

Shake-up at C'zozo Police Department

by Patrice Brazie

The Carrizozo Police Department's administrative assistant to the chief, Suzi Wolfe, has resigned as of last Friday, May 12th. Wolfe, who would have been with the police department seven years in August, told The News that she received an undated letter of reprimand signed by city clerk Leann Weibrecht, mayor Lee Roy Zamora and town trustee Wes Lindsay last Thursday. Wolfe said the letter was hand delivered to her, at her office, by the mayor and trustee.

According to Zamora, he and Weibrecht wrote the letter and in it requested that Wolfe change her work habits.

In a telephone conversation Tuesday, Wolfe said that the letter accused her of insubordination, disrespect to the department's uniform, and inappropriate uses of the department's equipment and evidence room. Wolfe said that, in the letter, she was told that any future incident of misconduct would result in immediate dismissal from the department.

Throughout her career with the police department, Wolfe said, she has worn a uniform and a badge identifying her as the department's administrative assistant. Two months ago Carrizozo Police Chief Don Lyle asked her to stop wearing the badge. Wolfe said, telling her that she could become a liability to the department if she were mistaken for a police officer. Wolfe admitted that, on about five occasions since, she wore a badge to work that said Brothel Inspector because she thought it would be fun and viewed lightheartedly. Wolfe generally wore navy blue pants, white shirt and badge on Mondays and Tuesdays and slacks and a department tee-shirt the rest of the week, she said, but had recently been ordered not to wear anything to work that had the word Carrizozo on it.

Stage IV Closure Order on Forest Effective May 23

The Lincoln National Forest is currently facing extreme risk for wildfires due to extreme drought conditions. An emergency closure order, to be signed by acting forest supervisor Lou Woltering, will go into effect at 8:00 a.m., May 23.

According to Paul Schmidtke, fire staff officer, "The bottom line is we are in a situation of unprecedented risk and we want to take every precaution." The forest was partially closed on May 2. The order that becomes effective on May 23 will be a full closure.

The closure does not affect Federal and State Highways that lead into the mountain communities. The surrounding towns and villages welcome visitors for sightseeing, shopping, and community festivals. Contact the local chamber of commerce or arts councils for the villages of Clouderoft, Ruidoso, Mayhill, Sacramento, Weed, Timberon, Capitan and Queen to obtain a calendar of events.

Please Note: If conditions change for the worse, or there is significant fire activity, it may be necessary to

Capitan Mayor Hammons Reorganizes Village Boards

Capitan Mayor Sam Hammons, at the regular village council meeting of May 9th, proposed the dismissal of several members of the village's planning and water boards, and nominated his choice of appointees to fill the vacancies created by the dismissals.

County Reviews Request For Domestic Partner Policy

by Patrice Brazie

Rick Silva, Lincoln County Assessor, went before the county's board of commissioners during their regular meeting on Tuesday, May 16th, to present three requests. Silva asked for an endorsement from the board in his bid for the office of president of the New Mexico Association of Counties, requested the board consider making health care insurance available to the domestic partners of some unmarried county employees, and asked the commissioners to revise the county's mileage and per diem reimbursement rates.

Silva told the commissioners that no representative from Lincoln County has ever served as a president of the association of counties, and that he would appreciate their support in his bid for the office. The county commissioners readily agreed.

The assessor then spoke on behalf of those county employees who are living an alternate lifestyle. "We have individuals that are not married but have families," Silva said, "and it would not cost the county any more money for them to be covered under the insurance." Silva referred to adult employees who share their lives and raise children with a partner to whom they are not legally wed.

County manager Tom Stewart told the county commissioners that the IRS has ruled that they don't recognize domestic partners. "Whatever you pay for a domestic partner is taxable," Stewart explained. "Under the current rules, when we pay an employee's portion of the (insurance) coverage, that is a deduction from his gross pay," Stewart said. The manager said that providing the same coverage for a domestic partner would require a restructuring of county finances to account for additional monies into the gross receipt pay of those individuals.

