

Governor Johnson Visits Fort Stanton

by Doris Cherry

The Governor made his first ever visit to Fort Stanton the other day, to put up a "For Rent" sign.

He had never seen the Fort even though he shut it down as a state hospital in January as one of the first acts of his administration.

Gary Johnson flew into Sierra Blanca Regional Airport on Thursday, Aug. 24, to attend a pre-conference hearing at nearby Fort Stanton for potential lessees of the vacant state hospital. He was there about 40 minutes, partly to welcome the potential proposers, but mostly to get media attention for the Fort by posing in a t-shirt printed with "10 reasons to lease Fort Stanton" and by putting up a "Fort for Rent" sign.

The reasons, and sign idea, were developed by a Chicago based advertising agency which sought to employ humor as a way to gain attention of any entity willing to shell out at least $1 million a year on lease payments, and another $1.5 million for upkeep of the old vacant frontier Fort which at one time served as hospital to merchant marines, TB patients and mentally retarded adults.

Putting up the sign wasn't so easy. The governor was taken out on the parade grounds for a photo shoot of him pounding in the wooden sign with the words "Fort for Rent" painted on it. With a sledge hammer, the governor eagerly pounded the sign. Instead of going into the ground, it broke. The governor recovered and as he pounded the broken point into the ground, the front boards on the sign broke.

Embarrassed, the governor joked that he didn't make the sign, so he could take no responsibility for its construction.

Later, the governor explained the reason for his visit to the Fort was to add to the national exposure of the advertisement for lease proposals for the fort. The Fort was featured on a radio article on National Public Radio and advertisements for the Fort and the state's request for proposals for leasing the facility have been placed by the state in Forbes magazine and the Wall Street Journal. "We're trying to get as much attention as we can," Johnson said.

When asked what he would like to see in Fort Stanton, Johnson said, "Disneyworld

Citizens Concerned About Historical Preservation Of Fort

by Doris Cherry

After Governor Gary Johnson made the decision to close Fort Stanton as a state hospital, the state began a process to lease the Fort to a private company.

To chose a company, the state has issued a request for proposals and has been promoting the Fort with an advertising campaign with ads in Forbes magazine and Wall Street Journal.

The state General Services Dept., which controls all state property, held its second pre-proposal conference at Fort Stanton on Thursday, Aug. 24 to give potential proposers a tour of the facility and to answer questions.

Several representatives from companies interested in leasing the Fort were at the conference, opened with remarks by the governor (see related stories), then summaries of the facility and its history from the General Services Dept. staff. After the summaries, staff answered questions about availability of inventory lists, liability for the landfill (the state has that liability), if vehicles will also be included in the lease (probably not because of the liability issue), and whether the state will retain the one-year termination clause.

Lincoln County Commissioner Ray Nunley asked about the termination clause. General Services staff said the state requires the clause which can be invoked without cause, because by state law the facility must be made available if the state has a need for it. Staff assured the state had never invoked a termination clause, and has no intent to do so.

Concern for the "historical aspect of the facility was expressed by Lincoln Pageant and Lincoln County Historical Society member Ralph Dunlap. He asked that the historical items be left intact, and at Fort Stanton. "Rather than be moved somewhere else," Dunlap said.

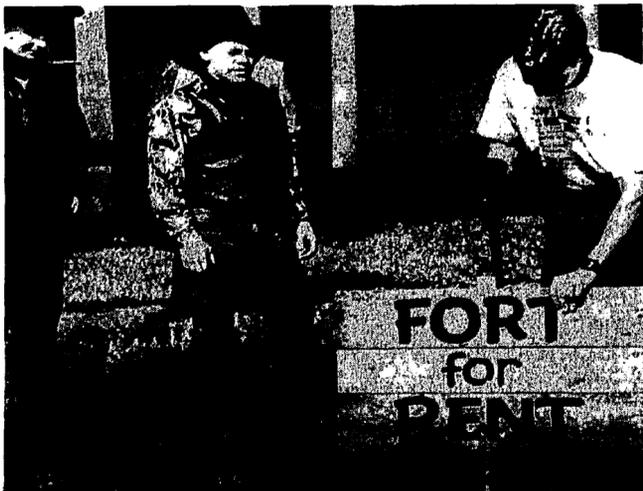

Staff said they are concerned about the preservation of the buildings and things inside State Cultural Secretary Gary Morton, from Lincoln County, is working with General Services on the preservation concerns.

State funds that were appropriated to do remodeling of three buildings to meet American With Disabilities Act (ADA) standards are available only to do those projects. The appropriations of $268,000 for ADA at Socorro Cottage; $391,000 for ADA remodeling at Sierra Cottage and $193,000 for the recreation hall are on hold because General Services thought it inappropriate to spend the money on the buildings at this time. If the money is not spent for the ADA remodeling projects, however, it will revert back to the legislature.

All proposals to lease Fort Stanton must be submitted to the General Services Dept. by Nov. 13. Proposals will be opened Nov. 14 and evaluated on Nov. 20. Lincoln County commissioners will be allowed to have a representative on the evaluation committee.

Final selection and notice of award of the lease proposal will be made Dec. 29. Lease negotiations will be held January 22, 1996.

GOVERNOR JOHNSON knows how to use a sledge hammer, so well that he broke the sign post. No matter, he pounded in the broken post, only to have the boards on the sign fall apart. Billy the Kid actor John Shrengost (left) and his sidekick Beckworth played by Wes Mitchell watched as the governor pounded the sign back together.

County Subdivision Regulations Can Hinder Land Developments

by Doris Cherry

Lincoln County needs subdivision regulations that are concise, yet flexible enough to allow profitable development.

So say developers who spoke out at a special meeting in Ruidoso Thursday, Aug. 24 as Lincoln County Commissioners held their first of several public hearings on the county's road program and proposed changes to the subdivision regulations.

Retired Ruidoso developer Bill McCarty had the most to say about the county's subdivision regulations, which he said have no provision for private roads, no flexibility for width depending on terrain, and need to change how the county will accept new roads. He criticized the county road department, which he said "has managed to break every developer to come into town."

He suggested the county work with developers to make meeting the regulations easier.

