

Fair Board Talks to County Commission

by Patrice Brazie

The Lincoln County Fair Board is an independent, non-profit organization supported by taxpayers to manage the fair ground facilities and the events that occur there. It was recently brought to light, as the county commissioners renewed a contract with the fair board, that no accounting of the services provided to Lincoln County by the fair board had ever been reviewed. As a result, Lincoln County Manager Tom Stewart requested a report on the board's finances and operations be presented at the June 29th meeting of the Lincoln County Board of Commissioners.

Though the request was for a representative of the fair board to be present, the group showed up in force at Tuesday's county commission meeting. Billy Bob Shafer, the fair board president, took the podium to field questions. Shafer reported that the fair board uses the $19,500 it gets from the county annually to cover the costs of utilities, liability insurance, the salaries of part-time employees and any maintenance costs the organization incurs. He said that the monies gained through rental of the facilities are also applied to utilities.

Net profits from last year's 4th of July Smokey Bear Stampede, Shafer said, amounted to $16,400, but it cost the fair board $17,500 to host the county fair in August.

"Everything that we make, basically goes into the county fair," Shafer said. There is a small entry fee for participation in some fair events, Shafer said, which covers the cost of the award ribbons. "The only other income that we generate is off of the rentals for the buildings," Shafer said.

The fair board president pointed out that this year marks the 51st anniversary of the Smokey Bear Stampede. "We ran over 1,200 contestants in four days," Shafer

Hwy. 54 Project is Topic of Carrizozo Roundtable

by Patrice Brazie

U.S. Highway 54 runs through portions of four states: Texas, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Kansas. Statistics provided by the Southwest Passage Initiative for Regional and Interstate Transportation (SPIRIT) show Highway 54 as the most heavily traveled two-lane highway in the country. Those traveling from Wichita, Kansas to Tucumcari, New Mexico along Highway 54 reduce the length of the journey by 120 miles by avoiding the I-35 to I-40 route. The goal of SPIRIT is to someday see the narrow two-lane highway, a portion of which runs north and south through the center of Carrizozo, become the primary commercial trucking route linking El Paso to Wichita and beyond.

Some Carrizozo residents began to raise concerns about how plans to widen and improve Highway 54 will impact their town, after one resident discovered two spots in the highway where core samples had been taken. Three guest speakers at last Thursday's Carrizozo Roundtable meeting talked about how Carrizozo residents might become involved in the process of planning the highway improvements as they affect their town.

Ken Nosker is a resident of San Patricio and a former Lincoln County commissioner currently serving on the Lincoln County Public Land Use and Rural Affairs Advisory Committee (PLURAAC) and the Lincoln County Water Resource and Conservation Committee (LCWRCC). Speaking at the meeting on June 15th, Nosker said he had been part of the grass-roots effort that helped bring the expansion of U.S. Highway 70 in the Hondo Valley to fruition. The highway project was met with some local opposition who feared that the improvements would destroy the beauty and historic ambiance of the valley.

Nosker said that a group of like-minded people, who believed in a need to improve the safety of travel on Highway 70, consolidated their efforts. "We got the mayors and chambers of commerce of Alamogordo, Tularosa, Ruidoso and Ruidoso Downs, the chamber of commerce of Roswell and two school boards from the area," Nosker said, "and we had an audience with the governor." The group presented facts including the number of school bus routes using Highway 70 and a Department of Transportation (DOT) traffic count that determined the highway served about 20,000 vehicles per day in the peak periods of July 1st to Labor Day. "We didn't try to blow any smoke," Nosker said, "We just presented the facts to the governor."

Nosker said that Highway 54 carries the designation of an official North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA) route that runs from El Paso to Chicago, Illinois. Nosker also said that, as the Lincoln County seat, Carrizozo should not be served by an inferior highway. "If we have enough like-minded people," Nosker said, "we can get our county seat on a highway that is, at least, better than we have." Nosker said that he has counted as many as 63 trucks per hour just traveling north on Highway 54. That count did not include south-bound traffic or passenger-type automobiles, he said.

Nosker introduced fellow speakers Becky Lane and Jerry Johnson, co-chairs of the Alamogordo Chamber of Commerce's transportation committee. Johnson said that he and Lane represent Otero County in a southeast regional planning organization. Lane is also the marketing and development director of Zia Transportation Services in Alamogordo, a division of the non-profit Zia Therapy Center, Inc. Both said they regularly attend meetings of

by Patrice Brazie

Upon the recent re-examination of a road closure request considered in May, the Lincoln County Board of Commissioners heard some facts that were somewhat different from those originally presented one month ago.

During their May meeting, the county commissioners heard testimony from a land owner residing in the far northeastern corner of the county who was requesting the closure of several miles of County Road B-140, also known as Vasco Bonito. The petitioner, Jon Sherwood, cited personal safety and the welfare of his children, and vandalism by hunters and riff-raff, as the basis for his request. His fear for the safety of his family, Sherwood reported, stemmed from his knowledge that a registered sex offender lived somewhere in the area.

