Capitan School May Increase Meal Price

Because the school subsidized the cafeteria $26,000 this past year, the board wants to increase the cost of meals beginning in the fall. To board invites the public to comment on the proposed price increases. The board meets June 8 at 7 p.m.

Prices will go from $1.15 to $1.25 for elementary meals, $1.25 to $1.50 for secondary and $2 to $2.50 for adults. The price increase will not effect reduced or free lunches.

The board also wants public input on the administration's proposal to decrease feeder route reimbursement from the current 35 cents a mile, to the 25 cents a mile allowed by the Internal Revenue Service. The board will make a decision on the reimbursement in July, after the state school board meets.

Carrizozo School Salaries Will Increase Five Percent

by Doris Cherry

Carrizozo Board of Education approved a $18 million preliminary budget for the 1995-96 school year which will provide a five percent salary increase for all staff.

The State Department of Education (SDE) in Santa Fe gave the preliminary budget a good review, and officials were impressed Carrizozo District could provide the five percent salary increase, school superintendent Dr. Elna Stowe told the board Tuesday during the hearing on the budget.

SDE made no changes to the district's preliminary budget which is based on a projected enrollment of 200 students, down from the 217 actual enrollment from fall 1994. The district receives funding from the state based on student enrollment. However, SDE allows districts with 200 or less enrollment to calculate their funding based on the prior year's numbers. Even if the district falls below the 200 enrollment, Stowe said, the district will be funded at last year's 217 enrollment level.

The actual funding from the state will be based on the district's enrollment count taken on the 40th school day this fall. Additional funding may also come from the state legislature when it meets in January.

In the preliminary budget, revenues for the district total $1,859,898 million, including the $1,147,656 state equalization guarantee for student funding, grants, special federal programs, bond moneys, property taxes for capital outlay funds, cafeteria, and other revenue such as flow-through money for school bus transportation.

Expenditures also total $1.8 million, and include a three percent emergency reserve and salaries with the five percent increase.

Even with the increase, some say the average pay for Carrizozo teachers is below the average for the state, or surrounding school districts. During the public input section of the board meeting Tuesday, teacher Bryan Wetzel said he was looking for extra money in the budget which could go toward an even higher salary increase for teachers. He pointed out a cash balance in the cafeteria funds.

But school business officer Nenna Whittaker said the cafeteria funds are separate from the operational which cover teachers' salaries. Also the cash balance in the cafeteria is needed to cover expenses in the early part of the school year, before the state reimburses the district.

Board president Gary Hightower said that a goal of the board and district is to re-write the salary schedule to meet the state mandated $22,000 minimum for teachers, to represent the salaries the district should pay. In January the board gave a two percent salary increase to employees because of additional funding the district received from the legislature. However, Hightower said, the state did not recognize that increase for the district salaries. Hightower said that is why the board gave the five percent raise now, even though the logical thing would be to give raises when the district receives extra funding.

Stowe said the district's salary schedule is not equitable, especially to compensate training and experience.

The preliminary 1995-96 school budget shows operational expenditures of: $727,623 for direct instruction (teachers); $160,097 for instructional support; $137,953 for administration; $32,856 for business and support services; $203,493 for operations/maintenance of plant; $10,600 for food service; $34,498 ($16,344 for salary and benefits of one coach and $13,000 for football equipment) for athletics; $2,811 for non instructional support and $35,000 as a three percent emergency fund.

Commissioners To Hold Special Meeting Friday

by Doris Cherry

Lincoln County Commissioners will hold a special meeting at 6:30 p.m. Friday, May 27, at the Lincoln County sub-office in Ruidoso.

Along with the award of a professional services contract for the Rural and Agricultural Affairs Advisory Committee, and a resolution calling a moratorium on lot splits, commissioners will consider a proposal from Sheriff James McSwane that will enable his department to accept a grant to finance the Lincoln County Drug Task Force.

Commission Chairman Monroy Montes told THE NEWS on Wednesday that the sheriff has come up with another proposal to fund the drug task force grant that will satisfy the needs of the county commission and the sheriff.

The commission and sheriff have come near going to court over the funding of a $26,000 match for a $72,000 drug task force grant. The sheriff wanted the commission to approve cash as the match, but the commission wanted the sheriff to find other ways to fund the match, or drop the grant altogether.

After the special budget hearing on May 15, McSwane indicated he was ready to have a writ of mandamus filed in district court to force the commission to allow him to operate his department as he was elected to do, and to order the commission to provide funding for the sheriff's operating budget.

McSwane told THE NEWS on Wednesday, that he talked with Montes and commissioner L. Ray Nunley, who appear to be favorable to try to resolve the differences. McSwane said he put off having the writ filed, and he requested the special meeting of the commission.

