LCSWA To Set New Policies

By DORIS CHERRY

Lincoln County Solid Waste Authority is more than just dumpsters.

Now, more than a year since its inception with ideals of establishing a local landfill and picking up the entire county's trash, LCSWA is experiencing the realities of managing a solid waste collection operation. At its meeting Monday, members discussed some of the problems which have risen since it began collecting Ruidoso's garbage in late April. Those problems prompted members to agree policies need to be set concerning employees, rates, finances and management.

Recent media criticism about the level of solid waste service within the village of Ruidoso caused at least one members to express his dismay that the bugs in the operation of the collection could undermine the intent of the authority—to obtain a landfill to deal with the future trash needs of the county.

A landfill is closer to reality, since LCSWA convinced Otero County, the City of Alamogordo and villages of Tularosa and Cloudcroft to form its own Otero County Solid Waste Authority. That group is anxious to begin drilling test holes for an actual landfill, since its landfill is slated to be closed by 1994. It also has agreed to work closely with LCSWA to make the landfill a regional facility.

Back at the LCSWA meeting, members agreed that it will take time for residents in Ruidoso to become accustomed to directing their concerns and complaints to the LCSWA office in Ruidoso Downs. Previously problems were called into the trash supervisor at the Gavilan Canyon transfer station.

No longer should the public call the transfer station, since management of the trash collection is dealt with at the LCSWA center and is not a function of the village of Ruidoso.

Members also agreed it will take county residents time to become accustomed to paying for their trash collection. Last week the Lincoln County Commission approved an ordinance which makes it mandatory for each county household to pay $5.25 a month for trash collection. The ordinance is expected to become effective by Oct. 1.

Jury Can't Agree; Mistrial Declared

The jury just couldn't agree. The 12 jurors in the embezzlement trial of former Carrizozo Deputy Clerk Kathy Palomarez deliberated through the afternoon of Aug. 5 and on into the morning of Aug. 6 before finally declaring to be hopelessly deadlocked.

Nine of the jurors voted for acquittal and three for conviction and were unable to agree unanimously. As a result, District Judge Richard A. Parsons declared a mistrial.

Palomarez was indicted by the Lincoln County Grand Jury April 4, 1991 on charges of embezzlement over $2,500, computer access with intent to defraud or embezzle, computer abuse and misuse of public funds. The computer charges were dropped and the embezzlement over $2,500 charge was subsequently changed to embezzlement over $250.

The charges stemmed from an incident where Carrizozo Town Clerk Carol Schlarb discovered several processed Motor Vehicles Division documents shoved into the back of Palomarez's desk drawer in Carrizozo Town Hall. Upon investigation by the state regional Dept. of Motor Vehicles office in Las Cruces and the state Attorney General's office, it was discovered 16 persons who had renewed driver's licenses, reregistered vehicles and/or transferred titles at the Carrizozo Motor Vehicles Division from January to August 1990 had invalid documents, because those documents had never been filed with the Santa Fe Dept. of Motor Vehicles office. That office is part of the New Mexico Tax and Revenue Division.

During the three day trial Aug. 3-5, evidence was introduced which showed the people paid a total of $749.60 for those bogus documents.

Palomarez's defense attorney Gary Mitchell introduced testimony which claimed the poor accounting and lax controls over the cash boxes and utility accounting in Town Hall was responsible for the unfilled documents. But Assistant Attorney General Carol Clifford acting as prosecuting attorney for the state, introduced the missing documents and questioned how Palomarez, who filled out daily reports for Motor Vehicles, was unaware of stickers which were out of number sequence.

Clifford attempted to show the jury, and subsequently convinced three of them, how Palomarez allegedly could have taken the funds to help pay a balloon payment on her home and for other debts.

But Mitchell was able to convince the nine jurors that Palomarez had not taken the money by showing how utility funds within Town Hall had been co-mingled with the Motor Vehicle accounts, and other accounting discrepancies.

The Palomarez trial had experienced several delays since it was first set for district court May 27-28, 1991. By law, criminal trials are required to be held within six months of an indictment.

Mitchell first requested a delay from the May 27-28, 1991, trial date because he had a previous trial date in the Mescalero Tribal Court. Judge Parsons granted the trial be reset for Sept. 17-18, 1991.

The state also asked for a continuance on May 15.

Then on June 18, 1991, Mitchell again asked the court for a resetting of the September trial date because he was

New Carpet And Paint For School

By RUTH HAMMOND

The Carrizozo Board of Education took action during the Aug. 18 meeting to begin a program that may save the school money and may also allow staff members to receive a larger take-home check each pay period.

According to Roy Thornton of American Fidelity Assurance Company, the program was sanctioned by the federal government in 1984. Called Section 125, the program provides for the school, as employer, to deduct employee voluntary coverages for medical insurances before making calculations for deductions for social security, medicare and federal withholding. This translates into a savings for the school district because the deductions for social security, medicare and federal withholding are then based on a taxable salary which is less than the regular salary which includes fringe benefits.

American Fidelity Assurance Company does not charge the school for the service of assisting with bookkeeping programs for the system but will offer supplemental insurance to school employees.

Thornton said his company does not sell much insurance the first year and there will be no "high-pressure" sales tactics used because American Fidelity Assurance Company employees are paid salary and expenses instead of commissions.

