State Wants 10 Use Fort As Inmate Conservation Camp

by Doris Cherry

N ew Mexico Energy, Minerals and Natural Resources Department and the state Department of Corrections have come up with an idea to utilize the Fort Stanton facility as a place to help re-integrate minimum security prisoners into society while improving the natural resources of the area.

Tuesday, during a special Lincoln County Commission meeting at Fort Stanton, Toby Martinez director of Energy, Minerals and Natural Resources Dept. (EMNRD) and Manuel Romero, director of adult corrections program presented an "exciting" proposal for an Inmate Conservation Corps (ICC) program at Fort Stanton. The program, endorsed by the governor's office, could begin development as early as July 1997 if approved by the 1997 state legislature.

up to 200 non-violent minimum security prisoners in their last five years of incarceration in the state corrections who would be screened and if eligible, be placed at Fort Stanton. Under direction and training from the state forestry division of EMNRD, crews of 12 inmates would go into the field to do conservation work such as trail building, forest conservation, fencing, etc. on public lands and

The program would involve facilities. Projects would be designated and prioritized with input from area local, state and federal officials and agencies.

> We have a strong resource conservation need that is currently not being met by the private sector," Martinez said.

> The program could provide up to 15 state forestry jobs and 15 corrections. Martinez said his department will add Fort Stanton to the ICC package which is being sent to the community is receptive to the proposal.

The program will be modeled after a similar one in Nevada, which current state Secretary of Corrections Karl Sannicks helped revitalize.

Most of the comments made from individual commissioners, elected officials, and citizens who attended the meeting were receptive to the idea. However some called for more public hearings to be held

White Oaks Asks For Historical Designation

by Doris Cherry

During the public hearing Lincoln County Commissioners held May 7 on the proposed modifications to the Lincoln Historic Preservation Ordinance, residents of historic White Oaks asked for the designation for their community.

Twyla Wetzel, White Oaks resident, said that in 1972, then commissioners approved an ordinance which established historical districts in Lincoln, White Oaks and the rest of the county. But when the Lincoln historic Ordinance was updated in 1982, White Oaks was not included as a historic district.

Wetzel and other White residents LaRue Griswold and Ruth Birdsong all said that historical buildings, and foundations are being removed from the townsite. "We need protection," Griswold said. "We're seeing landmarks disappear," said Birdsong.

Commission chairman Monroy Montes said that White Oaks will have to be treated as a historic entity. separate from Lincoln. After the discussion of the Lincoln Ordinance changes, Montes asked county manager Frank Potter to get with the White Oaks people, to begin the process for a historic district.

Commissioner Stirling Spencer said the best type of district and historic review board will come from the people of the area. He suggested they get all landowners to sign petitions asking for the designation.

Part Of Lincoln National Forest Is To Be Closed

by Doris Cherry

Lincoln National Forest will be partially closed on Monday, May 20.

With fire danger in the forests of Lincoln County exceeding the danger experienced in 1974 when the forest was closed for 30 days, and nearing the dangers in the 1950s, when the Smokey Bear fire occurred, forest officials have declared a partial closure which will prohibit human presence in the pine areas of the Lincoln National Forest.

"No campgrounds will be open," said Dave Cummings fire management officer with the Smokey Bear Ranger District to the Ruidoso Village Council during its meeting Tuesday. "We will not open South Fork Campground at Bonito Lake. The fitness trail (at the ranger station) and Cedar Creek picnic area will be closed, as well as the trails around Grindstone."

All trails in the White Mountain and the Capitan Mountain Wilderness areas will be closed. No campground or picnic areas on the Smokey Bear Ranger District will be open, including Eagle Creek, Skyline, Oak Grove, Mon Jeau on the east side of Sierra Blanca and Three Rivers Campground on the west side of the mountain. According to a forest service spokesperson in the District office that also includes Baca Campsite in the Capitan Mountains.

Forest lands around Ruidoso and the Carrizo Mountains will also be closed. Cummings said that basically all areas where Ponderosa pines grow will be closed Monday.

"We will be doing heavy patrols on back roads," Cummings said. "And violators will be cited."

The forest service will set up a station on Bonito Lake Road to provide information to people traveling to that area about the closures.

Federal and state highways to villages and towns within the Smokey Bear Ranger District will remain open. However, vehicles and people must remain on paved surfac-

Capitan Fire Chief Says No Outside Burning Is Allowed

by Doris Cherry

The drought is continuing, mous symbol for forest fire prevention.

