

Ruidoso Council Bans Skating And Jogging

by Doris Cherry

Starting Monday, July 17, joggers, skate boarders, roller skaters and roller bladers will be prohibited on the MainStreet sidewalks in Ruidoso.

During their regular meeting Tuesday, Ruidoso Village Councilors voted 5-1 to adopt an ordinance that makes it unlawful to skateboard, roller blade, bicycle or jog on the sidewalks of the MainStreet area of Sudderth Drive. Any person who violates the ordinance will be subject to fines up to $100.

The ordinance was done at the request of merchants who said skateboarding and roller blading juveniles were damaging their businesses by intimidating and scaring away customers, and by creating a safety hazard.

But some councilors, and the mayor, believe the ordinance will not stop the problem of kids gathering in the MainStreet area.

During the public hearing Tuesday, councilor J.D. James tried to add a prohibition against playing hacki-sacki (a game which consists of keeping a small bean bag type ball aloft with the feet) or any other recreation object. James said he saw five or six kids on the sidewalk playing the game, and obstructing pedestrians. "That's a no-no as far as I'm concerned," he said. "It's a hindrance to pedestrians."

However, arguments from councilor Frank Cummins, and mayor Jerry Shaw about how far the ordinance should go ended in a tie vote 3-3 on James' amendment. Shaw broke the tie against the amendment. "If we stop that (hacki-sacki), will we stop footballs?" she asked.

Cummins questioned if someone buys a ball in a store on MainStreet, then drops it on the sidewalk, if that would fall under the ordinance. But his fellow councilors disagreed.

Councilor Joe Gomez, who seconded James' amendment, said his action was due to the inability of police to enforce the rules on loitering and obstructing sidewalks. Shaw debated that she had seen about three teenagers sitting on a bench outside a MainStreet shop, who could have been perceived as loitering. About five seconds later, their mother came out of a shop with a package. "How would the police determine the difference?" she asked.

Caravan To End Nuclear Weapons Begins July 15

The All Peoples Coalition announces the Caravan to End Nuclear Weapons and Contamination, a tour of New Mexico beginning at the Trinity Site on July 15, the eve of the 50th anniversary of the first atomic bomb explosion. The tour is sponsored by the Coalition to raise awareness of the many nuclear threats in New Mexico, especially nuclear transportation.

The Caravan's traveling museum, created by artist/activist Susan Lee, at Feminists for a Compassionate Society in Austin, Texas, documents the history of the nuclear age. Exhibits include photos and information on the dangers of nuclear weapons, their production, storage and transportation; the government's failure to solve the nuclear waste problem, and the health effects of radiation contamination.

The southern New Mexico tour includes stops in Las Cruces (7/16), Alamogordo (7/17), Carlsbad (7/18), Roswell, (7/19-20), Ruidoso (7/21-22) and Belen (7/23). Stops are also planned in Albuquerque, Santa Fe, Los Alamos, Espanola, Taos, Laguna, Gallup. All Peoples Coalition (APC) opposes the continued production of nuclear waste and plans by the Department of Energy and national public utilities to transport large quantities of nuclear waste to New Mexico for temporary or permanent storage both on highways and by rail. County Commission To Set Policy On Spending Professional Service Funds

by Doris Cherry

Lincoln County Commissioners want to dictate how other elected county officials can spend their professional services funds.

During their regular meeting Tuesday, commissioners voted to establish a policy that governs how the elected officials may spend the money budgeted for "professional services." While professional services are defined by state statute as including architectural, legal, and two other specific areas, commissioners want to be more specific to not allow fees for officials who consult outside attorneys. Commissioners were concerned they would have no control over how these professional services fees will be spent in the future, unless they develop a policy to specify what is allowable.

The issue came about when the county was given a $900 bill from attorney Robert Beauvais who wrote a legal opinion for Sheriff James McSwane concerning a controversy over matching funds for a $64,000 federal grant for the county's drug task force. Commissioners contend that the bill should be paid out of the sheriff's budget, or his own pocket, since he sought legal advice from an attorney who does not contract with the county.

The sheriff's budget does have a line item for professional services, which would include legal fees. County attorney Alan Morel said the commission could, by policy, restrict how those professional services funds can be used.

"Since we have no official policy (to define) professional

Carrizozo Teachers' Association Votes For Collective Bargaining

Carrizozo Teachers' Association (CTA), an affiliate of the National Education Association (NEA), conducted a secret mail ballot election by the direction of the Public Employee Labor Relations Board (PERB).

The ballots were counted on June 21, 1995 in Albuquerque with representatives present from the Carrizozo School administration, the CTA, the NEA, and the PERB. The results were 3 votes cast against and 11 votes cast for collective bargaining with one challenged ballot totaling 15 cast ballots.

The Carrizozo School administration indicated that the school will request a hearing to appeal the election.

The CTA stated that they were satisfied with the 5% pay raise the staff received, but were concerned about working conditions and the strained relationship between board/administration and certified staff.

Carrizozo Veteran Says Bomb Was Not Dropped On Nagasaki

by Doris Cherry

When Carrizozo resident Ed Davis read the article about Trinity Site in last week's issue of THE NEWS he was surprised. The article stated that an atomic bomb was dropped on the city of Nagasaki.

Davis has a different story. He claims no atomic bomb was dropped on Nagasaki because he and other troops went ashore on Nagasaki some three months after the alleged date of the bombing. While there was great damage from conventional bombing, Davis said the island was spared the devastating after-effects of radiation that Hiroshima endured.

History books, and encyclopedias, including Groliers, state that on August 9, 1945, a U.S. bomber dropped an atomic bomb on Nagasaki, aiming at the Mitsubishi shipyards. The bomb missed its target, and destroyed about half of the city and killed approximately 75,000 people. Nagasaki is located on the western shore of the island of Kyushu about 590 miles southeast of Tokyo.

Davis said that the information about Nagasaki and Hiroshima was kept top secret for 40 years. Before the bomb was dropped, the army dropped leaflets printed in Japanese on both Hiroshima and Nagasaki. The leaflets warned people to clear the islands because of U.S. plans to bombard the area.

This, Davis said, is what he thinks lead to the misconception that atomic bombs were dropped on both Nagasaki and Hiroshima. The two locations were chosen in case the weather wasn't clear on Hiroshima, then the bomb would be dropped on Nagasaki. Da-services, are we out on a limb to not allow payment (of the sheriff's attorney fees) out of the sheriff's budget?" commissioner L. Ray Nunley asked. "I think so," said county attorney Alan Morel.

County manager Carolin Cooney said she consulted with the state Department of Finance and Administration (DFA) about payment of a legal fee from an outside attorney for an issue between the sheriff and the county commission from the sheriff's professional services line item.

Cooney said that verbally, the DFA spokesperson said the bill could be paid out of the line item, but when Cooney asked for a written confirmation of that statement, the spokesperson said that would have to be written by the DFA legal counsel. Cooney also asked if the letter would include a statement on whether the official could move money from the operational budget into the professional services line item to cover legal fees. That letter has yet to be received from DFA, Cooney added.

