County Declares Drought And Fire Emergency

by Doris Cherry

With fire danger at an extreme, and US Forest Service and New Mexico Forestry agencies issuing tough fire restrictions, Lincoln County Commissioners Tuesday declared an emergency and restricted all open fires in Lincoln County.

During their meeting Tuesday, commissioners unanimously approved the emergency resolution which they called to protect the health, imminent danger associated tors about the drought's effect area in terms of damage to safety, property and welfare of the citizenry. "The Board of Commissioners of Lincoln County hereby bans all burning of open flames, fires. campfires, trash, rubbish, shrubbery or other material of any kind until...the Commissioners...make a determination that the extreme fire danger presently existing decreases to a level considered safe for such burning."

within an enclosed vehicle or building.

The new restrictions were imposed because of the continuing extreme fire danger in the forest.

The use of Underwriter's Laboratories-approved stoves and lanterns is allowed in developed campgrounds where a Forest Service assigned host or attendant is present. Campgrounds with hosts that are located in the Lincoln National Forest include: South Fork near Bonito Lake in the Smokey Bear Ranger District; Deer Head, Silver, Saddle, Apache, Pines and Sleepygrass on the Sacramento Ranger District near Cloudcroft. Visitors are urged to contact the local ranger stations before making camping plans. 'We are experiencing the driest conditions in recent history on the Lincoln," said Jose Martinez, Lincoln National Forest Supervisor in a release. "We must take these precautionary measures to prevent catastrophic fire."

Martinez also said that if dry, hot, windy conditions any kind of device producing persist, all public access to the Lincoln National Forest may be closed. "We are making a Smoking is only allowed contingency plan for closing critical areas or making a total closure of the Forest if the fire danger continues to climb and we don't receive significant rainfall."

County Will Close Sales Barn July 1

by Doris Cherry

Lincoln County's white elephant, the Glencoe Super Select Sales Pavilion also known as the Glencoe Rural Events Center, will be shut down to minimal maintenance on July 1.

The barn and the sheriff's animal control officer position were two casualties Tuesday when Lincoln County Commissioners slashed funding in an effort to achieve a balanced budget for fiscal year 1996-97.

The fate of the Glencoe center is still uncertain. It has been offered to the village of Ruidoso as a facility for an interpretive center for the Billy the Kid Scenic Byways, and the county has received a proposal from the Museum of the Horse to take over management of the center. "It is not my first choice to sell the Glencoe Center," said commissioner Wilton Howell, "Rather I want to continue use, but be done in an economic manner. My last choice is sell, then send the money back to Santa Fe where it truly came from."

At its last meeting Ruidoso village council tabled the decision on the byways center until its first June meeting. The state byways committee will be meeting in Ruidoso on May 9.

Hoping to have some answers to proposals by June, commissioners approved a motion made by Stirling Spencer to take action on the Glencoe Center at the June meeting. County manager Frank Potter said $6,000 will be placed in the maintenance budget to open the building for the three booked events, including the Cowboy Sympo-

Commissioners didn't promise any salary increase for employees either, and they ordered that employees have one year to take their accrued compensation time. Commissioners also cut money to some of the special programs, and questioned the senior citizens program.

With the Glencoe center budget gone, and by cutting out most of the requested capital outlay for vehicles or equipment, the overall county budget presented by county manager Frank Potter and finance officer Punkin Schlarb come closer to the $1.2 million estimated cash reserves commissioners requested.

But as positions are dissolved, the county manager must deal with those employees whose positions are being cut. By county personnel ordinance, Potter said, the county must give the individuals in dissolved positions chances to fill full-time positions in another county department before the positions are advertised. As a result, the salary for the Glencoe center manager was left in the proposed budget, while all other funds for the Glencoe center department were cut to

The budget Potter presented projected a beginning cash balance of $3.7 million, projected total revenue of $7.36 million, projected total expenditures of $7.25 million, with an estimated ending cash balance of $3.8 million.

