W. A. RADFORD
EDITOR

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 178 West Jackson boulevard, Chicago, Ill., and only enclose two-cent stamp for reply.

Real estate dealers and speculative builders in the larger cities and suburban towns have long realized that every dollar spent in making more attractive the interior of the houses that they offer will come back ten-fold in the increased selling price that can be obtained or the larger rental that can be asked.

One may say that he is building a house for himself, that he has no intention of selling, but expects to live in the house for the rest of his life and can do without the frills if only the house is big enough to accommodate the actual needs. What, therefore, is the necessity of considering selling or rental value?

There is an old and very true proverb that "man proposes, but God disposes," and though a man may be building a home, circumstances may in time arise that make the sale or renting of the house imperative, and every feature that adds to its selling or rental value will be doubly appreciated. Death may make it necessary to sell the house in order to settle the

KILLING OFF THE MOSQUITO

Much Has Been Done With Crude Petroleum, and the Fish Experiment Works Well.

According to those who have given much time to the question of destroying the mosquito, considerable progress has been made in that direction in the last few years. Many of the breeding places have been wiped out in New Jersey and Staten Island; but unfortunately enough still remain to give the insects plenty of chance to multiply. Crude petroleum has been used with good effect in places where the drainage is bad, but this, of course, can bring only a temporary cessation of breeding.

The fish experiment is said to have been used successfully in the Barbados. All the swamps and ponds were stocked some years ago with a species of fish that fed on the larvae of the mosquito. These fishes multiply rapidly and thrive in the West Indian waters. In a short time there were billions of them in the swamps and ponds, and it was observed that estate. Business reasons that cannot be foreseen often compel a man much against his inclinations to move to some distant part of the country; and I have found out by personal experience that there is nothing more unsatisfactory as an investment than a real estate which is so far away that an owner cannot see for himself whether repairs asked for by the tenant are really needed or not, but must be compelled to depend upon the word of the real estate agent, whose interests seem often to be rather with the tenant than with the landlord. At such a time, the owner realizes that anything which by catching the eye and the fancy of the prospective purchaser makes a house sell more readily is something decidedly to his advantage.

The man who is compelled to borrow money in order to build his house usually endeavors to keep the sum that he borrows down to the lowest possible notch, and will cut down wherever he can in order to accomplish the necessary piping or wiring—according to the custom in the locality—or both in those towns where both gas and electricity are installed.

But those features which are built into the house and which form an essential part of the construction or the finish should never be put off until a more convenient season, because the mechanical difficulty and the expense of adding them later will prevent them from ever being put in. The seat at the bottom of the stairs and which forms a part of the paneling should be built at the same time the stairs are, and made an essential feature of the design; and the same thing is true of the built-in china closet in the dining room.

The design illustrated here, is an excellent example of the small house equipped with all the attractive little features that are so much appreciated by the home wife and in such demand in these times. The plan and put-in at the same time the rest of the work is

A desirable feature of this design is the arrangement of the stair hall separated from the rooms of the first floor. This is the way it should be, in case it is ever desired to rent a room, since the rooms on the second floor are directly accessible from the front entrance without disturbing anyone on the first floor.

The economy of this design may be seen from the fact that the house has been built as illustrated, using all first-class materials, for $2,500. The width of the house is 28 feet, the length 25 feet 6 inches. There are three rooms on the first floor and two rooms on the second floor, besides bathroom, large clothes closets, etc. The exterior appearance of this house is attractive and up-to-date.

Can a horse commit suicide? This theory is brought forward through a singular affair at Frighouse, England. About a week ago a horse fell into a pond in the vicinity of the Frighouse cricket field, and it was got out after two hours of strenuous exertion. A day or two later the horse found its way to the same pond, and this time met with a death. Frighouse people are asking if the horse went there purposely.

Facts as to Air's Movements. The movement of air is variously designated, according to its velocity, as a zephyr, breeze, wind, gale or hurricane. A dense or thick fog, according to the weather bureau, obscures objects at a distance of 1,000 feet.

Gigantic Task. A billion dollars is a great sum of money. It would take a man, working eight hours a day, over 90 years to count and stack it at the rate of a dollar a second.

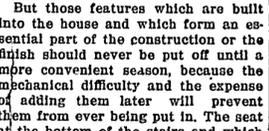

Many Have Tried. "No man has ever gained distinction because of the excellence of his jewelry."

NO MORE TOUGH STEAKS NOW

Rollers Grind Them Up Until Even Old Folks Can Eat Them Easily.

Some astute legislator who wants to put the boarding house vote in his vest pocket can do it by pushing through a bill, entitling the use of the machine shown here which was invented by a West Virginia man, as a meat grinder that is guaranteed to make a tender morsel of the toughest steak that ever broke a tooth. Two rollers, with teeth on them, do the trick. Beneath them are troughs, with projecting fingers along one edge, and when a piece of meat is run under these rollers, as a garment is run through a wringer, the iron teeth chew it to such a condition that human teeth, even in grandfather's mouth, have no further trouble with it. The rollers are adjustable so that they are not too close to the troughs, otherwise the steak would be squeezed so hard that the juice would be pressed out of it.

RECIPE FOR FROZEN NOUGAT

Rich Dish That Can Be Prepared With the Aid of The Ice Cream Freezer.

A rich and beguiling tidbit for the ice cream freezer is prepared in this way: Brown delicately one-half pound sliced, blanched almonds. Add to the nuts one cup sugar and place the vessel containing them on the side of the stove, where the sugar will melt slowly.

When melted by the mixture becomes a coffee color. No portion of it should be browner than a café au lait shade. Remove from stove and pour on greased plate to cool or on a marble confectionery slab if you own one.

When cold pound it to a powder and add this powder to a boiled custard made of the yolks of four eggs and one pint of cream.

Freeze. When it becomes stiff open freezer and add the whites of the eggs beaten very stiff with two tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar, two tablespoonfuls of orange juice and the same of pressed pineapple juice.

Repack and let it stand for two or three hours longer, after which it is ready to make the mouth of the veriest ascetic water.