Among the types of insurance and/or services that will be offered will be supplemental insurance for disability or cancer or other health conditions, life insurance, shelter annuities, and college plans. None of the supplemental policies offered will affect existing coverage employees now have.

Thornton said representatives from his company will talk with each school employee to explain the program. Employees may include their spouses, attorney or CPA if they want. The program may be in place by November.

Section 125 is not available for private businesses.

The board hosted a reception for all new staff members at 6:40 p.m. just prior to the regular board meeting.

In other business, the school board discussed hail damage to the school. The adjustor was to review the damage Wednesday.

—Board members viewed blueprints presented by M&E, Dale Zinn Architect and Associates for the roofing and heating and compliance with the Americans With Disabilities Act (ADA) and will proceed with that matter.

Two new teachers were added to the staff of Capitan Schools last Thursday.

Capitan Board of Education employed Becky Huey Schultz as elementary special education teacher and Betsy Eldridge as third grade teacher at its meeting Aug. 13.

Secure Loads Or Pay Fines

Persons who haul construction and/or yard trash to the Class C Landfill outside Capitan should be forewarned to secure their loads properly or be cited.

Complaints of trash falling onto the roadways from unsecured loads traveling to the Capitan Class C construction landfill has led local law enforcement agencies, including New Mexico State Police, Lincoln County Sheriff's Officers, Ruidoso and Ruidoso Downs Police and Capitan Police, to enforce laws concerning the securing of loads taken onto public highways.

Police will issue citations to any person traveling the highways with an unsecured/uncovered load.

Any citizen who sees an unsecured load is encouraged to

The board also accepted the resignations of Mark Poyner as fifth grade teacher and Nell Davis as assistant football coach.

The two new employees round out the staff at Capitan Schools. Other persons hired this year were Bobbe Fowler, who returned to Capitan Schools to teach third grade, Randy Pritchard as VoAg teacher and advisor, Ron Becker in the high school gifted program, Bonnie Rogers and Wanda Strickland in the cafeteria and Jeri Wilson as custodian.

Capitan junior and senior students will have a chance to obtain college credits while still attending high school. The board approved the Concurrent Enrollment policy which will allow a student to receive a one-half unit of credit in the high school curriculum for each three credit hour university course. All concurrent courses will require a mutual agreement between the student, his/her parent(s) or legal guardian(s) and the school committee for concurrent enrollment.

Concurrent enrollment will offer students the opportunity to take courses not offered at Capitan High School and is not to replace courses offered at the high school. Students will not be allowed to take a course if a similar offering is available at Capitan High School. Concurrent enrollment may also provide a way for students to make up credits.

The concurrent enrollment policy was adopted with the intention to allow students to participate in courses offered by Eastern New Mexico University.

New Talent In County

A young Capitan singer is making herself known.

La Krystal Roybal de Capitan began her singing career about four months ago when she performed for the public, friends and family at the Capitan School Talent Show.

Since then she has performed at a family reunion and a family birthday in Silver City.

She continued to entertain audiences with her Spanish songs at the July 4 Parade in Capitan, where she won the first-place trophy for band category.

From Capitan, she performed at the Little Britches Rodeo during the Lincoln County Pony Express Day in White

Oaks Aug. 1.

La Krystal appeared and performed in the Old Lincoln Days parade, where again she won the first place trophy for Best Musical Entry. The same day she performed for the public until dusk under the big elm tree across from the Lincoln County Heritage Trust Center.

La Krystal will sing for the annual meeting of the Soil and Water Conservation Service in San Patricio on Sept. 3.

La Krystal Roybal de Capitan is the 10 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Roybal.

Her guitar accompanist is Jesse Cervantes, also of Capitan.

That date is also slated as the start up of trash collection within the county by LCSWA.

Discussion about that payment made members consider how fees will be set in the future. Since county residents have not paid for trash ever before, the fee was set at the low rate because the level of service will be lower than in the municipalities.

After discussion, members agreed that in the future the authority to set garbage collection rates will remain with the governmental entity members of LCSWA. A motion was adopted to amend all the previous joint powers agreements with the members entities to include wording similar to the county ordinance to give the rate setting authority to those government bodies.

LCSWA members also approved a resolution to ask the Lincoln County Commission to approve a joint powers agreement with LCSWA, which is in effect a contract between LCSWA and the county for trash pick up.

Last week, during the public hearing of the county ordinance, Len Stokes, former president of the Southwest Disposal Corp. which currently picks up county trash, requested the ordinance be amended to allow a private business to contract to pick up county trash. However, LCSWA members agreed such an arrangement would undermine a large part of the total LCSWA operation, which was to pick up all the solid waste generated in Lincoln County, including municipalities.

ty in Ruidoso, said Capitan superintendent David Lock.

The board also adopted a policy to conform to the American Disabilities Act. In the policy, the school states it will not discriminate against an individual with a disability and will provide equal opportunity to all programs, services and positions.

Larry Oldrup, architect with Architect Plus employed by the school to provide plans for the district, toured the campus Thursday. During his tour, Oldrup noted where the district must correct deficiencies in order to comply with the American Disabilities Act, along with noting other needs. Surveys were taken last spring regarding needs in the district's physical plant. Oldrup will present his findings at a future date.

Milk will be provided by Borden Dairy Inc. this school year, the company providing the best bid.

