

Colonias Designation Given To Two Villages

By Doris Cherry

The villages of Capitan and Ruidoso Downs are within 150 miles of the Mexican Border. This gives the two communities a special status in seeking federal funds for municipal projects, especially water and sewer and housing.

This year the two municipalities learned they were actually within 150 miles of the border and began the process of applying to become a designated colonia. With the colonia designation, the villages would be eligible for special consideration under the Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) process. The Town of Carrizozo has already qualified for a colonia designation.

During the October 18 meeting of the Lincoln County Commissioners they approved a resolution supporting the requests from the two villages, to the state Department of Finance and Administration (DFA), to have the designation of colonia for the villages of Capitan and Ruidoso Downs.

Capitan trustees at their August meeting approved a resolution seeking the colonia designation, Ruidoso Downs trustees did similarly at their October 9 meeting. Tony Elias, director of the Southeastern New Mexico Economic Development District (SNMEDD) who helps with the CDBG process, presented the information on the colonia to the county commissioners.

County commissioner Leo Martinez asked if the county could pursue a colonia designation.

A Cedar Creek resident said Lincoln has water problems and why not seek a colonia designation to get more funds.

Lincoln resident Ralph Dunlap asked if his community would qualify as a colonia to get funds for the water system.

Elias said there are phys-

Local Student In D.C. During Scare

The day Carrizozo High School student Anthony Beltran was supposed to go to the U.S. Senate Building in Washington D.C. the building was closed—because of the anthrax contamination.

Beltran, and about 350 other students from all around the nation, were delegates to the National Young Leaders Conference in Washington D.C. on October 23 to 28, during the height of the anthrax scare.

"The day we were supposed to go to Congress," Beltran told THE NEWS, "they shut down the building where they found the anthrax."

Beltran and other delegates did get to go to the U.S. Supreme Court Building, the day before that building was shut down for anthrax. Beltran said they were instructed to watch their health when they got home and go to the doctor right away with any respiratory symptoms. So far, Beltran said he was fine.

Nominated by Carrizozo High School graduate Stella Brewer who attended the conference in 2000, Beltran said he got to meet lots of interesting people from all over the country.

The theme of the conference was The Leaders of Tomorrow Meeting the Leaders of Today. Beltran said he did get to meet with one senator, but was unable to meet with New Mexico senators Pete Domenici and Jeff Bingaman.

Throughout the conference and associated tours of government facilities, students were organized into groups of about 20, done by alphabetical order. With this small group Beltran met with the assistant U.S. Attorney General Viet Minh who talked about issues and the local events. "I really had a good experience," Beltran said. "And I got to learn how Congress and the Supreme Court work."

Students also participated in a simulated "Meet the Press" type press conference with four Washington D.C. journalists at the National Press Club.

Other activities Beltran participated in during the conference were "If I were President" role-play activity where students act as the president and cabinet members responding to an international crisis; a judicial simulation called "Testing the Constitution" where they examined Supreme Court cases and the final activity "Model Congress" where students assumed the roles of U.S. representatives, debated, amended and voted on proposed legislation.

Beltran said he did fund raisers to make enough money to pay for the conference.

Workshop Wed., Nov. 14 On Capitan Village Plan

The Village of Capitan will host a workshop on proposed updates to the Comprehensive Plan from 6:30-8:30 p.m. Wednesday, November 14, in the multipurpose room at Capitan School.

Comprehensive plans are designed to guide growth and development in a community for the next 20 to 30 years. Funds to pay for the update of the village's existing plan are coming from the federal Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) program.

The existing plan was prepared in 1988.

At the special workshop, residents will have a chance to indicate the most pressing needs of the community.

A planning team from Sites Southwest, which was commissioned by the village to help draft the comprehensive plan, will be at the workshop. They will help residents in devising goals and objectives in a number of areas including economic development, roads, public facilities, utilities, housing and land use. After an introduction to the project, participants will break into small groups to tackle one or two topics. Their input will be used to develop more general policies.

The updated Comprehensive Plan will be prepared under the direction and recommendations of the village Planning Commission. The village trustees will review and approve the final draft of the updated plan.

Updating the Comprehensive Plan will assist the village in obtaining CDBG funds in the future.

Refreshments will be served.

