

New industry coming to town

By RUTH HAMMOND

Budget, street paving and a new industry for Carrizozo were discussed during the town council meeting Tuesday.

Lincoln Laminated Logs Inc. is Carrizozo's new industry which will begin production soon. Owned by Robert Walker Jr., Doug Gould and Gary Christenson, all of Ruidoso, Lincoln Laminated Logs Inc. is a corporation which will manufacture laminated beams to be used in building homes.

The product is a laminated, D-shaped, tongue and groove log that when installed needs only exterior sealant or stain to be considered a finished product. It eliminates the need for exterior sheathing products and siding as well as interior insulation, sheetrock and painting. It has an R-25 insulation value. The log will have a finished exterior grade of material, either cedar, redwood or pine and the finished interior surface will be spruce or pine.

It will be the third business of its type in the country. Christenson said they hope to eventually hire seven local people. The business will be located in the old ice plant, the brick building owned by the town located behind Four Winds Restaurant. Some of the equipment was moved in this week.

Christenson said Carrizozo is the ideal location for shipping their product which will be sold exclusively through dealers. The town will lease the building at a nominal cost.

The town will apply for a $5,000 grant from the county to replace windows and refurbish the building. The

Livestock producers, farmers gather at Inn

By DORIS CHERRY

Livestock producers and farmers cannot afford to let their legislators off the hook when it comes to political issues that will affect their livelihood.

Members of the New Mexico Farm and Livestock Bureau (NMFLB) heard Don Rawlins, director of Natural and Environmental Resources Division of the American Farm Bureau Federation, warn of bureaucrats who abuse their power to regulate and violate private property rights with laws designed to protect "endangered species" and wetlands and to raise fees which will seriously hamper producers' ability to compete.

Rawlins, advocating political involvement on issues threatening American agriculture, spoke to about 200 NMFLB members gathered at Inn of the Mountain Gods convention center Tuesday and Wednesday for the summer leadership conference.

While rain poured outside the convention center,

"Farmers aren't against reasonable action."

— Don Rawlins, American Farm Bureau Federation

Rawlins blasted environmentalism, which he considered a new version of the old vision that man is a misfit and polluter on the earth. Promoted by children of the wealthy, mostly women, the "Green Dream" crusade, as he called it, is so vocalized it has attracted national media attention and has been successful in getting legislation passed.

"They never put together a piece of property to raise cows. . . never had to work very much," Rawlins said.

Rawlins objected to the Endangered Species Act because some groups use it to identify an "endangered species," like the spotted owl, which is then used as a "surrogate" to cover the real purpose of the group.

"Farmers aren't against reasonable action," Rawlins said.

But the surrogates are threatening the livelihood of farmers. He advocated farmers and livestock producers rise up and take action to have the act amended so it will be more specific for each species, put the burden of proof of a habitat being threatened on the Department of Interior, and provide some kind of restitution for any economic damage to those involved.

He gave examples of species used to stop development of the Snake River in Oregon, which turned out to be unfounded once independent studies of the species were made.

Rawlins challenged someone in the group to volunteer to monitor the Endangered Species Act list which now has about 8,000 species identified as being potentially endangered.

As for the proposal which passed through the U.S.

THE LADIES learned survival skills for today's society and had fun, too, during the women's conference during the New Mexico Farm and Livestock Bureau summer leadership conference this week. They learned the importance of listening by participating in an exercise which required one of a partnership to read a paper while the other talked. Did they remember what the other said? Of course not!

House of Representatives to increase grazing leases fourfold in five years, Rawlins urged all to contact their senators to vote against it. The proposal is now in the Senate.

He credited New Mexico Sens. Pete Domenici and Jeff Bingaman for their stands against the fee increase, and told of the need for those senators to be reassured. Domenici recently was awarded the Golden Plow Award from American Farm Bureau Federation for his efforts to help farm and livestock people.

The increase is not based on logic, rather on emotional politics. Rawlins said if livestock producers are required to pay a higher fee for using the public lands, then so should all users pay their fare share. Part of the reasoning behind the fee increase was to raise $60 million, but Rawlins said cutting the number of federal employees by 15 percent would accomplish the same goal.

White Oaks gets ready for big ride

Delicious aromas wafting through White Oaks on Aug. 3, Pony Express day, will be attributable to two ladies of the White Oaks Historical Society.

Bessie and Beverly Leslie plan to produce a brunch of New Mexican burritos and tamales to set olfactory nerves and salivary glands dancing in anticipation.

Starting at 9 a.m. and continuing until noon, this hearty repast will be available for purchase on the grounds near White Oaks Avenue below the old school house.

The old school house museum, owned and maintained by the Historical Society, will be open for exploration, as it is every Saturday and Sunday from May 1 through October. Built of native stone and brick, the building was used as a school from 1895-1935.

911 countywide soon to be available in Lincoln

By DORIS CHERRY

911—the emergency telephone number that even has its own television show, will be available to residents countywide.

Sometime next year, residents should be able to contact emergency personnel by simply dialing 911 from anywhere in the county.

With a system known as Enhanced 911, or E-911, the dispatchers will be aided by a computer program which will immediately show the address of the location of the phone used to call 911. This address notification will help in situations where a small child or someone in some sort of extreme distress calls and is unable to give a location. Also, it will assist emergency personnel by giving a location which can be pinpointed, since many instructions to rural areas or subdivisions can often be misleading, creating response time delays.

An integral part of the E-911 program will be rural addressing, which the county now is doing.

Maggi Bohks is coordinating the E-911 program in Lincoln County and is the county's representative on the E-911 committee.

Last year Bohks approached all municipalities to participate in the program, and all passed resolutions to allow their respective telephone companies to begin charging cus-

Long list of events for Lincoln Aug. 2 - 4

Plans for the Old Lincoln Days, Aug. 2-4, are in their final stages.

Performances of the folk pageant "Last Escape of Billy the Kid" are set for 8:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday, and 3:30 p.m. Sunday. Rehearsals began July 16 and continue through July 29 and 31. Participants in the pageant are all local volunteers who furnish their own horses, feed, transportation, costumes and time.

Some of the major castings are Thomas Shrecengost as Billy the Kid; Dan Storm as Buckshot Roberts, who is killed at Blazer's Mill after killing 13 men; Cody Morton as Susan McSween; Wayne Ware as Col. Dudley; Lonnie Maddox as Sheriff Pat Garrett and Dave Parks as narrator. Neil Waters of California will again portray Frank Coe.