Capitan Volunteer Fire Department Chief David Cummins is asking all residents to be careful. "For outside fires residents must have my permission," said the chief during the village trustees meeting Monday. "And I say no outside burning."

The construction contract for 3rd Street will be awarded during a special meeting May 20. Village Clerk Deborah Cummins said the construction contract for 2nd Street might be ready to award by the end of May. The repaving projects have been funded by Community Devel-

(CDBGs) and state highway grants.

To obtain CDBGs and state funding the village had to list the repaving projects on an provements Plan (ICIP). Now that the paving is almost done trustees agreed with Mayor Norm Renfro that water should be listed as their top priority need on the ICIP.

More specifically under water, trustees listed additional storage and sources as top needs followed by water opment Block Grants system improvements, water line replacement and extensions, and a 40-year water plan. Trustees will finalize the ICIP in July or August. Until then, Capitan residents can make suggestions for other needs to be added to the ICIP.

the longevity of the proposed program and how it will affect the county's attempt at finding a private tenant for the fecility.

Romero said Fort Stanton would become an inventory of the corrections system. "There's a real need in the state of New Mexico for conservation," Romero said. "Also we have to place inmates aomewhere."

EMNRD program assistant Gary Blackwell said most of Commissioners Stirling Spencer and L. Ray Nunley supported the proposal. Spencer said he, "Applauds the efforts of public funds put to a positive movement to cover a number of issues."

Nunley said he had visited with district forester Barbara

Experienced

Luna and Martinez, and the governor and Sannicks about such a program early this year. "The governor was receptive," Nunley said.

And Nunley said he felt "good" about the program being funded in 1997, and said he would like the state to pursue the program as an effective way to maintain the health of the forest.

In response to a question from Nunley whether Fort Stanton would be opened to the public for viewing if the ICC began, Martinez said he would be receptive to the idea. But that prompted Montes to comment, "And (tourists) will come to see the historical aspects, or come see convicts?"

When asked about specifics of funding, neither department head could give any details. Instead Blackwell said the project would provide a focused labor pool with abilities to do a lot more than maintenance. The only way to tackle the severe forest health problems is with a labor intensive pool."

But Montes would not commit endorsement because he thought that private enterprise utilizing Fort Stanton would be a more permanent solution, and because the county currently is looking for a tenant for the Fort. Montes asked why Fort Stanton would fit the requirement for the program.

Romero said a reason is the forest, and the need. Blackwell said such a program needs a location with high opportunity for conservation type projects within a short distance.

Howell reminded state officials of last year's situation when corrections wanted to use Fort Stanton for a "temporary" facility for non-violent inmates, which the commissioners did not support. He also did not buy the state's proposal, because it appeared there was no real plan. "Is this a plan, or is it the flavor of the day," Howell asked.

Citizen Jane Worrell a new resident, asked what kind of guarantees the state will have to limit the inmates to nonviolent individuals. "Any inwith five years or would be a serious threat," she said.

Romero said the inmates by state law would include no sex offenders, child abusers, first or second degree murders. "But I can't stand here and make any guarantees, just that we will have screening," Romero said.

Citizen retirerd merchant marine Captain Victor Schaerer suggested the state use Camp Sierra Blanca (CSB) as a screening facility for inmates for the ICC at Fort Stanton. Then those who qualify in the screening would be allowed to go into the ICC.

Soil Conservation district conservationist Greg Hausler asked if inmates would be working on private land, in addition to public. But Blackwell said the state constitution's anti-donation clause would prevent free work, but it may be possible for contractual agreements between a private entity and the ICC for such work.

Citizen Russell Griswold was concerned about the type of prisoners and suggested the state go back to the Civilian Conservation Corps to do conservation work.

Citizen Howard Shanks said he supported the concept and advised of a well on the Fort which needs to be used, or the water rights could be Capitan Municipal Judge Jack Johnson supported the program. While there is concern for the two to three incidents from Camp Sierra Blanca prisoners, Johnson said, "it's nothing compared to the violence among the county's citizens." Lincoln residents Glenn Dennis and Bob Boebinger were concerned if any changes would be made to the historical buildings and landscaping at Fort Stanton. But Blackwell said he did not envision any changes in the facility, other than traffic patterns. State Representative Dub Williams said the current corrections problems are due to the Duran Decree, and the reason why Fort Stanton was closed was the Jackson Decree which is now affecting Los Lunas, the other state hospital for the mentally handicapped. Williams again suggested a public open house to be held at Fort Stanton. Worrell suggested that function be held in conjunction with a public hearing about the ICC program.

