Hotel Manager Dies at 89

Active to the very end of a long life as owner and manager of the landmark Hotel Val Verde, Margaret McCall Paxton died 12 days after her 89th birthday in Socorro General Hospital early Saturday morning, May 3rd. Her death marked the end of 45 years of hotel management and supervisor some 15 years of the dining room whose cuisine attracted people from near and far.

In a sense, the story of the historic hotel is the story of Mrs. Paxton. It began back in Kansas. Before her marriage to Walter T. Paxton, Margaret McCall grew up in LeCompton on a typical Kansas farm, one of 13 children. She rode horseback to the country school house. In 1915 she and her future husband began their separate careers at Kansas City Union Station where the famous Harvey brothers had opened a dining room.

The famous "Harvey Girls" became a legend — handpicked for their dignity of character and graciousness as well as beauty (too frequently an occupational hazard for their sponsors since they were wooed into marriage almost immediately by men of promise who with their help became leaders in many railroad cities of the west).

Margaret McCall was superintendent of service of the Harvey House dining room and through the hotel business met her future husband who at their marriage in April, 1917, was superintendent of a hotel company controlling a chain of 13 hotels in the Kansas, Oklahoma, and Arkansas district.

Her sister, too, had married a hotel man, and in 1919 the D. E. Snyders were leasing the newly built Val Verde Hotel here in Socorro. The hotel had been built as a community project, started by T. C. Brown. But Mr. Snyder's health was failing and the Paxtons were summoned to Socorro for assistance, staying until his death in 1922. They then returned to Kansas but again were called back to Socorro due to Mrs. Snyder's ill health which forced her to move to California in 1929.

The Paxtons, as managers of the Val Verde, were precipitated into an extreme emergency within days after their arrival as the Rio Grande flooded its banks and wiped out the flourishing railroad town of San Marcial. In the wake of Red Cross workers and others, including the governor and his staff, the hotel became a central point for the relief workers.

On her 80th birthday, Mrs. Paxton recalled those days to this reporter when the dining room, which had been closed, was precipitously re-opened and all that she could muster to feed the influx of hotel guests were six eggs, a bushel of peaches, some prunes, a little bacon, and the frozen meat the Paxtons had brought from Kansas City.

But from that time on the Val Verde dining room's reputation grew. True, many of those who stopped off in Socorro had to trudge a dusty trail from the depot to the hotel unless transported by Cook's livery — but once there, the old-world atmosphere mesmerized the newly arrived to New Mexico into believing they were not in the middle of nowhere as they dined in the paneled dining room staffed by chefs, second cooks, pantry girl and dish washers, and served by waitresses impeccable in starched white uniforms such continental delicacies as shrimp and crabmeat cocktail, strawberries out of season brought in by the Santa Fe, steaks, accompanied in the spring by wild New Mexico asparagus which Easterners particularly fancied.

The Paxtons were forced during the second World War to close the dining room where many a governor had dined, where celebrities like Will Rogers and Conrad Hilton stopped, but the dining room remained for years the setting for many a prominent wedding reception or bridge party.

The hotel was also the center of fashion for the ladies of Socorro. Gowns were displayed and modeled. The first permanent, the Krokono, was demonstrated. All the social matrons in Socorro to gathered see the miracle of turning straight hair into "permanent waves."

After the death of her husband in 1955, Mrs. Paxton continued as owner and manager, supervising the bed linens and other services and many a time dispensing charity to impoverished travelers in transit across the state.

She always was attentive to the landscaping, once the only green spot in all Socorro other than the plaza park and which had to be boarded up nightly to keep stray sheep out of the patio. The Val Verde kept its "green" image throughout the years due to the efforts of its managers, and it has been not at all uncommon even in recent weeks to see her plucking weeds and supervising a yard man.

In addition to her hotel duties, Mrs.

Paxton participated actively in the life of the community. She was a 50-year and life member of the Magdalen Chapter No. 9, Order of Eastern Star, a charter member of both the Socorro Garden Club and Senior Citizens Club, and a member of Chapter M, P.E.O. Sisterhood.