County commission chair Rick Simpson was opposed to any official recognition of unmarried partners, and reminded the board that the concept had been reviewed just a few years ago.

"I got chastised in the newspaper and letters to the editor saying that we were trying to legislate morality, and we're not," Simpson said. "As far as I'm concerned, you can go shack-up with whoever you want to, but I'm not going to pay for the medical insurance with tax money. It's just that simple," Simpson said.

Silva said that the children of those unmarried partners were covered by the employee insurance policy, and he was asked by some county employees to bring the issue of domestic partners to the board for consideration.

County commissioner Earl Hobbs supported the idea. "I grew up in west Texas; domestic partner was not a term that I learned as a kid growing up," Hobbs said. "I guess that we live in a different age and we have a different perspective these days." Hobbs admitted that he had been unwilling to support similar proposals in the past but, due to the way society is structured these days, he thought the concept was appropriate.

Rhonda Burrows, Lincoln County's indigent health care administrator, spoke before the Carrizozo Chamber of Commerce on May 9th. Burrows is on a self-proclaimed mission to educate the county's business community as to the value of the State Coverage Insurance program. The employer-assisted insurance is a federal and state administered project designed to bring affordable health care to working adults earning low to moderately low incomes. Employers who enroll their employees in the insurance plan are asked to contribute $75 per month for each employee, less than 40 cents per hour for full-time workers. The program's low employee contribution, $35 per month or less based on income, makes health care insurance available to those who otherwise can't afford it.

Carrizozo resident Peggy Najar also addressed the chamber. She briefed chamber members on the progress of the Happy World Playground planned for the town's Spencer Park. Happy World Playground is

Shake-up at C'zozo Police

Regarding the allegation of an inappropriate use of department equipment, Wolfe said that she had used an office computer to perform a background check on Lyle. After speaking to one of Lyle's former employers, Wolfe said, she had concerns about his ability to perform the duties of the chief of police. On Tuesday, Wolfe was unwilling to specifically state her concerns, but said she expressed them in faxes to the mayor and city clerk on the day before Lyle was sworn in as chief.

Wolfe told The News that, since the death of her ex-husband, she has been harassed by a step-son who wrote accusatory letters about her to Mayor Zamora, District Attorney Scott Key, the Federal Bureau of Investigation and newspapers in Alamogordo and Ruidoso. Wolfe was unsure as to whether or not those letters prompted the letter of reprimand that she received last Thursday. She said that, because of the actions of her step-son, she needed a secure place to store some personal items, and was granted permission by a former police chief to use the department's evidence room for that purpose.

Wolfe said that the letter of reprimand referred to her storing items "of questionable origin" in the evidence room.

According to Wolfe, although last Thursday's letter was her first indication that her job performance was in question, she had already prepared a letter of resignation. She submitted that letter on Thursday, giving a 30 day notice of intention to resign. On Friday afternoon, Wolfe was presented with 30 days' severance pay and compensation for a two week vacation, and was then told by Weibrecht that her employment had been terminated.

Wolfe said that her pleas to city officials to forgo the promotion of Lyle, and other events that probably led to her dismissal, stemmed from her concerns about, and loyalty to, the Carrizozo Police Department.

Chief Lyle said on Tuesday that, although he never had any real confrontations with Wolfe, he had worked nights as a Carrizozo police officer and rarely saw her. After he became police chief a few months ago, Lyle said, Wolfe wanted to run the office her own way. "She'd do anything to discredit me," he said, and alleged that Wolfe had, in letters to city officials, referred to him as dishonest. Wolfe complained about the methods he used in filling out reports, Lyle said, and once told him that he needed to prove himself and win over the citizens of Carrizozo. "I told her I don't have to prove myself," Lyle said. "If I do a good job, they'll keep me; if I don't, the mayor will let me go." Lyle, who will be 75 years old next month, has served as police chief, marshal and sheriff of other departments throughout his career. "I didn't want to take the job (of police chief)," Lyle said, "but they (city officials) asked me to, so I did." He added, "I'm supposed to be retired."