In the general fund the county's ending cash balance is projected at $1.09 million, starting at a low of $890,000 estimated beginning cash balance. Projected revenue for the general fund is $3.39 million, expenditures of $2.8 million and $372,789 in transfers, including $243,262 to detention, $47,426 to Zia Seniors, $127,100 for special programs and $5,000 to the Fort Stanton project. But special programs came under the knife during the hearing. Howell questioned why the county has to provide money for recreation in Carrizozo. "How can we justify not giving money to Corona?" he asked. "Because they come to Carrizozo to swim,' replied Spencer.

Potter said that he has learned that recreation programs for youth are important. He also said he had received a verbal request from Carrizozo mayor for county support of the golf course, which commissioners rejected.

Howell also questioned the contract funding to the Lincoln County Fair Association and the subsidy of the Extension position. He questioned how the county could cut funds to the Big Brothers/Big Sisters program, "and go out to private enterprise an supplement animal damage control (ADC)," Howell said.

As a result, commissioners cut the ADC to $3,250.

But review of the $14,287 for the Humane Society for kennel services got commissioners questioning why the Lincoln County Sheriff's Department needs a full time (SEE PAGE 8)

Carrizozo Golf Course Rates Were Discussed At A Special Meeting

No decision was made concerning rates for golfing at the Carrizozo Municipal Golf Course during a special meeting of the Carrizozo Town Council Monday. The golf rates will be discussed again by the board at a later meet-

During the special meeting new town trustee Wesley Lindsay was appointed as alternate to the Capitan Carrizozo Utility Board.

The Capitan Carrizozo Utility Board consists of three members from the Town of Carrizozo and three members from the Village of Capitan. The three Carrizozo members are Wayland Hill, town trustee Eileen Lovelace, and mayor Cecilia Kuhnel.

The town budget was also discussed during the special meeting. Another budget workshop is to be held Tuesday, May 14 at 9 a.m. at city hall. The regular town council meeting will be held that evening at 6 p.m.

Spencer said he wants to have a request for FEMA help in place, and asked for action at the special May 14 meeting. He also suggested the forest health seminar conducted by state forestry be held again this year to educate citizens about fire protection and forest health.

As temperatures rise in Lincoln County, and meager trickles of water in the area's rivers dry to nothing, citizen concern for water heightens. Commissioners postponed a decision on the request from Properties of the Southwest, developers of Ranches de Sonterra Subdivision along the Rio Bonito, to approve the plat for Unit 3 of the subdivision. The newest unit contains more than 100 lots. A total of 650 lots are planned for the four-phase development.

The county planning commission had considered the request for the development unit, but passed it on to commissioners with no recommendation, other than to request an independent water study of the area because concerns.

Jim Powell, from Properties of the Southwest, said the development has been extremely successful, with 208 the forest to all but forest of 245 platted lots already sold. Five houses have been constructed.

Powell said they have complied with all requirements for the development, including a water study signed off by the state engineer. The study was conducted by hydrologist Jack Atkins of Roswell who said the development disclosure statements tell of the conditions for finding ground water.

Commissioner Wilton Howell's main concern was the statements about water availability in the subdivision disclosure statement, which show water well production varying from less than one gallon a minute to more than 70 gallons per minute. But the real concern was how 650 potential new households with domestic wells, which by state law are allowed to use up to three acre feet of water a year, will affect the overall water table, and domestic, community and agricultural wells in the Lincoln area or further downstream on the Hondo River.

Ed Iguarte, chief of the subdivision review bureau in the State Engineer's office in Santa Fe, said that most households use only about .25 to .5 acre foot a year.

Iguarte said the state engineer's office does not see Ranches De Sonterra as "bad' because its parcels are large. It also has complied with 411 the state and county requirements. But generally Type 2 subdivisions are required to provide a water system, or the developer puts in the wells." Iguarte said. The county however does not make that requirement in its subdivisión regulations.

Currently, counties cannot restrict the number of wells being drilled in an area, only the state engineer can do that, Iguarte said in reference to a laweuit filed against Santa Fe county concerning a restriction those county commissioners -imposed on a mountain area. Iguarte said he believes in the future county commissions will get support from the state engineer through a joint effort to allow county-imposed restrictions. The state engineer wants to work closely with county commissions," he said.

Iguarte said the state engineer also is looking at revising how much water can be used out of a domestic well.