Among the many attractions and activities during Old Lincoln Days are performances of the Albuquerque Ballet Folklorico Saturday afternoon and about 9 a.m. Sunday at the Wortley Hotel; the Roswell square dancers Saturday before the pageant performance; Laura Amastose dancing "Los Abejenos" Friday and Saturday evenings; the Mountain Men and their 1850s encampment and the Texas 4th Cavalry of Lubbock, Texas, will be featured during the pageant performances.

The parade will begin at 11 a.m. Sunday. Grand marshals are Jill Blanks and Ron Andrews, color bearers from the Lincoln County Sheriff's Posse. All parade participants need to be at the grounds east of Lincoln by 10 a.m.

Also expected to participate during the weekend are the Charos los Caporales of Roswell.

The Lincoln County Pageant and Festivals Corporation has a brand new sound system, which will be welcomed by the audience.

Parole office making move to Carrizozo

The Ruidoso Juvenile Probation/Parole Office is definitely closing. Lincoln County Commissioners have advised the Juvenile Probation and Parole Office to vacate its present office by the end of July.

The office, located within the Lincoln County Sub-Office at 105 Kansas City Road will conclude services at 5 p.m. Monday, July 26. The remaining July work days will be spent moving.

The new location of the Juvenile Probation/Parole Office will be in the Lincoln County Courthouse Annex, Lower Level in Carrizozo. The telephone number is 648-2195.

tomers 25-50 cents a month. Customers of U.S. West are only charged 25 cents because that company was mandated to put back some overcharges into the system, which it chose to do for E-911 equipment.

Customers of CONTEL in the Ruidoso-Capitan areas, Penasco in Lincoln, Hondo Valley and ENMR in Corona area, pay 25 cents for equipment and the second 25 cents for networking. U.S. West customers also pay the 25 cents for networking.

Statewide, the E-911 program involves 30 of the state's 33 counties, and 73 of its 99 municipalities. A fund has been set up by the New Mexico Department of Finance and Administration (DFA), Local Government Division, where all the monthly charges are accumulated. From that fund equipment will be purchased and networking financed.

As of Monday, July 22, a memorandum of agreement has now been approved and signed by all Lincoln County municipalities, and the county. It legally forms the Lincoln County Enhanced 911 District, which will oversee operations of E-911 services and act as the vehicle through which the town, villages and county are funded for the cost of equipment, payment of projected maintenance charges and the cost of establishing the network database.

The Lincoln County Enhanced 911 District will include the entire town limits of Carrizozo, village limits of Capitan, Corona, Ruidoso and Ruidoso Downs, all of Lincoln County, those parts of Socorro County served by U.S. West in the 648-exchange and those parts of Torrance County served by ENMR in the 849-exchange.

The district will be operated by a board made up of representatives from each entity. The board will be responsible for all communications, agreements and contracts with other providers or vendors involved in the project and will mediate any problems concerning the operation of the E-911 District. The board will make periodic reports to the local governments.

Lincoln County will act as fiscal agent for the district.

The board is bound not to sell, lease or make available for duplication or use by any person, utility or business other than the E-911 Network provider any rural addressing system without permission of the local governments.

Access to the rural address lists was one concern voiced by many. They worried their rural residences could be jeopardized if the lists were to be available to the general public.

However, the lists will be kept only for emergency personnel, Bohks said at a municipal meeting.

In order to make the E-911 system work, calls have to come into a Public Safety Answering Point, or PSAP. The E-911 Committee, made up of Bernhard Reimann of Capitan, Johnnie Johnson of Carrizozo, W. R. Van Huss of Corona, Chief of Police Richard Swenor of Ruidoso, Ms. Maurice Gudel of Ruidoso Downs, Maggi Bohks of Lincoln County, Laurie Ventura of Lincoln County Sheriff's Department, Gary Sims with CONTEL, Jimmy Bennet with ENMR Telephone Coop, Sammy J. Reno with Penasco Valley Telephone Coop, Mary Henry with U.S. West and Robert Gunter with the DFA in Santa Fe, has determined the need for two PSAPs in Lincoln County.

One will be located in the Lincoln County Sheriff's Office in Carrizozo. It will use a U.S. West data base to dispatch emergency personnel to locations in the Capitan area using the 354-exchange, to locations in the Alto area using the 336-exchange, the Carrizozo area with the 648-exchange, Hondo with the 653-exchange and Corona with the 849-exchange.

The other PSAP will be located at the Ruidoso Police Department. It will use CONTEL database to dispatch emergency personnel to Ruidoso locations with the 257-exchange, White Mountain with the 258-exchange and Ruidoso Downs locations with the 378-exchange.

The two PSAPs will be in communication with each other and one can serve as backup for the entire county in case one goes down.

PSAPs are determined by the number of access lines. Since there are 10,931 access lines in Lincoln County, it fell in the state guidelines for 1-2 PSAPs.

Until the E0911 is operative countywide next year, persons who need emergency services can dial 911 in two Lincoln County communities—Carrizozo and Ruidoso. After E-911 goes on line for the entire county, residents will only have to dial 911 for emergency response.

Information due disabled veterans

Disabled veterans may visit with a representative of the New Mexico Department of Labor on Tuesdays from 9-11 a.m. at the Lincoln County Courthouse.

Lee Gollighugh, associated with the Disabled Veterans' Outreach Program of the Employment Security Division, DOL, comes to Carrizozo every Tuesday.

Gollighugh will be located in the municipal court clerk's office in the courthouse during those hours on Tuesday.

Gollighugh may be reached at his office at P.O. Box 473, 901 Alaska, Alamogordo, N.M., 88310; phone 437-9210.

FURR'S is getting a facelift. According to Joan Sharp, manager of the Carrizozo store, painters covered the white outside walls on Friday and Saturday. They were attempting to paint the red trim Wednesday when a rainstorm halted work.

Workshop planned on timber program

ALAMOGORDO—Lincoln National Forest will involve the public in the evaluation of its current timber management program, including adjustment of the existing Land and Resource Management Plan habitat guidelines for Mexican spotted owls and Northern goshawks.

Workshops begin at 7-9 p.m. Thursday, July 25 at the Alamogordo Civic Center, Room D. They continue Friday, July 26, from 7-9 p.m. at Cloudercroft Community Center.

A workshop will be conducted from 7-9 p.m., Tuesday, July 30, at the Smokey Bear Ranger District Office on Mechem Drive in Ruidoso.

Two others will be conducted at the Bureau of Land Management Office in Albuquerque on Thursday, Aug. 1 and at Corbett Center on New Mexico State University campus in Las Cruces, Saturday, Aug. 3.

