

Carrizozo Daycare on PBS Tomorrow

by Patrice Brazie

In his monthly statement during the October 14 Carrizozo Town Council meeting, mayor Bob Hemphill reminded attendees that the Rocking Horse daycare center will be featured on PBS's A Place of Our Own on Friday, October 17th, at 2:00 p.m.

The program is geared to the interests of child daycare providers. The Rocking Horse daycare center was recently determined to have the best pre-kindergarten daycare program in the state, Hemphill said. The Carrizozo daycare center is operated by J'Lane Zamora.

Past Due Water Bills: $1,647 in arrears payments to the municipal water system was collected by the town of Carrizozo last month, Hemphill said that water service has been shut off to five locations for failure to pay or make arrangements to pay the water bill.

Several people who were found to be behind in their payments for water earlier this year have settled those accounts, he said, and efforts are underway to determine the names of people who are deceased or have moved away from Carrizozo leaving an outstanding water bill.

Chaves Park Cleanup: Town trustee Dennis Dunning and town foreman Joey Thornton have been working on the cleanup of Chaves Park.

Hemphill said that the town may not be able to cover the cost of refurbishing the half court basketball court there, but some work might be done to the fencing at the park and the park's sign might be relocated to a more visible location.

Illegal Dumping Is Costly: Town trustee Dusty Voss reported that there has been some discussion about the possibility of raising property taxes throughout the county to help cover the cost of cleaning up illegally dumped trash. He indicated that the Lincoln County Solid Waste Authority (LCSWA) is hoping to avoid any rate or tax increases by launching an education campaign to bring awareness to the issue of illegal dumping.

"We need to start policing ourselves," Voss said. "If you take trash out and set it next to a dumpster, that's illegal."

It was pointed out by town

Flu Shot Clinics Scheduled

With flu season just around the corner, county-wide primary care offices prepare for flu shot clinics during October.

Five Presbyterian clinics, White Mountain Medical and Internal Medicine Associates in Ruidoso; the Rose Clinic in Capitan; the Carrizozo Health Clinic and the Corona Health Clinic, will have flu vaccines available for established patients.

The Ruidoso public health office will conduct flu shot clinics throughout Lincoln County.

Influenza is a serious respiratory disease caused by a virus and is not the same as the common cold or intestinal illness. Symptoms are transmitted easily through hand contact and the virus can incubate for up to 10 days before signs of illness are present.

Flu Shot Clinic Dates & Times

Presbyterian offers the following flu vaccination clinics for established patients: White Mountain Medical Clinic - Ruidoso - Every Tuesday & Thursday from 2 - 4:30 p.m. beginning October 14th.

Internal Medicine Associates - Ruidoso - Wednesday, October 29th from 8:30 a.m. - 12 p.m. and Friday, October 31st from 1:30 - 4 p.m.

Rose Clinic - Capitan - Appointments will be accepted for Mondays - Thursdays, 8 a.m. - 5 p.m. and on Fridays from 8 a.m. - 12 p.m. beginning October 14th.

Hondo Valley Public Health Clinic - Hondo Senior Citizens Center - from 3 - 4 p.m. Wednesday, October 22nd.

Tips to prevent transmission

Wash your hands frequently for at least 20 seconds and use a paper towel to turn the faucet off.

Cover your mouth when you cough or sneeze with your shirt-sleeve, not your hands.

Drink plenty of fluids. Get lots of rest with at least 8 hours per night.

Patients receiving a flu shot cannot catch the flu, as it is not a live vaccine.

The most common side effects are soreness and redness at the injection site, usually lasting a couple of days as well as a runny nose or nasal congestion.

Flu Shot Recommendations: Flu shots are recommended for:

Children ages 6-23 months although all school aged children through 18 should be vaccinated;

Adults ages 50 and older and vaccines are strongly encouraged for those adults 65 and older;

Residents and caregivers of nursing homes or other chronic care facilities;

Pregnant women; Adults or children who have heart disease, asthma, or other chronic disorders of the pulmonary or cardiovascular systems;

Children and teenagers on aspirin therapy;

Adults or children requiring regular medical follow up or hospitalization during the preceding year due to diabetes, kidney disease, blood disorder, metabolic disorder, immuno-suppression or other chronic disorders;

Healthcare workers; Patients with egg or chick-

Mining Opponent Hopes for County Zoning

by Patrice Brazie

The grass roots movement to regulate, restrict or altogether stop a mining operation planned in the Capitan Mountains has apparently reached a fork in the road. The former director of Friends of the Capitan, an organization devoted to opposing a proposed strip-mining operation in the Capitan Mountains, is now working to force the zoning of Lincoln County's unincorporated areas.