The main objection with the county road regulations from McCarty and other developers is the county's road acceptance process. Instead of leaving the decision on accepting the roads up to the road manager, McCarty suggested a committee of the road manager, a hired outside engineer and a commissioner inspect the roads for an acceptance recommendation. He also urged commissioners to uphold the two year road wear program, when the developer must maintain the roads for two years before the county will accept the roads for county maintenance, instead of extending it if the road supervisor finds fault.

Developer Ed Libby with Ranches De Sonterra subdivision agreed. "It's difficult for a developer...if there is uncertainty at the end of three years, and the developer does everything the county asks," Libby said. "Nowhere in the

Debate On County Road Maintenance Continues

Lincoln County Commissioners will continue discussions on how to finance the maintenance of county roads.

At a public hearing held in Ruidoso Aug. 24, commissioners said they plan to keep the chip seal paving equipment the county purchased last year to do maintenance on paved county roads. But they want to know how the property owners want to pay for that maintenance, if by front footage tax or paving assessment.

Last winter commissioners doubled the amount of road front footage tax assessed on subdivision properties to pay for the cost of maintenance. But citizens made such an outcry, commissioners rescinded the road front footage tax that is assessed per linear foot of properties in subdivisions that adjoin county maintained roads.

According to figures from the county manager's office, the cost of maintaining gravel roads, if gravel is applied on a regular basis, is equal, or higher than the cost of maintaining double penetration paved roads.

Some of those present at the public hearing in Ruidoso asked commissioners to hold study sessions to review those and other figures on the cost of maintenance.

Retired Ruidoso contractor Bill McCarty said it is not cost effective for the county to build its own paved roads. Instead, the paved roads should be built by private contractor, then the property owners assessed for the cost of the paving. He was also concerned the paving maintenance will take road employees away from maintaining other areas of the county.

"When you chip seal you park all the other equipment, that you're paying rent on, and neglect every other job," McCarty said.

The developer of a new subdivision said chip sealed (paved) roads make the property more valuable, and in turn provides more tax revenue for the county. "If it's true that chip seal roads costs less than gravel to maintain, how can you assess paved roads higher?" developer Ed Libby asked.

A resident said he thought eliminating the road front footage tax was going backwards and he suggested assessing lot owners on paved subdivision roads for maintenance.

The debate over how to pay for maintenance of county subdivision roads will continue. A public hearing on the maintenance costs will be held during the county commission's regular meeting set for Tuesday, Sept. 12, at the courthouse in Carrizozo.

County Subdivision

23 states (where his development company operates) is there a two year maintenance program but Lincoln County," Libby added.

County commissioner Stirling Spencer, who has asserted that the commission does not have to accept roads if it chooses, said he thought his commission had changed wording in the regulations from "shall" to "may." However, copies of the county subdivision regulations distributed at the meeting still included the words "shall."

Fellow commissioner Bill Schwettmann upheld the "shall" wording, because it is a commitment from the county to the developer. "I take exception to Stirling's spiel on may or shall," Schwettmann said. "How, would you like such words on PILT (federal payment in lieu of taxes) or subsidies when we do the budget?" Schwettmann asked.

As for road acceptance recommendation, since the former county road manager resigned the county manager said she has hired an outside engineer to assist with recommendations.

Private roads were a solution that McCarty and other developers suggested. "The private road is not to let the developer off with any less work," McCarty said. "It would just make a better project and not ruin the land."

Ruidoso banker Ronnie Paulger agreed with McCarty on private roads. "The private road concept will eliminate the burden on the county for maintenance," Paulger said. Instead, a home owners association would be responsible for road maintenance.

"But give us a break on the requirements of roads," Paulger said. "The cost of the roads exceeds the value of the lot."

County commissioner Stirling Spencer said the county's concern is the road width must accommodate access for emergency fire, medical and police equipment. He asked how a homeowners' association could regulate that.

Paulger said private roads in "gated" communities in other counties and states are very successful.

Surveyor Tim Collins was concerned that private associations will not meet their maintenance obligations on their private roads.

"You've got to realize how bad roads affect revenues," Collins said. "The better maintained roads are, the better the assessed value will be and better taxed."

Collins said he didn't know how the property tax revenues doesn't keep up with the costs of county road maintenance. For example he said that the former Barham Ranch, which is now being developed into the Ranches de Sonterra subdivision, paid $200 a year in taxes as a ranch. This year the development, with seven miles of roads, will generate about $60,000 in property taxes for the county. "The developer brings a better tax rate for the county," he said.

Commissioner Wilton Howell said not all of county property taxes go to the road department, it is shared with all other offices.

As for allowing narrow roads, Collins said the state requires a road to be a minimum of 20 feet wide for emergency fire equipment.

Collins also said the current regulations are "all wrong" and need to incorporate changes developed by the county's planning and zoning commission.

Libby also said the county needs to expand its concern to other issues involving development, such as availability of water. Commission chairman Monroy Montes said water availability should be an issue. He pointed out that Ranches de Sonterra has been approved use of 600 acre feet of underground water, which may or may not impact the Bonito River which runs through the development. If such a demand was made in the Hondo Valley, Montes said it would have serious ramifications. "Water availability is something we may have to start talking about," Montes said.

There was discussion about how the 1995 state subdivision regulation changes will affect the county's regulations. Since those new regulations do not go into effect in this county until 1997, current county standards will apply. However, the new state law has exceptions for the sale of large tracts over 40 acres.

County resident Linda Lott, asked commissioners to consider the integrity of the environment when making regulations on roads.

Commissioners asked all who made comments about the subdivision regulations to incorporate them in writing, and submit their proposed changes to the county manager to be considered at the next regular county commission meeting on September 12.

The governor then said he hoped the Fort would be leased by a "viable, ongoing enterprise" that would maintain the historical significance of the Fort, and provide local employment.

He said it was important to retain the historical significance (of the Fort) and put people to work. "We're truly wide-opened for proposals, and maybe it will come to a win-win situation," Johnson said.

Lincoln County Commissioner Wilton Howell introduced the governor, whom he said lived up to campaign pledges for change and letting the private sector complete. "We're here because we have a governor who realized the state had a facility not being put to good use," Howell said.

He then thanked the governor for giving Lincoln County opportunity to participate with state government to come up with better use for the facility. "We appreciate the ability to let the private sector come up with a solution," Howell said.