McSwane said his department was notified that funds ($50-78,000) will be available for the drug task force. McSwane said he will request the commission employ a deputy by contract to fulfill the county's match.

Montes said the proposal "makes everyone happy."

"The commission is not anti-drug or anti-task force, we just asked the sheriff to work within our budget limitations," Montes said.

McSwane said commissioners should have first approached him with the need to cut funding in his department

Sheriff James McSwane and Public Safety Answering Point (PSAP) coordinator and communications supervisor Johnnie Johnson ask all county residents who live outside of Ruidoso or Ruidoso Downs to fill out an information form available at all post offices in Lincoln County. Information provided by residents on the form will enable the department to respond faster in an emergency.

All information provided on the form will be kept confidential.

Information requested on the form includes the name of the resident or owner, telephone number, and physical address with directions to the residence. Directions include the nearest highway number, highway mile marker, directions from the highway (north, south, east or west), mileage from the highway, color and style of the house, and the name of a landmark in the area.

Residents are also asked to provide any other information or comments which will assist response crews in providing emergency services.

Residents need to leave completed forms with a postal clerk, or in a box in the post office provided for the E-911 forms, Johnson said.

Canyon CowBelles met May 3 at the Paz de Nogal bed and breakfast hosted by Jane Kretzshman. Business included reports on the successful trash cleanup day (despite the wind) in April and the BBQ beef lunch that followed.

The group has a booth at the Glenoche Rural Events Center on April 4. They fed approximately 400 students from around the county and handed out their famous "dirty bags", with brochures on "When is a Cow More than a Cow" and samples of gum and crayons which are beefy by-products.

The mid-year state CowBelles meeting will be June 27 at the Enchantment Inn in Ruidoso.

Pat Hume won the door prize. The next meeting will be Wed., June 7 at the Carrizozo Country Club at 11:30 a.m.

Remember Father's Day coming up and keep in mind that beef gift certificates could make his day great. Think Beef.

THOUGHTS

FROM THE EDITOR'S DESK

What health priorities?

By Ruth Hammond

The New Mexico Department of Health will hold a public meeting in the Lincoln County Courthouse next Wednesday from 4 to 6 p.m. Health secretary Alex J. Valdez and the department's division directors are supposed to be available for interviews on health issues. The press release sent to The News stated: to arrange an interview, contact Carolyn Hutchinson at 827-2619.

People in Lincoln County should take advantage of the chance to talk with secretary Valdez and ask him questions about what other unexpected surprises there are for Lincoln County. The last few surprises continue to have far-reaching effects. The first surprise was when Governor Gary Johnson said Fort Stanton was to be closed. The second surprise was when secretary Valdez said the state didn't want to be in the long-term care business.

Now, after the elderly have been dumped out of Fort Stanton and other elderly have no place to go, the state department of health is asking for input on priority health needs. Maybe there will be another surprise on the agenda for Lincoln County.

The state conducted a study in 1991 and it was determined that the best use for Fort Stanton was as a geriatric facility for the elderly, such as those with alzheimers' and others with brain damage. When I questioned as to whether the state would keep it's promise to keep Fort Stanton open, I was accused of not believing what the state said. Now, just four years later, what does the state health department have to say for itself and the state's promise to the people of Lincoln County?

We all want to believe that any and all actions taken by the state will be for the good of the people but the irresponsible actions taken by Gov. Johnson have caused grief and heartache for many people. Families have been torn apart with one parent working in one part of the state and the other parent working somewhere else. Unwanted moves have been made by people who need to work to make money to buy food for their families.

Secretary Valdez is not responsible for the actions taken by Gov. Johnson, but Valdez is the one who sat before more than 150 people on January 17 and promised them their jobs at Fort Stanton were secure through the end of the fiscal year, June 30, 1995. And secretary Valdez is the one who announced nine days later that he would have lay-off plans ready by January 30.

The state failed the people when it reneged on it's promise to the people to keep Fort Stanton open. That promise was made in 1992. The state failed the people when secretary Valdez reneged on his promise that the Fort Stanton workers would continue to have their jobs at Fort Stanton until June 30, 1995. The state failed the people when it forced the elderly and their families to a bleak future without a safe, secure place like Fort Stanton to provide care for their loved ones. The state failed the people when it made the decision without getting the correct facts.

The press release from secretary Valdez states, "We want to continue our efforts to obtain the broadest possible public input as we strive to meet the health challenges facing New Mexico." The press release also states, "These challenges are particularly compelling at this time in light of the pending changes at both the federal and state levels. We will have to do more with the same amount or fewer resources. There will have to be an even greater emphasis on the development of systems of health care."

The public meeting is supposed to be for the state to receive input as to the views of the people as to how these challenges can be met and health needs can be identified.

The public meeting will be an excellent opportunity for the people to express their views about what health care should be and what it has done for the people and well being of the very people the health department should be helping.