Services were conducted for her at the First United Presbyterian Church of which she was a member Monday, with the Rev. John D. Browne officiating, and burial in the Socorro Masonic Cemetery, Steadman Funeral Home in charge of arrangements.

Serving as pallbearers were Bob Baldwin, Ben Zimmerly, Joe Salazar, Lawrence Torres, William Griffith, and Robert D. Klipsch.

Survivors include her daughter and son-in-law, Peggy and Frank Dalley; two grandchildren, Walter Thomas Dailey of Salt Lake City and Mrs. Bobby Dean Haddock of Alamogordo and their children, Paul and Pamela Margaret (named after her great grandmother and grandmother); two sisters, Gretchen Hunley of Cheyenne, Wyo., and Kathryn Robson of Lawrence, Kans.; two brothers, Darryl McCall of Charlotte, N.C. and Guinn McCall of Wichita, Kansas.

With the death of Mrs. Paxton the story of the Val Verde Hotel may end, but if it has a future destiny, it will be due to the continuing loving care it received for a half a century under the supervision of Margaret Paxton who gave it a nostalgic character of its own throughout the decades.

MOTHER'S DAY recalls many a tradition — the wearing of a red carnation or a white one in memory — and the famous portrait by an American artist, James Abbott McNeill Whistler, frequently associated with the day, although the portrait during Whistler's lifetime never gained any measure of fame. Defensor Chieftain's "Whistler's Mother" this year is Alta Hicks. We started the series four years ago, first with Arvilla Knight posing as Whistler had his mother pose in the original picture. Mary Lue Huggins and Frances Shaw were featured in 1973 and 1974 respectively. Mrs. Hicks can claim a very "motherly" role in that she mothered three children, Emory of Yardley, Pa., Orah of Castile, N.Y., and Leslie (now deceased) of Socorro; plus 10 grandchildren and 16 great grandchildren, five of them here in Socorro.

JHS Declamation Winners

Yvette Cases was the 1975 winning contestant in the Socorro Junior High School annual Declamation Contest. Named in second place was Millie Miller, with Kate Kelly and Becky Marquez receiving honorable mention from the judges.

The semi-finals, held on April 22nd had a field of 40 contestants. From this group were ten selections chosen to compete in the finals on April 24th.

Judges for the semi-finals were Kathy Gonzales, Leo Lujan, Patty Cuellar, and Faye Holloway; and for the finals, Frances Sedillo, Ruth Gross, Jessie Headen, and George Griego. Mrs. L. C. Reed was JHS director of the competition.

SHS Band-Chorus Spanish Music Concert Thursday

The Socorro High School Band and Chorus will perform in concert Thursday evening May 8 at 7:30 in the Socorro High School Gym.

This concert, which will feature both traditional and contemporary Hispanic and Mexican music, was made possible by a grant from the Cultural Awareness Center of the University of New Mexico.

Besides group and individual performances from members of the chorus and band, several guest performers have been scheduled. They include Ernest Sanchez of Pojoaque, Jim Whitlow of the University of New Mexico, and several well-known local singers and musicians. The public is invited to attend this concert which is free of charge.

Math-English Courses for College Bound

High school seniors planning to enter college next fall but who lack proficiency in English and mathematics have a chance to correct these deficiencies this summer.

New Mexico Institute of Mining & Technology in Socorro will sponsor an eight week course in Developmental Skills with special classes for college credit in English and mathematics.

Simon J. Gormley, director of admissions and financial aid at N.M. Tech, said the program will be offered June 16 thru August 8. The program will consist of a math and an English course to be taken for college credit.

Students accepted to the program will receive a $100 stipend to help cover their costs.

Additional information can be obtained from high school counselors or from the New Mexico Tech

Kidnapper of Salome Sentenced 50 Years

Gary Lee Kraut, also known as Kenneth Ray Wilkenson, appeared May 2nd before Judge Howard C. Bratton, U. S. District Court, Albuquerque, and was sentenced to a term of fifty years for kidnaping.

According to Special Agent in Charge William A. Meincke, Albuquerque Office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, Kraut, age 31, of Alton, Illinois, was arrested in Pasco, Florida, December 9, 1974, after a kidnaping and robbery spree which extended from Illinois through New Mexico and Texas during December of 1974. At the time of Kraut's arrest by the Pasco County Sheriff's Office, Kraut's associate, Donatto Alredo Lyonnais, was killed in a shoot-out with the Sheriff's Office.