Home-Made Headcheese. Take a nice fresh pig's head, scrape and scald it well; then boil in clear water. When boiled so the meat falls from the bone easily take from the water and pick off the meat. Now spread a cloth in a small pan or dish and arrange your meat so the fat and lean parts are apart; sprinkle with pepper, salt, cloves, allspice and pull the cloth as tight as you can; press till cold. Put some heavy weight on top of dish. Sprinkle your seasoning in between your meat. When cold cut in slices and put in this brine: One quart water, one good-sized onion, pepper and salt to suit your taste. Make quite salty, as it tastes better.

Bride's Cake. One scant cupful of butter, three cupfuls of sugar, one cupful of milk, whites of 12 eggs, three teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one cupful of cornstarch, three cupfuls of flour, one-quarter teaspoonful of salt, cream, butter and sugar. Mix flour, baking powder and cornstarch and add alternately with milk and whipped whites. Flavor with vanilla or almond extract and bake in loaf tin lined with four thicknesses of paper. Bake in oven moderate.

Protection. "Any man looks stupid when he wears a monocle," said the critical girl.

"That's why so many of us fellows wear 'em," replied the candid youth "if we happen to look stupid we blame the monocle."

Very Careful. "Did you get a good picture of the trust magnate?"

"No," said like a bucking broncho when I told him I would have to make an exposure."

Modern Customs.

Gramercy—We can't afford to give a dinner in the house. Besides, we haven't the things.

Mrs. Gramercy—Pshaw! We can borrow the silver.

Gramercy—Yes, and have the guests carry most of it away as souvenirs.

Then She Did the Shopping. "My dear," said Mrs. Jones to her considerably lesser half, "I want you to do a little shopping for me this afternoon."

Mr. Jones blinked pathetically. He had arranged to spend a quiet afternoon at the cricket match.

"I—I was thinking of going to the match, my love—" he began, feebly.

"Indeed!" observed his wife, stonily. "Well, I've got a better match for you than that. I want you to match this piece of material at Mason's—"

"At the counter where that little blond girl serves?" interrupted Mr. Jones, suddenly. "That nice little thing, you know, with the flazy curls and bright eyes and a jolly, roughish smile, eh?"

"Perhaps, after all," retorted Mrs. Jones, with a below zero glare, "I'd better do my own shopping."

Too Hot. "Doesn't this weather suit you?"

"No; I never liked summer, except in winter."

The Summer Parting. The Wife—O, Jim! What shall we do with the cat?

The Husband—Learn her here. I wouldn't take a cat I thought anything of to the place where we're going to board!

Different. David Belasco was condemning two melodramas that had an unmerited success among the less cultivated portion of the public.

"The first," Mr. Belasco said in his epigrammatic way, "was all blood and thunder, and the other was all thud and blunder."

SOME say that we should Eat to Live
And some say Live to eat,
But look at it which ever way,
'Tis true, to live, we eat.

WAYS OF SERVING LIVER.

To many this plebeian dish will not appeal, but we can only feel sympathy for those who miss the good things that may be served alone and in combination with liver.

For minced liver simmer the meat in water for twenty-five minutes. Then drain and chop finely. Add two onions chopped and pepper and salt. Return to the saucepan and cover with cold water and cook twenty minutes; then add enough bread crumbs to make it thick. Make a border of mashed potatoes around a platter and pour the minced liver in the center.

Liver with bacon is the most common way of serving liver. Parboil the slices of liver, drain and roll in flour. Have a few slices of bacon fried until crisp; remove them and add an onion, cook until yellow, then remove and add the liver. Brown well on both sides, and when well cooked place on the platter and garnish with the bacon and rings of fried onion.

Bacon and small pieces of liver placed alternately on skewers, then baked in the oven is another dainty way of serving liver.

Roasted Liver.—Cut little slits in a fresh calf's liver and put into these slits small pieces of fat salt pork cut into strips. If you have, and can use, a larding needle, this may be done very neatly. Allow the liver to lie in the following mixture for an hour. The juice of one lemon, one tablespoonful of olive oil, a slice of onion, two tablespoonfuls of vinegar, three cloves, a half a bay leaf and salt and pepper. Turn frequently while soaking. Drain and wrap in buttered paper and roast for an hour and a half, longer if the liver weighs very much. When nearly done remove the paper, dredge with flour and brown with a potatoes with the salmon and the white of an egg, well beaten. Roll in egg and crumbs and fry in deep fat.

Baked Salmon.—Take a small can of salmon, three eggs and two tablespoonfuls of butter. Drain the salmon, flake carefully, season with salt and pepper and mix with the three eggs, hard-cooked and chopped fine, and one and a fourth cups of bread crumbs. Soften with a half cup of milk or water, add the butter and form into a loaf. Bake twenty minutes.

SUGGESTIONS FOR HOUSEWIVES.

When cane seats in the chairs sag, turn them upside down and scrub with hot soapsuds, then rinse in hot water. When dry they will be drawn tight again.

Insist upon getting sixty pounds of potatoes to a bushel, exclusive of the basket.

Use the small-sized clothes pins; they stay on better than the large ones.

Old oil cloth is useful for mats and pads to save the table. Cut in squares and use it under hot dishes.

Old paint stains may be removed from cloth by rubbing first with olive oil and then with chloroform.

Add sugar to fruit when half cooked, and save in the amount of sugar used.

A crochet hook is a good article to keep in the bathroom to draw out lint, hairs, etc., from the paste pipes which stop the flow of water.

A little powdered pumice will remove stains from under the finger nails. Apply it with an orange stick.

To keep corns from troubling rub them often with a fine piece of sand paper.

To clean and renew the shine of shoes, rub with a mixture of three parts of kerosene and one part of turpentine.

HAVE YOU SUSPECTED YOUR KIDNEYS?

Thousands suffer from backache, headache, dizziness and weariness without suspecting their kidneys.

Mrs. Joseph Gross, Church St., Morriston, Ark., says: "For weeks I was all doubled over with pain. I became so dizzy I had to grasp something to keep from falling and my ankles were swollen to nearly twice their natural size. None of the doctors understood my case and I felt myself sinking lower day by day. I improved rapidly through the use of Doan's Kidney Pills and at last was entirely cured."