Lincoln resident James Sanchez, a supervisor for the Upper Hondo Soil and Water Conservation District. was concerned that new wells in Ranches will cause the water table to fall, requiring the expensive deepening of existing wells downstream. "In this drought streams are going dry, springs are barely seeping. It's a serious situation, Sanchez said.

Sanchez asked commissioners to hold off on approving the next phase of Ranches de Sonterra. "Or you'll be cutting off the lifeline for the rest of the county," he said.

Bob Boebinger another Upper Hondo supervisor said his group's concern was for agricultural water, and they have an obligation to look at the natural resources of the district. The district had reguested ra more thorough water plan for the rest of the Ranches de Sonterra development, as it impacts agricultural and rural uses.

Atkins said he expects the houses built at Ranches to use about .25 acre foot a year, because there will be no large lawns, and little outside use of water. He said the available water will be sufficient to supply the households in the development, with minimal impact to the water table, o users downstream.

"To hear you," Montes sai "It sounds like you have an inexhaustible supply of water Your science is inexact."

Commissioners accepted tile Ranches master plan in 1994, including Atkin's water study which showed sufficient water availability for the develor ment.

After more than an hour of sometimes emotional discussion about water and the development, Lincoln County Commissioner L. Ray Nunley said the commissioners were only to determine if Souterda (MORE ON PAGE 4)

All existing New Mexico Handicapped Parking placards that have been issued before July 1995 will become null and void on July 1. In 1995 the state legislature passed, and Governor Gary Johnson signed, a bill requiring the replacement of all handicapped parking placards. The bill was designed to eliminate abuse of the special parking.

To receive a new handicapped parking placard, persons with a disability must obtain an application form at their local Motor Vehicles Department. The form must be taken to a physician or physician's assistant who will' complete the medical statement and certification for the disabled person. Seven different disabilities are listed.

Another promise broken By Ruth Hammond

Our hearts go out to the familes, parents and guardians of the people with developmental disabilities (DD) now living at Los Lunas Hospital and Training School. Those familes are going though their own private Hell because last week they learned that the majority, if not all, of the Los Lunas DD clients would be moved into community settings. And all because a group of Do-gooders decided that community living was better than what was being provided at Los Lunas. The same thing happened to all the clients that had been living at Fort Stanton.

The Do-gooders can make it sound good and will tell you that 100 percent of the former Fort Stanton of their new homes. What the Do-gooders don't tell you is that content

The Do-gooders can make it sound good and will tell you that 100 percent of the former Fort Stanton clients are happy in their new homes. What the Do-gooders don't tell you is that several of the former Fort Stanton clients have died while living in their "safe" community homes and others have been injured. If the Do-gooders include the dead and injured in their statistics the Do-gooders include the dead and injured in their statistics the number would have to be much, much less than 100 percent. Years ago DD children were kept at home their entire lives. Many were locked away in back rooms, closets, and one child was put in a cage in a basement for 45 years. It was only when the general public decided there should be a better life for these people with developmental disabilities that institutions were set up to provide quality care. Fort Stanton was one of the best places a person with developmental disabilities could live. The staff received continuous training and provided excellent care.

staff received continuous training and provided excellent care.

It was a step forward for these DD clients to be able to walk around the campus at Fort Stanton and for the first time many of them were able to enjoy their lives. If clients were able to live in community settings, formerly called group homes, they were moved and given a chance. The majority of those clients weren't able to cope with community living and returned to Fort Stanton.

moved and given a chance. The majority of those clients weren't able to cope with community living and returned to Fort Stanton. When the Do-gooders decided that all DDs should be moved back into communities it started a chain of events that has caused more pain for family members than can be imagined. It is a case of one person telling another person how to live. It isn't right and shouldn't be allowed but a federal judge was convinced by the glib talk of attorneys from the Protection and Advocacy agency and now hundreds of DD clients live in less than pleasant surroundings. These DD clients have received less than adequate care from untrained workers while living in their new homes in the community. Medical care is difficult to get in contrast to the always available medical staff at Fort Stanton. Their once full slate of social activities and field trips has dwindled to a life of sitting at home watching TV. They no longer live near the friends they had at Fort Stanton. It is lonely, frustrating, and unhealthy for not only the clients but for their families as well. And the Do-gooders call this quality of life.

