

CYF Explains CSB Juvenile Camp Proposal

by Doris Cherry

Camp Sierra Blanca which originated in Lincoln County as a camp for troubled boys, will soon serve that purpose again.

During the winter's legislative session, the state Children Youth and Families (CYFD) department came up with a plan to convert CSB to a juvenile facility. The intent was to utilize the facility, which state corrections was closing for adults because the department claimed it was cost ineffective. As part of the "CYFD Restoring Justice" plan, CSB would have been converted to a 50-bed Environmental Work Camp for committed "delinquent youth."

The original plans were to remodel and convert the adult minimum security prison located near Fort Stanton, and only a few miles from the Sierra Blanca Regional Airport and the upscale new Ranches De Sonterra subdivision, to a juvenile facility which was to be opened sometime after July 1997.

But the emergency at the Springer Boys School, which is seriously overcrowded, accelerated those plans. Now CYFD plans to have up to 100 juvenile boy offenders at CSB by September.

Loretta Chavez-Henry CYFD director for juvenile justice division brought information to the special Lincoln County Commission meeting held in Ruidoso on Friday. But she was delayed in obtaining a state car in Roswell, and then she got behind slow traffic due to rainy weather on Highway 70 in the Hondo Valley. As a result she arrived at the civic center after the commissioners had already adjourned and left.

Henry said she is getting mixed messages from Lincoln County, which cried for the jobs lost when Fort Stanton was closed, and when announcements were made about the CSB adult facility closure.

Henry said the work camp funding was approved by the legislature. However, on May 23, CYFD secretary Heather Wilson and Governor Gary Johnson decided to call for emergency funding to move up funding for operations from next year to this fiscal year which begins in July. "When the plan was approved we had a year to work through the process," Henry said. "Due to the emergency we had to move the juveniles out of Springer."

County To Decide Future Of Sales Barn On July 2

by Doris Cherry

By July 2, Lincoln County Commissioners will decide what to do with the county-owned Glencoe Rural Events Center, formerly known as the Ruidoso Super Select Sales barn.

Currently, the county has a proposal from the Museum of the Horse to lease and operate the facility, primarily for the annual Cowboy Symposium. And the county has a proposal to the Billy the Kid Scenic Byways committee to offer the facility as an interpretive center for the byways route. But the byways group has yet to make a decision on what it wants for an interpretive center. County manager Frank Potter told commissioners during a special meeting in Ruidoso on June 14, that the byways group most recently was talking about the proposal from the Museum of the Horse which will provide property and personnel to operate a center, if the byways group allows the museum to have a shop in the center.

Potter asked commissioners for authority to withdraw the interpretive center proposal and solicit proposals again for the Glencoe Center. Potter said a lot of interest has come from the Rural Events Center being publicized in the local newspapers.

Commissioner Wilton Howell discussed the possibility of having a lease contract to operate the center such as with the county fair association with the fairgrounds in Capitan.

Commissioner Ray Nunley was concerned that the valley residents would still be allowed to use the building, if it is leased. "The last two or three events there were well attended," Nunley said.

Commissioners unanimously voted to set the deadline of July 2 to consider the existing proposals for the center, or reject those and go with another round of requests for proposals.

Commissioners also: -Approved Nunley's appointment of Ernest Lueras to the Planning Commission, although Lueras is not from Nunley's district.

-Approved transfer of a liquor license from James Dale Penrod Sr. to Grady Lee Hart, dba White Oaks Bar, Club and Saloon. There were no objections to the transfer.

-Accepted the DWI grant agreement with the state

State Speeds Up Process For CSB Juvenile Camp

by Doris Cherry

Two weeks ago, Governor Gary Johnson signed an emergency funding resolution to allow the state Children, Youth and Families Department (CYFD) to move up to 100 juvenile male offenders into Camp Sierra Blanca by the first of September.

Last week, Lincoln County residents read about the plans in the Albuquerque Journal.

Recent incidents at the overcrowded boys school at Springer caused state officials to scramble for different locations to put the juvenile offenders. Some were sent to juvenile facilities in Bernalillo County and near Las Cruces. And plans to convert Camp Sierra Blanca (CSB) from an adult corrections facility to a juvenile facility were moved up. The camp was scheduled to be converted to the juvenile facility by fall 1997, and would house only 50 boys. But the emergency at Springer accelerated the plans, and doubled the numbers.

Lincoln County Commissioners, during a special meeting held Friday in Ruidoso, waited to hear from Loretta Chavez-Henry CYFD director for juvenile justice division who was scheduled to present information on the plans. But Henry arrived after the meeting was adjourned and commissioners were already gone. Thinking she had not bothered to attend the meeting, commissioners ordered a "strongly worded" letter be sent to CYFD about the department's disrespect and lack of concern about the local area. "She at least could have called," said commissioner Bill Schwettmann in whose district CSB is located.

During the meeting, Capitan Municipal Schools superintendent Diana Billingsley said Henry had been at the school board meeting the night before, and had discussed the proposals for the camp. "We have no choice," Billingsley said about Henry's response to her question during that meeting. "It will be here if we want it or not."

The state is drafting a request for proposals for the environmental work plan, which Billingsley said she expects will closely fit the proposal offered by a private company from Florida. "We want to be in the rfp process," Billingsley said. "to put in some protections for our children. Capitan Schools does not want to educate them (the juvenile offenders) in our schools."

Billingsley said Henry told

Capitan School Wants To Be Involved Drafting RFPs For CSB Juvenile Camp

by Doris Cherry

Capitan Board of Education went on record to let the state's Children Youth and Families Department (CYFD) know that the district does not want to be responsible for any of the educational needs of the 100 juvenile delinquent boys to be placed at Camp Sierra Blanca.

School board members unanimously voted that they wanted to be involved with drafting the request for proposals (rfp) for the private contractor to operate the environmental juvenile camp at Camp Sierra Blanca, and the board requested that he awarded private provide, not Capitan School District, be responsible for all educational needs to include special, regular and vocational education and any extracurricular activities. The board took the action during their regular meeting June 13 after CYFD Juvenile Justice Director Loretta Chavez-Henry spoke for more than an hour about the proposed environmental work camp to be opened at Camp Sierra Blanca (CSB) in September.