Interested individuals are urged to take part in one or more of the open houses where the status of the timber program will be discussed. It is anticipated levels of timber harvest and timber sale objectives will be changed for the next five years.

There will be opportunities to share individual ideas for development of a future timber program and identification of the issues associated with the management of national forests.

Questions about the meetings should be addressed to Lincoln National Forest Planner Ron Hannan in Alamogordo, 437-6030.

School not far in future for students at Capitan

School is just around the corner for Capitan students. Students will find some changes at the schools when they go back on Tuesday, Aug. 20.

Capitan Board of Education submitted a Chapter 1 budget to the New Mexico State Department of Education which will set aside enough funds to have two, full-time kindergarten teachers. This will allow the school to offer all-day kindergarten to two classes simultaneously, said superintendent David Lock.

Last school year, the kindergarten classes went half-days with only one teacher. If the state approved the budget, which the school will not know for about another week, the classes will be set.

Tentative plans have been made to have Dottie MacVeigh and JoAnn Washburn teach the two classes.

Final plans for the kindergarten classes will not be made until final approval of the budget comes from Santa Fe, Lock said.

As for the high school,

Lock will recommend to the Board of Education at its August meeting to hire Darrel Stierwalt as high school principal. Stierwalt was selected from a number of very qualified applicants, Lock said.

Stierwalt comes from Ruidoso Schools where he served as associate principal at the high school. He also taught driver's education classes to Capitan students this summer.

Teachers have an in-service day set for Monday, Aug. 19. Then at 8:05 a.m. Tuesday, bells will ring to start the 1991-92 school year at Capitan schools.

Public hearing set

New Mexico State Highway and Transportation Department in conjunction with the Southeastern New Mexico Economic Development District will hold two public hearings to receive input on the 1992-93 Five-Year Transportation Plan.

The five-year plan addresses capital improvements to be undertaken on the state's highway system over the next five years. The plan is updated annually based on needs and priorities received from local citizens and elected officials around the state.

The public hearings for Lincoln, Chaves, Eddy, Lea and Otero counties will be held at the Campus Union Building, ENMU-Roswell, Roswell on Aug. 2, beginning at 1:30 p.m. and in the Otero County Commission chambers, New York & 10th Streets, Alamogordo, on Aug. 5, at 1:30 p.m. Officials from the State Highway and Transportation Department will be present.

If you are unable to attend any one of these hearings, you may submit written comments to Tony Elias, 110 E. 4th, Suite 105, Roswell, N.M., 88201; 624-6131 no later than July 29.

exterior was cleaned by seven summer youth workers.

Mayor Cecilia Kuhnel thanked the county for their help.

In other business, Curtis Schrader, planning & development specialist for Southeastern New Mexico Economic Development District (SENMEDD), conducted a public hearing for the town concerning the Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) application.

Trustees agreed to submit an application for more street paving. A special meeting will be held Tuesday, July 30 at 6 p.m. to pass a resolution for the CDBG grant application. The personnel policy will be finalized during the special meeting.

Schrader presented a progress report on the current CDBG street paving project. He said it is hoped construction will begin in September, which will give two months to complete the project.

The municipal budget for fiscal year July 1, 1991, to June 30, 1992, was approved. The town begins the year with an unaudited beginning cash balance of $462,099, estimated revenues will be $698,028, budgeted expenditures are $835,376, which will leave an estimated ending cash balance of $324,751 on June 30, 1992.

Carrizozo Municipal Airport Manager Hal Marx reported the paperwork has been completed for the airport to get the free runway sweeper with vacuum through the airport surplus equipment program. The airport is also scheduled to receive a free non directional beacon.

Marx said ENMU Aviation Division and Peacock Aviation will be using the airport. Peacock will conduct a weekend flight school in Carrizozo if at least 15 students agree to complete the course. Any person interested should contact Marx at the Carrizozo Municipal Airport.

Marx also presented a disclaimer to the town which will release the town of any responsibility while he uses town-owned equipment. Town attorney Bob Beauvais said the disclaimer should suffice but advised the town to notify the liability insurance company.

The swimming pool will be closed from Sunday, July 28 through Friday, Aug. 2.

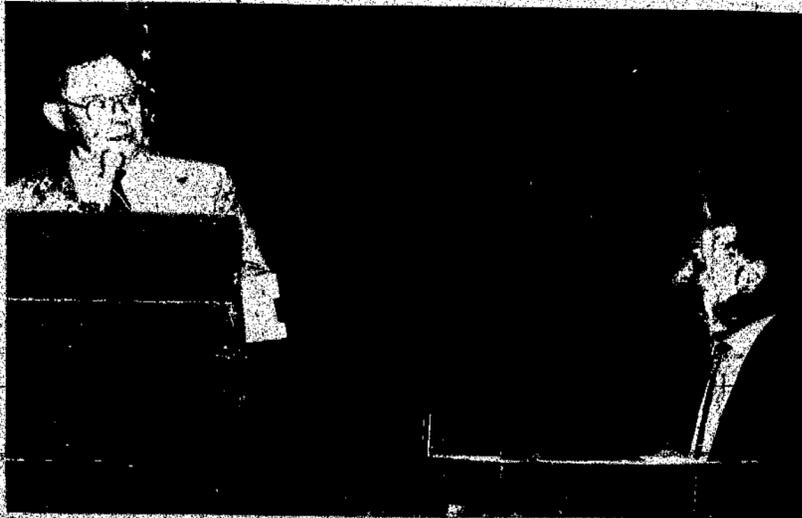

Trustee Harold Garcia spoke about the work at Fred Chavez Park and said the town should make sure the project does not fail one more time. He asked to have the Little League Park mowed and watered regularly.

Garcia agreed to chair the veteran's memorial monument committee.

The town received a letter from Ann Heymann complaining about the abandoned gas station across the street from Harold Desjardin's Antique Shop. Trustees agreed to notify the owner and will consider a resolution if the condition of the property is not improved.

Hal Sims resigned from the Economic Development Corporation of Lincoln County (EDC/LC). Mayor Kuhnel may fill the vacancy.

After a closed session for personnel for an hour Mayor Kuhnel announced that employees sending memos are responsible to see that all persons involved get a copy of the memo.

Livestock producers

As for the Wetlands Bill, a clearer definition of "wetlands" is needed, since different federal agencies argue that, Rawlins said. Again he pointed out how the federal government threatens private property rights with these laws.