PHYSICIAN SAID ECZEMA CAME FROM TEETHING

"When my little girl was about eight months old, she was taken with a very irritating breaking out, which came on her face, neck and back. When she first came down with it, it came in little watery-like festers under her eyes, and on her chin, then after a few days it would dry down in scaly, white scabs. In the daytime she was quite merry and would dig and scratch at her face."

"I consulted our physician and found she was suffering from eczema, which he said came from her teething. I used the ointment he gave me and without any relief at all. Then I wrote for a book on Cuticura, and purchased some Cuticura Soap and Ointment at the drug store. I did as I found directions in the Cuticura Booklet, and when she was one year old, she was entirely cured. Now she is three years and four months, and she has never been troubled with eczema since she was cured by the Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment. The Trouble With Humor.
E. N. Brown, president of the National Railways of Mexico, discussing in New York a railroadier who was always out of work, said: "He is too quick with his tongue—that's his trouble. He has a ready wit that he is too apt to use upon his boss." Then, with a laugh Mr. Brown uttered this epigrammatic and true saying: "Repartee has lost as many men their jobs as it has made others their reputations."

WHAT TO EAT.
Salmon, canned, or if one is fortunate enough to live where they may be procured fresh, are one of our most satisfactory fish. They are so many nice ways of serving it that a few may be reminders. As a salad with a chopped pickle and a bit of celery and dressing it is universally liked.

Salmon Loaf.—Shred with a fork a can of salmon, pour off the oil and set aside. Add one egg, three-fourths of a cup of milk, salt, two tablespoonfuls of butter, and three-fourths of a cup of bread crumbs. Mold in a loaf, put into a pan and pour over the oil; bake half an hour and serve with tomato sauce. A cup of strained tomato seasoned with red pepper, cloves and onion. Pour around the loaf and serve.

When the fresh fish is obtainable, which is, of course, so very superior to the canned, try broiling a salmon steak. Dry it well, and dredge with flour, then lay on a well-buttered broiler or gridiron. If using an iron, turn with a broad-bladed knife and an egg whisk on top to prevent its breaking. When cooked to a light brown, lay on a hot platter, season with pepper and salt and serve at once.

Salmon Corquettes.—These may be made from left-over salmon when it has been served plain. To half a can of salmon add a cup of bread crumbs and pepper and salt. Mix two mashed

MORE ABOUT APPLES.
Each family has its own favorite dishes, but a few new ones are always welcome to the cook. The following will not be new to everyone, for as "there is nothing new under the sun" it would be impossible to find anything entirely fresh.

A dessert which is both pretty and delicious is baked apples with nuts. The apples are peeled and corad, put into a baking dish with a little water and sugar, then fill the cavity with chopped nuts. When they are half cooked serve cold with whipped cream.

Another rice dessert is apple meringue. Core and bake the fruit and stuff the centers with jelly or orange marmalade. Beat the white of an egg, add sugar and pour over the apples, then brown in the oven.

A rosy apple will make a very pretty dessert. Cook it after coring, without paring, in a little sugar and water. Remove the skin carefully and the rosy cheek of the apple will be a thing of beauty. If not enough of the rosy hue comes off, scrape the inside of the cooked skin and paint it back upon the apple.

Apples make a delicious sauce for meats when spiced as any fruit. This makes a nice sauce for pork roast. The apples must be tart and cooked a long time to be thoroughly seasoned with the spices.

could have been built for a fraction of what the lands are now worth. Texas is now and always has been a Democratic stronghold. Don Felix Martinez, who dominated the Democratic convention and put through the slate with McDonald, the representative of foreign cattle barons, as it latter carrier, is a resident of El Paso, Texas, although claiming a residence in Colfax county, N. M. This explains why the Democratic party wants to defeat Holm O. Bursum and elect McDonald. The foreign cattle barons need the land for their cattle.

IF Mr McDonald and his friends get into office you won't need to worry about the public lands because there won't be any. Look at Texas.

The last Democratic administration left New Mexico with a deficit of $127,000 in less than four years. Under Republican rule there is now no deficit and over $700,000 in the treasury.

DO YOU want progress and prosperity? Do you want a repetition of the last Democratic administration with a deficit of $127,000 in less than four years? If you want peace New Mexico must and must have the Republican ticket from top to bottom.

Mr. BURSUM declares that he is for giving the land to the men who want homes and to settle it up and improve it. Mr. McDonald wants the public domain for his cattle owned by the foreign cattle barons who never have even lived in New Mexico.

THE fight on Holm O. Bursum, Republican candidate for Governor is along the same old lines of abuse and calumny. It is a statement of fact.

BOYS BOUND OVER

George Percy a pumper for the E.P. & S. W. at Coyote while riding his "speeder" through Ancho Friday ran into some railroad spikes that had been placed on the track derailing the "speeder" and throwing Percy into the ditch. Special officer Walker Hyd went to Ancho to make an investigation and arrested two small boys the children of Juan Escuando. The boys were brought to Carrizozo where they had a hearing before justice of the peace Massie and were bound over in the sum of $200 to wait the action of the grand jury. Bond was furnished.

