Community Collaborative Requests Funding Help

by Doris Cherry

Lincoln County Community Collaborative is in its third year and has reached several milestones in its goal to provide services for the county's youth. Lincoln County Community Collaborative Committee (LCCCC) representative, and juvenile probation officer, Sergio Castro gave presentations and requests for funding help to the Carrizozo Town Trustees and Captain Village Trustees on Tuesday, May 11. He also gave presentations and requests for funding to the Ruidoso Downs City Council, Ruidoso Village Council and Corona Village Trustees.

At the Carrizozo Trustees meeting on May 11, Castro requested the town provide up to $2,000 in funding help to the LCCCC in the next fiscal year which begins July 1. The funding will help the LCCCC to hire a full time coordinator, Castro said. LCCCC received from the state a grant of $55,000 a year for the next three years to hire a part time coordinator and for LCCCC programs, Castro said. LCCCC would like to hire a full time coordinator and is seeking financial help from the municipalities and the county so they can hire a full time coordinator, he added. LCCCC also hopes it will receive enough financial support to pay a higher salary for someone with more qualifications. Castro said LCCCC plans to hire a coordinator to start a juvenile citation program. This program allows police officers to issue citations to first time juvenile offenders. The offenders then must report to the juvenile probation office on the very next working day. "With this program juveniles will have immediate and swift consequences," Castro said. "Within a week of their citation these juveniles will be doing community service." Programs brought to Lincoln County with the LCCCC include the Multi-

Guest speaker for the service is John Garcia, Cabinet Secretary of the New Mexico Department of Veteran Affairs.

American Legion Post #57 Captain Commander J.D. Roehrig will give the welcome address. Robert Stephens, a World War Veteran will give a remembrance for the World War II Memorial being dedicated in Washington D.C. on that same day, May 29.

The Fort Stanton Merchant Marine and Veterans Memorial Service will also feature the presentation of colors, singing of the National Anthem, a Mariners Farewell by the Merchant Marine Society, Daughters of American Revolution will place a memorial wreath, American Legion members will present a gun salute and taps.

American Legion Post #57 and Auxiliary Unit #57 will present World War II Victory Metal Ribbons to the first 100 World War II veterans attending the memorial service. They also will be serving refreshments after the service.

The memorial service is the result of volunteer efforts of World War II Merchant Marine Skipper E. Victor Schaerer (Ret.) and his wife Jean. About 15 years ago they made it their personal project to clean and maintain the cemetery, with the permission from the state. With help from volunteers with the women's correction center and the men's rehab program, and the community, weeds were removed, grass cut and wooden crosses replaced and painted.

Fort Stanton Merchant Marine cemetery had its first burial in 1899, the same year the U.S. Public Health Service opened a tuberculosis hospital for merchant seamen at the old cavalry post at Fort Stanton in Lincoln County, New Mexico. Fort Stanton post was opened in 1855 as an Indian post. The US Army occupied and operated the post until 1896, with a brief interruption in 1865 when the Confederate Army took over the post. In 1899, the US Merchant Marine Tuberculosis Hospital was opened at Fort Stanton and was maintained until 1953. Fort Stanton was given to the State of New Mexico in 1953 and was operated as a hospital for tuberculosis patients for several years and then as a hospital and training school for developmental disabled adults until 1995 when it was closed and sat empty for two years. New Mexico Corrections Department took over occupancy and operated a women's minimum security correctional facility and currently contracts with a private entity to operate a men's probation and parole reintegration/rehabilitation center. New Mexico Merchant Marine and Military Memorial Cemetery is located a

Since 1899 more than 1,665 veterans of the armed forces, merchant mariners, their families and staff have been buried at Fort Stanton Memorial Cemetery. Today, the cemetery continues to be open for burial of veterans and their spouses, and there are plans to expand and update the cemetery as a state regional veteran's cemetery.

With the passing of Skipper Shaerer in 2000, Larry Holt and Nick Skogland were asked to oversee volunteer work. Holt said they maintain close contact with the Department of Veteran's Services on all cemetery business, opening and closing graves and with the American Legion Posts in Capitan and Ruidoso who furnish funeral honor details for veterans' services.

There is no charge to attend the Memorial Service, however donations will be accepted to cover costs.

As the Lincoln County News nears the century mark of being in existence (1905-2005), we will be randomly publishing articles that have been published in the NEWS from old files. The following article appeared in the "Carrizozo News" -- on March 26, 1915

Gold, Romance, Early Settlement.

The Mining Age, New York, has an interesting article on the White Oaks mines, other mineral deposits of the state and some early history as well. It is all so closely connected that we feel justified in reproducing the entire article and believe our readers will appreciate it. It is given below:

The "Old Abe" mine of Homestake that produced millions for the Hearsts, is being renovated and the "Old Abe" shaft overhauled. The "Old Abe" and Homestake workings in the Dakota Black Hills, opened up by the elder Hearst in the seventies, are among the oldest producing gold mines in the United States today.

