Since opening at Carlsbad, Sept. 23rd, 1935, total deposits have barely missed half-million and may reach that mark by January 1st.

TO all who extend a hand, we say, "Thank you." To all in the vicinity, we say, "Merry Christmas—Happy New Year!" 'TIS not in mere success; But we'll do more, Friends.

America's Bank of Carlsbad

Records for sales of both new and used cars in the first 10 days of December were broken by Chevrolet dealers in the United States, it was stated here today by Felix Doran, Jr., assistant general sales manager of Chevrolet Motor Co., in charge of the western half of the United States.

Sales of new units totaled 24,122, more than double the sales for the same period last year, and a new time record for the opening period of December. Used car sales in the same period exceeded 100,000, setting a new record for 10 days in December in the history of the company.

"With the industry's movement of new models moved up to early November, instead of January, the season of greatest used car bargains also has advanced because the big spurt that has taken place in new-car buying has placed many excellent used cars on sale," Mr. Doran said.

The company-backed advertising urges five advantages for used car purchasing now—having a dependable car for bad weather, saving the cost of reconditioning the present car for winter, getting early choice of models recently turned in, possessing safe tires for winter streets and enjoying the present low prices.

The total of 24,122 new units sold up to Dec. 10, inclusive, far surpassed the previous record, established in 1930, of 13,588 units.

The western half of the United States accounted for 12,086 units in the total sales for this period.

Several basket ball teams are planning a tournament at the Alamogordo pavilion February 15th, 1936. Ten teams are invited to take part.

Mr. Charles Smith came home this week from a trip to Yuma, Arizona and Visalia, California.

Mr. John Scharf of White Oaks who has been in the Johnson hospital the past two weeks is very much improved.

In the prize drawing contest at Ziegler Bros. store at 3 p. m. last Monday, the winner of the beautiful Shirley Temple doll was Jane Gallacher daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Gallacher, Mrs. Harry Edmiston won the clock.

Carol Hines has gone to Tucumcari where he has accepted a position as expert on the Conchos Dam project.

The Daughters of Rebekah will serve a fish supper to Odd-fellows and Rebekahs and their families January 7th preceding the Installation ceremonies.

Miss Tressie Davis teaches in the Home Ec. Department at the High school has gone to Republic Missouri for the Christmas vacation.

Attorney John E. Hall has recovered sufficiently from his recent illness to be at his office in the Lutz building.

The dance at the Country Club Christmas night was very well patronized. More than 300 dancers enjoyed the Club's hospitality and the glorious music by California Curley's orchestra.

Harold Hoffman acted as Santa Claus for the Boy Scouts, Christmas Eve.

Miss Maudie Warden has gone to Oakland, California to visit her brother.

'Xmas Trees

Santa Claus was more generous this year than for several. In addition to the usual church and school trees, the Carrizozo Country Club, Lodges, Boy scouts, and others sponsored trees and parties at which every child in town was remembered with presents.

We would not forget to mention Mrs. Garner's annual Christmas party to children under 14. This is an event to which the children of the town look forward with anticipation. It is not especially for needy ones, or for any certain class, but for everyone. This year 125 were present and gifts and candy were distributed to all.

President's Defense of AAA and Canadian Treaty—Italy Offered Peace Plan at Ethiopia's Expense—Naval Conference Seems Hopeless.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

© Western Newspaper Union

WHILE the United States Supreme court was hearing oral arguments in the Hoosac Mills case in which the constitutionality of the whole Agricultural Adjustment act was attacked and defended, President Roosevelt was in Chicago seeking to justify the entire New Deal farm program. He addressed the American Farm Bureau federation in the International Amphitheater at the stock yards and was heard and enthusiastically applauded by some 25,000 farmers and as many others as could get into the theater and adjoining wings supplied with loud speakers.

George N. Peek

The farm program, the President said, aimed to "stop the rule of tooth and claw that threw farmers into bankruptcy or turned them into serfs." As evidence that it is succeeding, he asserted that farm income "has increased nearly $3,000,000,000 in the past two and a half years."

Necessarily Mr. Roosevelt defended the new Canadian trade treaty because only two days before that pact had been bitterly attacked by his late trade adviser, George N. Peek.