The school's used 1970 pick-up truck will be sold by closed bid. Advertisements for the bids will be published this week. An obsolete heater from the VoAg paint booth also will be similarly sold.

High School principal Darrell Stierwalt will be the district's 1992-93 voting member on the New Mexico Activities Association.

Board members Tom Trost and Ervin Aldaz, along with Lock will attend the September Capitan Village Board of Trustees meeting to seek financial help to construct a baseball/soccer field.

A joint powers agreement with Ruidoso Municipal Schools was approved to provide special services for two students who reside in Capitan district, but who attend Ruidoso Schools.

The board met in a closed session to discuss personnel as the final item on its agenda. After the session, the board returned to open meeting and took no action other than to adjourn.

The board will conduct a closed session meeting to discuss personnel at 6:30 p.m. today (Thursday) Aug. 20.

The next regular meeting will be Thursday, Sept. 10.

Currently, the Town of Carrizozo and Village of Corona are locked into contracts with Southwest Disposal. The two municipalities, both members of LCSWA, are expected to sign joint power agreements with LCSWA when their contract expires in about two years.

LCSWA members agreed to consider Southwest Disposal as a private contractor to pick up county trash, if a proposal was presented by the Alamogordo-based company. NO such proposals have been presented to date. Stokes has talked with many members of LCSWA to convince them to leave the option for private business open.

Members agreed LCSWA can do a better job at providing collections and services than can Southwest, which wants to only collect trash. It will not pick up large items placed around dumpsters and other such services.

Members approved the lease-purchase of 100-150 new dumpsters for the county collections. The three yard dumpsters will replace the six-yard containers, will be located at the current dumpster sites, and in additional sites yet to be determined. The money for dumpsters was provided for in the budget formally approved Monday.

Worries about LCSWA being unable to meet its financial obligations were laid to rest. A new financial report showed. LCSWA's financial situation is improving, with $38,178 netted last month alone.

Computer software is being employed which will allow the LCSWA office to begin billing county residents by October.

Personnel management problems are hoped to be resolved with the hiring of an operations manager. That person will be involved with scheduling of routes and dealing with employee attitudes and problems. The LCSWA executive committee of the top officers also will work with LCSWA general manager Gene Green on employee policies.

The recycling program is going great, with the recycling "igloos" now located in Ruidoso, Alto, Capitan and Carrizozo. This recycling program made $4,000 on the purchase and sale of aluminum. A grant from the state will keep the recycling program operating for this year.

Three members were appointed to a committee to work on a positive public relations image for LCSWA. Three others were appointed to work on the dumpster problems in Ruidoso.

Members approved a request by Ruidoso resident Barbara Westbrook to paint a clouds motif on a dumpster near her home. She will have the board critique the painted dumpster and compare it with the unpainted one nearby. If LCSWA approves of the paintings, she hopes to begin a program of dumpster paintings.

The next meeting of LCSWA is at 9 a.m. Sept. 21.

involved in the death penalty trial of State vs. Gregg Braun. In August, 1991, the State Supreme Court was petitioned for an extension of time to commence the trial. The petition was granted and the trial reset for Dec. 3, 1991.

On Nov. 4, 1991, Mitchell requested a continuance because he was involved in the death penalty trial of State vs. Ricky Abeyta. The State Supreme Court was again petitioned for an extension of time for the Palomarez trial. The petition was granted and an order issued by the Supreme Court extending the time to allow the trial to June 3, 1992. Judge Parsons set the trial for Jan. 3, 1992.

But Mitchell wrote to the Judge and stated he had problems with access to records in Town Hall. The Attorney General's office agreed the trial be continued if the records were not received.

The judge then ordered the defendant was entitled to examine only those relevant Carrizozo town financial records from Jan. 1-Aug. 31, 1990, and the trial was reset for June 2, 1992.

On May 20, the court notified Mitchell it had run out of money, and all jury trials were suspended because there were no funds with which to pay jurors or to reimburse out of town witnesses. The trial was reset for Aug. 3, 1992.

July 31, 1992, Assistant Attorney General Carol Clifford, who was not the original prosecutor assigned to the case, gave notice to the court that the state would not prosecute the computer access and computer abuse charges and the indictment was amended to make the charge of embezzlement to over $250 and for misuse of public funds. Clifford also asked the court to exclude testimony and evidence about an incident involving town clerk Schlarb in 1990 and the evidence pertaining to discrepancies and unreported shortages in the Town utility accounts.

That request was apparently not totally honored, since Mitchell introduced the evidence and testimony about the discrepancies and unreported shortages in the town utility accounts.

During the trial the misuse of public funds charge was dropped by the judge, at Mitchell's request.

Following the declaration of mistrial, the Carrizozo Town Trustees, at their regular meeting Tuesday, Aug. 11, instructed Carrizozo Mayor Cecilia Kuhnle to contact the Attorney General's office to inquire if it will retry the case.

According to Mayor Kuhnle Wednesday, Aug. 19, she had mailed the letter to the AG's office, but she had yet received no response. Assistant AG attorney Clifford was unavailable for comment.

Al's Musings

BY AL STUBBS

A lot of ground was covered Monday afternoon when New Mexico's attorney general, Tom Udall, and assistant Ag Lindsay Lovejoy Jr. appeared at village hall to outline the state's posture on the Mescalero Apache MRS project.