THOUGHTS

FROM THE EDITOR'S DESK

Honor The Veterans

By Ruth Hammond

Veteran's Day this year will have, or should have, a special meaning for everyone. The recent attacks on our nation have made people aware that things can happen and as in the past we once again need our Armed Forces to help protect our nation. The main thing is for each of us to realize that our Armed Forces personnel are risking their lives to help assure that our American way of life is safe.

Every time the United States has been involved in any kind of war, or police action, or conflict, the Armed Forces have been there to defend our country. There have also been Merchant Marines assisting in many of our nation's battles by transporting supplies such as food and fuel. All of these veterans should be honored this Veteran's Day.

There have been dissenters through the years objecting to the United States being involved in other nation's wars. Apparently the recent attacks in the United States have made some of these people aware that it can happen here too. And apparently some of these people are appreciating what our Armed Forces have done in the past and what they continue to do at this time. It is sad that it had to take an attack on us here at home to change their opinions.

Even now the attacks continue in subverse ways. The threat of anthrax contaminating the mail is unthinkable, but it has happened and probably will happen again. The threat of other deadly diseases being spread in the United States will affect the way we do things. These threats must be taken seriously, but we cannot stop living just because something might happen. We must be aware that the safe, supposedly safe lives we have had, are in jeopardy and once again our Armed Forces will defend our nation, whether it is here in the United States or somewhere else.

Regardless of whether you live in New York City or out here in rural New Mexico, your life will be changed by the things that happened two months ago this Veteran's Day. More and more troops are being shipped out to fight for our freedom. These are your loved ones, family members and friends. And it will have an effect on you as you wait and watch for news of when they will return safely home.

And each of us has a responsibility to help bring an end to this most recent war and bring our Armed Forces people home as soon as possible. We need to work together and show the world that it is more productive to work together than it is to allow splinter groups to undermine our nation. We need to show our respect to our Armed Forces and to all veterans who have served through the years. Without our veterans we would not have had a country to defend.

News of some of the ceremonies to honor veterans on this Veteran's Day is listed in the Calendar of Events in this issue. If you do not attend one of the ceremonies, please take time to remember and honor veterans past and present on this day that has been set aside to honor them.

Sincere appreciation goes to all veterans for all they have done to preserve our way of life. Each veteran did a part in helping to keep the United States of America as the greatest nation in the world and the best place to live.

ical areas in the county that would qualify for colonia (because it is within 150 miles of the border.) "That gives you one more option (for grants)," Elias added. However, the Alto area would not be eligible for colonia, because of income levels of residents there.

County manager Tom Stewart, who brought the resolution to the county commission, said he had a briefing on CDBG projects with DFA on September 27 where it was emphasized the villages of Capitan and Ruidoso Downs were eligible for consideration under CDBG as colonias.

Stewart asked the mayors, Norman Renfro of Capitan and Bobby Miller of Ruidoso Downs, if they "were proud to be designated colonia." He also asked what Ruidoso would do with such a designation. After discussion, Martinez asked for a resolution to be prepared to request the county become a colonia, "including Oscuro." Elias said if the county commission waits until its regular November meeting to adopt a resolution for a colonia designation, it will miss the November deadline for the CDBG applications.

County commissioners are holding a special meeting today, November 8 to finalize their 2002 CDBG application for funds to expand the health clinic in the county sub office in Ruidoso.

SANTA FE - "Nobody is going to be happy, whether it is the state or federal court that redistricts New Mexico," says U.S. Circuit Judge Bobby Baldock.

There is little doubt he is correct but that's probably what will happen anyway. Our Democrat-controlled Legislature and Republican governor seem unable to work anything out between themselves. Their stubbornness is caused partly by the notion they can gain an advantage in court that they can't gain through negotiation and compromise.

Democrats rely on a U.S. Supreme Court decision that redistricting issues belong in state courts. In New Mexico, those courts are composed mostly of Democrats. Republicans figure to wait and appeal any state court decision to the federal courts, which are composed mostly of Republicans.

But judges aren't supposed to be partisan. We all know they sometimes are but there's no guarantee they are going to please their party members. In Texas a Democrat judge has redrawn congressional districts in a manner that likely will switch the Democrat majority among Texas congressmen to Republican. Democrats may have to appeal that to a Republican-dominated U.S. circuit court.