Voice your opinion at meeting.

TO THE EDITOR

EDITOR—Robert McNamara, Secretary of Defense under Presidents Kennedy and Johnson, and one of the leading architects of the Vietnam War, has written a book "In Retrospect: the Tragedy and Lessons of Vietnam", in which he concludes that the war was "wrong, terribly wrong".

He goes on to state that he had arrived at this conclusion as early as 1965 and conveyed his misgivings to President Johnson in a memo in 1967.

Rather than go to the American people with his conclusions, he continued to serve until 1968, when he left to become president of the World Bank. (his reward)

The war would go on until 1975, with all of its hideous suffering and slaughter.

Now, after all these years have passed, McNamara tells us what he should have told us then.

How heart-rending it must be for the parents, spouses, sons and daughters and other relatives and friends of the 58,000 brave men and women, our honored dead of the Vietnam War, whose names appear on the black wall of stone, in Washington, D.C., to read that "it was all a big mistake".

By the time L.B.J. began his ill-fated policy of escalation, continued by President Nixon and his "defense" intellectual, Dr. Kissinger, with even greater slaughter, I was 30 and had already completed my military service.

My years of studying geopolitics, history and military science led me to the obvious conclusion that the war in Vietnam was the wrong war, at the wrong time, in the wrong place, for the wrong reasons and against the wrong people. Consequently, I opposed it from start to finish. But never did I oppose the brave men and women who, whatever their feelings about the war and in the best tradition of American patriotism, answered their country's call.

The American people must never again allow their politicians, the defense intellectuals or the merchants of death in the military-industrial-financial complex, who profit from all wars, to send the best blood of our nation into war unless we are directly attacked or our vital national interests are at stake.

If we have learned this one lesson from the Vietnam War then those brave men and women who, to borrow the words of Abraham Lincoln, "gave their last full measure of devotion...shall not have died in vain."

This year we celebrate the 50th anniversary of our nation's victory in WWII over the monstrous evil of Nazi Germany and the brutal aggression of the Japanese Empire. "It is altogether fitting and proper that we should do this."

This Memorial Day, I urge all Americans who still remember, or care, to join us in honoring the more than one million (1,000,000) American men, women and children who, since the birth of the Republic, have died fighting for this country. (600,000 in our Civil War alone, which ended 180 years ago.)

Remember, too, the millions more who returned, shattered in body, mind or spirit.

Inside The Capitol

by Jay Miller

SANTA FE—Gambling problems already are plaguing our state.

Only months into our grand adventure with "gaming," the economic salvation for Native Americans and a boon to the state budget:

- * Eleven gaming tribes already have violated the compacts signed with Gov. Gary Johnson in January,

- * a suit has been filed to invalidate the compacts,

- * at least one pueblo has been unable to complete a bond sale because of the suit,

- * that same has sued a gaming machine dealer for reneging on a loan that was to replace the lost bond money,

- * and the lobbyist for that gaming machine dealer has been appointed by Johnson to head his lottery advisory committee.

Other than that, everything is going fine -- for the moment.

The Mescalero Apache and Jicarilla Apache tribes and the pueblos of Santa Clara, San Juan, Taos, Pojoaque, Sandia, and San Felipe are over a month past the deadline for filing their gambling laws and regulations with the state. Only Isleta, Tesuque and Santa Ana pueblos have complied.

None of the 11 has given the state any of the required reports on background investigations of key casino workers. Gov. Johnson isn't pressing for compliance at this time.

In Arizona, Gov. Fife Symington is threatening gaming tribes with court action to compel the reports to which they agreed. The problem with suing Indian tribes is that they are sovereign nations and not subject to any courts but their own -- except that they can sue anybody in any court.

Recently a woman reported being thrown out of a pueblo casino without her winnings after hitting a big jackpot. When she threatened to sue she learned her only recourse was in tribal court and that the pueblo in question didn't have a court.

On a positive note, at least one pueblo, Isleta, has indicated it plans to contribute some of its gambling profits to charities open to all citizens of the state.

The state court suit to invalidate the Indian gaming compacts was filed by two lawmakers and the leader of an anti-gambling group. They contend the governor had no authority to sign the agreements without legislative approval. Johnson's response says the suit should include the gaming tribes and that they can be sued only in federal court. The state Supreme Court will hear the case May 24.

In an unrelated development, Gov. Johnson will host an all-day tribal summit for the leaders of New Mexico's 22 tribes and pueblos today, May 25. Why not? Most of them will be in town anyway.

Because of the suit, San Felipe Pueblo has been unable to complete a $10.5 million bond sale to finance its large casino that is under construction on I-25 between Albuquerque and Santa Fe.

When the bond sale fell through, Infinity Group Inc., an Albuquerque manufacturer and distributor of electronic gambling machines agreed to a $14 million loan, including $1.5 million to pay contractors for work already performed. When that didn't work out, the pueblo took Infinity to court.