Also during the discussion last month, county commissioners heard input from Duane Frost, the chairman of the Lincoln County Public Land Use and Rural Affairs Advisory Committee (PLURAAC). The PLURAAC is tasked with monitoring state and federal land agency activities and making recommendations to the county regarding any activities that might affect the uses of public lands. Frost told the county commissioners that the road being considered for closure provided access to two sections of public land that are only used during two weeks of hunting season each year, and recommended closure of the road.

The recommendation of the Lincoln County Road Review Committee was to deny the closure based on the fact that it provided the only public access to the public lands.

The county commissioners in May voted to approve the road closure, and county commission chair Rick Simpson asked to make that approval contingent upon receiving no objections from the Bureau of Land Management (BLM) or state agencies within 30 days.

In readdressing the road closure request at Tuesday's meeting of the Lincoln County Board of Commissioners, more objections were heard. Simpson read a letter from the field manager of the Roswell office of the BLM, which stated that the closure of County Road B-140 would affect the public's ability to access 20 sections, about 12,800 acres, of state land, as well as 20 sections of public land, for all future generations. The letter referred to the importance of public access to public lands in the generation of tourism dollars, and requested the road remain open to meet the needs of the ranching, recreation, touring and hunting public.

THOUGHTS
FROM THE EDITOR'S DESK

Monsoon season begins when?

By Ruth Hammond

Here it is the official day after summer begins but the weather is not keeping track of the calendar and it has been hot, hot, hot. Earlier this week a weather forecaster said the monsoon season should begin in two weeks or three or four weeks or whenever. Apparently that is what is classified as a definite maybe for weather forecasters.

Except for a few discussions about the recent primary election, the thing most people talk about is the weather. Will Rogers once said that if you don't like the weather stick around five minutes and it will change. Doubt if that is true for New Mexico here in the year ought six, but it could be factual for Oklahoma where Will Rogers was born and spent his formative years before his jaunt around the world and the start of his career in show business.

As for the weather changing, it definitely will, but who knows for sure when it will change? Most people await the monsoon season, that is if it ever gets here. Monsoons were in June in 1984 and seem to slowly be later and later each year. Next thing you know December will be when the monsoons hit. Santa will need a raft to make his trip.

The thing to remember is that all the talking you do will not change the weather. Gripping about how hot it is in summer or how hard the wind is blowing or how cold it is in winter has absolutely no effect on the weather.

If the energy used to complain about the weather was put to good use there is no telling the accomplishments that could be made. A good way to get rich would be to devise a plan to use that complaining energy effectively.

New inventions were often brought about because of a need. When people got tired washing clothes on a scrub board, wringer washing machines were invented. And later when people got tired of running clothes through a wringer, automatic washing machines were invented. When people got tired of hanging clothes out to dry, automatic clothes dryers were invented. Vacuum cleaners were invented because people got tired of beating carpets.

Getting tired of the way things were seems to be the main reason many things were invented. Unfortunately, there seems to be no valid way to change the weather, and even though people are tired of how hot it is, about the only way to make a change is to stay where it is cooler.

When it is cold people put on more clothes, but taking off clothes to keep cool is not a socially acceptable concept. Urgent needs require drastic actions, especially on hot summer days, but stripping to the buff in public falls short of the drastic actions you should take. Maybe the fault is with the calendar not being accurate in this day and age.

People assume that it won't be hot until the official start of summer, and that is a fault of the calendar. But luckily the monsoon season is not listed on the calendar.

President Bush Signs Bill With $9 Million Secured by Domenici for Drought Aid

New Law Notes Needs in Ruidoso Area & Las Vegas

Washington -- U.S. Senator Pete Domenici today reported that President Bush has signed into law legislation that includes $9.0 million in emergency funding for drought aid, with a specific mention of growing water shortage problems in communities across New Mexico.

Domenici served on the conference committee that reconciled differences between the Senate and House versions of the FY2006 Emergency Appropriations Bill. The $94.5 billion package was sent to Bush on Thursday.

The $9.0 million, not included in the House bill, was secured by Domenici to allow the Bureau of Reclamation to provide emergency water and water-related resources assistance to areas that are now hard-hit by drought.

Domenici is already working with Interior Secretary Dirk Kempthorne and the New Mexico Office of State Engineer to ensure the money is used in New Mexico as soon as possible.

"I'm pleased that President Bush has quickly signed this bill into law. This emergency funding will now be on hand for the Bureau of Reclamation to step in to help communities that could literally run dry this year because of the awful drought conditions we are experiencing," Domenici said. "I've received firsthand accounts and reports of the problems in the Ruidoso and Las Vegas areas, and I expect that these new funds should help communities like those two as they confront the lack of water."

The final bill contains Domenici-requested language that states: "The conferees note that the communities of Ruidoso, Ruidoso Downs and Las Vegas, New Mexico are already operating under stringent

SANTA FE

SANTA FE -- A recent column proclaiming territorial Gov. Edmund G. Ross "the father of New Mexico public schools" brought a reminder that public schools didn't become a reality until the administration of Gov. Bradford Prince, two years after Ross left office.