DEMOCRATIC RALLY

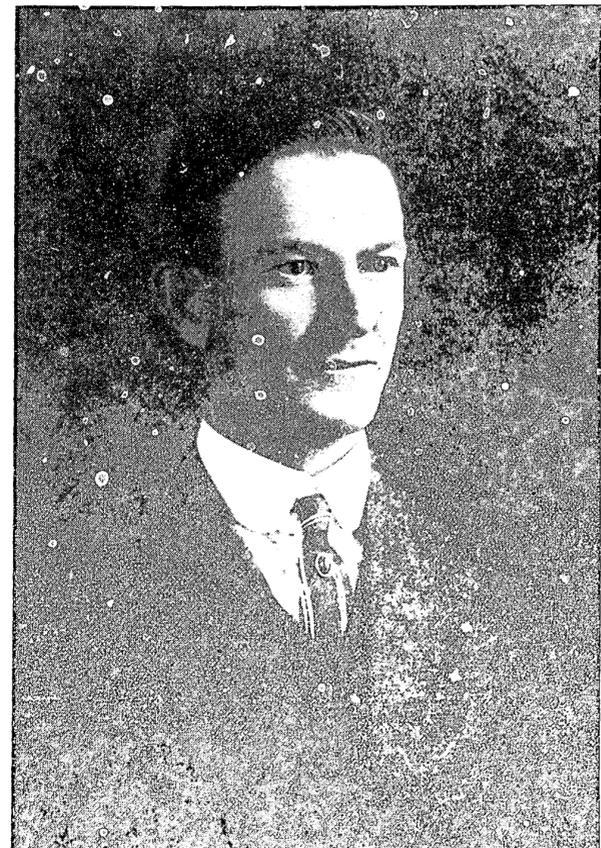

A Democratic rally was held in Carrizozo on Tuesday evening of this week in Real's Hall at which H. B. Ferguson, candidate for Congress, E. C. deBaca, candidate for Lieutenant Governor and Alvin N. White, candidate for Supt. of Schools, addressed a fairly large crowd of citizens. The following morning the candidates left for Lincoln by auto where the county convention was in session, accompanied by George Ulrick.

DEER SEASON OPENED

The deer season opened Sunday and will continue for one month. It is said that there are more deer in New Mexico than ever before and that there is one for ever voter in the territory. There are also more grouse, quail and turkey than in former years.

For District Attorney, 3rd Judicial District

H. B. Hamilton

H. B. Hamilton, nominee for District Attorney in the Third Judicial District which comprises the counties of Otero, Lincoln, Torrance and Dona Ana was admitted to the New Mexico Bar in 1898. He has practiced law since in Cherry Hill, Lincoln. Hamilton was born in Missouri and came to New Mexico in 1894. He has lived in both Missouri and the new state of New Mexico. His father H. B. Hamilton during his lifetime was one of the best known attorneys in New Mexico and was judge of the Fifth District of New Mexico. Humphrey Hamilton was married in 1898 at Roswell to Lovi A. Wetmore. He is well qualified for the office he seeks being thoroughly conversant with the laws of New Mexico and speaks Spanish fluently.

THOSE PUBLIC LANDS

When the Democratic press raised a howl about the leasing of the public lands it turned loose a boomerang that it would give anything to stop. The facts about the public lands leased by the territory are shown on the books of the Land Commissioner at Santa Fe. Incidentally, those books show that Hon. Herbie J. Hagaman, who is a recent addition to the Democratic ranks, has 26,406.41 acres of the public domain and it is nearly all of it land that is as good for homesteading as the lands on the plains of eastern New Mexico. It is about twice as much land as Solomon Luna leases. Mr. W. W. McDonald, the Democratic nominee for governor, and his foreign cattle barons or whom he works, hold 24,933.32 acres of territorial land or three times as much land as is held by H. O. Bursum or Frank A. Hubbell. And following the record right straight through, it is found that two-thirds of all the state lands now leased, are leased by Democrats or so-called Progressive Republicans. It is plain now why Mr. McDonald wants to be governor or why his foreign cattle barons are spending so much money to elect him.

The great state of Texas is a fair sample of how the state lands can be squandered and wasted. Texas, one of the great states in the union, is now practically without public lands of any great degree of value. The big cattle owners got the bulk of them, millions of them were given away for a state capitol that

During this weather the softer the drink the better.

It is the early bird, too, that gets a look at the bird-men.

Anatole France says that all war is doomed to perish. Meanwhile, swat the fly!

Speaking of high society, a six foot New York man is to marry a seven foot girl.

There are worse occupations, too, on a hot day than that of eating iced cantaloupes.

HORTICULTURE

FALL CARE FOR CALLA LILY

Size of Plant and Flowers Are Largely Governed by Size of Pot in Which Placed.

When a calla has bloomed in the house during the winter, it should be kept watered until summer, then bedded out in a sunny situation in the garden. There let nature care for it until fall, when it should be repotted.

Calla Lily.

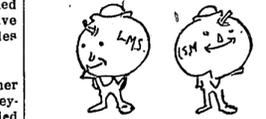

says Park's Floral Magazine. If you have a large tuber, and you wish large flowers, then use a large pot. If you want a dwarf plant, use a small pot. The size of the plant and the flowers are largely governed by the size of the pot. When a plant fails to develop properly, it is mostly because the soil is sour or unfit for the growth and development of the plant.

MONOGRAMS ON CHOICE FRUIT

A story comes from Oregon to the effect that the big fruit growers in that section are now growing monograms on their choice fruit.

Individual Brands of Apples.

hases their value in the big markets in the east. It is claimed that a large grower of fancy apples at Hood River now places the monogram of a prominent New York hotel on a large portion of his crop. This is done by pasting perforated paper labels containing the monogram on the cheek of the apples while green. When the fruit colors in the sun the words are left in red on a green background, and the whole design has the appearance of having been stamped on in dainty ink.

Late Cabbage.
The late cabbage will need close attention for the next month. Clean tillage is essential and nitrate of soda may be necessary to secure a rapid growth. Use about 100 pounds per acre and apply broadcast. A second application of nitrate may be profitable. There are probably very few instances where it will not be profitable to use nitrate of soda on either early or late cabbage.

Culture of Fruit Trees.
The reason fruit trees planted in fence corners and out of the way places do not thrive generally may be found in the fact that they are not cultivated.

If a man sells fruit of which he is ashamed then he should throw away his stencil and conceal all evidence of his ownership.

Soil for Orchards.
If the orchard has been cultivated up to this time it may be sown broadcast with any of the crops for gathering nitrogen, such as clover, field peas or barley.

It is a great mistake to pick out the poorest soil on the place on which to plant the orchard. The best is none too good.

Spraying Fruit Trees.
If your neighbor's orchard has been sprayed at least twice during the season it will interest you to compare the quality and quantity of his fruit with yours, if yours has not been sprayed.

If your orchard produces poor fruit you may be sure there is a reason and you ought to find it.

KEEPING BULBS OVER WINTER

To Grow Well Following Spring When They Are Planted They Must Be Given Special Care.