Citizen Grover Dobbins from Capitan said he and a group of volunteers who work with inmates on GED and literacy programs are interested in seeing prison activities continue in the area. BLM assistant area director Ed Roberson said his district would utilize inmate crews for land use projects. Jose Marti-: nez, Lincoln National Forest Supervisor, said his agency could utilize such inmate crews also. Luna said that ne office has utilized the inmates at CSB who have assumed the Fort Stanton Fire Department since the Fort's closure. 'We've gotten excellent support," she said of the inmates. "The guards are the engine foremen and the inmates are used for fire suppression."

Capitan Mayor Norm Renfro said he had gotten answered the three most asked questions: jobs for locals, what class prisoners and conserving of the Fort's historical aspect.

Officials said they would probably retain some of the current maintenance crew, because they knew the facility. But the crew will probably be without jobs come December 31. Acting administrator Phil Keller said he received a letter from General Services Division that limited funding will be put in place to keep six maintenance staff until December 31. "But we have to do work at Camp Sierra Blanca also," Keller said. "I'm the last one here who knows where everything is."

Finally Nunley asked how the program would impact the post office. But Post Master Betty Lou Joiner answered "As of yesterday, I will go to Capitan, I got a letter," she said. Willie Hobbs will take over the decreased operations at the Fort Stanton Post Of fice. "I wish I had known about this last week;" Joinet enid.

Jesse Fay Scholarship Awarded To N. Montes

Capitan Board of Education accepted the retirement of middle school teacher Mecca Aldridge during its meeting Thursday, May 9.

Aldridge will retire at the end of this school year.

The board also approved a recommendation from the superintendent to hire Kimberly Jose as high school special education teacher and coach and Liz Hofacket as special education director and speech therapist.

Also hired for the next school year were the following non-certified staff: elementary instructional aides Betty Adcock, Debbie Bird, Kathy Dean, Nancy Hail, Mary Holman, Lori Roberts, Ruby Trost, school nurse Leecha LaMay and secretary Lisa Wolf. Some of the instructional aide positions are contingent to enrollment and funding for the next school year.

Staff hired for the high school include secretary Stephanie Aldaz and instructional aide Dinah Roybal.

Cafeteria staff hired were Theresa Baca cook, Liz Montes cafeteria supervisor, Anna Silva cook, Mozie Sparks cook and Sheril Zamora cafeteria computer clerk.

Custodial staff hired were Beverly Brazel high school, Rose McCarty, Nick Pacheco maintenance supervisor, Inge Sedillo elementary custodian and Jerri Wilson grounds keeper.

In administration hired were Dawn Goodrum administration secretary, Liz Montoya bookkeeper/payroll clerk and Frances Traylor business manager.

Agatha Long was hired as middle school secretary.

After discussion during closed session, the board awarded the Jesse Fay Scholarship to Neil Montes. The acholarship derives its funds from an endowment left to the school by Jesse E. Fay who wanted it to go to a minority student.

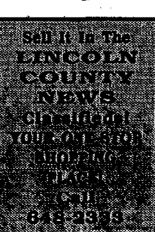

The board heard from two individuals who were concerned about the action taken against middle school math teacher Hazel Poissot. Middle school student Annalise Hausler said she supported Ms. Poissot. "She's a very good math teacher," Hausler said. "And I learned a lot from her. Since she's been gone, we haven't learned any math."

Parent Dallas Summers was also concerned about the suspension of Poissot, and the "negativity" in the school. He said school should be fun, but for his boys it has been more negative than positive. Superintendent Diana Billingsley agreed to meet with Summers to listen to his ideas.

Billingsley told THE NEWS on Wednesday, that a hearing has been set during a special meeting at 1 p.m. Wednesday, June 5, in the school multipurpose room. Billingsley said she was unsure if the hearing will be held in open session, or in closed session as is normal for personnel matters. Poissot will have the right to request an open hearing then.

State's idea for Fort

The Civilian Conservation Corps was established in 1933 to provide jobs for people during the great depression when the majority of the people in the United States were out of work. Most people remember the Civilian Conservation Corps as CCC

Most people remember the Civilian Conservation Corps as CCC camps. Several were located here in Lincoln County.