Wolfe and Lyle both acknowledged that rumors are spreading around Carrizozo about Wolfe being unwilling to work with Lyle because he is a black man, but Lyle said he has never heard Wolfe make any derogatory references to his race. Wolfe adamantly denied any prejudices of that nature.

Glynis Racine, and David McAninch. New members appointed to that board are Monte Forney, Lamoyne Carpenter, James Taylor, Pam Allen and Harold McCaw.

The Capitan village council also accepted the resignation of Mary LaRue from the Motor Vehicle Department, and will advertise for a candidate to fill that position.

According to Hammons, LaRue has accepted an employment position in Arizona. The village is also seeking a candidate to serve as superintendent of the water department. The former water department superintendent resigned last year and the position had not been filled.

quences," Hobbs said, "if the person wants to take that upon himself, that's their decision. It doesn't mean I like it, doesn't mean I approve of it, it's a recognition of reality."

County commissioner Maury St. John said she didn't care which way society was going, she would not support recognition of domestic partners.

County attorney Alan Morel reported that the State of New Mexico's laws do not recognize common law marriage, but that the governor has, by an executive order, recognized domestic partners in state government. The board of commissioners denied Silva's request to change county policies regarding domestic partners, with Hobbs casting the only vote in opposition of the denial.

Silva then asked commissioners to increase mileage and per diem reimbursements in accordance with the limits set by state statutes.

The county's current reimbursement of expenses for overnight travel within the state is set at $75 per day and at $85 for trips to Santa Fe.

Commissioners agreed to reimburse the mileage and per diem payments at their meeting of June 9th.

Carranza Assassinated, Villa Remains Outlaw

Mexico City, Mex., May 23 -- The entire population of Mexico City without distinction of political creed was terribly shocked today when word was received that Venustiano Carranza had been assassinated by Rudolfo Herrero, a former officer in the federal army, who was accompanying the president's party in its flight through the Puebla mountains.

Carranza and his party were murdered while sleeping at Tiaxcaitengo, in the state of Hidalgo, on Thursday night. Herrero with 40 or 80 men surrounded Carranza and his small party and began a fusillade of rifle bullets. Carranza is believed to have been instantly killed while he slept. The assassins fled, leaving the corpses where they lay. Peons who chanced to pass the spot discovered them yesterday. The authorities of several villages were notified and troops were dispatched to the place to recover the bodies.

General Francisco Mariel, who remained loyal to Carranza, took possession of the bodies and removed them to Tuancinco, a village in Hidalgo.

It was learned that Ynacio Bonillas, former Mexican ambassador to the United States and Carranza's candidate for the presidency; Gen. Juan Barregan, former federalist chief of staff; Col. Pauline Morales, former general manager of the Mexican National railroads, and Frederick Montes escaped in the massacre. They have arrived at Necaxa, it was officially stated.

Not the least affected by the shocking news of Carranza's death through the treachery of a supposed friend were Gen. Alvaro Obregon, and Gen. Pablo Gonzales, supreme military powers of the provisional government.

Revolutionary headquarters immediately ordered a strong column to pursue Herrero and to capture him, summarily court martial him and apply the death penalty.

Gen. Gonzalez and Obregon have named an investigating commission to proceed to the scene of the crime and obtain the facts and establish the happenings with all exactitude. At the present everything indicates personal vengeance. Herrero who premeditated the attack, offering to protect Carranza during his stay in Tiaxcaitengo. Since then, it is learned, Herrero's father had been executed a few days previously, by order of Carranza and Cabrera.

Aboard Special Train of Gen. Calles, La Flor, Coahuila, May 22, via El Paso, May 24 -- The de facto authorities of Mexico have served an ultimatum on Francisco Villa, giving him until May 25 to decide whether he is to be at peace or at war with the new government. Gen. P. Elias Calles announced late today.