Plans for the camp, which was originally set to be opened sometime after July 1997, were accelerated in late May in response to a violent incident at the overcrowded state boys school in Springer. Because of the incident, some 80 boys were moved out of Springer to a temporary holding facility in Dona Ana County. By September, CYFD plans to place up to 100 non-violent male juvenile offenders at CSB, which state corrections will vacate the first part of August.

Capitan school board members were hesitant to give support to the proposed environmental work camp program, which the state will contract out with a private provider, because of the potential impact on the school district, its students and the community. The major concern for the school board was where the students will be educated.

Henry said that only non-violent juvenile offenders, the "four percent who are inappropriately placed" now at Springer, and others who fit certain requirements will be sent to Camp Sierra Blanca. Henry said she is currently working on the criteria and classification system for placement at CSB based on such things as security risk, treatment needs and recommendations from juvenile probation officers.

Also, Henry said she had toured CSB about a month ago and found buildings not being used that could become classrooms at the camp. While Henry said that the district could contract with the provider for the educational services, skepticism from the district superintendent and board members made her say that what the level of involvement from the local school district and community could be included in the rfp.

Before the incident at Springer, Henry said her department thought it had more time to "think the plan out" to have a proposal to offer CYFD secretary Heather Wilson. But plans had to be accelerated with the incident. Henry went on to say that the state will issue a nationwide request for proposals for a private contract provider in about four weeks. She said that they will try to make the private contractors aware of the community needs and guidelines about staff to juvenile ratio, community involvement and requirements from Capitan School District could be written into the rfp.

"We won't require Capitan schools to do anything," Henry said. "We want this to work for you and our delinquent kids. But we can't do it well without community support."

Early in her discussion Henry said ratios for the work camp programs would be effective at 7 students to one staff. Later in her discussion she said the ratios would be one to one, with 65 employees. However most of the employees hired locally will be non-certified staff, said Ron Whiteley, Otero County Juvenile Parole Officer who had attended the meeting with Henry.

Henry estimated the operational budget for the camp would be about $1.5 million. Remodeling of bathrooms will be done with the $787,000 appropriated by the state legislature in February.

County Commissioner Bill Schwettmann who also attended the meeting asked what would happen if the community doesn't want the camp. "It's a state facility and the legislature voted for the program, those are given," Henry said. "Now we need to involve the community."

CYF Explains CSB

When asked by THE NEWS why CYFD did not contact anyone here, Henry said Wilson tried to contact state representative Dub Williams, but he was gone. THE NEWS also asked her why 100 beds at CSB, when the original plan called for 50 beds.

Henry said she and staff had toured the CSB cottages which are currently holding up to 100 adult inmates, and found they could locate 100 boys there. In the proposed program each cottage and program will have about 25 boys. Some programs will have one to one ratio of adult corrections staffer to boys, other will have ratios of 1 to 7 boys.

"They will be low risk only," Henry said. When pointed out that four percent from Springer is only 16 boys, Henry said that many will come from this region. But when asked by THE NEWS what the highest commitment areas are, Henry said that Bernalillo County is the highest, but they also get a lot of referrals from Dona Ana County, the Roswell/Hobbs/Lovington/Carlsbad region and San Juan County/Gallup region.

"It will be a state-wide facility," she said. "I've talked with the judges in this area," Henry went on to say. "They want something like this nearby."

"We met with (District) Judge Richard Parsons, and he favored the plan," she said.

Henry said education of the juveniles will be done completely inside the camp. After talking to the private Florida contractor, the state will consider two options—to contract with local schools or CSB will be its own district. However, Henry or anyone in her department had not met with the other school districts about this.

Henry provided printed materials about the "Sierra Blanca Environmental Work Camp." The CYFD Restoring Justice Plan information was the same offered to the state legislature in February and had not been updated from the original 50 bed facility. The work camp proposal would offer education and work experience to delinquent youths in a program modeled on the "Last Chance Ranch" operated by Associated Marine Institutes. The program would also offer a six to nine month aftercare program, including job placement, family counseling, curfew and supervision.

Henry provided printed information from the Associated Marine Institutes, the private Florida company that the state has modeled its proposal after. The institutes began in 1969 in Florida, and are now located through the U.S. and the Caiman Islands. A Texas camp began in 1982.

The information states the institute's objectives are to develop attitudes in 14 to 18 year olds with meaningful work and a role. Each institute will have an autonomous board of trustees with members from the local business, professional and government sectors.

The original Florida institute camp, called the "Last Chance Ranch" is in a remote area of the northern Florida Everglades. Security is obtained by the remoteness of the area and low student to staff ratios. Typical referrals there are juveniles who have been prosecuted through the adult system and gotten a "last chance" at the camp. The average length of stay is 18 months, with a residential portion of about nine months.

Beginning with a 10 mile hike to the camp location and a three day orientation, the program first phase emphasizes work and education. Phase two allows the juveniles to participate in paid work projects. The physical environment for phase two has carpeted dorms and restricted television. While education and work programs continue, the juveniles begin preparing to return home.

Associated Marine Institutes referral and admission criteria includes youth from the committed from the criminal courts after being found a delinquent for crimes: --a felony crime, or crime against persons including homicide, kidnapping, sexual battery, armed robbery, aggravated assault and aggravated battery and/or arson committed in the prior two years; --for two or more prior felony crimes other than a crime against a person. The juveniles must be ordered into the program no later than his 17th birthday and no earlier than his 15th birthday.

Youth considered inappropriate are those with severe emotional disturbances, mentally ill or retarded. Youth with extensive histories of severe, repeated substance abuse or taking prescriptions for a psychological disorder are considered inappropriate.

Henry did not say when CYFD will issue its request for proposals for the operation of the camp. But during the special county commission meeting held before Henry arrived, commissioner Bill Schwettmann said it will be issued within four weeks.

Commissioners also said that the only way the local public will be able to impact the state's proposal for CSB is to contact their state representative and senator, and to write letters to the governor and the CYFD.

