15 YEARS TO THE MONTH that Lincoln County Solid Waste Authority moved into its current location in the heart of Ruidoso Downs, LCSWA officials, City of Ruidoso Downs officials and neighbors of the LCSWA yard on Tuesday, April 26 broke ground to the new LCSWA facility just off Highway 70 on the east border of Ruidoso Downs. Pictured are from left, LCSWA operational supervisor Debra Ingle, county commissioner and county representative on LCSWA Tom Battin, Capitan trustee and LCSWA proxy Bobbi Shearer, Ruidoso Downs mayor Bobby Miller, Ruidoso Downs residents and neighbors Juan Ordorica and Martha Ordorica. The new LCSWA facility is estimated to be completed by December 2005. Ingle credited the Ordoricas whose letters to the governor and state legislature about LCSWA being in the heart of a residential area helped LCSWA obtain state appropriations to construct the new facility.

County Commission Debates Liquor Fees

by Doris Cherry

Chair Throws Out Seno

Each year Lincoln County Commissioners consider and adopt a resolution that sets license fees for selling and dispensing liquor in the county, with fees to go to the clerk's office budget as revenue.

Each year, county commissioners had adopted the resolution fee schedule, with only changes to increase the fees considered occasionally. At their April 19 meeting, county commissioners again considered the resolution to set the liquor fees, with no request for increase of these fees.

Unlike previous years, county commissioners objected to the fee. County commissioner Earl Hobbs said the fees needed to be reconsidered because he was unsure liquor sales were so different than any other sales that have no fees for the county. County commission chair Rick Simpson said alcohol is a controlled substance but Hobbs wondered why the fees had to be so high ($250 each for dispenser's license, retailers license, canopy license and restaurant licenses; $25 for club license and $25 a day for special permits).

Simpson then made a motion to adopt the resolution as presented, county commissioner Tom Battin seconded the motion. County commissioner Eileen Lovelace was out of the room when Simpson called for the vote. Simpson and Battin voted yes, but Hobbs and county commissioner Maury St. John voted no, thus tying the vote and killing the motion.

They then discussed what would happen and whether the old resolution be in effect.

Battin supported the fee because alcohol sales are not like another retail product. "There is some burden on law enforcement and control with monitoring alcohol establishments," Battin said. "If feel the fees are reasonable, but now what do we do."

Meanwhile, Lovelace returned to the meeting room. When asked what they should do, county attorney

Ruidoso Eases Water Restrictions

by Doris Cherry

With flowing streams and full reservoirs, the Ruidoso Village Council unanimously voted to ease its water restrictions.

During their meeting Tuesday, April 26 councilors heard from village water director Ken Mosely that due to conditions that trigger various phases of the village water conservation ordinance, the village could be in Phase 1, which places no restrictions beyond the time of day that outdoor watering is allowed.

However Mosely suggested a conservative approach to easing water restrictions - slowly one phase at a time, because it "took a long time to get into the dry conditions."

"I am recommending the village council approve going from Phase 4 to Phase 3 for a monitoring period until June 14, the next regular council meeting," Mosely said. "During that monitoring period I will continuously evaluate the water status and recommend to stay or move in one direction or another from the current phase."

"It has been a long dry spell," said councilor Ray Nunley who has endorsed the use of xeriscaping and had gotten the village to amend its water conservation ordinance to allow hand watering and other more efficient use of water under the more restrictive phases.

"I thank the people of Ruidoso for their hard work and patience in this long drought," Nunley added, making the motion to move into Phase 3 which received unanimous support.

Under Phase 3, "serious condition", no outdoor watering is allowed in the day time hours between 10 a.m. and 6 p.m.; village water customers are allowed to wash their vehicles and sprinkle irrigate lawns, landscaping one day a week with even addresses on Tuesdays, odd addresses on Wednesdays. Customers are encouraged to limit their watering to two hours per area watered.

All addresses may hand-water or drip irrigate plants, flowers and tree wells any day of the week during the allowed hours. Customers are encouraged to water not more than one hour per area per day.

Plants, flowers and tree wells may be watered by use of hand held buckets or

HOW SWEET THE SOUND of flowing rivers and streams. Eagle Creek that supplies water to the Village of Ruidoso continues to flow at a good rate as spring temperatures begin to thaw the snow pack on Sierra Blanca, which the creek drains. Another spring snow storm swept across the high peaks on Tuesday, leaving the top of Sierra Blanca living up to its name - White Mountain. With so much water flow, Ruidoso has eased its water conservation restrictions.

 The appropriations for Lincoln County were added to revenue adjustments to the 2004-2005 fiscal year budget for the county. County commissioners approved a resolution that adjusts the current budget for expenditures and revenues. Adjusted expenditures were: $75,000 for the Lincoln County Fairgrounds in Capitán and a total of $425,000 for the domestic violence shelter project. Other adjustments to the budget were for the Drug Control Systems Improvement (DCSI) program with full time employee salary of $23,072, overtime of $18,103, FICA/PERA of $3,850, group insurance of $2,234, medicare of $408; operating expenses of $7,536 and confidential funds of $20,000 for a total of $75,206 for DCSI.