Commission chairman Monroy Montes said the board needs to make the decision whether to allow such legal fees to be paid out of the sheriff's professional services. As a result, Nunley made the motion to establish a policy on payment of legal fees from professional services line items in the elected officials budgets, and also to not pay the $900 attorney bill until the matter is clarified by DFA.

Other elected officials do have line items for professional services in their budgets.

Commissioner Wilton Howell wanted to define those services, which he now considers to be "pretty broad." An example was used of the clerk's professional services line item, which is specified as being for microfilming.

"Why handicap the whole government because of mis-use of one department," Howell said.

Sheriff James McSwane was not present at the meeting during the discussion about the legal fees. He later told THE NEWS, "I think it was worth $900 to get $64,000 to fight narcotics."

Honduras Elected

involved in "grassroots democracy."

County commission chairman Monroy Montes said in Honduras, democracy is from the top down, while here democracy is grass roots. "What we take for granted, they (Regidores) strive day and night to make work," Montes said during the county commission meeting Tuesday.

Montes explained that the word Regidores is interpreted as an elected official, but has its roots in the monarchy system.

As a county commissioner, Montes said he is part of a group which speaks for the people, while the Regidores are singular and do not interact with the people in the same way.

"We have an excellent system, even with its flaws," Montes said about the U.S. style of democracy.

Montes invited the public to attend the round-table discussion at the civic center.

Museum of Horse Plans To Unveil Monument Saturday

Saturday, July 15, the Museum of the Horse in Ruidoso Downs will unveil the monument, "Free Spirits at Noisy Water." The massive outdoor piece of art was created by master sculptor, Dave McGary. Featuring seven breeds of horses, the completed monument will measure 265 feet long and 36 feet high. The enormous bronze horses were commissioned by Ruidoso Downs owner R.D. Hubbard and his wife, Joan Dale. The Hubbards are also responsible for bringing the Museum of the Horse to New Mexico.

FREE SPIRITS UNDER WRAPS. A massive bronze horse sits under wraps at the Ruidoso studio of sculptor Dave McGary. The horse is one of several massive horses that will be cast in bronze to become a sculpture entitled Free Spirits at Noisy Water which will be located at the Museum of the Horse in Ruidoso Downs.

A monument of such scope and vision is indicative of the collection found in the Museum of the Horse. Relocated from its original home in Patagonia, Arizona, the Museum's primary collection belonged to Anne C. Stradling. Stradling, in ill health, donated her impressed collection of carriages, art and turn of the century artifacts to the Hubbard Museum in 1990. After a major renovation project, the "new" Museum of the Horse opened its doors in May of 1992. The beautiful building is located one mile east of Ruidoso Downs Race Track.

American Legion Officers Installed

American Legion Post #57 conducted memorial services for all departed veterans buried in the Capitan Cemetery May 30.

Boy Scouts of Troop #57 of Capitan posted American flags on each veteran's grave from the Civil War, Spanish American War, WWI and WW2, Korean War and the Vietnam War. An honor roll was recited giving the name of every veteran buried and finally the sound of cracklin' rifles and the melancholy refrain of TAPS echoing over hill and dale, a tribute to fallen comrades.

June 6 the following officers were installed for the 1995-1996 year.

Commander, Robert Stephens; Vice Commander, Frankie Silva; Service Officer, Margarito Trujillo; Finance Officer, Floyd Danielson;

Chaplain, Fred Savedra; Adjutant, C.E. Chavez.

July 1 the membership cleaned Highway 380 east and west of Capitan. Bags and bags of debris were gathered.

July 4 Post #57 participated in the Smokey Bear Parade in Capitan. Their float entry, The Spirit of Ole Glory, was decorated with more than 40 American flags and was awarded 2nd place for organizations. Post members and the ladies of the Auxiliary tossed out more than 30 lbs. of candy to the delight of hundreds of children who lined the roadway.

On Saturday, July 15 at 12 noon Post 57 will hold its annual picnic at the home of Thelma and Bob Stephens. Their home is located on Burch Lane west of Highway 380 in Capitan. All Post members are invited, especially any former members, who wish to renew old acquaintances and enjoy good food.

For further information contact Bob Stephens at 354-2329.

The addition of "Free Spirits at Noisy Water" to the Museum of the Horse ties many of the goals of the museum together. It honors the spirit and heart of the horse in an artistic way. The painted bronze horses, each sculpted at one and one-half times life size, gallop through a uniquely New Mexico landscape. Care was taken to landscape the entire monument with plants and trees indigenous to the state.

Artist Dave McGary spent approximately 18 weeks on each of the 3,000 to 5,000-pound horses. Although the horses will be anchored in the ground by nearly 1,500 cubic feet of cement, they will seem to be suspended in motion. THOUGHTS

FROM THE EDITOR'S DESK

Where is the water?

By Ruth Hammond

Two-thirds of the earth's surface is covered with water and that is the main reason some people believe they should spend two-thirds of their time fishing. Others insist they should be actively involved in swimming and other water sports as often as possible, especially on long, hot summer days.

Water may cover most of the earth but here in New Mexico water is a precious commodity that is uppermost in the minds of many residents. We don't have the abundant rains that flood eastern states. Our lawns are green only if we fertilize, water, mow and trim, unlike the Ozarks where well-manicured lawns are common and only require mowing, mowing, mowing, and more mowing. The frequent rains in the Ozarks keep the grass, as well as the weeds, a lush green during most of the year.

Here in arid New Mexico the residents are faced with the need to conserve water. The statewide average rainfall is 13 inches per year, not nearly enough to keep Kentucky bluegrass green and healthy. Kentucky bluegrass requires 40 inches or more of water each year to stay green and healthy. That means a person must spend a lot of time and money watering.

The state engineer office water conservation program has a colorful brochure that is a guide to water-wise landscaping in New Mexico and explains Xeriscaping, using a wide variety of water-efficient plants to create an oasis-like feeling. According to the brochure, Xeriscaping saves water by using native and other drought-resistant plants to significantly reduce water use. Xeriscaping saves time by reducing the amount of time you spend watering, fertilizing and mowing. Xeriscaping saves money by reducing the amount of water used and lowering water bills.

Saving money on water bills is not the only reason people may be interested in learning more about Xeriscaping. Most of the communities in New Mexico depend on ground water for their drinking water and in some parts of the state the water is being taken out faster than the earth can replenish it.

Water conservation is a practice that will be more and more important as our ground water supply dwindles. If we continue to use water at the rate we have been using it there will be an even greater need to conserve water as much as possible.

How to conserve water may have a variety of solutions. If we followed the advice of children who want to stop taking baths it might save water but would not be socially acceptable. If we stop washing our dishes we take the risk of food poisoning.