Officials Ban Use Of Fireworks Statewide

Fireworks are illegal in Ruidoso and the Lincoln National Forest. Fireworks are restricted from all federal and state lands.

Lincoln County Commissioners have restricted the use of fireworks and the Carrizozo Fire Department has also called for a ban on fireworks. Organized public fireworks displays are allowed under the ban.

Recent rains in the area provided some relief, but did not produce sufficient moisture to relieve the fire danger. Because of a predicted drying trend in the next few days, fire restrictions in state and federal lands are continuing. Level II restrictions remain on state and private lands, which ban all open fires and access to land is limited. All campfires, ditch or trash burning is prohibited. Propane and gas fueled stoves and lanterns are allowed.

Smoking is allowed only in enclosed vehicles, buildings or developed campsites.

Capitan School Wants . . .

Henry said that last fall when she attended a Town Hall meeting in Ruidoso all she heard was concern for jobs lost at Fort Stanton and CSB. "That's what we've gotten in Santa Fe," she said. "So it was a complete surprise to me yesterday when I got a call from Mrs. (Diana) Billingsley (Capitan School Superintendent)."

Billingsley had invited Henry to the board meeting after she was alerted to an article in the June 12 issue of the Albuquerque Journal on the governor's press conference on Monday about opening CSB to juveniles in September.

Billingsley said the main concern with the juvenile programs at CSB is the potential influence on the local children. "They are very conservative children and their parents are concerned they would be negatively influenced. Children follow children."

But Whiteley said conversely the juveniles could be positively influenced by the local children.

Whiteley commended Sec. Wilson who is committed to making the camp work. "We have an opportunity to make something happen for the juveniles and provide an economic base for the community," Whiteley said.

Henry said that there was no intent to exclude the community from the process of converting the camp. "It was just that the major incident at Springer caused us to make a split decision."

CYFD is not considering any other location in the state for a similar juvenile environmental work camp.

The school board also: --Approved an agreement with the Village of Capitan to pay half the cost of constructing a water line from the Bonito Lake pipeline to the school football fields, and instructed the superintendent to propose that the village provide additional water at a lower rate for the practice field.

--Accepted the resignation of high school math teacher Buddy Little. Billingsley told THE NEWS on Wednesday, that Little has returned to the district and has asked that his resignation be reversed.

--Approved the Title I, II and VI budgets.

--Okayed the final year on the audit contract with De'Aun Willoughby.

--Authorized the sale of the school maintenance pick up.

Spencer Fireworks Display Cancelled

Unless it rains continuously from now until Independence Day, Lincoln County will not allow the public July 4 fireworks display sponsored by Dr. A.N. and Jackie Spencer at their performing arts center site on the airport road on Fort Stanton Mesa.

Instead Lincoln County Commissioners have endorsed the public display to be sponsored by the Carrizozo Volunteer Fire Department at Carrizozo golf course lake.

Lincoln County Commissioners, responding to a request from citizens concerned about the high fire danger, voted unanimously to not allow the display during a special meeting held in the Ruidoso Civic Center on June 14. Little Creek resident Michelle Taylor requested the ban on the fireworks display because of the potential to start fires from the fireworks, and from the many visitors at the site. She backed her request with a petition signed by 195 people and several in the audience also spoke against the display.

Dr. Spencer said they were aware of the "dry condition, which is common this time of year. The site had received at least three good showers already, Spencer said.

THOUGHTS

FROM THE EDITOR'S DESK

Fire danger continues

By Ruth Hammond

The scattered showers that fell in Lincoln County this past week were most welcome. Any and all moisture is needed to help reduce the fire danger, not only in our national forests but around our homes, in and out of municipalities.

The surprising thing is the number of people who think that the fire danger has been lifted because of a small rain shower. Last Friday The News received a call from Albuquerque asking if the national forests were open now that it had rained.

It is difficult for some people to believe that it would take much more than one or two days of rain to reduce the fire danger. The national forests need weeks of rain to overcome the dry conditions that made the forests tinder-dry. If you don't know what tinder-dry is, it means all the vegetation is dry enough to ignite at the slightest spark, similar to building a campfire.

Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts know how to collect wood to build a fire. They begin with tinder, dry grass and twigs that will ignite easily, followed by larger sticks and limbs. Scouts also know that a campfire can be started in the rain. The trick is to find the tinder down under the leaves on the ground and get it burning before adding the larger wood.

The same is true with our forests at this time. All the tinder will continue to be dry until it rains long enough to soak through all the leaves and growth under the trees. It took a long time for the forests to get this dry and it will take a long time for the forests to get enough rain to ease the fire danger.

All you have to do is look around to see what happens when it rains after a long dry spell. The rain soaks into the ground first and the vegetation uses it for growth. In the forests the rain soaks into the ground and the low-growing vegetation usually takes the first moisture with the trees getting what they can through their root systems, which are deeper in the ground.

While the rain is welcomed by most everyone, including the ranchers, the lightning is less than desired because of the fires that are started when the lightning hits. Last week several fires were started in the forests because of lightning.

They say lightning doesn't strike twice in the same place but that isn't true. Look at what has been happening here in Lincoln County. First governor Johnson closed Fort Stanton without any warning and then he decreed that Camp Sierra Blanca should be closed this year as a minimum security prison.

There is hope though because governor Johnson decided the juvenile detention camp which was to be located at Camp Sierra Blanca after July 1997 would open in September 1996. He didn't have the courtesy to let Lincoln County know but he did make the announcement early last week to people in other places.

There are a few more questions we would like answered about the plans. How can there be 100 juveniles at the camp with a one on one or a seven to one ratio and a budget of $1.5 million? The salaries alone for 100 workers at a minimum of $6 per hour would equal more than $5 million, not to mention the benefits, etc. Then there will be the costs for food, utilities, and medical.

Come on guys at the state level, get real about what it will really cost to keep Camp Sierra Blanca open as a juvenile camp. Don't try to fool yourself because you aren't fooling us. All we ask is that you let us know about the plans and let us help with these little (?) errors in figuring costs for running the facility.