Friends of the Capitan founder Lee Arnone, whose home is in near proximity to the mine site, and the organization's former director Debbie Higdon have partnered together on many occasions since organizing against the mine, presenting their side of the issue to county, municipal, state and federal officials as well as the general public. While in agreement in their opposition to the possible scarring of the landscape that was home to Smokey Bear and a perceived potential for the contamination of domestic wells and other assaults on the environment, they now support different methods of manifesting that opposition.

In its application to drill more than 100 exploratory holes at an average depth of 400 feet to assess the amount of gold and other precious metals available at a site about five miles north of Capitan, El Capitan Precious Metals, Inc. (ECPMI) is required by the U.S. Forest Service to complete an Environmental Assessment (EA). The planned approach of Arnone's Friends of the Capitan is to try to influence the U.S. Forest Service, through public awareness and involvement, to require the completion of an Environmental Impact Statement (EIS) by the company.

The purpose of an EA is to determine if there will be significant environmental effects resulting from the proposed drilling.

The purpose of an EIS is to analyze and disclose those significant effects.

An EA is usually a shorter document than an EIS, and the EA process provides fewer opportunities for public comment or involvement than an EIS.

In breaking away from the Friends of the Capitan, Higdon has distributed a few petitions in Capitan and Ruidoso, hoping to gather the 610 signatures required to force the Lincoln County Board of Commissioners to adopt an ordinance that would establish zoning throughout the county.

New Mexico law mandates that, when requested through a petition signed by qualified electors equal in number to at least 25 percent of the votes cast for the office of governor in the previous general election, the county commissioners must adopt a zoning ordinance within one year.

Lincoln County currently has no zoning ordinance.

Higdon's separation from the Friends of the Capitan and her efforts to petition for zoning of the county caused some confusion last week when an email was distributed that seemed to indicate that Higdon was working with county officials in the petition process.

The email prompted the distribution of a disclaimer by county manager Tom Stewart, explaining that the county was not directly involved with Higdon's actions.

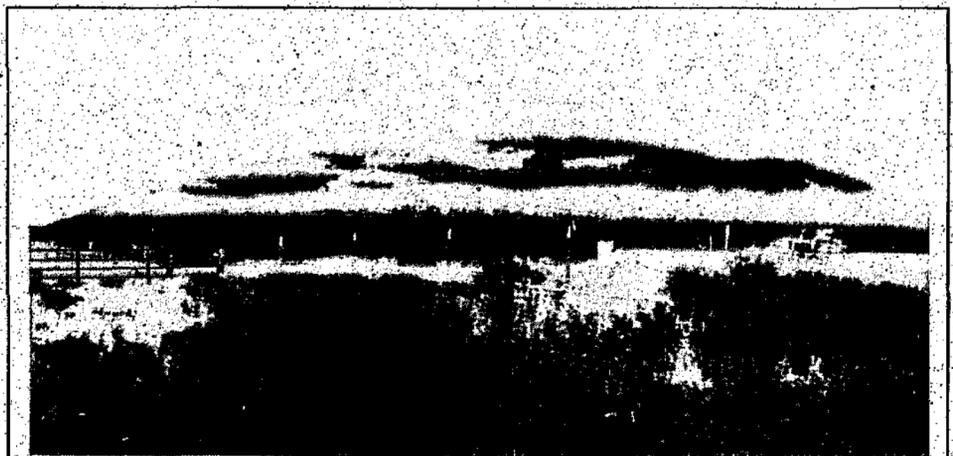

"Ms. Higdon's e-mail gives the impression in the first paragraph that she has been working with county representatives on this petition to zone the county and this is not the case," Stewart wrote. "The use of the word 'we' does not accurately describe this effort as it regards the involvement of county officials. The Board of County Commissioners has taken no official position and citizens should not proceed to sign a petition under the impression that this in any way is a coordinated effort or supported by the Board of County Commissioners of Lincoln County."