In making the announcement, Calles gave the Associated Press his complete correspondence with Villa. Calles is minister of war under the de facto government.

a community improvement project sponsored by the Carrizozo Woman's Club. Local artists, community members and children have worked together to create two ten-foot long file-covered benches in the park, Najjar said. A dedication ceremony is planned for June 3rd.

Having raised almost $2,500 toward the purchase of modern playground equipment, organizers of the playground effort have also applied for funding from the Hubbard Foundation and other organizations. A request for $90,000 of the 2006-2007 capital outlay funds from the New Mexico State Legislature was recently denied. The playground project is expected to cost about $90,000. Existing playground equipment in two of Carrizozo's parks consists only of old metal swings and slides, Najjar said. Chamber members agreed to discuss a possible contribution to the Happy World Playground project at its June meeting. In discussion led by Dirk Norris, head of the advertising and promotion committee, chamber members decided to delay the development of a new promotional brochure. It was reported that new brochures would cost $6,000, and that there is no money available from the town's lodgers tax funds, which were used to offset brochure printing costs in the past. Norris reported that 11 Carrizozo businesses had purchased advertising from a tabloid-format magazine featuring towns along Highway 380. He suggested computer-printing some promotional announcements to be placed in Carrizozo restaurants and gas stations during an upcoming motorcycle rally.

Jamie Gieb, Scott Shafer and Gwen Dunne were appointed to the chamber's scholarship committee.

Frank Walker provided some details on the city-wide garage sale planned for June 3rd. According to Walker, the chamber currently holds about 2,000 items in storage that will be placed in the auction house on Central Avenue for the garage sale. Carrizozo residents may set-up their wares at the auction house free-of-charge, or at their own homes. The event will be advertised through flyers distributed by chamber of commerce members; those flyers will also promote the Old Miner's Days celebration in White Oaks which takes place on the same weekend.

Welda Grider asked chamber members to look for an alternative plan for their traditional July 4th barbecue fund-raiser. The barbecue is held prior to the annual fireworks display at the municipal golf course, and at a small structure that now is slated for demolition. Grider pointed out that the renovations planned for the golf course might negate any plans for a barbecue at that location. "As bad as I hate to say it," Grider said, "we either need a good alternative plan, or just the fireworks." Chamber members tossed around some ideas, like offering a simpler menu or inviting community organizations to set-up food booths; the Carrizozo Country Club clubhouse and the little league park were suggested as possible alternative locales.

Chamber president Dean Lollar said that families with children might appreciate a simpler menu of hot-dogs and hamburgers, rather than the traditional brisket dinners that have been sold in the past. It was recognized that, if the golf course re-seeding is delayed until fall, there will be no need to change the location of the barbecue. Chamber members voted to change the menu regardless of the location.

The next meeting of the Carrizozo Chamber of Commerce will be on Tuesday, June 13th, at 12 noon at the Four Winds Restaurant.

County of Lincoln

Manager's Report

by Patrice Brazie

County manager Tom Stewart presented the following items to the Lincoln County Board of Commissioners during their regular meeting on May 16th.

The New Mexico Environment Department's Air Quality Bureau has issued a permit to White Oaks Resources, LLC for the operation of a 100-ton-per-hour rock crusher. In a meeting with White Oaks residents in March, representatives of the environment department (ED) explained their findings in testing the operation's potential air pollution. ED testing found the air quality during operation of the crusher to be within acceptable limits. Approval of the permit will become final on May 24th if no protest is filed.

The New Mexico Department of Game and Fish (NMDGF) is soliciting proposals from private landowners to conduct projects supported by the federal Landowner Incentive Program (LIP). Funded through the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, LIP projects restore, conserve or improve the natural habitats of New Mexico's wildlife species of concern.