 Also adjusted was the sheriff's seizure fund which experienced a total decrease of $12,455 primarily for salary and benefits, and addition of $1,000 to operations.
 Other department expenses that were adjusted were the misdemeanor compliance program professional services which increased $16,867 due to the increased case load and payments by persons with misdemeanor convictions and $83,007 increase in the Sole Community Provider supplemental payment for a total of $662,625 in expenses.
 Revenues were the DCSI grant of $65,208; state appropriations for the domestic violence shelter totaling $425,000; fairgrounds roof appropriation of $50,000; fairgrounds capital outlay of $25,000 and misdemeanor client fee revenue of $16,857 for a total of $582,063 additional revenue.
 Stewart also updated county commissioners about the progress of the 2005-2006 fiscal year budget process. County departments had provided their individual budget requests and the county commission will hold a special meeting on Tuesday, May 3 to consider the first draft of the budget and to hear from external entities seeking county funds.
 Stewart said major issues with the budget are the 25 percent reduction in Payment in Lieu of Taxes (PILT) funds from the federal government, which represents $246,086 less in PILT funds than last year; and the US Department of Agriculture request for $47,683 in additional general fund money for the Wildlife Services and Predator Control. Wildlife services are funded with Taylor Grazing Fees and a special levy of 25 cents per head for predator control program. Currently $27,850 in Taylor grazing fees had been received and $14,467 have been projected for the livestock per head fees for a total of $42,317 total available for the predator program.
 Stewart pointed out a letter received from Senator Jeff Bingaman in which the senator commits to full funding of PILT.
 Brian Archuleta, USDA in Roswell, requested Lincoln County provide $75,000 for three full time wildlife specialists, Jack Allen Davidson of Corona, Frank Sisneros of Tinnie, Johnnie Patterson of Carrizozo, for 2005-2006 fiscal year. Archuleta advised that with last year's county funding of $60,000 would cover only two specialists. So USDA was requesting $90,000 to cover the three needed specialists.
 Stewart in a letter to Archuleta, responded that the predator program revenues program have been declining steadily, and the total collected is insufficient to fund the request. Stewart recommended that USDA prepare to release at least one of their wildlife control specialists, and invited Archuleta to attend the May 3 meeting to justify the request.
 Other agencies invited to attend, or send response to, the May 3 meeting, and the amount they are seeking from the county, are the NM Bookmobile, $1,050; SNMEDD, $5,202; Capitán

Tales of the Chiefs

By Editha L. Watson

Mangas Coloradas and Cochise.

THE STATE of Chihuahua had offered bounty of $100 for Apache scalps. Since Apaches were numerous in southwestern New Mexico, the white settlers in this region decided that here was an easy way to make money. Accordingly, in 1837, a number of Indians were invited to a feast, and when they had gathered in the building where it was to be held, the doors were shut, and volleys fired through the windows. This became known as the "Bean Supper" massacre.

Naturally, the Mimbrenos (the Apache band of this region) were incensed. They gathered and attacked the white miners at Santa Rita, New Mexico, killing most of them, and took the Santa Rita district as their stronghold.
 This and similar acts by the whites of the district brought on a series of hostilities. Mangas Coloradas ("Red Sleeves"), who had been bound and whipped by Pinos Altos miners, became the leader of the Apache band. The hills between Pinos Altos and Santa Rita, a distance of some twenty miles, began to swarm with Indians. Groups of them patrolled the countryside, and it was necessary to provide a soldier escort for stage-coaches, lest the Apaches attack them and kill the passengers.

Isolated ranch-houses in the region were raided by hostile Indians, although it is said that at one ranch, the red men contended themselves with driving away the whites, then dressed themselves in the women's best clothing and held a dance before leaving.
 In Arizona, the Chiricahua Apaches were also growing bitterly hostile. Cochise, their leader, who had contended himself with warfare against the Mexicans, in 1861, was caught and very roughly treated by United States soldiers. He escaped from them with three bullets in his body, and five of his companions were killed. His heart was as bitter as that of Mangas.

Now began a season of retaliation; settlers were driven out, and their homes laid waste. Even federal troops retreated before the Apache ferocity. Furious at their humiliation, the two leaders waged bitter war against all white people, and their tribe became a synonym for terror and death to the scattered white settlers.

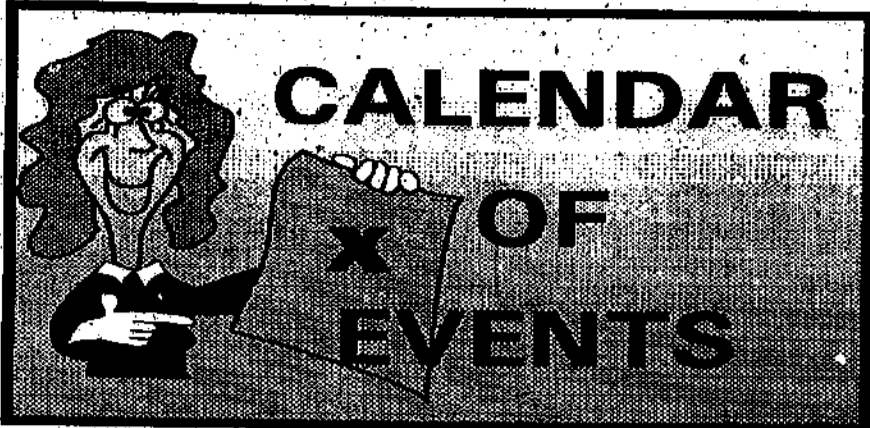

The Civil war broke out about this time, and the soldiers were withdrawn to engage in the more important conflict. This left the Apaches master of the situation, but not for long; the California volunteers were sent into the region to reoccupy the country.

Mangas and Cochise now united against the new enemy. As a consequence of this alliance, the Apaches from the Rio Grande to the Chiricahua mountains were on the raid. The Mimbreno band numbered from 400 to 750, according to various estimates. They obtained supplies from the military post at Janos, Chihuahua, on account of being at peace with the Mexicans, and thus were enabled to continue their depredations in the face of the white man's opposition.

The volunteers, under General Carleton, found their task no easy one. Finally, at Apache Pass, Ariz., the two "armies" met, and the howitzers of the Californians dispersed the Apache bands. Mangas was severely wounded, and unable to continue with his people. He was taken to Janos, where the Mimbrenos had obtained rations, the only safe place in which he could be left. He was given into the care of a surgeon, his men threatening to destroy the town if their leader was not cared of his wounds. Whether this threat had an effect or not, we do not know, but Mangas recovered, and was ready

May 17 Deadline for ETZ, Again

by Doris Cherry

May 17 is the deadline set by the Lincoln County Commission to have a draft ordinance for the Lincoln County-Ruidoso Extraterritorial Zone (ETZ).