That is correct. Gov. Prince also was a strong supporter of public education. He and Ross both were New Mexicans before they were appointed governor by presidents of the United States, which helped them in tip-toeing through the mine fields of New Mexico politics necessary to accomplish their goal.

And Ross had one other advantage going for him. He was a Republican, working with a fiercely Republican Legislature. Pierce was a Democrat.

Here's a little background on how it all came to pass.

When New Mexico became a part of the United States in the mid-1800s, the Catholic Church had educated this state's children for 250 years. Much of the schooling was religious but the 3Rs also were taught from textbooks written by highly-educated Jesuits. School years were as short as one month, seldom more than three months.

With the arrival of Easterners to their newly-acquired territory, there soon was a move to establish public schools -- and a cultural war began. The Anglos came from a tradition of publicly-financed, nonsectarian schools.

They were steeped in the mores of religious freedom, for which many of their ancestors had fled Europe. The First Amendment right to a separation of church and state conflicted diametrically with the Spanish tradition of church-state union.

New Mexico had been settled by Spain, both for riches and for conversion of natives to the Roman Catholic faith. When presented with numerous charges of mistreated natives and abuse of power by the outpost's first governor, Juan de Oñate, the Spanish government came close to abandoning its New Mexico colony. It realized that after 10 years of searching, it wasn't going to find those seven cities of gold the natives kept telling them were over the next hill.

But the church said the conversion rate was running higher than expected, so the colony remained. The capital was relocated. Oñate was recalled and a new governor appointed.

With this tradition of church and state being inextricably intertwined, New Mexico's Hispanics saw the move for public schools as an attack on their religion and their culture. Publicly-financed schools were fine, but they should be run by the church.

For many years after New Mexico became a territory, Hispanics controlled the Legislature. Federally appointed governors fought for public schools, but with no success. In 1863 the Legislature let Gov. Henry Connelley know where he stood by putting schools in the hands of Bishop Lamy. In 1878 President Rutherford

Hayes appointed Lew Wallace to straighten out New Mexico. Gov. Wallace, an author, scholar, statesman and a distinguished Civil War general, advocated for public schools, tried to find a jail that would hold Billy the Kid and wrote Ben Hur. His one success didn't do New Mexico much good, prompting Wallace's oft-quoted observation: "Every calculation based on experience elsewhere, fails in New Mexico."

Wallace's first attempt at legislation to establish public schools not only met with utter defeat, lawmakers sent him a message by authorizing the Jesuits to own unlimited school property, without taxation, and then overriding the governor's veto of the legislation. Wallace tried again in 1880 and with no better luck. When his term ended in 1881, he couldn't wait to get out of the state.

Finally with the appointment of Gov. Edmund G. Ross in 1885, the public school movement began to experience some success. Ross, the former Kansas senator who cast the deciding vote not to remove President Andrew Johnson from office, had moved to New Mexico in the early 1800s, and so, understood the state better than previous governors.

Along with Gov. Bradford Prince, another New Mexican, who followed him, the two were able to make public schools a reality in 1891.

A Tainted WWII Memorial

Borrowed from Internet (Author Unknown)

Today I went to visit the new World War II Memorial in Washington, D.C., and got an unexpected history lesson. Because I'm a baby boomer, I was one of the youngest in the crowd. Most were the age of my parents, veterans of the "greatest war", with their families. I was a beautiful day, and people were smiling and happy to be there. Hundreds of us milled around the memorial, reading the inspiring words of Eisenhower and Truman that are enjoyed there.

On the Pacific Ocean side of the memorial, a group of us gathered to read the words President Roosevelt used to announce the attack on Pearl Harbor: "Yesterday, December 7, 1941 -- a date which will live in infamy -- the United States of America was suddenly and deliberately attacked."

One elderly woman read the words aloud: "With confidence in our armed forces, with the unbending determination of our people, we will gain the inevitable triumph."

But as she read, she suddenly turned angry. "Wait a minute," she said, "they left out the end of the quote. They left out the most important part. Roosevelt ended the message with 'so help us God.'" Her husband said, "You're probably right, but we're not supposed to say things like that now."

"I know I'm right," she insisted. "I remember the speech". The two looked dismayed, shook their heads sadly and walked away.

Fair Board Talks to County

said, "We run as many in one day as most rodeos do in four days. The economic impact of that one event in this county is terrific."

When asked by county commissioner Earl Hobbs when the fair board was last audited, Shafer said he knew of no audit ever being done. When Hobbs suggested that it might be appropriate for the taxpayers to know that the fair board was operating in accordance with county ordinances and using good accounting practices, Shafer said an audit sounded like a great idea. "But who's going to pay for it?" Shafer asked.

