Capitan to Absorb Tiger Road Costs, Balances 2013-14 Fiscal Budget

by Patricia Brazie

Village of Capitan will send a final 2013-14 fiscal budget to Santa Fe that is not as balanced as was projected, but still includes just under a five percent salary increase for full-time employees.

At the village trustees regular meeting Monday, village financial advisor Sondra Palmer said that for the 2013-14 interim budget, most of which reflected actual expenses in the budget account in the fiscal year end on June 30, one big change for final budget approval was due to the state transportation department approval of the village's municipal arterial project (MAP) applications for the cooperative agreement to improve to Tiger Drive.

Palmer said that she had to add a $10,000 one time expense, plus what she had to have been the village’s match of $20,000, to cover Tiger Road improvements.

"This is what you said you would do, so the money will come from our bank account," she said.

Another one-time match in the budget is $36,214 for the Colusa water improvement grant, plus the need to purchase a pot belly wood burning stove and $18,955 in the Rural Utility Services (RUS) loan.

Palmer said the village is in dispute over some payments to the RUS loan, however also included is the $10,000 in the local cost in one. The final budget will reflect changes already made due to federal, state and local cost and benefits, for the public safety department, due to making the municipal code enforcement unit a full-time position, Palmer said.

And, "I reviewed the new federal budget that will be sent to the NM Department of Transportation (DOT) for fiscal review and acceptance," she said.

A pile of culverts at the wetlands area will stay where it is for a while. Trustees received no bids for a culvert replacement worked on, was doing the job. The Bridge Department, when he was told the old culverts he had to add a one time culverts for scrap because the village, the repair machine, and a one time match was to be included in the contract.

The village’s 2013-14 fiscal budget, which has been done before. Trustees also approved a resolution committing the village to a 25 percent "in-kind" assessment for the village’s 40th annual event, "The Good Save the Village Fair," will be held. In general, the budget included the cost of projects, which would be under investigation in the event. Trustees accepted an agreement for the group to be sent to the NM Department of Transportation (DOT) to review and accept. A couple of culverts at the wetlands area will stay where it is for a while. City takes on derelict buildings

GRANTS — Officials here are cracking down on code violations.

“We have a list of 574 violations,” city code enforcement officer Marty McBride said in his report to the Planning and Zoning Board earlier this month. “Last year we sent more than 900 property owners Notices of Violation letters. We will issue a citation if the problem has not been corrected within the 20-day timeline listed in the certified letter.”

Violations of the City of Grants ordinance include weeds, illegally parked cars, abandoned vehicles, and vacant structures that pose a threat to homes and health and safety.

McBride also reported in the status of several specific properties around town and the steps that are being taken to clear them up. Some cleanup project is underway, he said, while others were given their 20-day notices.

Committee goes contrary to public input

LOVINGTON — On an 8-4 vote, the Lea County Judicial Complex Steering Committee recommended the courthouse moves from downtown Lovington to a site the county owns next to the Sheriff’s Department and county jail away from the downtown area.

The recommendation goes to the county commission, which will be voting on the $23 million project in the near future.

The recommendation was stemmed of a surprise after input from two community meetings, one in Hobbs and one in Lovington, indicating Lea County residents preferred to keep the site downtown near the courthouse. In fact, one meeting hit late April drew a crowd of more than 60 citizens, and a show of hands indicated overwhelming support for the downtown location.

County eliminates audit backlog

FORT SUMMER — De Beas County is in compliance with the state's annual audit requirements for the first time in more than a decade after the County Commission accepted the County's audit report for fiscal year 2011-12.

The report, from CPA De Ann Willoughby of Clovis, listed 12 find-

The completion of the audit relieves the County from fees that could have been charged by the state over the 11-year period in which the county was non-compliant.

The rates are part of a planned agreement for waste collection with De Beas County. The county has negotiated rates, and there are no fees for the general public. See page 5 of this issue of The De Beas County News.

County, village set combined trash rates

FORT SUMMER — The Fort Summer Village Council has approved a rate structure for trash collection at homes and businesses, clearing the way for the implementation of a county wide collection plan.

Meeting in special session, the Council voted 3-0 to approve the rate plan for waste collection within the Fort Summer village limits.

When implemented, Village residents will pay $25 per month for residential waste collection. Commercial users will pay, $5 per month and large or "super-commercial" users will pay $127 per month. The fees will be tacked on to the monthly water bill at the rate of $10.50 per 1000 gallons each.