The big issue among state legislators, who are charged with redistricting, is keeping their seats. That isn't possible if two lawmakers have to run against each other. Because of changing population patterns, that becomes nearly impossible. Democrats have designed plans that have Republicans running against each other. Gov. Gary Johnson won't hear of it.

The only seemingly workable solution suggested thus far is a plan that pits Democrat and Republican incumbents against each other in districts that either one could win. If the courts end up doing the redistricting, incumbency is not one of the factors upon which they are required to make their decisions.

So Judge Baldock urged a courtroom filled with legislators and lawyers for state officials to go back and try again to reach some sort of accommodation on redistricting. The three-judge panel was asked to order the Legislature back into session but Baldock replied that the court would be "out of its mind" to get involved in the fight between Gov. Johnson and the Legislature.

That seems to settle the question about whether a court can order a Legislature back into session. The separation of powers doctrine would seem to prevent such a thing but the governor's office has suggested the possibility. Courts usually get around the issue by setting deadlines for legislative bodies to act, rather than ordering them into session ordering them to act.

The likelihood of the Legislature meeting or acting seems slim. House Speaker Ben Lujan has indicated some willingness to explore a solution but says there is no way the Democrat-controlled Legislature will give up its majority in order to please the governor. Johnson is known for his refusal to compromise but if Republican legislative leaders can agree on something with Democrats, he might be persuaded since the issue is not substantive and since partisan issues have never really interested him.

The situation in the Senate is even more volatile, with an apparent coup taking place. Sen. Manny Aragon, who was deposed last January by a coalition involving three Democrats and all Republicans, has organized a rump caucus that elected him majority floor leader, replacing Sen. Tim Jennings of Roswell.

Jennings and Sen. Richard Romero, who replaced Aragon as Senate president pro tem, had been voices of moderation within the Senate that might have brought about some compromise. Aragon doesn't tend to work that way. The caucus that elected Aragon reportedly has 14 members, which is a majority of the 24 Senate Democrats.

Aragon was able to win over that group because only Democrats vote for their floor leader, whereas the entire Senate votes on the pro position.

Aragon's next move may be to strip the pro tem position of the powers it gained when Aragon won that position 13 years ago.

DA Declines To Pursure Grand Jury Indictment Against Weihbrecht

Assistant District Attorney Kenneth Wilson on November 1 filed a "nolle prosequi" in the grand jury indictment of former Ruidoso Downs Village Clerk Leann Weihbrecht.

Wilson told THE NEWS that "nolle prosequi" means the case has been dismissed, but will remain open with the state reserving the right to re-file the case if additional evidence is presented in the future. Wilson said he discussed how to proceed with the case with district attorney Scot Key and they both were of the opinion that there was not sufficient evidence to bring the case to a conviction and the cost of prosecuting would not be justified.

Grindstone Apartments Won't Be So Affordable

For several years Ruidoso elected officials have complained that a lack of affordable rental housing was contributing directly to the lack of good lower wage employees.

Envisioning development of the village owned properties near Grindstone Lake for affordable housing, the village contracted with CDS company to construct the apartment complex with conditions that a portion of the rental units would be designated as "affordable" under the tax codes.

At the October 30 Ruidoso Village Council meeting, Dan Stanger of CDS said the project was still 100 percent go, despite the September 11 attack that had "radical impacts" to his business. Stanger said the Grindstone project, which has been named "Ponderosa Ridge Apartment Complex" is in the preliminary architectural and engineering plans with hopes of finalizing these in December. Actual work would begin in the spring with installation of sewer and full scale construction by mid summer on all 150 units at once, Stanger added. But then came the news on costs for the units.

"We originally talked a 50-50 mix of market and affordable units," Stanger said. "Now we are leaning to less affordable units, 20 percent." Stanger said there were several reasons for the fewer affordable units. The steep slope of the Grindstone site has created problems resulting in more cost to construct the project, and not so many people can actually qualify for the "affordable" credits.

Some councilors were surprised and concerned about having only 20 percent of the units to be "affordable" with rents ranging from $275 for a one bedroom to the maximum of $400 a month. The remaining "market" units would have rents beginning at $700 a month for a one bedroom, 700 square foot unit; up to $1,000 a month for a four bedroom 1,200 square foot unit.