County commissioners set the deadline at their April 19 meeting when county commission chair Rick Simpson appointed county commissioners Tom Battin and Maury St. John to assist county attorney Alan Morel in drafting a new ETZ ordinance. County manager Tom Stewart opened the discussion on the ETZ with a reminder that according to the minutes of the public hearing for the ETZ at the March 15 county commission meeting the chair would appoint two commissioners and the attorney to work on a new ETZ ordinance.

Chair Rick Simpson however did not appoint a committee in the interim between the March 15 meeting and the April 19 meeting.

When discussion began on the ETZ at the April 19 meeting, Battin asked if it would be appropriate to ask the Ruidoso mayor to appoint two councilors to also work with the ETZ committee. Battin got little support for this suggestion. Instead county commissioner Earl Hobbs, who has objected to the current ETZ ordinance and the administration of it by the village of Ruidoso, went to the podium to speak as a citizen.

Hobbs later told THE NEWS that he does not oppose the idea of an ETZ, rather he supports the concept of the ETZ. However, he opposes the ETZ ordinance in its current form and the administration of the ETZ by the village of Ruidoso, especially under the current planning director.

"In retrospect I wish I had not abstained (from voting to kill the ETZ at the March meeting)," Hobbs said. "I wish I had voted to kill the ETZ because if we had done so I believe we would have had more progress."

Hobbs said after the last meeting he contacted Battin and Simpson by email asking to be appointed to the committee. "I got a note from Tom Battin saying 'delay, delay, delay,'" Hobbs added.

"We are a body that is divided (on this issue), but I believe we are a body that deliberates and should be able to arrive to a conclusion about the ETZ," Hobbs continued. "I do not have that faith in the village of Ruidoso."

Hobbs went on to say that he provided his list of requested amendments to the ETZ ordinance. "I was very, very disappointed because Ruidoso totally disregarded the input from the county," Hobbs added.

Hobbs had opportunity to speak with Ruidoso mayor Leon Eggleston two weeks before the county commission meeting. Hobbs said Eggleston's understanding of the situation with the ETZ was "factually inaccurate." Hobbs said he gave Eggleston a copy of his proposed amendments to the ETZ, but he not gotten any response.

"I am unsure how we should proceed," Hobbs said. "I do not believe Ruidoso is interested in reaching an agreement with the county."

Hobbs then requested a public hearing at the May county commission meeting to rescind the current ETZ ordinance. "I will vote to rescind it and I know I have two other votes to that also," he added.

Morel said county commissioners could vote to have public hearing at the May meeting, but could not do so that day.

County commissioner St. John said if there is no ETZ ordinance, the county has lost any kind of say over what goes on in the ETZ which is a one mile area surrounding the municipal limits of Ruidoso. "The village has approval over planning and platting out to three miles," St. John said. (By state law the village has jurisdiction over all planning and platting, building permits and inspections in the area three miles out from its municipal limits.)

Simpson said the planning and platting has very limited authority.

Battin said he has concerns similar to St. John's. "I feel obligated to those who have invested money in the ETZ with the knowledge the ETZ would protect their investments," he added.

"If we abandon the ETZ, we abandon those protections," Battin said. "I hope we can accept an ordinance and come to satisfactory agreement on its administration."

Hobbs said he fully favors the ETZ concept, but he wants a good ETZ ordinance that serves the people in the ETZ, the county and the village. Hobbs did not agree the village had done a lot of work on the ETZ ordinance, as Battin indicated.

Battin suggested making a fresh start on the ETZ ordinance with study sessions to "offer the public a new product."

Hobbs said the only way to start from zero is to rescind the old ordinance. "I've gotten a lot of heat from people in Alto who want the ETZ, but I need to use the best judgement for my larger district."

Hobbs made the motion to hold public hearing on rescinding the ETZ at the May meeting. In the roll call vote, Hobbs, Simpson, county commissioner Eileen Lovelace and St. John voted yes, and Battin voted no.

Lovelace said the ETZ is needed but "what we have now is not working now." She said the problem appears to be actual enforcement of the ordinance.

Battin said to have a fresh start, an appointed group needs to explore who will administer the ETZ. "It appears the problem with the village administration is the person," he added.

Battin did say in philosophy he would prefer the county to administer the ETZ, because the county people in the ETZ can only vote for county officials. "The people in the ETZ have no opportunity to vote for the body that administers the ETZ," Battin said of the situation now.

St. John asked Morel how long it will take to do a new ETZ ordinance "from scratch." Morel said it could take up to one year.

Lovelace said at the county commission meetings they only hear from people who are against the ETZ. "What about those who are not voicing against it," she said. Lovelace suggested work needs to be done on the administration of the ETZ.

Ruidoso resident and realtor Harvey Foster asked Lovelace about those people she hears from, what is not working with the ETZ. He said the ETZ worked for many years with few problems. "Maybe it is a personality problem in the adminis-

THOUGHTS
FROM THE EDITOR'S DESK

Wind blows through again

By Ruth Hammond

The strong spring winds are blowing through the area and it might be a good idea to hold onto your hat to keep it from blowing into the next state. One person said she hung clothes on the line to dry and when they blew off and toward the east she waited a couple of days until the wind changed direction and her clothes whizzed by and she went out to catch them on the way through the area.

One interesting thing is that a tornado was sighted near Albuquerque not long ago. Does that mean they will have to lengthen Tornado Alley to include New Mexico along with Oklahoma and Kansas and other areas? Several of those places are hit by tornadoes regularly, and it makes a person wonder why people continue to rebuild there.

Reasoning would seem to be to not rebuild where a big wind came through once before, just as it would make sense to not rebuild on a cliff near the ocean after a house had slid off into the ocean. But people do it all the time. Maybe those daring souls believe it won't happen again in the same place. But it does all too often. Tornadoes can cause severe and strange damage. After one tornado the corner of a building was ripped off but the inside corner of the second floor had a shelf on the wall undamaged. No one could get to it, the floor was completely gone.