Included in the petition is the statement that a land use and zoning ordinance would protect the citizens of Lincoln County from encroaching industrial use and insure that growth would be managed in an orderly and appropriate manner. The petition does not address the fact that the Lincoln County Board of Commissioners does not have the authority to zone or otherwise regulate activities on federal lands. Much of the proposed El Capitan mining activity would occur on federally administered lands and thereby be outside of the jurisdiction of the county officials and any zoning ordinance that they might adopt. Arnone and the Friends of the Capitans are instead considering asking the county commissioners to adopt an ordinance that would give the county some authority to police the activities of the mining company but would not require zoning of the county. The group has been working with an environmental attorney, Steve Sugarman, who recently issued a statement regarding the county's legal rights to police activities on federal lands.

According to Sugarman, a "police power" ordinance is an ordinance that is enacted by a local government pursuant to its inherent authority to protect the health, safety, and welfare of the government's citizens.

Sugarman says that New Mexico statutes expressly provide for counties to enact such ordinances.

"The United States Supreme Court has expressly and directly held that a local government does have the authority to enact a police power ordinance that will guide and constrain mining operations on federal lands," Sugarman has stated. He also suggests that a mining moratorium might give the county commissioners ample time to prepare such an ordinance in the face of the El Capitan proposal.

In a conversation with The News on Tuesday, Arnone reported that Higdon is no longer associated with the Friends of the Capitans, and that the organization does not support her efforts to force the issue of zoning.

"Our goal is to not let mining come into the Capitans because it causes so many problems with the environment," Arnone said. "Our growth is not based on mining. It's based on tourism," he added. "We feel there's no room for this type of mining."

Arnone said that his organization believes that the "police power" ordinance approach would be the most affective means through which the county can protect its citizenry from the potential environmental hazards associated with the mining of gold. He referred to a mining operation in Colorado in which a mining company was found to have released cyanide into the local watershed. The mining company declared bankruptcy, Arnone said, and left the local population "holding the bag" when it came to clean up of the site. A $3,000,000 bond put up by the company came nowhere near meeting the actual cost of clean up and monitoring, he said.

"It costs the state of Colorado more than $5,000,000 a year just to monitor the water there," Arnone said. "It became the biggest superfund site for the state of Colorado, and the United State's biggest cyanide spill."

Arnone said that the county officials, through a policing ordinance, could demand a much higher bond from ECPMI to provide some assurance that the people are protected from any possibly harmful affects from the mining, including damage to watersheds, roads and other infrastructure. He suggested that the exploratory drilling could even affect the Snowy River cave system.

"(The county commissioners) could also demand that an EIS be done," Arnone said. "An EA is what you use when you don't want any scrutiny."

He said that, because the El Capitan proposal could result in the largest mining operation in New Mexico history, one state cabinet member has also called for the requirement of the completion of an EIS.

According to Arnone, the state engineer has said that there is not enough water in the area to support such a large mining endeavor.

The EIS requirement could force the examination of water issues associated with the proposal, Arnone said.

The Friends of the Capitans are hoping to have Sugarman address the county commissioners during their regular meeting next Tuesday. If that happens, Sugarman is expected to request that the county commissioners begin the process of developing an ordinance that will give them some authority to police mining activities on federal lands within the county.

Higdon told The News that she and the Friends of the Capitans are working toward the same end result, but said she believes that a county zoning ordinance is the first step that is needed.

"We can't stop a gold mine from coming in, but (the ordinance) places much more protection on the citizens, especially when it comes to the environment, the water and the economic impact," Higdon said.

The idea of county protections against activities on federal lands was presented to the county commissioners earlier this year, Higdon said. "The first thing the county attorney said to us was that we don't have zoning. Santa Fe used a county zoning ordinance to implement the protections," she said. "Without that, there's not a whole lot that the county can do."

Higdon acknowledged that the county officials have little control over what occurs on federal lands. "However, they can put restrictions on activities that go on within the county that affect the citizens," she said, "which is where we get back to zoning and land use protections to require this mining company to do an environmental impact study, economic impact studies and that type of thing."

Higdon said the county would have the authority to regulate land uses around the boundaries of federal property if a zoning ordinance were adopted.