One thing is certain, the state officials, governor Johnson included, will think lightning has struck when they begin to pay the actual costs and find that $1.5 million is several million dollars short of what was projected for the juvenile program.

As of today, the fire danger remains but we have more hope of rain than we do of the state being realistic in their plans.

Rain, rain, please come and stay.

EDITOR: Over 40 years ago, in one of my first psychology courses at the University of New Mexico, I learned of the connection between animal abuse by children and their later development into violent criminals.

Since that time the evidence has become overwhelming. Several studies show that as many as 75 percent of violent criminals had an early record of abusing animals.

Notorious serial killers began their careers as boys by torturing animals. (It is usually but not always boys).

Several examples: Albert DeSalvo, the "Boston Strangler", trapped dogs and cats in orange crates and shot arrows through the boxes. As a boy rapist and serial killer Ted Bundy tortured animals. And as a boy rapist, serial killer and cannibal Jeffrey Dahmer impaled frogs, decapitated dogs and staked cats to trees.

A few years ago, an 11 year old boy in New York strangled a cat; two years later, the same boy strangled a 4 year old child. The case studies fill volumes.

Our country today is experiencing an epidemic of animal, child, spousal and just about every other kind of abuse imaginable. The connection between violent children and violent adults has become incontrovertible. (New Mexico ranks, per capita, second only to Louisiana as the most violent state in the nation).

In light of this overwhelming evidence, State Land Commissioner Ray Powell, other veterinarians, police officers, district attorneys and animal rights advocates are banding together to ask lawmakers to pass felony animal abuse laws in New Mexico. The laws today are only misdemeanors.

I urge all people of compassion and good will who wish someday to live in a decent world to support this proposed legislation and to also support early intervention and treatment for children who exhibit such behavior. Some can be helped and some cannot. Contrary to liberal doctrine, there is such a thing as "bad seed". Sadism runs in some families as does altruism and compassion in others. It is largely genetic.

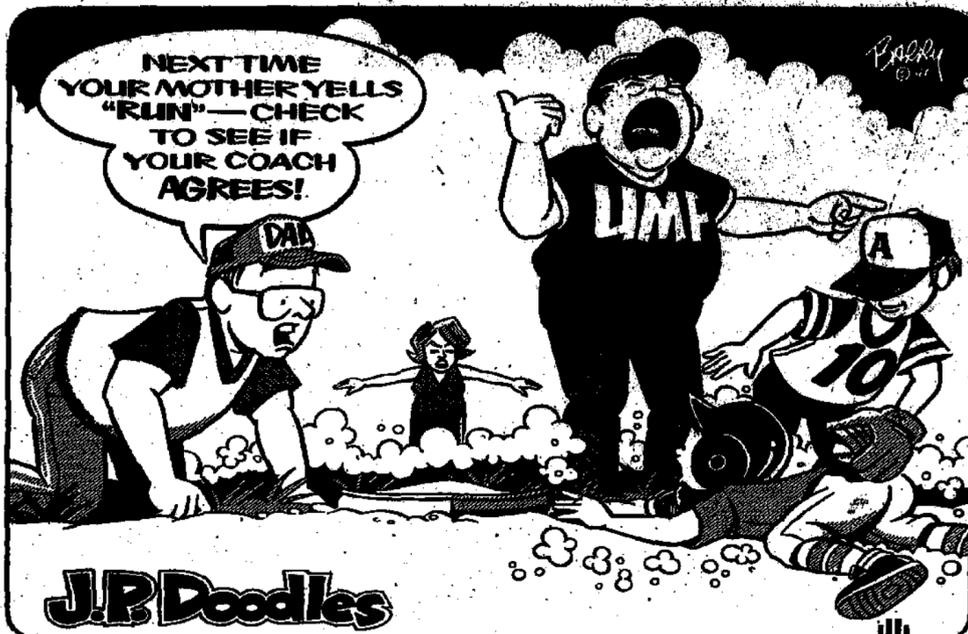

The great German philosopher Emmanuel Kant said, "We can judge the heart of a man by his treatment of animals."

Inside The Capitol

SANTA FE—The Gary Johnson administration is giving evidence of coming apart at the seams.

The two critical pressure points are the governor's office and the personnel office.

Much has been written over the past year and a half about problems in the governor's office. Several staff have left or been asked to leave and numerous reshufflings have taken place. The biggest current problem seems to be the overload being carried by almost every staff member.

You will remember that Gov. Johnson's original staffing of his office involved a considerable downsizing from staffing levels of previous administrations. The new governor wanted to set an example for his department secretaries about the kind of fat-trimming he wanted to see from everybody.

The only problem was that the governor's office didn't contain the layers of unneeded middle management that can be found in every department of state government. As a result the increased governmental effectiveness Johnson was promising from state government didn't happen in the governor's office because there weren't enough people to get the job done right.

One of the outward signs of decreased efficiency from the governor's office was the delay in processing extradition requests that allowed some prisoners to go free. For the most part, however, the governor's beleaguered staff sucked it up and assumed a back-breaking workload.

But some of the governor's staff appear to be at the end of their rope. Their jobs are becoming too monumental. Several are looking elsewhere for employment, either in state government or in the private sector. With their departure, the learning curve will start anew as others are brought in to take over.

State Personnel Office problems haven't been nearly as well reported, but watch for some major developments soon. There have been considerable pressures on this office since the beginning of the Johnson administration since personnel management has been crucial to the governor's goal of running government more like a business.

Businesses don't have the personnel regulations that are imposed on state government, so naturally the governor has been trying to scale back the regs to allow more flexibility in the management of personnel.

It's tricky business because government personnel regs exist so that, new administrations can't wipe out all employees from the previous administration. Johnson did that to everyone he could on his first day in office when several hundred high-ranking employees not covered by the personnel system were given the boot.

If you want to see inefficiency and ineffectiveness, go back to the pre-1980 days of the spoils system when everyone left work on Dec. 31 to be replaced on Jan. 2 by the new administration. Most of the new folks would find themselves without files, office supplies or even keys.