Nevertheless, people continue to rebuild and live in places where more than once there has been destruction. Maybe they are gearing up for things that could happen late in life. They might be planning to run for elected office and believe massive destruction is a prerequisite. Not all governmental situations are destructive, but too many are. We have been asked repeatedly about the drug paraphernalia ordinance Carrizo is considering. The main question being asked is if municipal authorities are enforcing the current state ordinance? If not, why assume a local ordinance would make any kind of difference?

Another question being asked is how long suspected drug paraphernalia would be kept in custody. One person is quite concerned that her blender would be taken away for testing and she couldn't make milk shakes. Another person wonders about the spoons she needs for stirring. Drug paraphernalia as described in the ordinance, can be anything and most everything in your kitchen. While the majority of you don't make methamphetamines, you do have the necessary equipment for such a procedure in your kitchen or elsewhere in and around your home.

One main concern is that personal items might be on the list of suspected drug paraphernalia and just might be confiscated for testing. Ordinances are similar to officials, it depends on who is translating the ordinances into words and which language is being used, stormy language or the plain old everyday talk we try to use. Don't blow away!

Rural Addressing Is A Slow Process

Addressing rural Lincoln County is and will be a slow process.

So says Lincoln County Rural Addressing officer Connie Stone to THE NEWS. "I ask for the patience of the county property owners during this slow process of rural addressing," Stone said.

On April 19 county commissioners adopted an ordinance to require all properties in the county outside the municipalities to have an address issued by the Lincoln County Rural Addressing Office. Stone is the only employee in that department and she is slowly working to set rural address numbers based on increments of miles.

Stone said the new rural addressing ordinance does not take effect until May 19 and although its rules begin then, it will take her office time to determine the new rural addressing numbers and issue them to property owners.

Stone said if property owners have received an official rural address from her at the Lincoln County Rural Addressing Office, not from the assessor's office or from a self set number, they can put up their own number signs as long as they conform to the new ordinance. The ordinance requires signs to be double sided with numbers placed in a horizontal position with a minimum of four inch high white reflective numbers on a dark background. The number placard must be displayed perpendicular to where the driveway meets the road on a post 42 to 48 inches from the bottom of the sign to the road level. Property owners are responsible for purchasing, install-sprinkler cans that have been filled from hose bibs or interior faucets any day of the week.

Watering of the village soccer fields is permitted.

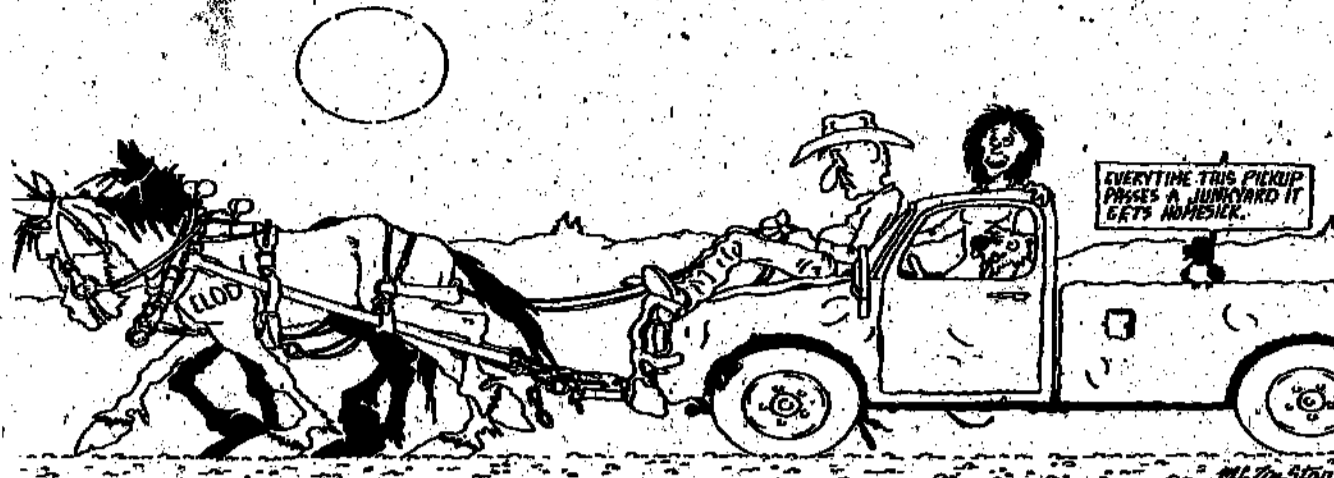

Councilor Angel Shaw said that when Mosley comes to the council on June 14, the village will have gone through Memorial Day and the water department will know how the water situation will be with the extra summer visitors.

Triggers for the water conservation phases are based on the depth of water in Alto Lake, production of flowing water in Eagle Creek and the amount of water produced from the wells; depth of water in the five million gallon tanks and the depth of Grindstone reservoir.

Currently, the Eagle Creek wells are not being pumped as Eagle Creek was flowing at 880 gallons per minute on April 19. Tank level was at 52 feet, the water level in Alto Lake was about a half foot below the spillway; Grindstone lake water level was 10.75 feet below the spillway with one cubic foot per second (cfs) of water from the Rio Ruidoso being diverted into Grindstone.

Water flow at the gauging stations on the Rio Ruidoso in Upper Canyon was at 95 cfs and at Hollywood station was at 110 cfs. Filtration plant at Alto Crest is producing 1.45 million gallons per day and the Grindstone plant is producing .536 million gallons per day.

INSIDE THE CAPITOL

by Jay Miller

SANTA FE -- Gov. Bill Richardson is to be commended for his efforts to get a handle on the state's gambling industry. Since taking office he has said he thinks New Mexico has enough gambling. He's now backed up those words with action.

