

Carrizozo Feels Left Out Says Capitan Trustee

by DORIS CHERRY

Carrizozo feels it was left out in a recent decision of the Lincoln County Solid Waste Authority to set aside $20,000 for expenses for the interim director.

So said Capitan Village Trustee Leroy Renfro during the regular Capitan village meeting Tuesday, October 9 held in a village hall that was soon to undergo some major changes. With little actual business on the agenda, trustees were updated on Lincoln County Solid Waste Authority (LCSWA) and the Capitan-Carrizozo Natural Gas (CCNG).

The most heated discussion came over LCSWA. Capitan trustee Debra Ingle, who sits on the LCSWA board as the representative for Capitan, started the update discussion. She said LCSWA (which picks up the trash for Capitan), said LCSWA is still hauling trash. It is holding within one percent of its budget while purchasing new additional poly carts, established a new poly cart route and purchased new dumpsters, including the 40-yard roll offs for construction trash, and new containers for the recycling program to replace the igloos. Also, LCSWA is purchasing two transport trucks to replace trucks that have been driven 750,000 to a million miles. "Otherwise, the solid waste authority is doing pretty good," Ingle said.

Mayor Norman Renfro then discussed the roll off program for the village. He said the roll off container, open Monday to Friday from 5-7 p.m. lost money this summer. He suggested the program be scaled back to one or two days a week.

"We still need it, but not as much in the winter," Renfro added.

Montes said he was concerned about the loss. "The fees paid should at least be equal to what we made,"

Local History Highlight At Woman's Club 80th

The history of the Carrizozo Woman's Club will be presented Sunday, October 14 from 4 p.m. to 6 p.m. during the Woman's Club 80th birthday tea. The public is invited to attend. Music, stories and memorabilia about old time Carrizozo will be presented at the 80th birthday tea. Hats, gloves, parasols and period dress are optional.

The club held their first meeting in April 1920, elected officers, and began their first 80 years of service to the community and the area. The first club books for the 65 members were typed by members with page material and cover material donated by members. Each of the club members were employed during the day and they worked on the club books in the evenings.

Meetings were held in the Lutz building that first year and the rent was $2. They held a joint meeting with the chamber of commerce and learned the importance of being familiar with parliamentary rules if they were "to equal the sterner sex in putting things over," according to a report given on the club's 14th anniversary. The next few years the club met in different locations, in member's homes, in the county courthouse, and in various buildings in the area.

Dues were set at 50 cents a year until 1924 when dues were raised to $1 and in 1926 dues were $1.25 a year with associate members dues set at $2.

Club projects those first few years included a banquet for the teachers of Lincoln County, helping the PTA in serving undernourished school children hot soup and milk, and it

County To Reconsider The Parking Ordinance

by DORIS CHERRY

Lincoln County Commissioners will hold a public hearing at 10 a.m. Thursday, October 18 in their chambers in the Lincoln County Courthouse in Carrizozo on a proposed ordinance that will modify an ordinance prohibiting parking along county roads, which they passed in June.

County commissioners made the decision to reconsider the ordinance during their regular September 20 meeting held in their chambers in the Lincoln County Courthouse in Carrizozo. In discussing the need to reconsider the ordinance, county commissioner chair Rex Wilson said the intent of the ordinance was to focus on camping along county roads and rights of way, not parking. As adopted, the ordinance makes it illegal to "stop, stand or park any vehicle on County named roads or county rights of way."

During the original public hearing on the ordinance, some citizens were concerned about making it illegal to stop along county roads, and questioned how the county would enforce this.

Also at their September 20 meeting, county commissioners adopted an ordinance that amended the previous ordinance on excavation in rights of way, or road cuts. Under the changes, the county will charge a $25 administration fee per permit plus additional fees for excavations, and/or culverts, in all county rights of way and other properties. Culvert fees will be charged at 5 cents per linear foot.

Carrizozo May Enforce Juvenile Curfew Again

by JEFF HAMMOND

Carrizozo Police Chief Angelo Vega urged the town council to consider re-instituting the curfew for juveniles during the town council meeting Oct. 9. Vega stated that with all of the vandalism and theft that has been occurring recently that the town needs to make the offender's parents responsible and accountable for their child's behavior. Vega has been researching the legalities of bringing the existing curfew ordinance up to date.