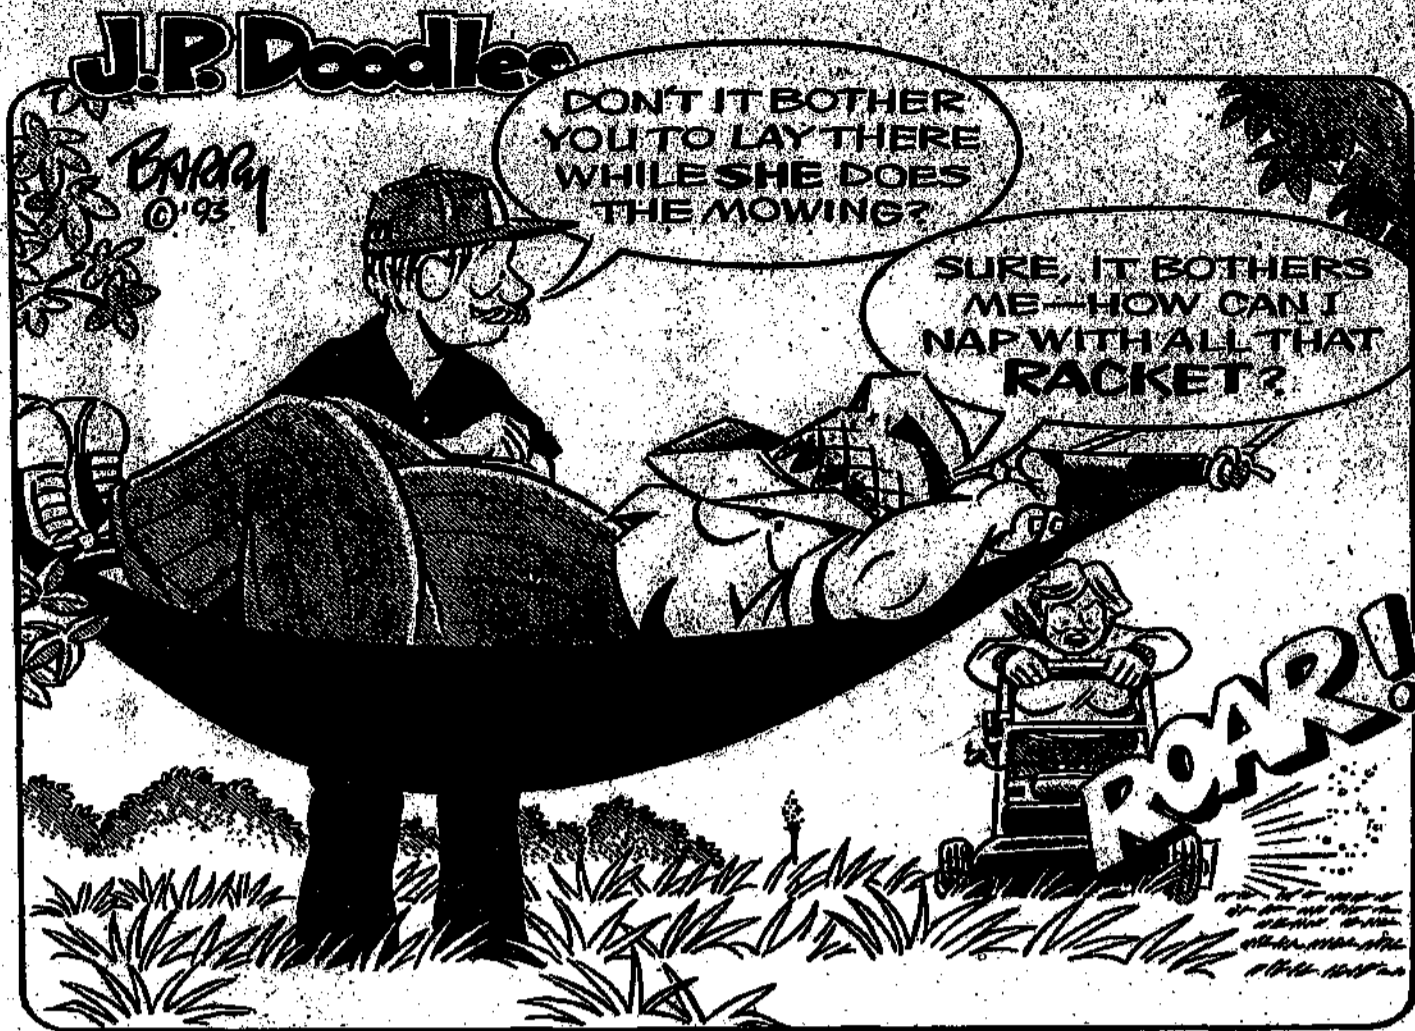

The method of conserving water by landscaping with native plants is gaining popularity in New Mexico. There are a variety of trees, shrubs, flowers and grasses that will grow with very little water and be attractive at the same time. We do have some beautiful plants that grow wild here in New Mexico and while we may take them for granted, these native plants may provide us with a solution to water conservation.

Water conservation may be important to you, if so you will benefit from calling 1-800-WATER-NM for more information. The brochure lists the principles of Xeriscaping, planning and design, soil improvements, appropriate turf areas, and tells about low-water-use plants, efficient irrigation, mulching, and proper maintenance. Xeriscaping tips and watering tips are included along with lists of plants that are appropriate for each climate area.

Water conservation may be as simple as reducing the amount of time you spend working in your yard by landscaping with native plants or as complicated as being run out of town because you don't bathe regularly and refuse to launder your clothes.

Those who believe they should spend two-thirds of their time fishing or playing in the water may decide Xeriscaping will give them more free time to enjoy their favorite water sports.

Native plants can use less water.

SANTA FE—The Atomic Age began 50 years ago, on July 16, at 5:30 a.m. in the desert of south-central New Mexico.

Actually, it started a few years earlier when German scientists split an atom, and the race was on to see which nation would be first to develop that technology into the ultimate weapon. The Manhattan Project, centered in Los Alamos, was the winner.

But due to wartime secrecy, no outsiders knew about that activity, not Vice-President Harry Truman, not residents of southern Socorro County where workers visited saloons and eateries and talked of building a 100-foot tower in the middle of the desert, and not even residents of Santa Fe and Rio Arriba counties, whose family members worked at Los Alamos.

And due to a successful government cover-up, it would be three more weeks, when the first A-bomb fell on Japan, before New Mexicans started figuring out what happened on Monday morning, July 16, 1945.

Most of those who did know what was coming were locked behind the fences of Los Alamos and strongly discouraged from sneaking a peak. All telephone conversations were monitored. Intelligence agents in Santa Fe and communities surrounding Trinity Site were alerted to catch security infractions.

Beginning on Sunday Morning, July 15, military police at each gate to Los Alamos recorded mileage readings on all vehicles leaving the Hill. These were compared against returning mileage counts. Those who had logged enough miles to get them near the blast site were in trouble. They deserved it. Scientists capable of building the world's first nuclear bomb should have been able to figure out how to turn back a car odometer.