Gov. Richardson vetoed two gambling bills that were bad for the state. One would have allowed the addition of lottery games with instant winners. Although the impact wouldn't be great, we don't need any expansion of easy gambling temptations in our state.

The governor's other veto was to a bill that had absolutely scary implications. It would have given the state Gaming Control Board the authority to award gaming licenses to applicants who have been denied a license in another state.

Why in the world would we want to do that? It would have made New Mexico a haven for any number of disgusting people with unsavory backgrounds streaming into our state.

Many very important questions never will be answered about this legislation and how it came to pass our Legislature. It never should have gotten past its first committee hearing.

But somehow it made its way through both houses, sometimes with unanimous votes, and then received its final OK with only minutes left in the session. A great amount of high-powered maneuvering was necessary to make that happen.

Inexplicably, it was the Gaming Control Board, itself that wanted the legislation. Normally, any board, commission or department, appointed by the governor, is required to run any desired legislation by the governor's office for approval. No governor wants one of his agencies working at cross purposes with the philosophy and principles of his administration.

Gov. Richardson is known for a bit more involvement in the operation of state agencies than some think healthy for a government. But in this case, the governor says he had no idea his gaming board was conducting such an effort, heads should roll for such an offense, but the governor, as of now, hasn't spoken of any consequences.

And would you believe that on the same day the bill was introduced by Santa Fe Sen. Phil Griego, a lawsuit was filed in Indiana that raised the possibility that New Mexico track owner R.D. Hubbard could face disciplinary action from that state's gaming commission?

Isn't that a coincidence? At least that's what everyone connected with the bill tells us. What would the odds be on such a coincidence? Probably about the same as the odds of hitting the Powerball lottery, the odds on which have recently increased from 120 million-to-1, to 140 million-to-1.

The Gaming Control Board says the intent of the legislation was to help nonprofit clubs that have been turned down for a license because of less-than-ideal finances.

Under current law, the organizations would forever be barred from seeking reconsideration. But somehow, nonprofit clubs never were mentioned in the legislation, so it applied to anyone. Just an oversight don't you suppose?

On the final half-day of the session, the bill came back to the Senate floor for concurrence with a House amendment. Albuquerque Sen. Cisco McSorley launched into a lengthy attack on the bill, which spelled its death because lawmakers don't like controversial bills on the floor when time is so limited.

But through parliamentary maneuvering, the bill quickly got back on the crowded House calendar and the amendment was unanimously withdrawn. That took a great amount of hard work on someone's part and the cooperation of the legislative leadership.

Nonprofit clubs don't have that kind of stroke with the Legislature. There is much we will never know.

Gov. Richardson also signed a bill allowing race tracks to keep their slot-machine rooms open longer and to tax them more. It does expand gambling, but the governor obtained some important written concessions from the owners in return, including cooperation in the treatment of compulsive gamblers and support for any recommendations from his compulsive gambling task force.

PEMELA'S ENTHUSIASM WAS WASTED ON JOHN

John felt that he could never ask Pamela to be his wife.

True, he loved her as he had never loved anyone else before, but then she was an angel, while he had many little weaknesses of which no angel would ever be likely to approve.

Pamela, on the other hand, spent her time thinking that it was high time John popped the question!

One night he came to the point.

"Pamela, Pamela," he urged, "will you marry me?"

"You bet," Pamela replied briskly.

"I know I do, darling," he answered, ashamed. "But if you'll only say 'Yes', I'll promise to never go back to the race track or the casino!"

Taurus (April 20-May 20) Your money does matter, but not at the cost of losing someone you love. You can find a different job, a different place to live, but not true friends and loved ones that you can not replace. Think with your heart.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) People, places and things can change at a drop of a hat. You on the other hand need to stand fast and strong, and let others know they can count on you. Your thoughts are showing through your eyes.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) You need a vacation. In fact a new life would be in order if you could pull one out of your hat. Changing your thought pattern will be a good start. Your spiritual life needs a little shine. Be a child of faith. Have fun.

Leo (July 23-Aug 22) You are working too hard and getting nowhere fast. It's the way you're thinking about things that are messing you up. Your heart and your mind are playing havoc with your already screwy life. Stop and think things out.

Virgo (Aug 23-Sept 22) If you never thought you had a heart, think again because you're about to be tested way beyond the call of duty. Dust off that cold heart and let new feelings come through. Cry if you must, but live again. Got love?

Libra (Sept 22-Oct 22) No. The answer is "NO". Quit trying to make everyone else happy. They have a mind of their own. They'll be happy only when it suits them. You on the other hand just be the wonderful person you already are.

Scorpio (Oct 23-Nov 21) Money? Job? Love? Take your pick because you need to redo them all. Put your whole heart, mind and soul into anything you do now and you'll see rewards come back ten times fold, but only if you do it with love.

Sagittarius (Nov 22-Dec) Sit this one out. Watch from the dug-out and you'll receive more information about the people around you than you would if you were up in their face. Don't allow an old love mess up something new for you.

Capricorn (Dec 22-Jan 19) A new game plan awaits. Are you up for it? Don't go getting logic on yourself, this has nothing to do with paying the bills. Your spirit is telling you that the doors are wide open for you, to do what you want. Aquarius (Jan 20-Feb 18) Afraid? You shouldn't be. You're letting old fears replace the faith you once had. You can do anything you put your mind to. Let others do what they need to do, and you use all your energy for you now.

Pisces (Feb 19-March 20) "Ouch" Pride does get hurt when you think you have all the answers and no one is listening. That's a good thing because now you can think about what you need to do and allow others to do their thing. Aries (March 21-April 19) Money, money, money? The answer is not more money, it's how to save more money, and make it at the same time. You have a good idea, put a plan together and make it work. Don't share this idea.

to resume this warfare against the whites.

Soon after his recovery, however, the Apache chief was killed. There are two stories about his death, equally discreditable. One is to the effect that the Californians captured him, goaded him with a red-hot bayonet, and killed him when he tried to escape.