Last week Gov. Johnson appointed attorney Bruce Wiggins as chairman of the committee he will use for advice on how to start up our new state lottery. Wiggins is an Albuquerque lawyer whose firm lobbies for gambling interests, including Infinity. The firm is reported to have contributed at least $26,500 to Johnson since his election. Infinity could bid on supplying machines for the state lottery.

Johnson says Wiggins' background will be valuable to his gaming advisory committee. Others are calling for Wiggins' resignation because of the conflict.

But don't worry about these little problems. The really big ones are yet to come.

Fire Restrictions Are Now In Effect

A fire swept up the hillside by the west lake campground at Bonito Lake Saturday. Bonito Fire Department extinguished the fire.

A brush fire flared up west of Capitan on Sunday. Capitan Fire Department was there within 10 minutes and had the fire out in another 10 minutes.

Warm weather, with very high winds continue to dry out the forests and grasslands.

Because of the high fire danger, the Bureau of Land Management has prohibited fires and smoking and fireworks on public lands until further notice.

The following acts are prohibited:

American People Asking For Much Less Government

By STEWART TRUELSEN

There is a revolution taking place in Washington, D.C., a revolution of ideas, a change in the decades-old way of thinking. Congress is heeding the call of the American people for less government. We see this change manifested in legislation to protect private property rights, balance the federal budget and stop regulatory growth.

This is not an anti-government movement, rather it is a populist movement to restore personal freedom. Allan Kline, a former president of the American Farm Bureau Federation said, "Freedom is a situation in which each person has a lot to say about his own affairs."

Kline's words were recalled by another AFBF president, Charles Shuman, in a series of lectures given nearly 20 years ago. Shuman, an Illinois grain and livestock farmer, was greatly concerned about the erosion of individual freedom. He disliked what he termed "the excessive centralization of power in the federal government."

Shuman did not entirely blame elected officials and bureaucrats. Government expansion, he said, was caused by "our own insistence on more and more benefits and services."

Said Shuman, "We in this country have been asking for more and more government because we do not like responsibility." Lyndon Johnson's Great Society programs sought to provide for our welfare. More recently the federal government has sought to manage virtually every aspect of our lives and reduce every conceivable risk.

We are not running our lives anymore, the government is. But Shuman noted that a government large enough to provide everything for the people is sufficiently powerful enough to take everything from them. That's what has shaped today's property rights debate. Landowners have been losing the use and value of their property through ill-conceived regulations that seek to preserve wetlands or protect endangered species.

"Freedom works," said Shuman, "because only a freely choosing individual has the incentive to change--to modify what he is, what he stands for and what he does," to use agriculture as an example, the voluntary efforts of farmers in soil and water conservation have been more successful than programs mandated by the government.

Shuman was also concerned

For the Love of Gregory

by Joann Rice

Home of the Brave and the Free

"Well, Queen Mother," Gregory said on Thursday, "this is the end."
"The end of what, Gregory?"
"Of life as I know it." He answered.
"I knew it was going to be another one of those days. And why is that?"
"Cause next year I go to first grade. And I've been talking around the neighborhood see. And it's no piece of cake. You have reading, writing, and arithmetic. But that's just the basics. You know what else?"
"No but I'm sure you are going to tell me."
"You got that right," he said pointing his finger at me. "You have to learn politics, that's what!"
"I don't think you'll have to learn politics, Gregory. There are grown men who don't know that. Like the President and Congress, for instance."
"Yeah see. You don't get it, do you. We don't have to learn how it's supposed to be done, we have to learn how it is done. That's politics. Not the real thing."
"You may have a point Gregory. And believe me, there is a difference."
"Right. So, I came for you to tell me the right way and the wrong way. You know, so I'll have a jump on the other kids. And I figure somebody as old as you knows a lot. And besides we have all summer for you to remember everything you forgot. You know, while you were getting old."
"I love the way you put that, Gregory. But let me see. Let's start at the beginning. This is America, a free country. As long as we don't harm anyone else, we can do as we please. And everyone is equal, no matter what they believe or what color they are. And we all have the rights. That means the government can't tell us what to do unless we vote for it. And we have the right to say who is going to be our President and Congress. We tell them what to do, and what laws to make, and how much money to spend. Because their money is our money from what we give them. That's called taxes. It's a government of the people and by the people. That's us. Now that's how it's supposed to be."

"So how come everybody that I hear talked about is such an idiot, Queen Mother? I always hear about somebody in the government telling lies."

"You sure you want to hear all this? You are awfully young to worry about it."

"I'm almost six years old. And I don't want to kill all the animals, and cut down all the trees. I have to do my part. Just the other day, I gave 15 cents to the heart fund. I don't really know what that is, but I don't want anybody to have a broken heart, so I helped. So are you going to tell me why everybody in the government tells lies?"