"Why dispose of atomic waste on a populated continent?" Lincoln County resident Wally Hess declared. He suggested storing the stuff at the South Pole where there are no people.

Maybe ice caves would serve just as well as salt caves to contain the nasty material technology has produced. No, Antarctica doesn't belong to the U.S., and besides that stuff might melt the icecap and flood New York City, New Orleans, Los Angeles and other coastal cities.

Udall said that the site selection for the MRS (high-level nuclear waste storage facility) is the crucial question. If the chosen site, if one ever is designated, will have an impact, say, on underground or surface water off the reservation, then the state can take legal action if indicated.

A major complaint at the session at village hall is that there apparently is no accountability required of the tribal council or Wendell Chino to the public on how feasibility study tax dollars are being spent.

The feeling was: "Hey, that's our money."

Udall and Lovejoy were invited to Ruidoso by the Ruidoso Village Council to update the village on the state's posture on the project and to hear future plans of the AG office.

The meeting got very emotional when Francis MacGoosh said she was fired from a job on the reservation the day after she said some things in a "public meeting" concerning the MRS project which, she said, didn't please the tribal council.

Her voice broke as she stated her opposition to the MRS project and lamented the "muzzling" of tribal members via economic sanctions.

She pleaded with Udall for help. The AG promised the use of "all of our resources" in dealing with the issue. "I have my best man (Lovejoy) on the project," Udall said.

A first-time interdenominational gospel singing session, staged Sunday afternoon at the Miner's Castle Mountain Music Hall drew an almost capacity crowd.

The former theater along U.S. 70 West has been redone and is deluxe. Live stage shows, music and comedy (in the Branson, Mo., mode) are presented six nights a week at the location. The "Castle Mountain Music Makers" are featured; they played for part of the gospel sing, along with local and out-of-town talent.

When you visit the Castle Mountain Music Hall, check out the paintings on the walls of numerous castles. The paintings are by talented artist Rudy Cote of Ruidoso who has a studio at his home in Pinecliff. He and his wife, Rosalie, are artists in another area of endeavor, too—landscaping. Rock work, railroad ties and plantings are blended harmoniously and extensively at their place on Mockingbird. We emphasize the word "extensively."

Did you see in the Sunday magazine section of USA Weekend where our mountain was identified as "12,000-foot Sierra Madros." We appreciate the travel article on Ruidoso and Lincoln County, but, hey, "one of our 50 is missing." We understand New Mexico Magazine already has been alerted to the goof. "One of Our 50 Is Missing" is a standard feature in New Mexico Magazine. We don't want too many people to find out where New Mexico is. But we need to let the world know we've been a state since 1912.

The Rev. Dan Link and wife, Barbara, and little Hannah, will call Animas, Colo., home after Sept. 1, he has been called as pastor of the Presbyterian Church there. He has been pastor of the First Presbyterian Church here for the past two and a half years. The church here will be searching for a new pastor. The Links were honored at a "going-away" party at the Jerry and Bonnie Maddox home Sunday.

New Hours At Salinas

Baca also said that he wanted to remind everyone that, on October 10, 1992, from 10 a.m. through 4 p.m., Salinas Pueblo Missions will host a cultural festival entitled "Encounter Salinas." The festival will be held at the Quarai ruins located 8 miles north of Mountainair off NM State Highway 55.

The day will feature Native American and Hispanic performers and artisans. Food service will be available. Admission is free. For further information contact: Superintendent, Salinas Pueblo Missions National Monument, P.O. Box 496, Mountainair, N.M. 87036 (505) 847-2585.

Letters To The Editor

EDITOR—In his acceptance speech, Bill Clinton, proclaimed the late John F. Kennedy and Dr. Carroll Quigley as the two men most instrumental in giving him his "vision" of citizenship. Who, pray tell, was Dr. Carroll Quigley?

Among other accomplishments, Quigley wrote a book, "Tragedy and Hope," a 1300 page tome published by MacMillan in 1966. The cover tells us that he taught at both Harvard and Princeton. He served as professor of history at the Foreign Service School at Georgetown University. He was collaborator of history at the Smithsonian Institute. There is much more. Quigley was an academic heavyweight.

We have searched "Tragedy and Hope" hoping to locate clues that might tell us why Dr. Quigley made such an impression on Bill Clinton. This information came from page 950:

"There does exist, and has existed for a generation an international Anglophile network which operates, to some extent, in the way the radical Right believes the Communists act. In fact, this network, which we may identify as the Round Table Groups, has no aversion to cooperating with Communists, or any other groups, and frequently does so. I know of the operations of this network because I have studied it for twenty years and was permitted for two years, in the early 1960s to examine its papers and secret records. I have no aversion to it or to most of its aims."

Well, there are many of us who have a very definite "aversion to it." Bill Clinton should make his position perfectly clear.

Inside The Capitol

by Jay Miller

SANTA FE—INSIDE THE CAPITOL went on an inspection tour of the state Capitol Building the day after a piece of New Mexico folk art was removed from the premises because of its religious implications.

Civil liberties and Jewish groups protested what they said was a link between church and state represented by a screen depicting religious figures. Joel Brooks, a Jewish Federation spokesman, said the wooden screen conveys the impression this is a Catholic state.