By a peculiar coincidence perhaps the oldest gold mine in the country is also called the "Old Abe," but this particular Old Abe is in an altogether different part of the United States, its history dates way back to about 1543.

The original "Old Abe" gold mines are in the old mining camp of White Oaks, Lincoln County, New Mexico. Transportation is furnished by a branch line connected with the Phelps-Dodge's El Paso and Southwestern R.R. and Rock Island system at Carrizozo, New Mexico.

It is the oldest and has the largest production of any gold mine in New Mexico and enjoys the distinction of being the deepest dry gold mine in the world. Its deepest workings are 1,300 feet, at which point the vein and values are persistent and still carry free milling pay ore.

We understand that there are some hundred thousand tons of tailings which carry values sufficient to justify retreatment and yield considerable profit and that the mine is equipped with a mill which is still serviceable.

It is in a typically highly mineralized district and other important neighboring mines are the American, Helen Ray, Miners' Cabin, North and South Homestake and several very valuable fractions.

Active operations by Americans were commenced soon after the acquisition of New Mexico by the United States in 1848. In spite of constant Indian troubles and long absence of railroad transportation, the mine was a profitable proposition and produced several millions.

For many years it also had to contend against the lawless vendettas long maintained by the rival land and cattle barons between themselves, or against the Indians or the celebrated organization of bandit cattle rustlers. This is known in southwestern history as the "Lincoln County War."

When law and order were eventually obtained the whole district became tied up in a long drawn out and vindictively contested litigation, and for many years active operations have been suspended.

It is now reported that his litigation has been adjusted and operations will immediately be resumed in this famous old camp.

The district is immediately contiguous to immense deposits of coking coal, which feature, with the now existing railroad, has solved the question of cheap power and transportation.

This part of New Mexico was long the rendezvous of the famous outlaw, "Billy the Kid," and here he was eventually killed resisting arrest in a revolver duel in a dark room at night with the local sheriff.

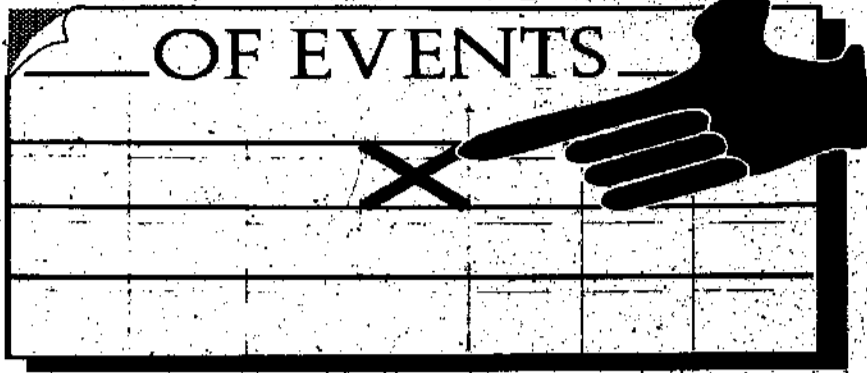

Mention of the "Old Abe" district would not be complete without also touching on another collateral feature of that territory.

New Mexico is a land of history and romance, of minerals of all kinds and precious stones, of pine timber and coal and of cattle and sheep by the hundreds of thousands. Its present capital, Santa Fe, was founded by the Spaniards almost a century before the Pilgrim Fathers landed on what is now the New England coast. By right of discovery, about 1535, by Spanish explorers it was annexed to Mexico as a possession of Spain.

The King of Spain immediately commenced to parcel it out to favorites of the Viceroy of systemic therapy out of Las Cruces. Home Based Services that come to juvenile homes to help families. Assurance Home juvenile shelter in Roswell that takes in runaway and juveniles who are removed from their homes by the courts and COPE which provides services for domestic violence victims and their children.

LCCCC also sponsors tours of juvenile programs in Deming, Fort Worth and other locations for local officials. Carrizozo police chief Angelo Vega went on one of the tours. Castro added.

Castro said the LCCCC grew out of a need to deal with juvenile problems in the county. He provided statistics from surveys made in participating school districts in the county. The surveys showed that 43 percent stated they used alcohol in the last three months; 34 percent drank to drunkenness in the last two weeks;

32 percent smoke cigarettes; 32 percent used other illicit drugs such as cocaine, methamphetamine, etc.; 34 percent used marijuana in the last 12 months.

The meth problem has increased in the county. In 2003 there were six meth lab busts in Lincoln County, Castro said. "We've seen a lot of problems with meth and a lot of probationers are testing positive for meth," he added.

Some problems appear to be that kids have no attachment to their community, Castro continued.

Only 32 percent said their neighborhoods were caring; 30 percent said their schools were caring; 24 percent said their communities value youth; 24 percent said their communities see youth as resources; and 32 percent had adult role models/mentors.

There is also a big gap between the haves and have nots," Castro continued.

While single mother births have gone down, 42 percent of the births at Lincoln County Medical Center in 2000 were to single mothers. One third of those were single mothers who had less than 12 years education.

"Kids in Lincoln County are being placed at high risk of developing socially toxic stresses," Castro said.