Currently the town has a curfew ordinance, but during a landmark case here in New Mexico proceedings the curfew was not enforced. Now we need it (the curfew) again said Vega. The council asked Vega to confer with the town attorney concerning changes that will need to be made in the curfew ordinance.

Vega also mentioned the need for setting up the annual auction of outdated or duplicate items in police inventory. Vega said he had several things to sell, and he thought the maintenance department also had some things. Vega said he would have a list of items ready by next regular town council meeting.

Vega gave a short report about attending the New Mexico Municipal League conference in Grants.

October 9 was proclaimed Dorothy Queen Day. Dorothy Queen, a long time resident of Carrizozo and the area, celebrated her 90th birthday September 19.

Rick Volquardson of Mountain Communications was once again present to answer any questions about the cable service he is offering to provide to Carrizozo.

Volquardson spoke at the meeting last month, outlining the service he would provide to Carrizozo; 70 channels, with the town

Montes said. "Maybe we should collect (charge) more."

Ingle and village clerk Kathryn Griffin said they were also concerned about this deficit. Ingle said she thought the deficit could be turned around.

Renfro suggested Griffin and Ingle get with the roll off employee to do "more schooling" and perhaps to reduce the days open. He asked that a report on their findings be given at the November meeting.

A resident asked if LCSWA picks up big items. Ingle said for $15 a cubic yard, LCSWA will make a special pick up of items.

After a bit more discussion about holiday schedules for poly carts, Montes said it had come to his attention that a commissioner and the mayor of Carrizozo are concerned about the use of proxy votes for LCSWA board members. "I don't think Carrizozo was given a fair shake as you took proxy votes from Corona and Lincoln County," Montes said. "They want it changed so there are no proxy votes."

Ingle said normally the board members carry only one proxy vote. "I carried the proxy vote for Corona," she said.

"I don't think it's right," Montes continued. "If a board member is not at the meeting, he shouldn't have a vote."

Village attorney Don Dutton said according to the LCSWA bylaws proxy votes are allowed. At one time, proxy votes could be carried by anyone representing an entity. But that was changed to require proxy votes to be carried by a LCSWA board member only. "Proxy votes are necessary because board members are busy and at times would have no quorum," Dutton added. "Corona is a lon way to Ruidoso Downs and sometimes the meetings are short." Dutton said the proxy voting has been discussed very much by the LCSWA board that concluded the only way to get work done is to allow the proxy votes.

Ingle said she had never been aware of a LCSWA board member carrying more than one proxy vote since she has been on the board.

Montes asked who carried the proxy vote for Modesto Chavez the county representative at the last meeting. Ingle said Frank Cummins, the Ruidoso representative carry the proxy for Chavez.

Trustee John Whitaker agreed with Montes saying he thought members should be able to vote only if they "think it is important enough to be at the meeting."

Trustee Benny Coker said proxy votes are allowed, unless the LCSWA bylaws are changed.

A resident asked why the Capitan trustees were so concerned about Carrizozo. Montes said because Carrizozo is part of LCSWA. The resident said she did not think discussion about Carrizozo should be part of the Capitan village meeting.

Another resident asked why the mayor of Carrizozo would complain if someone is carrying a Corona vote.

Ingle said two votes do not make a majority of the LCSWA board.

Dutton invited Montes to attend the next LCSWA board meeting and express how he felt. But Montes said he could not attend the LCSWA meetings because they were held in the day when he has to work. "I could go if they held the meetings at the night like all other organizations," he added. But Dutton said not all organizations hold meetings at night. Montes snapped back that he would not argue because Dutton is the attorney for the village (of Capitan) and for LCSWA.

Dutton was apparently offended by Montes reference. "I will not let you get by with that," Dutton said to Montes. "Your motives are not in the best interest of Capitan."

Renfro quieted the discussion and said he would not allow it. He told Montes to go to the LCSWA board about his concerns.

Ingle then said the discussion was all about the LCSWA board putting her in charge, because LCSWA "was going broke." Ingle, who is chair of the LCSWA board, said she was not paid except for her travel and cell phone for two and a half months. "The LCSWA board approved of paying my expenses," she continued. She said she did disclose all to her best ability, she had no building to lease, nothing to hide. "I was just trying to help the organization continue to pick up the trash," she said. "and I got compensated at half of what every other manager has gotten."