52 varieties of fish, reptiles, birds, mammals, a beetle and a snail make up the list of species of concern in Lincoln County. The 20 birds listed include the bald eagle, several hawks and owls, plovers, a hummingbird, a cuckoo, a falcon and others.

Although the majority of funding allocated for LIP projects is earmarked for New Mexico's eastern plains and riparian areas, $250,000 is available for projects in other parts of the state. Landowners are required to provide 30 percent of the project's cost, either in monetary funds or in-kind services.

Possible projects include the conversion of non-native grassland to native grassland, the restoration of springs and other naturally occurring water sources and non-native vegetation removal and replacement.

LIP projects must display a measurable approach to habitat conservation, improvement or restoration that will result in a condition that reflects the area's historical bio-diversity, and must be completed within two years upon approval. More information on the Landowner Incentive Program is available through the New Mexico Department of Game and Fish.

Approximately 10 road signs in Lincoln County that warn truck drivers against the use of "Jake brakes" will have to be replaced. Stewart received notice from the New Mexico Department of Transportation (DOT) in April informing him that all such signs throughout the state will be changed to read "engine brakes" instead. The term Jake Brake refers to a specific manufacturing brand name and therefore carries legal proprieties. According to Stewart, the county's road department has already ordered the replacement signs.

All prospective contractors seeking to contract work from state agencies or other public bodies must, as of May 17th, file a campaign contribution disclosure form with the agency.

The New Mexico Department of Finance and Administration (DFA) has defined campaign contributions as a gift, subscription, loan, advance or deposit of money or other thing of value donated to any public official or person authorized to raise contributions for the purpose of electing the official to a state or local office. The disclosure forms are being placed in Lincoln County's request for proposal packets, according to Stewart.

The Greater Ruidoso Area Wildland Urban Interface Working Group has invited area school officials and

THOUGHTS
FROM THE EDITOR'S DESK

Is Homeland Security Secure?

By Ruth Hammond

Getting from one place to another by not driving can be difficult at times, especially if you are traveling to an out of the way place that is not serviced by an airline or train. The way to travel in that situation is by bus, and now that the Homeland Security procedures are in effect, even bus travel can be more than exasperating at times.

A recent traveler planning to go by bus went to the bus station in Albuquerque and was faced with armed guards who searched luggage and tried to confiscate a diabetic tester. The guard said it would cost $5 to ship the diabetic tester. The passenger asked if he would have to have the bus stop when he needed to check his blood level and then pay another $5 to have the diabetic tester shipped on to where he was going. When there was no response, the passenger asked another question, he wanted to know if he went to the hospital to have his blood tested for sugar level if he would lose his place in line when he returned to the bus station. Finally the armed guard allowed the passenger to show him how the diabetic tester worked, all the time keeping his right hand on his gun, ready to shoot.

Regarding losing place in line, that did happen to one person. Apparently the bus was over-booked and even though most tickets had been purchased in advance, some a week or more before, 16 passengers were pulled from the line waiting to get on the bus. They were told the next bus would leave in about eight or nine hours. One woman who had been pulled off the bus after entering it not only had to wait, but she was not allowed to get on the next bus because she had left the bus station for about an hour.

Because of the threat of terrorists, we agree that there should be caution, but being held hostage in a bus station for eight hours is ridiculous. Sounds more like Gestapo tactics that were used in Germany starting in 1932 when in enforcing Homeland Security. When one passenger went outside to smoke he said an armed guard followed him.

As the price of gas increases, and sometimes travel is necessary, more people may be planning to go by bus. Hopefully they won't encounter the same treatment that travelers received at the Albuquerque train Sunday.

Guaranteeing the safety of our nation is important, and there are drastic measures that must be taken to ensure the safety of everyone, but using common sense would be much more appropriate than possibly causing a diabetic person to go into a coma. And the woman pulled off the bus was escorting people with developmental disabilities. What about their safety? Did the bus company care at all?