The personnel system can't be junked completely, but the Johnson administration is very interested in streamlining the operation. Accomplishing those changes requires someone who is very familiar with the workings of the present system. Unfortunately that wasn't what the governor was looking for when he chose someone to head the Personnel Office. He chose, instead, the wife of the Democrats for Johnson coordinator.

Jody Hooper stepped into her job without the knowledge to produce the changes needed. When she has failed to provide the necessary assistance to department secretaries and human resources directors, she has blamed the shortcomings on her staff.

As a result, Hooper is losing some of the very people who could help her accomplish her task. And cabinet secretaries are losing their patience. Watch for some reshuffling at state personnel soon.

Dry Times . . .

Suggestions For Ways To Save Water Usage

by Doris Cherry

New Mexicans use more than 4 million acre-feet of water a year for everything including agriculture, industry and domestic use.

About 90 percent of New Mexico's communities rely on ground water (from wells) and in many cases the underground water reserves are not replenishing as fast as we take it out, especially during drought times.

According to the State Engineer's Office Water Conservation Program information, more than 4 million acre feet of water are consumed by New Mexicans each year. That includes agricultural, industrial, commercial and residential uses. Owners of domestic wells are allowed to use up to three acre feet a year, or about three million gallons a year.

But with the prolonged drought, changes are in the air. Several communities have restricted the water use to outdoor watering on staggered basis, or as in Ruidoso, no outdoor use except for very limited hours twice a month. Other communities such as Capitan restrict use to nighttime hours, and will fine people who waste water.

Reducing the amount of water used in the household can help the water situation. Some of the ways to reduce water are simply common sense, such as repairing leaking faucets and pipes. A slow steady drip can waste 15 to 20 gallons a day, a faster drip can waste as much as 100 gallons a day. Many leaks can be repaired with an inexpensive washer or other device.

Installation of low flow aerator in faucets cuts the amount of water coming through the pipe.

Just turning off the faucet when you brush your teeth could save up to six gallons a day which statewide could equal the same amount of water the city of Carlsbad uses in one day.

While inside water use can be reduced with a few common sense practices, outside watering accounts for at least half of a household's water use.

Spencer Fireworks

Dr. Spencer said they had contracted with Bonito Fire Department for 10 trucks and 100 fire fighters to be at the display, and they would prepare the site by cutting fire breaks and mowing the grass very short. They would have $3 million liability insurance for the professional fireworks display. And if there was wind, it would be stopped. Later Bobby Arnett, of Amos Fireworks, said the display would be postponed until the following night if there was wind.

But it did not convince the concerned citizens. "A fireworks display sends a wrong message now," Taylor said.

State Forestry fire manager Bill Rogge confirmed the potential for grass or forest fires from fireworks, especially in the outlying areas. But Dr. Spencer said the fire crews would be on site, and would be able to handle any spot fires. Rogge said he also was concerned about committing the fire fighting manpower from Bonito Department for the fireworks display. "We're spread thin now," Rogge said.

Commissioner Wilton Howell suggested to Dr. Spencer they help with the Carrizozo display. "Rather than pit against each other, lets come up with a solution to make everybody happy," Howell said.

Dr. Spencer did not respond to the suggestion. But Charlie White, from Carrizozo chamber of commerce, invited everyone to Carrizozo on July 4 for the display.

Hondo School Board Hires Barbara Casey As Superintendent

Hondo Board of Education during its regular meeting Monday, June 17 unanimously voted to offer a two-year contract to Barbara Perea Casey of Roswell.

Casey, a Spanish teacher at Goddard High School for a number of years, is also State Representative from Roswell. According to a published report, Casey said she will reconsider her bid for the legislative seat in two years if she is offered another contract from the Hondo board.

The use of mulch cannot be emphasized more. Even though there have been recent showers, that precious water could be better utilized by plants if they are mulched. Ground bark and chipped trees are excellent mulch. Those scorned pine needles make good mulch because they are light, and have a wonderful scent.

Even old newspapers or paper sacks (try to avoid using paper with colored ink) can be spread out and anchored down as mulch. Grass clipping are also good, but be careful to put it around plants that don't mind much heat. Start a compost pile in the backyard to deal with pine needles and other yard wastes. The compost then can be used as mulch and a soil conditioner.

Composted manures are also good for mulch, because it adds nutrients and moisture cover for your plants and trees.

The choice of plants outdoors is also very important. Take a look down your local street or in your local area. What kind of flowers are blooming. There are some if you look. The old traditional hollyhocks with their stalks of bright flowers are blooming all over Ruidoso. Pink snapdragons flash color in these

Lincoln County Receives $2,950 In Grant Funds For Rural Tourism Projects

Lincoln County has been awarded $2,950 by the Rural Economic Development Through Tourism (REDTT) project to help fund the 1997 Lincoln County Tourism Expo and a part-time Cooperative Extension program assistant.

The third annual expo is scheduled to be held in April 1997. REDTT funds will help pay for food, set-up and clean-up at the expo.

Grant funds also will help pay the salary of a part-time assistant at the Lincoln County Cooperative Extension Service office to assist with the expo and other projects.

REDTT awarded $20,000 in 1996 grant funds to Lincoln County and the other eight New Mexico counties which the project serves. Since its creation in 1992, the project has awarded nearly $75,000 in rural tourism grants.

REDTT is a rural tourism development project funded through the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the Cooperative Extension Service.

CAPITAN NOTES

Greetings from my old house by the side of the road to your house. * * *

There is an old adage that "solutions are what we all have for other people's problems." Don't I wish other folks had a solution for my biggest one, namely that I keep losing the things that I just finished locating after days of searching. What I need is a memory, as they say, like an elephant. Well I did just uncover this buried in some of my archives that I have been trying, and not succeeding, in sorting through for my family before my final demise:

A Memory Like a What?
They say that an elephant never forgets, but what under the sun does an elephant have to remember?

It is not expected to remember the date of it's great aunt's birthday or it's uncle's favorite brand of whiskey or beer, or the name of the lady it met outside the church that you promised to help at the next pancake breakfast.

Nobody expects an elephant to recall who ran against Harding for president or who won the war of the Roses and where the Galapagos are located. It is not even counted on to remember where it last saw the screwdriver or when the car is due for it's next lube job.