Kraut was charged in a Federal indictment with the kidnaping of Arlene

L. Cape, Alamogordo, New Mexico, December 17, 1974, wherein Cape was transported to El Paso, Texas, and left bound in the Rowday Inn. Prior to the kidnaping of Cape, Kraut was identified as the individual who kidnaped, at gunpoint, George Salome, Socorro, New Mexico on December 17, 1974, transporting Salome to Alamogordo, New Mexico, where he was released unharmed in the men's rest room of Cape's service station.

Kraut previously entered a plea of innocent to the kidnaping charge on April 3, 1975 before U. S. Magistrate Robert W. McCoy, who set a trial date of May 5, 1975, for Kraut. In the meantime Kraut appeared before U. S. District Court Judge Bratton, entering a guilty plea for which he was sentenced to 50 years.

Local Man Charged With Attempted Rape

A man was bound over to district court following a preliminary hearing recently. He was charged with an attempted felony, using a knife in commission of the alleged intended crime against a young female resident on Terry Street.

Charged with an attempted felony, to wit, rape, is Tomas Armijo. He was represented in the court proceedings by the public defender, Lance Bailey.

According to the account of the complaining witness, she was alone in her home on Terry Street after school hours on March 13th. She heard a knock at the back door, and as she was expecting a friend whom she had called for assistance with a flat tire on her car, parked in the back driveway, she opened the back door. Standing next to the door, with the screen behind him, the defendant, she testified, tried to force his way inside. In his hand was a knife, she told the court.

She recognized him, she said, due to two prior incidents in which he had verbally made advances toward her. She said that she told him she was engaged and did not date and was busy. She also testified that he seemed drunk. He continued to force his way into the kitchen but she related that she side-stepped him by backing toward the open door. She saw an opportunity to grab the knife which he was "jabbing toward me" and threw it out the back door. "You better not go to the police," she testified he told her as he twisted her arm.

She then said she was able to pull away from him and ran out screaming, but nobody was around. He came after her she said, but she distracted him by pointing to his knife. He went to get it and she said she ran into the house and locked the door. She called her friends for help who arrived minutes later. In the meantime, the defendant, she said, began pounding on the back door.

Other witnesses for the state were City Police officers, Dan Hughes and Sgt. Billy Romero who were called to Terry Street by Steve McLin, who, with his wife, had been telephoned by the complaining witness. The officers mistook the Terry address as they noticed two people in front of a residence which turned out to be that of the defendant.

Outside were his mother and sister who reportedly told Sgt. Romero that Armijo was inside "drunk" and had a knife. He testified that he went in and found the defendant acting in a "disorderly manner" and when he asked for the knife, the defendant said "I don't have a knife." He then went back outside as the defendant's brother, Gilbert Armijo, drove up. The brother went inside and obtained the knife from the defendant who opened a drawer and turned it over voluntarily. The brother then gave the knife to the police officers. They then reported at the residence of the complaining witness who, Sgt. Romero testified, was "hysterical."

Both Mr. and Mrs. McLin were witnesses. Mr. McLin said he had great difficulty eliciting from the complaining witness what had happened but had called the police. His wife, sitting in the car, saw the defendant at close range, she said in testimony, and saw the knife in his hand as he came from the back yard. She said she had locked the car door. The man made several jabs with the knife toward a passing dog and then went on down the street and entered a residence. She then saw people in front of the house and a police car drive up.

The public defender asked that the case be dismissed since he was of the opinion that the state had presented no evidence of attempted rape. Ass't. Dist. Attorney Eldon Douglas countered that there was sufficient evidence of an attempted felony, with witnesses placing him at the scene and with the recovery of the knife "minutes later."

Magistrate Judge Paul Marshall agreed and bound him over to district court. He also made inquiries as to why the defendant had not been sent to the State Hospital for evaluation which had been "the purpose to waive the preliminary hearing." The case had been remanded back to the magistrate court for the hearing. Ass't. Dist. Attorney Douglas responded that it had been his understanding that the defendant was going "to petition in district court to go to Las Vegas."