Along with economic stresses comes increased domestic violence, and abuse and neglect of children, Castro continued.

"A lot of the school districts are overwhelmed," he said.

Now, LCCCC has made an application for a $5,000 grant for an after school program in Carrizozo, he said. "The 3 to 6 p.m. period is a time for juveniles to get into trouble because they have no supervision," Castro said. The LCCCC plans to apply for grants for such programs for the other school districts also.

LCCCC meets every Wednesday at noon at the El Pariaso Restaurant in the Sierra Mall on Mechem Drive in Ruidoso. Castro said anyone who is interested is invited to attend the meetings.

Castro asked the town to consider funding $2,000 because of the size of the town. He said LCCCC is asking other larger communities for more funding.

Vega said Castro is trying his best to keep kids from being sent up to state juvenile corrections. In response to a question from trustee Eileen Lovelace on what the results will be, Castro said at first the juvenile citation program will see an increase of the number of juveniles in the system. "Then we'll see it go down once we tighten the net," he added. "In the past kids were getting away with stuff."

Castro also spoke about the successful truancy program which is getting ready to take three sets of parents to court on truancy charges because their children have 40 to 50 absences. "We will highly publicize these cases as a deterrent to other parents," he added. "We call truancy a gateway offense because truant usually end up in our system."

Another program begun is the Drug Court for juveniles with serious drug issues.

"If we throw away these kids and incarcerate them, they will come back, even worse," he added.

Vega asked Castro to make the request for funding in writing. Lovelace and the mayor said they would look at the budget again at the last budget hearing on May 24. Trustees made no official commitment to providing funding.

After Castro's presentation, a representative from Cope told about that program. Cope provides counseling to domestic violence victims and their families at no cost to the victim or the community. It also provides advocacy and information on legal resources. And it provides treatment programs for offenders with accountability. "We have to make offenders accountable to make them learn that what they do is not acceptable in the community," Mark Hockrich from Cope said.

Cope seeks to provide prevention which is cheaper than treatment, including medical treatment for domestic violence victims, Hockrich added.

The men concluded their discussion quickly, saying they had to get to Capitan to make the same presentation to the Capitan Trustees who were meeting that same night.

New Police Officer In Carrizozo

Once again, the Town of Carrizozo has a new police officer.

Carrizozo Town Council at their regular meeting Tuesday, May 11, unanimously approved the hiring of Rachel Weiser as certified police officer on a probationary status.

Chief of police Angelo Vega introduced Weiser, who started working May 3. Vega said Weiser saw the town's advertisement for officer on the law enforcement employment internet site. Vega said Weiser came with great references from her previous employers and she was excited to work in a small community.

Weiser introduced herself. She was first certified as a police officer in Ohio and she worked for a sheriff's office in Ohio until 2000. She then relocated to Hobbs where she was an officer with the Hobbs Police Department. While in Hobbs, Weiser passed the waiver academy at the junior college to become certified in New Mexico. She was with Hobbs Police until she saw the advertisement from Carrizozo on the website.

Immediately after hiring Weiser, trustees were asked to accept the resignation letter from police officer Archie Romero. Vega read the letter which stated Romero had accepted a position with another law enforcement agency (Gallup police). He thanked Vega for teaching him better investigative skills and he thanked the "wonderful citizens of Carrizozo". Romero's resignation is effective May 14.

Two Museums In County Get Funding

Lincoln State Monuments and Carrizozo Heritage Museum have been awarded funds from the Institute of Museum and Library Services.

Lincoln State Monuments was awarded $7,890 through the institute's Conservation Assessment Program (CAP). CAP grants include a two-day visit by a conservation professional to review the overall condition of collection, storage, exhibition conditions and practices to help museums lay the groundwork for effective collection management.

Carrizozo Heritage Museum received $2,325 from the institute's Museum Assessment Program (MAP). MAP grants include an assessment by a museum professional to make recommendations that help the museum either with general operations and management, collection management or public outreach.

The Institute of Museum and Library Services awarded more than $1 million nationwide for library services including purchasing periodicals online, extending the current bookmobile program and starting up mail-order book service for those in remote areas.

THOUGHTS
FROM THE EDITOR'S DESK

Graduation, A Beginning or End?

By Ruth Hammond

Escaping from school may be what some students think they are doing at high school graduation, but they are wrong. When they first started school, whether it was kindergarten or first grade, they were beginning a journey of beginnings and ends. Their first milestone was when they left elementary and entered mid school. They were the "big kids" to the lower grades. Then when they went into high school, it was the same procedure once again. They left behind the younger students one more time.

Maybe graduates are not aware that their graduation ceremony is not only an end, it is a beginning. Too many graduates do not realize that once again they leave one era as the big kids and will enter the outside world as the newcomers, or youngest. If they continue their education in college, trade school or the military, or if they decide to work, they will once again begin another journey.