At the November meeting, the LCSWA board will determine if they will keep Ingle as a director. "Our meetings are open to the public. The board is solid with good representatives," Ingle said. She praised the Carrizozo representative, Lloyd Nickerson, who is always at the meetings and is a very excellent member, and the member from Ruidoso Downs who attends most meetings.

Montes agreed, Ingle should have been paid for her time, but he also questioned why she had offered to do it for free. Ingle said when the LCSWA board adopted its 2001-02 budget they eliminated the salary for the manager for two and a half months. "Once we saw a turn around (in the budget) the board agreed to put $20,000 in the budget for expenses," Ingle continued. "I was not hired as an employee, and I am not paid as an employee." Ingle said Rick Simpson, county commissioner and former county representative on the LCSWA board, who was hired as LCSWA manager was called an "interim manager" until he was hired, at $40,000 a year, plus a vehicle and cell phone and credit card. Jerry Wright had been a representative for Ruidoso when LCSWA was unable to find a manager, so Wright agreed to be manager and was paid $35,000 a year plus a vehicle and cell phone.

Whitaker asked if this was a conflict of interest for Ingle. She said Simpson had been in the same situation (Simpson had been chair of the LCSWA board, then resigned from the board when he was hired as the manager). The county and village attorneys had written opinions finding no conflict if Simpson resigned from the board. Dutton said Ingle should "be given a plaque and put on the payroll because she turned things around."

Dutton suggested Montes write a letter of concern to the LCSWA board if he is unable to attend the LCSWA meetings. Dutton who was Village of Ruidoso representative on LCSWA for three years, said nothing has ever been done at LCSWA behind closed doors and has had two newspapers reporting about it.

Ingle said LCSWA members get paid $25 if they attend the meeting. "There are no proxy checks," Dutton joked.

Upper Hondo S&W Awards Presented

Upper Hondo Soil and Water Conservation District re-elected a supervisor and awarded honors during the annual meeting and new office Open House on October 6 in Capitan.

With about 100 in attendance, members re-elected by acclamation James Sanchez of Lincoln as a district supervisor. There were no other nominations.

After a reception and Open House to show off the new district office on Highway 380 west in Capitan, the district hosted a dinner and the meeting at the Capitan School cafeteria. Sanchez welcomed the group and summarized the programs the district sponsors. "We encouraged owners of smaller properties to participate," Sanchez said of the district's focus. "We want everybody to get involved with conservation."

At the end of the presentations, awards were given. Sally Canning of Lincoln/Capitan received the Outstanding Supervisor Award for her work for the district and for conservation overall. Dick and David Cox of Noga Mesa won the Outstanding Ranchers award for their brush control work on 5,400 acres. The Cox ranch has utilized conservation programs since 1959. Capitan 5th grade teacher Tiffany Menix received the Outstanding Teacher Award. Howard Shanks coordinator for the South Central Mountain RC&D received the Professional Public Servant Award.

Thomas Roybal, Upper Hondo district, was recognized for having received an award from the Forest Service for his supervision of the work on the Cree Fire re-hab. Also recognized was Mary Shanks, Capitan second grade teacher and Upper Hondo District supervisor, for receiving an Distinguished Service award from Congresswoman Heather Wilson.

Before the awards, Sanchez told attendees about the District which meets at 4 p.m. the first Thursday of each month at the office in Capitan. The district collects a tax levy of one-half mill from people who own land in the unincorporated areas of the district. The tax is used for conservation projects, salary for a program director, educational and operational expenses.

Conservation cost-share projects include repair of diversions, stream bank protection, brush management, fencing, wells, livestock and irrigation pipelines, land leveling, small dams and water storage facilities. Cooperators receive up to 50 percent of the cost to complete projects up to $3,500 a year per individual. However, the district tabled the cost share assistance this fiscal year in order to purchase the new office building. The cost share assistance program will be reinstated in fiscal year 2002 which begins July 1, 2002.

Sanchez also summarized the district achievements and programs this year, including the Noxious Weed Workshop held in Ruidoso on May 12, the annual Conservation Days program for 5th graders, Project Soil kits and videos sold, web page promoting soil, support of the South Central Mountain RC&D, Inc. with clerical assistance, the Rolling Rivers Water Trailer a hands-on display of how erosion works complete with real water.