Hobbs told him that it should be the responsibility of the entity being audited. Hobbs referred to a copy of a hand-written statement of expenditures and revenues, that Shafer provided the county commissioners. "I can't use this as a financial statement," Hobbs said. "A hand-written thing like this is just not an acceptable statement. It doesn't tell me what went before, or what the projections are; it doesn't show me any percentages," Hobbs added. "If the state came in and asked me how we are operating the fair, my answer would be 'I have no idea.'" He suggested that a state auditor or other financial overseer would reject the type of documentation provided by the fair board.

County attorney Alan Morel reminded Hobbs that the fair board was not a county board. "We don't elect this board. They provide a service to the county pursuant to a management agreement," Morel said. "I don't know that there is legal requirement for an audit."

Hobbs countered by saying that, when the county officials give taxpayer money to an organization, they are responsible for seeing that the money is expended properly.

Morel seemed to agree. "I do think that you have an obligation to see that for the $19,500 that you do pay, you're getting that benefit," Morel said, "but the county is not responsible for the profits or losses."

County commission chair Rick Simpson commended the fair board and referred to the amount of volunteer hours that go into managing the fair grounds. He said that he hoped the fair board members didn't think that the commissioners were running them through a ringer or putting them under a microscope. "I don't want this to turn into that," Simpson said. "Don't think that we brought you here to give you a bad time."

Shafer said that he had no objection to an audit. "Whatever the county wants," he said, "if the county will provide a person to do that. We all have full-time jobs."

Shafer said that the fair board members work on the fair grounds activities at night and on weekends. "If our hand-written notes aren't good enough, then provide us with someone who can do it the way you want it done," Shafer said, "because we're doing all we can."

Simpson said that the commissioners understood that the fair board was doing all that it could, and county commissioner Eileen Lovelace agreed, but Hobbs did not. "Actually, I disagree," Hobbs said. "That's not acceptable to me."

County commissioner Tom Battin made reference to the value of the fair board in providing opportunities for the county's youth. "I'm extremely grateful for that," Battin said, then told Shafer that in providing better records to the county, the fair board would be assisting the county commissioners in their need to be able to answer questions from the public in regards to fair board policies. "Where we're coming from," Battin said, "is in fiscal responsibility to the taxpayers. Please don't think we're questioning your management of those funds."

The discussion turned to the sharing of personal county fair experiences by some commissioners, then the county manager offered to furnish some fill-in-the-blank style forms to aid the fair board in maintaining better records. "To make it easy on them," Stewart said, "if they would just blank-out their account number and send me a copy of their monthly statement from their bank, I'll figure it out from there."

Battin and Lincoln County Treasurer Beverly Calaway also offered to provide record-keeping assistance to the fair board.

water restrictions. Therefore the conferees have provided $9,000,000 for drought emergency assistance. The conferees expect Reclamation to undertake drought contingency planning, to provide emergency potable water sources for eligible communities and to provide other drought emergency assistance within their authorities to help stricken communities."

Through the negotiations, conferees also agreed to a Senate-approved Domenici amendment for a five-year reauthorization of the Bureau's Drought Emergency Assistance Program, which lapsed in September 2005. Renewing these provisions will allow the Bureau to provide drought assistance. This program is designed to allow the Bureau to help states, tribes and some nonprofit organizations find ways to minimize the losses and damages associated with severe drought situations. This work includes on-the-ground relief for states including well drilling, temporary water distribution, contingency planning, and water banking, and conservation.

Local Hams Invite Public to Observe Emergency Drill

If cell phone service, the Internet, and electrical power all fail, how do you get a message across town, much less across the county? This weekend, June 24 and 25 you will have the chance to see local amateur radio operators do exactly that, and more.

The Sierra Blanca Amateur Radio Club will conduct a continuous demonstration of emergency radio communications at the soccer field on Hull Road next to the Ruidoso Elementary School from noon on Saturday, June 24 to noon on Sunday, June 25.

The annual event, called Field Day, is a test of amateur radio emergency preparedness. Using only generators, batteries or solar power, the operators, also called ham operators, construct temporary stations in parks, shopping malls and back yards across the country to test their skills under simulated emergency conditions. In addition to making radio contacts using Morse code and voice modes, there will be demonstrations of satellite communications and live amateur TV transmissions. A guest station will also be available where you can speak into a microphone and experience being on the air live.

There are 670,000 amateur radio operators in the United States, and more than 2.5 million around the world. Hams provide emergency communications for the DHS Citizens' Corps, the American Red Cross, Salvation Army, FEMA, as well as state and local agencies.

To learn more about amateur radio, contact Bruce McKenzie at 937-6273 or at <http://www.arrl.org/newham> on the internet. The public is invited to see hams and amateur radio in action.

Famous Mining Strikes

by Thomas E. Steward

At Sutter's Mill

Johann Sutter, a German of Swiss descent and French training, decided to become an American, so he settled as a rancher on the banks of the American river in California which then was under Mexican control. He soon became prosperous enough to employ a superintendent, and it was this man, James W. Marshall, who in 1848 discovered the celebrated "gold of 1849". It took a little while for the news to spread and '48 had passed into '49 before the famous gold rush that helped to open the American West, had reached its height.