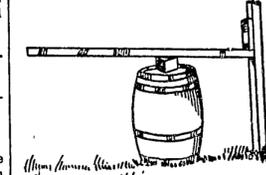

For bulbs to keep well over winter and grow well the following spring or summer when they are planted they must have special care before storing. First, as soon as the stalks have been killed by frost cut them off a few inches above the ground. The bulbs or tubers will have matured before this time and they cannot secure more nourishment from the frosted and dead stems. Injury may result if the frost-damaged stems are allowed to remain. Let the bulbs and tubers remain in the soil till late in the fall or till just before the ground begins to freeze hard. They will keep better in their natural home in the soil, under normal moisture conditions, than they will out of the soil. If the soil becomes very wet after the first frosts, then it will be better to dig them immediately.

Select bright, clear weather for digging the bulbs. Begin the work in the morning after the dew is off the dead grass. Lift the clump or single bulb with a garden spade, being careful not to injure any of the underground parts, shake off any excess of adhering soil and lay the tubers and bulbs on the dry ground for sunning. If the ground is wet or very damp place dry straw or leaves under them so that they will dry on all sides. At night protect them with straw, canvas or some covering to keep out dampness and prevent possible freezing. Uncover them each morning for exposure to air and sun and let them cure in this manner from three to five days. Be sure that any soil that may be remaining on them is perfectly dry before they are placed in storage.

What She Gained by Trying Again.

A failure at first makes us esteem final success.

A family in Minnesota that now enjoys Postum would never have known how good it is if the mother had been discouraged by the failure of her first attempt to prepare it. Her son tells the story:

"We had never used Postum till last spring when father brought home a package one evening just to try it. We had heard from our neighbors, and in fact every one who used it, how well they liked it.

"Well, the next morning Mother brewed it about five minutes, just as she had been in the habit of doing with coffee without paying special attention to the directions printed on the package. It looked weak and didn't have a very promising color, but nevertheless father raised his cup with an air of expectancy. It certainly did give him a great surprise, but I'm afraid it wasn't a very pleasant one, for he put down his cup with a look of disgust.

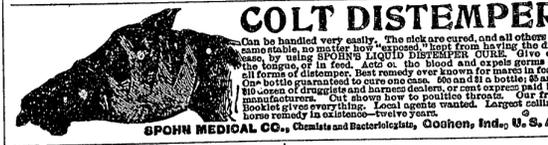

Mother wasn't discouraged though, and next morning gave it another trial, letting it stand on the stove till boiling began and then letting it boil for fifteen or twenty minutes, and this time we were all so pleased with it that we have used it ever since.

"Father was a confirmed dyspeptic and a cup of coffee was to him like poison. So he never drinks it any more, but drinks Postum regularly. He isn't troubled with dyspepsia now and is actually growing fat, and I'm sure Postum is the cause of it. All the children are allowed to drink it and they are perfect pictures of health." The GIRL OF MY DREAMS

A NOVELIZATION OF THE PLAY BY
WILBUR D. NESBIT AND OTTO HAUERBACH
NOVELIZED BY WILBUR D. NESBIT

SYNOPSIS.

Harry Swifton is expecting a visit from his fiancée, Lucy Medders, a Quakeress whom he met in the country. His auto crashes into another machine containing a beautiful woman and a German count. The woman's hat is ruined and Harry escapes. His sister, Caroline, arrives at his home to play hostess. Socrates Primmer, cousin of Lucy's, arrives with a hat intended as a present for Lucy.

CHAPTER II.—(Continued.)

"Make yourself at home, old chap," Harry said. "What's that? Your baggage?"

"This?" Primmer sighed, indicating the hatbox. "This is a present I bought for Lucy. I happened to see it in the window of a store near here, and I purchased it and had it sent to this address. It just came, so I want to put it away and later give it to her with my own hands. Alas, my poor, poor Lucy!"

"Why—what's happened? What's so sad about Lucy?"

"She—she—oh, my poor, poor Lucy!" Primmer wailed, going slowly from the room.

"Well, wouldn't that bump you!" Harry soliloquized. "Cousin Socrates is evidently allowing his blighted affections to act on his lachrymal glands. Now, looking about the room, I expect I'd better send Venus and the ballet girls to the attic for a much-needed rest."

He was just about to take the ballet girl picture from the wall, when he was startled by an angry argument in the hallway. One voice was that of a woman, another that of the butler, and the third the broken accents of the German into whose auto Harry had smashed.

"Great guns!" he exclaimed. "They've trilled me down." Into the room rushed the pair. "You!" both cried.

CHAPTER III.

For a moment the couple looked at Harry and Harry looked at them. It would be difficult to say whether they or he felt the greater surprise.

"I want that hat!" spoke the lady, in determined tones.

"Yes, you want that hat?" spoke the gentleman.

"I haven't a hat," Harry explained.

The German was about to explode in a few belligerent remarks, but the lady put her hand on his arm to restrain him, and said in milder tones: "You can help me out of a most distressing situation, sir."

"How so, madam?" Harry asked.

"We have just come from the new milliner's around the corner. I recognize you as the gentleman who figured in that unfortunate accident this morning, and strangely enough the milliner says that she sent to this house within an hour the perfect duplicate of my hat, which your auto ruined."

"Yellow it was," interrupted the German. "Yellow, mit red puppies on it."

"Puppies not puppies, count," said the lady. "Now, sir," to Harry, "I must have the hat which was sent here. Mine was an imported model and the milliner had but this one duplicate."

"There has been no hat delivered here," Harry replied.

"But it was," the lady argued. "And I must have it."

"I will go now, if you please," said the German, who had been growing more and more nervous, evidently being anxious to be well out of the scrape as soon as possible.

"No," Harry said, sternly. "Wait a minute. If the hat was sent here, I should know it. There may be a mistake. Ring up this milliner person and find out just what there is to it. Use the phone there, madam."

The lady smiled with relief, went to the phone and called for a number.

"Hello," she said. "Is Ma'mselle Daphne Daffington there? Is this you, Ma'mselle?"

"Daphne Daffington!" Harry muttered. "Can't be little Daphne I used to flirt with!"

"This is Mrs. Blazes," the lady said into the phone.

Harry started at that. "Mrs. Blazes!" he said in a hoarse whisper to the German. "Not Mrs. General Blazes?"

"Exact!" the German assured him.

"Where did you deliver that duplicate of my hat?" Mrs. Blazes asked.