Some drove to Sandia Peak above Albuquerque and watched from there. The clearest were some of the scientists' wives, who hiked or rode horseback into the Jemez Mountains above Los Alamos, where they had relatively unobstructed views of southern New Mexico.

The only recorded outsider to get any notification was Jose Miera, owner of the famous Owl Bar in nearby San Antonio, NM, who was awakened by friendly MPs and invited to come outside and witness something never seen before.

As the first glow of dawn lit the sky, the sun suddenly rose, and bathed Southern New Mexico in the brilliance of a thousand suns. Telephone switchboards throughout the state and in West Texas and Eastern Arizona lit up with reports of earthquakes, bombings, meteors and crashing B-29s. The "gadget," as scientists code-named it, had worked.

In Deming, seven-year-old Jay Miller, always a light sleeper, briefly sat up in bed as daylight came and went. Later in the day, the Wehmhoner's next door said they'd heard something that sounded just like an Oklahoma tornado.

But the military was ready. The following day, the commander of the Alamogordo Air Base pulled a prepared release from his drawer and announced that a remotely located ammunition magazine containing a considerable amount of high explosives and pyrotechnics had exploded. In those days, no one questioned such things.

There were no casualties even though civilians in the area had no warning. Neighboring ranchers visited the site soon after. Their children picked up the green glass and climbed the remains of the tower. Most are still around today to tell their grandchildren about it.

The blast was almost twice as strong as predicted. And it didn't achieve the proportions calculated by Nobel physicist Enrico Fermi, who warned there was one chance in 30 of destroying New Mexico and one chance in 1,000 of destroying the world.

Trinity Site will be open to the public on Sunday from 6 a.m. to 11 a.m. Visitors can enter by only through Stallion Gate, 12 miles east of San Antonio on U.S. 380 to Carrizozo. You can drive the 17 miles unescorted on paved, marked road. No ceremonies are planned.

Or if you're in the Santa Fe area, you can visit Sena Plaza at 5:30 a.m. and look for the ghosts of scientists, who are said to mingle restlessly at that hour each year outside the famous check-in office for first-time arrivals to Los Alamos.

Proposed Legislation Will Affect Telephone Industry Rural Areas

Penasco Valley Telephone Cooperative, Inc. issued the following press release:

Congress is debating sweeping telecommunications legislation that will affect the telephone industry and its customers for years to come. This legislation broadly deregulates the industry and opens every aspect of telecommunications to competition.

Competition and free-market forces are good old-fashioned American ideals. But they can't work in rural areas where telephone customers are spread thinner and the cost of providing service is much higher. You only have to look at the airlines to see how deregulation led to reduced service and higher fares for rural Americans.

The nation's long-standing policy of universal service for all Americans at reasonable rates is under attack. Instead of modern, reliable service and access to the information superhighway, rural telephone subscribers could face exorbitant rates, service erosion, and limited access to information and entertainment services.

The giant telecommunications companies are battling fiercely on Capitol Hill to protect their interest and profits. Small and rural telephone companies can barely be heard above the noise.

Penasco Valley Telephone Cooperative, Inc. and the National Telephone Cooperative Association have been busy letting members of Congress know that rural areas

Capitan School District Asks Gov. About $$

Capitan Municipal School District has been hit hard this year.

In January, newly elected Governor Gary Johnson announced he would close Fort Stanton Hospital. The closure meant families would have to move from the area so parents could maintain their state jobs.

Overall, Capitan Schools enrollment went down by 36 students and the equalization formula for the 1995-96 school year was decreased $50,000. The band director position was cut, and other remaining teachers had their schedules adjusted.

A technology program, to purchase computers and software, begun in 1994 with a legislative grant, also was impacted.

Capitan Schools requested capital outlay to complete the Technology Plan from the 1995 legislature. Some of the funding was included in House Bill 3 for educational funding.

But Gov. Johnson line item vetoed the $24,700 for Capitan's computers that was included in House Bill 3. Capitan Schools Superintendent Diana Billingsley wrote a letter on March 23 to the governor, expressing the district's disappointment about the veto. She indicated that as mandated in Goals 2000 and New Mexico Standards for Excellence, the students must have knowledge, understanding, and practical application skills of technology to compete in today's society. Capitan Schools had begun a five year plan to provide the technology and phase out had been completed with the 1994 grant and the district's own SB-9 money (which is collected from property taxes).

On April 17, the Governor's office replied. In Gov. Johnson's letter, he thanked Mrs. Billingsley for her letter, then went on to state how Capitan Schools had received $100,000 for computers in 1994, and another $20,000 under the provisions of the Education Technology Act. "It doesn't seem fair to provide more funds to selected school districts when all are in need," the governor wrote.

The governor went on to state that he was advised that Goals 200 and its provisions are not mandates, rather are to be guidelines to all schools in the U.S. "It is also my understanding that the State Board of Education's requirements are only to be met if funding allows for same."

But Billingsley found the governor's reply unfair, and stated such in another letter to Johnson, dated May 5.

LETTERS

EDITOR—I spent the weekend of July Fourth in the home of my son, Jack Johnson and his wife Chuck in Capitan, New Mexico. On Sunday, July 2nd, we attended the Constitutional Sunday Service at the football field in Capitan, and I would like to thank each one who participated in this service, for the time they took in planning and preparing for the service.

The speeches, music and songs; also the message Reverend Goodloe gave were all very good.

I would also like to thank those who prepared and served the meal after the service.

All of this proves that even though the community be small, with every one working together, wonderful things can happen.

SOPHIE L. JOHNSON,
Santa Rosa.

EDITOR—The conversion of Fort Stanton from a mental hospital to a prison is logical. Shouldn't the criminals be rewarded for their illegal activities? I cannot think of a better way to reward our prisoners than to treat them as guests at a picturesque Fort Stanton "Country Club" prison. Unlike our law-abiding, mentally disabled citizens whom are incapable of caring for themselves, our prisoners deserve three square meals a day, a cozy bed, sanitary conditions, medical care, etc. After all, we are a compassionate people and we all know that the criminals are victims of society.

Since we are a humane society and the mentally disabled are merely victims of nature vice society shouldn't we require them to fend for themselves in a community environment? Aren't they better off suffering and dying on our streets than they would be in a hospital at Fort Stanton?

The American people allowed the situation at Fort Stanton and across the country to occur. We condoned the atrocities against our mentally disabled citizens. As usual, "we stuck our heads in the sand and said nothing."

When we first heard of the governmental plan to transfer the patients into a community environment we should have broken our silence. The current demise of Fort Stanton started well before the Johnson Administration.

We are a caring people. We definitely care about the impact that the closing of Fort Stanton will have on our local economy. What about those poor souls whom have been displaced?

Note: You would be amazed at the number of mentally disabled people whom live on the streets of our nation's capital. Each winter some freeze to death.