This was despite the fact that a sign next to the screen specifically announced there was no religious significance to the native artwork. The sign explained that the alter screen was displayed as a piece of New Mexico culture.

But that wasn't good enough for our self-appointed watchdogs.

Gone too were the beautiful wooden trasteros elsewhere in the building that had contained illegal crosses. In fact all legislative space in the building had been swept clean of anything that might have had a religious significance. A painting of a plaza scene hanging outside an entrance to the Senate gallery had a smudge right where the cross of the mission church should have been.

It looked like we were going to find an acceptably sterile building until we got to the Governor's Office. There, prominently displayed on a large needlepoint tapestry, were not one, but four illegal crosses. One of the offending crosses was atop what looked suspiciously like a Catholic mission church.

Do you suppose that means Gov. Bruce King is a Catholic? Could be. The large handcarved New Mexico desk, behind which he sits, also has some religious symbols, if memory serves me correctly.

As if that weren't enough, Molly Chavez, the governor's receptionist, has a very large pottery Acorna bear fetish displayed behind her desk. First Lady Alice King has been known to have several Hopi kachinas in her office. And the current exhibit in the Governor's Art Gallery, in his reception area, is replete with drawings of sacred Indian dances.

Obviously one could get the impression that New Mexico officially sanctions Indian religions.

Legislative Council Service Director Paula Tackett has replaced the offending alter screen with a campfire scene by Western artist Gary Niblett.

But onlookers inspecting the painting shortly after its installation found several problems.

There are five people in the painting—all look suspiciously non-minority. The only ones who appear to be working are the two women, who are taking orders from a guy on a horse. The time of day is either sunrise or sunset making it appear to be a violation of Section 50-5-2 of the New Mexico statutes that specifically indicates no woman is to work more than eight hours a day.

One of the pack horses obviously has far too heavy a load and a campfire in the foreground appears to be burning in dry grass that has not been cleared. And since the grass is orange, it must be an endangered species observed one onlooker.

Those with axes to grind, when they visit the well-traveled area, will probably find other features in the picture about which to be offended.

According to reports, the alter screen was to be moved to a less prominent spot in the Capitol but it was nowhere to be seen the day after it was removed from a lobby area next to elevators on the third floor where legislative committee rooms are located.

One Capitol staffer suggested it might be in Tackett's office where she will pray to it every morning for deliverance from suits brought by other easily-offended groups.

Grazing Advisory Board Election Set

The Las Cruces District Bureau of Land Management is conducting election of members to serve for the next 2 years on the Las Cruces District Grazing Advisory Board (GAB).

The GAB is chartered by the Secretary of the Interior to advise and make recommendations to the District and Area Managers in the course of administering range programs in the Las Cruces District.

The GAB consists of eight members, each serving a 2-year term. In accordance with the charter, the election calls for two members from each of the District's Mimbres, Caballo, and Socorro Resource Areas. The Mimbres Resource Area includes Dona Ana, Luna, Hidalgo, and Grant Counties. Caballo Resource Area includes Sierra, Otero, Chavez, and Eddy Counties. Socorro Resource Area includes Socorro and Catron Counties. There will also be a cattle-at-large representative and a sheep-at-large representative.

To be eligible to nominate, vote, or serve, an individual must hold a lease or permit to graze livestock on public land within the Las Cruces District's three Resource Areas.

Letters have been sent to all eligible individuals asking for nominations. The nominations are due into the Las Cruces District Office by August 25, 1992. The election process will be completed by September 30, 1992.

Legal Info Available

Legal information on a variety of topics is available to New Mexico residents via telephone as part of a public service program initiated by the State Bar of New Mexico one year ago.

The program, Today's Law, offers simple legal information on more than 50 different topics. The recorded messages are 30 seconds to three minutes long.

Today's Law topics range from bankruptcy to tenants' rights and are accessible with a touch-tone telephone. The purpose of the service is to better inform callers about their legal rights and responsibilities, to help determine whether they have a legal problem, and to help them obtain legal assistance if they do not have an attorney.

Today's Law phone numbers are 247-2030 in Albuquerque and 1-800-950-5543 toll free throughout the rest of the state.

The Other Side

By Owen Russell

The square dancers were in town the other night, and I was talked into going. (You know, like "if you don't go, I'm not coming home", or "You can wash the dishes while we are gone dancing." At any rate, it sounded mandatory.) Actually, I didn't mind going, because 20 years ago or so, I used to be quite the gay blade. Several times I have overheard someone say, "Look at that dancer over there. He sure is a square, isn't he?"

After watching awhile, I remembered why my interests had shifted to ball-room dancing. Square dancing, in spite of its social values of fellowship and bad jokes, is somewhat of a cross between a non-contact sport and low impact aerobics. The only thing that makes your heart beat is the short frilly skirts. All you do is walk around and you don't even have to think, because the caller does all that for you, or at least that's what I was led to believe when I looked over at the square that was in trouble. They all said it was the caller's fault. I really didn't think that was so, because from my observations, it appeared that the individual couples were just marching to different drummers. (This is an example of the cultural values you can develop in square dancing because they all would have had to have read Thoreau's writings to know there are different drummers in the world. Otherwise they would have just been out of step.)