Current status is that the state and the public defender are seeking forensic treatment for Armijo. Since he is not bondable, authorities, it is reported, have not sent him up for evaluation until he is committed under maximum security conditions at the state hospital. A hearing was scheduled this week in district court but was continued due to the district judge having to conduct court in Los Lunas. The district court hearing is still pending for Armijo.

You Are What You Eat

by Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON — There is good news for newspaper readers. Recent reports indicate that it may not be long before newsprint can be turned into food. A process now being developed involves extracting the glucose from the cellulose content of newsprint, then feeding the glucose to a batch of edible yeasts, molds or bacteria inside a fermenter. The protein left over would be dried into a powder and used as a nutrient supplement.

Dr. Barry Coombe of Australia has been feeding pellets made from newsprint to sheep, and he says they have been thriving on it.

This will, of course, present a new problem for the printed media. Not only will news reporters and columnists have to worry about how their words will affect the reading public; they also will have to remember that people are going to eat them.

One question is: What news will be more digestible than others? Should you start the morning with a light breakfast of comics or a heavy breakfast of editorials? What wine do you serve with Jack Anderson's column, and would it be a mistake to eat the text of a Henry Kissinger press briefing before going to bed?

Dr. Coombe did not concern himself with the content of the newsprint he fed his sheep, but I believe a lot more research has to be done before we permit human beings to eat their daily newspapers.

We do know that most people get indigestion when pursuing their front pages. But we're not sure how their gastric juices would react if they started chewing on them.

Another question which would be raised is, if publishers discovered that there was money to be made from food in their paper, would they insist on their editors sugar-coating the news?

In a few years we could expect a series of cookbooks on how to prepare meals with your daily paper.

The recipes might go something like this:

"Chop up your newspaper until it is finely ground. Add three cups of water and mix into a paste. Then take a Dear Abby or Ann Landers Column and separate the questions from the answers. Beat up the answers and let them stand. Throw the questions away."

"Take a William Buckley column and let it simmer for 15 minutes. Then add a dash of a President Ford speech (not much or your dish will be too bland), a pound of denials by the CIA and season with a hot Herblock cartoon."

"Pour this into a pan, first greasing it with a full-page advertisement from one of the oil companies. Then add three strips of Peanuts and a Lou Harris poll."

"Stir the dish for 20 minutes. When it becomes a thick sauce, pour it over a leg of lamb which was fattened up by being put on a steady diet of pellets made from pictures of Jacqueline Onassis. The recipe should serve a family of four, but if you don't have enough sauce you can throw in Evans and Novak for gravy. The important thing is to serve before it gets too sticky."

The reason I have left myself out of the recipe is I am constantly hearing from readers who say that every time they read my column they throw up. If reading a car do this, we have to assume eating it could be very hazardous to your health.

City Budget Approved by Council

by Virginia Johnson
A 1975-76 city budget with general and utility fund expenditures totaling just over $1,057,000 was approved by Socorro councilmen April 29 and is scheduled for state Dept. of Finance and Administration review on June 12 at 8:30 A.M. in city hall.

Mayor Eugene L. Coulson termed the document "conservative". It projects city income in most instances at about the same level as this year's and occasionally reflects an anticipated decrease.

A significant exception is the gas department sales revenue figure which city budget makers are estimating to rise ten percent for a total of $438,000 in the coming fiscal year. Revenue from hook-up charges is down from $14,282 to $8,000, as new connections are expected to be limited by one means or another.

The city anticipates an increase in rates from El Paso Natural Gas during the next 12 months which will be passed along to its customers.

Coulson pointed out that "65 per cent of the budget is salaries." He noted that the city would have to cut back on its number of employees, but "might have to" depending on the results of periodic budget reviews during the year.

One area in which councilmen have indicated they will consider adding an employe after July 1 is the public library. Librarian Dorothy Holmes told the council Wednesday that the new library addition, soon to be completed, will provide 5000 square feet of space with the resultant need for additional staff. Mrs. Holmes has requested one more person.

She pointed out that all present staff members have passed state examinations and are certified librarians.