When Protection and Advocacy began the crusade to close Fort Stanton it was evident that I are the protection and advocacy began the crusade to close

When Protection and Advocacy began the crusade to close Fort Stanton it was evident that Los Lunas would be next. When we said this the only response we got was, "It won't happen at Los Lunas. We won't let it. The state promised to keep Los Lunas Hospital and Training School open." Those people really believed the state would keep its promise and keep Los Lunas open and continue to provide safe care for their loved ones.

The state promised to keep Fort Stanton open as a geriatric facility. That promise was broken. The state promised to keep Los Lunas open. Now that promise is being broken. The next step for the state could be to close smaller facilities such as New Housens Developmental Center here in Carrizozo.

The families of Los Lunas clients have no idea the amount of time it will take trying to make certain their loved ones are safe. Our hearts go out to them, not only now but in the future when the problems will really begin for their loved ones.

EDITOR: "FROM A WILDFIRE PROTECTION, THIS AREA (RUIDOSO) IS AN ACCIDENT WAITING TO HAPPEN. NATIONALLY IT HAS BEEN RATED AS THE SECOND MOST VULNERABLE AREA TO WILDFIRE IN TERMS OF PROPERTY VALUES AT RISK."

Want to know more? Read the March, 1996 issue of "Forest Health - A Burning Issue." A copy is in the library or may be obtained from the NM Forestry Office in Capitan. The article on Ruidoso is of critical importance. If you really want to understand the problem, drive toward Cloudcroft from Mescalero. See for yourself forest fire devastation.

On May 1, Village officials considered long overdue revisions to a regressive Forest Protection Ordinance. This "save trees" policy helped create the fire danger we now face. There was apparent confusion as to the task at hand, whether to continue a tree protection policy, or address the real problem of forest overstocking. Instead of addressing the real issues, officials argued as to how much the Village should charge for granting permits to cut trees, the size of trees which may be cut, and limiting homeowners rights to create fire defense zones around their homes.

As Van Patton (P&Z member) described the ravages of the Mescalero fire to the group, the speed with which the fire spread and the short amount of time it took to consume thousands of acres, I observed a Council Member shrugging his shoulders as if "so what... this can't happen here." Another Councilman suggested that we can't have a major fire here because "we have roads." Perhaps a field trip to the Mescalero fire site is needed to dispel these misconceptions on the part of our local leaders. This is not the time for misinformed guesswork and we certainly don't need uninformed local legislators passing another deficient ordinance. Expert advise is needed.

Representatives from the U.S. Forest Service and the NM Forest Division were not present for this meeting. WHY? Perhaps their presence could have shed some light on such questions as to why local fuel loading threatens the entire Village. Perhaps they could have explained the effect of high winds and a plume dominated fire moving through town. Perhaps these experts would have explained to Village officials that to insure the "health, safety and welfare of the Residents of the Village", the Village needs to encourage and help its people to reduce existing fire dangers.

Most distressing is the failure of the Village to make any recommendations to residents as to what the Village will do to help. THE VILLAGE MUST TAKE A PRO—ACTIVE STAND REGARDING THE REDUCTION OF WILDLAND FUELS. Pine needles must be raked, flash fuels (like dry uncut grass) removed, ladder fuels removed and trees thinned to safe spacing. The task is enormous, will be expensive and cannot be left to individual property owners alone.

Inside The Capitol By Jay Miller

SANTA FE—Q: When is a loophole not a loophole?
A: When no one has tried to go through it.

The wholesale gasoline tax provision for Indian tribes that led Gov. Gary Johnson to call one special session and maybe another, was on the books for 40 years before Nambe Pueblo decided to use it, thereby creating a loophole.

And how do you get rid of a loophole? You call a special session to close it. And since the Legislature did not close the loophole, it no longer is a loophole, according to John Chavez, secretary of the Taxation and Revenue Department.

Chavez recently appeared before the Legislative Finance Committee to explain the provision he called a loophole during the special session. But Chavez became combative as soon as lawmakers started referring to the loophole.