"Just as I am confident," said the President, "that the great masses of city people are fair-minded, so I am sure that the great majority of American farmers will be fair in their judgment of the new treaty."

"If the calamity howlers should happen to be right, you have every assurance that Canada and the United States will join in correcting inequalities, but I do not believe for a single moment that the calamity howlers are right."

"We export more agricultural products to Canada than we have imported from her."

"We shall continue to do so, for the very simple reason that the United States, with its larger area of agricultural land, its more varied climate and its vastly greater population, produces far more of such agricultural products, such as wheat, corn, soybeans, and other grains, than Canada."

Then arose Admiral Osami Nagano, chief of the Japanese delegation, and told the conference that Japan demanded parity with Great Britain and the United States instead of the existing 5-5-3 ratio and requested a "just and fair agreement on disarmament."

After several days of discussion and debate, the Japanese demand for parity was flatly rejected by the delegates of the four other nations.

The pessimistic feeling that prevailed was attributed to the Japanese demand for parity, the rivalry in the Mediterranean between France and Italy, the war in Ethiopia and its sanctions developments and recent occurrences in north China. Any one of which might wreck the conference.

BEFORE the American Farm Bureau federation closed its convention in Chicago, it adopted a resolution endorsing reciprocal trade treaties. To avoid dissension, the resolution did not mention specifically the recent trade agreement between Canada and the United States, which is the duty on many farm products coming in over the northern border.

Another of the 17 resolutions adopted at the meeting concerned "federal fiscal policies." Indicating their unswerving over the mounting federal deficit, the farmers recommended that the fiscal policies of the government be modified, and that "its revenues shall be increased, and that its expenditures shall be decreased, to the end that within the next few years a balance shall be attained."

The federation also approved a resolution pledging itself to defend the Agricultural Adjustment administration act. The meeting offered no serious criticism of the act, but asked that its administration be simplified.

The delegates, representing a paid up membership of 800,000 farmers in 37 states, re-elected Edward A. O'Neal of Alabama as president of the federation for a term of two years. Charles D. Hearst was re-elected vice president and all 15 members of the board of directors were reappointed.

ITALY is being punished for starting the war against Ethiopia, and will be well paid for stopping it. That is a nutshell is the status at this writing. Great Britain and France reached an agreement as to the offer to be made to Mussolini before the imposition of an oil embargo, set for December 12. This plan for peace, drawn up by British Foreign Secretary Sir Samuel Hoare and Premier Laval, was based on the proposal that Italy should retain part of the territory already conquered in Ethiopia, chiefly in northwestern Tigre province, including Adowa but not the sacred city of Aksum, and that the Italian Somaliland border should be Italian. In return, Ethiopia would be given a separate status in British or in French territories. Thus poor Ethiopia, already declared by the League of Nations to be a victim of Italian rapacity, would be still further victimized with the consent of the two great powers that dominate the league. Presumably, if Emperor Haile Selassie refuses the terms and decides to continue his fight for the territorial inviolability guaranteed by the league covenant, he will be abandoned to his fate.

Dispatches from Dessay, Ethiopia, said the emperor rejected the Franco-British plan, asserting:

"The Ethiopian government cites its previous declarations, notably that of October 8, and show that Ethiopia never wished and does not wish war. But today we are not to defend our soil, which Italy has violated.

"Ethiopia agreed at the time of the Paris conference and the meeting of the League of Nations committee of five to all concessions comparable to its dignity, to avoid Italian aggression, but that aggression has been committed. We cannot submit to force which we never provoked, because that would be rewarding violence."

Since Mussolini showed a disposition to consider the proposals, the oil embargo was postponed to permit negotiations. If he rejects the plan the embargo would go into effect later and supposedly the war in Africa would continue at least until the rainy season next spring.

PROBABLY with slight hope of accomplishing anything worth while, representatives of the United States, Great Britain, France and Japan met in London and opened the international naval conference. Italy also was represented, but only as an observer and listener. Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin welcomed the delegates in a smooth address asking the chief sea powers to lessen some of their demands "to avert the calamity of unrestricted naval competition."