Councilman Raymond Gallegos, who presented the completed budget to the council, stressed several items. For example, this year revenue sharing money has already been committed for police salaries and will not be available for "extra things."

The budget includes a six per cent raise for all city employes effective January 1, 1976.

It includes no further money for minipark development or for development expenses at Cook Springs.

Personnel added for the coming year include two new policemen and an additional fire department employe.

Social security will not be added as a fringe benefit in 1975-76.

Gallegos said that city department heads have been cooperative in cutting their requests. The council, in turn, declared it will insist that departments stick close to their budgets.

Planned general fund expenditures for next year are as follows:

Executive — $91,996; financial administration — $21,150; fire and ambulance — $83,391 (plus $17,000 from the state fire fund); police — $40,686 (plus $64,000 in revenue sharing money); streets — $243,600 including $150,000 in recently sold gasoline revenue bonds to be used for street repairs; parks and recreation — $69,828 including the $8500 recreation fund; maintenance — $25,637; library — $20,507; and airport — $17,779 (including $11,827 for completion of Phase II project runway lighting).

In the utility accounts: gas department — $405,728; and water department — $612,677, including $451,805 of capital outlay money for such projects as the planned sewage disposal plant.

Now considered outside the general fund is the solid waste disposal (sanitation) department with a budget of $103,000. This figure provides for an as yet unapproved increase in garbage collection rates to be earmarked for purchase of a new collection truck. Councilmen will consider the $18,000 item later.

In a general discussion of budgetary pluses and minuses Gallegos noted that the "ambulance is expensive. Maybe the city should take another look at it."

Coulson added, "Maybe quit it." Some 78 per cent of the calls are in the county, according to the mayor.

Socorro's fire department is receiving $4500 more from state fire funds this year because it has permanently stationed its oldest fire truck at the municipal airport.

The city recreation budget this year will provide for a full-time assistant director, rather than a number of sports heads. The new position should, said Coulson, eliminate overtime expenses at the city pool. City spokesmen reported during the session that Socorro's swimming pool broke even last year with revenue covering salaries, maintenance, and operating costs. "Most cities operate their pools in the red," noted recreation director Vernon Cox.

The 1975-76 budget estimates a cash balance at the close of the fiscal year of $119,216. Gallegos indicated he is much in hopes the estimate will hold up, saying, "It is so important to have a cash balance for emergencies."

Dear Mrs. Klipsch:

I would like to make it known to the City of Socorro and Mayor Coulson the extreme necessity for improving the road on Chapparel Dr.

The other day a dog was hit and killed approximately four feet off of the road in order to keep from hitting the large holes.

There has been several near accidents. Not only to the dogs but children as well.

I feel when there is a possibility of a person's life being endangered, due to a poor road condition, that some effort should be made to repair this road.

The day may come when someone is killed, if not from walking on the side of the road, from a collision of two cars head on, which has nearly happened as well, in trying to avoid these holes.

If this happens, who will be responsible?

Also who will be responsible for damages done to cars from hitting these holes?

We have a choice — either drive on the road and damage our cars or off the road and endanger the life of animals and humans.

A Resident of Chapparel Dr.

Head Start Marks 10th Anniv.

On May 14, the Socorro Head Start Center will join thousands of Head Start programs across the country in celebrating Head Start's tenth anniversary, as part of National Head Start Day.

This event will honor the nationwide Head Start program for pre-school children from low-income families. Since its establishment in 1965, Head Start has provided comprehensive health, educational and social services to more than five million children and their families.

To celebrate National Head Start Day locally, the Socorro Head Start Center will hold an open house on May 14 from 10:00 A.M. to 8:00 P.M. for community residents and will also set up in the municipal center an exhibit of paintings done by its Head Start enrollees. Exhibits will be shown at the following places: Bank of Socorro, First State Bank, Socorro Public Library, Tech Library and Super Mart.

Mr. Charles R. Thomas, Director of the Center, said that the establishment of a Head Start program here in 1971 has helped improve services for children and families in the community. "When our program started, for example, we had no access to mental health services for the children. We contacted the University of New Mexico and its School of Social Work offered to provide counseling to Health Start families without charge."