Workers at CCC camps built roads and improved parks in areas all across the nation. The work that was accomplished by the CCC workers on publicly owned land was successful even though many workers were several states away from their homes. They received room, board, and a small salary. The remainder of their pay was sent to their families. The CCC program ended in 1943 during World War II when jobs were more plentiful. Many men enlisted or were drafted to serve in the armed forces. Others, including women that had never held a job cureide the Others, including women that had never held a job outside the home before, worked in defense plants to help the war effort. The end of World War II brought a drastic change to the United States and the CCC program has never been revived.

Now the New Mexico Energy, Minerals and Natural Resources Department and the New Mexico Corrections Department are proposing a similar program for prisoners which would be called proposing a similar program for prisoners which would be called the New Mexico Inmate Conservation Corps (ICC) program. The proposal is to use the Fort Stanton facility for the residence for minimum sercurity inmates in the proposed ICC program.

The inmates would provide the manpower for the work using materials provided by cooperating agencies. According to the booklet prepared by the departments, the ICC program would, "Bridge the gap between the inmate and society by improving the health of our natural resources." Inmates could learn how to use tools and learn marketable trades and the ICC program would help prepare the inmates for reintegration into society.

California, Nevada and Arizona, have programs of this type that have been operational for many years and have shown to be cost effective in accomplishing conservation projects that have benefited the natural resources and the public. Now New Mexico wants to develop the ICC program here at Fort Stanton.

There is no doubt the national forests would benefit from such a program if it is managed correctly. Building fences to protect watesheds from vehicles, planting saplings in riparian areas, and helping prevent erosion are all needed. And there is no doubt that working outdoors would be good for the inmates. If the ICC program would actually help the inmates learn new trades and help break the cycle many have of returning to prison, the program would be well worth the effort at any cost.

It does sound good but there are a few more questions that need to be answered before the majority of the residents in Lincoln County will be completely in favor of the ICC camp being located at Fort Stanton. We can't help but wonder what changes will be made at the Fort when it is renovated to house inmates and if the general public will be allowed to tour the facility after it becomes a work camp for minimum security inmates. Helping conservation in our national forests should not be at the cost of losing a pre-Civil War historic Fort. We also wonder who will screen the inmates to make certain the inmates selected really want to do this kind of hard work instead of just wanting to be in a place where escape is easy. And we wonder if the cooperating agencies will have enough money to buy materials as well as pay the inmates for their work now that governmental agencies are cutting their budgets.

Improving the health of our natural resources is important and the conservation camp idea has proven to be successful, but the residents of Lincoln County will need more answers before deciding if the ICC camp will be best for Lincoln County.

We need our questions answered.

EDITOR: May 30, 1996, is Memorial Day. Our departed military veterans definitely deserve our praise; however, I honor them by doing my best to prevent their descendants from being "unjustly" sacrificed during foreign conflicts. I think that they would prefer this. Unfortunately, I have failed them every time. Our regular national guard and reserve military members are forbidden, by oath and law, to question or disobey their commanders-in-chief. Therefore, it is up to the rest of us to speak on their behalf. This must not be done through public protests! Many of our post-WWII veterans would probably be with us today if the silent majority had broken their silence.

There have been many noted Americans throughout our nation's history. I have the greatest admiration for a mere former U.S. Army Sergeant. This man traded vast fame and fortune for a small farm in rural America. Throughout his life he shunned the national spotlight and died a mere common man. He was not powerful, wealthy, egotistic, selfish, greedy, immoral or highly literate.' By today's standards, who was this nobody? He was Sergeant Alvin York; the highly decorated hero of WWI. In 1972, I had the honor of being assigned to Sgt. York's former Army unit; the 82nd (Airborne) Infantry Division.

Sgt. York was once asked why he had rejected fame and fortune. He said that he was merely serving his country and was not proud of the fact that he had killed Germans. He further stated that there were many American soldiers who gave more than he; they gave their lives. He knew many of us have forgotten; character is more impor-

Inside The Capito EV. BEV. MILLE

SANTA FE—Newspaper editors are bound to start wondering whether to refer Gov. Gary Johnson's news releases to their political writers or their sports writers.

His latest recreation release says the governor has been named one of cycling's "Best Friends in Public Office." He'll be spotlighted in the June issue of Bicycling Magazine for having ridden "the length of New Mexico in five days" on his wellpublicized Trek For Trash, a tune-up for Hawaii's Iron Man Triathlon.