"They don't all do it. You just have to listen to everyone and make up your own mind. You have that right too."

"Humm. I guess it takes as much studying to learn what you can do, as to learn what you can't do, huh, Queen Mother?"

"I guess we have as many do's as we don't's."

"Well, if it's all the same to you, I don't think I'll be a politic person when I grow up some more. I don't think I could stand it. But America, where we live, is it the best of all?"

"We are blessed, Gregory, that it is."

"I'm glad, Queen Mother. And even if some of them do lie, well, I guess that's just politics."

Letters To The Editor

But save a special prayer, or simple thank, for the Veterans of Vietnam who answered their country's call in an unpopular and divisive war and who were too often shabbily treated upon their return.
Forget them never!

DONALD QUEEN,
CARRIZOZO.

EDITOR—I would like to correct an error that I made in my Letter to the Editor; reference: U.N's deployment of U.S. armed forces; dated Mar. 2, 1995.

I stated that Russia occupied North Korea in 1948 and established a communist government. Actually, the Russians occupied North Korea in 1945 and established a communist government in 1948.

FRANKLIN L. BOREN, TINNIE, NM.

EDITOR—I am writing this letter to all members of communities who wonder why their Volunteer Fire Departments don't have money for needed equipment. The money for the fire department comes from money paid in on fire insurance (3 percent) for homes and businesses.

This money is pooled in Santa Fe with the state. There is always an excess of money. For example, the fund on July 1, 1991, was $22,086,839.00. After budgeting there was an excess of $9,626,402.00 turned back to the state. In July 1, 1992, the fund was $22,686,095.07 with an excess of $9,910,569.07 turned back to the state. In July 1, 1993, the fund was $28,812,728.90 with an excess of $13,581,146.65 turned back to the state general fund. (These figures come from the state office.) Rather than give it to needy fire departments for equipment, this money is rolled back into the state coffers to use on "pork barrel" projects to buy more votes in certain areas.

This leaves fire departments trying to scrape money up for equipment through fund raising projects or in some communities they have increased gross tax receipts with the increase being set aside for the fire department. This is double jeopardy as you the people are paying tax twice for the same purpose. To me, it is unnecessary for people to pay extra funds especially through increased taxes when the necessary funding is already sitting in Santa Fe.

It is time people started letting their Representatives in Santa Fe know what they want the money that is already there used for the purpose for which it was raised.

State Representative Vincent Gallegos, Democrat, introduced Bill 174 to get more funding for the fire departments. State Representative Dub Williams, Republican of Ruidoso Downs, was working with Ann M. Crook, Republican

CAPITAN NOTES

By MAUREEN SULLIVAN

Thought for sure I would be home in Capitan by this time, but I cannot travel by this time anymore. When I think I have gone down to Brazil on two different occasions to visit my son, I cannot believe it. But the years have a way of taking their toll, the eyes don't give the vision they once did, the ears are tired of all the noise they have to endure and the knees, oh yes, those knees that used to think nothing of galloping up and down the stairs and the dear, wonderful feet that took many hours of dancing and never complained. And oh how I took all of you for granted and I now offer my humble apologies for not taking better care of all of you. The advancing years have a way of reminding us that the old body just ain't what it used to be. My Otero County Edition of Enchantment was forwarded to me and I was so pleased to read about Mrs. Basil Holcomb and the Pinon News. Her life story was most interesting and I hope some day that I will have the honor and the pleasure of meeting such a lovely lady. And I especially liked the closing statement by Helen Peters, "After 41 years Oza Holcomb continues to just write the truth."

This new house is even busier than the other one and I used to think that living there was like living in Grand Central Station, telephone ringing off the wall while it was being interspersed with the ringing doorbell and two dogs sprinkling their shrill barking at odd and inconvenient intervals, but that was nuthin' compared to this new residence.

First of all the movers forgot several things and that necessitated more telephone calls back and forth, some still pleasant, but some getting a bit more on the exasperated side. When you think that they only had to move four blocks it is disgusting to think of how much telephone time was used. Then there were new things that needed attention at the new house. Every day almost there has been someone ringing the doorbell to check this or check that and few left too much of an impression, but one did.

The fireplace in the living room, there are two fireplaces here, startled us one evening with noises coming from the rooftop. Realizing that it was summer time and it couldn't possibly be old Saint Nick and his sleigh, my son-in-law Jace immediately called a chimney sweep to clean out both fireplaces just to be on the safe side. Righto. He would be out first thing next morning and he was. The only thing surprising at that was himself. At nine promptly the front doorbell rang and I dashed (you can't walk in this house, it is too big, so you dash, even if you are upstairs, you dash) and standing there on the outside of the storm door was a tall, thin man complete with a black stovepipe hat, black cutaway coat and black skinny legged trousers. Oh yes and a long once upon a time white beard. I blinked and thought I must still be asleep and dreaming or else I just had catapulted back to the time of Oliver Twist, the Artful Dodger and Sykes. I expected to see Charles Dickens momentarily. But I blinked a couple of times, took a deep breath and opened a door.