After the reply, still holding the receiver to her ear, she turned and asked Harry:

"What's the number of this house?"

"Three hundred and ten."

"They say it didn't reach here," Mrs. Blazes said into the phone.

"What? You are sure it did? You will come over yourself? Thank you."

She hung up the receiver and turned to Harry with:

"She is positive that the hat was delivered here, and to make sure she says she will come herself. Now, that hat is here, evidently. And I must have it."

"Yes," the German, belligerently added. "We must have it."

But Harry had by this time divined who the German was—he could be no one else than the dapper Count Von Filtz, whose flirtatious escapades were discussed on all sides. And, this being Mrs. Blazes, and the General being worried because his wife had not yet come home, Harry could put two and two together and reason that the Count and the dashing Mrs. Blazes had gone for a jolly little ride through the park, which ride had been spoiled by the untoward accident which destroyed her hat.

"Why don't you go and get a hat—any kind of a hat?" he asked. "I'll be glad to pay for it, as I was partially at fault when your hat was ruined."

"Oh, sir," Mrs. Blazes answered, "I wouldn't dare to go home without that particular hat, or its exact duplicate. My husband is very jealous. He would be sure to want to know where the original hat had gone—in fact, it is his favorite hat. Please, please give me the hat."

"But I tell you I haven't it. I'd give it to you in a minute if I had it."

"Vat a nonsense!! the Count cried.

Mrs. Blazes was about to say something, when a strange voice was heard outside.

"Right up here? Thank thee." It was the voice of Amos Medders.

"Great heavens!" Harry hissed.

"They've come. My future father-in-law, and my future fiancée!"

"Aha!" the Count said, malevolently. "Unless you gif us der hat ve vill make some trouble."

"Please go!" Harry begged. "Please! I haven't the hat. I'll get you a whole hat store, if you'll only go!"

But they were adamant. Mrs. Blazes, nerved to desperation because she knew she simply could not go home without her hat, planked herself into a chair and announced that she would stay right there until he gave her her own hat.

An inspiration came to Harry. Taking Mrs. Blazes by the arm he said:

"I'll send out and get you the hat. I'll get that milliner to rush another duplicate for you. Here, hide in here for a while. You understand there'd be no end of talk if you were found here."

He rushed Mrs. Blazes to the door of his own room and pushed her in and slammed the door, then turned to the Count.

"Now you may go," he said.

The Count was only too willing, but Lucy and her father could be heard coming nearer. Bewildered, Harry grabbed the Count by the arm and shoved him into the library on the other side from his own room.

"I can't meet them while I am in this condition," he said, looking about the room. "I'm so nervous they'd think I was guilty of something terrible or that I didn't want them here. If I were guilty I could carry it off easily. Thus does Innocence get the hook!"

And as Lucy and her father came into the room he slipped out the door leading to the back hallway.

Wonderingly, Lucy Medders and her father parted the hangings and entered Harry's den. They gazed about them, at the stells, the boxing gloves, the pipe racks, the pictures and all the other fittings of a bachelor's den.

On the table lay a deck of cards, a half smoked cigar, an opened box of cigarettes, and some scattered red white and blue chips.

"Oh-h-h!" Lucy gasped. "Isn't it lovely, father?"

"And this?"—Mr. Medders said—

"this is Harry's home?"

"It seemeth different from our own home, doth it not?" Lucy asked, shyly.

"Verily, daughter," Medders remarked, coming to a stop before the allow me to show thee to thy room, Uncle Medders," Socrates observed, lugubriously. "And his sister will come this moment to greet poor, poor Cousin Lucy."

Primmer led Medders out. Lucy looked about her, wondering for a moment, but whatever her thoughts may have been, they were ended suddenly when Harry hurried in.

"I'm so sorry, not to have met you when you arrived," he said, seizing both her hands, while she drew herself away in shyness.

"I am truly glad to see thee, Harry," she told him. "Thy house is most seemly."

Harry looked quickly at her. The seemed to be an undercurrent of hidden meaning in her words. But a glance at her lovely face, framed in the sunny hair escaping from beneath the simple Quaker bonnet, was enough to convince him that there had been no guile in her remark.

Lucy, in her plain, almost severe, gray dress, with just the touch of

"Why," Lucy said, looking at the picture, "see the ladies in the rainy day skirts!"

"I see the ladies," Medders said, drily, "but where are the skirts? Verily, daughter, they must have feared a flood."

"Perhaps," Lucy offered, seeing that her father viewed the picture with disapproval, "perhaps it is a biblical scene."

"Nay, daughter. If it were, more people would be buying Bibles."

Medders turned from the picture, and his attention was caught by the statuette of the Venus de Milo. He looked at it intently.

"This is a sad sight, daughter," he remarked.

"Because her arms are broken, father?" Lucy asked, innocently, not understanding that her father was expressing a dislike to such works of art. "Peradventure she broke them off trying to hook her dress in the back," she continued, merrily.

"She hath no dress to hook," Medders said, solemnly. "But, aside from these, the place hath a seemly look."

CHAPTER IV.

From the hallway came gliding in the sorrowful figure of Socrates Primmer. He caught his breath sharply at sight of Lucy, and then advanced, with his hands outstretched.

"Ah, my poor, poor cousin Lucy!" he wailed.

"Oh, cousin Socrates!" Lucy cried. "How nice of thee to come."

Medders looked on with kindly amusement. He had long known of Primmer's unrequited attachment for Lucy, and to him it seemed that the best course to pursue was to allow Primmer to weep it out. Primmer looked mournfully at Lucy and said:

"As Riley might have written:

"Now my heart is full of sorrow and my soul would fain resign For another fellow's courting that old sweetheart of mine."

"But," Lucy smiled, "I am not old, and I am not thy sweetheart, cousin Socrates."

"Verily, Socrates," Medders said, "thou wouldst make a poor sort of husband, weeping continually about the house. Thou mightst dampen the clothes on ironing day, though."

"Don't mind father, cousin Socrates," Lucy said. "He doth but jest."

"Harry said for me to ask thee to white at neck and throat, and the soft gray ribbons tying her bonnet beneath her chin, was a marked contrast to the dashing beauties he knew.