Now Johnson is in the news again for his athletic interests. This one, however, wasn't prompted by one of his news releases. It came as the result of required lobbyist expenditure reports filed last week that show the governor, family and friends were treated to the Fiesta Bowl and the Super Bowl by two firms that do business in New Mexico and Arizona.

Newspaper reports say Phelps Dodge mining company supplied Johnson with six $250 tickets to the Fiesta Bowl in Tempe, Arizona, and Giant Industries provided Johnson four $350 tickets, plus $125 worth of transportation and a $50 gift basket for the Super Bowl, also in Tempe.

To be fair, Johnson's $3075 in freebies for the two January football games compares with $291,000 in total entertainment of lawmakers and state officials by lobbyists from Jan. 15 to April 30 of this year. It's not a big chunk of the total. The two companies did nothing wrong. Entertaining is a legitimate tool of lobbying. Sources tell me the governor's office initiated the request.

And Gov. Johnson did nothing illegal in requesting or accepting the goodies. The only problem is that as a candidate Johnson was rather sanctimonious about how he'd be a different kind of public official. Unlike a politician, he'd remain just a regular guy, and that's who he'd be representing.

But regular guys can't call up a big company and get tickets to the Super Bowl or the national collegiate football championship game, although Johnson acted as though that was the deal when he explained that oil and mining issues never were discussed.

So if you'd like a free ticket to a big game, maybe you should try calling some big company and see how far you Actually the givernor $3,000 value out of his football tickets. That's what they cost Phelps Dodge and Giant, but only big time ticket holders at Arizona State University's football stadium could get tickets at face value. After blocks of tickets were distributed to the two paricipating teams, most of the remainder were gobbled up by ticket agencies and sold for what the traffic would bear.

I checked on Super Bowl tickets myself and discovered they ranged from $1,450 in the end zone to $4,000 in the best locations, where one might guess the governor's family and friends sat. So the value of Johnson's tickets was much higher than Giant Industries paid for them.

Some critics have called on the governor to reimburse Giant for the tickets, as Albuquerque Mayor Marty Chavez did when he received his. Had Johnson done so, Giant wouldn't have had to report the gift, Gary still would have gotten a terrific deal, and we wouldn't be having this conversation.

But as it is, we're talking about suspected hypocrisy and we'll always wonder if the governor's desertion of his Indian friends on the wholesale gasoline issue might have had anything to do with a big favor done by a giant oil distributor.

Rather than banning all lobbyist gifts and entertainment as some states recently have done, the ethics task force of citizens appointed the governor and Legislature a few years ago chose to let nature take its course, without government intrusion, and merely require that everything be reported.

In that way, we let people do what they're going to do and after they report it, we can decide what we think. It's a great way to learn more about our public officials.

Unusual dryness and below normal precipitation this winter and spring has created extreme, hazardous conditions within our national forests.

Ignition index from embers is rated at 90 to 100 percent which means that a spark from a chain saw and an ember from a cigarette or campfire has a 90 to 100 percent chance of starting a fire.

We have not seen conditions this extreme in at least 30 years. Due to this the Cibola National Forest has implemented fire restrictions as follows: All small equipment must have spark arresters. The use of ATVs off main travelways is discouraged. Only Coleman type stoves or propane grills are allowed. NO charcoal grills allowed. No fires allowed. If conditions continue to worsen, we expect further restrictive measures will be imposed.

Smoking is restricted to developed campgrounds and vehicles: Fuelwood permits will not be sold until the danger passes.

Fireworks are never allowed in the forest.

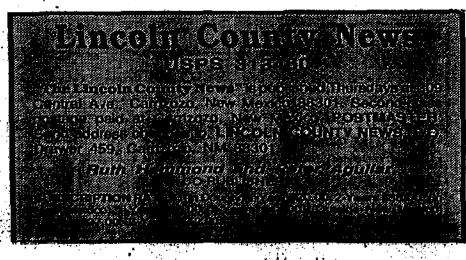

Currently we are looking for volunteers to help in this emergency . situation. The main need is to outreach to the public with information and restrictions as the situation changes. This will be done through information centers and meeting with local communities.

On May 18 in cooperation with State Forestry and our local fire departments we are tion call the Mountainair Ranger District at 505-847-2990.

We recommend that people plan outings and events carefully and incorporate items that do not need the use of fire.