Project Head Start, launched by the U.S. Office of Economic Opportunity in 1965, is now administered by the Office of Child Development in the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

Reviewing the program's accomplishments, National Head Start Director James L. Robinson recently said, "Head Start continues to be an innovative and experimental program. During the past decade, it has had a dramatic impact on services for children throughout the country — and on the entire child development field. Head Start has pioneered such new concepts as parent involvement in planning educational programs, and the employment of nonprofessional classroom aides. It continues to be the largest health care program for preschool children in the Nation."

Socorro-Catron Programs For Head Start

Socorro and Reserve Head Start personnel are in the Child Development Associate Program, created to identify a new kind of professional in child care field. CDA's are trained child care workers whose credentials are based on their skills in working with young children, and taking academic credits through extension courses through the University of New Mexico.

The Office of Child Development has funded 13 child development projects and some 5,000 Head Start classroom staff are now working toward their CDA credentials. Socorro and Reserve Head Start staff are among the 5,000 who are enrolled in the program. Of the 13 child development projects UNM is one. Mr. Charles R. Thomas, Area Director for Socorro-Reserve Head Start is Project Director under UNM. Under the CDA Academic part, project director has employed Dolores Martinez, Socorro with MA Bilingual Education and Judy Giron, Reserve, with BA Education.

Tax Delinquent Properties To Be Checked

State Property Appraisal authorities are cracking down on all counties due to a new statute which now makes all properties subject to being deeded over to the state if taxes are not paid within a six months period. And to assist county treasurers to up-date all properties on the roll and then deed them over to the state, the Property Appraisal Department is sending crews out to do the job. Counties, habitually short of monies for county services, should benefit financially from the new legislative mandate.

Mrs. Lelia Miller, County Treasurer, has announced that a crew from the State Property Appraisal Department is coming June 1st to begin checking records of all properties in Socorro County and to identify all those found to be tax delinquent.

Formerly, Mrs. Miller said, property owners were not considered delinquent until a ten-year period had expired. County treasurers were then by law ordered to deed these properties over to the state. But the law state-wide was laxly enforced. In Socorro County there have been only two auctions of county properties declared tax-delinquent since 1957, the auction held last week and one held in 1974.

Testing Series on Range Begins

Additional tests, including the detonation of two 100-ton and one 500-ton TNT equivalent, are scheduled later this year and next year. The final tests will take place at SURF Site located approximately 27 miles south of Socorro.

The Dice Throw test program is designed to meet three primary test objectives, which include providing a simulated nuclear blast and shock environment for target response experiments required by the military services and other Defense Department agencies.

The tests will also provide cratering and ground shock information and will confirm predictions and theoretical calculations of cratering, ground shock and impact on military structures, equipment and weapon systems.

The tests will show how well newly developed and prototype military equipment, structures withstand blast and shock.

Five tons of TNT were detonated in the northern portion of White Sands Missile Range in the second Dice Throw High-Explosive Field Test Program. This test was the second of three scheduled for this spring. The final five-ton test is tentatively set for May 14 at Queen-15 Site approximately 30 miles from Tularosa.

The Dice Throw High-Explosive Test program simulates the blast effects of nuclear weapons on a large number of experimental items. Three foreign countries and 35 government agencies and government-sponsored companies, including the U.S. Army, Navy and Air Force, are involved in the tests.

Visit Extension Manpower And Employment Office

Socorro High School students from Mrs. Sharon Cappa's classes visited the Extension Manpower & Employment Office on April 29 to become more aware and informed of the services which they can receive when looking for employment after graduating from High School or college.

The Extension Manpower Agent Danny Trujillo explained to the students that the operation of the office is a Cooperative Project between the Cooperative Extension Service of New Mexico State University and the New Mexico State Employment Security Commission. The students were told that the objective of this program is to deliver employment to the rural areas such as Socorro.

Through the Extension Manpower & Employment Office the students were told that an unemployed person can receive up-to-date local and area information on employment opportunities; secure current information on Manpower programs and services which he may need to improve his or her employability; if the unemployed individual needs additional help in solving his job-related problems, the Extension Manpower Agent provides counseling which is free.

The students were told by Mr. Trujillo that when applying for a job they must present themselves properly and know how to act, and what to say during an interview.