"I have a problem with only 30 of 150 units being affordable," said councilor Leon Eggleston. Stanger said they first looked to do mostly affordable units, then they spent time in the Ruidoso market place and found that a major problem in Ruidoso is the quality of the units offered. "We see a huge rent rate versus the quality of product being rented," Stanger continued. With that information and the "economics" of the project, the company scaled to the 20 percent affordable.

Mayor Robert Donaldson, who initiated the concept of the affordable housing project, said the council had discussed having no more than 50 percent of the units as affordable. "But the problem is under HUD median income guidelines, if a couple makes $7 an hour each, they would make too much money to qualify," Donaldson said.

A household of three with total income of $14,900 a year is the maximum income to qualify for affordable housing, Stanger added.

Donaldson said the affordable designation does "not work in resort communities".

In response to Eggleston, Donaldson said there are 100 percent affordable apartment units in Ruidoso Downs. "But those are only for those who make very little money," Donaldson added. "We have a lack of quality housing for working people."

Stanger said the 150 unit complex will be a $2 million project that will not yield a lot of cash flow if 40 percent were affordable, requiring a longer pay out on the costs. He said to get the tax credits for the affordable housing the pay out time must be 30 years, which was a reason the affordable units were scaled back to 20 percent.

Councilor Linda Flack said neighbors in the area have commented to her they want the apartment complex to be nice. Stanger said he has gotten the same comments. He said the apartment complex will be a "mixed community" of occupants with varying income levels.

Donaldson said he did not think anyone on the council was qualified to review the plans for the apartment complex and he said that review will be sent out to the village's contracted engineering firm.

Stanger also told the council his company had changed its name to "Bridge Partners". He said the company is also doing a long range project (Rainmaker Subdivision off Airport Road) in the area.

The meeting will be followed by lunch and a tour of the Gallery. Burgers will be provided and participants are asked to bring a side dish.

Local Student Setting New Standards For Leadership

WASHINGTON, DC—Miss Ginger Cupit of Capitan has been selected to attend The National Young Leaders Conference (NYLC) from November 13-18, 2001 in Washington, D.C. The NYLC is a unique leadership development program for high school students who have demonstrated leadership potential and scholastic merit.

Cupit will be among 350 outstanding National Scholars from around the country to attend the conference.

The theme of the NYLC is The Leaders of Tomorrow Meeting the Leaders of Today. Throughout the six-day conference, Cupit will interact with key leaders and newsmakers from the three branches of government, the media and the diplomatic corps.

Highlights of the program include welcoming remarks from the floor of the U.S. House of Representatives and a panel discussion with prominent journalists at the National Press Club. Cupit will also meet with senators and a representative or an appointed member of their staff to discuss important issues facing the nation.

"The National Young Leaders Conference provides an opportunity for students like Ginger Cupit to distinguish themselves as tomorrow's leaders," said Michael Lasday, executive director of the Congressional Youth Leadership Council (CYLC), the organization that sponsors the NYLC.

"Scholars not only gain knowledge and experience in the nation's capital, they leave with a sense of accomplishment and an increased ability to face the challenges of the future."

To complete the schedule of special meetings and briefings, Cupit will also participate in a number of leadership skill-building activities. In one role-play activity known as If I Were President, students act as the president and cabinet members responding to an international crisis. Students also participate in a judicial simulation called Testing the Constitution, in which they examine an actual Supreme Court case. The NYLC culminates with the Model Congress, in which Scholars assume the roles of U.S. representatives, and debate, amend and vote on proposed legislation.

The CYLC is a nonprofit, nonpartisan educational organization. Founded in 1985, it is committed to fostering and inspiring young people to achieve their full leadership potential. Over 425 members of the U.S. Congress join this commitment by serving on the CYLC Honorary Congressional Board of Advisors. Each year, 7,000 select, outstanding youth nationwide participate in the 20 sessions of the NYLC.

Ginger is a Capitan High School junior with three years of varsity volleyball, four years of varsity basketball, four years of varsity track, and 6 years of band experience.

She is also a member of National Honor Society, was awarded Capitan HS Academic C, is a Student Senate and Knowledge Bowl member, is sophomore class president, sophomore homecoming princess, and was the winner of the 2001 Hugh O'Brian Youth Leadership Award. Her parents are Bill and Renee Cupit.