In our urban-interface areas (where rural meets urban) we recommend the following: check defensible space around your home; check and clean the roof and gutters free of debris, clip overhanging branches; provide fuel breaks around all structures; keep flammable materials well away from home (propane tanks, woodpiles, vegetation); have sperk arresters installed on small engines and equipment; be prepared to be defen-sible;know what to do if a fire starts; have the sheriff's and local fire department numbers handy; and report all amokes.

Restriction for private and state land is regulated by State Forestry: No open fires, no BBQ, and no charcoal fires. no trash burning, no fireworks. White gas/propant stoves are O.K. For more

CHEESY CAPITAN PRESCHOOLERS love to say cheese when their photo is taken. The preschoolers (from left) Chase Williams, Bradley Cummins, Mitchell Harper and Logan Eshom showed how they had learned about gardening and such things as vegetables, lady bugs, turtles, butterflies and flowers. Absent that day was Lasaro Palamino. Liz Hofacket is director of the pre-school program and Kathy Dean and Betty Adcock are instructional aldes.

Greetings from my old house by, the side of the road to your house.

Most of the time I have a few links missing from my chain, but today, I think I have lost the entire chain. Cannot remember if I wrote about losing my billfold.

I am still a living, breathing individual but I did lose all proof according to government standards. Just last week I received a new credit card with a brand new number, and fortunately if someone did find the billfold, they did not make any charges. I am thankful for that.

My social security card is a different ball game. After several bits of correspondence with said social security folks I was informed this morning that sometimes the number gets confused in the computer and the number is not identical to the one you lost. What a cheerful little earful that was.

If that happens, and indeed that is a rarity, then a volume of checking and re-checking is the final blow.

I have already applied for a passport, my old one having expired a year and half ago, and all identification that I have must be given to the United States Customs Service.

It is much easier to just stay home than to get all missing papers to say nothing of missing links in my chain together. You probably are saying to yourself, then why don't you? My daughter, Dr. Patricia Sullivan of Omaha, Nebraska, has been given the honor of being one of the main speakers at the International Congress on Child Abuse and Neglect, which will be held at the Royal College of Dublin in Dublin, Ireland.

Scientists from around the world will be presenting their research. This is a wonderful opportunity and also a very esteemed honor. I am so proud of my daughter and to show how proud, I am willing to fly to Ireland to hear her speak.

To most folks that is not a big deal, fly over the ocean, but to me flying over any body of water is a big deal. I cannot swim. Nut said, n'est ce pas?

Erms Truillo promised me a story about her talented daughter that teaches school in Spain and who has been visiting Erms and Maggie.

You won't believe this but I'll give it a try. I called the number that I have had almost from the time I arrived in Capitan, Erma, Maggie and I are old Friends, I was the formed that the number I had spiret disted was not a working number. After checking sever-al telephone blocks, and I have several because I never remember to throw any old away when I receive a new one. Each time, the same unfriendly admonition...you have reached a non-working number. Please check your telephone directory and try again. I've been there, did that, but they did not respond.

I then called Henry at Senior Citizens and he gladly gave me the number to call. The only fly in the ointment was it was the same number that I had been calling.

I then called Alex Trajillo's number and his wife gave me a brand messione. Indialed but got the same response. So if any of you folks out there read this and happen to run into either Erms or Maggie, please send up an SOS for their working number.

Have a chance to ride to this epistle to Ruth with Elaine. Must briting this to a close. Sorry am a couple days early with this and did not have time to get anybody called for news except the Trufillos and no use repeating the number mix up.

This heat is getting to my brain. Do not know if my brain is sort of kinda melting from this terrible heat or whether it is just the natural softening of the tissues due to my advanced age. Either way it does present problems, especially when I start to hurry and end up wondering what in the heck I am hurrying about,

Adding Folic Acid

These amounts are designed to keen daily intake of folic acid below 1 mg, because intakes above that amount may mask symptoms of pernicious anemia, a form of vitamin B12 deficiency which primarily affects older people. If untreated, pernicious anemin can lead to severe permanent nerve damage. Because over half of all pregnancies are unplanned and because these defects occur in the developing fetus before most women know they are pregnant, it is important that all women of child-bearing age consume the needed 400 micrograms (.4mg) of folic acid daily. In addition to fortified grain products, PHS recommended that women should obtain this amount through food sources and/or a dietary supplement (such as a multivitamin), or a combination of these sources.