The other is that he went to Fort McLane, New Mexico, to make a treaty, was imprisoned, and was shot by a sentry under the pretext that he was afraid Mangas would escape.

Cochise was more fortunate. After the Civil war was ended, a campaign of extermination against the Apaches was put into force. The Chiricahua chief held out as long as he could under the new conditions, but surrendered in 1871. The next year, dissatisfied, he escaped with 200 of his people, and later 600 more followed him. That summer, however, he returned, and lived on the newly-established Chiricahua reservation, where he died June 8, 1874.

Spotted Tail

A cow is the most inoffensive animal that walks the earth, yet she has been the cause of plenty of trouble. A cow started the Chicago fire, and a cow was the reason for the killing of Lieutenant Grattan's detachment. The Chicago cow was probably something of a pet — the other bovine was an old one abandoned by emigrants and taken by a Brule Sioux.

Grattan was sent to arrest the Indian for his salvage of the cow. The Brule thought this proceeding rather high-handed, and the battle began, with the result that Grattan's detachment was destroyed. The cow had probably become Indian sustenance long before the fight.

Prominent to his engagement was a young Indian who later attained almost the prominence of Red Cloud. He, too, was self-made, and besides being a leader among warriors, he had fought a duel with a subchief for the hand of his wife, and had won. When the head chief died, Spotted Tail was chosen over the heads of older men to succeed him.

After the battle over the discarded cow, which led to depredations on the Oregon trail and subsequent punishment of the tribe by other troops, Spotted Tail and two others were commanded to give themselves up as murderers. Much to the surprise of the soldiers at Fort Laramie, this was promptly done, and the three braves, dressed in their war array, marched in, chanting their death songs. This bravery had an effect in their favor, and Spotted Tail eventually was freed.

In 1865, when the Sioux under Red Cloud opposed the building of a railroad into Montana, Spotted Tail favored the treaty, although he did not sign it. He did, however, sign the treaty of April 29, 1868, in which the Sioux reservation was accepted and the road to the mines abandoned.

Later gold was discovered in the Black Hills. Not knowing exactly how the white men valued this metal, Spotted Tail visited the miners and prospectors in their camps to find out. As he sat before their fires, he listened to talk of wonderful mines and rich ore, given a greatly exaggerated value by the imagination of the prospectors — a habit which has not eased to this day. His untutored mind gained the idea that the Black Hills lands were extremely valuable, and that a price commensurate with this value should be paid to the Sioux.

The treaty of 1868 had taken away from the chiefs the power to make treaties for sale of lands. On this account, commissioners were sent to the Sioux to find out what price they demanded. Spotted Tail had spread the news he gathered; the lands were valued by the Indians at $60,000,000.

Naturally, no such price could be paid. Further negotiations must be entered into, but for the time affairs were at a standstill. The troops, feeling that later on the territory would be opened, began allowing miners to pass in without limit.

The younger Sioux, who hoped with their elders that a large price would be paid, saw this influx with alarm and anger. To a man, the young warriors on the reservation joined the hostiles, of which Sitting Tail and Crazy Horse (a nephew of Spotted Tail) were leaders.

Spotted Tail, who had been to Washington, where he was made much of, had become much friendlier to the white people than some of his brother chiefs liked. Big Mouth, in particular, had considerable to say about this; and was managing to turn the Brule against Spotted Tail.

There was one sure way to cause Big Mouth to be still; Spotted Tail went to his lodge, and called him out. As the talkative chief appeared,

Prom

The Carrizozo High School prom finally arrived after months of waiting. The students have been anticipating prom since Blossom & Beau which was held in February. The theme of this year's prom was "Just Another Night in Paradise."

The juniors decorated the old gym in Hawaiian decorations the week prior to the dance. The juniors put palm trees by the DJ's table and throughout the entire gym. Also, they had elegant air-brushed posters on the walls with palm trees and males and females dancing on it.

Prom was held on Saturday night, April 23, from 8-12. The students had a choice of going to after prom, where they went to Alamogordo to relax at the Recreation Center. The students were able to go swimming, watch movies, play basketball, volleyball, pool, foosball, or just kick it with their friends.

Dinner was provided by the parents of the junior class. Students had the choice of Hawaiian chicken or chicken and beef shish kabobs with a delightful side of rice, a salad, and cake as the dessert. The dance was DJ'd by Tami's Tunes that came to Carrizozo from Las Cruces.

This year's prom king was Jesse Samora and this year's prom queen was Tierney Burd. The queen and king danced to the song "Just Another Day in Paradise" by Kenny Chesney.

Corona Clinic Issue Clarified

The issue over whether Lincoln County Medical Center's Corona Clinic can use two village owned rooms is not a done deal, says LCMC administrator Jim Gibson.

Gibson gave a report about issues with the Corona Clinic to the Lincoln County Commissioners at their April 19 meeting in Carrizozo. At that meeting Gibson indicated he had spoken with village officials about the use of two rooms that are not currently covered by the lease between LCMC and the village of Corona for use of space for the Corona health clinic.

The Corona clinic is a satellite of the Carrizozo Health Clinic, administered by LCMC which is operated by Presbyterian Healthcare Services under a lease arrangement with Lincoln County. Lincoln County owns LCMC in Ruidoso and the Carrizozo health clinic facility. The village of Corona owns the facility in which the Corona clinic is located and leases a small space to LCMC/PHS.

In the April 21 issue of THE NEWS it was reported that Gibson said he spoke with the Corona Village Clerk. The clerk, Cathy Perez contacted THE NEWS later on April 21 and said Gibson had not spoken with her about the clinic issues. Perez said the question about the village's license for the clinic came about because the village mayor wanted the village to have an advisory board for the clinic, which has its community advisory board through LCMC.

Perez said the village was approached by the Corona Clinic Community Advisory Board to use the two additional rooms for the clinic, however the village wanted the option of taking back the rooms if the village finds an alternative provider, which LCMC did not agree to.