Evidently nothing will ease the trauma those travelers went through Sunday, but hopefully the government will require security guards to be trained in the future. They shouldn't be gun toting idiots worse than the terrorists.

board members to attend a meeting that will focus on the potential use of woody biomass to heat local school buildings. Rene Parker with the Biomass Energy Resource Center and Jerry Payne with Region 3 of the U.S. Forest Service will discuss the possible uses of the small diameter woody materials that are abundant in parts of Lincoln County. The meeting will be held from 9:00 a.m. to noon on June 30th, at the Ruidoso Convention Center.

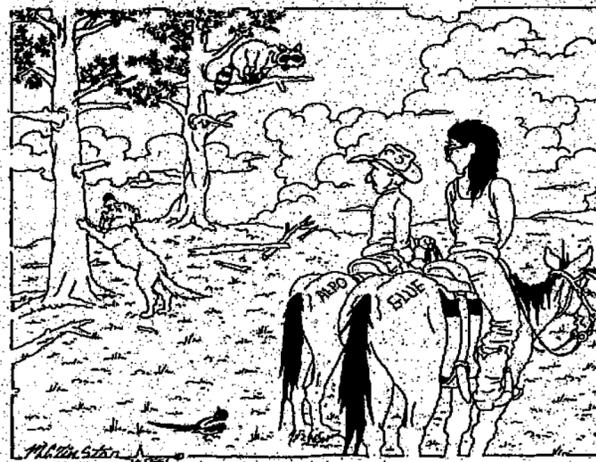

Gary Shubert, engineer for District 2 of the New Mexico DOT, has sent letters to the Lincoln County Manager and city administrators of Ruidoso and Ruidoso Downs alerting them to possible changes to the intersection of Highways 70 and 48 in Ruidoso. According to Shubert's letter, a property owner has entered into discussions with the DOT regarding a change in the design of the intersection that would provide access to his property and allow for its development. If the DOT decides to proceed with the design changes, Shubert wrote, the public would be solicited for information and comments.

In response to a request from the Public Land Use and Rural Affairs Advisory Committee (PLURAAC) and the county's board of commissioners, the Roswell office of the Bureau of Land Management (BLM) has taken steps to alert the public of the presence of animal traps in the Fort Stanton Area of Critical Environmental Concern (ACEC). Signs that read "CAUTION, TRAPPING AND HUNTING ARE ALLOWED IN THIS AREA, Please Control Your Pets" have been placed at major roads and trails leading into the ACEC. The BLM has also added trapping information to its trail brochure.

SANTA FE -- The World is Flat. That phrase is everywhere lately. At first I dismissed it as a likely pronouncement from the flat-earthers that Columbus and Copernicus were wrong.

When I realized the words were coming from economists, I bought Thomas Friedman's book by the same name and had my eyes opened.

Friedman has taken a level playing field and extended it worldwide. His thesis is that the convergence of a number of "flatteners" in the last few years has leveled the playing field for anyone in the world with a computer and Internet access.

That means anyone in the least developed countries of the world now has the tools to become a player on the world's stage. And individuals and institutions that don't realize this will soon be left in the dust.

When President Bush went to India recently, we heard much about outsourcing. That's when companies farm out a function, such as research, to another company, maybe on the other side of the world. Computer whizzes previously came here to do that. Now they can stay home in India.

It worked so well that U.S. companies began outsourcing other functions, like call centers or accounts receivable. Now there is no telling who is doing what from where when the phone rings.

Offshoring has been around longer. That's when companies move entire factories overseas. We're familiar with incentives local and state governments offer to attract business. It's now gone global. And developing countries can seriously underbid us.

Offshoring won't stop because it's good business for the companies that do it and for the countries that attract the factories. And since Americans can buy the foreign-produced goods cheaper, they aren't complaining.

Outsourcing won't stop either. And neither will eight other flatteners Friedman describes in The World is Flat. Those flatteners began in 11/9/89, with the fall of the Berlin Wall.