After the introductory remarks, the state General Services Division (which controls Fort Stanton) staff conducted the pre-conference meeting, which included questions from potential proposers Desert Hills Center for Youth and Families of Albuquerque owned by Youth Services International with corporate offices in Finksburg, MD; New Mexico Outreach from Albuquerque; Magnolia Health Services from New Orleans, and GA Investment of Ruidoso.

Carrizozo Six Man Football Kicks Off

by Doris Cherry

Carrizozo, are you ready for football?

Carrizozo High School football season officially kicks off Friday, when the Carrizozo Grizzlies travel to El Paso, to compete in their first six man football game.

Carrizozo football players, parents and school administration made the decision to go with the six man football program this summer when it was evident there were too few boys eligible to play 11-man football.

The Grizzlies have a full roster of games set for this fall, because the school was able to pick up Corona's schedule. Corona dropped its six man football program entirely this year because it had too few players to make a team.

Last Saturday, the Grizzlies got their first chance to try out the six man game in a scrimmage with the Mountainair Mustangs. Mountainair has won state titles in six-man football. For the Grizzly players to see the banners hanging from the Mountainair gym was intimidating, head Grizzly football coach Ron Wright said.

But on the field, the Grizzlies were far from intimidated. While no actual score was kept, Wright kept track of touchdowns and goals. "We won the scrimmage," he said. Carrizozo scored five times to Mountainair's twice.

"I was real happy with the results," Wright continued. "The longer they played the better they got."

Wright said the game showed the team players' character and their team unity which has grown tremendously from when Wright first came to town just a few weeks ago. "When I think the kids were down. Now I think their attitudes have changed, and they were alive and well Saturday."

The Grizzlies scored one offensive touchdown, a defensive touchdown, two safeties and a field goal. The Grizzlies covered 271 yards in offense play, 160 yards passing and 111 yards running. Coach Wright was impressed with the Grizzlies' defensive work in the last eight offensive plays as the Carrizozo boys kept the Mustangs from gaining any yards.

Ready to praise his players, Coach Wright will designate players of the week in offense, defense and "special team player of the week."

Coach Wright selected Willie Silva as offensive player of the week for his 76 yards rushing and 22 yards passing. Bonafacio Zamora is defensive player of the week with his successful safety and excellent defensive work and special team player of the week is Josh Thornton who made several tackles, five or six kicks and strong downfield work.

Wright also was impressed with the Carrizozo fans and parents. "Our bleachers were full in Mountainair," he said. "I was impressed."

He also thanked the community for its support so far. "Everywhere I go I hear good things about the team and its spirit," Wright said.

Wright came to Carrizozo this summer after a year at Ruidoso High School as assistant basketball coach and head golf coach. He has a masters degree in sports administration from Texas Tech University, a bachelor's degree in physical education and a minor in history and government from North Texas State University in Denton where played football. As a student at Highland High School, near Abilene Texas, Wright played six man football. After he earned his degree, he returned to Highland to coach the six man football team to the state title.

Wright also coached basketball in a private high school in Texas, and another small Texas public high school. While in graduate school at Texas Tech he was assistant football coach. Wright moved away from school sports to do property management for eight years in Oklahoma, but decided to (SEE PAGE 11)

Different . . . But Still Football

Carrizozo High School football will have a new look this fall.

Finding it increasingly difficult to fill out an 11-man team roster, interested Carrizozo players and their parents voted this summer to go with six-man football to preserve the school's football heritage.

What is six-man football? The Grizzlies new football coach Ron Wright explained it to THE NEWS. Basically, there are only six players instead of 11. The field is smaller, only 80 yards long and 40 yards wide, as opposed to the 100 X 48 yards for 11-man football.

Touchdowns are worth four points instead of six. A successful kick for the PAT is worth two points instead of one, and a run for extra score is worth only one point, instead of two in 11-man football.

Players must carry the ball 15 yards instead of 10 for a first down. Like 11-man football it take four downs. All players in six-man football are eligible to receive a pass, which makes the game exciting, Wright said. The quarterback can run across the line of scrimmage without pitching the ball.

Quarters last 12 minutes, half time is 15 minutes, and penalties are similar to 11-man football.

Six-man football games are high scoring, Wright said. Scores average 40 or 50 points, mostly because the game is so wide open.

"It's an exciting game for the fans," Wright said. "And the players are excited because there is no place to hide."

Because of the open formation of the team, player errors are obvious. "It takes a quick fast player as opposed to a big player, because there is no line to run into," Wright added.

"If the fans just watch the game, they'll get excited too."

The Knights of Columbus (KofC) is a Catholic, family-oriented men's fraternal organization. In 1994, the 1.5 million Knights worldwide gave more than $100 million to charitable and benevolent causes. KofC families also donated approximately 50 million hours of volunteer service to church, community and youth programs.

THOUGHTS

FROM THE EDITOR'S DESK

Gov. Mocks Elderly

By Ruth Hammond

Gov. Gary Johnson made a giant leap over the bounds of decency last Thursday when he wore a T-shirt that ridiculed the elderly and those with impaired mental abilities. Gov. Johnson was at Fort Stanton for the pre-proposal conference August 24 and the T-shirt he was wearing listed 10 reasons to rent Fort Stanton. One of those reasons was "Weird Aunt Tillie has to live somewhere." When asked about it Gov. Johnson said he thought it was humorous.

Well let me tell you something governor. There is nothing humorous about having a family member who has special needs. Many people are outraged that Gov. Johnson would think it is humorous to "poke fun" at the very people he kicked out of their home at Fort Stanton. And now he thinks it is humorous to publicly mock the very people who need our help the most. These people, through no fault of their own, are being treated like scum by the state governor and his staff.

There were several "Weird Aunt Tillies" living at Fort Stanton when Gov. Johnson decided all on his own to close the facility. There were 50 to 60 more "Weird Aunt Tillies" ready to move to Fort Stanton but were unable because the state put a freeze on admissions. And Gov. Johnson made no attempt to find out where Fort Stanton was or what services were provided at Fort Stanton. And Gov. Johnson has refused to listen to anyone who could tell him why Fort Stanton was needed and could give him a list of 100 SERIOUS reasons as to why Fort Stanton should NOT have been closed as a geriatric facility.