Rawlins commented on other environmental headlines such as African Killer bees, which he termed as Afro-American bees, because they are interbreeding with honeybees. He urged producers to contact their legislators to refrain from writing laws about stopping the movement of bees, just because of the African bees. Bees are vital for pollination of various crops.

Many of the environmental issues broadcast on television as news are actually opinions, he added. Yet, television has become a megaphone for the "crazies" who are pushing the federal government to "screw up private property rights."

"You never hear the voices of scientists, teachers, plumbers and farmers," he said. Rawlins concluded by telling members, "You can't let them (legislators) off the hook!"

Even a few calls to senators and congressmen are effective, Rawlins said, then gave the telephone numbers of each one from New Mexico. "They will listen."

After Rawlins spoke, Warren Newberry, president of the 4-H Foundation, chatting up on family news" visiting. After lunch, a formal business meeting will award numerous attendance prizes and a drawing for the friendship quilt for which each family unit supplied its own unique quilt block. Later, the family auction will feature furious bidding on family-created arts and crafts.

Saturday evening will feature the annual dance with music furnished by the Rounders. On Sunday, after a mid-morning brunch, the family will gather for a brief memorial service at the Cedarvale Cemetery. The afternoon will be filled with many tearful goodbyes, with solemn promises to get together once again in 1992.

After the general session, members attended special interest conferences during the afternoon. The conference included one for women on survival skills for today's society with presentation by Mary Ellen McKay and Charlotte Mitchell; farm issues examining the re-evaluation of lease rates on state trust lands by Laura Riley with the state land office, New Mexico Water rights presented by UNM law professor Dr. Chuck Dumars and free trade agreement by Rawlins; public lands/private property issues were explored by Raw-line in a beef cattle/public lands conference. Beef cattle futures markets and strategic deworming of cattle also were discussed.

Tuesday night, members were treated to a barbecue and dance at Prime Time in Ruidoso Downs.

Wednesday, the conference continued with discussion of reapportionment in New Mexico presented by Sen. Tom Rutherford; a panel discussion of capital gains benefits; a fiddling hoedown, concluded by a talk about "Weird Weather—a typical year in New Mexico," presented by Bill Eisenhood, chief meteorologist for KOBT-TV.

The more than 200 members registered for the conference represented every New Mexico county.

Historical Society, informed that members meet once a year to discuss acquisitions for the museum. This year's items included a bell, which has been installed; and a display of antique newspapers laminated for preservation.

Other officers of the Society are Marion Spencer, vice-president; Dorothy Leslie, treasurer; and Inez Ballinger, secretary.

During the early years of the Pony Express, the Historical Society provided breakfast for celebrants at the race. That custom was discontinued when the starting point for the race was changed from White Oaks to Capitan Gap.

This year, the Historical Society re-enters Pony Express activities by preparing a brunch designed to hold us through the morning's activities.

Later in the day, a barbecue will be available to provide energy for the nighttime celebration—a melodrama, "The Villain of Rose Gulch Hollow," presented by the Carrizozo Little Theater Group, and a dance from 8 p.m. to midnight.

A complete rundown of activities for Pony Express day in White Oaks will be presented next week. Meanwhile, questions may be directed to Ruth Birdsong at Birdsong's Crafty Cages in the heart of White Oaks.

The monsoon season seems to be upon us. That's okay; it makes for some cool days and very comfortable evenings.

Delighted that the town has new industry on the way, Lincoln Laminated Logs, Inc. will begin production soon. We welcome the industry which will bring with it some employment opportunities. The corporation, owned by Robert Walker Jr., Doug Gould and Gary Christenson, all of Ruidoso, will manufacture laminated beams to be used in home building. The business will be located in the old ice plant and some of their equipment has already been moved in. Christensen said Carrizozo is the ideal location for shipping their product which will be sold exclusively through dealers.

New Mexico's U.S. senators voted "yes" on July 17 in a 53-45 roll call allowing a $23,200 pay raise for themselves and their colleagues. That hike takes a senator's pay from $101,900 to $125,100 annually. The amendment to the fiscal 1992 legislative branch appropriations bill (HR 2506) tied the pay hike to a ban on the honoraria senators receive from special interests. It means senators and House members will be paid at the same level, with honoraria as an income supplement outlawed in both chambers. Honoraria is money from special interest groups for speeches or other public appearances. Sen. Pete Domenici, R-N.M., said, "I believe the issue is a matter of pay equity. Members of the House of Representatives and members of the Senate ought to receive the same salary." Sen. Jeff Bingaman, D-N.M., said, "I joined other senators in voting for the Senate pay raise because along with the increased salary comes a mandate that senators no longer may accept honoraria. Senators probably should make at least as much as congressmen and it was a good move to ban honoraria. It still rankles, however, considering the clandestine manner in which the pay hike vote was taken. Called 'The stealth pay raise' by one opponent, it was organized behind the scenes and the vote was taken on a late Wednesday night in an effort to avoid a public outcry that might block it.

Calling him "very qualified and a man of broad experience," Sen. Pete Domenici announced his support for Judge Clarence Thomas, President Bush's nominee to fill the vacant seat of the U.S. Supreme Court. "I believe Judge Thomas is very qualified to serve on the Supreme Court," Domenici said following a sixty minute meeting with Thomas. "He has achieved mightily in life, having gone from poverty to the verge of a seat on the Supreme Court. And in so doing, he has passed through various demographic conditions that make those around him say, 'he is just like me.'" In addition, Domenici continued, "while Judge Thomas clearly believes that each of us is responsible for achieving our own success, he recognizes that there are those who need help and special consideration. Judge Thomas has broad experience and I believe he will make a good Supreme Court Justice. 'I look forward to the Senate hearings and to hearing more from Judge Thomas,'" Domenici said. "Based on what is known to date, I look forward to voting to confirm Judge Thomas."

Welcomed visit by Mother, Dad, sister and brother-in-law this past weekend. Modelle Powell of Abilene, Texas, G. I. Powell of Eastland, Texas, and Laura and Edwin Chappell of Albuquerque. Then came niece Laurie Spence of Abilene, and grand-nieces Autumn, Arin, Ashton and Alisabeth. Fun time!

Corona 4-Her takes honors at state meet

Lincoln County Senior 4-Her Callie Gnatkowski of Corona won the high point individual rating in Consumer Decision Making at the State 4-H Conference in Las Cruces last week.

The Lincoln County consumer decision making team of Gnatkowski, and her fellow teammates Barbara Bradley of Corona and Jenny Northrop of Carrizozo, placed fourth overall. Bradley also placed as 2nd high individual in the consumer decision making competition.