Roybal, with the Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS), did a slide presentation about the cooperative rehab project on the Cree Fire. NRCS assisted the US Forest Service, and the villages of Ruidoso and Ruidoso Downs and the county of Lincoln participated in the projects. Roybal super-

THOUGHTS

FROM THE EDITOR'S DESK

Trasby local business

By Ruth Hammond

There seems to be an abundance of misinformation as to what type of business may be conducted at the local municipal council meetings. Apparently one of the Capitan village trustees wanted the Capitan Trustees to set policy for the Lincoln County Solid Waste Authority (LCSWA) at the Capitan village meeting Tuesday. And apparently this Capitan trustee attempted to conduct Carrizozo business at the Capitan meeting. And at the same time the Capitan trustee was discussing Carrizozo town business the mayor of Carrizozo was blatantly announcing what Capitan did not like to do. Does this sound as if two elected officials from the separate communities were trying to coerce the public into believing something that was not true? Or does it sound as if decisions are being made by these two elected officials about their separate communities? And what is the reason for both elected officials making these statements at nearly the same time on the same night? Coincidence?

Really now, do these two people believe the public is that gullible? First of all, policy for LCSWA should be set at a LCSWA meeting, not at a town or village council meeting and second, these two people should research the facts before making stupid statements. The Capitan trustee said that Debra Ingle took two proxies to the LCSWA meeting. The truth is that Ingle has NEVER taken two proxies to a LCSWA meeting, and definitely not at the meeting stated. The last time one person carried two proxies to a LCSWA meeting was July 2000 when Angelo Vega, who was NOT a member of LCSWA, went to the LCSWA meeting with two proxies, one from the Corona LCSWA representative and one from Carrizozo LCSWA representative Cynthia Morales. The only other time one person took two proxies was when Ruidoso was a LCSWA member and the mayor of Ruidoso took two proxies from two Ruidoso members.

And it should be the Carrizozo LCSWA representative to state at a LCSWA meeting any concerns as to whether Carrizozo felt an action was unfair, not a Capitan trustee. It seems that the Capitan trustee was elected to work for Capitan not try to conduct Carrizozo town business. And the mayor of Carrizozo's statement that Capitan doesn't like to bill for LCSWA is ridiculous. Capitan should be quite capable of taking care of their own Capitan business.

Some LCSWA members report to the governing bodies they represent. When Ben Bradley represented Carrizozo at LCSWA he reported at town council meetings as to what business was conducted at the LCSWA meetings. There have been no reports recently by the representative for Carrizozo at the LCSWA meetings. Is that because the mayor does not want the public to know? Or is there some other reason? Or maybe these two elected officials from two different communities are making their own decisions.

Hoodwinking the public might have been their intent, but the fact remains that each municipality should conduct their own business. And LCSWA business should be conducted by the LCSWA board. And the best interest of the public should be the main objective, not furthering personal goals.

Barrows Strategies To Lease Glencoe Center

Lincoln County Commissioners approved a lease of the Glencoe Rural Events Center by Sherry Barrow Strategies to operate a wood waste processing facility, contingent to approval from the U.S. Department of Agriculture that funded the construction of the Joe Skeen Arena.

Sherry Barrow Strategies, WUD, Inc. offered the only proposal to lease the Glencoe Rural Events Center (GREC) in response to a request for proposals advertised by the county in August. During the regular county commission meeting on September 20, held in the Lincoln County Courthouse in Carrizozo, county manager Tom Stewart said he reviewed the proposal as did county attorney Alan Morel, the county purchasing agent, and Hondo Schools.

"While the proposal seeks a long term lease," Stewart said. "The attorney recommends that the lease should be limited to less than five years." Stewart said anything over five years requires Department of Finance and Administration (DFA) approval.

Stewart recommended the proposal be awarded to Sherry Barrows Strategies because the proposed use of the facility would help with the elimination of forest materials, relieve the county of the current $19,500 management agreement with Hondo Schools; create employment for at least four citizens and does not impact the use of the Joe Skeen Arena.

At a special meeting Wednesday, October 3, held at the Ruidoso Downs Village Hall, county commissioners finalized the lease with WUD, Inc. The terms of the lease are for four years, beginning October 17, 2001. WUD, Inc. will pay the county $1,200 for the first year, $3,000 for the second year, $6,000 for the third and fourth year. The total amount of rent to be paid to the county from WUD, Inc. will be $16,200.