Homework:

A Benefit or Detriment

Homework has always been a hated issue, especially by students. It has been a necessary issue for teachers, and as for parents it has been a bothersome issue. Is homework necessary? Does it help a student have more knowledge? When is it considered too much? Teachers, parents, and students have different opinions on homework and how it affects them.

Many teachers at Carrizozo Municipal Schools have their own ideas about the necessity and the amount of homework that should be given. About half of the teachers interviewed said that they give homework to reinforce what was taught during the school day. The homework becomes the practice so that the lessons are ingrained.

Mr. Bob Hemphill, the high school math and computer teacher, stated, "Math is no different than basketball, you must practice correctly to learn the skills."

Other teachers give homework because there isn't enough time in the school day to accomplish everything the state has required.

Mrs. Davis, the fourth grade teacher, said, "There is too much to do."

The state has certain requirements that each school must abide by in order to allow children to move on grade wise. Then there are teachers like Mr. Jarrard, the high school history and Spanish teacher, who don't give homework. Jarrard said, "Homework is unsupervised and may be incorrectly done. Learning must be erased and relearning initiated. Also, most students copy each other."

Teachers acknowledge that they do give time in class to work on homework, and what is not completed in class must be taken home. However, some students don't use class time wisely, which causes them to have more homework than others.

Parents have their own opinion about homework. Some parents were asked, if the amount of homework their child brings home affects the plans they have as a family. Most of the parents said, "No, it doesn't." However, the majority of these parents also said that the teachers don't give too much homework. It all depends on how the child works in class. Several parents realize that the students are given class time to finish some homework. Some parents feel that homework can be difficult to finish if the student is involved in after-school activities.

Susan Hightower explained, "The teachers don't give too much homework, but the kids can't handle any more than what they have right now because of all the after-school activities they are involved in."

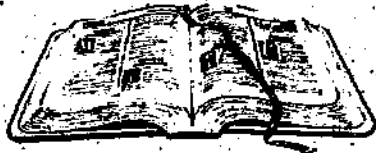

As odd as it seems, most students have the same attitude about homework as their parents and teachers. They don't seem to think that teachers give too much homework. Seventh grader Kaitlyn Vega said, "Teachers don't give us any homework." However, there does seem to be a correlation between homework and grades. Almost all of the students said that they do pretty well in school, but if they completed the homework that their teachers assigned, they could do better. First grader, Rebecca Green explained, "I get good grades, but I got a zero once because I forgot my paper." Many high school students feel that they don't have too much homework. It all depends on the after-school activities. The students that are involved with the athletics, work, or other duties after school tend to have more trouble turning in homework on time. Sometimes, athletes leave school early, and then don't get home until late that night, making it hard to complete homework for the next day.

According to Tom Loveless' article in USA Weekend (Aug. 24-26, 2001), "School Success Begins at Home," researchers found that "3- to 12-year-olds study an average of 134 minutes per week . . ." That averages to about 27 minutes a day. He also states that "research shows homework boosts achievement in grades 6-12." Harris Cooper, an expert on homework, recommends "a sensible target for the average student: Ten minutes per day per grade level (e.g., 30 minutes for third-graders, 60 minutes for sixth-graders, 90 for ninth-graders)."

These suggestions are merely averages. No two students work at the same pace - some work slowly and others work very quickly. Regardless as to a student's pace, homework is here to stay. However, a student cannot have too much homework if he uses class time wisely. Homework tends to help a student have more knowledge if he does what he is supposed to do. Aside from the academic benefits of homework, students tend to learn responsibility, time management, and discipline - all qualities needed to succeed in life.

Carrizozo Police Chief Off The Hook In Appeal

An appeal filed by a "victim" against Carrizozo Chief of Police Angelo A. Vega was dismissed by the state, again.

On November 5, assistant district attorney Reed Thompson filed a "nolle prosequi" at the non-jury hearing before District Judge Karen Parsons in her courtroom in the Lincoln County Courthouse in Carrizozo. The hearing had been requested by Carrizozo resident Albina Chavez who contended Vega had stalked and harassed her and her family.

Chavez had filed a criminal complaint against Vega on March 29, 2001 in Magistrate Court. Although a criminal summons to magistrate court on the complaint was issued to Vega the same day, by March 30 Thompson filed the motion for "nolle prosequi" without prejudice "in the best interest of justice".