Carrizozo senior Brett Barham did not compete, but attended the conference held at New Mexico State University in Las Cruces.

Inside The Capitol

SANTA FE—Sooner or later the Democratic Party is going to have to get serious about fielding a candidate for president. And if Democrats are to have any chance for a decent showing in 1992, it had better be sooner.

Santa Fean Chris Brown, a political consultant on the national scene, says another possible top candidate will soon announce his decision not to jump into the race. House Majority Leader Richard Gephardt has recently notified Brown he will not be a 1992 presidential candidate.

For over a decade, Brown has been at the top of many Democratic candidates' list to call about jumping into presidential politics. In 1976, Brown began building his reputation as the guru of New Hampshire when he engineered a primary election victory for unknown former Georgia governor Jimmy Carter.

Carter won New Hampshire again in 1980 with Brown's assistance. Gary Hart used the proven formula in 1984 to take the nation's first presidential primary. Only in 1988 did a Brown candidate lose New Hampshire. Richard Gephardt came in second to Gov. Michael Dukakis from the neighboring state of Massachusetts.

So it was logical that Gephardt would contact Brown about the possibility of running in 1992. But after some polling and many contacts, Gephardt decided to stick with his congressional duties.

Brown says that leaves Sen. Al Gore of Tennessee, Sen. Jay Rockefeller of West Virginia and Gov. Bill Clinton of Arkansas as the most likely top contenders.

Sen. Jay Rockefeller of West Virginia is another good possibility to make the presidential plunge. Blessed with the family's tremendous fortune, Rockefeller is known to spend whatever is necessary to win a race. In his 1984 senatorial campaign, he spent $12 million to his opponent's $1 million. New Mexico Sen. Pete Domenici, in the same year and in the same size state, spent $2.7 million.

West Virginia's small size will be a major disadvantage to Rockefeller. The state will lose one of its four congressional seats next year due to reapportionment and so will carry no more electoral votes than New Mexico. But Rockefeller has a family name that should help him overcome the small-state deficiency.

BIG DOINGS

In 1975, as a contribution to the American Bicentennial celebration, the nation promoted the country. Then, now and tomorrow was the focus 16 years ago.

The state of New Mexico got into the act with a new license plate depicting a New Mexican landscape in red, white and blue. The dates "1540-1776-1976" marked 496 years of New Mexico history, while incorporating the nation's celebration of the American Revolution.

In 1975, the community of Corona entered that year's Bicentennial celebration with a weekend of fun and frolic. The activities included an arts and crafts fair along main street, dignitaries officiating at a park dedication, a barbecue, rodeo and dance.

According to last week's Lincoln County News, festival time is just around the corner again: August 10. The festival was started in 1975. Last week's ad information promises a fun-filled day just like 16 years ago.

REMEMBER THEM?

Corona was a busy town that August 1975 weekend of festivities which included the dedication of the Grace Sloan Simpson Memorial Park. Mayor Ken Fuller presented a plaque to Roy Simpson in memory of his mother. Lt. Gov. Bob Ferguson was on hand to give a speech.

Expressions of appreciation were extended to those in the community who helped make the park a reality: Mrs. Robin Pfeiffer, Community Action Program president; Jo Ann Washburn, director of the Bicentennial Committee; Lee Mulkey, Coahoma, Texas, who sold the pipe to the community for the little league backstop; and Gov. Tom Bolack, who donated trees. The school and State Highway Department were thanked for their contributions. Emiliano Luera was recognized as the most active senior citizen.

The park dedication was followed with the Albuquerque Tigers downing Corona in a baseball game. The dance started 30 minutes late due to a power outage. The Jones Hatband from KHEY, El Paso, played at the dance with 200 in attendance.

The FDA and Chaparral 4-H sponsored the jackpot and team roping and open barrel racing. First place results in those activities were: junior barrel racing—Becky Washburn and Amy Wilton; mixed team roping—Lon Huilleyman and Harp McFarland; team roping—Bobby Green and Buddy Dunn.

LOOKING BACK

The Bicentennial celebration in 1975 inspired the Lincoln County News to feature a historical edition containing the county's colorful past. By the way column readers will see excerpts from this special edition in the weeks to come. Let's start with Corona.

Corona, from the Spanish word means 'crown'. The original Corona was located at the reservoir, where there were a butcher shop, saloon and general store. When the railroad came through all businesses were moved to the present site. Corona nestles in the woodland covered hills adjacent to the Cibola National Forest, where upon their arrival the settlers found peace and plenty in one of the last frontier towns. And, yes, Billy the Kid was a frequent visitor to this section of the county during his short and blazing career.

In 1899, the village of Corona began as a cowtown. The village developed from an earlier settlement known as Red Cloud Post Office, located on the Cook and Greathouse Ranch a few miles southwest of the present townsite. Corona, always a livestock center, centered around the Corona Trading Co., originally the Charles Hfield Co. Willis R. Lovelace came to the area and ranched in the early 1900s.

From about 1879 to 1922, mining for copper and lead was carried on in Red Cloud Canyon and on the east slope of the Gallinas Mountains. In the early days of this activity, the ore was hauled by wagon to El Paso and Socorro to the smelter. In 1902, the railroad was completed through Corona, and shipments of ore were then made by rail until 1922 when the mines were closed.

Back in 1890, the mail carrier who brought the mail from White Oaks to Red Cloud on horseback was killed in Red Cloud Canyon by a man who resented the attentions of the mailman to his wife. The first mail contract (by car) was from Torrance to Roswell. The men ran the mail route in two-cylinder Buick cars.

FAMOUS MURDER

Saloons were among the first buildings in Corona. One of the first was owned by J.T. Davidson. His saloon sign in 1912: "Whiskey, the Road to Ruin."

Lawlessness prevailed in the early days of Corona. Murder trials were held in the old courthouse at Lincoln. (Carrizozo later became the county seat where court convenes.) Corona citizens elected Joe Simpson as justice of the peace and Jim Welch constable to maintain law and order.

One of the most famous killings involved two Corona doctors in an argument over a patient. After the argument, Dr. Stone took a shot at Dr. Davis and hit him in the neck. Stone was brought to trial in Carrizozo and found "not guilty." Stone returned to Corona by train about 6 a.m. and went to the meat market for steak. Davis, tipped off by Mrs. Davis, followed him in and was more accurate in his aim. Stone died that night in 1921.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Where is town spirit?

EDITOR—Where is the spirit in this town of Carrizozo? Are we all just sitting here waiting for the ax to fall in the final blow?