According to Chavez, loopholes are unintended consequences. But as soon as the Legislature declined to pass his recommended changes to close the gasoline tax loophole, it no longer was a loophole because lawmakers demonstrated that they intended for tribes to enjoy a 17-cent advantage in gasoline wholesaling.

LFC vice chairman Max Coll suggested the possibility that the tax provision never was a loophole. He thinks courts might frown on business transactions funneled through tribal lands to avoid taxes and contends Chavez's department should take that position rather than advocating for the refineries.

"I think the tax collector should take a hard-line position and make the refineries prove they don't owe any tax," Coll said. Chavez bristled and replied that he takes it personally for Coll to charge he isn't doing his job adequately. Coll answered that the tax collector's job is to collect taxes and not to find ways around them.

On a related matter, Coll asked Chavez what his department is doing to prevent "daisy chain" transactions by non-Indian companies — another way of avoiding taxes. Chavez replied that his monitors are constantly on the lookout for companies that spring up and go out of business as soon as his department hits them for taxes. As soon as one goes out of business, another appears in order to produce a complex chain of transactions that are hard to trace in assessing tax liability.

So it's not just Indians finding loopholes in our tax laws. It's a game everyone plays and apparently daisy chaining is a game that has gone on for years. Coll suggests that refineries always be charged taxes on their first transaction and then prove if they have made a legitimate non-tax transaction.

Gov. Johnson has announced he will call an Indian summit to ask them not to take advantage of the loophole. Indian leaders are watching to see if Johnson also calls a gas summit to ask the oil industry not to engage in daisy chain transactions.

How appropriate that the fossilized impression of a duckbilled dinosaur skin has been discovered near Deming, site of the Great American Duck Race that turned sweet sixteen last August. The 70 million-year-old fossil is one of only a few such discoveries worldwide. Scientists have yet to dig deeper to find whether the 10-foot-long, 2-foot-wide impression of dinosaur tail is connected to more of the fossil.

Wouldn't you bet that duck race officials already are putting their heads together to come up with a duckbilled dinosaur event?

As predicted here, Rep. Ben Lujan's memorial asking Gov. Gary Johnson and Secretary of State Stephanie Gonzales to issue proclamations declaring "Red or Green?" as the official state question was acted upon by follow Democrat Gonzales but not by our Republican governor, who previously vetoed the measure out of fear the public would think Santa Fe politicians aren't sufficiently serious.

Gonzales' action should be official enough to get the question into the Blue Book published every two years by the office of the secretary of state.

EDITOR: It is often said or written that the First Amendment of the Constitution calls for "separation of church and state." What that means is that Congress cannot pass a law establishing an official or national religion.

But, there is more; "or prohibiting the free exercise thereof." It seems simple enough; "Congress shall pass no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof." When students are denied the right to pray or to hold prayer meetings in school or on the school grounds are those students being denied an inalienable right? "they are endowed by their creator with certain inalienable rights . . ." so says the Declaration of Independence.

Inalienable rights cannot be taken away because they were given us by our creator. Man does not have the right to take away what our creator has given us.

Most of us are aware that socialists and humanists. agnostics and atheists have pretty much driven God from the school grounds. I'm not as concerned about what the socialists and the atheists are doing as I am what God is going to do.

CAPIAN NOTES

CAPITAN CLERK DEBORAH CUMMINS was nominated as New Mexico Municipal League Clerk of the Year. She was one of 10 nominations received for the honor, which went to Margarent Gonzales of Tularosa. Cummins began working for the Village of Capitan in 1986 as a utility billing clerk. She soon moved up to deputy clerk, and served as such until 1992 when she was appointed village clerk. Cummins was certified in 1994. Since becoming clerk. Cummins has helped complete three applications for Community Development Block Grants, all of which were awarded. "I was very honored to be nominated by the mayor," Cummins said. "I am real proud of the way the town has progressed with the grants we have received and the things we have been able to do for the public." She won't take credit for the grants. "It takes all the staff, trustees and mayor helping. It's a joint effort to get grants, all I do is put them together."