Beginnings may be scary, and some graduates are a little apprehensive about this newest beginning, but they will survive, just as graduates before them have survived. Arriving at this stage in their life was attained with many lapses, and many more accomplishments. These graduates have often complained that they know what is best and are capable of making their own decisions. Now that they have the opportunity to prove they can make the right decisions, some are afraid of possible mistakes.

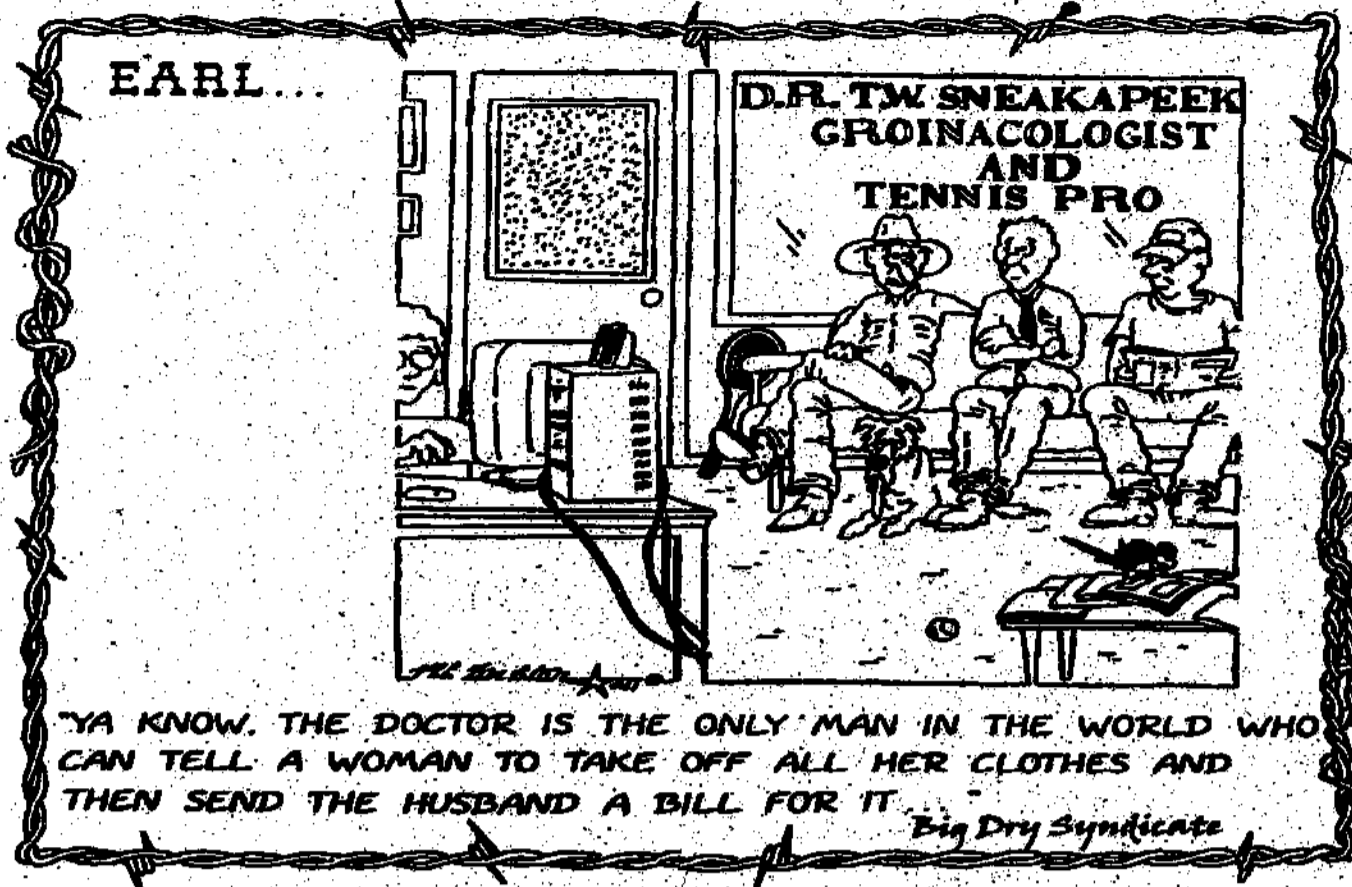

Radical changes will be made in the lifestyle of many graduates if they move out on their own and make their own living. They will learn about paying rent, buying groceries, and not spending quite as much on junk food.

Keeping track of what bills are due when, will be a new venture for many graduates. And they will have to learn to budget, a task they probably will not like to do. But they will be on their own, even if they are youngsters.

It seems many older people concentrate on the ending of school, not placing emphasis on the new ventures that graduates will be starting. Graduates must be assured they are capable of achieving their goals, even if the journey to those goals will take much longer than they dreamed.

Not all graduates will be successful in their ventures, but they need to learn to not be discouraged, just as they were encouraged to not stop when they fell down when learning to climb steps. The first steps they will climb out on their own are merely a continuation of that earlier training, and may be more painful, but are necessary.