Elephants don't get around much or meet many people. Elephants don't go to parties or attend fund raising luncheons.

They don't ride on crowded buses or stand in line to get into theaters. It's a small wonder that an elephant never forgets when you consider how very little an elephant has on its mind.

It doesn't have to remember to pick up the clothes at the dry cleaner, or bake a cake for the cooked food sales on Thursday, to get one child to a 3:30 swimming lesson and another to a 4:15 dental appointment, to take the iron to be repaired, to write a thank you note to the Harrisons, and return all the books to the library.

No wonder you never see an elephant consulting a shopping list or scratching its head in puzzlement. It needn't keep in mind that its out of eggs or low on coffee.

It needn't search it's memory to recall what we served the Smiths the last time they came to dinner. It needn't wrack it's brain trying to remember where it left it's umbrella the last time it rained.

Okay, so you never see an elephant with a string tied around its finger. That doesn't prove that an elephant never forgets, but simply proves that an elephant has absolutely nothing to remember.

IMPORTANT BULLETIN:

Frankie Silva is in the hospital waiting for very serious surgery. Frankie, as you know, has a host of friends that are wishing the best of everything for him and so, please all of you friends, take time out and write him a card and tell him so. If you have been in a hospital any time in your life you remember that the meal tray is the most important event of the day and the mail call is second. I know. I've been there, done that, as the saying goes.

Frankie's address in Albuquerque: Tranquelina (Frankie) Silva, Room 143, Ward 5A, Federal Medical Building, 2100 Ridgecrest Drive, S.E., Albuquerque, NM 87108. His telephone number is 505-258-2493.

His daughter Janice gave this to me the other day and wouldn't you know I would lose it and speaking of the forementioned elephant that never forgets, I could not remember what I did with the address. So I will now, quick like, dash a note to Frankie myself and get it posted along with this epistle to Ruth Hammod.

Lots of company at the Tom and Pat Sullivan home for Father's Day. It was family reunion time for Pat and her sister Jo Anne Buckley of Las Cruces. Beautiful people, gorgeous little folk included as there will be a very nice photograph to submit soon. Will not mention names or elaborate on the wonderful time until later.

Attention to you folks who hate the lowly elm trees. This article was found recently in a magazine Trees Clean Up Air Pollution.

One large sugar maple tree can clear the air of lead emitted by 1,000 gallons of burned gasoline, according to the University College of Agriculture.

What's more, elm trees can capture 20 tons of airborne pollutants per year. Not only do trees act as natural sponges soaking up impurities, they also slow down air movement, causing pollutants to fall to the ground. Soooo, long live our lowly elm trees.

I know there is more news out there some place and perhaps some will trickle down to me by this time next week.

Like I have said, I do not go after the news, it has to come to me.

Ran across this poem and thought it so apropos:

Backward, Turn Backward
Backward, turn backward, oh time on your wheels,
Airplanes, wagons, and automobiles.
Dress me once more in a sombrero that flaps,
Spurs, a flannel shirt, boots, slicker and chaps.
Give me a six shooter of two in my hand
And show me a clear to rope and brand,
Out where the sagebrush is dusty and grey,
Make me a cowboy again for a day.

Give me a bronc that knows how to dance,
Buckskin of color and wicked of glance,
New to the feeling of bridle and bit;
Give me a quilt that will sting where it hits,
Strap on poncho behind in a roll,
And pass me the lariat, so dear to my soul,
Then over the trail let's lope far away,
Make me a cowboy again for a day.
Thunder of hoofs over range as we ride,
Hissing of iron and smoking of hide,
Bellow of cattle and snort of cayuse,
Longhorns from Texas as wild as the deuce;
Midnight stampedes and milking of herds
Yells from the cowmen, too angry for words;
Right in the midst of it all I would stay,
Make me a cowboy again for a day.
Under the star-studded canopy vast,
Campfire coffee and comfort at last;
Beacon that sizzles and crisps in the pan
After the roundup smells good to a man.
Tales of the ranchmen and rustlers retold;
Over the pipes as the embers grow cold;
These are the times that old memories play,
Oh make me a cowboy again for a day.
Taken from the University of Oklahoma Press and reprinted by special permission from The XIT Ranch by J. Evetts Haley.

And so for another week, hoping I get my head on straight and find some of my lost, or mislaid bits of this and that for your reading will call it a day. Thanks for your patience, thanks for your loyalty and especially my friends, thanks for your wonderful friendship.

So adios, sayonara and may the Good Lord take a liken' to ya'.

San Juan Church Plaque To Be Dedicated Sunday

The dedication of the San Juan Church plaque in Lincoln will be held Sunday, June 23. The plaque is 80 inches by 36 inches.

The dedication will start with a service conducted by Rev. Richard Catanach at 6 p.m. This will be the Vesperio de San Juan or Eve of San Juan service which is a tradition that has been conducted annually since 1887 when the church was completed.

Mass will start at 6:30 p.m. The church will be decorated with asparagus ferns and paper flowers as it was in 1887. A choir of local people will sing during the dedication service.

The plaque will recognize the 175 people who contributed to the building of San Juan Church, started in 1882 and completed in 1887. They gave money, labor, vigs, cattle, sheep, adobes, and other material. Records show that 19,000 adobes were donated for the church. Local workers were paid $69 to lay the adobes; probably some of the labor was donated.

The deed to the property, valued at $575, was given by John B. and Benevita Wilson to J.B. Lamy, Archbishop of Santa Fe. Witnesses to the deed were Jas. J. Dolan and Jose Montano.

The Vesperio de San Juan will be followed by refreshments in the patio of the Lincoln County Heritage Trust.

Everyone is invited to attend the dedication and the descendants are especially invited.

SAN JUAN CHURCH PLAQUE will be dedicated Sunday, June 23 in Lincoln. Bill MacVeigh is shown working on the plaque which is 80 inches by 36 inches.