April 9 Chavez filed an appeal to magistrate court but that too was dismissed.

On October 18, she filed the request for non-jury hearing in District Court which was set for November 5.

During the November 5 hearing, Thompson said the state refused to prosecute the appeal of the case that had been dismissed in magistrate court because there can be no appeal since there had been no judgement or order.

Thompson read the state rule that prohibits private citizens from filing criminal complaints.

Judge Parsons commented that if the nolle prosequi is filed, the case is over.

Thompson said he would prepare the motion.

Parsons then explained to Chavez that the state was refusing to allow the case to be prosecuted as a criminal matter. She advised Chavez that she could file a civil case against Vega which she could do in magistrate court. When Chavez advised that was what she would do, the judge dismissed the case.

Corona News

Sunday, November 4, the Presbyterian Church celebrated Robin Pfeiffer's active membership since the mid 1930's. Over 50 people came to services and later to a potluck held at the church in Robin's honor. Mrs. Pfeiffer is moving to Vista Del Rio, Retirement Community this month.

Robin Hillemeier was born February 23, 1911 in Havana, Illinois to Henry and Sara Hillemeier. A graduate of Havana High School, she entered Brown Business College in Peoria, Ill. Graduating on Good Friday, she married Walter Pfeiffer on Easter Sunday at "High Noon".

They moved to Chicago, Ill, where they lived for 16 months, then came to Corona, where they joined with her aunt and uncle in developing Roberts Mercantile Co. Inc.

It was a happy move for them because Chicago during the depression was terrible.

She and Walter opened Roberts Mercantile Store in Duran, and stayed in Duran for two years before moving back to Corona.

Their only child, Sally Mae was born in Corona.

Next Sunday the 11th the Presbyterian Church will join Ancho and Nogal for services at Claunch, with Rev. Sebring preaching and leading worship. A potluck will follow services.

The Corona Elementary School has eight new students from area ranches.

Girls basketball practice has started for girls.

There are 11 cheerleaders available if the boys can get enough players for a basketball team.

Senior pictures will be taken Nov. 13. Also the volleyball team pictures and any re-takes will be taken at that time.

The Halloween Carnival was a huge success. Dal Frost auctioned off slaves to work for local Corona homes and ranches. The slaves went for $70 and up and up.

The winners in the costume contest are as follows: Baby - Connor Cox, Robin (of Batman fame), pre-school - Payton Duns-worth, bee, kindergarten - Asa Cosper, Spiderman, 1st grade - Ramon Hernandez, monster, 2nd grade - John Hartung, in a box carried by a gorilla, 3rd grade - Ethan Shepard Mushu (from the movie Mulan), 4th grade - Coy Posey cowboy, 5th grade - Josh Gage, 6th grade - Quirt McDaniel ugly cowboy, high school - Monique Johnson, pumpkin, adult - Rowan Lightfoot, Raggedy Ann.

The carnival King was Stewart Berry, and Queen was Rhianon Alirez. Carnival Prince was JR Shaefer, and Princess was Samantha Breeding.

County Commission Meets Today To Okay CDBG Application

Lincoln County Commissioners are meeting at 9 a.m. today, Thursday, November 8, in their chambers in the Lincoln County courthouse in Carrizozo to authorize the application for a Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) to construct a new health clinic adjacent to the Ruidoso substation.

County commissioners are slated to take action to adopt Resolution 2001-15 to authorize application for a CDBG for $250,000 to go with $491,880 from the U.S. Department of Health to construct an addition to the Lincoln County Health Office in the county substation in Ruidoso. County commissioners on August 18 voted unanimously to select the health office expansion project for their 2002 CDBG project application. The selection was based on input offered by the public during three separate public hearings.

The proposed 4,096 clinic will be constructed adjacent to the existing sub-office at 105 Kansas City Road, next to Ruidoso Village Hall. The existing facility does not meet federal guidelines and is not practical for a clinic. Because of several factors, the county plans to construct a separate structure, adjacent to the existing structure. Proposed ideas for the new clinic are a lobby, reception area with privacy, three ADA bathrooms, children play room, conference room, three offices, lab, pharmacy, file room, open office area and four exam rooms.

No other business is listed on the agenda for the special meeting.