Graduates probably will not admit they are frightened about entering the outside world, and they may be smiling as they begin yet another journey, but the apprehension will be there. They need to know that life will continue to be a series of beginnings and ends, successes and failures all through their life. We wish all graduates good luck.

Taurus (April 20 - May 20)
Once in awhile you get lucky and what you need and want will just fall in your lap. This could be the time, if you can see that the door is open to something very special. Think positive about all of this. You're Okay.

Gemini (May 21 - June 20)
Stop and count how many times you have had to do something twice. Take a break and regroup. Don't feel guilty in having some much needed fun. When you relax is when you'll find the answer to your question.

Cancer (June 21 - July 22)
That certain someone that needs to talk to you is about to give up because what you're not saying is speaking volumes. Your eyes are the window to your soul. Love and hurt can show. Talk it out now.

Leo (July 23 - Aug 22)
Listen with your heart when it comes to the one that means the most to you. It's not the words that are being said that counts, it's the fact that you took the time to listen. A good time to clear the air for you too.

Virgo (Aug 23 - Sept 22)
If you don't think the left hand knows what the right hand is doing, think again! Your secrets could tell on you once someone finds out the truth. Your heart is in the right place, so let it shine with true love.

Libra (Sept 22 - Oct 22)
Don't get too tired because your feelings are just below the surface. What you don't want others to see will be revealed when you can't take anymore. Go away with someone you trust and let the kid come out and play.

Your money has a mind of it's own. It could be waving bye-bye if you don't slow down, and save it. Spend only what you can lose. Your luck is in your mind. Count on you only when it comes to making money.

Sagittarius (Nov 22 - Dec 21)
A real good time to move up or ahead. Don't let others talk you out of anything that feels right. Start having fun with your inner child. The child will take you places that grownups can't go. More money coming.

Capricorn (Dec 22 - Jan 19)
Watch how you drive. Not just the car, but how you drive your business and home life. Walk a mile in someone else's shoes so you can see how hard it is to do what you are asking them to do. Give extra love.

Aquarius (Jan 20 - Feb 18)
Hang on, because you're in the ride of your life. Don't let ego get in the way. Make sure you can deliver whatever you have said you can do because you'll be stepping up to the plate soon enough. Hit a home-run.
Pisces (Feb 19 - March 20)
You might feel a little lonely because you'll have to be away from someone you love. Remember the heart knows that space and time don't matter. Keep the fires burning by a phone call or writing a letter.

Aries (March 21 - April 19)
Money is it. It's the fact someone isn't telling you everything you need to know about where the money is going. Take a pencil in hand and go over the books one more time. You'll see the problem and solve it.

INSIDE THE CAPITOL

by Jay Miller

SANTA FE -- Surveys reveal that newspaper readers are the best informed and most likely voters. I know you'll like that information because we're talking just among ourselves right now.

Rush Limbaugh proclaims that his listeners are the best informed people on the planet, but somehow newspaper readers perform better than his listeners on survey quizzes about current events.

The beauty of newspaper readers is that they are independent folks. You are the boss when you read a newspaper. You read what you want and skip what you don't want. You can read rapidly or slowly, skimming until you find the nuggets you can study closely and enjoy at a leisurely pace.

It doesn't matter when you are ready to read a newspaper, it will be waiting for you. There's no need to watch the clock, waiting for an electronic media report. And there's no need to twiddle your thumbs while waiting for the news reader to get to the subject that interests you.

If the phone or doorbell rings, if the baby cries or junior needs help with homework, no matter what the interruption, you won't miss the part that matters. Your newspaper will always be there waiting for your return.

Sure, you have to take the initiative to do the reading yourself, rather than having it spoon fed to you. But it is a quality experience with no worry about only a fleeting mention of your favorite topic on the air waves. There, before you, is much more information on a far wider range of topics than radio or television can ever offer.

And it's all yours. You can save it, re-read it, copy it, frame it, enlarge it, or mark it up with stars, underlines and highlighting pen. And when you finish, you can file it, send it to a friend or stick it in your pocket to back up an argument at your office or club.

Personally, I like to spread a newspaper on a table in front of me. None of this leaning back on a sofa, reading a section at a time. I want to get the total feel of a page layout. That's not for an intellectual exercise. I never took Journalism 101 or any other such course. I do it for the esthetic experience. Since I read many newspapers a day, I like to compare styles, fonts, layouts and editorial

It is unfortunate that politicians and their highly-paid assistants haven't realized the advantages of newspaper advertising. A few candidates have gotten the idea.

Mike Foster, a long-shot who was elected governor of Mississippi a few years ago, ran a series of newspaper ads formatted and sized as opinion columns. While other candidates were investing heavily in television, Foster enjoyed a direct and unfiltered access to average voters, as well as political, civic, business and media leaders.

Some candidates also buy newspaper space so they can run the full text of the statement announcing their candidacy. Then, they don't have to worry about a reporter and various editors deciding what they will and won't print.

Other candidates even go so far as to buy space to print their entire campaign platform. These candidates have spent much time and effort writing a detailed platform and they want to be sure as many people as possible read it. There are people who read such things -- people who have grown weary of sound bites and want some substance.