"The issue is exclusivity," Perez said.

Perez said the clinic is already using the two rooms.

On April 26, THE NEWS contacted Gibson at LCMC in Ruidoso. He said he did not speak with Perez but he had been in contact with the Corona Clinic Advisory Board. He said one of the advisory board members is a village trustee who knows what PHS requires of the rural clinics.

As for the use of the extra rooms, Gibson said he found out just Monday, April 25, that the Corona Clinic was using the two village rooms for storage. "I advised them to vacate those rooms because of the potential liability," Gibson said. "The Clinic will not occupy those rooms until there is a written agreement between the village and LCMC/PHS to do so."

Gibson said he has requested PHS attorneys to research the room use issue and he has yet to receive a response.

County Commission Debates

Alan Morel said by not passing the resolution, they did away with the liquor fees. He then suggested they do a motion to reconsider the liquor fees resolution. Battin then made the motion to reconsider, which Simpson seconded. On the vote to reconsider, St. John was the only one who said no. St. John said she was concerned that people who do not pay the county fees will have their state liquor licenses affected. Morel confirmed that could happen. County clerk Tammie Maddox said there are about 13 establishments which pay the annual fees. Lovelace said the fees are part of the clerk's budget and Simpson said the county spends money for sheriff's responses. "I see nothing wrong with this resolution," Lovelace added.

Ruidoso resident Tony Seno then came to the podium and asked to comment. Simpson however refused to recognize Seno, because Seno was "without enough respect to remove his hat in the county commission chamber, or building."

"You are going to deny my opportunity to speak on this matter?" Seno asked Simpson, while refusing to remove his large black hat.

At that point Simpson asked sheriff Rick Virden to remove Seno from the room. Virden then escorted Seno out of the meeting room and building.

tration," Foster said. "But let's not negate the ETZ for the important tool for the community to maintain sanity."

Simpson said all these issues can be brought up in the public hearing.

Foster said he was just trying to establish why the county is opposed to the ETZ. He said it seems that the county objects to things the county wants done its way without compromise. He said it also seems the county only objects to the language. He asked that instead of village councillors on the committee Battin proposed that village Planning and Zoning committee members be appointed.

Nogal resident Bob Moeller said he is hearing that no negotiation has taken place between the county and Ruidoso. "You must have negotiations," Moeller said.

"Both sides must believe it is in their best interest to have an ETZ Ordinance." He cautioned that doing away with the ETZ to bring negotiation might not be good.

St. John said she was disappointed that Simpson did not appoint anyone after the March meeting. She had no problem with two village representatives on a subcommittee but "not as the beginning step."

Morel said in the ETZ process, any draft ETZ ordinance goes to the ETZ commission, and if approved there goes to the ETZ authority (two county commissioners and one village councillor) for final approval, and does not come back to the county commission. Hobbs said he did not care how the process goes, he wanted a totally new redraft of the ETZ ordinance. "The problem is administration," Hobbs said.

After more discussion, Simpson asked who wanted to be on the subcommittee.

Hobbs said he wanted to serve but three county commissioners on a subcommittee constitutes a quorum. "So I withdraw myself from being on the subcommittee, since I seem to be the lightning rod."

With that Simpson appointed St. John and Battin to work with Morel on a draft ETZ ordinance.

The public hearing on the ETZ will be held at 9 a.m. on Tuesday, May 17.

two warriors seized him, and before he could resist, Spotted Tail shot him dead.

The Sioux uprising has been discussed elsewhere in these articles, and its outcome told. After the Custer disaster, Red Cloud was suspected of disloyalty, and Spotted Tail was made chief of all the Indians at both his own agency and Red Cloud's.

Crazy Horse had separated from Sitting Bull, and engaged in a desperate battle with General Miles and his troops. Spotted Tail negotiated with his nephew, and in the following spring (1877) Crazy Horse surrendered. The great Sioux uprising was at an end.

The Brule chief, now a man of middle age, still preferred an active life. Inter-tribal feuds remained to be settled, and Crow Dog, another Sioux, was one of the marked men. Spotted Tail gathered a war-party and started out to spill some

They met near the Rosebud agency in South Dakota, August 5, 1881. Crow Dog felt that he was in a dangerous position, and prepared to defend himself.

A shot rang out - more than one, no doubt, but this shot reached its mark in the heart of Spotted Tail. The Brule chief lay dead.

Lending for Protection

Hollywood thought a certain motion picture star had gone crazy when he began to lend money to certain of his friends. To be sure, the amounts were small, but the fact that he lent any at all was cause for consternation among the people who knew him real well.

"Don't you worry," grinned the star, when it was pointedly suggested that he needed a vacation and mental relaxation. "I haven't loaned a dollar more than I'm willing to pay to feel certain that I'll be left strictly alone. No one comes near you when they own you money."

Some people are so afraid to die that they never begin to live.

And, by the way, the fellows that holler the loudest about the "newspaper" are the ones that ask for the greatest amount of newspaper publicity free of charge, then they have no axes to grind.

Newspaper Changes

Two of our valued exchanges, the Carrizozo News and the Lordsburg Liberal, have changed ownership during the past fortnight.

The NEWS founded and conducted for a number of years by the late John A. Haley, and since his death by his widow, Mrs. Meda C. Haley, has been taken over by Mrs. Era Bradley Smith, for several years connected with the paper, being familiar with the work and acquainted with the people of Lincoln county.

The Lordsburg Liberal, for several years well conducted by Leslie Blackburn, a thoroughly capable newspaper man, has been relinquished to other hands on account of the publisher's health.

The new owners are Messrs. Geo. W. Woodward and son, Geo. W. Woodward, Jr., from Lincoln, Nebraska.

Our best wishes for success to both papers. The newspaper business is an intriguing game in normal times, and despite some drawbacks affords much pleasure to one who has once entered upon its exacting demands of always telling the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth. -- Alamogordo Advertiser.