The idea that the governor of our state would think it is humorous to put a label on an elderly person who thinks or acts differently is terrible. The idea that the governor of our state would think it is humorous to mock the very people he tossed out of their home in the first place is unthinkable. The idea that the governor would publicly denounce these people who may think and act differently by mocking them is appalling.

Among the people who are outraged that our state governor has not only dumped our elderly out on the streets but now considers similar situations humorous are the former Fort Stanton employees who worked faithfully to try and make life better for those people who were living at Fort Stanton. Those employees took numerous hours of training to learn their skills and were ever watchful for ways to improve life for the elderly Fort Stanton residents. And now our elected governor has the gall to think it is humorous to call them "Weird Aunt Tillies."

Others who are outraged with the governor are the family members who now have no safe place for their relatives to live. When state secretary of health Alex Valdez and his staff held a meeting in the Lincoln County Courthouse in Carrizozo May 31 secretary Valdez said the emphasis is on community-based programs and services for the elderly. I was concerned and asked for more information. I have received no answers from secretary Valdez. And the family members continue to wait for answers.

Perhaps secretary Valdez agrees with Gov. Johnson and thinks it is humorous that the elderly now need someplace to live. Maybe Gov. Johnson would prefer that our elderly and brain damaged people were hidden away in closets and back rooms just as they were years ago. Or maybe Gov. Johnson would prefer our elderly and brain damaged be put on display in cages where even more people could agree it is humorous to be aware that the elderly have no place to live in safety.

Gov. Johnson has mocked the very people who need our help the most. I don't know about you but I am outraged that our governor thinks it is humorous to mock the elderly. I believe our governor should be caring, not callous to their concerns.

Elderly treated like scum by state.

Inside The Capitol

SANTA FE—Labor Day weekend traditionally means the beginning of a new political season.

In odd-numbered years, candidates begin declaring for public office in early September as they prepare for the Oct. 1 starting date for signing nominating petitions.

In even-numbered years, primary election winners started their general election campaigns going full steam. And every year, political officials, candidates and potential candidates show up in droves to march in parades and speak at rallies.

September usually marks the deadline for state agencies to submit their proposed budgets for the coming year to the governor. Interim legislative committees start wrapping up their hearings and deciding on what legislation they want to introduce the next January.

And most importantly, September signals the end of political writers' nightmares -- the nightmares about not having anything to say.

It's always worst the summer after New Mexico has elected a new slate of state officials, who won't start campaigning again for two years. The presidential race has been bubbling all summer in many states -- but New Mexico with its late primary is not one of them.

These nightmares sometimes create the desperation that causes political writers to ask questions such as what Gov. Gary Johnson would do if Pete Domenici got appointed to Bob Dole's cabinet.

But this summer has been easier on political writers than those in '87 and '91. And it's because the Land of Enchantment has become the Land of Enigmas.

As the first area in the nation permanently settled by Europeans, New Mexico has long had more than its share of intrigue, buried treasures and other mysteries. But this summer has added new enigmas.

There were the UFOs and Indian gaming compacts which seemed so obvious, but which the government suddenly declared non-existent. How could so many people have witnessed all the unusual activity around Roswell in 1947 only to have 12 agencies of the federal government say nothing happened?

And if the Indian gaming compacts we thought we saw the governor sign suddenly don't exist, how come the casinos are still open?

Then there was the Bill Richardson mystery of how he could be in the right place every time there were Americans needing to be freed.

And once Republican leaders decided the White House was grooming Richardson to run against Pete Domenici by giving him all the hero-making assignments, Harry Wu was freed by the Chinese government before our Bill had a chance to get to Beijing.

What happened? We're told our government knew China would free the recently-naturalized American for image-building reasons. Was Bill busy preparing for another diplomatic triumph we don't know about yet?

Normally by summertime we've had our chance to figure out new governors. But this time around, nobody knows who Gary Johnson is yet.

On Aug. 13, Inside the Capitol broke the news of impeachment talk by Republicans and Democrats directed at Gov. Gary Johnson. By a week later, everyone was talking about it.

Then the real mystery arose when it was revealed that an unidentified law firm had written a confidential opinion to an unidentified lawmaker opining that even if Gov. Johnson didn't commit any crimes by signing illegal gaming compacts and then not heeding the state court opinion that they don't exist, he still can be impeached for incompetence, ineptitude and indifference.

Who leaked the letter and can they really be serious?

Then there's the matter of the disappearing state money and what happened to all the surpluses that were projected when Gov. Johnson took office. They seem to have ventured into the twilight zone.

And of course we've had our continuing mysteries of the Taos Hum, cattle mutilations and whether there still is gold under Victorio Peak.

All in all, it has been an action-packed summer, full of mystery and an absolute delight for political writers.

Democrats Plan For '96 Election

Election 1996 will be one of the most important for the state's Democratic party.

All state legislative offices, representative and senate, will be up for election in 1996.

A primary concern for Democrats statewide, and in Lincoln County, is to elect enough Democrats to the legislature to gain a solid majority needed to over-ride the governor's vetoes. Election for governor is in 1998.

That discussion will be the focus of the annual Lincoln County Democratic Party September get-together from 1-5 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 16 at Pat Healey's home on Sudderth Drive in Ruidoso. Unlike the past years' barbecue, this year's event will be a "Fiesta" with various games, Mexican music and other fun events mixed with business. State senator Pete Campos and Corporation Commissioner Eric Serna are scheduled to speak.

Plans for the Fiesta were made and other business was conducted during the August meeting of the Lincoln County Democratic party at the home of James and Lynda Sanchez. Lincoln County Democratic party chair Cees Griffin reported on the State Central Committee meeting in Taos and a meeting of the New Mexico Legislative Campaign committees.

Griffin said the local party needs to focus on Democratic candidates for the legislative district and county offices. State representative district 56, which includes all of Lincoln County, Mescalero Apache Reservation and Tularosa, has a majority of registered Democrat voters.

County offices open for election in 1996 are county commission Districts 1 and 3, assessor, sheriff and probate judge.

Griffin listed the losers and winners of the Republican

Congress May Be Spending Money Without Authority

Ninety percent of the non-military spending authorized by Congress may be unconstitutional.