That event tipped the balance across the world from centrally-planned economics to free-market economics, governed from the ground up, by the interests, demands and aspirations of the people, rather than the interests of a ruling clique.

The second flattener came in 1995 when the Internet began to connect people throughout the world. The third flattener came in the last few years, with the development of compatibility among software programs so that work can flow smoothly.

Once these three flatteners were in place, the other seven came quickly.

To the chagrin of the Microsofts, computer geeks started writing their own software programs and even their own operating systems and making them available free for download from the Internet.

Wal-Mart created a supply chain now being referred to as the Wal-Mart Symphony. Manufacturing, reordering, delivery, sorting, packing, distribution and buying have been integrated seamlessly into a system such that when a computer rings up your purchase at a counter, a machine somewhere in the world begins making another of those items.

Smaller companies can't play the Wal-Mart Symphony themselves so UPS has created the opposite of outsourcing. It goes into a company and creates a global supply chain. You've seen the ad in which a company manager unwittingly names a guy in funny brown shorts the employee of the month.

Then came Google and its derivatives, bringing all the world's knowledge to our fingertips. That was followed by all the digital, mobile, personal and virtual gadgets that completed the flattening of the world.

Now all the world is America's competition. Are we up to it? Friedman tells of a sign in a Chinese factory.

"Every morning in Africa, a gazelle wakes up and knows it must run faster than the fastest lion or die. Every morning a lion wakes up and knows it must run faster than the slowest gazelle or starve. It doesn't matter where you are a lion or a gazelle, when the sun comes up, you better start running."

Same Thing All Over Again.

See where the powers to be at City Hall have leased the golf course for $1.00 per year. If this $1.00 per year thing is just a formality to make the lease legal, why not make it one cent per year? Who ever came up with this, now out of date, $1 per year kind of transaction, must not have known diddly squat about finances.

For a long time both the golf course and the rec center have been leased for ridiculous amounts. And year after year the town keeps telling the people that they have no money to keep this two town properties in operation. Hello! If you keep renting anything at a buck per year, the cookie jar will never get full. It was wrong to do this years ago when it was first started, and it is wrong now too.

Even if a person leases the golf course and keeps it in operation during that period, where are we supposed to get the money to keep it in operation when that person turns it back to the town? With little or no upkeep, because of insufficient funds, the place will soon deteriorate to its present condition, over and over again.

It would only make common sense to rent it out at a reasonable monthly rate; put that money away, and have something to fall back on when the lease is ended. Sure would be nice if someone had the vision to think ahead just a little bit, so that the golf course can some day become an asset to the town instead of a liability. At a buck a year, don't hold your breath.

A while back a majority of our trustees stated at a town meeting that the reason for supporting and approving the variance on the casino billboard was based on the advice of the town attorney. I say, there is nothing wrong in making one's own decisions, especially if you have an ordinance in place to help one make that decision. Good thing the town attorney hasn't advised anyone to go jump off a cliff!

In the ultimatum to Villa, Calles said:

"I shall wait until May 25 to receive your final decision so as to be able to give the necessary orders."

On May 20, at Chihuahua, Gen. Calles announced he submitted to Villa the following proposition:

First -- That Villa declare his retirement to private life.

Second -- That with escort of 100 to 150 trusted followers Villa should go to Sonora and quietly wait until after the general elections are held in Mexico.

Third -- After the elections, Villa to retire to private life permanently, but with permission to go anywhere he pleased.

Fourth -- Such of Villa's men as desired to remain in army would be attached to Calles's own forces for their own greater security.

The day after this proposition was made, Villa telegraphed Gen. Calles he would consult with his chiefs and communicate a decision in a few days. In this communication, Villa had said he "was not the leader of a band, but head of a military and political party."

"If fate causes us to continue fighting and lose another forty odd thousand of our brethren like those of yours I have killed in this beloved state, let God decide," he said.