Marshall was trying to enlarge the tail race of Sutter's mill on the American river when he saw the tiny sparkling particles that proclaimed a new era in the history of gold production. It was soon found that the banks of the Sacramento river and of practically every stream in the entire district were rich deposits of flake gold that could be recovered by the placer method of washing.

No sooner had the news reached San Francisco than that infant port was deserted, merchants and clerks, doctors and lawyers, even state officials, joined the wild rush to the vicinity of Sutter's ranch.

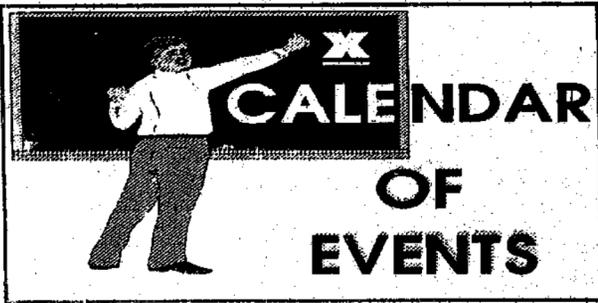

The tidings spread swiftly afield and men began coming from every part of America, and after a time from Europe and even from Asia. There were Mexicans, Kanakas from South Sea islands, Peruvians, Chileans and Chinamen, in the mob.

In great part the interest in a Panama canal took the rise from the gold rush. Many, willing to waste the long months that were necessary to traverse the Overland trail, took ship to Colon and struggled across the isthmus to Panama, from which port they caught another vessel and made their way northward. So great were the crowds on the isthmus that many stayed there for weeks before they could book a passage to San Francisco.

Enterprising souls saw the chance for huge profit and built the Panama railroad, forerunner of the canal. For years it was the most profitable investment ever built, and there was talk of building another across the much wider isthmus of Tehuantepec in southern Mexico.

The overland migration of '49 was probably without parallel in modern times. Between August and December of that year no fewer than 20,000 persons accomplished the 2,000-mile journey through a savage and partially explored wilderness, crossing two mountain chains as high as the Alps and vast tracts of burning desert. In addition to these obstacles came the opposition of two of the fiercest Indian nations, the Pawnees and the Sioux.

Wilson Awarded C'zozo Chamber Scholarship

Carrizozo graduate Justus Wilson, son of Carol and Rex Wilson, has been awarded a $1,000 college scholarship from the Carrizozo Chamber of Commerce. After reviewing applications from four Carrizozo High School students, the chamber's scholarship committee found Wilson to be the candidate of choice.

Wilson's first choice of colleges to attend is New Mexico State University in Las Cruces where he plans to study animal science and agricultural economics. He hopes to return to the family ranch after receiving his degree to apply the advanced knowledge gained in Las Cruces to the ranch operation.

The young man's application to the chamber of commerce contained an extensive list of achievements in the Future Farmers of America (FFA), 4-H and school activities, as well as community volunteer efforts.

According to the information provided by Wilson, he has participated in Lincoln County 4-H activities for 10 years, assisted with the High-school activities, including playing football in junior high, serving on the student council and in the junior rotary and competing in the junior high and varsity Fairgrounds Clean-Up Day for nine years. Wilson also helps with preparation and clean-up of the annual Ranchman's Camp Meeting in Nogal and is a member of the New Mexico Junior Cattle Growers Association. He has served his community through volunteer efforts at Carrizozo schools as well, as a preschool volunteer in 2003 and an anti-drug peer counselor at Carrizozo Middle School in 2002 and 2003.

Very active in the local 4-H programs, Wilson served as the novice president in 1995 and '96, was the club recreation leader in 1998, and became the club's vice-president in 2002. In 2003 and 2004, Wilson served as his 4-H club's president, and as the Lincoln County 4-H council representative in 2003.

In the FFA, Wilson has served as a chapter vice-president and a green-hand vice-president, and earned the New Mexico Forestry Service's Agricultural

JUSTUS WILSON

Mechanics sweepstakes award in 2003 and 2004. He has attended several state and national FFA conventions, received a State FFA degree and the State FFA environmental science proficiency award in 2005.

Wilson was active in Knowledge Bowls. He also received a citizenship award from Carrizozo High School.

Wilson will receive the chamber of commerce scholarship funding in two payments of $500, one for each semester of his first year in college.

the commission of the New Mexico Department of Transportation, and encouraged Carrizozo residents to do the same. "They're very interested in knowing what the community's needs are," Lane said.

The city of Alamogordo is a member of SPIRIT, Johnson said, a consortium of cities and counties along Highway 54 and based in Liberal, Kansas. Johnson stated the goal of SPIRIT to be the development of all of Highway 54 into a four-lane highway.