There will be no party and no gifts but friends will be dropping in at the ranch home of Myra Richards all day Saturday, June 22 to wish her well on her 90th birthday. Three great-granddaughters plan to make an appearance. Myra moved from Roswell to the ranch to Cotton Yancey has returned home to Bloomfield after several days here to do some iron work for his sister-in-law.

Jerry Rasak received word Saturday evening of the death of a cousin, Joe Nassar of Michigan City, Indiana. Mr. Nassar had no history of heart problems. Because of his own health problems Mr. Rasak decided against taking a flight out Sunday.

The Corona del Rey Chapter of Women's Aglow will present Ronnie and Marianne Brunson of Plainview, TX at the school auditorium at 7:00 p.m., Thursday, June 20, for an evening of singing and homemade ice cream. Ronnie will have his guitar and may borrow a violin.

Mr. and Mrs. Brunson accompanied by daughter D'Lynn and son, John, have been in Montana for the college rodeo finals where former national champions were honored last weekend.

Marianne was world champion in both goat tying and ribbon roping for two years while a student at Texas Tech.

Crown CowBelles met Saturday evening at the home of June and Tommy Tyree for their annual Father's Day picnic. With the lightning and thunder picnic tables were moved from the yard into one of the garages and all were smiling as they watched the raindrops fall. The centerpiece was a vase of beautiful roses from Muriel Pounds' yard. There was also a large cake with the inscription "To All Our Men". There were no speeches but the men were allowed, really pushed into going down the food line ahead of the ladies. There was so much food that many took home enough for Sunday dinner.

Later CowBelle president Lee Sultemeier called a short business meeting. The scholarship committee report was read. Three applications were received, one of those for an out of state college. The $250.00 scholarship was awarded to Shayla Marshall with book scholarships of $50.00 each going to Lindsey Bonds and Travis Joy, both of whom plan to attend ENMU at Portales. A committee is to be appointed to make any necessary rules revisions and a copy is to be filed in the school business office before the end of the first semester.

The president then reported on a suggestion made by Knollene McDaniel that the three county CowBelle locals, Canyon, Oriente and Crown get together and make awards to youngsters who show animals at the Lincoln County Fair — animals that they have bred and raised. No action was taken but all agreed that Knollene should proceed and report details back to Crown.

Present were 12 members including Jackie Boaz with one of her beautiful Australian shepherd puppies and two guests, Nora Tyree, Los Lunas, and Sherrill Bradford.

The next meeting will be at the ranch home of Mrs. Pounds with co-hostess Thomasene Bromans. The date will be announced later since the regular date falls on July 4.

Mrs. Rogene Alford, assisted by Shelly Frost, gave a tea for a small group of friends Thursday afternoon. This was something of a trial run. It is hoped that there may be several of these 'teas' before school starts, for the purpose of bringing people closer together for conversation over a cup of tea or punch. Guests were given a glove so they could practice picking up a cup with a gloved hand and discuss whether to or not to remove the glove. Joanne Joy was celebrating a special birthday and Alice Pearl Batley, Kerrville, TX accompanied her daughter, Lori Lamb. Mrs. Ward, Sandra's mother, was one of Mrs. Batley's teachers. This was a fun afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Gary Schaner were here from Albuquerque Sunday afternoon looking for lodging for Mrs. Schaner who is the new math teacher. Mrs. Schaner is dietician at the VA hospital, their daughter is a sophomore at UNM.

Dry Times . . .

pected places. Next to houses day lilies and red hot poker are now sending up their bright flowers in Ruidoso, Capitan, Hondo valley and Carrizozo.

Earlier pink phlox were in bloom from plants growing between cracks in the sidewalks in Ruidoso. All these plants were not watered except by nature.

Out along the highways, there are yellow flowers, Apache Plume with its soft pink tufts, and the state's flower yucca blooming with little or no water. Native grasses such as blue gramma and buffalo grass may look dry and nearly dead, but only a few showers turn it green. The hated purple thistle grows with little water, and produces lovely large purple flowers. Its leaves are not far different from oriental poppies. Usually thought of as a pest in the garden, perhaps it could have a place in a Xeriscape.

Containerized native plants are now available in nurseries and plant stores, even in our area. Ask for water hardy plants. Seeds can be saved from such plants as hollyhocks, and some plants growing along the highway rights of way could be dug up and transplanted in your yard in the fall.

If you just have to have bright flowers such as petunias and pansies, plant them in containers like barrels, hanging baskets, or large pots. These require less water than if planted in the ground, and waste water from sinks, bathtubs or laundry could be used if necessary.

Prune back fruit and ornamental trees and bushes, especially if they are dying at the ends. Most trees don't mind being shaped and clipped and they will consume less water if they have less branches and leaves.

When you water outdoors, try to do it at night, and don't sprinkle during a wind. Most of that sprinkled water evaporates before it gets to the ground. Place the sprinklers so they don't spray sidewalks, walls or streets. Water individual plants and trees with an open hose or bubbler. Dig a ring to contain the water around trees or bushes, plant ornamentals in a depression to catch the water.

Utilize any run off water from rain showers by digging ditches from the downspout from the house gutter to shrubs, trees and other plants. Divert water that normally would run off the driveway into the street to trees and other plants. For other outdoor jobs, use a broom, instead of the hose, to clean off sidewalks and driveways. Wash your car with a bucket of soapy water, instead of high pressure washing to spray off dirt.

Even though rainfall has been limited, and many have been restricted from using municipal water for landscaping, you can still have a colorful, green and inviting landscape by utilizing water hardy plants, grasses and trees. This is called Xeriscaping.

Another alternative is Zero-scaping, which can be seen in many locations, including some new commercial businesses in the Ruidoso area. It consists of gravel mostly, sometimes with some cacti and maybe a juniper. Zeroscaping is usually hot and can be uninteresting. Zero-scaping takes little or no work or water.

Xeriscaping takes a little work and water and a lot of prior planning. But the difference is Xeriscaping rewards us with color and greenery and is very interesting.

We are lucky here in Lincoln County. Many areas still have native grasses and flowers undisturbed by development. Some areas have plants that have gone wild such as the hollyhock.

Look around you, note what plants survive without care, then consider them whenever you are doing landscaping. They reward you with color and greenery without all the water and work.