Greetings from my old I am keeping them to be house by the side of the road to your house.

Before I forget, I promised our Sarah Ewoldt that I would give her announcement Top Billing this week, so here it is folks.

The Extension Club will have a fundraiser Saturday, May 11 at 8:30 a.m. in front of Cummins Grocery.

Hard to believe it is almost Memorial Day. For the majority of folks it probably is a day to visit relatives, picnic, go to Elephant Butte or just relax and enjoy the time off from various jobs and activitime of heartbreak remembering the ones we once had and are no more.

I hope as many of you that Around with Traylor: are able bodied will certainly take the time from your busy schedule to pay tribute to the ones that have served their country so honorably and are in their final resting place. The special resting place that am referring to is the New Mexico Merchant Marine and Military Memorial Cemetery in Fort Stanton. It will also be an opportunity for some of you that wonder why so much ink has been spent reminding folks of what Fort Stanton stands for, or certainly should stand for, to most folks of New Mexico.

Fort Stanton is the final resting place for 1,612 American Merchant Marine veterans from 20 states. They are joined by sailors from 18 foreign nations, including a group of Germans held here during World War II. I took the liberty of copying what was written in The Enchantment under a photo that was submitted by courtesy of Victor Schaerer.

Mr. Schaerer is a fine gentleman that I have had the pleasure of meeting and I say "thank you" for the privilege of submitting this.

When I first came to Lincoln County I went garaging with a friend and found a box of books for sale. Being a book. lover, I bought the box. What ind! Numerous volumes from the above mentioned detainment house of above group of Germans.

I have given a few to dear Friends, but for the most part steers, plus out of remude, handed down to family to enjoy when they study about World War II.

So folks, please take the time to pay tribute to the young men that gave their life that you might enjoy yours. Attend the ceremonies which are part of Veteran's Appreci-. ation Week, which begins on May 22nd, National Maritime Day, and ends on May 29th, Veterans Day. Please attend and say "thank you" to these young men that gave their all

Jack Forrester's 1927 Unristmas Dinner...this story was told to the author. Herties. For some of us it is a bert Lee Traylor by Jack Forrester: Part 2, the final chapter of Herbert Lee Traylor's writings in his book Trailing

> When I was informed of the date we were to ship out of Roswell, they maintained that Boots and me were to gather steers until the 20th. On the morning of the 21st a crew from the main branch was to be there to help us trail them into Roswell to railroad stock pens. We would load out the morning of the 23rd and I might have to accompany them to the cars to Kansas City. At that time the country was still under Public Domain. Our cows ranged north and east to the Corn's sheep area, west to Black Water Spring where Bill Evans had a homestead, southwest to Ed Nelson's on Dead Man Canyon and due south across the Hondo to the Penasco. There were several ranches south.

> Our cattle hardly ever strayed south. There was a horse pasture at the ranch. We were to throw all steers in there as we caught them. Those steers were mostly two and three year olds the company had bought. A few were some that had been missed in our regular working procedures. We had worked for about 20 days and had gathered most of them; cutting them from the range cattle, using the horse pasture as a holding area.

The hight of the 20th, a fellow from the main head-quarters came out and in-formed us there had been a mixup regarding the shipping date. We weren't to ship until January 7. With all those feed was getting short in the pasture. We had hay for the horses we used, but not enough for several carloads of steers. The only thing to do was to let the steers out of the holding area and ride herd on them during the day on the open range and throw them back in the enclosure at night.

We made it with little trouble the first two days. The night of the 22nd it began to snow. The morning of the 23rd there was about eight inches on the ground and it was still snowing and the wind was up. I finally reasoned they weren't going to graze in that storm. They were already bunching and trying to find shelter in lower areas and canyons. Too, we could ride the south side of the pasture to keep them from bolting en masse. We kept a constant vigil over the south side until late that evening when they began to form larger bunches to bed down. The wind had laid and it had quit snowing.

Daylight the morning of the 24th arrived and we pushed the steers out on the open range. I knew they were going to start drifting, but as hungry as they were I figured they would make for the yucca plants and the buck bush first and later start moving.