FRANKLIN L. BOREN,
Tinnie, NM.

For the Love of Gregory

by Joann Rice

Any House Is A Home

Editor's Note: This column relates a five-year-old's conversations with his grandmother.

On Friday, Gregory came over with news. "I'm moving out, Queen Mother," he said.

"But you don't even live here, Gregory. Not that it wouldn't be good news if you did live here."

"Not out of here, Bunko. I know I don't live here. I have a home, you know."

"Could have fooled me. I can't turn around without running over you."

"Do you want to hear this or what, Queen Mother?"

"Do you actually mean I have a choice, Gregory. I'd really rather go to the opera in New York, or the Metropolitan Museum, or see a Broadway Play. I mean, if you are actually giving me a choice, there a lots of thing I'd rather do."

"Can it, Queen Mother! You don't have a choice. I lied."

"Oh well, in that case, tell me why you are moving out?"

"I'm moving out 'cause I want to live in a pumpkin, that's why."

"That's a brilliant idea, Gregory. Then you Mom can rent out your room. Hopefully to someone who is a lot more tidy."

"She wouldn't dare! Would she?"

"Well, you won't need it anymore. You'll have your pumpkin and all. But where did you get this idea, Gregory?"

"Well, I was watching television, and I saw about this vegetable growing contest. They had a squash as big as Texas. And huge tomatoes, and eggplants. I tell you it made me sick, just thinking about eating all that trash. Now if they had a gigantic tub of ice cream, I could handle that. But you don't grow ice cream. You make it from cows. Did you know that, Queen Mother?"

"No, Gregory, I didn't know ice cream was in the meat food group."

He sighed disgustedly. "Boy, Queen Mother, sometimes you amaze me. I know you got a brain. I just don't know where you keep it."

"Well, go on about the pumpkin."

"On the television show, they had the biggest pumpkin you ever saw. I figured nobody wanted to make that many pumpkin pies. So I said to myself, 'Gregory'. That's what I call myself. I said, 'You could live in one of those pumpkins. And that's where I got the idea. Plus I read fairy tale where some people lived in one. What do you think, Queen Mother?'"

"I think that's a good idea, Gregory. I could sell my house for big bucks, and rent your room. I wouldn't be bothered by you, because you'd be out back in your pumpkin. And I could sell all your toys. You're not going to have room for them. And I could sleep in your bed. You'll never fit that big bed in a pumpkin. You'll just have to sleep on pumpkin pulp. Me? I'll be cozy and warm in your room, besides having a big bank account."

"Boy, Queen Mother. You are sure gleeful about this. I'll show you. I'm not going to do it. Besides, the shipping and handling of the pumpkin was pretty steep, anyways. Sorry to ruin your plans. But not his time, Queen Mother, not this time."

Capitan School District . . .

"Our students are the losers!"

Billingsley's May 5 letter to Gov. Johnson states:

"Thank you for your response to my letter regarding my request for computer technology funding for the Capitan Municipal Schools.

"Our students are the losers!" Billingsley wrote to the governor. "How can we provide what is asked of our district when our funds are drastically reduced this year? What do you suggest we tell our students and our parents when they ask why we are not able to prepare our students for their future?"

"I do realize that all districts are in need of additional legislated funding to advance them in the areas of technology. Therefore, I take exception to your statement. It doesn't seem fair to provide more funds to selected school districts when all are in need. This is exactly what you did, and if you believed it was unfair, why did you approve funds for Albuquerque Chaparral Elementary (computers - $25,000), Albuquerque Del Norte High School (computers - $200,000), Albuquerque Garfield Middle School (computers - $75,000), Albuquerque Lavaland Elementary (computers - $25,000), Albuquerque S.R. Marmon Elementary (computers - $25,000), Albuquerque Valle Vista Elementary (computer network - $25,000), Albuquerque Various Schools (computers $200,000), Carlsbad Alta Vista and Eisenhower Middle Schools (computers - $100,000), Farmington (education technology equipment - $100,000) and Santa Fe (computers and CAI - $150,000)? This is a total of $925,000.

"Another bit of information and a question which was posed to me is 'why was 90 percent of the monies for computers given to school districts in the northern half of the state of which 62 percent of this total went to Albuquerque schools?' Is the governor purposely ignoring students and their technology needs in the southern half of the state?"

Sincerely,
Diana Billingsley

To date, the governor's office has yet to reply to the May 5 letter from Capitan Schools.

FORT STANTON FACTS & FICTION

by BETTY LOU JOHNSON

Catch up time and has it been a busy two weeks since I last wrote a few items. Hope everyone had a safe, fun-filled 4th of July.

Smokey Bear Stampede News

The Smokey Bear Stampede was a success even with the cancelling of the two ranch rodeos. Waddy Hobbs was very disappointed and several of the contestants, but it will be held at a later date. The virus that was going around was the cause of the cancellation of the two rodeos. A large crowd still was in attendance at all four shows held each night. The fair board officers and sheriff posse members were all busy with the many things needed taking care of.

President Gordon Barham, VP Waddy Hobbs, Sec. Craig Whipple and Treas. Jean Cunningham, along with David Cunningham (the person taking care of the grounds) Scott Daniels, Bobby Smith, Casper Baca's crew, and many many others kept the show on schedule with the slack being run after the two hour show. The $8500 needed to bring in the stock was a lot of money, but the fair board hoped to break even after everything is in. The results of the shows for each night will be printed next week. The results will show some of the top winners took home a little bit of cash!

The Queens always add to the grand entries. Miss Riddle, Lincoln County Fair Queen, Amanda Bird, CJRC Riding Club Queen, the 4-H Queen and Princess Stacey Thorne were all looking great and representing each organization proudly. Roland Caster, L.C. Sheriff's Posse president spoke as Mary Dell Jones presented the new queen her crown and buckle and roses. The posse will welcome her to ride in all the parades they attend. The next one will be in Estancia on July 29th. They rode in the 4th and won a second and the Lion's Parade on July 8.

I always enjoy participating in the parade, but this year enjoyed watching everybody with Kersti and Krystn (her little cousin from Houston). Kersti thought Chad and Chase Williams, who were riding in their little cars giving out goodies for the Alamo Pipe Supply, helping out grandpa and grandma Fifer drum up business, were the cutest little ones. Many comments were made about the church group with Stan Cox being quite an attraction on stilts. The two sheriff posse groups were stunning in all their matching uniforms. Posse from El Paso and Lincoln County were represented through their participation. Chuck Johnson drove the car that carried Dorothy Smith, the Grand Marshall. Dorothy has given many hours of service to the chamber of Capitan and the community as a whole. Shirley Goodloe was seen walking along with the church group, smiling and waving at the many along the route. I understand Shelby Martin was our driver of the Fort Stanton fire truck and brought home a first place prize. Someone had been afraid that it might not be in the parade, and am sure they will be glad to know it was there for the big day. The little train from Roswell was one of the favorite attractions for everyone, such a cute idea. The cowbelles I saw riding on their three and four wheelers were Janice Herd, Pat Shear, Willa Stone, Barbara Barry and Jeanette Smoot. Sorry I didn't know the girls carrying the banner for the Corriente CowBelles, the "40th" parade a big addition to the stampede celebration. Many remarked they missed the barbecue, but as with other things the work is almost too much any more as all the expense. Thanks to all who participated, came, and worked for our special little town of Capitan.