The students were shown the job banks, a State Wide System. Under this system information is furnished to applicants on job openings in any area in the State of New Mexico on a daily basis. On the other hand, employers vacant positions can be exposed to applicants all over the State.

Mr. Trujillo explained to the students that finding a summer job will be tougher than ever this year for high school and college students seeking extra money from vacation employment.

Government and private analysts predict more than five million persons between the ages of 14 and 21 will be looking for work this summer. No one knows how many jobs will be available.

Estimates of the situation range from "not particularly good" to "real grim".

High unemployment means adult workers will be competing with youngsters for many jobs; so will retired people who need extra income.

Students were told by Mr. Trujillo that if they had a job they better work hard and hold on to it for reasons that other students, adults and retired people will be looking for jobs this summer.

Mr. Trujillo states that all services of the Extension Manpower office are free and that no fees are charged for services rendered to either the Employer or any person needing to use the services of the office.

Arrangements to have the students visit the Extension Manpower Office were made by the Socorro High School Counselor, Robert Martinez.

Hitchhiker 'Abandoned'

Charles Shaffer and Ellen Bolles Shaffer, of Olmstead Falls, Ohio, were returned to Socorro, Friday, from the Lincoln County sheriff's office to face charges of larceny of over $100.

The couple was arrested at a roadblock out of Carrizozo Thursday afternoon by Deputy Sheriff Dennis Cleaver and Glen Bradley after Socorro County officer said a complaint had been called into them at Socorro by a young woman, Lisa Ellen Forman.

Ms. Forman told officers that the Shaffer couple had given her a ride and had abandoned her in San Antonio, N.M.. They had kept her back pack and sleeping bag in their car as they sped toward Carrizozo, Ms. Forman said.

The Shaffers admitted to officers here that they had taken the back pack and sleeping bag.

Ms. Forman told officers $30 was in a pocket of the back pack, but no such sum was found when the bag was searched.

Ms. Forman is from South Fork, Colo. The Shaffers spent Thursday night in the Lincoln County Jail.

Grow Your Own And Save a Lot This Summer

Willingness to postpone consumption now for tomorrow's national gains is deeply noted in most Americans. When war or other national crisis threatens our way of life, we as a people have time and again shown ourselves capable of uniting towards a common goal.

"The victory garden," a family plot of land devoted to home-grown vegetables became a symbol of patriotism during World War II. Today, as Americans fight another war—this one against inflation—"returning to the earth" is enjoying popularity.

The early days of Spring are the time for planning and planting your own "inflation garden." It makes sense. You save money; enjoy fresher and tastier vegetables; and receive regular, moderate amounts of fresh air and exercise. Gardening provides an inexpensive means of recreation for the whole family.

You needn't start big. Experts tell us even a small 10' by 25' plot can produce a lot, depending upon your own ambition. You probably will need professional advice on what crops grow best in your local climate and soil. The right tools are also essential, and if you plan to can part of your crop, study proper procedures beforehand.

By following these simple steps, you and your family can reap the rewards of good eating throughout summer and into next winter—aiding our economy besides!

Free Enterprise Not 'Free' Vice President Tells NAM

Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller recently told the National Association of Manufacturers Washington Spring Conference that it is time for a comprehensive review and overhaul of government regulatory authority "to release the full dynamism and productivity of American industry while providing adequate protection for our people and our environment."

He said the nation has drifted away from freedom of private initiative within a framework of government laws toward a society in which the complexity of the laws regulating the private economy requires delegation of authority to regulatory bodies and individual administrators whose power over economic decisions has increased geometrically.

"The serious result of this situation has been the inability of individuals and corporations to plan for the future with any certainty as to the rules of the game," the vice president emphasized in his address to more than 600 business leaders.

In his prepared remarks, Mr. Rockefeller thanked the NAM for its support of the National Commission on Productivity which he chairs and cited the commission's three areas of concern:

- The morale of workers and cooperation between labor and management.
- Capital and technology.

He noted that President Ford has sent a bill to Congress urging this study and called on NAM and other business associations to produce a concise, analytical summary of the impact on the morale of workers, capital and technology, and government regulation as they affect industry's flexibility and capacity to meet the changing needs of society.