By F.R. DUPLANTIER

Stephen Moore of the Cato Institute finds it "instructive" that during the entire debate over the controversial 1995 Crime Bill not a single Republican rose up on the House of Senate floor and attacked the $10 billion in social spending on the grounds, not that it was wasteful, but that most, if not all, of it is simply not the proper responsibility of the federal government. Conservatives, "he insists," should have been asking the question: "Where is the authority under the Constitution for Congress to spend money on midnight basketball, modern dance classes, self-esteem training, and the construction of swimming pools?"

Writing in the Spring issue of Policy Review, Moore argues that "fiscal conservatives need to go beyond making the case that government wastes money -- which it surely does -- and start making the case that most federal spending today is illegitimate because it lies outside Congress's spending powers under the Constitution." Our elected representatives seem to have forgotten that the Constitution empowers the federal government to perform certain specific duties, and does not give Congress any authority to "pay money to farmers, run the healthcare industry, impose wage and price controls, give welfare to the poor and unemployed, provide job training, subsidize electricity and telephone service, lend money to businesses or foreign governments, or build parking garages, tennis courts, and swimming pools."

Moore recalls that, in earlier times, legislators understood and respected the principle of limited government. "Even expenditures for the most charitable of purposes were routinely spurned as illegitimate," he reports. Legislators back then were "not charitable scrooges. They simply felt honor-bound to uphold the Constitution."

Stephen Moore cites the passage of the 16th Amendment in 1913 as the first of many steps leading to "the reversal of this ethic of extremely judicious use of the government's power to spend and tax." Prior to that, "Congress's power to spend was held in check by its limited power to tax." From that point on, however, the sky was the limit. President Franklin Roosevelt took advantage of the Great Depression and the Second World War to

LETTERS to the editor

EDITOR: Thanks to you, Doug Whittaker, for your clean-up of the old Texaco station site. You have certainly improved my view from the Carrizozo Inn and for thousands of others as they travel Highways 54 and 380. Good job!

EDITOR: This is only for those who can read and understand and think. Let's start with a figurative introduction:

A Petri dish is a round, shallow glass or plastic dish with a lid which is just a bit wider so that it covers the dish. The latter is covered with a layer of semisolid gelatinous nutrient. When one puts one single bug (= bacterium) in the center of the nutrient surface the bug will start growing. Depending on the growth rate that will happen either faster or slower. The one bug will divide to make 2, the two will make 4, the 4 will make 8, the 8 16 etc. After only 10 generations one will have more than 1,000 of such bugs, after 20 generations already more than 100,000 of them. Usually after a day or so the aggregation of bugs have made a so called colony which can be seen with the unaided eye and can be used to identify the type of bug one has started out with. At the end of one week the surface of the dish is completely covered with bugs and their colonies. And another thing has happened: The center aggregations have decayed, only dead bugs are left because there are no nutrients any more. If one does nothing to prevent that the entire dish will show such decay. In a few weeks,

Now, let's translate that to human life. Of course the growth rate is much slower here than of bugs: Years instead of minutes. One can assume 30 years per two humans and there may be of course also more than 4 offspring - or less. But in principle it's the same. Since the Europeans "discovered" the Americas only about 13 generations have passed. In Central Europe one can assume some 100 generations. The territory of the United States can be compared with such a Petri dish in principle. And the people are the bugs. And they did not arrive in a number of one, but of many, and they were not planted in the middle but along the east coast of the territory and in our area, New Mexico, and in California, Oregon, etc. And furthermore at the beginning the territory did not belong to what is now the U.S. Therefore the growth was quite irregular and - in comparison with bugs - it was also not very peaceful. But in areas where the first aggregations have occurred there is now decay, e.g. in the center of our cities. What few realize, there has been such decay also right around us: Our ghost towns, recent archaeological relics (Coalinga). That is decay due to the ruthless exploitation of existing, non-renewable commodities. Fertile land was used up and left, timber was harvested and land was overgrazed until soil erosion made it useless, open mines destroyed the surface of the land and nobody cared.

If one compares this situation with what which went on in Europe, one will have to realize that after 1,000 - 1,500 years of initial low density population, rules and regulations

For the Love of Gregory

by Joann Rice

On-Going Learning

Editor's Note: This column relates a five-year-old's conversations with his grandmother.

On Sunday, Gregory came over in his usual foul mood. "Well, Queen Mother, the witching hour is almost here. I take it you know what I'm talkin' about."

"Well, no, I haven't the foggiest, Gregory. What ever do you mean?"

"You're just gonna make me say it, aren't you? That's just like you. Always forcing me to spill my guts." Well not today! Not today! This old trap is shut! "He clamped his lips tight."

"I wasn't the last bit curious, anyway Gregory. If you don't want to talk about it, then don't. Far be it from me to try to make you tell me. If you've made up your mind, it's certainly not I who will try to change it. I mean, if your lips are sealed, they are sealed. And...."

"Can it, Queen Mother! I'll talk! I'll talk! You win!"

"So why is the bewitching hour about upon us?"

"School starts tomorrow, of course. Not that you didn't know that well enough."

"Oh, yeah. The old school bell is about to ring. There's nothing more beautiful than little children scurrying towards the door of the little red school house at the sound of the bell. And all of them carrying a bright shiny apple for the teacher. And there she stands, smiling at the front of the room, ready to fill all those eager little minds with readin', writin', and 'rithmetics."

"Oh no, Queen Mother, you're wrong. I already learned all that last year. This year I'll get to learn something new. Hmm, maybe to be a farmer, or fix cars. Or better yet, a brain surgeon! I could handle that. How hard could it be. Just crack the old head open and poke around a little. Then sew it up, put a bandage on it, send 'em' home, and tell'em to take two aspirin and call me in the morning."

"Well then, Gregory, if you're going to be a brain surgeon after one year, what will you study next year?"

"Oh, probably a dinosaur expert. Then the next year I could be a pilot, then a professor, then...."