But perhaps the biggest advantage of newspaper advertising is for timing last-minute messages to voters. Typically, candidates try to do that with direct mail, but the vagaries of the U.S. Postal Service mean the message will not hit in a uniform or timely manner. Many candidates and all consultants have stories of catastrophes inflicted by the U.S. Mail.

With a newspaper ad, a candidate can decide the exact date voters will read that final appeal -- even on a Sunday, when mail isn't delivered.

NHS for CS

As an educator, I am always proud to see my students acknowledged for their successes, whether it's for their athletics, their service, their knowledge, their academics or their character, but I am particularly proud of those students who were inducted into National Honor Society on Monday, April 23, because that honor encompasses several different areas -- all of which are essential to being a leader and to making our world a better place.

To qualify for membership, high school students had to have achieved a grade point average of 3.5, junior high students a 3.0 and have exemplified the other qualities of leadership, character, and service. A five-member faculty council was each given an evaluation form for every academically eligible candidate. Students were rated, points were tallied in each area, and if the student achieved the minimum number of points, that student was invited to become a member. In addition, under the guidance of NHS sponsor, Mr. Danny Watkins, a National Junior Honor Society was formed for the first time ever at Carrizozo Schools so sixth, seventh, and eighth grade students were also eligible. A total of four high school students and 20 junior high students were inducted.

Opening the ceremony was president Victoria Rossi who introduced existing members as they one-by-one approached the podium to light a candle and expounded on each of the qualities demanded of NHS members. These members included seniors Victoria Rossi, Francesca Rossi, Ariel Vallejos, Ariel Burr, Sam Ungaro, and Brent Dixon, and junior Stephanie Brewer. I have had these students in class, some for four years, and they have earned and are deserving of my respect. They are intelligent, they do work hard, and they do give back. I couldn't have been more proud if they had been my own.

New members were junior Jake Riddle, and sophomores KC Hendricks, Ryan Gaines, and Whitney Whittaker. Our first NJHS members were eighth graders Hannah Corley, Kevin Gore, Jordan Grider, Erin Hightower, Greg Vigil, Jessica Ward, and Kendall Wilson; seventh graders Elizabeth Bingerman, Kathleen Schlarb, Jennifer Shafer, and Rory Zamora; and sixth graders Alexa Borowski, Joseph Gallegos, Shandy Grider, Tessa Hendricks, Tanner Huston, Stephen Najar, Carlos Samora, Ashley Ventura, and Cody Ventura.

However, membership into NHS and NJHS is not permanent. It is a responsibility that must be maintained in all four areas. And much like our elected or appointed leaders we expect much from them.

But I have faith.

Hatred Unleashed

On April 26, heavy metal band Five Degrees of Hatred made their debut in the Carrizozo old gym. A few months ago, the National Honor Society had planned to produce a talent show that would feature the talent from Capitan, Hondo, and our own Carrizozo. Auditions were held but the response was lacking. However, one group showed up with their mind set on ripping the roof off the gym. Three musicians from Carrizozo showed up the last day of auditions, unloaded their equipment, and set out to rock the gym. They informed NHS members that their lead singer Matthew Hernandez, a former Zozo alum, was in Las Cruces, and that they only had guitarist Nathan Chavez, drummer Wade McMahon, and recently acquired bassist Matt Silva. Since Silva had recently joined the band, he was not quite familiar with the songs. So the audition would only feature Chavez and McMahon.

Now the question was whether or not the two could impress NHS members to earn a spot on the card. They did more than that.

Chavez and McMahon's performance dropped the jaws of NHS members and viewers attending the auditions. They indeed earned a spot on the event card.

Since auditions were limited, instead of having a talent show, NHS decided to have the group perform a concert in front of the whole community. The offer was accepted, but what to call the group was at first unresolved.

Silva was moved to lead guitar, and a new member Johnny Archer, was now the bassist of the emerging metal group. The band now had five members: Matt Hernandez, lead vocals; Jonathan Archer, bass and backup vocals; Matt Silva, lead guitar; Nathan Chavez, rhythm guitar; and Wade McMahon, drums. But still no name. The first name associated with the group was Fail Safe, but this name was discovered to be taken. Then the title Killbox was suggested, but that too was already occupied. Then, as if struck by lightning, a title to dub these five men was found. Soon, flyers were posted all around campus and town. The text read Five Degrees of Hatred and a band was formed.

Now the stage was set. After weeks of preparation and hype, the wait was over, and Hatred was about to be released. People arrived at the gym to feast their eyes on the new band. The gym was pitch black and a cold, vindictive chill was beginning to cluster the room.

Hatred was unleashed.

The curtain opened, and the show began. Red lights shown on the stage, and music screamed out of the speakers. Each note injected Hatred into the crowd and provoked them. A kind of mosh pit was on the verge of erupting. Then singer, Hernandez, exclaimed that he wanted to see the crowd get crazy during the upcoming song... and they did.