"Most trucking companies will not allow their drivers to use a two-lane highway if there is a four-lane alternative," Johnson said, "because of liability and the severity of accidents on those routes." He suggested that the economic advantage in taking a shorter route would encourage more commercial use of Highway 54, if it were widened to four lanes. "Four-laning Highway 54 opens up a lot of economic opportunities for all of the cities and towns along the corridor," Johnson said. "If you're interested in economic development, it's a real big plus to be on a four-lane access highway."

According to Johnson, plans have been developed to complete enhancements to the unimproved portions of the highway within New Mexico by 2011. The enhancements include improvements to the road surface and the addition of eight-foot shoulders on each side of the roadway. "That is an interim step to getting four lanes," Johnson said. "The DOT is acquiring rights-of-way wide enough so that when the funds are available to four-lane it, they will already have the right-of-way to do it," he added.

Although there is no timetable for Highway 54 enhancement at this time, Carrizozo residents who have concerns about the nature of the highway improvements as it bisects the town were encouraged to attend the eventual scoping meetings. Those meetings would be scheduled to gain public input prior to designing the improvements. "One way to ensure that you get your say," Johnson said, "would be to attend the DOT commission meetings." He suggested that the Carrizozo residents form a delegation to attend those meetings. Johnson said that options for the improvements along the Carrizozo route include dividing the highway so that north and southbound traffic use different streets through town, or building a route to bypass the town altogether.

County Hears

Game and Fish Department, also offered comment on the road closure. Farmer reported that the public lands accessed by County Road B-140 receive moderate to heavy use by hunters, who generate a great volume of tourism dollars for the area. He also requested the county commissioners deny the closure.

Ernie Sandoval, the district wildlife supervisor for the Department of Game and Fish, told the county commissioners that he has worked the public lands accessed by County Road B-140 for four or five years during hunting seasons. "I am not aware of any other access points to those BLM and state sections," Sandoval said. He also said the area was pretty heavily used by hunters from around the state, but that the number of hunting permits issued for the area was out in half last year. Sandoval added that, although he is personal friends with Sherwood, he had not previously heard any mention of Sherwood's safety concerns. "I don't agree with that at all," Sandoval said. "I don't think there is a problem." He estimated the land used by hunters to be seven or eight miles from the Sherwood home, but Sherwood said it was three miles.

Although last month Sherwood blamed hunters for vandalism and the harvesting of deer on his property, on Tuesday he said he wasn't worried about hunters. His concern, he said, was based on the sex offender living about nine miles away. "That's where we pick-up our mail," Sherwood said.

"Holy Moses" and "Last Chance"

The rich strikes at Creede, Colo., of ores containing silver, gold, lead and zinc, brought about in 1891 and 1892 a repetition of the early-day mining rushes that had been so picturesque a phase of early western life. Creede became a roaring mining camp and its population swelled to 10,000 in a few months. Its newspaper, The Creede Candle, which is still published, then carried as its masthead the slogan, "It's day all day in the daytime, and there is no night in Creede." There wasn't.

This outburst of mining enthusiasm started with the discovery of a rich claim by N.C. Creede and his associates. Shown a piece of ore from the claim, Creede exclaimed, "Holy Moses!" That name was given to the mine, which was not the first but was one of the important early discoveries in the district.

In June, 1891, Theodore Renniger and Julius Haas were grubstaked by two butchers of El Norte, Calif., and set out for the Creede district. It is reported by W.H. Emmons, author of the United States geological survey's treatise on the district, that Renniger allowed their burros to get loose and started to chase them. Picking up a rock to shy at one of the animals, he noticed unusual mineral characteristics in it and examined the immediate territory more closely. In this way was discovered the Last Chance mine.

Close beside it the Amethyst was staked out, and by the end of 1892 ore valued at $4,215,000 had been taken from these and adjacent mines, nearly half of it from the Amethyst and more than one-third from the Last Chance.

As an example of the way prospectors dealt with their finds it is recorded that Haas sold his share in the Last Chance for $10,000. Renniger and one of the two men who grubstaked the outfit sold for $65,000 each. The other El Norte butcher, Mr. Granger, was offered $300,000, but refused and retained possession of his property.

A line was rushed into Creede by the Denver and Rio Grande railway and business was soon thriving in the new community.

Mineral production of Mineral county, in which Creede lies, has now already passed the $40,000,000 mark in total.

Plans Own Funeral

Charles Warnock, mention of whose death at Nogal last week was made, was made, was conscious almost up to the moment of death, and, to friends, surrounding his bedside planned the arrangements for his funeral.

He gave directions as to the character of casket he desired, even mentioning its cost, designated the friends he wished to be the pall bearers; named those he wanted to sing at his funeral, and the minister to conduct the funeral service. This last was Rev. John H. Skinner, of Carrizozo, who had performed the same service for the deceased's wife and children.

As hereto fore stated, Mr. Warnock was conscious practically to the end; attendants heard him murmuring a prayer, and at the last moment his hands dropped across his breast and he peacefully glided into eternity.