In the lease language, it is written that the "Lessee proposed to lease the facilities and property to WUD, Inc. for the purpose of operating a wood waste processing facility, utilizing by-products of the process to create sustainable economic development in the geographic region encompassing the Lincoln National Forest and Lincoln County, which will benefit Lessor, the community and the State of New Mexico.

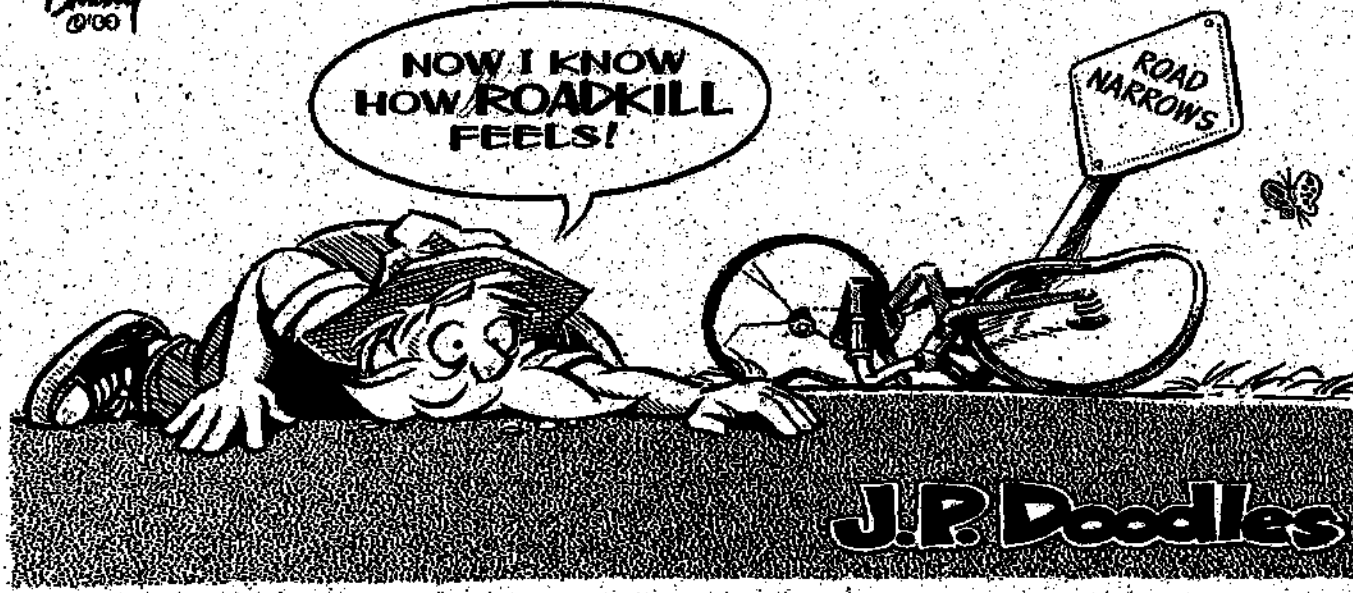

The Glencoe Rural Events Center and Joe Skeen arena is located 12 miles east of Ruidoso on Highway 70.

"Additional consideration for the lease is based upon the County's desire to provide a venue for wood waste resulting from forest restoration and maintenance, thus reducing the risk of catastrophic wild-fire occurrences and promoting watershed protection and wildlife habitat for the benefit of the residents

SANTA FE - A fascinating exhibit on the use of World War II POWs as farm laborers throughout the state is in its final preparation stages at the New Mexico Farm & Ranch Heritage Museum in Las Cruces.

That's right. German and Italian prisoners of war were employed to get the job done on New Mexico's farms when labor shortages became acute during World War II.

Over 400,000 enemy soldiers captured by American and Allied forces were shipped stateside to sit out the war. Recent research has determined that 11,473 were sent to New Mexico. Initially only a handful of large POW camps were set up. However, when officials recognized that these soldiers could be put to work, particularly in agriculture, they set up smaller, regional branch camps.

Local farmers could then request POW day laborers for farming tasks or for harvesting crops. Farmers paid the federal government for their POW contract labor and the government then paid the POWs a small wage. Farmers also provided transportation from the camps to the fields and back.