"May I help you", I asked very gingerly. "I am the chimney sweep man, Ma'am", as if I couldn't have guessed. He took a bow and presented me with his credentials. A very nice calling card with a replica of himself on the card, so I asked him to come in. When you hit the 80 mark, strange enough things happen that make you wonder where you are, what you are doing and why you are doing it. That old myth about peace and tranquility being your rightful due when you become of age (that is a nicer way of saying getting old, don't you think?) just seems to elude me. Life is still hectic, but it isn't dull by any stretch of the imagination. Mother's Day more than made up for all the interruptions and extra footsteps that I have had to adjust to. First of all Jace, that is my fine son-in-law and you will hear more about him in the future, served my daughter Trish and myself coffee in the front living room while we read the Sunday paper. He returned to the kitchen where he prepared a most sumptuous breakfast for us and served us royally. Then Miss Katie, as we sometimes call her presented us with gifts. Beautiful gifts and beautiful cards that brought tears to my eyes and that is not all. After a leisurely breakfast, we relaxed a few hours and then drove to the Press Club for a gorgeous meal, served with all the class and grandeur you can imagine and I loved every single minute of it. What Mother doesn't love a little bit of attention, let alone all that was given me that very special day. Mother's Day is really more important to me than all the other holidays rolled into one. And Jace when you read this as you are faxing it to Capitan for me, thank you very, very much for a most wonderful day.

Ila Mae will have to skip your part this week, but will get back to your interesting story next week. And now on to Herbert Lee's story.

Jess Isler.
During WWI the flu was raging. Everybody had the flu and a lot of people died. About that time we had a family by the name of Isler move into Deseo. I recall he lived about three miles east of Boston Wright. One Sunday afternoon Mom sent Dick and I to help Jess Isler's wife bring some clothing over to her house. My folks never talked very much about scuttlebutt around the community, but I knew there was something wrong. I was told that Isler had joined the army, but years later when I saw him while he was living in Roswell, before he passed away, we were talking about old times. I told him I remembered when he went to the army. He said, "I didn't go to the army." I replied, "Well, I thought you did. I recall your wife staying at our place for about a week once." He replied, "I'll tell you what happened. I met up with a guy in town." I assumed he was talking about Capitan or Carrizozo. He continued, "We got to talking and he said he didn't have a place to stay. He was kind of looking for work and he might be interested in taking up my homestead, so I invited him out to our place. He'd been there three or four days when the law came along and arrested he and me. Both of us. They took us over to Carrizozo. I didn't have time to get any of the neighbors around there to put up my bond or anything. I was cooped up there for about a week or so. This is what happened. That old boy had been stealing guns around the country, and where the guns were I don't know. I never saw any of them. Anyway, when they arrested him why they got me in it, thinking I was involved too. That's why I was over there. That is why I was gone, and the wife stayed at your place that time; they had me in jail. About the time

SMOKEY BEAR BOULEVARD IN MID CAPITAN

The Bear Speaks

We have a blue eyed cook named Dave Grover. Dave is a heck of a nice guy and lots of people know him, cause he has been around Smokey Bear Restaurant since Columbus was a boy scout. One of Dave's claim to fame is that he is the guy that makes our salsa... and it is very good salsa. Dave likes to make it. You can hear him whistling and singing dippy little songs while he cuts, chops and alls the concoction.

Now while Dave's salsa is delicious, it is not for the faint hearted. It has a bite. At Debra's insistence, we have tried to cool it down a couple times, but we always wind up with a customer revolt. A couple of cowboys threatened to burn a cross on the parking lot if we messed with the salsa, so we just give Dave a free hand with the jalapenos.

We serve the salsa with chips when you buy one of our Mexican dinners, but we also sell it to you on the side. It is great with eggs or drizzled in the beans or spread on top of the enchiladas. Last week, I slipped some on a hamburger instead of green chile. It was terrific.

If you like your salsa peppery, come over and try a shot of Dave's, I guarantee that it will straighten out your last buds, your sinuses and your attitude. See Ya, about the federal budget, but that was long before it became the problem it is today. "Huge government spending," he said, "confiscates a large portion of each person's income and reduces his freedom to decide on how it is to be used." He added, "Congress has lost control of the budget and this is a frightening prospect for the future."