Charles Warnock was born in Prussia in 1843, and had he been spared until September, would have been 84 years old. He came to America at the age of 21, and to the east in the early 70s. Nearly a quarter of a century ago he came to Lincoln county and made this his home until his death. He had no relatives in this country, his wife and two children having died a number of years ago.

During the last few years of his life, he made his home with the McCammon family here, and with E.M. Tabor, Nogal, all of whom loved him as a father. In his passing

WWII Memorial

Listening to their conversation, I thought to myself, "Well, it has been over 50 years. She's probably forgotten". But she had not forgotten. She was right.

I went home and pulled out the book my book club is reading - "Flags of Our Fathers" by James Bradley. It's all about the battle at Iwo Jima. I haven't gotten too far in the book. It's tough to read because it's a graphic description of the WWII battles in the Pacific. But, right there it was on page 58. Roosevelt's speech to the nation ends in, "so help us God."

The people who edited out that part of the speech when they engraved it on the memorial could have fooled me. I was born after the war. But they couldn't fool the people who were there. Roosevelt's words are engraved in their hearts.

Now I ask: Who gave them the right to change the words of history?

People today are trying to change the history of America by leaving God out of it, but the truth is, God has been a part of this nation, since the beginning. He still wants to be and He always will be!

Husband -- My wife told me we couldn't afford beer anymore, and I'd have to quit.

Then I caught her spending $65.00 on make-up, so I asked why I had to give up my stuff and not her?

She said she needed the make-up to look pretty for me.

I told her, that was what the beer was for.

I don't think she's coming back.

the county lost an excellent citizen and the communities where he lived a kind friend and neighbor.

"I admire determination in a man, don't you?"

"That depends. If it brings success, I praise it as splendid perseverance; if failure, I denounce it as confounded obstinacy."

Short Interviews

Treating on Matters Pertaining to the Town and Otherwise

by M. Doering

"I see where Clovis is tiring of the commission form of local government and is anxious to revert to the old aldermanic system, an issue arising over the recent street paving controversy," said one Carrizozo man to another. "I thought Clovis was traveling at a rather fast gait when she adopted the commission form of government a short time ago," said the other.

"Telegraphs news from New Your states that the Dempsey-Sharkey fight last Friday night drew larger receipts than any previous non-championship ring battle, and was exceeded only by two contests for the world's boxing title," remarked a local sport. "Dempsey's share was $250,000; Sharkey's $215,000; government tax $100,000; state tax $50,000; expense $145,000; profit $340,000; total $1,100,000; total receipts $1,100,000.

"Here's an excellent way to save a lot of money quickly," said a Carrizozo man. "Suppose you decided to save some money. You start today, put away a penny. The next day 2 cents, the next day 4 and so on, doubling the amount saved the day previous, and see what you have saved at the end of 32 days.

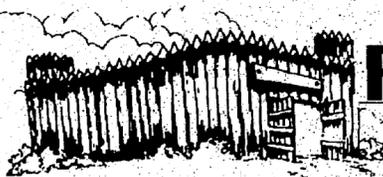

You will, no doubt, be surprised, for your account at the end of the 32-day period will be $42,949,672.95. It looks big, but can be proved that a little money saved each day, with interest at the regular rate allowed by banks, soon runs into a very respectable sum."

"Give a man a night off, or two of them for that matter, every once in a while." This was the advice Mrs. Oliver Williams, 77, of Indianapolis, Ind., gave to modern brides today upon the occasion of her 60th wedding anniversary. "It is a refreshing to be able to spend some time alone," continued Mrs. Williams. "Do the same with her," said Mr Williams.

Thirty to 35 miles an hour for country driving is the most efficient, says Klein, NEA Service scientist editor. Klein says too slow driving is as hard on a motor as too much speed. Don't ride the clutch either, he urges.

Bottled carbonated beverages are an important factor in promoting public health, declared a prominent Commissioner of Health. "Physicians and health officials everywhere," said he, "are urging the importance of a more copious fluid intake, and today many people are not enjoying normal health because of scant drinking. When reproved and urged to take more fluids, their excuse is that they hardly every think of taking a drink of water, and some say outright they do not like water.

"Were it not for the palatable soft drinks on the market, there would be even less water drunk. People drink freely of these because of their flavors, and because they are fond of the pleasant acid taste given by the carbon dioxide."

With happy heart and heavy heart, my congratulations to Jackie Powell and my sadness to Dennis and Monroy. They are all such good patrons here at my post office and I wish them all the best for a race well run. Jackie was so good and even made sure that she spent postage at each post office where she mailed her postcards and letters. We postmasters do appreciate this so much.

Everyone is devastated over the loss of the stallions at Hondo. It is tough on all animal lovers and tough even on those not close. Cannot believe that six horses were lost to such a hot and fast fire.

Rosalee Patterson and myself were happy to watch Tom O'Dell sweat in Gail Skeen at the Picacho post office on Friday, June 9. I just know that he is so happy that he saved that little post office so many years ago and now Gail has the honor of being the OIC till a new postmaster is chosen.