"It is not an ideal solution, but from what the county is telling us, it's the easiest thing we're going to be able to do to get this process started," Higdon said. "If we get zoning and land use restrictions in place, we can continue down the police powers path but, to me, zoning is step one," she said. "The county's telling me they can't do police powers without zoning. This is where (Sugarman) and I disagree, but I'm going on what the county and the county planning director is telling me."

Higdon said that the issue goes beyond mining. "There's other industries that we don't want in Lincoln County," she said. "If we don't put zoning in place that protects the citizens and puts restrictions on businesses, crummy businesses are going to come here. I don't want a nuclear waste dump; I don't want a commercial pig farm. They're going to go where the pickin's easy and the laws are not real strict," she said. "Right now, we're one of those counties."

The U.S. Department of Agriculture is soliciting comments regarding the El Capitan exploratory drilling application. Arnone is encouraging anyone with an interest in the project to submit comments to the Smokey Bear Ranger District, Public Comment for El Capitan Exploration Project, 901 Meohem Drive, Ruidoso, NM 88345. Comments may also be emailed to elcapitan_exploration_project@fs.fed.us.

"Pioneering Notes"

"Slim and trim and spry as a maiden of sixteen is Mrs. Molly Smith age sixty. Born in Tenn., in 1878 she made her first trip westward at the age of three months. The family journeyed to Texas in a covered wagon and settled in the state for six years. Unable to purchase land there because pf adverse circumstances, a move into N.M. seemed inevitable where homesteads could be had for those with enuf courage to venture after them.

In 1884 Mr. J.O. Grove, father of Molly, filed on a homestead in James Canyon in the Sacramento mountains. In those days Lincoln county besides its present boundaries included parts of what are now known as Otero, Chavez and Socorro counties consequently Mr. Grove had to come clear to Lincoln to pay his taxes.

Mr. Grove was a born farmer, and land in James Canyon was excellent for growing things. With his children's help he produces enuf stuff for sale all over Lincoln county, and at a nice profit, too. His family was a large one, consisting of a wife and ten children. The children were taught to be industrious at an early age by a hard working mother, Mrs. Grove, besides here household duties and teaching the girls to knit their own stockings, had to serve as a midwife in the county. Mrs. Smith says, "I can recall many a morning when I awoke to find mother and the baby gone, and my oldest sister in charge."

Taking one or two children with him (Molly went lots of times) Mr. Grove freighted his produce to the various towns in the county. He did quite a bit of trading with the Coe brothers, Frank and George, always returning home from their places, the wagon laden down with black alnuts, sugar cane, things that he didn't raise.

Molly came with her father several times to White Oaks. She recalls one special time -- her father brought a load of hay for Paul Mayer, and some merchant in the town gave her the "prettiest" broach. She thought it of great value then, but now supposes it was worth only a few cents. "W.O. was the finest town I had ever seen and I just loved going there," she says.

The Grove family returned to Texas after eleven years, and almost forty years passed before Molly saw White Oaks again. She was married and had two sons when she came back to visit the town she had admired so greatly in her youth. Still retaining her childhood thoughts of the town's grandeur, the place was quite a shock and disappointment to her -- such disastrous changes had taken place (and she hadn't hear a thing about them.) "It just didn't seem believable," she declared. "Of course," she sighed, "it really didn't look as bad in 1925 as it does now -- so many buildings have burned down since then."

Mrs. Smith is a busy person always -- what with milking cows, selling milk and butter, she still has time to be one of the most active members of the Ladies Aid. If anyone needs nursing care, Molly can lend a hand at that too. All in all, she is an interested and interesting woman to know.

TERRIBLE -- I got in a jam that other day, but I do not like jam so traded it for a pickle. Being in-a stew at the time, I had pickles and stew for lunch. They were not polite, so I threw them out, at first. Next batter up knocked a fowl, off the roost, so we had a hen on for supper. -- Jeff Herron trustee Dennis Vega that residents outside of Carrizozo can use the town's dump site to dispose of trash, and that the $20 or so it costs to dispose of items in Carrizozo is far cheaper than a fine in the hundreds of dollars for those who are found guilty of illegal dumping.

The town council expressed support for amending a town ordinance to authorize Carrizozo residents one opportunity to use the town dump site for free each month if they are served by the municipal water system.