 It has taken the Congress two decades to come to grips with the problems Charlie Shuman foresaw in 1978. Now, regulations are being reduced. Voluntary programs, incentives and de-centralized planning are being used to attack environmental, social and economic problems. The USDA and other government agencies are downsizing and becoming more responsive, and Congress is intent on balancing the federal budget.
 The foundations of our freedom are becoming more secure.

of Clovis, to get the bill passed to at least increase the amount allotted to the fire departments. The bill passed in the House, but according to sources in Santa Fe was held at the desk of Max Coll, Democrat, Chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, until 44 minutes of the session closing for the year. It was then passed to the Senate. Needless to say, there was no time for a vote so it was not passed. It makes a person wonder if Mr. Coll had his own ideas as to what "pork barrel" projects he wanted the money spent on rather than the fire departments.

"The people who support more funding for the fire departments will try again next year but they need the letters and support of the people to get the Bill entered and passed. Start writing your State Representatives and Senators now to let them know we want fire funding to be used for fire equipment and not for "pork barrel" projects.

Teaching Your Kids To Garden With Garbage

By BETTY McCREIGHT
 Lincoln County Home Economist

The longer days and warmer temperatures are likely to lure young children outside. This is a good time to get them involved in the gardening process.

Children can learn about life cycles, how sunlight and water nourish plants and comparison skills.

The part of food that is normally considered garbage can become interesting gardening experiments for children. Without such expense, you can teach young children gardening concepts and help them understand where the food they eat comes from.

1. Cut off the top (thick end) two inches of a carrot and cut off most of the leaves as well. Place the carrot cut side down in about one inch of water in a dish. After a week or so roots will sprout and the carrot can be planted in sandy soil with about one inch of the top extending above the soil.

An interesting experiment for young children is to plant carrot seeds side by side with the carrot sprouts so they can compare growth. Similar experiments can be done using beets, turnips and parsnips.

2. Seeds from lemons, oranges and grapefruit are often discarded and ignored as actual seeds that produce plants. These, of course, are not suitable for the New Mexico climate, but the seeds can be sprouted in pots and transplanted to the garden for the summer.

3. Garlic plants can be easily started from cloves of garlic. Simply peel several, small garlic cloves and plant them in the garden or in a pot with the pointed end facing up. Plant just deep enough so the tips are barely covered. Garlic sprouts best in porous soil. Once the garlic begins to grow, children can snip off the leaves to add to food.

4. Sprouting the many varieties of dried beans can provide children with endless opportunities to compare similarities and differences between plants.

Dry beans should first be soaked overnight. The next day put them in a small jar of wet cotton batting or densely compressed paper towels. Place the beans between the glass and the net filling material so your children can see the root systems emerge. Transplant to garden or pots when the bean sprouts out-grow the jar.

5. Another easy-to-sprout vegetable is the sweet potato. Insert toothpicks in the middle and suspend the potato pointed tip down in a glass of water. Maintain the water level in the jar and place in indirect sunlight. Roots should appear in about a week.

CORONA NEWS

Graduation ceremonies Saturday evening were interesting for the three graduates. Rhonda Miller, the last of the nine Miller siblings to graduate from Corona, estimated the number of miles she had ridden in a school bus and her own car to be more than 103,000 miles during K-12.

Darrel Jones, Albuquerque, was the guest speaker and one of the best we have heard recently. He was witty and then serious stating that his motto is SIPP and he recommended it to the students, Spiritual, Intellectual, Personal to include People, and Physical.

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Johnson entertained at their home in honor of son Marcus, salutatorian. Guests included members of the Johnson and Muniz families of Santa Rosa. Marcus is employed with his father on the Ranney Ranch.

Russell Lueras left Monday to spend a few days in Roswell before leaving Thursday for Red River where he will be employed on a guest ranch.

Mrs. Katie Merritt returned home Thursday after a week in Fort Sumner for Mothers' Day.

Mr. and Mrs. Lees R. Owen are in Las Cruces where they went for a grandson's graduation from NMSU. Shane has a job in Roswell. His brother, Leslie, will graduate there in December. Mr. Owen was hospitalized and will spend three weeks in therapy before returning to Roswell.

Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Robinson spent several days with Mr. and Mrs. J.E. Robinson before returning to their Odessa, TX., home. They were helping out at the ranch while Mr. and Mrs. Rex Robinson were with science fair winners at the international fair in Canada.

Butch Robinson, was to return Saturday from the Ukraine, where with four others from the U.S., all employees of Kerr McGee, were exploring for surface metals.

Mrs. R. L. Sharp and Sue Huhes spent the weekend with relatives in Portales.

Lori Perkins was in Clovis Friday and Saturday with her parents. Before returning home Saturday afternoon she drove to Friona, TX., to see her grandfather, John Hadley.

Elbert Owen attended graduation exercises Saturday in T or C where a grandson, Rustin Owen, graduated from Hot Springs High School.

Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Tyree were in Eunice for a long weekend. A grandson, Kirt Tyree, graduated from high school there. He is a member of the National Guard and will leave this week for Fort Sill, OK. After that he goes to a Maryland post for electronic schooling.

A classmate, Rodney Clouse, son of Bobby and Sharon Welch Clouse, received his diploma from his father, member of the Eunice school board.

Businesses and friends in the Eunice community hosted an all night party for the students, 54 in this senior class, at the gymnasium complex where there is a swimming pool, with all kinds of foods, a band and loads of prizes. Kirt won a 13" color TV, T shirts, and gas.

Lunch and a shower Sunday honored Dan Bell and his fiancée, Crystal Smith of Tatum. Hostesses were Kathy Heckendorf, Julie Heckendorf, Sandra Alford, Jeanene Gibbs and Patsy Mulkey. The theme was western. After the gifts were opened, punch and cake were served.

Family members present included Crystal's mother and grandmother, Gayla and Dorothy Bess, Tatum, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Bell, Tucumcari, Mr. and Mrs. John Heckendorf, Rebecca and Sarah Edgewood, Mr. and Mrs. Lerry Bond, Debbie and Mary Beth, Carrizozo and a friend from Tatum, sorry, name unknown.

Carrizozo School Salaries

Other expenditures include pupil transportation of $150,152; food services $53,200; athletics (based on gate receipts) of $7,718; federal flow through (for such programs as Chapter II) of $55,798; direct federal grants of $7,275; state grants of $1,692; total bond funds of $75,117; capital improvements SB-9 funds of $93,937.

Dr. Stowe said the bond and SB-9 funds may or may not be spent, but must be reflected on the budget.

Board members briefly considered the priorities for the remaining $75,000 in the bond fund. The money must be used for equipment, or facilities upgrade. Jody Ventura wanted to upgrade the elementary playground with new equipment and a water fountain, and a new computer with publication software for the high school communications class to do a newspaper and yearbook; Hightower wanted a lighted marquee to announce school activities, like the one at Capitan Schools; Dr. Stowe suggested replacing the piano in the old gym; other suggestions were replacing the curtains on the old gym; a podium with a built in public address system; upgrading the concessions "closet" with lights and carpeting; constructing the unassembled greenhouse at the VoAg farm.

The district's transportation funding will be negatively impacted next school year by changes made to the funding formula. Previously bus transportation was funded on a per mile basis, now it will be funded on how many students live in a square mile. The board plans to hold a special workshop on this topic to discuss its impact on the Carrizozo District.

The board approved resignations and hired other staff. Reluctantly, the board accepted the resignation of Rob Hollis as principal. The board approved employment of Gabriel Papponi as teacher and special education director; Robert Kercher as counselor; Karen Kercher as teacher. The board also approved employment of the classified staff: Nenna Whittaker, Margie Serna, Linda Brown, Charlotte Emmons, Sandra Jiron, Candie Aguilar, Margaret Barela, Lorene Baroz, Polly Chavez, Josie Vega, Willie Archuleta, Pat Jiron and Nat Chavez.

Guest State Rep. Dub Williams visited with the board about his opinions on the state equalization guarantee, impending lawsuits by mid-sized districts, teachers' salaries and other factors affecting education. The State of New Mexico dedicates 46 percent of the total state budget to public education. While Williams said he would have liked teachers to get more salary increase, he supported the governor's decision to upgrade the state's prison system, in order to get out of the Duran Decree. Currently the federal government dictates how the state's prisons are operated, a result of the May 1980 prisoner riot at the maximum security facility in Santa Fe.

Once the new prisons are constructed, Williams said there will be more money for education.

Williams, who will begin serving on the Interim Education Committee which meets monthly until the next session in January 1996, said he thinks the method of funding, with the 40 day count, is wrong. He said the state needs to provide funds for every student on a flat basis, with no special programs, then allow the local board to say how the money is distributed. He said he plans to voice these comments during the next legislative session.

Williams invited everyone to attend the state legislature and to testify for projects in committee hearings.

The board awarded the audit bid to Rice and Associates for a three year period.

Capitan Notes

you and your folks left the area I proved up on my homestead, and later I finally sold it." Next week will be about "A keg of white mule". That should be interesting.

Elaine thanks for your card. Glad you and Wilma had such a good time. Will get a note to you real soon. I promise.

And Barbara thank you for your wonderful note. I did so appreciate it. And yes we will, you know what, as soon as I get back to Capitan, but it may not be before the fourth of July.

And will close with the following, which is most appropo where you girls are concerned.

There are many people that we meet in our lives, but only a very few will make a lasting impression on our minds and hearts. It is these people that we will think of often and who will always remain important to us as true friends.

By Susan Polis Schultz.

And so for another week Syanora and Adios Amigos and hope you all have a wonderful Memorial weekend.