But with all her simplicity of manner she had that indefinable quality called "charm," which may not be acquired through the donning of gaudy raiment and the heightening of the color of the cheeks, nor by any of the extraneous aids to beauty which need not be particularized here. And such charm, also, may not be lost at any moment by the one possessing it. Charm in a woman is like magnetism in a man. It manifests itself unconsciously and naturally, so that others measure the possessor by it and not by his or her appearance.

Harry drew her toward him, still holding her hands. There was no mistaking his wish. Lucy, unsophisticated though she was, understood him.

"Nay, Harry," Lucy said. "Thee know I do not think a girl should be kissed before she is wedded."

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Circulating Libraries.

It is absolutely impossible to say just when the first circulating library was opened. If there was ever a record of the important event, it is lost.

We know that during the middle ages stationers used to lend books on hire, and here, no doubt, we have the germ of the modern circulating library. One Samuel Fancourt started a real circulating library in England about the year 1740, but it appears that the people were not ready for it, since it soon failed. Similar institutions at Bath and London, some ten years later, seem to have succeeded, and from that time the circulating library began to get a foothold, not only in England, but in other European countries.

True to the Death.

Not long since the driver of the engine on one of the Belgian lines of railway saw a large dog on the roadway between the metals. He put on the whistle, yet it did not move, but only stood and barked furiously at the approaching engine. Still on, on, on, came the train, and still there stood the dog, more furious than before. The train passed, and at the next station it was noticed that a part of a dress was clinging to the wheel guard. A messenger was sent back, when a dead child was found, which had evidently fallen asleep, and whom the noble dog tried to protect to the very last, giving his very life sooner than flinch from his trust.

Find fault, when you must find fault, in private; and, some time after the offense, rather than at the time. The blamed are less inclined to resist when they are blamed without witnesses; both parties are calmer and the accused party is struck with the forbearance of the accuser, who has seen the fault and watched for a private and proper time for mentioning it.

"Yes," the German, belligerently added. "We must have it."

But Harry had by this time divined who the German was—he could be no one else than the dapper Count von Fitz, whose flirtatious escapades were discussed on all sides. And, this being Mrs. Blazes, and the General being worried because his wife had not yet come home, Harry could put two and two together and reason that the Count and the dashing Mrs. Blazes had gone for a jolly little ride through the park, which ride had been spoiled by the untoward accident which destroyed her hat.

"Why don't you go and get a hat—any kind of a hat?" he asked. "I'll be glad to pay for it, as I was partially at fault when your hat was ruined."

"Oh, sir," Mrs. Blazes answered, "I wouldn't dare to go home without that particular hat, or its exact duplicate. My husband is very jealous. He would be sure to want to know where the original hat had gone—in fact, it is his favorite hat. Please, please give me the hat."

"But I tell you I haven't it. I'd give it to you in a minute if I had it."

"Vat a nonsense!" the Count cried.

Mrs. Blazes was about to say something, when a strange voice was heard outside.

"Right up here? Thank thee." It was the voice of Amos Medders.

"Great heavens!" Harry hissed.

"They've come. My future father-in-law, and my future fiancée!"

"Aha!" the Count said, malevolently. "Unless you give us der hat ve vill make some trouble."

"Please go!" Harry begged. "Please! I haven't the hat. I'll get you a whole hat store, if you'll only go!"

But they were adamant. Mrs. Blazes, nerved to desperation because she knew she simply could not go home without her hat, planked herself into a chair and announced that she would stay right there until he gave her her own hat.

An inspiration came to Harry. Taking Mrs. Blazes by the arm he said:

"I'll send out and get you the hat. I'll get that milliner to rush another duplicate for you. Here, hide in here for a while. You understand there'd be no end of talk if you were found here."

He rushed Mrs. Blazes to the door of his own room and pushed her in and slammed the door, then turned to the Count.

"Now you may go," he said.

The Count was only too willing, but Lucy and her father could be heard coming nearer. Bewildered, Harry grabbed the Count by the arm and shoved him into the library on the other side from his own room.

"I can't meet them while I am in this condition," he said, looking about the room. "I'm so nervous they'd think I was guilty of something terrible or that I didn't want them here. If I were guilty I could carry it off easily. Thus does innocence get the hooks!"

And as Lucy and her father came into the room he slipped out the door leading to the back hallway.

Wonderingly, Lucy Medders and her father parted the hangings and entered Harry's den. They gazed about them, at the stela, the boxing gloves, the other fittings of a bachelor's den.

On the table lay a deck of cards, a half smoked cigar, an opened box of cigarettes, and some scattered red wafle and blue chips.

"Oh-h!" Lucy gasped. "Isn't it lovely, father?"

"And this?"—Mr. Medders said—"this is Harry's home?"

"It seemeth different from our own home, doth it not?" Lucy asked, shyly.

"Verily, daughter," Medders remarked, coming to a stop before the

allow me to show thee to thy room," Uncle Medders," Socrates observed, lugubriously. "And his sister will come this moment to greet poor, poor Cousin Lucy."

Primmer led Medders out. Lucy looked about her, wondering, for a moment, but whatever her thoughts may have been, they were ended suddenly when Harry hurried in.

"I'm so sorry, not to have met you when you arrived," he said, seizing both her hands, while she drew herself away in shyness.

"I am truly glad to see thee, Harry," she told him. "Thy house is most seemly."

Harry looked quickly at her. There seemed to be an undercurrent of hidden meaning in her words. But a glance at her lovely face, framed in the sunny hair escaping from beneath the simple Quaker bonnet, was enough to convince him that there had been no guile in her remark.

Lucy, in her plain, almost severe, gray dress, with just the touch of highly colored picture of the ballet girls, "there be nothing like this at home."

"Why," Lucy said, looking at the picture, "see the ladies in the rainy day skirts?"

"I see the ladies," Medders said, drily, "but where are the skirts? Verily, daughter, they must have feared a flood."

"Perhaps," Lucy offered, seeing that her father viewed the picture with disapproval, "perhaps it is a biblical scene."

"Nay, daughter. If it were, more people would be buying Bibles."

Medders turned from the picture, and his attention was caught by the statuette of the Venus de Milo. He looked at it intently.