Ray Dean suggested that the problem of illegal dumping is exacerbated by the cost of disposing of some items legally. He said that the high level of participation in the town's free clean up days, where large items of trash can be disposed of free of charge, indicate that people generally want to dispose of trash legally.

Oscuro resident Jerry Carroll told the trustees that he saw serious illegal dumping issues when he lived in Dallas, and warned the Lincoln County Solid Waste Authority some time ago that it would be a problem in Lincoln County because of associated costs to the residents.

"We tried to convince them to begin with that you're not going to stop illegal dumping by enforcement," Carroll said. "All you're going to do is make somebody mad. They'll just dump somewhere else. The only thing that will solve it is money for the solid waste authority to be able to handle whatever is put out there," he said. "That's the only solution that worked in Dallas."

Luminaria Volunteers Needed

Hemphill said that there it has been suggested that the town might recruit neighborhood "captains" to help manage the town's annual Christmas Eve luminaria display. With a shortage of volunteers to assist with the tasks of filling bags with sand, setting them along the roadsides and lighting the candles in the luminarias, neighborhood organization might make the process run more smoothly and more evenly distribute the work load.

Valle del Sol Second Phase Carrizozo businesses are being asked to open on Saturday, October 25th, and someone will be at city hall as well, Hemphill said, to accommodate the Valle del Sol subdivision developers' opening of its second phase of development. Subdivision representatives will be shuttling potential property buyers through town to see what Carrizozo has to offer event as a good opportunity Hemphill said he viewed the to show off the town.

THOUGHTS FROM THE EDITOR'S DESK

Changes Ahead On November 1

By Ruth Hammond

Have you had changes in your sleeping habits lately? Did you assume it was because you are tired of hearing negative ads blaring at you all the time? Have you been giving serious thought to leading a crusade to deport all the losers and possibly some of the winners if not all? It might make sense after you hear about how terrible the other candidates are and the ghastly things they've done.

If you do champion a crusade, expect a huge following but you might want to consider other reasons for sleep problems. Has it dawned on you that some of these same feelings happen every year? Usually the feelings happen earlier but this year the powers chose to completely set your inner clocks askew. Instead of Daylight Savings Time ending in October as it has for many years, the powers decided to deem November 1 as the ending DST date.

Now before anyone looks at their calendar and yells at us, yes we know that the actual date is November 2, but most people set their clocks before going to be the night before, which would be November 1. It is just a matter of how you look at it. We'll go with November 1, it fits.

Despite the discrepancy in the date, other things are set to happen on November 1. The electronic recycling fall event will be held in Carrizozo from 9 a.m. to 12 noon. People can dispose of electronic junk and help keep hazardous waste out of the landfill. It is interesting that when these electronics were being built with short life spans there was no mention that they were hazardous.

Really now, did you consider your old TV as being hazardous? Actually hazardous, not just some of the programs that should be deported along with politicians. But did you believe TVs and computers were hazardous? And what about cell phones, hand held calculators and cordless phones? They are in the same category. That old stack of diskettes that you kept hoping to find a use for someday needs to be tossed in with other electronic waste and not put in regular trash. The list continues on and on.

Now that you are looking around at what other things should be in with the electronic waste, are you wondering if these electronic items taking up space near and far are in some way causing damage to your physical being? Is the ringing in your ears because of lingering electronic residue or is it because your phone is actually ringing?

Change will happen, it does every day, but should your life undergo drastic changes because of electronic waste or because the clocks are set back in November instead of in October? And what about the changes to Halloween, some municipalities are encouraging children to go out for Trick or Treat on November 1, not on October 31.

Except for the negative ads blaring constantly and goblins not knowing which day to collect goodies and the danger of hazardous electronic waste, DST will end soon.

Who are you? Who are we? Which set of rules do you follow? Is this a government by and for the people? Or is it a government by and for the government? Totalitarian control is the end result if you fail to stand and be counted on the side of good. Are you a citizen or a subject/slave?

SANTA FE -- What will happen with Heather and Bill after the 2008 presidential election? It is likely New Mexico's two national luminaries will do quite well for themselves.

U.S. Rep. Heather Wilson will be out of a job on Dec. 31 of this year, having lost the Republican senatorial nomination to Rep. Steve Pearce in the June primary.