Esther Crouch will be leaving to live in Albuquerque and will be on detail in Albuquerque at the large post office. We wish Esther the very best in her endeavors.

White Oaks Miners' Day was so hot, but everyone had a good time.

I enjoyed the tour bus so much. There were 50 people came from Albuquerque and everyone was so nice. One offered money to buy the dogs a treat and another was infatuated with the sheep, who got his picture made twice with a saddle and red and white saddle blanket I had made for him. The two little tykles had never been on a saddled sheep before.

The sheep continues to enjoy everyone and was so glad that Lindy and Eli sheared his long wool off. I don't think that he could have survived the heat at White Oaks.

You must go and see the sign that showed up at the White Oaks church on Sunday. The owner of the bar had something to do with it and it is another miracle. We have such a good time singing, and trying to figure out how do you start a church? Bob is so informed it is amazing.

The 4th of July will be coming soon. You must be watching for all the groups that are growing fresh vegetables to sell. They will be so tasty. Keep on praying for rain and till next time, hope you had a happy Father's Day!!

TOM O'DELL, Ruidoso Downs postmaster (right) swore in Gail Skeen (middle) as Picacho's new OIC on Friday, June 9. Esther Crouch (left) former postmaster at Picacho is moving to Albuquerque where she will be on detail at the post office there.

County Hears Different Facts on Road Closure

Tom Battin and Maury St. John told Sherwood that, after the May meeting, they had understood his problem to be primarily hunter-related.

After some discussion about the possibility of creating a new road to access the public lands, accessing those lands from a neighboring county, or keeping the road closed except during hunting season, Lincoln County Sheriff Rick Virden addressed Sherwood's fears of the sex offender. "I am tasked with knowing where the sex offenders are," Virden said. He asked Sherwood if he was referring to a certain individual, and Sherwood said he was. Virden told Sherwood that the man in question has not lived in Lincoln County for more than a year. "We keep track of him, and we have his address in Roswell," Virden said.

The county commissioners elected to establish a committee to further investigate the road closure by soliciting more data from the concerned agencies, the affected property owners and the sheriff's department.

Jody Roberts, who introduced himself as a representative of the hunters and ruff-raff, requested that a representative of the New Mexico Outfitters Association also serve on the committee. When Simpson told Roberts that he was a member of that association, Roberts said, "and you've been closing some of these roads, too." The commissioner invited Roberts to serve on the committee.

MINERALS ARE TOO IMPORTANT.

SKIMP SOMEWHERE ELSE.

For the Health and Performance of Your Herd

- ◆ Balanced mineral nutrition
- ◆ Wind resistance
- ◆ Rain resistance
- ◆ More consistent consumption
- ◆ Fly control

Altosid (Methoprene) Breaks Horn Fly Life Cycle

Entomologists agree that horn fly populations need to be kept below 200 per cow to avoid economic loss.

Altosid (Methoprene) Breaks Horn Fly Life Cycle

Adult fly lives about 2 to 5 weeks. Spends adult life on same animal, day and night. Sucks blood 20-30 times/day. Female may produce about 400 eggs.

Female horn fly leaves animal only to lay eggs in fresh manure. Returns usually to same animal.

Adult fly emerges. Female is capable of laying 10 to 15 eggs.

Eggs hatch in manure usually within 1 to 2 days.

Larvae feed and grow in manure for 3 to 5 days.

Develop into pupae (stage between larvae and adult fly) under manure or in soil for 6 to 8 days.

Altosid is excreted in the manure. A safe, synthetic analog stops development at the pupal stage which breaks the life cycle.

Purina's Wind and Rain™ Fly Control Minerals

Purina's Wind and Rain Fly Control minerals are designed to reduce fly populations. Flies cause significant discomfort for cattle. As part of an integrated fly control program, Purina's Wind and Rain with Altosid (MTH), helps restore cattle comfort while reducing the factors that cause poor performance, and decreased grazing time.

Why Feed Quality Beef Minerals?

Because of What Happens if You Don't.

You probably know it's important to feed your cattle a well-balanced mineral supplement, but you might not know why it is.

Cattle with mineral shortages or imbalances do poorly in reproduction, lactation, weight gains, body condition, etc. - all the factors that affect your profitability. But most mineral deficiencies don't show obvious symptoms until it's too late, and without good records it's hard to identify a gradual decline in cattle performance.

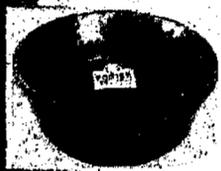

Buying poor-quality minerals to save money can result in fewer calves, lower weaning weights, or other metabolic problems. That's "penny-wise and pound-foolish."

For example, phosphorous is often the "Master Mineral" because it affects nearly every metabolic function in cattle. But phosphorous is an expensive ingredient, so it almost always gets cut back in low-cost mineral products. Phosphorous is critical in the reproduction of heifers, cows, and bulls, as well as in the development of growing cattle. That's why it needs to be in the diets of all stockers and replacement heifer.