I can certainly recall back when I was square dancing having difficulty following what the caller was telling me to do. I guess the first problem was that I didn't know if I was supposed to sashay my partner or parlez vous my corner, and if I did, about the time I got something good going, the caller would make us change directions. And besides that, there was a whole bunch of foreign sounding names I couldn't pronounce, like alley mand and law and honor your partner, and swing through and square through, etc.

In between sets they did some round dancing which was a little more to my liking. The substitute caller (the regular caller was polishing his tonsils) called out the different steps we were to do and it seemed a little safer since you only had to worry about the couple behind you running into you instead of there being three other couples on all sides of you and all headed in your direction at the same time, which is what happens in square dancing.

All of this was colorful and fun, but I still agree with what a friend of mine told me once. He said he thought square dancing was a lot of fun until he learned how to do it.

I guess I shouldn't complain though. Square dancing was my first organized attempt at doing something other than hopping to the music. Before I started square dancing, the only steps I knew were a basic two-step, a waltz that bounced up and down and wound up on the wrong foot, and a movement that somewhat resembled the activity of the proverbial bull in a china shop. And when I got into round dancing, I discovered there might be a way to have fun and be graceful at the same time.

So, I was pretty well prepared when I was introduced to ball-room dancing. (It's very much like round dancing, except you are on your own.) So I spent about as much time learning ball-room steps as I did learning how to square dance (for or five lessons), and then started really having fun. I took all I had learned in the various types of dancing, found me a partner with a sense of humor and steel toed shoes, and started putting my knowledge to use. After a few months, I had developed pretty much my own style of dancing which incorporated some of the attributes of all the types I had studied. I took a number of perfectly innocent, unsuspecting ball-room move-

Delay Sought For New Water Testing

New Mexico's Congressmen are scrambling to support legislation which will delay implementation of the 1986 Safe Drinking Water Act and provide a number of potential solutions.

New Mexico's 1,332 water systems will have to start testing for copper, lead, pesticides and some 60 other contaminants in water systems by the end of this year, 84 by November 1993 and 111 contaminants by 1997. Currently, water systems test for 36 contaminants.

The major problem with the additional tests is the cost. EPA is imposing the new regulations, but is not allocating funds to pay for the tests. Smaller systems, such as those that serve rural areas of New Mexico, may feel a huge impact and could be required to increase water rates to consumers to pay for the tests.

The Other Side . . .

ments and converted them into interesting bar-room routines. (Bar-room dancing is a form of ball-room dancing with more enthusiasm than skill.) Now if I could just find someone to dance with, I could really put on a show. (Probably entitled something like "Serenade of the Bull in a China Shop".)

"No one should have to pay $100 per month water bills," said Rep. Joe Skeen in a recent release. "Many small water systems will undoubtedly go bankrupt unless we can arrive at a solution."

The last week of June Sen. Pete Domenici, along with Sen. Hank Brown R-Colo. introduced a bill in the Senate to suspend implementation of the safe drinking water law, except when a health risk exists, until the program is reviewed by the EPA and reauthorized by Congress.

The bill's substance resembles a recent set of recommendations made by the Western Governor's Association.

Rep. Steve Schiff and Skeen met with EPA's director of ground and drinking water last month to discuss ways to ease the burden on small water systems. The potential solutions will allow small water systems to combine resources to pay for water analyses for chemical contaminants. Small systems can apply for a waiver from the regulations if a specific contaminant is not used in the area surrounding the water system.

Small systems can apply for federal grants to offset the costs of the test, in addition to applying for state grants.

Congress could increase funds to state grant programs, or pass a new law overruling the 1986 amendments to the Safe Drinking Water Act that mandates the tests.

"It makes no sense, in the name of improving the quality of drinking water, to make it too expensive for people to use it at all," Schiff said.

Wavy Lines Studied By USDA & Army

The wavy lines you see on the horizon on a hot summer day, similar to a mirage, are caused by optical turbulence and have brought the US Army and the US Department of Agriculture together for a joint research project.

The joint experiment on radiation and Energy Balance (REBAL) is being conducted in conjunction with the US Army-ASL from White Sands Missile Range.

The heat balance at the earth's surface, which affects the optical turbulence, is strongly linked to evaporation of water and is affected by the air temperature, relative humidity, wind speed, and solar radiation, and these parameters can be used in computer simulation models to predict the energy and water balance that affect things like crop water use, irrigation scheduling, and ultimately crop yields in addition to optical turbulence.

Optical turbulence affects both visible and infrared light transmission and can distort or degrade some common activities that use light or laser transmission such as modern surveying equipment or even focusing of cameras or video recorders.

Optical turbulence can be a detriment to weapon sighting systems used by the military similar to many used in the recent Desert Storm War in the Persian Gulf.

The USDA-ARS team is working on the measurement of surface radiation components, energy balance components, soil water content, and micro-meteorological components—air temperature, relative humidity, and wind speed profiles.

The US Army-ASL team is working on the measurement of optical turbulence and visible and infrared imaging. The University of Texas at El Paso is evaluating a new soil water sensor that may be useful in battlefield assessment as well as have some agricultural applications.

The US Department of Commerce, National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, National Weather Service team is providing information on cloud cover and type as well as regional weather observation maps and forecasts.

Both USDA-ARS and US Army-ASL teams are working on computer simulation models of the surface radiation and energy balance. This inter-agency Federal cooperation permits each agency to share data and resources without expensive duplication and to work closely together in both sensor developments and in computer modeling.