All I hear are complaints about business being bad, about we can't do this, and we can't do that. Why can't we? What's stopping us? Good Lord! Can't we work up a little enthusiasm for doing things that will benefit the whole town instead of twiddling our thumbs feeling sorry for ourselves? Are we just sitting back letting LIFE pass us by? Where is the spirit of adventure and accomplishment that made this great Southwest?

It is my impression after resting here for more than a year that a great many people here have an unrealized desire for this town to become a ghost town. So the railroad deserted us. So what. There have to be other means of survival.

Certainly, an attitude of "it won't work" never got anybody anywhere, and as long as that prevails in this town, it never will get anywhere—except into the grave. Change never killed anybody. Only apathy kills.

If the malingerers get out of the way and let life flow back for those of us who can cope with it, we may be able to revitalize this town. Surely an ounce of enthusiasm is worth more than ten truck loads of apathy.

Let change happen. You might like it.

ANN HEYMANN,
Carrizozo.

People, when was the last time you told the kids you love them? Or, better yet, kids, when was the last time you told your Mom and Dad you love them? The way life is now, tell them now before it's too late. Once they are gone, it is too late. Put your families closer, respect each other. We were all children at one time.

Love one another; there are lots of good kids out there, and parents, too. Make every day Family Day before the days are gone.

JIM HAWKINS,
Carrizozo.

Family Day proposed

EDITOR—Father's Day has come and gone once more for another year. But why does Father's Day or Mother's Day have to come one day a year? I have a son who, for him, every day is Father's Day and Mother's Day is every day.

And why don't we have a Children's Day? I know that we take care of the kids every day, but if you look into your children's eyes when you yell at them or praise them, it's a WHY? look.

Canning season can be fun

by Betty McCreight / Lincoln County Cooperative Home Economist

Canning season is here. Food canned at home often gives us a sense of pride and self-satisfaction of having done it ourselves. The goal is to preserve a high-quality product that is safe, nutritious, attractive and with good coloring and shape. To obtain these results, it is important to follow USDA Guidelines that are based on the latest scientific research.

Vegetables are naturally low in acid. Vegetable canning calls for special precautions, different than those used in canning fruit, which contain acids. Growth of micro-organisms particularly must be avoided. Some bacteria cause food spoilage, others produce toxins that, if allowed to grow, could cause illness or death. Clostridium botulinum is a harmless bacteria in air. In little or no acid, with only a little oxygen and temperatures between 40 and 120 degrees this bacteria grows and produces a deadly toxin. This toxin can cause death or serious damage to the central nervous system if eaten in minute amounts, such as in one tiny taste.

All communities in New Mexico are well above sea level. The higher the altitude, the lower the boiling point of water. It is important to know the elevation of the location where you live before canning. Adjustments must be made to compensate for lower temperatures.

Pressure canning is the only safe way to home can vegetables and other non-acid foods.

To prevent botulism, the internal temperature of canned vegetables and other non-acid foods must reach 240 degrees Fahrenheit. At higher altitudes, the pressure must be increased appropriately to reach the desired 240-degree temperature.

Each canning season, check all equipment and supplies. Once a year, have the pressure gauge checked to be sure it is correct. This test can be done by bringing your lid to the County Extension office. If the gauge is off by the pound or more, replace it for safety measures.

Use only jars recommended for pressure canning. Mason jars made of tempered glass to resist the high temperatures reached inside the canner. Mason jars require self-sealing lids held in place by a screw on metal band. Use lids only once. Bands can be reused unless they are dented or show signs of corrosion.

Home canning does require patience, time and work, but can be very satisfying. For more detailed information and free guidelines, contact the County Extension Office P.O. Box 217 and 648-2311.

Magistrate Court

Lincoln County Sheriff's Deputies pulled innocent bystanders off the streets Friday.

Only 11 of the 22 listed potential jurors showed up at the courthouse in Carrizozo Friday for a jury trial set by Magistrate Judge Gerald Dean Jr. Since Dean considered that not enough potential jurors to form a panel, by law, he was allowed to instruct the deputy to get any registered voter off the street to be brought in as a potential juror.

Six innocent registered voters who happened to be on or near the sidewalks around the courthouse Friday were tapped for jury duty. Finally, with enough potential jurors, the panel was selected and the trial for Kevin Puckett began.

Puckett, 28, Ruidoso, was charged with reckless driving, driving on a revoked driver's license, resisting arrest and DWI, all misdemeanors stemming from an incident on White Mountain Drive in Ruidoso Jan. 30.

Puckett had pleaded not guilty to the charges. His court-appointed attorney was Sandra Porter of Alamogordo.

The trial took about seven hours and the jury found Puckett guilty of all charges. Dean sentenced Puckett to 90 days in jail for reckless driving, 96 hours for the revoked license, 364 days jail for resisting arrest and 364 days for DWI. All jail time was to be served concurrently for a total of 364 days in the county jail. Puckett also was ordered to pay $603 in fines and court costs.

Dean said Ruidoso attorney Gary Mitchell, who formerly served as public defender for Lincoln County, did not receive a contract renewal for those services from the state. Dean foresees more jury trials out of his magistrate court in the future.

The following persons also appeared before Dean recently:

Bibiano M. Lopez, 32, Deming, no insurance, $36 court costs paid after proof of insurance submitted.

Jesus R. Alcocer, 37, Juarez, Mexico; no insurance, $136 fine and costs.

Terrence Garza, 21, El Estero, speeding 77/55, $116 fine and fees.

Jimmy L. Hutton, 28, Mountainair; no insurance, $136 fine and fees.

Patrick E. Ventura, 29, Las Cruces; no insurance, $36 after proof submitted.

Sergio Robles, 27, Socorro; speeding 75/55, driving on revoked license, $367 fine and fees paid.

Timothy M. Griffith, Victorville, Calif.; issuance of worthless checks, sentence suspended, ordered to pay restitution and court fees.

Raymond A. Guilmette, 45, Albuquerque; speeding 66/55, $31 fine and fees.

Benjamin G. Menzor, 49, Denver, Colo.; no insurance, expired drivers license, $81 bond forfeited.

In the service

Navy Fireman Apprentice Ronald A. Reynolds, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Reynolds of 117 Rainer Road, Ruidoso, N.M. has completed the Basic Electrician's Mate Course.

While attending the self-paced course at the Service School Command, Naval Training Center, Great Lakes, Ill., Reynolds received instructions on electrical theory and operating principles of the batteries, generators, motors, and transformers used aboard ships and at-shore installations.