"I hate to rain on your parade."

were established very early to prevent total exploitation. There were very early strict rules about the rotation of the crops which one could plant, rules which even today would here be felt as an infringement of the freedom by the government. But it was necessary because one was just not able to move on to another area - there was none. In this lies the nucleus of the success of the European survival over what is still presently going on in America. Over there they have been forced to realize that it is impossible to completely exploit the resources of the country to the extent that it becomes impossible to live in it. Our American continent is at the treshhold of such a destruction - unless we curb our entirely free-wheeling-dealing attitude. Possession of land requires responsibility, the realization of restraint of what we can do with it. And this restraint becomes the more important the closer we live together: What your neighbor does may affect you adversely if he does not care for you. If he exploits his own ruthlessly, your own property will be subject to decay. This is apparently a hard lesson to learn and the political vandalism which we are presently exposed to is not the way to do it.

What is true for the State of New Mexico is also true for Lincoln County and not the least for Capitan. Twice folks who are thinking into the future have tried to make neighborly life acceptable. Twice they have been turned down by a noisy crowd. Are these the only people who live in Capitan? I wonder?

How about approaching the matter in a democratic way, at the secret ballot box where one is not confronted by a jeering mob - just by one's conscience. What will be the future of Capitan? What will we leave to those who come after us? A hodge-podge of more or less exploited, decayed properties, where one hates to live? Or in an area where one can pursue his interests, where the character of the land is maintained? Where one loves to live - in peace?

So, my question is: Do we want an ordinance which will in the long run prevent decay? Or not? If you are willing to think - then do so! Smashed glass is not the democratic way to force decisions. The ballot box is!

DR. BERNHARD E. F. REIMANN
CAPITAN, NM

EDITOR: When we look at the democracies of India, Pakistan, Bangladesh, etc., we are looking at our own future, unless we change. The above countries do not have the land to adequately support their populations.

Although I feel sorry for many of the foreigners, whom wish to migrate to the U.S., I feel that we must curtail the number of immigrants whom are allowed to enter our country. Our government has encouraged our citizens to reach zero population growth; however, we admit hundreds of thousands of legal immigrants into our nation annually. We must also reduce our number of illegal aliens. According to the 1990 census the U.S. population was 248,709,873. Today, we have an estimated population of approximately 261,000,000 people.

"We are a nation of immigrants". This statement is not true because today the vast majority, of our people were born in the U.S.A. Since ancient times every country on earth has been settled by immigrants. Some people peacefully migrated into areas while others invaded the inhabitants.

Many countries of the world rely on the U.S. for food. As the "radical" environmentalists', governmental policies and programs (to include subsidies), farm/ranch mismanagement, etc. continues to reduce our farm/ranch land, who is going to feed our increasing population in the distant future?

Note: 1. As history has proven, starving people will significantly destroy the wildlife and vegetation in their search for food.

2. Between 1983 and 1993 the U.S. lost approximately 45,000,000 acres of farm land.

CAPITAN NOTES

Greetings from my old house by the side of the road to your house.

Today is another one of those days that I find myself stuck between The Young and the Restless and the Old and the Senseless. Soooo—don't say I didn't warn you.

First and foremost by Sarah Ewoldt:

"The date of the September meeting of the Capitan FCE (Extension Club) has been moved up to Sept. 11 at 10 a.m. at Jo Blazer's new home west of Capitan on the Carrizozo Highway.

Please bring a salad for lunch. Bonnie Thetford and Anita Peters will serve as hostesses for this meeting.

We will finish all the dolls for the banquet tables at the state meeting to be in Carlsbad on Oct. 25, 26, and 27.

Nina Ross will teach the craft project for the day. We will decorate our large plastic baskets with fabric.

Please bring the following items: plastic basket, 2 1/2 or 3 yards of fabric for basket, fabric glue, needle and thread for basket, scissors, pins and large safety pin, conchos, flowers, etc. to decorate finished bag, rotary cutter and cutting board, if you have one.

And from the writer—hope you all have a wonderful day.

A welcome to dieters and wannabe dieters. If you are sick and tired of gobbling down fat free cottage cheese try this. Mix a spoonful of crushed pineapple in natural juice into the fat free cottage cheese. That is supposed to be sweet so it won't taste so weird. Or you might try low fat or fat free vanilla yogurt mixed half and half with the fat free cottage cheese. Can't guarantee how any of the above will taste, because I just ran across the above in some notes. Let me know how it works and I might get up enough gumption to give it a try. Heaven knows all of the last fall's clothes are having difficulty trying to meet, that is the button and the button hole, with me in the middle.

Have been going up to Senior Citizens for lunch with Emmeline and Dick Beck. Going anywhere with those two is a real trip, let me clue you: I enjoy Emmeline's off the cuff, off her ear and practically off all of her because she is so far ahead of every one with her gung-ho puns. Dick is the perfect foil. In case you haven't heard, he knows everything that has happened and if he doesn't know about it, it hasn't happened yet. But you ask him anything and he looks at you, smiles and doesn't have the faintest idea of what you are talking about. A very good facsimile would be the wise owl, seeing all and telling nothing. In case you do not know the following, let me acquaint you with the fact, just the facts. I bought this house by the side of the road from Dick and Emmeline Beck and they have become two of my very best friends. I thoroughly enjoy both of them and when anything goes awry around here I make a mad dash for either or both of them.

The sun rose too early this morning and stayed up too late last night and when I crawled out of bed this morning I couldn't remember for sure if I had just gone to bed or whether it was truly and honestly really time to get up. The first thing I do every morning is take my pulse so should there be a morning when there is no pulse, then it will be Sayanora or Adios forever and ever. And to my loyal readers, it has been a great trip knowing you. Thank you for your nice things you say to me and to my son Tom about my column. Flattery will get you everywhere.

So good having Elaine Beaudry back home where she belongs, but only for a quick stopover and thence to Arizona. But whatever or wherever you are and are doing, we all wish you the very 'bestest' of everything.

What a happy moment when I spied Louise Babers, between her fabulous trips in and out of the country, up at Senior Citizens last week. She is such a special lady and it is so refreshing to see and visit with her. This next trip heads for the far east, the far east here in the United States. Have a wonderful time, but don't you dare forget to come back to Lincoln County.