Bodies jumped and bounced as guitarists Chavez and Silva fed off the energy from the crowd, and the crowd, in turn, fed off McMahon's thunderous drum beats and Archer and Hernandez's fierce screams. Hernandez also livened the crowd when he left the stage and entered the mosh pit with a camcorder... BIG mistake. The crowd went nuts. The band's performance was unanimously received by the audience with amazement, enjoyment, and hunger. The birth of a possible metal band had been exposed to the eyes of a crowd who had never seen a band like this. All of the songs performed were indeed original, which is what impressed the audience the most, not discrediting their explosive performance. Many eagerly wait for Hatred to be unleashed again, with even more rage than before. It is certain that we have not had our last dose of the Five Degrees of Hatred.

Zozo to Vegas with
... Sederwall

Try to conceive of a 750 mile gravel road stretching from Carrizozo to Las Vegas, Nevada? Now, add another 100 miles of gravel and you have an idea how much road you, the taxpayer, maintain in Lincoln County. Your 850 miles of county road comes with a 1.6 million dollar maintenance price tag. It costs you 1.9 million to keep the doors closed on the county jail, and 1.5 million so the Sheriff's Department can patrol that 850 miles of road. Throw in over a 100 hard working county employees deserving benefits; and let's not forget county buildings, offices, utilities, equipment, vehicles, the high price of fuel, and now we're talking over 15 million dollars of your money, serious money in anyone's book. With that kind of money on the table, you should demand a county commissioner with some serious backbone, who'll stand his ground no matter how tough it gets.

If you do your job by voting, (for Steve Sederwall of course) I'll do my job and protect your interest while doing the County's business. I'll remember where that 15 million came from and get you your money's worth. That's my promise to you.

Carrizozo Okays Church Expansion

Carrizozo First Baptist Church will get to expand. Carrizozo Town Trustees at their meeting Tuesday, May 18 unanimously accepted recommendation from the town planning and zoning committee to allow the First Baptist Church to expand its building on 9th Street. The church will expand the fellowship hall behind the church, with work to be completed within the year.

In the "reason for the request" portion of the application for conditional use/special exceptions to the zoning ordinance, Baptist Church pastor Hayden Smith stated it was to have more room for church use.

At the April 28 special trustee meeting, trustees approved a request from the First Baptist Church to abandon and vacate the alleyway on Second and 14th Streets. The alley existed on paper but was never constructed or used on the property. Those properties are located on the south side of town.

Trustees also approved a request for special conditional use exception to the zoning ordinance from West and Margo Lindsay to place a 26 X 40 foot manufactured home at 604 E. Ave. which will possibly be for sale or rent. After the vote, town clerk Leann Weibrecht asked Lindsay if he voted or abstained, since the conditional use was for him. Lindsay said he abstained from the vote.

Trustees Lindsay, Eileen Lovelace and David LaFave were present; trustee Lee-Roy Zamora was absent.

Trustees also accepted the 2004-2005 fiscal year budget for Capitan-Carrizozo Natural Gas (CCNG). The budget had been approved by the CCNG board of directors. Carrizozo is represented on the CCNG board by the mayor, police chief Angelo Vega and former trustee Tommy Guevara. The CCNG budget shows projected revenues of $1,147,574 with $1,124,174 from gas sales, $8,000 in project interest income, $400 in returned check fees and $15,000 in other services such as sale of water heaters and appliance hook-ups.

Total budgeted expenses are $1,130,519 with "net ordinary income" of $17,055. From that, capital outlay was budgeted $22,500 for a net income of negative $5,195. Expenses include $809,218 for gas purchases; and $167,956 for payroll; $41,260 for em-

Mexico in individual areas as large or larger than many of our Eastern States. It was not unusual for a single family to have a land grant of several hundred thousand acres.

These land grants were relatively similar to the grants by the King of England to William Penn and other pioneers of the English Colonies which afterwards became the United States of America, with the single exception that they were not so thoroughly geographically described as to metes and bounds. However, in the grants there were almost invariably mentioned certain topographic features and prominent natural landmarks. Two and three hundred years afterward these landmarks were to play an important part in the perfection of titles.

For over two score years after the acquisition of New Mexico by the United States the titles to these baronial estates were laughed at as mere "scraps of paper" and many an heir of a haughty "hidalgo" sold what he was led to think were but shadowy rights, titles, and interests to the despised "gringo" for a song.

Some 25 years ago the United States Government, realizing that an injustice was being done to many bona fide Spanish grants, appointed a special commission called the Court of Private Land Claims, to study and equitably adjust these old Spanish grants. Experts were sent to Mexico City and Madrid to examine the archives. After an extensive examination and investigation extending over several years this commission irrevocably confirmed every bona fide title.

This decision enriched the speculators who had acquired many of the old titles. It also enormously benefited all those descendants of the old hidalgos who had tenaciously clung to their titles.

In 1542-1545 the great Spanish courtier and adventurer, Coronado, with a considerable army, made his historic overland trip from the City of Mexico northward through Jalisco, Sinaloa, Sonora and what are now the states of Arizona, New Mexico and probably as far as Colorado.