The 1990 graduate of Capitan High School, Capitan, joined the Navy in August 1990.

Basketball tourney nets long list of local hopefuls

Basketball players and fans from all walks of life (young and old, male and female) will gather in Roswell this weekend for the Zia Gus Macker Tournament.

The 3-on-3 tourney, in cooperation with the City of Roswell, is a charity event designed and run by players for players. A portion of each team fee supports worthwhile Roswell causes.

More than 400 teams at $65 for each 4-person team have entered the July 27-28 annual event. Ready to show off their basketball skills are teams with names such as Balanced Attack, Chile On My Mind, End 2 Nun, Rip Em, Dead End, Final Four, Four Guys - One Dream. And would you believe... Knees Ain't Got It No More?

Twenty-five Carrizozo young men will participate in the Macker on Grand Avenue, next to the Wool Bowl. Team members of Rip Em, sponsored by Crossroads Motel are Abe Padilla, Michael Chavez, Dennis Vega and Mark Guevara. Team members of Chile On My Mind, Raphael Chavez, James Silva, Lee Roy Zamora and Coby Sims are sponsored by The Rominger Company, Outpost Bar and Grill and Phillip 66. Final Four's players are Ruben Gallegos, George Vega, Jonathan Vallejos and Willie Archuleta and they are sponsored by Leslie's Fina.

Other Carrizozo team members are: Dead End Anthony Archuleta, Cory Collins, Blas Herrera, Heath Rickman (United New Mexico Bank has given this team T-shirts with the Bank logo). The team named Grizzlies is comprised of Bryan Turnbow, Chris Schlarb, Justin Portillo and Nathan Portillo.

Each team is assured a minimum of three games. The tournament is double-elimination with a consolation losers' bracket for first two game losers — the Toilet Bowl. All team members get chances to win trophies including the coveted award "The Gussy." Each player will receive free Gus Macker T-shirts designed to make each hoopster the best dressed basketball player back home in their own driveway or backyard court.

The Gus Macker Tournament also features a slam-dunk contest, a two-point line, the best dressed team, three-point free throw and a "Shoot Hoops Not Drugs" contest. The Miss Macker beauty pageant honors women with basketball skills.

The games will be the same as the one played on driveways and in playgrounds the world over: half court 3-on-3 in an outdoor setting with players calling their own fouls and violations. Each court will have a monitor called a GusBuster to oversee disputes and control the game.

The games begin early Saturday morning. Award winners must be present Sunday to accept their awards.

Capitan News

by Margaret Rench

This area has received 2 1/2 inches of good rain.

Fred and Nancy Urea, formerly of Capitan and now of Los Lunas, were weekend visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Purcella.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Sullivan just returned from a week's vacation in Canaan, Mexico. They also got to visit their sons, Mike and Paul, who reside in Dallas.

The monthly potluck dinner was held at the Senior Citizens Center. As usual, there was a good crowd and very special goodies to eat.

Pat Bailey broke her left wrist last week in Alamogordo. She fell while bowling, but luckily she did not fall on her "bowling" wrist.

Weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Alton Whittaker were Patty Knight of Brownfield, Texas, and Jackie Parker and daughter Elizabeth of Carlsbad, N.M.

The Blue Door Gallery at 105 Lincoln was a busy place over the weekend. Betty and David Posley held their "open house" on Saturday and Sunday afternoons and they were pleased with the nice response from the people of Capitan. The guests were impressed with the display of original art by our local artists as well as nationally known artists. Capitan is very lucky to have such a beautiful museum. If you have not had the pleasure of meeting Betty and David Posley, we urge you to drop by the "Blue Door Gallery" and introduce yourself. We guarantee you will be very impressed.

The Corriente CowBelles

began having team ropings in 1984. The money raised is used by the Corriente CowBelles to promote beef, the livestock industry, and the biggest part is given in scholarships to college students and high school graduates studying in ag-related fields. Much is given back to the Lincoln County Fair in donations, sponsoring the buyers luncheon each year and donating an award in the livestock show.

In 1989 the CowBelles dedicated the roping to Grady Le Eldridge, who was killed that year. He worked for and supported the roping from the beginning, winning it in 1987. Since then it has been known as the Grady Le Eldridge Memorial roping. This year, the winner of the high school scholarship was Vicki Sedillo, $300. The college scholarships were awarded to Jay Eldridge, $300; Guy Payne $100; and two book scholarships of $50 were given to Yvonne Montes and Rachel Lacy.

This year, 763 teams competed for the $10,000 in prize money. In the true novice roping the go-round winners were John Parker and Guy Payne of Capitan with a time of 7:09 seconds.

WE'RE CLOSING THE GENERATION GAP.

Electricity has been so much a part of our lives many of us take it for granted. But it wasn't really so long ago that electricity was almost unknown in rural areas, and life in the rural southwest meant doing without so many of the things that make life easier.

Your rural electric cooperative has been bringing power to families since the 1940s — power for lights, appliances, heating, cooling and entertainment. We'll continue to provide clean, safe, efficient electricity at the most reasonable price and we're working to extend our service to families in remote areas who still struggle with kerosene lanterns, gasoline generators and water from windmills.

Electricity brightens life and lightens the burdens of everyday living. Ask a brand new rural electric cooperative customer to whom we just extended service...and eliminated the generation gap.

SHERIFF'S REPORT

They just couldn't find it. Lincoln County Sheriff James McSwane and his deputy Jimmie Luna spent a frustrating Monday morning trying to find a residence in the Enchanted Forest Subdivision where a homeowner had apprehended a burglar in the act.

According to McSwane, a resident in the J & M Apartments in the Enchanted Mesa area north of Alto, called the sheriff's office after finding a perpetrator in his home. The subject, who had allegedly gained entry by forcing a lock, was apprehended by the resident and his friend, both carrying weapons.

The resident had prior knowledge someone was in the house, McSwane said.

The homeowner and his friend detained Enrique Dominguez until the sheriff and deputies finally arrived to make the arrest. Dominguez, 34, Ruidoso, was booked into the Lincoln County Jail on two charges of burglary. His bond was set at $25,000.

The following information was taken from dispatch records at the Lincoln County Sheriff's Office in Carrizozo:

Benefit Pops Concert to aid arts, film set

Arts projects sponsored by the Ruidoso Arts and Film Commission will get some financial help with proceeds from an upcoming concert which promises to be a smorgasbord of musical delights.

Ruidoso Friends of Music and the Arts will present a Benefit Pops Concert Aug. 1, at the Inn of the Mountain Gods Wendell Chino Ballroom. Curtain time will be 8 p.m.