The completed yard waste collection will eliminate the monthly $5 "Yard Waste Collection Fee" charged to customers.

The fee for yard waste will be $25 per month for residential customers and $40 per month for commercial customers.

The completion of the audit relieves the County from fees that could have been charged by the state over the 11-year period in which the county was non-compliant.

S.E.N.S. Tom Uidal and Martin Heinrich spied out to Titan Aerospace's new spaceport in Lincoln County at its Mountainair, Estancia and Moriarty, among other communities. Titan is also working with Mojave High School, with National Laboratories, and Valencia said a scientist's advice was "build it, break it, try it again."

Upcoming challenges for the company include clearance to fly from the Federal Aviation Administration, or FAA, Valencia said.

Titan will be "going out and going on a road show to the folks in Brine Valley," he said, looking for investors for its next round of development. He said he expects Titan's UAV's "to fulfill a need in the industry.

The network is in models, including equipment that will be available to other communities. Valencia said the network would be "very" popular in the future.

"This will be our major thrust," said Valencia, "as we continue to develop our network and later a tour of Titan Aerospace's facilities. The network will also be launched by residents, said a Titan Aerospace employee.

"It is future-proof," said Valencia. "As much as the technology continues to develop, we will keep it current.

"It allows communities to connect with each other," said Valencia, "and allow us to sell our services.

Invasive plant cause for concern

PORT SUMMER — The County Extension office has recently received several calls, mail, and computer messages regarding a yellow string-like plant that is annoyingly taking over many areas. This invasive plant is known as "dodder."

Dodder does not make its own chlorophyll—hence the yellow color—it live off other plants. It can be stopped by spraying with a soap solution. It is spreading over the hillside. County Cooperative Extension Service has some of his staff met in the forest, the location of the golden smoke tree in the Hondo as to whether or not this plant was used as a BAER (Burned Area Emergency Response) mitigation," said.

For the mulch and where it came from, according to EVEDA's executive director Myra Pancrazio. "The Man's Weed, Another Invasive plant cause for concern..."

18 years. And it is clear to me that this is the moment to do it. It is the moment that we have been preparing for, that we have been counting down to. It is the moment when all the pieces come together. It is the moment when we are ready to make the change we need to make. It is the moment when we will rise up and take charge. It is the moment when we will do something different. It is the moment when we will be willing to make the sacrifices necessary to bring about the change we need. It is the moment when we will be willing to take the risks necessary to bring about the change we need. It is the moment when we will be willing to do whatever it takes to bring about the change we need.

75 years, and it is clear to me that this is the moment to do it. It is the moment that we have been preparing for, that we have been counting down to. It is the moment when all the pieces come together. It is the moment when we are ready to make the change we need to make. It is the moment when we will rise up and take charge. It is the moment when we will do something different. It is the moment when we will be willing to make the sacrifices necessary to bring about the change we need. It is the moment when we will be willing to take the risks necessary to bring about the change we need. It is the moment when we will be willing to do whatever it takes to bring about the change we need. It is the moment when we will be willing to accept the consequences of our actions.

Self reflection is something that we all need to do in order to grow and move forward in life. We need to take the time to reflect on our actions and decide if they are helping us or hindering us. We need to take the time to reflect on our goals and decide if we are on the right path. We need to take the time to reflect on our choices and decide if they are the best choices. We need to take the time to reflect on our relationships and decide if they are healthy or harmful. We need to take the time to reflect on our lives and decide if we are happy or not.

One thing that I have learned is that we need to take the time to reflect on our lives and make changes. If we don't, our lives will not improve. If we don't, we will continue to make the same mistakes. If we don't, we will continue to be unhappy. If we don't, we will continue to be stuck in the past. If we don't, we will continue to be stuck in our own heads. If we don't, we will continue to be stuck in our own beliefs. If we don't, we will continue to be stuck in our own habits.

Tormented by your tardiness?...you're not the only one. Many of us, I believe, have come to the conclusion that we are not in control of our lives. We are not in control of our time. We are not in control of our actions. We are not in control of our lives. We are not in control of our lives. We are not in control of our lives. We are not in control of our lives. We are not in control of our lives.

One thing that I have learned is that we need to take the time to reflect on our lives and make changes. If we don't, our lives will not improve. If we don't, we will continue to make the same mistakes. If we don't, we will continue to be unhappy. If we don't, we will continue to be stuck in the past. If we don't, we will continue to be stuck in our own heads. If we don't, we will continue to be stuck in our own beliefs. If we don't, we will continue to be stuck in our own habits.