So sorry that Tony Cano has been under the weather, so to speak. Tony we all miss you and we certainly miss Mrs. Tony also. The other day, when we were without our most special little cook, we all offered to pitch in. I began with silverware and napkins. A few industrious persons had gotten the jump on me and scattered thither and yon were a few napkins rolled around the fork, the knife and the spoon. A further glance enlightened me a bit further, but not much. There were a few nicely laid out places, just a few however, then with a further stretch of the neck, spied some napkins sans any silver. I was in a quandary for a moment or two as to which pattern to follow. However, as I have been raised in one and only way to set a table, fork on the left and knife and spoon on the right, it was a bit confusing, albeit amusing and I just gave up and wrapped all up in the napkin, and put it square dab in front of the chair. The person sitting there could take it from there.

And speaking of assisting in the kitchen. Monday I asked our lovely and beautiful director if I could help and she said yes. I situated myself in the far corner where the glasses are, and the urn marked ice tea and holding fruit juice and the urn marked coffee gurgling with iced tea. Have you got that? Well believe I have a difficult enough time getting straight when each item and monstrosity is marked with it's rightful contents. Substitution is not in my repertoire, I was doing mental calculations so my first trip to help in the kitchen would not end up with any mishaps. Wishful thinking I might add. Before you read any further, I must tell you that I am the proverbial "klutz". When it doesn't look like there is a possible chance of a shaft, let me clue you: will find one. But before I begin my litany of faux pas the urn marked ice tea and holding fruit juice had a spigot at that you pulled down for openers and left in an upright position when there were no imbibers of fruit juice. Next the spigot on the urn marked coffee holding iced tea was on full blast when it was in an upright position and when it was off, the spigot was at half mast. (I hope I have built up a substantial amount of self pity for me before I embark on the "what happened bit." Well if you have never been to a Senior Citizens Center where they serve cafeteria style, you are in for a rude awakening. When it is time for the dining room to look like it is time to eat, the line forms to the right and when you look all you see is a 'not so long line,' but the line extends on from visible view around you corner in the pool room and how many more are to round the corner is not your guess, you just hope there is enough of this and that. Well the line began to move. I thought I had everything at my fingertips. I did. The only fly in the ointment is that my fingertips, with all their arthritis were poised to draw whatever was their pleasure. Well there is always a kiddier in the group and no one loves a kiddier more than I do, but in their place, not across the window from me that is trying to prove my agility between the urn marked one thing and holding fruit juice and the one marked coffee and holding iced tea. Well as the orders starting coming, naturally I got confused. (Confusion is a live-in-state of mind, and I should know how to handle it,) but before I knew it, the spigot that was supposed to be straight up when it was off, began spurting and flowing fruit juice down, out under and all points in between and not missing me very much as it meandered to the floor. Such a time was had by all, but am sure next time my assignment will be quite a ways from anything faintly resembling liquid. And so now

Jim Brown Attended Silver State Rodeo Finals This Summer

Carrizozo High School Senior Jim Brown had a wild rodeo summer. Soon after joining the New Mexico High School Rodeo Association in January, Brown was participating in association sanctioned rodeos. His accumulation of points from the high school rodeos qualified him for the New Mexico High School Rodeo Association finals rodeo in Carlsbad in June. There the high school bronc rider placed 5th, and a berth to the Silver State International Rodeo in Fallon, Nevada. Brown didn't place at the Silver State rodeo, neither did the other two from New Mexico. But they had plenty of fun and a great experience. Brown and his fellow New Mexicans pleased the crowd when they rode in on stick horses during the red, white and blue grand entrance. Brown's parents, Linda and Dewey Brown, accompanied their son to the international rodeo.

accelerate the process. "During this era," says Moore, "one after another, constitutional safeguards against excessive government were either wholly ignored or spectacularly misinterpreted by the Congress and the courts."

The "general-welfare" clause of the Constitution was used to dramatically expand the power of the federal government. "Since the 1930s," says Moore, "the courts have interpreted this phrase to mean that Congress may spend money for any purpose, whether an enumerated power of government or not, as long as legislators deem it to be in the general welfare of the United States." This deliberate misconception is "exactly the opposite of what the drafters of the Constitution intended." The federal government has the power to raise and spend taxes for the "general welfare," but not for the welfare of select groups -- which is what Congress has been doing for the last 50 years.

The losers are cutbacks on funding for programs for education standards, low income energy assistance ($1 billion), summer youth employment, HeadStart, National Endowment for the Arts, foreign aid, Amtrak, and others. Winners are Job Corps, housing for military families, development of a missile guidance system and others.

Capitan Notes . . .

how was your week?

Virginia Danielson has been sporting crutches, then not sporting crutches and we all wonder what gives or does not give. Poor Virginia is of the same and in the same quandary. One doctor says one thing, another says another. Hope they can get their act together Virginia. Anyway she always looks cute and perky whether her foot goes along for the trip or not.

That Bessie Jones should get lined up with a professional team. She is one cute little pool shark and if I was a pool player, which I certainly am not, (the only ball I ever get in is the eight ball at the beginning of the game, not at the finish.) But back to Bessie. She has won more ribbons and trophies and I think she should go for the big time.

Time and tide waits for none, not even a little old lady that is late getting this epistle finished. And so for another week, God Bless each one of you that read this trivia and even those who can't be bothered, but may the week be a "goodin'" and may all your troubles be little ones. God Bless.

Lady Grizzlies VB Team Schedules Begin Today

by Doris Cherry

Carrizozo's Lady Grizzlies Volleyball Team got its first dose of action playing several teams during a scrimmage in Capitan on Saturday.

The team played 20-minute matches with teams from Magdalena, twice with Alamogordo, Goddard, Capitan and Quemado.

"We did pretty good and showed team work," said Lady Grizzlies coach Kim Germillion. "We held our own."

Although no scores are kept during the scrimmage matches, Carrizozo beat Capitan.

The scrimmage gave the girls and their coach an idea of what will be needed in the upcoming season. "The schedule will be challenging," Germillion said. "We'll have to play every game."

The Lady Grizzlies begin their season today (Thursday) at an away match with New Mexico Military Institute (NMMI) in Roswell. Matches start at 5 p.m. with junior varsity.

Magdalena will bring its volleyball team to Carrizozo on Friday, Sept. 1. Junior high, junior varsity and varsity teams will play, beginning at 3:30 p.m. in the Carrizozo Schools new gym.

The Lady Grizzlies will be at home for the next four matches, against Lake Arthur (Sept. 7), Hondo (Sept. 9), come back to high school sports when he took the coaching job at Ruidoso. One reason to coach golf was his son, Paxton Wright, who was district medalist last year for Ruidoso.