Rep. Wilson likely will want to continue working and using the reservoir of experience she has accumulated over the years.

And that shouldn't be difficult at all. If the Palin/McCain ticket wins in November, a nice federal job should be waiting. She has been mentioned for cabinet posts but something in the national security area might be more likely.

If she's on the losing side, her intelligence and presence could put her in a cushy federal lobbying job. As an Air Force Academy graduate, a Rhodes Scholar with a Ph.D. from Oxford and a past National Security Council staff member, any major university would want to jump at her.

A good federal job isn't out of the question even if the Democrats win the presidency. Neither is running for governor in 2010. Having an election loss on one's record isn't a killer. Sen. Pete Domenici lost a gubernatorial race two years before starting a career as New Mexico's longest-serving senator.

A job in New Mexico might be very attractive to Wilson, since she chose to commute back to her family in Albuquerque almost every weekend during her tenure in office. But if she decides to take a position out of state, she would have to give it up in order to campaign in New Mexico.

A job in broadcasting or punditry also is a possibility. She has been acting as a McCain campaign surrogate and reportedly has appeared on MSNBC often.

The one time I saw her, she called Sen. Obama a baby killer. Afterward, commentator Keith Olberman ventured that she had to be joking. Relations between those two may be strained, but then Olberman isn't on friendly terms with much of anyone.

Gov. Richardson will do well for himself too. If his party loses, he still has two years to perform his "favorite job in the world." We'd probably see more of him than we have the first two years of this term.

Until the beginning of this year, his office sent out his public schedule every week. I haven't seen anything for a long time. And I don't think it's anything personal. If Richardson's candidate wins, he may get a plum job that would take him away from New Mexico for the last two years of his term. Secretary of State has been rumored but reportedly the Washington establishment has grander ideas.

If Gov. Richardson doesn't get any offers he likes, either in January or two years from now, he can go back to doing what he did during the year between ending his stint as secretary of the U.S. Department of Energy and running for governor. That was 2001.

Reportedly Richardson listed his net worth as less than $750,000 when he left the president's cabinet and later listed his net worth as more than $10 million when he became governor of New Mexico.

During that brief period, Richardson worked as a lobbyist for Henry Kissinger's firm, served on several boards of major corporations and taught university classes. Who wouldn't want to try that again?

And what happens to the loser of the big Senate race between current Reps. Tom Udall and Steve Pearce? One of them will be out of a job.

Rep. Pearce doesn't actually need a job. He can enjoy the millions he made in the oil servicing business. But that doesn't sound like Steve. Reports indicate a very good chance he will run for governor in 2010.

And if Tom Udall is out of office? He could be a gubernatorial candidate. What would an election in this part of the country be without a Udall on the ballot?

Edward W. Pickard Summarizes the World's Week Signs of Compromise

There are distinct indications of compromise and co-operation in the American picture, and hopes for restored prosperity are somewhat revived. The stock market has become unusually active, and private enterprise is awakening. Unfreezing of three billion in stored-up credit is expected to result from new banking regulations ordered by the President. Thousands of contracts for approved projects to cost almost $500,000,000 have been sent to all parts of the country by the Public Works administration.

Mr. Roosevelt, in his latest radio address to the nation, said: "In simple frankness and in simple honesty, I need all the help I can get," and it seems that the people are ready to give that help if the administration will do its part.

Notable in the President's talk was the admission that mistakes have been made not only by his opponents and by industry and labor, but also by government leaders. He sharply attacked reactionaries in business, blaming them for much of the current depression.

Asserting his continued belief in individual enterprise and the profit motive, he criticized the recent congress for failing to enact his program for government reorganization and legislation to aid the financially depressed railroad industry. At the same time, however, he said the legislators "achieved more for the future good of the country than any congress between the end of the World war and the spring of 1933."

Some for Every State

No sooner had President Roosevelt signed the pump priming measure than the flood of federal money was released. The Public Works administration of which Secretary Ickes is the head, made public two lists of grants and loans covering 500 projects in every state in the union with a total estimated cost of $148,795,895.

