Hondo, Ruidoso, Tularosa and Alamogordo districts.

The next Capitan board meeting will be at 7:30 (for summer months) Thursday, May 9.

Five-member commission

commission, through a constitutional amendment voted on by all state electors which allows small population counties to adopt the five members. Staggered terms, he continued, are determined by drawings of lots by the secretary of state.

Commissioner Elliott said the choice made his job difficult because there are lots of pluses and negatives. But he considered the greatest plus to be the four-year terms.

Commissioners Montes talked with many of his constituents, some of whom were opposed and some who were in favor. "I represent my district and they want an expanded board."

Spencer echoed the opinions, and thought the extra cost would be offset with the broader base of knowledge afforded by the five members.

All commissioners voted yes, which was required to pass the ordinance.

According to the ordinance, the commission board will be composed of five members elected from five separate commission districts which shall be compact, contiguous and nearly equal in population as possible.

Commissioners shall be elected from and reside within in each district. In the event an incumbent county commissioner during his term in office shall change his place of residence to a location outside the district from which he was elected, the service of that commissioner shall automatically be terminated and the office shall be declared vacant.

With the first general election after adoption of the ordinance, all elected county officials shall serve four-year staggered terms. In order to provide for the staggered terms the secretary of state shall determine by lot, in two groups of approximately equal numbers, the county officials who shall be elected to a four-year term and those who shall be elected to two-year term. Thereafter, county officials will run for four-year terms. The first election with the staggered terms will set a continuity so not all commissioners run for office at the same time.

The terms of no more than three county commissioners shall expire in the same year and the term of the county treasurer and county assessor shall not expire in the same year.

All county officers, after having served two-four-year terms, shall be ineligible to hold any county office for two years thereafter.

Upon enactment, the board of commissioners shall undertake to divide Lincoln County into five county commission districts. All action necessary to complete redistricting shall be completed no later than Dec. 31 for inclusion in the 1992 Election Proclamation.

The ordinance becomes law 30 days after recording by the county clerk.

County Clerk Martha Proctor told commissioners she had some paperwork required to begin the redistricting process, and she hopes it can all be done in-house with the help of county mapper Albert Baca. There must be no more than 5 percent variance up or down on populations of each district. However, Proctor said, the districts must include existing precinct boundaries.

The state legislative districts are being adjusted, and Beauvais told of the county district adjustments due to the state by next month so the state can lock into those local districts. He suggested a public hearing where the options for redistricting can be presented to the public for input.

Originally, commissioners set the public hearing for the next regular county meeting May 7, but after a suggestion from THE NEWS reporter to conduct a special meeting just for the public hearing at night, to give working people the opportunity to give input, commissioners set a special time.

The public hearing will be at 6 p.m. Thursday, May 2, in the commissioners chamber in the courthouse in Carrizozo. Anyone wishing to make comment about the five districts can do so at that time.

Beauvais agreed the night public hearing was a good idea because the way districts are drawn will cause a great deal of concern. "Make sure all have a say."

Ruidoso resident June Rawlins also suggested the commissioners make themselves available to speak to groups about the five-member commission and redistricting.

There will be no vote taken at the special meeting May 2, rather commissioners will conduct a final hearing at the May 7 regular meeting, after which action may be taken.

lem in Alto in 1990. "This is the Alto case in a nutshell."

Hamilton indicated politics may have played a part in the wording of the franchise agreement. "This may have been written for another authority," Hamilton said. Beauvais is the attorney for Capitan-Carrizozo Natural Gas Co.

"We're picky because of the forfeiture situation," Hamilton continued.

The forfeiture section would allow the county to cancel the franchise 90 days after the utility is notified for a violation. Original wording stated the county could impose an order of forfeiture, then the utility would have a year in which to sell, transfer or convey the natural gas system to a qualified purchaser at a fair market value.

The section includes an appeal hearing during the forfeiture proceedings.

Hamilton argued the section would create an unfair burden to his company, and apologized for the Alto incident where a hired contractor installing cable television lines dug trenches for the gas company. Problems arose and the project was shut down for a time.