We started riding, one going around the west bunch angling north, the other east and north, pushing them more to the center. It took a couple of hours to make the circuit. Many had begin to return to the enclosure and the water in the surface tanks.

The morning of the 25th it was the same procedure. The wind was blowing and it was cold. The steers were restless and were bunching in arroyos for protection. We would ride until we found a dead yucca, set it on fire and absorb a little of it's heat before going on our round.

We had met and discussed the situation several times. On the last time we met we were trying to warm by a large dead yucca we'd set on fire. I said to Boots, "We'll have to finish those frijoles and have fried potatoes and syrup for our Christmas dinner tonight." Boots said, "Yeah, I could take that on right now."

We went on, made another circle and about 1:30 p.m. I saw a lone rider headed our. way on one of the higher ridges south of where we were circling. By the time we had met again the rider was within a half mile of where we were and had set another yucca on fire. When we rode up he wanted to know if we had lost any steers and how we fared during the storm.

Then he said, "Sam didn't have too much for a Christmas dinner, but he threw a few things together."

When we looked in the sack we found crackers, cheese, sowbelly with a few lean steaks, a large white onion, a couple cans of sardines and several bars of candy. When Boots saw the food he remarked, "We don't have to warm those frijoles up for our Christmas dinner."

I asked Jack how they cooked sowbelly. His reply (SEE PAGE 7)

32 Class AA schools participated in the state meet at UNM Stadium.

"I'm super proud of how the boys competed," said coach Ed Davis. "They ran their hearts out. I don't see how their hearts fit in their chests."

During the meg, the boys came within points of tying with leading school Lordsburg. But Lordsburg cinched the title when its medley relay team came in first. Capitan had no medley team and lost out on points because of it.

Regardless, Davis praised the boys for their character determination at the meet. "There are no monetary rewards in coaching," Davis continued. "But there's fulfillment and joy when you watch such a dedicated group of boys."

Josh Peralta won the pole vault event with a vault of 12 ft. 6.2 in. He placed second in the javelin with a throw of 169 ft. 6.3 in. Peralta placed fifth in the 110 meter hurdles with a time of 16.25 seconds.

Jayson McSwane came in second in the 300 meter hurdles with a time of 41.41 seconds. McSwane also ran in the 400 meter relay team which placed sixth with a time of 46.48 seconds and in the 800 meter relay team which placed second with a time of 1:33.49.

Capitan Students Get Taste Of Archaeology

Recently parents of Capitan elementary students were found sitting at desks, getting lectured by their children about how to study a pot shard, how to map an artifact, and how to do "rock" paint-

What was going on? A lot of in, said one former elemeny student, now in high school. "I wish I was in elementary" the freshman said.

But what was really going n was Archaeology Night. when students got a chance to low their parents what they d learned about how scienits study the people who lled Lincoln County and w Mexico home more than 🗫0 years ago.

The archaeology program hich lasted two weeks in the regular classroom was funded by a grant received by former Gapitan elementary principal Jerry Newsom, Newsom had spplied for the grant from the state Systemic Initiative for Math and Science Education which is funded by the National Science Foundation and the New Mexico State Legisla-

With lots of hands-on projects students learned how to map, measure pottery shards. and paint. They also learned how native people painted pottery by making a yucca brush, which the students themselves were able to make, and use. Students explored the different designs on pottery and rock drawings and were able to do their own "petroglyphs" by painting brown paper with bleach.

As part of the archaeology program, students had a field day at the Three Rivers Petroglyphs south of Carrizozo. Another field trip to Bandolier Ruins National Monument near Los Alamos unfortunately was canceled because of the forest fire there. Instead the students will visit the New Mexico Natural History Museum in Track team members, and participants at the state meet received bars, certificates and letters at the spring sports banquet Tuesday night.

Capitan girls finished in a tie with Hatch for 17th place, out of 32 school teams.

The 800M relay team of Michelle Wilson, Monica Gonzales. Debbie Johnson and Mary Johnson finished fourth with a time of 1:53.64. The 400M relay team of Mary Johnson, Gonzales, Trisha Seidel and Chris Worrell finished 5th with a time of 54.09 seconds.

Joni Autrey finished 5th in the 800M run with a time of 2:35.27.