Wright plans to have a boys and girls golf team for Carrizozo this year also. The town has given him permission for the team to practice at the golf course, and he has gotten permission from The Links in Ruidoso.

Another of his plans this year for Carrizozo is a sixth grade six man football team. Several interested boys came to him and asked that he help them organize the team. Wright said there is enough equipment for the team, but he made need some booster help in purchasing jerseys for the boys.

"I want the people of Carrizozo to know I'm excited about being here," Wright said. "This is not a pit stop for me, I want to be here a few years, to build the program."

To build the program

Wright said he needs support from the administration and school, athletes involved and community and fans. "With this support Carrizozo will be back in the state limelight it once was," Wright said.

The Grizzlies travel to El Paso this Saturday, for a game with Northeast Christian Academy. They will go out of town again on Friday, Sept. 8, for a game with Roy.

The first home game is set for Friday, Sept. 15.

Another change will be the fan entrance to Laabs Field at Carrizozo High School. All Carrizozo fans and visitors must go through the new gym, past the concession stand, to get to the bleachers.

Senior citizens will be allowed to park their cars at the northwest end of the new gym. However, they must park the cars there before the gate is locked, at least an hour before the game. Senior citizens can also call Carrizozo High School principal Randall Earwood at 648-2346 to make special parking arrangements.

Capitan Tigers Crush The Hatch Bears 37-0

Tiger high school football began with a roar Friday, when the Capitan boys set out to defend their 1994 state Class A/AA runner up title by defeating the Hatch Valley Bears 37-0.

The senior lineup dominated the game, with strong defense but offense was a bit slow to start. The Tigers didn't score until the second quarter, having lost their chance in the first quarter with a fumbled ball at the goal line.

Second quarter action made up for the slow first period. Early in the quarter senior quarterback Neil Montes recovered a Hatch fumble which led to the first score. Helped with a few yards covered by junior halfback Jayson McSwane, Montes carried the ball for about 20 yards to inside the five yard line for first and goal. Then Montes plowed in for the goal. No extra point was earned on senior Jerome Menodoza's stray kick.

In the last 50 seconds of the first half Tiger senior fullback Wayne LaBelle scored next with a 12 yard run. The two point conversion attempt was good and the score was 14-0.

After the half, the Tigers next scored on a long pass from Peralta to McSwane. Again the Tigers ran in for the extra two points. Score was 22-0 with more than half left of the third quarter.

An outstanding long touchdown pass from Peralta to senior tight end Ernie Trujillo was wasted when the Tigers were assessed a penalty for holding, and had to return to the starting line.

Next scoring came again from LaBelle. Senior guard Justin King scooped up a Hatch fumble to set that in motion. LaBelle drove the ball in two plays for the TD. Mendoza's kick was good and the score was 29-0 with the third quarter finished.

A loose Hatch ball recovered by junior back Jeremy Hoover on the Tiger kick led to the final touchdown of the game. Senior halfback Kali Bagby broke free of the pack and ran 56 yards for the score. The two point PAT was good and the score was 37-0.

In the final minutes of the game, Tiger Coach Ed Davis put in his younger players.

Freshman quarterback Nick Pacheco got some attention when he intercepted a Hatch pass.

The starting line came back in and ended the game. The score was 37-0.

The Tigers host Tatum at Tiger Field Friday, Sept. 1. Kick off at 7:30 p.m. Tatum coach Mel Holland was in the stands to watch the Tigers play Friday.

Homecoming is set for Friday, Sept. 15, when the Hagerman Bobcats come to Capitan.

Bryan Masse Is VB Coach For Capitan

by Doris Cherry

When Bryan Masse came to Capitan High School he knew he had a challenge ahead of him.

Taking over from former volleyball coach Pam Allen, who had led the varsity volleyball team for eight years with a trip to the state finals almost every year, was going to be tough. But Masse was more than ready. He had been assistant basketball coach at Lovington High School for the last four years, a school where girls sports were always put on the back burner.

"The change back into volleyball is a good change for me. Volleyball is my first love," Coach Masse told THE NEWS.

Masse is no newcomer to volleyball. He was head volleyball coach at Tatum High School from 1980-86, during which time his team was state Class A runner-up four times. From Tatum, Masse moved to Melrose. His first year there he coached the volleyball team to the Class A volleyball runner-up, which earned him the coach of the year title.

Also at Melrose, he was head boys and girls track coach, leading the boys on to the state's second place title.

From Melrose he went to Lovington, a Class AAA school with an extremely strong football heritage. There he was assistant varsity volleyball coach, junior varsity volleyball, and head coach of the girls basketball team which made it to the state finals.

Even though the Capitan High School volleyball coach position came open late in the summer, near to the time that teams begin practice, Masse jumped at the chance. "I decided the right place and the right time to go back to volleyball is Capitan," Masse said.

BRYAN MASSE
 New Capitan Head Volleyball Coach

Masse began his coaching career while doing his student teaching at Goddard High School, his alma mater, where he was asked to take over as head freshman boys track coach after the coach had quit. After his student teaching, Masse went on to earn a Masters degree in Physical Education at Eastern New Mexico University at Portales, with minors in English and health.

Masse first coaching position was at Class A Tatum High School, where he was head volleyball coach, assistant boys basketball coach and assistant boys track coach from 1980-86. It was then he first met Pam Allen who was coaching at Melrose. "Volleyball coaches share with each other," Masse said of the things he learned from Allen.

Now he must work with girls who've known only the coaching style of Pam Allen. So far things are going well. He has the team working out on weights to build strength, and doing different drills.

Masse got a good look at the team on the court Saturday, when the Lady Tigers and teams from Carrizozo, Quemado, Los Lunas, Socorro, Magdalena, Alamogordo and Goddard scrimmaged. While no scores are officially kept, the Capitan team defeated Alamogordo and Goddard, but lost to Carrizozo in a final match of the day.

"It was a good lesson to learn," Masse said of the scrimmage.

Volleyball season officially begins for the Lady Tigers on Friday, Sept. 1, when Capitan hosts Tatum for varsity and junior varsity matches that begin at 4 p.m. in Cummins Gym.