According to David Satcher, M.D., Ph.D, Director, Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), "CDC estimates that there are approximately 4,000 pregnancies each year, including 2,500 live births, that are affected by spina bifida and other neural tube birth defects. We are pleased that the action taken today by FDA to fortify grain products with folic acid will help prevent many cases of these serious birth defects affecting the spine and brain."

fied are: enriched bread, rolls. Wortley Dining Room and Hotel IN LINCOLN

The road to the ski basin will remain open, but motorists may stop only at Windy Point and must stay on the payement.

This will impact Ruidoso as it will shut down recreational opportunities." Cummings said.

Certain areas of the Smokey Bear Ranger District will remain open for "dispersed activities" such as hiking, hunting, primitive camping, mountain biking, horse-back riding, motorcycle or ATV-riding, and spelunking will be allowed in the open, areas. Those areas include: Jicarilla Mountains north of Forest Road 72, Indian Divide area, Capitan Divide area off Highway 246, area south of Forest Roads 338 and 57 (Salazar and buns; all enriched flour including bromated and selfrising flours; enriched corn grits and corn meals; enriched farina and rice; and all enriched macaroni and noodle products including vegetable macaroni, vegetable noodle, and non-fat milk macaroni products. In addition, breakfast cereals can add folic acid up to 400 meg per serving.

Also under the new rules. manufacturers will be allowed to make claims on the labels that the fortified products contain folate or folic acid and that adequate intake of the nutrient has been shown to reduce the risk of neural tube birth defects.

FDA will review any new data concerning optimum fortification levels for folic acid and will consider adjusting the level of fortification levels for folic acid and will consider adjusting the level of fortification if the data substantiate the need.

These final rules on fortification will be published in the Federal Register and will become effective Jan. 1, 1998.

OBITUARY

MILTON H. Funeral service for Milton

H. "Pluto" Hughes, 71, of Ruidoso was April 26, at First Baptist Chruch in Brownfield. Texas with the Rev. Ken Flowers officiating. Burial followed at Terry County Memorial Park in Brownfield.

Mr. Hughes died at his home April 23. He was born September 7, 1924 at Lawton, Oklahoma. He married Grace Lenore Tarpley on July 18. 1947 at Brownfield, Texas.

He is survived by his wife Grace of Ruidoso; daughter Tami and her husband William T. Hill Jr. of Houston, Texas: two granddaughters: and a cousin.

Arrangements were under the direction of LaGrone Funeral Chapel of Canyon Road) on the south side of the Capitan Mountains, Hale Lake area and Lower Eagle Creek area.

Cummings said the open areas are where pinon and juniper trees dominate. However, during the fires in the northern part of the state Cummings said even the pinon and juniper were found to be burning hotter and faster than usual.

The City of Alamogordo isplanning to close West Lake campground at Bonito Lake, and possibly closing the lake to fishing and all other uses.

All personal-use firewood cutting will be discontinued on the Smokey Bear Ranger District. But commercial fuelwood cutting contracts currently underway will be allowed, Cummings said.

Owners of private land and their guests will be able to access their properties that lie within the national forests. However guests must have written permission from the property owner to access the lands. "We will check people for those written permissions," Cummings said.

Federal, state and local government employees and law enforcement officers will be able to access the Forest if needed to fulfill their duties. Also commercial deliveries, utility operations and maintenance or emergency vehicle operators and employees will be allowed access. Persons who hold special use permits, outfitters and guides and grazing permittees who have questions need to contact the Smokey Bear Ranger District at 257-4095.

For persons going into the open areas, level II fire restrictions are in effect which prohibit all open flame, including, campfire, charcoal, gas stoves/lanterns and no smoking except in a vehicle with an ashtray or in a building. Similar fire restrictions also are in effect on state and private lands.

Cummings said the forest service has more than 60 fire fighters, including a 40 man Hot Shot crew from northern California w addition to the Smokey Bear Hot Shot crew in the district for the next four weeks. An air tanker and helicopter will also be available.

Even if rain falls soon, tions will not immediately be lifted. "It would take moisture to set in before the restrictions come down," Cummings

Fire danger is based on the moisture content of the ground cover and the "thousand hour fuels" of large trees. Cummings said the pine needle moisture in the forests is about three percent and the (Continued from Page 1) thousand hour fuel at size percent. "When its under 1 percent we're concerned."

If dry conditions continué, the forests may be closed entirely, Cummings said.