Four more lists were ready, and these, PWA officials said, would complete the "first push" toward a $2,000,000,000 construction program to provide work and stimulate industry. Officials further estimated that these initial groups of projects may run as high as 1,500 or 2,000 with a cost of $600,000,000.

Federal grants under the PWA procedure cover 45 per cent of the cost and, when a PWA loan is made, 55 per cent. The difference between the estimated overall cost of the projects and the sum of loans and grants made by PWA is supplied by the various applicants.

Should Lincoln County Have Grave Concerns Over A Person Like STEVE SEDERWALL Running for Sheriff?

--The following is his resume which he submitted in 2002 when running for the Village of Capitan Mayor. Does the resume he submitted then have key differences than his current resume posted on his website now that he'd rather Lincoln County residents view in the race for Lincoln County Sheriff?

WHY SHOULD THAT RESUME, IN COMPARING IT TO TODAY'S RESUME AND OTHER FACTS WE KNOW ABOUT STEVE SEDERWALL CAUSE US CONCERN?

- 1) Steve Sederwall now calls himself Sheriff Steve--according to his website.
- 2) Can Lincoln County Afford Steve (Sue) Sederwall (maybe sue should be his middle name because he's in so much litigation)
 - a) During Sederwall's administration as mayor of Capitan, 20 tort claims were filed against the village with 10 being either litigated or arbitrated; resulting in over $350,000 in payments to litigants.
 - b) In addition to being sued by others for wrong-doing, does he hesitate to initiate suit against the hands that feeds him?
 - i) 1995 sued Dept. of Interior (BLM) after being advised he was under investigation in the wild horse investigation.

Steve Sederwall.....

He says he was a Federal investigator with the BLM. On his website, he says it was "a great job" - he couldn't believe they were paying him. He started in 1991. In July, 1995, Sederwall was removed from the workplace on the recommendation of his doctor for "work-related stress." The same year, he got a "disability retirement". In 2000, he went back for more, suing the BLM for "mental, emotional and psychological distress" and he's still collecting the checks.

NO WONDER HE SAYS IT WAS THE BEST JOB HE EVER HAD.

*Sworn deposition of Steve Sederwall, 2008. Sederwall v. Herrera, NM District Court, Lincoln County, D-101 CIV 2008-01524

- v) 2008 sued Lincoln County, Tammy Maddox, Lincoln County Clerk and Mary Herrera, State of New Mexico Secretary for unfair election practices.
- vi) Numerous others
- c) Sederwall claims to have gotten Capitan $10 million in grants and equipment. Wasn't it, in fact only about $2 million in the outside and most of the work to obtain those grants initiated under the Renfro administration?
- d) Sederwall states he oversaw daily village operations. Wasn't he, in fact, was absent from the office numerous times over 60 days each time. Was his lack of presence and oversight of his staff, a duty a Mayor is normally charged, instrumental in a clerk having been found to be in possession of 97 signed checks?

- 3) Sederwall brags about his escapades enforcing the law, but has he also broken the law from time to time?
 - i) 2/8/83 District Attorney of LeFlore County Oklahoma charged Steve Sederwall, AB McReynolds, Jr. and John Nick Moore for assaulting Preacher Darryl Gene Williams.....

DON SULLIVAN, District Attorney

A. B. McREYNOLDS, JR., JOHN (WICK) MOORE and Steve Sederwall

That the said A. B. McReynolds, Jr., John (Wick) Moore and Steve Sederwall, in concert, each with the other, did unlawfully, willfully and wrongfully commit an assault and battery upon the person of one Darryl Gene Williams; or then and there striking and beating him about the head and body with their fists, with violence and with the unlawful intent to do him corporal harm and bodily injury.

DISTRICT COURT

PERSONAL RECOGNIZANCE
I hereby request the Court to order my release on this Personal Recognizance. I have been advised that anyone released who usually fails to surrender himself within five (5) days following violation of a. or, failing to appear on any prescribed date) shall, upon conviction, be guilty of a felony and may be fined up to $1,000.00 or imprisoned for not more than (1) year, or both. Further, that such criminal prosecution shall in no way interfere with or prevent the exercise by the court of its powers.

Signature of Defendant: Steve Sederwall
10. Post 1252 Munda, ARR 7/85

Personal Recognizance Affidavit. Is the signature on that affidavit the same as the Sederwall signature now?