Proceeds will not only help art projects but go toward matching state funds.

Tickets are now available at several locations and also can be obtained by calling 257-9518.

The pops concert will feature performers from Las Cruces and the Ruidoso area, and all are donating their time.

Teddi Sullivan, singer/pianist will appear with Don Lindley on drums. She will perform jazz, golden oldies and New Orleans blues. Sullivan is now appearing in Las Cruces and at Carrizo Lodge in Ruidoso. She also has starred at Pat O'Brien's in New Orleans, and Domino's in San Francisco.

Sullivan also will play keyboard for Dick Valenzuela's Jazz Quintet. Valenzuela is a master musician playing tenor sax and clarinet. He teaches band at Capitan High School and was recently nominated for Gov. King's Excellence in the Arts Award. Also in the quintet is Leroy Gooch.

Gooch, well-known in the area, plays both electric and string bass. Mario Cardova will be on drums, Mike Francis possibly appearing on piano and Jenny Stephens, song stylist and big band singer, will do the vocal honors.

Patti Brimberry, formerly of Dallas and New Orleans, will be showing her piano virtuosity by playing Chopin and Bach selections, as well as a violin offering.

Brimberry and Sullivan will share piano accompaniment for Paul and Barbara Westbrook, former opera singers/entertainers from California. The Westbrooks have appeared with the New York Opera, San Diego Opera, Houston Grand Opera, and recording with RCA Victor with Toscanini.

The concert will be repeated in Las Cruces Aug. 12, during the Summer Music and Theater Festival at New Mexico State University Performing Arts Hall, curtain time 8 p.m. All proceeds of that concert will be donated to the Dona Ana Lyric Opera and to the Las Cruces Community Theater.

"This is truly a sample of the arts supporting the arts," according to the release. Tickets are available now for $8 for adults and $5 for students and seniors, at the Music Shoppe and California Colors Art Gallery, both in Ruidoso.

Three-man exhibit scheduled by Meigs

Fort Meigs Galleries in San Patricio will present artists Joe Dunlap, David Band and Stan Minge in a new exhibit opening Aug. 4 and running through Sept. 6.

The exhibit, like the galleries and gardens, will be open daily from 9 a.m.-5 p.m.

According to John Meigs, owner of the galleries, "I personally put my stamp of approval" on the paintings of the three men.

According to a news release from the galleries, "The three artists in this new exhibit have, each in their own directions, the ability to express themselves and convey to others the excitement of creative painting."

The brochure also gives a biographical sketch of each of the artists.

"Dunlap is a native New Mexican (giving in San Patricio) brought up in the outdoor life of this vast country. His paintings reflect his intense involvement with the landscape and the wildlife with which he is so familiar. Having directed several galleries in New Mexico, he also appreciates an audience tuned to his own sensitivity.

His works achieve a special quality inseparable from his own love of the land.

"Band, from Wichita Falls (Texas), preschooled himself with a two-year journey to Europe and the near East, during which time he sharpened his observation and talent by painting on location many fascinating subjects that captured his interest. Now, painting for a greatly enlarged audience, and taking as his direction the Southwest, he has captured in delicate detail his own view of our special area.

"Minge is that rare breed of today's painters who see their world in abstract delineations. Widely collected in California with an important following in the Monterey Peninsula area, he now lives in Albuquerque. His rich color and vivid imagination transforms everyday landscape and still life into vibrant forms and whimsical interpretations. A powerful sense of design makes for exciting viewing and a challenge to the collector to discover the variety and often hidden elements."

'Market could go nuts' over pine needles for composting

Pine needles may be unwanted nuisances to some, but used in large scale public composting by Lincoln County Solid Waste Authority they may become pure gold.

Lincoln County Solid Waste Authority (LCSWA) members heard from David Warren from the New Mexico Engineering Research Institute, who presented his Organic Waste Composting Study for Lincoln County. Warren's encouraging study showed how composting can extend the life of a landfill and make LCSWA money. The composting will utilize the nearly 60,000 cubic yards of abundant, unwanted pine needles from the Ruidoso area, yard and landscaping materials countywide, horse manure from Ruidoso Downs Race Track and sludge from the Ruidoso-Ruidoso Downs Wastewater Treatment Plant.

Currently, many of the pine needles are hauled to the Roswell Landfill, 160 miles distant, or to the Captain Class C landfill, 25 miles distant. To find a way to get them out of the waste stream, LCSWA gave Warren the challenge of finding out how to compost the pine needles. A challenge it was.

After looking through all sorts of journals and reports, and calling around, Warren came up empty-handed. There just were no documents or studies made on pine needle composting. With the help of retired scientist Dr. Bernhard Reimann of Capitan, who experimented with pine needle composting, Warren determined pine needles can be an effective part of the process.

In fact, after proper treatment of the pine needles by shredding, spreading and allowing the volatiles to evaporate, the needles no longer have a high acid content which tends to inhibit decomposition in the compost piles.

Warren's report shows how the pine needles and other wastes can be hauled to a facility near the wastewater plant just east of Ruidoso Downs and composted into a final product that could eventually be in big demand.

Despite an annual price tag of $81,605 for a compost facility, Warren pointed out the current system of hauling away those compostable wastes cost $112,370. The savings to compost those wastes would be $30,765 a year. And that did not include any revenues from sales of the composted end-product.

Environmental Protection Agency issued new regulations which are requiring governments to rethink their waste management practices for source reduction and recycling with goals of 25 and 50 percent reduction.

Warren's report made recommendations for composting processes; site evaluation, selection and preparation; waste characterization; costs/avoided costs; collection advantages and disadvantages; recommendations for a viable composting operation in Lincoln County and recommendation for Phase 2 pilot experimentation.

By using the windrow method, compost can be made within a few months, and become a sellable commodity.

"You don't lose on composting as long as you pay attention to what you're doing," Warren said.

Certain EPA rules regulate composting and must be followed in order to sell it.

But it takes education to get the public to separate organics from household wastes, Warren continued. He suggested passing out colored bags for such, which can be put out on a certain day for pick up.

Dr. Reimann requested $4,800 to begin a pilot experimental composting program at the wastewater plant. His request is on the agenda for the Aug. 12 LCSWA meeting.

If the composting project is approved, LCSWA might extend the life of a landfill and save money on hauling solid waste. And, in the long run, it might make gold out of horse manure and pine needles, with a commodity that might command prices of up to $100 a ton.

"The market could go nuts," Warren said.