Many of us from the Fort attended the funeral of Tommy Nevarez on Monday at the Capitan Catholic Church. Tommy passed away at his home on July 3rd. I feel this death was one of the first that happened from the results of the closing of the Fort. Lu Parker and I had just spoken to Tommy on Saturday before. He told me he, told Irene that they would keep their box here just to help keep me open. Irene says with city delivery she can come get her mail in Fort Stanton, quicker than in Ruidoso. Everytime they came out I could see it was a tough time for them both. I have known Tommy a long time having gone to school back in 1951 with him in Ancho. It seems like I am getting to be the last of those from that little town still alive. Our condolences to Tommy's family and Irene. I will definitely miss him.

Friday evening a week ago, family members gathered at Barney Mancha's house to surprise him with a retirement party. On Jan. 6, 1995, Barney had spent 29 years of his life working here at the Fort, cooking and volunteering for the fire department. I keep saying he knew more than anyone here. Barney always helped with the Little League baseball teams and cooked many a meal. Barney will be staying on for a while to help train the CSB fire crew. Congratulations Barney for all your years of service.

John Parker, from Apache, Oklahoma was here during the fourth visiting with Lu and Gene. He and Ronnie Sanchez of Albuquerque and Ronald and Teresa were all happy to be home for the good old 4th of July.

Many nice tourists have come by the post office this past month. El Paso, Mississippi, Maryland, Houston, Bloomfield, and other states have sent people touring the Fort. I have had my bike out hoping to get lots of exercise but think of other things to do. Two mornings while Francis Saiz was cleaning the little church I stopped in and played a little tune on the piano. This peaceful place is sure quiet with just the seven or eight of us here at a time. A wedding was held last Saturday, would loved to have gone but went on another excursion.

Joe and Luella Smith and Pat went to White Oaks and measured the Pony Express Race route. We came up with 37.2 miles. On August 5 the Lincoln County Sheriff's Posse will be riding the route from White Oaks into Fort Stanton and then on into Lincoln, just before the parade on Sunday

But Carrizozo could only counter with two runs after seeing their opponents put up seven runs in the top of the inning. Ron Beltran had a good night at the plate going 3 for 4 with two singles and a triple, LeeRoy Zamora Jr. added a double and a triple, and Michael Barela Sr. chipped in with two singles.

CAPITAN NOTES

Greetings from my old house by the side of the road to your house.

Another Fourth of July has come and gone, just four more before the end of this century. Sounds ominous and scary doesn't it, but I don't mean it to be. This year there were a lot of entertaining things like always, but there were so many folks from far away places that were here. Sorta of kind a makes you wonder what is bringing them to Capitan. Met a most interesting lady that just happened to be walking in front of my house after the parade. Her name is Gayle Margot Jennings and she hails from Electra, Texas. She was visiting in the area. Then Ben Leslie Jr. stopped and talked for awhile. He is organizing and working toward the big school reunion here in Capitan which will be celebrated on the 28th and 29th of this month. Mr. Leslie is well acquainted with many of you old timers here in Capitan and he gave me the following picture of a very special lady that we all revere. I promised if he would allow me to use it for my column that I would then give it to Margaret. And we are sorry that Dorothy and Shiloh Smith, who were the special grand lady and grand-marshal were unable to participate in our parade because of illness. As I do not have a picture of Dorothy and Shiloh, let me give you this lovely picture of such a lovely lady, Margaret Rench, and her handsome escort, grand-marshal Virgil Hall. I was not informed of the year this event took place, but most of you will remember it well. Congratulations to each of you and best wishes for better health to you Dorothy and Shiloh.

The parade day got off to an early start, as per usual. I always sort of kinda dread that early start, because early start on the Fourth of July means around six o'clock in the morning when they begin to get ready to begin the various races for the various and sundry age groups. This year all ages ran, and also all sizes and shapes. There were all sizes and shapes of cars that lined the streets, especially in front of my house and there were lot of folks talking and lots of folks posing for pictures.

The following 'states' were given me by Tom and I hope I have not misplaced anything, but I just have one sheet in front of me. If there were more and I misplaced them, as I am prone to do, then mea culpa, mea culpa. And on to the big event, race I mean. The winner of the two mile run was Israel Cordero in the men's division in 10:12 minutes and Tamara Hobbs completed the same run in the ladies division in 13:10 minutes. Very good, me thinks. And in the 10K - 6 mile run Scott Long took honors in the men's division with a time of 34:51 and Cathy Pearce took similar honors in the ladies division in the 41:23. And congratulations to all of you and especially congratulations to our youngest runner, Alexis Trost, age 28 days, Alexis ran the 2 mile race in 37.45 minutes in the arms of her mother, Sunshine Trost and what a little beauty Alexis is. But why wouldn't she be, her mother was a beautiful girl herself and still is. Congratulations again.

The organizers of the event were Howard and Mary Shanks assisted by Tom and Ruby Trost, incidentally the grandparents of lovely Alexis. Mike Shanks, Tom and Pat Sullivan, Norm Cline, Gary Cozzens, Diane Riska and Kathy Dean. And my congratulations also to the helpers and to Howard and Mary Shanks.

I do hope I did not omit anyone worthy of naming in this event. My ignorance will probably speak louder than my words as my knowledge of track and field events ended the day years ago when a young swain, coach of one of the small schools in Iowa squired me to the Drake Relays. I was arrayed in a brand new coat, new straw bonnet and spike heel pumps. The going, to the relays was sprung on me later. I was dressed for a spiffy luncheon date, certainly, but certainly not in the proper attire to attend any field event. Well it started to rain, then it made up its mind and decided to pour, downpour that is and there was nothing between me and the downpour but my new straw bonnet. I kept pulling it down, while my escort, (certainly not what I was calling him in my mind), tried to shelter me with his arm holding wet, soggy newspapers. By this time you have guessed it, no there was nothing overhead between us and the Heavens. This was back in the thirties and I guess things have changed a lot since then. The only thing that hasn't changed is my mind about relays and field events. By the time the blasted affair was over, I had pulled my new straw bonnet, down so far, that it came right up to a point on top. I looked like I was wearing a dunce cap and believe me a dunce cap was most appropo for me to have considered to accept the date in the first place. He apologized over and over again, but all I wanted from him was distance as I squished and squashed and teetered on spike heels getting out of those blasted bleachers. He asked for more dates, but somehow I was always busy.