His outriders were the first white men to see the Grand Canyon of the Colorado River, and their description of the same was a classic and still exists, as well as the diary of the naturalists who accompanied the expedition.

These old Spanish pioneers were after gold and silver and were mighty shrewd observers of natural phenomena. They spoke of countless places having the earmarks of mineral which today are hives of the mineral industry from Mexico City to Northern New Mexico.

They described immense forests of pine timber. For a long time after the Americans occupied New Mexico and Arizona they laughed to scorn this mention of pine in such a desert country.

Transcontinental travelers over the Southern Pacific Railroad even now would hoot such a contention. However, when the survey was made for the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad and branches, the reports of Coronado's pioneer countrymen were absolutely confirmed, and today the largest area of virgin pine timber in the United States is in New Mexico and Arizona.

These early Americans sneered at the idea of the existence of a commercial deposit of coal in such a predominating volcanic area. The present enormously productive coal mines of Phelps, Dodge & Co. at Raton and Dawson, and of ex-senator Clark at Gallup, once more substantiate the wisdom of the old 16th century Spanish naturalists.

A Prayer for Peace

Pope Benedict XIV has rendered a prayer for peace and the Catholic churches throughout the world have repeated it. Last Sunday, at Fort Stanton, at the peace services held in the chapel, the chaplain and those present chanted this prayer of which the following is the text:

"Dismayed by the horrors of a war which is bringing ruin to peoples and nations, we turn, O Jesus, to thy most loving Heart as our last hope.

O God of Mercy, with tears we invoke Thee to end this fearful scourge; O King of Peace, we humbly implore the peace for which we long. From thy sacred heart, thou didst shed forth over the world divine Charity, so that discord might end and love alone might reign among men. During Thy Life on earth Thy heart beat with tender compassion for the sorrows of men; in this hour made terrible with burning hate, with blood shed and with slaughter, once more may Thy divine heart be moved to pity.

Pity the countless mothers in anguish for the fate of their sons; pity the numberless families now bereaved of their fathers; pity Europe over which broods such havoc and disaster.

Do Thou inspire rulers and peoples with counsels of meekness, do Thou heal the discords that tear the nations asunder; Thou who didst shed Thy Precious Blood that they might live as brothers, bring men together once more in loving harmony, and as once before to the cry of the Apostle Peter: 'Save us, O Lord, we perish!' Thou didst answer with the words of mercy and didst still the raging waters, so now deign to hear our trustful prayer, and give back to the world peace and tranquility. And do thou, O most Holy Virgin, as in other times of sore distress, be now our help and our protection. Amen.

ployee and property insurance and other expenses.

Vega said the budget is basically the same as the last fiscal year. In response to a question about employee raises, Vega said raises are only considered on the hiring anniversary date of each employee, and funding for raises is in the employee benefits line item.

Certified Public Accountant Sandra Johnson will conduct the audit of the 2003-2004 fiscal year financial accounts for the town. Johnson was the only respondent to the town's request for proposals for auditing services. Weihbrecht said a lot of CPAs are not making the state auditor's list of acceptable auditors because of the new GASB 34 rules for auditing governmental entities.

Johnson's fee for the audit is $6,450 and the audit field work will be conducted the week of September 15. Johnson's contract is renewable for three more years.

Trustees also approved purchasing an oiler for the Recreation Center bowling alley with the town providing $1,500 to go with $1,020 donated during fund raisers held for the purchase. Weihbrecht said the alleys are worth $3,500 each if they were to be removed now, but the alleys will have no value if they are not maintained with an oiler.

Metal goods piled at the old transfer station site on the Barham land will be sold, as trustees gave unanimous approval to do such. A local man wanted the town to give the metals to him at no cost, but with the dramatic increase in the price of scrap metal, trustees voted to sell the metal and have the man make an offer. According to an audience member scrap metal is selling at $47 a ton.

Ray Dean, who was to have made a presentation about the rates for the new town transfer site, was out of town with a death in the family and no one was there in his place. Dean is the town's representative on the Lincoln County Solid Waste Authority (LCSWA).

During the audience participation time in the meeting, THE NEWS asked if the town has a holding area for cats at the town kennels. Vega said they do have such an area inside the building at the kennels, however he said no one has ever tried to claim a cat.

THE NEWS was also told from an audience member that cats are adopted out through Dr. Mary Jane Cooper before they ever get to the kennels. THE NEWS said it was unfair to take away picked up cats without giving the owners opportunity to reclaim their cats from the kennels.

Vega reported that contractor Howard Hughes will be installing the roofing over the outside kennel runs at the shelter soon.

Vega also asked if town crews could do additional clean up at Evergreen Cemetery.

Trustees will hold their final budget hearing for the 2004-2005 fiscal year preliminary budget at 5:30 p.m. Monday, May 24 in the town offices in Carrizozo Recreation Center. Trustees conducted their first budget workshop on Monday, May 10 and considered a 2004-05 proposed preliminary budget that has few changes from this year's budget.