Mary Johnson also finished 6th in the 400M run with a time of 63.86 seconds.

Scoring no points, Worrell finished 7th and Fish finished 8th in the 100M dash.

Girls coach Bryan Masse said the finish was a disappointment for the girls, but he praised them for running hard and having tried. He attributed many of the mistakes that cost points to a lack of experience, nerves and the heat.

ACT Scholar Certificates Are Awarded To Four Capitan High Students

Four Capitan High School students were awarded 1995-96 ACT Scholar Certificates. The students were Nathan W. Longbotham, Neil G. Montes, Sherry A. Palko, and Jaylen A. Ware.

The New Mexico State Department of Education, in cooperation with the ACT Corporation, awards the ACT Scholar certificates to seniors in New Mexico public and private high schools who exhibited high achievement in academic skills, as evidenced by an ACT composite score of 27 or higher and a high school grade point average of 3.5 or better. The testing was completed between October 1994 and October 1995.

The ACT is a standardized achievement test taken primarily by high school students who intend to enroll in a college or university. Approximately five percent of all graduating seniors from New Mexico high schools received an ACT Scholar certificate.

animal control officer (ACO) position.

Sheriff James McSwane said the ACO is a valid position, but the person employed for ACO is also being used as a deputy. The individual has been certified as a deputy, but because no deputy position is open, the sheriff had retained him under the ACO budget.

Commissioners also questioned two subsidized programs, seniors and detention. They asked how they could decrease the amount of money needed to feed prisoners. Potter suggested using the Carrizozo senior citizens center kitchen to prepare meals for prisoners in the detention center, as a way to consolidate food costs, and to avoid having to expand and improve the jail kitchen. That would help the detention center budget, and the senior program, whose future may not be rosy, with federal and state funding uncertain. "We'll know at mid-year," Potter said. "Zia is ready to face the music."

Howell said small savings could be seen, and he criticized the senior program for sending newsletters, at 32 cents each, to him.

In looking at grant funded positions, commissioners questioned the DARE and the Drug Task Force positions. Commissioners agreed to work with the new sheriff to determine if the programs will continue next year.

Howell questioned the high amounts for long distance calls, and asked that the long distance use be tightened up.

Even the road department got scrutinized, when the subject of the chip seal equipment was discussed again. Potter encouraged commissioners to keep the equipment and put it to use maintaining the 60 miles of pavement in the county. Spencer, who had firmly voted against the chip seal equipment, said if the county manager can show him how the equipment will provide long-term saving, he'll vote for the equipment.

Potter also proposed longrange plans to replace equipment and vehicles, and do needed improvements to the

A total closure would mean that all activities in the forest would cease and only residents who live in or near the Forest and authorized personnel would be allowed access into the Forest Mertinez said he remembered a two-day closure in the 1980s because of fire danger, and there was a 30-day closure in 1974 when fire conditions were similar to this year.

Law enforcement officers have issued 12 citations for violations of the restrictions ince April 12.

county facilities.

For employees, Potter's proposed budget included the increase for chief deputies to 87 percent of the elected officials' salaries, for six months. This was done because the undersheriff now makes more than 87 percent. However, after January, there will be a new undersheriff.

Salary increases for employees was not included in the proposed budget. Potter said that developing a classification chart for all employees. which will be based on job audits will take longer than the time he has had. He said cation program, and the county could take steps to modify its personnel ordinance after the budget was done, and adjust salaries at mid-year.

But Montes said the commissioners had made a commitment the classification program would be done by budget time. "We need a fixed date."

The suggested changes will be added to the next version of the proposed budget which will get its final hearing on May 20, at the Ruidoso Convention Center.

Dry windy conditions continue in Lincoln County, and the U.S. Forest Service has issued restrictions against any open flame within the national forested areas.

Individuals who violate the restrictions can be cited.

Underwriters approved gas stoves and lanterns will be allowed if used within a hosted campground.

With continued dry weather, cattle pastures are in poor to very poor condition. As a result some livestock is straying on to private properties, and eating yards. According to New Mexico law, livestock must be fenced out, and owners of livestock are not required to fence the animals in.