Babe's two brothers, Matt and Al Boehm and wives Dorothy and Doris plus Al and Doris' granddaughter Jenny were here for the week. Matt and Dorothy are from Vancouver, Washington and Al and Doris from Lebonon, Oregon. They had been to North Dakota to visit relatives and went from there to Kingman, Arizona to visit Matt and Al's brother Clem and wife Barbara, then to Laughlin, Nevada and to San Diego, Calif., to visit brother Bill Boehm and wife Tuddie plus various cousins, etc. Also attended a wedding in Los Angeles for Al and Doris' granddaughter that lives there.

Son Dennis Tracey flew in from Oakland, Calif., for three days, did some backhoe work on the ranch. Dennis operates a backhoe for utility districts in Oakland, San Francisco and the Bay Area.

Three daughters and families from Albuquerque also visited at the ranch and attended the Festival. Dawn and Wayne Johns and son Justin Black, Rhonda and Gary Garlick and sons Chris and Ryan Sedillo, Courtney and Roger Brown and sons Jason and Shaun Osborne. All had a wonderful family get-together and a great time at the Festival.

Haven't previously reported on the Tracey's vacation trip made by Elmo, Babe and grandsons Forrest Tracey and Ryan Sedillo. Left by car the day after school was out for a months trip to 22 states and Canada. The first stop was Everton, Arkansas where they visited Winston Cape, a 1941 senior classmate. Winston is a brother to Norabelle Thomson of Corona and also brother to Archie and Walter Cape. Elmo and Winston had not seen each other since graduating from Corona High School. Elmo reports a great visit with Winston while Babe visited with Winston's wife. The trip extended to Clarkton, Missouri to visit the Baptist Oak Grove Church and cemetery where Elmo's great-grandmother Elizabeth Dishman and great-great-grandfather James Alexander Dishman are buried, on to Virginia Beach and Norfolk, Virginia, to visit son Loren and wife Pam and grandchildren Shannon and Adam. Up the coast to embark on the Delaware to Cape May, New Jersey ferry for a rough three hour ride, sure enjoyed it though. Spent three days on the world famous Board Walk in Atlantic City, then to Bala Cynedy, Pa., to visit Elmo's brother Glyn, wife Jean and some of their children. Visited one day at the very large Amish community around Lancaster, Pa. On to Jersey City, NJ and New York City to visit the Statue of Liberty and Ellis Island, very interesting history. On to the Wisconsin Dells in Wisconsin where the boys took a helicopter sightseeing tour, had a great flight. On to Canada and Toronto, city of over two million people and then three days at the world famous Niagara Falls. On to Marysville, Ohio to visit friends Howard and Molly Black. Howard underwent open heart surgery while we were there and is now doing well. On to North Dakota for a five day visit with many of Babe's relatives. Babe was born at Mandan, North Dakota, had a great time there and then home sweet home. They had a great trip and enjoyed all the people and sights.

Grandson Jason Tracey and his friend Kevin Arredondo are here now from Oakland, Calif., to attend UNM in Albuquerque, second year for Jason at UNM and first for Kevin. Although Kevin has been in college for a couple of years before this. We enjoyed having them on the ranch, they are great workers and Kevin has been here many times before.

CAPITAN STUDENTS POUR OFF THE BUS the first day of school, all ready to get together with friends not seen all summer and to get down to the business of learning.

Capitan News

by Margaret Rench

The regular monthly meeting of the Capitan Chamber of Commerce will be held on the second Monday (14th) due to the Labor Day holiday. The meeting will be at the Smokey Bear Coffee Shop at 11:30.

Be sure to attend the ranch rodeo, Saturday at 2 p.m. at the Capitan fairgrounds.

The Lincoln County Rodeo Club held their last playday Aug. 15. They will have their awards banquet on Aug. 29. Congratulations to all the participants.

Happy birthday to Sherry LaMay Saturday, Aug. 22.

School started Monday again in Capitan. College bound students will be leaving this week also.

How fortunate we are. Six light blue bins have been placed on the Shell property southwest corner to the highway. The bins are labeled: bottles, cans, paper and etc., which is great. They will help us to recycle. Do appreciate it, we all need to recycle. Thank you.

We want to give a thank you to Henry Griego, who collected money for flowers for 88 year old Tony Leyba of Lincoln, who died this past week and was laid to rest in Lincoln.

Scott and Jill McLaren of the Litztech Jewelry Company from the Pocono Mountains, Pennsylvania spent several days last month with Pauline and Alton Whittaker. As Pauline stated, this summer her place has had a revolving door with all her guests. Her sister Beulah Beidleman and brother O.L. Henson of Clyde, Texas just left after spending a week, and her daughter LaVonne Neatherlin of Carlsbad spent last weekend with them. We can't blame folks for visiting Pauline and Alton, because they are such nice and friendly folks!

Mary Dean was hostess to the Round Table Ladies on Thursday. The luncheon was in honor of Gladys Pew who is moving to Roswell to make her home. She and Stanley will be greatly missed.

Becki Throop and sons Randy and Adam left for their home in Washington on Monday. Becki is the daughter of George and Elaine Beaudry.

Until next week, happy thoughts and try a bit of kindness.