Forgive me, just got carried away down Memory Lane. So back to the Fourth of July 1985. The American Legion float was especially beautiful and matching veterans brought a tear or two to my eyes. My late husband was a veteran and my firstborn son, now residing in Brazil, is also a veteran. The only difference is that the war my husband served in is honored every year. And the war my first born son was involved in has never been even admitted to having taking place. Boys gave their lives just the same, but they were never there. I am referring to the Marines that fought in Laos before we ever got involved in that disgraceful thing called the Vietnam war and now we are going to be their friend? And I ask, what price LIFE?

Jack Johnson looked real spiffy in his golf go-cart and I got a big wave from Gordon Ross driving the chamber of commerce float. And Janice Herd with her handsome little grandsons on their scooters. Lou Miller was on the roof of his small porch that definitely had a down slope and he was taking photographs of the parade. I was so engrossed in watching him for fear he would fall that I no doubt missed some folks milling around in the crowd. Did visit a bit with Nina Ross and that is always a pleasure. Quite frankly just to see Nina is quite a pleasure. Ran into Bessie Jones in the post office and had a big welcome home hug.

Congratulations to David J. Bergs who just received a Doctor of Ministry degree from McCormick Theological Seminary at their commencement exercises on June 6.

Was saddened by the passing of Jim McEuen. I know it was a blessing that the Good Lord took him, but Jim and Bonnie McEuen were so wonderful to me when I first moved to Capitan and wonderful to me all the time they were in business next door. Jim, I really miss you and wish we could catapult back a few years and have some of those old confabs across the adobe fence. And Bonnie my condolences to you and my admiration for the wonderful and faithful care you gave Jim. May God bless you and keep you in His care. Also a special tribute to Mona McEuen for helping and assisting in the care of Jim. I know it was a trial for both of you and hope the rest of your lives will be filled with some wonderful things.

Special announcement--Janice Herd brought the following to me.

Plans are being made for this year's Lincoln County Fair to be held August 9-12. This year we are bringing back the Top Homemaker Award. Anyone entering five divisions in the open classes will earn points toward this. This year also added is a commercial department. This year will also feature its second annual fiddlers contest and everyone is welcome to enter. It will be held Saturday, at 11:30 a.m. For more information call Cindy Foglesong at 354-2846.

Ila Mae again my apologies, have run out space and also time. So will just put you on hold, but don't give up, your story will appear soon again. And thank you for your patience.

The Canine Chorus is still in fine fettle, and with their constant practicing, all hours of the night should be ready for the Metropolitan Opera by fall.

Ruidoso Bans Skating and ..

Councilor Leon Eggleston, who was against the ordinance from the start, made another amendment to add jogging to the list of prohibited activities on the sidewalks. Again, the vote on the amendment was tied, with Eggleston, councilors Frank Potter and Robert Donaldson voting yes, Cummins, Gomez and James voting no. Shaw broke the tie, in favor of the jogging amendment.

Merchant Terry Sodd, who had implored the council to enact the ordinance, said she had worked her entire life to build her business, and would not give it up to skateboarders. "I'm not asking skateboards or roller sports to be banned in the village, I'm just asking for a four block area to be blocked off to just foot and motor traffic," she said.

A parent in support of the skaters, asked why the merchants didn't call police to enforce the existing ordinances. Sodd said the merchants do, the problem is the police have to see the actual violation.

Teenager Austin Kuntz asked where the skaters can go while the skate park which the council promised to construct is being built, especially since they can no longer skate on the private property at the old racket club location north of White Mountain School. Kuntz said the MainStreet area was desired for skating because it is lighted, and is concrete. Asphalt heats and causes the skateboard wheels to stick. "What are we supposed to do?" Kuntz asked.

James said the skaters were run off the racket club location because there was "graffiti all over." Eggleston said he didn't think skateboarding and graffiti should be used in the same context. He suggested the skaters use the parking lots at the civic center and at the schools. However, he acknowledged that the skaters were told they could not use the school property. But he questioned why kids could play basketball on school property.

Donaldson said there is no rule against skating at the civic center, "but someone there runs them off."

Eggleston said he understood Sodd's and other merchant's problems. "I can see a lack of cooperation with some skaters."

Merchant Jay Ross said a lot of the kids in town are good and courteous, but unfortunately, less than five percent are causing the problems. "We really need this ordinance to protect our investments," he said, then cited an example of a $600 bench damaged by skateboarders.

Police commander Wolfgang Born said the department has received 14 calls about skateboarders since June 27, resulting in one arrest and three citations. He said his department will continue to beef up patrols to control skaters in the roadway. On Monday, an accident occurred between a skater and a vehicle. There were no injuries, but the vehicle received $500 in damages when the skater ran a stop light.

After another amendment suggested by village attorney John Underwood, to allow the judge to keep up with the number of citations issued to an individual, the council voted on the ordinance as amended. Eggleston cast the lone no vote.

Skating and jogging will be prohibited on the sidewalks in the MainStreet area, which is defined as the area bounded on the north by Rio Grande Street, on the south by Wingfield Street, on the west by Grindstone Canyon Road and on the east by Country Club Drive. Anyone violating the rule is subject to receiving a warning for the first offense, a $50 fine for the second offense and $100 fine for the third and subsequent offense.

"I don't think an ordinance is a solution to the problem,"

Eggleston said, "I think the solution is filing (charges) on the ones who cause the problems."

Shaw agreed. Later in the meeting, Cummins said that the park in the northern part of town is not just a skate board park. "It's important to realize the village is developing a park in the northern part of town, and a slab will be installed there for skaters," he said. "I think the schools should open their sidewalks for the skaters."

Work on the skating slab at the north park site was delayed recently by heavy rains, which made the area too wet to work. Village crews plan to return to work on the skating slab this week, and will complete it within two weeks, weather permitting.

(This reporter cruised the MainStreet area after the Tuesday meeting. Just one group of three teenagers were there, playing hacki-sacki on the sidewalk. There were no skaters.)

vis said.

Davis was aboard the ship LST (Landing Ship Tank) 930, a troop and equipment carrier converted to a hospital ship, after the Marines and equipment were moved ashore. "I was in Nagasaki after August 9," Davis said. He showed pictures of soldiers walking in the bombarded area of the city.

Davis also showed pictures he took of Operation Daybreak, when U.S. troops went ashore on the many islands after the Japanese surrendered. "We were part of the group that went from island to island disarming the Japanese," Davis continued. A peace treaty for Nagasaki was signed on board the LST 930, and the Japanese' weapons, shells, etc. were taken out to sea and dropped overboard.

The LST 930, and other ships were not allowed in the harbor, or even in the area near Hiroshima because of the radioactivity. Davis said he remembered a sailor who had been aboard a ship relatively near Hiroshima when the atomic bomb was dropped. The sailor suffered from radiation burns.

"We wouldn't have been allowed, on Nagasaki if an atomic bomb had been dropped there," he added.