"This is a sad sight, daughter," he remarked.

"Because her arms are broken, father?" Lucy asked, innocently, not understanding that her father was expressing a dislike to such works of art.

"Peradventure she broke them off trying to look her dress in the back," she continued, merrily.

"She hath no dress to look," Medders said, solemnly. "But, aside from these, the place hath a seemly look."

CHAPTER IV.

From the hallway came gliding in the sorrowful figure of Socrates Primmer. He caught his breath sharply at sight of Lucy, and then advanced, with his hands outstretched.

"Ah, my poor, poor cousin Lucy!" he wailed.

"Oh, cousin Socrates!" Lucy cried. "How nice of thee to come."

Medders looked on with kindly amusement. He had long known of Primmer's unrequited attachment for Lucy, and to him it seemed that the best course to pursue was to allow Primmer to weep it out. Primmer looked mournfully at Lucy and said:

"As Riley might have written:

"Now my heart is full of sorrow and my soul would rain rupsine
For another fellow's courting that old sweetheart of mine."

"But," Lucy smiled, "I am not old, and I am not thy sweetheart, cousin Socrates."

"Verily, Socrates," Medders said, "thou wouldst make a poor sort of husband, weeping continually about the house. Thou mightst dampen the clothes on ironing day, though."

"Don't mind father, cousin Socrates," Lucy said. "He doth but jest."

"Harry said for me to ask thee to white at neck and throat, and the soft gray ribbons tying her bonnet beneath her chin, was a marked contrast to the dashing beauties he knew.

But with all her simplicity of manner she had that indefinable quality called "charm," which may not be acquired through the donning of gaudy raiment and the heightening of the color of the cheeks, nor by any of the extraneous aids to beauty which need not be particularized here. And such charm, also, may not be lost at any moment by the one possessing it. Charm in a woman is like magnetism in a man. It manifests itself unconsciously and naturally, so that others measure the possessor by it and not by his or her appearance.

Harry drew her toward him, still holding her hands. There was no mistaking his wish. Lucy, unsophisticated though she was, understood him.

"Nay, Harry," Lucy said. "Thou know I do not think a girl should be kissed before she is wedded."

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Circulating Libraries.

It is absolutely impossible to say just when the first circulating library was opened. If there was ever a record of the important event, it is lost.

We know that during the middle ages stationers used to lend books on hire, and here, no doubt, we have the germ of the modern circulating library.

One Samuel Fancourt started a real circulating library in England about the year 1740, but it appears that the people were not ready for it, since it soon failed. Similar institutions at Bath and London, some ten years later, seem to have succeeded, and from that time the circulating library began to get a foothold, not only in England, but in other European countries.

True to the Death.

Not long since the driver of the engine on one of the Belgian lines of railway saw a large dog on the roadway between the metals. He put on the whistle, yet it did not move, but only stood and barked furiously at the approaching engine. Still on, on, on, came the train, and still there stood the dog, more furious than before. The train passed, and at the next station it was noticed that a part of a dress was clinging to the wheel guard. A messenger was sent back, when a dead child was found, which had evidently fallen asleep, and whom the noble dog tried to protect to the very last, giving his very life sooner than flinch from his trust.

WOMAN ESCAPES OPERATION

Was Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Elwood, Ind.—"Your remedies have cured me and I have only taken six bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I was sick three months and could not walk. I suffered all the time. The doctors said I could not get well without an operation, for I could hardly stand the pains in my sides, especially my right one, and down my right leg. I began to feel better when I had taken only one bottle of Compound, but kept on as I was afraid to stop too soon."—Mrs. SADIE MULLEN, 2724 N. B. St., Elwood, Ind.

Why will women take chances with an operation or drag out a sickly, half-hearted existence, missing three-fourths of the joy of living, when they can find health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?

For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has cured thousands of women who have been troubled with such ailments as displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion, and nervous prostration.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be absolutely confidential, and the advice free.

THE ROAD TO LEARNING.

De Quilz—Did the learned professor explain the matter on which you were in doubt?

De Witt—Yes, but he used such unfamiliar language that I'll have to go around tomorrow and get him to explain his explanation.

How to Find Fault.

Find fault, when you must find fault, in private; and some time after the offense, rather than at the time. The blamed are less inclined to resist when they are blamed without witnesses; both parties are calmer and the accused party is struck with the forbearance of the accuser, who has seen the fault and watched for a private and proper time for mentioning it.

Wifely Sarcasm.

"I hear they are wearing nothing but old clothes at Plunkville-under-the-Peak. That's the place for you to go, wife."

"Yes. I can take seven trunks of old clothes. If old clothes are the rack, I can make a splurge."

The Flavour of Post Toasties

Is so distinctly pleasing that it has won the liking of both young and old who never before cared much for cereal food of any kind.

WM. WARDEN TO MARRY

The Winchester (Va.) Star has printed the following announcement of the coming marriage of Wm. Warden. Mr. Warden is one of the well known Warden Bros. the Ancho sheepmen.

"A wedding of much interest to a large circle of friends is that of Miss Frances Pease, Winchester Va. to William Warden of Ancho, New Mexico to be solemnized, Nov. 1, 1911 at the home of the brides parents. Miss Pease is one of the Winchester most charming young ladies."

FOR STATE SENATOR EIGHTEENTH DISTRICT

JOHN M. BOWMAN

Was born in Pennsylvania 41 years ago. He was educated in the public schools in his native state, later finishing in the Presbyterian College at Jamestown, N. D. He located at Washington, Iowa where for 15 years he conducted a mercantile establishment that employed 15 to 20 clerks. Moving to New Mexico he located at Alamogordo; he was elected Probate clerk on the Republican ticket, 1908.

John M. Bowman is one of the most popular men in his county. He is always ready to accommodate. He is conservative, level headed and on the square with every body.

While at the Las Vegas Republican convention he was nominated as a candidate for State Senator to represent the Eighteenth District, Otero and Lincoln counties.

This honor has been rightly placed. Bowman is a square honorable man in all things—politics as well as business. He will not stoop to cliques nor countenances gangs. They don't make men more honorable than John M. Bowman and if elected to the high office of State Senator he will do the office credit.