Breakfast Is Served At Capitan

Capitan students will have a chance to eat breakfast at school this year. Capitan Schools will offer breakfast in the cafeteria to all students and staff. Varying menu items, such as cereal, toast, cinnamon rolls, pancake, muffins, scrambled egg, biscuit/gravy, egg burrito, French toast, will be offered, with different main items each day. In addition to the main items, juice or fruit will be offered. Students may choose all items or as few as three at each meal.

Breakfast will be served from 7:55 to 8:15 a.m.

During lunch, students in grades 7-12 will be offered a lunch tray from the regular cafeteria menu, or a Chef's Salad. Also, students may choose only three items of the lunch tray instead of a full tray. If students choose the Chef's Salad, they should let their teacher know when lunch count is taken, so the cafeteria staff can prepare the right amount of salads.

Prices this year are 30 cents for reduced breakfast and 65 cents for full pay breakfast for students and $1.25 for adults. Lunch prices will be 40 cents for reduced lunch and $1.10 for students in grades K-6, $1.25 for students in grades 7-12 and $2 for adults.

Meals may be paid for in the cafeteria or elementary students may pay their teachers.

People For The West Discuss Grazing Fees

"The Rest of the Story" on purchase of public land from the Bureau of Land Management (BLM) for $2.50 an acre for mining purposes was presented by Marlowe Sharpe, Nogal, at the August 6 meeting of Carrizozo People For The West (PFW). Sharpe pointed out that this procedure is quite expensive and time-consuming, involving verified proof of mineral deposits that can be mined and sold at a profit before any patent will be granted. Patenting a mining claim is nearly impossible and in 1989 only three patents were granted, most of which went to Native American tribes through land settlements in Alaska. It takes between five and 20 years to patent a claim and an expenditure of between 50 thousand and one million dollars per claim to prove an economic ore body and other criteria required by the BLM. Further information may be obtained from the brochure "Patenting a Mining Claim on Federal Lands" and from George Schepcoff, BLM office in Roswell, (505) 622-9042. Also discussed at the meeting were the upcoming hearings regarding grazing fees on public lands. The next meeting will be on September 3 at which time Dr. John Fowler, Agricultural Economist at NMSU, will speak on the input and costs of sheep and cattle on public range, and the contributions the ranchers make to the local economies. The Capitan and Carrizozo chapters of the PFW and all those interested in wise use of public lands are invited to the September meeting at the Country Club at 6 p.m.

Ranch Rodeo Saturday

The 1992 Lincoln County Ranch Rodeo will be held in Capitan Aug. 22 at 2 p.m. Proceeds will go to ranch cowboys and their families should there be a crisis of any sort which causes financial difficulty. Recipient of the fund in 1991 was Bessie Leslie, widow of Zane Leslie.

Ranch Rodeo events will include wild cow milking, wild cow riding, wild horse race, team penning, team branding, and team roping and doctoring. All these events prove a cowboy's ability at his regular ranch work as well as letting him show off his special skills.

FORT STANTON: FACTS and FICTION

By BETTY JOINER
Congratulations to Wendy and Albert Hernandez on the birth of their new little boy.

Becky and Tom Tejada, Tommie and Kaylee spent a week camping out at Cloudcroft a week before school started. They had lots of fun.

Donna and Jerry Cazares, Eddie and Audrey Davis, Della Joiner, Shane Holder, and Bessie Jones enjoyed Sunday afternoon with Pat and me. We were celebrating our 29th wedding anniversary a day early. Sure wished Ronald could have been there, but he reports he is busy putting in 10 hour days in Kansas. He has been doing a little of everything, going to four-wheeler school, a seed seminar and will be attending a computer school in Hutchinson in a few weeks. Ron likes it there all except for the hot weather and missing his friends. Leonard Hall sent a card and expressed his hello's to everyone from Trotters, North Dakota.

Lincoln County Rodeo Association held its final playday on Aug. 18. The banquet and dance will be held on the 29th. Remember to get in touch with one of the members and get your raffle tickets on the saddle as it will be drawn for that night.

Favin and Benny Dalton were real glad to get their dog "Chunky" back from Precidio, Texas. Some lady came through Capitan in the latter part of July, picked up the dog and took it back to Texas with her with no explanation. The story was she inquired at the post office, the bank, and the village hall, trying to find out if the dog had owners. When no one could say whether or not it belonged to someone in Capitan she just left her phone number and took the dog with her. Shortly after returning to Precidio, the lady had the dog neutered. When the Dalton's couldn't find their little white dog, it was soon known some lady had taken it to an unknown destination. All they had to go on was the phone number that was left at the city hall. After many calls to the mysterious lady and many promises to return the dog to Capitan with no results, Benny and Benjamin, his grandson, took off to Precidio to find their lost dog. After a very long drive they stopped at the sheriff's office and had a deputy help them locate the person's address that had left the number. When they arrived at her house, "Chunky" was so happy to see his family he jumped into their arms. No one could say it wasn't their dog. Benny and Benjamin made headlines there in the local paper "The International", thanked the deputy for his help and brought happy Chunky back to his great home in Capitan. The lady never gave no reason for the "dogsnapping". Some people will do a lot for their special "pet." Benny, you are to be commended to drive that far and not press charges. This is what kind of good people make up our Lincoln County...