State Speeds Up . . .

the board that there would be up to 100 kids, 14-18 years old, who are considered the "low 4 percent" of offenders from Springer. However, Billingsley did her math and figured if there are 400 boys in Springer, then four percent should only be 16 boys.

"No plans are being made to safeguard the camp of anything from our community," Billingsley said. Currently there are about two to three escapes from Springer every month. But commission chairman Monroy Montes said Springer is a different setting than CSB.

"Why are we surprised there is no plan," asked commissioner Wilton Howell. "The whole administration (Johnson) has no plan."

Howell was concerned that the first proposal was for 50 boys in a year and a half, and now it's short range with double the numbers. He also was concerned about the strain it would put on local law enforcement.

Billingsley also was concerned about some of the figures Henry told the school board, that there would be a one to one ratio of adults to boys in the camp programs. That would require at least 300 employees. "Their families will come in and where will they live and who will educate their kids," Billingsley said. "Capitan and Ruidoso schools are packed. So many things have not been thought of," she added.

She also was concerned that some of the program that involves employing the youth will provide too much competition for jobs for local youth, who already have a hard time finding work.

Schwettmann said the state plans to do the rfp in four weeks. "The whole thing has been handled badly," Schwettmann said.

Howell suggested they demand the state hold at least three public hearings in Capitan, Alto and Ruidoso on the proposal. "If the majority are opposed, I do believe we have the say, not the bureaucrats in Santa Fe."

"We cannot be lied to again," he added. Howell made the motion to call at least three public hearings to oppose the 100 juveniles at CSB based on the health, safety and welfare of the local populace, and he also called for the "strongly worded" letter objecting to the plan and asking the CYFD to be at the public hearings to address questions.

Schwettmann said he believed it was a done deal with the group in Florida. "They're the only ones who can meet the specs (of the rfp)," he said.

Howell reminded Schwettmann of the state's plans last year to use Fort Stanton as a temporary adult prison. Commissioners learned of those plans in time to campaign against them.

Eventually the state gave up the temporary prison plans. "We can't be bashful about this," Howell said.

"Who said we were bashful?" Schwettmann responded.

Concerns were voiced by commissioner Ray Nunley that the CSB camp would negatively impact the State Forestry and State Corrections proposal to have an adult environmental camp at Fort Stanton. Hearings on that proposal are set for July in Santa Fe. That prompted Montes to say, "Who wants to be a penal colony?"

Commissioners voted unanimously to call the public hearings, and to send the letter to CYFD, the governor, state senator Pete Campos, and state representative Dub Williams. Neither Campos or Williams could be contacted by Billingsley or commissioners by the time of the meeting.

Department of Finance and Administration, and the DWI employment agreements for DWI coordinator Charlie White and assistant. No county funds are used for the program, and the jobs are strictly on a contract agreement and will end when the grant funding ends.

Carrizozo School Makes Plans To Offer Breakfast For Students

Carrizozo Board of Education awarded the sale of the $450,000 school bonds to Kious and Company, Inc. of Albuquerque which offered the lowest percentage rate of 5.578. The other two bids received were more than six percent.

During the board regular meeting Tuesday, board members also voted to designate Norwest Bank as the registrar and paying agent for the $450,000 of general obligation bonds approved by the voters this spring. The actual sale of the bonds will take place on July 23, at which time the money will become available to the district for payment on projects.

What projects should come first was the subject of a workshop held before the regular meeting Tuesday. All agreed that improved technology was of top importance. This was based on the results of the Quality of Education Survey sent to parents in the spring. Again parents indicated strongly that the district does not provide access to up-to-date computers.

After discussion about the computer needs, which in turn require air conditioning and carpeting to reduce static to operate efficiently, district superintendent Paula Papponi recommended the board go with phased projects, which will better enable the district to apply for and obtain state critical capital outlay funds. Those funds are based on a district having been bonded to 75 percent capacity, which Carrizozo has done, and on the district having a three year plan. Papponi said the district will begin working on a three year plan.

Math and computer teacher Bob Hemphill presented information about the technology upgrade, saying the district needs first to install fiber optics to tie all the computers together. Hemphill had no costs however, because he was looking into several options.

Items listed for priority are technology and cooling for classrooms at the top, then cafeteria remodeling including heating and lighting systems improvements, phases 2 and 3 of the playground, site improvements and school furniture replacements. Papponi said those necessary things for the welfare of the students, such as faulty and broken doors, should be top priorities in this first year. Other site improvements such as broken floor tiles and bad carpeting will also be considered on a top priority basis.

Papponi assured the board that nothing will be done without board approval.

The board will hold a special meeting to review more definite figures on the cost of various projects. Consultants from Consolidated Educational Services of Albuquerque said the board will have to fast track any projects needed by this fall.

Carrizozo schools will offer breakfast next fall in an effort to improve student participation in the school cafeteria. The administration hopes that physical improvements of remodeling the kitchen and improving lighting will enable the district to meet its goal of no longer subsidizing the cafeteria from the general fund. To enable the district to comply with state and federal cafeteria guidelines, including lower fat foods, the board accepted the recommendation to go with a computerized menu program that can be adjusted to include regional dishes.

The board reviewed the results of the Quality of Education Survey. Most responses agreed that the district provides good buildings, has high expectations for academic achievement, encourages parents to participate in their child's education, and the children take responsibility for learning.

Areas where parents disagreed and strongly disagreed were in consistent discipline with 10 disagreeing and 6 strongly disagreeing, and adequate extra-curricular activities with two strongly disagreeing and 11 disagreeing.

The question about sufficient and appropriate information in the academic progress made two parents of elementary students strongly disagree and four in high school and middle school disagree. Two strongly disagreed that the school staff uses

EXTRA FIRE FIGHTING POWER. Extra fire crews and a helicopter were in Capitan last week to help beef up the firefighting personnel in the Lincoln County area. The personnel and helicopter went to a fire on Church Mountain and one on the north side of the Capitan Mountains last week. Recent rains have sent the extra personnel to fires elsewhere this week. The helicopter remains in Capitan for now because fire danger is still extreme.