After the war, most POWs reported that their treatment and living conditions were far better than they could have expected if they had stayed in their respective armies. Some Americans thought the POWs were treated too well, while others were simply grateful for their help.

Two base camps were established in New Mexico, one at Roswell and the other at Lordsburg. Later, 19 branch camps were set up to get POWs closer to the farms where they were needed. Two alien internment camps for German, Italian and Japanese Americans were established at Fort Stanton and Santa Fe. These are not included in the study since they were not POW camps.

For this oral history project, 70 interviews were conducted with 26 farm owners and workers, 21 townspeople and children, 17 camp guards or workers, 3 program administrators and 3 former POWs. Questionnaires were mailed to 22 former POWs living in Germany.

Eleven were returned and have been translated. Two former POWs are being interviewed by their children.

In addition, much research was done in the archives at area universities, museums and government agencies and in the microfilm records at newspapers in Roswell, Las Cruces, Deming, Lordsburg, Artesia, Carlsbad, Alamogordo Fort Sumner and Portales. Area historians, such as Elvis Fleming in Roswell and Mollie Pressler in Lordsburg, also collaborated on the project.

Widespread interest has been expressed and assistance given by German and Italian organizations and individuals throughout the nation and in Germany and Italy. The opening reception speaker, on January 26, 2002, will be Dr. Ruediger Overmans of the University of Freiburg, who will compare the experiences of German POWs in the various allied countries.

The exhibit will examine the need for agricultural work the POWs performed, how the POW system was administered, and the interactions and reactions of POWs, guards, employers, co-workers and the general public.

Robert Hart, the curator of interpretation at the New Mexico Farm & Ranch Heritage Museum, has been keeping me posted on the progress of this ambitious project for almost two years and it is now only a few months from completion.

The exhibit will run from January 26 through June, 2002. It then will be available for travel beginning in September. Numerous states and countries have indicated an interest.

The project is funded by the New Mexico Endowment for the Humanities, the Historical Society of New Mexico, the Dona Ana County Historical Society, the New Mexico Farm & Ranch Heritage Foundation and the Fredrich Ebert Foundation.

Interesting sidebar panels to the exhibit will familiarize visitors with the Geneva Convention provisions for POWs, Braceros and other emergency labor programs; the detention of the crew from the German cruise ship SS Columbus who were held at Fort Stanton, Japanese internment camps and German escape attempts.

Flu Shots To Be Late This Year

Flu shots will not be delivered until late November, stated a press release from the New Mexico Department of Health (NMDOH).

NMDOH has learned through the U.S. Centers for Disease Control that due to difficulty in culturing one of the three strains of influenza found in this year's virus, flu vaccine delivery will be delayed nationwide for the 2001-02 flu season.

To arrange for a flu shot contact your medical provider or the health department offices in Carrizozo at 648-2317 or Ruidoso 258-3252.

having its own channel, a local weather channel and he would offer premium channels as well as regular cable channels.

The town will send Charter Communications a letter requesting Charter representatives attend the next meeting and present their version of service interruptions reasons.

The council approved amending the ordinance letting Lincoln County Solid Waste Authority (LCSWA) set their own rates and fees. The town will continue to collect trash fees, included with the water bill. The new rate for residential trash services was $12.75 a month, beginning July, 2001. Trustee Eileen Lovelace asked if Carrizozo was charging for doing the billing, and was told no.

Town foreman Jim Payne told the trustees that the dump is now open every Saturday, but that this means he is short one person on his crew the following Monday to make up for the eight hour differences. Payne said this is especially hard because everyone on his crew, and he himself are taking vacation time this month, causing extra gaps in coverage.

The council approved six different sets of minutes dating from April 24 through August 27. Apparently these were from the bad set of tapes.

The Infrastructure Capital Improvement Plan (ICIP) for 2002 was approved but there was no announcement as to what was on the list.

The CBS environmental storm water pollution plan is 90 percent completed at the airport. No further information was given as to what this plan is.

The council approved the agreement for professional services with the South-eastern New Mexico Economic Development District (SNMEDD) for the wastewater treatment plant grant. This is for a Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) colonias grant. This agreement is in addition to the annual agreement the town has with SNMEDD. Lovelace cast a nay vote.