Hamilton wanted to work with the county because he plans a $5 million project for transmission lines which could serve 4-5000 customers. He suggested new wording which would leave the 90-day period, but struck all about forfeiture and sale of the utility. He wanted wording which would state if the utility was not attempting to correct the problem, the franchise would be subject to forfeiture.

All agreed legal battles over a forfeiture provision would be too costly. But the county wanted the "bigger hammer" to force negotiations when problems arise. The indication of good faith on the franchise part was what the county sought.

As for the length of time for the franchise, Commissioner Monroy Montes thought the 25 years was too long. "I can't live with it."

Pappas agreed with Zia that financing was a factor when considering a long-term franchise. Beauvais also agreed to 25 years if provisions were added to protect the county and give it a way to address changes.

As for the 2 percent fee, Hamilton said his company does pay such fees in other states, but no resolution of the fee schedule was reached Tuesday.

Capitan-Carrizozo Gas Co. representative Beverly Payne, Neo Vallejos and association president Norm Renfro spoke only briefly about the provisions in their franchise ordinance, which was identical to Zia in the terms of fees, and so on. They said Zia had covered most of their arguments with the proposed ordinance.

Both utilities were given 60 days extensions to their current franchise agreements, which expire in May. The old franchises were for 25 years.

The county also proposes an ordinance to grant a franchise to other utilities which use county rights-of-way, such as cable television. That ordinance will also be reviewed in public hearings which were authorized Tuesday.

The public hearing was set for the next regular county meeting May 7.

The intent of the franchise fee is to provide funds for a county planning department. Pappas said what happened in Alto would not have occurred if such a department existed. But there are no funds for that department now. "Some looked at it as one way for the county to greedily scoop up some extra bucks, it's not," he said.

Commissioners also approved a proclamation making the week of April 28-May 5 Soil and Water Stewardship Week in honor of the soil and water conservation districts.

Commissioners accepted a lease-purchase bid from Rust Tractor of Albuquerque for six 140 motorgraders, at $1233 a month for each, a considerable savings over the former lease agreement.

Approval was given for the six volunteer fire departments in the county to apply for the 1991 Fire Fund Distribution program from the state fire office.

Commissioners approved the joint power agreement for Lincoln County Solid Waste Authority with an amendment which disclaims any liability for the Capitan Class B Landfill.

Road manager Bill Cupit was allowed up to $15,000 to complete the road department offices and paint the building. "He can't run a $100,000 department out of a pick-up," said Montes, who initiated the project.

A resolution in support of the Payments-in-lieu-of-taxes introduced by Colorado Senator Wirth and New Mexico Senator Pete Domenici was signed.

Commissioners approved license fees for selling or dispensing alcoholic liquors at the same rate as before because of decreased business activity in the county. Funds from fees go into the general fund.

A $20,000 budget transfer to the sheriff's office for the care and feeding of prisoners, which was approved last meeting, was increased and changed to an interdepartment transfer. County financial administrator Mignon Sims recommended the action which will not require Santa Fe approval.

After a discussion about probationary period for an existing employe upgraded on the classification scale, commissioners agreed to consider an amendment to the personnel policy to reflect this.

Commissioners ended their day with a closed session for litigation and personnel.

The next meeting will be a special night hearing at 6 p.m. Thursday, May 2, to take public comment on the redistricting of county precincts for the five commission districts.

devised by the budget committee to make increments more equitable among those who already get them and to give increments to persons who receive none now.

Burnett also told of increases of state funding for 1st grade students, and a possible extra $11,000 from Region 9 Special Ed. funding.

The proposed increment adjustments would decrease increments for extended contract staff such as counselor and VoAg, increase increments to the science fair coordinator, computer coordinator, adjust the basketball increments for boys and girls coaches, volleyball increments and football increments. Senior and junior sponsors would also receive increments, as well as student council coordinator and art facilitator. With the adjustments the budget committee hopes to save $1450, allowing for the summer weight program.

Hemphill commented it "looks like you cut three people and spread the money around."

The budget committee will meet with the board to work on the budget further on April 25.

State Science Fair winners were commended for their success and art facilitator Polly Chavez was commended for her recent art program.