- ii) While conducting investigative reporting the suit against BLM for maladministration of the 1971 Wild and Free-Roaming Horse and Burro Act, ANIMALPEOPLE magazine intercepted an e-mail communiqué among the BLM staffers, which read in full,

"Speaking of Mr. Sederwall, while I was going through old files trying to help the Inspector General staff who were visiting, I found a file with the Sederwall name. It is a file from 1981, when Mr. and the ex-Mrs. Sederwall both signed for four horses each for a group adopted by the name of AB McReynolds. (See note 1). Those particular 8 horses are still untitled. Isn't it interesting that Mr. Sederwall apparently was once involved in the very type of large scale adoption scheme that he now means about? I'm sure that his intentions were of the highest sort."

ANIMAL PEOPLE asked Sederwall to respond on April 8, 1997, but did not hear back from him by July 1, 1997, prior to the publishing of this article on July 7, 1997. Note 1: Is this the same AB McReynolds or McReynolds family referenced in 3f above?

- iii) Robert Utley, former chief historian of the National Park Service, said, "These 'lawmen' seem pretty certainly to have broken the law". (www.azcentral.com - NM Pair May Face Charges in Grave Case 5/13/06). In May, 2006, Sederwall, without a legal permit, had the body of a man he believed to be Billy the Kid, John Miller, and another man buried next to Miller, William Hudspeth, exhumed from the Pioneers' Home Cemetery in Prescott, Az. Were these men authorized by the Lincoln County Sheriff's Office to illegally exhume bodies, or simply to conduct an investigation?

- 4) During Sederwall's employment with the BLM,
 - a) Sederwall did not obey his superiors in conducting investigation
 - b) Other investigators were directed to not talk to Sederwall
 - c) 8/93 was Sederwall was placed under investigation for work he'd done on Wild Horse Case
 - d) 8/94 he was put on medical leave (without proper process) by his physician for fatigue and workplace stress
 - e) 7/95 Sederwall was removed from workplace under Dr.'s recommendation for "work related stress"
 - f) 7/00 Sederwall sued BLM for intentional infliction of emotional distress
 - g) Case dismissed 10/01
 - h) Why would Lincoln County voters think Sederwall would follow the directives of the Lincoln County leaders?
- 5) Sederwall says he spent several years managing Hat Companies
 - a) Is this a man with a BIG hat and no cattle?
 - b) Sederwall says he "organized a buyout of Langenberg Hats, the oldest hat company in the United States... Did it fail under Sederwall's watch (1999)? Timeline suggests it did!

Old Lincoln Town

by ROSALIE DUNLAP

Lincoln isn't being the quiet town lately. The movie film crew were in town over the weekend, there were a lot of tourists, and everyone enjoying the pleasant weather.

The spinning group had a good time. Those who were unable to attend missed a very educational session by Sue and Lloyd Maness. Some were unable to come due to prior commitments. The group enjoyed lunch at the Dolan House. The next spin-in is November 8, the second Saturday of November. Same time, same place and same lunch.

Winter may be on its way. The Sierra Blanca peaks were covered with snow recently and parts of state are supposed to get snow and rain the next few days. Some of the state received heavy winds that damaged the electric lines, leaving many without electricity for over 18 hours.

We see the livestock trucks passing through loaded with cattle. It is the time for the ranchers to do their fall work. It is also hunting season for elk, and deer.

The Historical Society was busy Saturday moving some of their records from Dr. Wood's home to the offices in the Dr. Wood's Annex.

The State Monuments is having some repair work done to their properties. The Lincoln Monuments staff is being stretched pretty thin since they have Fort Stanton added to their responsibilities. We all must push the legislators to get Dee Kessler some more employees.

The Partners for the Preservation for Lincoln State Monument held a surprise breakfast for Ralph Dunlap. They presented him with a framed copy of his photo in the Vamonos magazine and thanked him for his work for Lincoln Town and Lincoln County. A surprise for sure. Ralph was very appreciative of the honor.

Bill McCutchen, as former resident and business owner in Ruidoso, visited Lincoln Sunday. He and his sister were very active in the Historical Society.

We also had nice visit with Jack (John) Thomas of Albuquerque.

Lincoln had several countries visiting Lincoln the past few weeks. They are very interesting to visit with.