The town also approved the special events permit for the school homecoming parade Friday afternoon.

The town received approval from the state Department of Finance Administration (DFA) for the final budget.

October Fun Fact . . .

What are sewers?
Sewers are large pipes or tunnels under the streets of a city. Streams of water flow constantly through these sewers. Drainpipes from houses empty into sewers, carrying waste.

Woman's Club 80th

was estimated that in the first 14 years at least $6,000 had been received and distributed as a service to others such as scholarship loan funds, school children's books, PTA and charity. Plans were also being made for a new clubhouse and that fund increased slowly.

Club members became more aware of conservation of natural resources and thrift in the home after the depression. During the war years members sold war bonds and stamps, and one member knitted 70 pairs of socks and gave 1,000 hours of her time to Red Cross work.

The Carrizozo Woman's Club sponsored art exhibits, silver teas, the senior breakfast, a sewing contest, a child welfare program, buying glasses for children and lunches for crippled children. Other events included sponsoring the birthday calendar, entering floats in the county fair and giving silver trophies to winners at the county fair. The club contributed to Boy's Ranch, Penny Art fund and other worthy causes presented to the club.

One of the most noteworthy achievements of the Carrizozo Woman's Club is that they sponsored and built the first roadside park in the state, that park is now the Valley of Fires Recreation Area west of Carrizozo on US Hwy 380.

The club also helped the Town of Carrizozo by sponsoring a sewer system and sponsoring the swimming pool.

County to Reconsider

The changes also require barricades be in place during excavation and requires culverts, at least 20 feet long, on all driveways that intersect with county rights of way, unless exempted by the county road superintendent. The changes also require barricades be installed at all excavations, and lists boring as the primary manner of excavation, unless proven geologically or technically unfeasible.

Another addition to the ordinance states that permit fees will be doubled if work has commenced prior to a permit being issued from the Lincoln County Road Department, "other than in a case of an emergency."

The county excavation ordinance only applies to county roads, rights of way and other county properties not included in a municipality, or in a mutually agreed planning area (extraterritorial zone).

Violations of the excavation ordinance are subject to fines up to $300 each offense.

Also at the September 20 meeting county commissioners held a hearing and adopted projects for the 2002 Infrastructure Capital Improvement Plan (ICIP). Renovation of the old detention center is the first priority for the ICIP which is a plan for building, remodeling and purchasing of major items. The ICIP is used in making requests for state appropriation requests.

The other priorities for the ICIP are expansion of the county substation clinic, upgrade of Lincoln County Sheriff's Dispatch center in the Lincoln County Courthouse, and a detention center annex for DWI offenders.

County commissioner Leo Martinez asked for a detox center outside the Lincoln County Detention Center (LCDC). Barbara Reyes, DWI program coordinator asked for a medically sound half way house for DWI offenders. Lincoln County Assessor Rick Silva asked for radios for his office staff.

The ICIP will be used in making requests for appropriations from the 2002 New Mexico State Legislature, during its session in January-February. County commissioners also discussed and agreed to make appropriation requests for projects that include requirements for computer programmers making them partially liable for work they perform. "This initiative is to be directed toward Triadic (computer programmers) due to their virtual monopoly on county government programming statewide," said county manager Tom Stewart.

Other proposed legislative priorities are a reauthorization of $41,604 from the New Horizons fire sprinkler project to the Lincoln Water Association for upgrades; $100,000 for renovation of the old detention center and $175,000 for a new dispatch radio console; request for liquor tax funding for a detox facility for Lincoln County Medical Center (LCMC) and funding for a DWI offender treatment; and funding for a detention annex for DWI and other nonviolent offenders. Other legislative requests include adding language to the appropriation for the Lincoln County Fairgrounds that would include "construction" which is not covered by the current appropriation.

County commissioners also:

-Adopted the election of Title III projects for the Secure Rural Schools and Community Self Determination Act of 2000 that could provide up to $69,000 a year with 80 percent going to the road department and the remaining for special projects on local forests, county projects that are forest related or be returned to the U.S. treasury. The county designated $5,000 to search and rescue, $5,000 to the forest study with Otero County, with the remaining as yet determined. The state legislature will be asked to clarify the percentages of the funding for schools and counties. Title III funding is for counties with declining and unpredictable timber revenues.