Davis was at sea for 34 months during World War II and served on 11 ships, including LST 930. Davis has been working to organize an association of ex-seaman who served aboard the LST 930. Some he found when the men came into Davis' restaurant in Carrizozo and saw caps with the ship's name.

Davis has kept his memories of his service during World War II. While he has lost some pictures and other memorabilia, he has others. Most of all, Davis has kept the memory of those days alive in his mind, especially his time on Nagasaki in the Korean War Veterans Memorial Dedication in Washington, D.C.

The celebration will consist of ceremonies and events to honor all veterans of the Korean War. For more information call 202-208-3561.

months after the Japanese surrender.

That is why Davis says no atomic bomb was dropped on that city. "If we hadn't been there, I wouldn't have known today," Davis concluded.

THE NEWS will make efforts to get information from the Dept. of Defense to verify Davis' claim. However, according to a spokesperson in Congressman Joe Skeen's Roswell office, such information will require a formally written letter, which will be forwarded to the Dept. of Defense for research. The spokesperson also said that such information may not be available for the public.

Capitan Notes . . .

(Con't. from P. 7)

live in Capitan, but now resides in Alamogordo. Pat and I could never just greet each other and be done with it. We had to really visit and I hope I impressed upon her how much I miss her and how much she means to me. Pat, no one can ever take your place, and Roland was the wonderful person that installed my front door and my blue shutters and to you Roland I am eternally grateful. Hope you caught a lot of fish.

And so for another week, Adios and Sayonara.

CORONA NEWS

Excitement is building for the reunion of the Class of 1940 which will meet Friday morning, July 14 in the school library. There will be time for visiting and then time out for a Dutch lunch at the Crown Cafe, then a return to the school library for more reminiscing and farewells.

Mrs. Helen Toland, class member is making arrangements. Her sister, Vera Barnes taught some of the class in second grade at Cedarvale. She will attend. The Ingram twins are coming, Pat from Socorro and Mike from California. Bernice Davis Janragin, a class member for part of the years, writes from California that she will be unable to attend but is sending a letter to be read. A call from Rhonda Coletschuck in New York City asked for more information because her mother, the former Velma Stroop, wants to come from Las Vegas, Nev., and her daughters will see that she gets here. The library door will be open about 8:30 a.m.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Rodriguez, 29 Palms Marine Base, Ca., visited his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Duke, and helped with the branding.

Mrs. Tom Pounds received word Monday of the death of her brother, Jim Twyefort, after a long illness.

Tammie Ojala visited in Corona last summer and returned this week to renew acquaintances. She has another year in film making and is one of six from the Boston area who are traveling to San Francisco, sightseeing along the way.

Women's Aglow is sponsoring a singing group from Amistad known as "The Spirits". Three couples and a single. The time is 7:30 p.m. Sat., July 22 in the school rec room. There will be refreshments and visiting after the program.

The Ward Alford, Cheyenne, OK., and Mr. and Mrs. Travis Lightfoot, Deming, were at the Alford ranch last weekend.

An unmarked blue helicopter flying in low circles has proved disturbing to man, bird, and beast.

Mila Pounds and Cathy Yancey hosted a bridal shower Sunday afternoon in the school library. The honoree was Kayla Dial, bride-elect of Randy Luera. They will wed Friday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Rick Manning spent a long weekend in Socorro when Loretta's high school class celebrated their 20th reunion. Three year old Ryan Romero came from Socorro to see that his aunts ranch chores were done properly.

Sherrill Bradford brought her namesake, Sherrill Howell, when they came from El Paso Friday. Mrs. Eldon Howell took son, Matthew, to Lubbock to a band camp and brought Sherrill's twin sister, Ryan, to Corona for a mini vacation. The girls share a love of horses and books and celebrated their 10th birthday Tuesday.

Janell and Tim Kane plan to come from California during her 20th class reunion during the Corona Festival. Janell would like to locate their sponsor, Charles Page, and invite him to attend.

Ken Kiefer was in Corona to visit his mother, Erdine Behunin over the weekend and to do more work on the house. Erdine spent four days in Tatum visiting Wayne Brazil and family for some R & R. They were moving a cabin to their place in the country so they all ended up working. Tatum also had a good rain.

Seven year old Luke Porter, Lamar, Ark., is spending some time with his grandfather, Fred Porter, this summer. He is helping with the hay hauling and the ostrich ranch chores. Other family members at the ranch last weekend were Iris and Gene Todd, Deming, Alice and Neal Berry, Chaparral, Pauline Addison, Tularosa, Evelyn and John McKee and daughters, Rosie and Debbie, and Mr. and Mrs. Steve Todd and daughters, Vikki and Alex, all of Albuquerque.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald DuBois, New Paltz, NY, stopped Wednesday to talk with Geraldine DuBois Perkins after they saw the drug store sign as they were driving through to see a cousin in Alamogordo. Contacts like this are interesting.

FORT STANTON Facts and Fiction . . .

at 11:00. The group's horsemen will leave White Oaks at 7:30 on Saturday and barring any mishaps the group will arrive at Fort Stanton around 3 o'clock on Saturday evening. They will spend the night and go on into Lincoln the next morning just before the parade starts at 11:00. They hope to hand off the mail to some of the postmasters that have helped with the mail in the past. I am getting permission to use as many brands of the riders who have ridden the race, to go on my envelopes. We will print up 250 special envelopes, and then several plain ones. Running a little late as usual. Contact any sheriff posse member for details after the 17th of July. This letter states this carrying of the mail will be a tribute to the many riders that rode in the 26 races and the people who have started the race and worked to keep it going for many years. Even though the race won't be run, I think it will be a fun thing to keep on carrying the letters. If anyone is interested, you can get in touch with me for a few more details.

The maintenance crew of Roy Baca, Robert and David Griego, Don Messer, Sam Townley, Fred Sweeney, Wal Gallegos, Anita Sambrano and daughter, Phil Keller and I all had a piece of cake, coffee and lemonade on June 30. I had a little get together for the commemorating of the 138 years of the post office and 98 years of health care here at the Fort. We all took a little break and thought of all the employees through the years that had worked on these grounds. Wonder what the number would be? Evelyn Garvey and Pat Randle stopped in today and bought one of the envelopes to keep for historical purposes down the road. We are all still wondering what will come of us. The articles in the paper are about all we know. Jane Terrell stopped in a little while ago, taking her horse to her new home. The first ride in a trailer for the nice filly. Jane has been hard at it moving, working two and three jobs and resting a few minutes. Mike Hainer stopped from Las Cruces, wondering and asking about everyone. The Drew Construction Co. is placing new roofs on some of the buildings. This was requested over a year ago and is just now coming about. Dr. Kuydendahl came in and visited for a minute and is looking very well, but was concerned about the clients and all the fellow workers.

One of the last trailers to pull out of the Fort was Pilar Harris's last Friday. Rose and Chris McCarty stopped by and visited while waiting for the truck to come take it into Capitan.