Villa thanked Calles for giving him "a few days of rest."

Gen. Calles is taking vigorous measures for any eventuality concerning Villa, he said. A thousand cavalrymen already have been started from Coahuila to Torreon for operations in Durango and another thousand from Coahuila for operating in Chihuahua.

Proposed Highway Connection

Robert H. Taylor, chairman of the board of county commissioners, has received a number of communications from, and held phone communication with, parties at Socorro interested in a road connection with Lincoln county. Not only is Socorro county officially interested in this connection, but the Old Trails Scenic Highway avouches a desire to use the proposed road as a link in connections with its established highway.

The proposed road crosses the Oscuros at some convenient place and debouching on the west side unites with the Ocean to Ocean, Old Trails Scenic Highway and other routes and will give this country and that east of us a direct route to the coast or optional routes north or south after coming in contact with the various highways west of the Oscuros.

It will be remembered that the late Governor McDonald urged such a road and volunteered to pay the interest on the loan providing the authorities would secure the money for its construction; and that Jas. V. Tully, also while in the legislature, secured the passage of a bill establishing a road across to the Rio Grande as a state highway, but no appropriation was ever made for its construction.

Now, however, it looks as though Lincoln and Socorro counties, with individual aid and also with the assistance of the Old Trails Scenic Highway, might put this highway through and give a large portion of eastern and southern New Mexico a western connection that is nearer completion than any route leading out of New Mexico.

In view of Lincoln county's interest in this matter, Chairman Taylor has called a special meeting of board of county commissioners for June 2, at which time the Socorro authorities and representative of the Highway mentioned will be here; and all interested citizens are urged to be present at the meeting. This must not be neglected.

PRC Public Hearing On Motor Carrier Insurance Rates, 24th

Owners and operators of businesses that use vehicles to transport customers are invited to comment about a proposed rule to amend the minimum limits of financial responsibility (insurance) for incidental carriers.

The New Mexico Public Regulation Commission (NMPRC) Transportation Division is holding a public hearing to take comments about the proposed rule at 1:30 to 4 p.m. on Wednesday, May 24 at the Chaves County Administrative Center in Roswell.

The 2005 Legislature adopted a law that requires the PRC to adopt amendments to the NMPRC Motor Transportation Rules regarding financial responsibility (insurance) for incidental carriers. The law defines incidental carrier as "a motor carrier of persons that provides services for which the customer pays either directly or indirectly and that transports passengers in conjunction with the primary service that it provides." (NMSA 1978, 65-2A-3 S.) Examples of incidental carriers are taxis, shuttles, private buses, private schools, real estate agencies, car dealerships, mechanic shops that provide rides to customers, hotels, day care centers, or any business that carry customers as part of their primary business.

Copies of the proposed rule amendment will be available at the hearing; may be obtained from the NMPRC Transportation Division in the PERA building in Santa Fe, by contacting Louis Vigil at the PRC transportation division at 505-827-4289 (or toll free at 1-800-947-4722 ask for Transportation Division) or downloaded from the NM PRC Website at www.nmprc.state.nm.us.

The NMPRC transportation division staff has proposed that incidental carriers be required to maintain a combined single limit public policy amount of $250,000 per occurrence for bodily injury or death of all persons injured or killed and property damage.

Persons unable to attend the hearing may submit written comments no later than June 2, 2006. Comments must state and discuss particular reasons for the suggested changes.

Comments must include the caption "In the Matter of the Adoption of Proposed Amendments to the Commission's Motor Transportation Rule 18.3.3 NMAC" - Transportation Staff of the Public Regulation Commission, Petitioner. Docket No. 06-00145-TR-M. Comments must be mailed to Bettie Cordova, Docketing Office; New Mexico Public Regulation Commission, Docketing Bureau, PERA Bldg. Room 406, 1120 Paseo de Peralta; PO Box 1269, Santa Fe, NM 87504-1269.