Upper Hondo S&W Awards

vised an average of 80 workers to set out erosion control "wattles" devices down the fire damaged slopes. Also Roybal showed slides of a cooperative project done with the county that did erosion control in a drainage off the fire area that threatened to flood a residence in lower Eagle Creek.

"Mostly people think of the district as only for ranchers and farmers," Roybal said. "This shows how the district and NRCS help communities and individuals."

-Rejected an $80,000 letter of credit from Milton Mallard, developer of the Eagle Ridge Subdivision, because it does not cover the estimated costs of improvements needed at the development to meet the county subdivision regulations.

-Accepted the federally mandated changes to the Lincoln County drug and alcohol testing to both Department of Transportation (DOT) and non-DOT procedures. Changes address definitions of adulterated specimen, designated employer representative, detection of 8-acetylmorphine, inability to urinate procedures, collector qualification modifications, refusal to test, retesting, return to duty testing and supervised collection procedures. Stewart commented that the county quarterly random testing program has been operating in "outstanding fashion."

-Voted to support an initiative from assessor Silva to create an internet access for data from the county assessor's office, with recommendations that the cost to do this not be entirely borne by the county. Cost of the project would be more than $52,000, Silva said.

-Approved transfer of $25,000 from the general fund to the assessor's re-appraisal fund to cover a shortfall due to purchases of vehicles and salaries, until the revenues from the county property taxes come in. Stewart said purchases should be programmed in accordance to revenue flow. The transfer from the general fund will be returned after the reappraisal revenues are received from the 2001 property taxes.

-Authorized the sale by sealed bid of three S10 pickups from the assessor's office. The 1990, and two 1991 Chevy S10 pickups have blue book values of $6,145 to $6,650. The assessor's office recently purchased four new sports utility vehicles.

-Accepted a $3,500 EMS grant, $1,000 Helping Hearts grant and $24,750 FEMA grant for firefighting equipment for the Bonito Volunteer Fire Department.

-Okayed a resolution that appoints Lincoln County emergency coordinator Rosemary Luchini Gonzalez as Lincoln County applicant agent for disaster reimbursements for $14,908 in funding from the state for county expenses for the Musketball, Pinatosa and Trap and Skeet fires.

-Authorized the manager to request a one year ex-

Puppets at School

The 3rd graders of Carrizozo Elementary School got the chance to take time out of their regular old school day to watch a puppet show put on by Mrs. Gieb, the music teacher, on Thursday, September 13. However, this wasn't your typical "Punch and Judy" puppet show.

The students were not only entertained by the show, but they were also acquainted with all the different types of puppets and how they function. Each puppet had its own name and was introduced with a little bit of background.

In addition to observing all the different types of puppets, Mrs. Gieb also filled the students in on the history of puppetry and where it came from. The presentation inspired Cheyanne Riggs, one of the students, so much that she bought her own puppet, whom she called Ally, to spend the next day at school with her and her classmates.

Disappointing Loss For Grizzlies First District Game

The Carrizozo Grizzlies (1-5) hosted the Lake Arthur Panthers (5-1) last Friday, September 5, at Laabs Field.

The first quarter started off when Zozo kicked off to the Panthers. The Panthers started off their drive at the 30-yard line. The Grizzlies held them to the fourth down but couldn't keep the pressure on. The Panthers later scored on the opening drive to put them up by 8-0 in the opening minutes of the game.

The Grizzlies had trouble moving the ball in their tight offense. The only success was when they were in spread formation. Lane Dixon led the offense with his quick thinking and his running speed but couldn't hold the team up all game.

The Grizzlies struggled with their offense and also their defense. The defensive charge led by hard-hitting Abel Avila and Levi Boble, but plagued by injuries all year, made it difficult for the Grizzlies. Avila was pulled from some of the game because of a persistent ankle injury. Also, Lane Dixon wasn't much help with his "hip pointer", acquired weeks ago during the Reserve game.

The Mercy Rule was evoked at half time with the final score of 52-0 with Panthers on top. The Grizzlies' coach Pat Ventura states, "We played a lot better offensively, but we played in spurts."

The next Grizzly game will be held at Laabs Field against the Mescalero Chiefs. Kickoff starts at 4:00 p.m. on Friday, September 12, starting with junior high followed by the varsity at 7:00 p.m.