Capitan News

Abelino Lara, employed as a sheep herder by the Lowrey Sheep Co., on the Gus Everett ranch, about twenty-five miles north of Capitan, was shot and seriously wounded about 9 o'clock Thursday night.

It seems from reports that Lara was called from his tent, and as he stepped out he was met by a volley of bullets, four of which struck him in the body. Robbery is supposed to have been the motive for the act, as Lara was believed to have a considerable sum of money with him.

The assailants fled, however, without approaching the fallen man. Officers went to the scene of the shooting Saturday, but have not learned the result to their investigation.

LINCOLN COUNTY Manager's Report

The following is the report given by Lincoln County Manager Tom Stewart to the Lincoln County Commissioners at their April 19 meeting in Carrizozo.

Western Counties Partnership Restoration Summit

About 300 representatives of many entities involved in forest restoration in the western United States attended the Western Counties Partnership Restoration Summit held March 30-31 at the Ruidoso Convention Center. Stewart attended several of the sessions which involved presentations by the Governor, Senator Jeff Bingaman, Congressman Stevan Pearce and Dr. David Garrett, to name a few. The result of the summit was a group resolution that calls for "adequate and sustained resources from the (US) Administration and Congress for support of these community based efforts that will result in the ecological restoration of our National forests and rangelands."

Meeting of New Mexico Game Commission

Stewart attended the opening discussions of the New Mexico Game and Fish Commission meeting on March 31 at Spencer Theater. Approximately 70 people attended and a variety of issues were discussed.

County Medical Insurance Rate Increase

The county received its state "cafeteria" medical insurance rates for the next fiscal year (which begins July 1). The cost for Blue Cross/Blue Shield will increase by 9 percent while the cost for Cigna and Presbyterian will increase by 3 percent. All other coverages, dental, life and disability, dependent life and legal remain unchanged. Stewart said about half the '89 full time county employees are with Blue Cross/Blue Shield, which will be a significant increase to the county's 2005-2006 fiscal year budget.

Paden Drugstore aka "Roy's Gift Gallery"

Roy's Gift Gallery in Carrizozo has been named to the National Register of Historic Places. The county received notice by mail in a letter dated April 4 from the State Historic Preservation Office. The State Historic Office provided a brief history of drugstore. The following is excerpts from that history:

Paden's Drugstore complex is historically significant for its history as Carrizozo's primary medical office, hospital and pharmacy during the early 20th century. The drugstore and soda fountain are also significant to Carrizozo as a social gathering place and hub of neighborhood interaction. Also, Paden Drugstore is architecturally significant as a well-preserved local example of a vernacular two-part commercial block building.

Carrizozo, founded in 1899 when the El Paso and North-western Railroad built a spur line to the coalfields near present-day Capitan, became a major railroad hub by 1913.

It boasted a depot, 12-stall roundhouse and water treatment plant. Formally platted in 1907, Carrizozo gained additional importance in 1909 when the county seat was relocated from Lincoln to Carrizozo. A new courthouse (demolished in the 1960s) was completed in 1912 to coincide with New Mexico's admittance to the Union as the 47th state.

The town's first prominent physician, Dr. Melvin Paden, established a medical practice in 1907. His practice quickly expanded resulting in the construction of a pharmacy and later a private hospital. The combination doctor's office, drugstore and hospital served as the primary medical care facility for the community until Dr. Paden's retirement in the 1930s.

Dr. Paden was born Feb. 4, 1851 in West Virginia, earned a medical degree from the Louisville College of Medicine in 1880. He conducted a medical practice and pharmacy in White Oaks until 1906 when he was appointed division surgeon of the re-named El Paso and South-western Railroad. As a result of this appointment, Dr. Paden moved to Carrizozo and established his medical office in the frame building at 1202 E. Ave. In 1909 as his practice grew, Dr. Paden built a drugstore and clinic next door.

Conditions on the railroad were hazardous in the early 20th century. The local newspaper reported numerous injuries sustained by railroad workers that required the skills of a medical professional. Besides the hazards related to railroad work, Dr. Paden attended to the common illnesses and afflictions for railroad families and general community.

Appointed a public health officer, Dr. Paden took on additional responsibilities, compelling him to finance the construction of a modern hospital facility. A second floor addition to the drug store was completed in 1917 and was described as "a modern up-to-date affair, equipped with all the latest devices used by leading hospitals." (Carrizozo News April 13, 1917).

Dr. Paden's workload lightened when Dr. Lucas, another Carrizozo physician, established a practice and built a small hospital in 1917. The pattern of doctors opening private hospitals continued when Dr. Johnson established another hospital in the old Hamilton house in the 1930s.

Dr. Paden retired from the railroad in 1927, but a personal conversation with long-time resident Larue Wetzel indicates that the Paden Hospital was in operation as late as 1933. Dr. Paden continued to operate the pharmacy until he sold it to 'Red' Eaker, a pharmacist in 1937. Eaker operated the pharmacy and soda fountain which was continued to be called Paden's Drugstore for more than 20 years until he sold it to another pharmacist in 1954.

Daniels Fund Activity
Ted Allen, under grant from the Daniels Fund, is formulating plans for a Sierra Blanca Service Corps. Several meetings were planned with the Rocky Mountain Youth Corps and the Cornerstones Community Partnerships. Anyone interested in creating developmental opportunities for youth in Lincoln County are urged to contact Allen at 937-5714.

Rural Addressing

ing and maintaining the address placards.

Address placard may be ordered and purchased from the County Rural Addressing Office by calling Stone at 505-648-2385, ext. 138. Last week THE NEWS incorrectly reported the extension as 106, and THE NEWS apologizes to the County Planning Office for the mistake.

Stone, told THE NEWS that county property owners should first contact her office for the correct rural address numbers for their property. She said the addressing process sometimes requires her to be in the field, and property owners can leave a message on her voice mail.