Then arose Admiral Osami Nagano, chief of the Japanese delegation, and told the conference that Japan demanded parity with Great Britain and the United States instead of the existing 5-5-3 ratio and requested a "just and fair agreement on disarmament."

JOHN J. LEWIS, president of the United Mine Workers and the "rebel" committee on industry of the American Federation of Labor, invited President William H. Taft to resign as chairman of the committee. In a letter to Lewis, Green declared never had associated himself with a minority seeking to split the U. M. W. and never would do so. He rebuked the insurgents by saying he himself, "in a spirit of good fellowship took it on the chin" when he had found himself outvoted by the A. F. of L. convention.

ADMINISTRATION officials state that President Roosevelt will ask the new congress for a $100,000,000 appropriation as the "initial" program going into effect January 1. The fund is to be distributed among the states for the needy old aged and blind, for pensions, for maternal and child welfare, and to aid the blind. State commissioners and public welfare directors were summoned to Washington by the social security board to discuss formulation of regulations and procedure.

POLITICIANS, especially Republicans, were greatly interested in a message in Washington between former Vice President Charles Curtis and Senator Charles McNary. Curtis insisted to the press that he is still advocating the nomination of Gov. Alf Landon of Kansas for the Presidency, but the Idaho senator is himself a leading possibility for that honor. Curtis had recently had a conference with Landon in Topeka, but he said there was no connection between that and his call on Borah.

The ex-Vice President said of the nomination:

"I have no second choice, but a lot depends on what happens at the convention. I have the highest regard for the senator. I'm for Landon, who is well equipped to run, after giving us an economic administration in Kansas—something we need here in Washington more now than ever before."

CARLOS MENDIETA resigned as president of Cuba because of a fierce quarrel in the government over procedure for the election of a constitutional president. Mendieta had held the office for two years. Secretary of State Bancroft took over the office and reappointed all members of the cabinet, and preparations for the election went ahead.

CONTINUOUS rioting in Cairo, directed against British control of Egypt, broke out on Monday. The rioting was directed against the British military protectorate.

King Fuad, Nessim Pasha announced that he would quit, but yielded then to avoid disorders similar to those of 1919.

Therefore, with the consent of Great Britain, King Fuad signed a royal decree restoring constitutional government, and the cabinet members withdrew their resignations. The constitution thus restored provides for a senate and chamber of deputies and takes control of Egypt's internal affairs completely out of British hands. It does not, however, affect Britain's control of Egyptian foreign affairs, nor the British military protectorate.

NORTH CHINA autonomists, supported by the Japanese army, evidently are too much for the Nanking government, of which Chiang Kai-shek has now become the premier. The provinces of Hopel and Chahar, with a population of 30,000,000 or more, have been granted virtual self-rule under a political council. The central government made only three stipulations—that Nanking would continue to control the new state's foreign affairs, financial, military and judicial matters; that all appointments would be made by Nanking, and that there would be no actual independence for the area.

No machinery was provided to prevent the new council from doing exactly as it pleased under Japanese protection and guidance.

BRUNO HAUTMANN, convicted of kidnaping and murdering the Lindbergh baby, lost almost his last chance of escaping the electric chair when the Supreme court refused to review his case. The decision was made through the single word "Denied."

CONSUMERS who buy potatoes in regular retail establishments are not liable to a fine as high as $1,000 if the spuds are grown and marketed in violation of the potato control law. Only the first purchaser of unimpaired potatoes is liable. This is the ruling of the AAA, and the act may be amended later to include the consumer.

PORT FIND
A man known as the Find. A man known as the Find. A man known as the Find.

Being their itineraries on this map, any people tried to reach the mine, but with no success. Then a "location notice" written peculiarly and apparently designed to give clues only to those who knew which were real and which false directions, was unearthed from beneath a location monument where the copper camp of "Greenwater" stands. The notice read as follows:

"Notice is hereby given that we, the men that wrote this notice, is over the age of twenty-one and are citizens of the United States, Cuba, and the Philippines; we do this day locate one gold mine. Known as the Bryofleg, and more particularly described as follows:

"Commencing at this big monument of stone on a cold rainy night and running 35 hours with Indians after him, come to a big canyon that leads up to the north with two big rocks on one side of the mouth of the canyon, the one on the right round and smooth, and the one on the left rough and rugged. These rocks stand 20 feet high. Follow up this canyon about five hours on horse or one and one-half hours on burro and you will come to the fork of the canyon. Take the left hand and ride hard for two hours and you will come to an old stone corral. Go to the right of this corral and you will come to a small gulch leading up to the right. Go up this about one-fourth of a mile you will come to a small water hole. Sometimes it is a dry hole. If it is a water hole when you get there, water your animals, fill your canteen and then go on until the water forks again. Then take the right hand one until it forks, then lead up the 200 feet just a little ways and you will find the mine. The canyon is located at the mouth of the above canyon. An application to the undersigned, located this first day of January, 1902.

"Locator,"
"J. W. Trotter."

"P. S.—Don't look for this mine in the summer time, as it is dangerous. Doc."

That the monument where the notice was found formed the starting place, is apparent. But so far no one has managed to run as it is chased by Indians until he finds the canyon with the two big rocks. Plenty of men have tried it, though.

SWIFT SILVER MINE

THERE seem to be three distinct lures in America during which mining was most important. The first was during the Spanish occupation, the second after the Civil war, and the last the present time. But the Swift silver mine belongs to none of them; it produced its silver shortly before the Revolution.

Swift was the captain of a sailing vessel of those times. He met a man who had been adopted into an Indian tribe, and this man revealed that the Indians had discovered a fabulously rich deposit of silver in Kentucky.

The mine was in a cave, well hidden from the casual searcher. It was all that had been promised, and Swift set to work mining and smelting the ore, running it into molds and stamping it with a dollar die which he had brought with him. When he had made as much of this money as they could carry, they concealed the place as the Indians had done and started eastward—none too soon, for the tribesmen discovered that their mine had been plundered and started on their trail. In pursuit, Swift saw that the white men were forced to bury a large portion of their spoils, escaping with enough, however, to be put into circulation. This money was known as "Swift's dollars."

They came the Revolutionary war, and Swift was busy with many matters. We next meet up with him when he came into Kentucky with Boone, and told the story of the Indian mine at Booneborough.

He said that he could find the place again, although his sight was failing, and a company was formed to go with him. He led them truly, and at last toward evening one day he recognized the location. The night was spent in a hidden shaft—but also during the day everyone was eager to uncover the mine. Swift's eyesight had left him, and he could not see even when he was as it poured its rays against the mine.

The martial law decrees has not been lifted, but no effort is made to enforce it.

Navajo Woman Is Boss of Wigwam

Her Word Final, Says Authority on Indian Customs.

White women insist on their rights and fight for independence. Navajo women are such complete bosses in the wigwam they don't have to worry about emancipation.

They head their clans, which are established on the mother's side, and holds the strings of the family purse because the Navajo wealth is in sheep, which are handed down from mother to daughter.

This is divulged by Wick Miller, who has given much time and study to Indian arts and customs.

"Navajo women don't argue about equal rights," he said. "And they don't insist on differential gestures; they know their word is final, their position is enviable."

One of the Navajo weavers, Eek-pah (Coming Again Woman), substantiated this idea. "I don't argue about my rights," she said. "I don't even think about them, and neither does any other Navajo woman."

Dressed in deer-skin moccasins and a gayly colored skirt topped by a dark velvet blouse, Eek-pah fingered her turquoise-set bracelets and talked quietly about the customs of her people.

"Our women keep busy," she explained, "with making blankets and rugs. We get the wool from our sheep, comb and card it, and then spin it on that." She pointed to a distaff, a remnant of the ancient type of spinning wheel.

She further explained that the wool is dyed after it is spun and then woven into rugs and blankets on a loom.

Eek-pah speaks English as well as a white woman for she went away to school. Returning to her tribe, she married a young brave who already had a wife and baby.

"I didn't want to marry him. I didn't love him," she confessed. "But my father-in-law wanted me to marry him, so I did. I don't longer live with him; I live with my own people."

Among the Navajos common separation without benefit of decree. Marriage, also, often takes place without a ceremony. The common procedure is for the Navajo bride and her lover to begin living under the same shelter, thereby acknowledging to the clan they are married. Occasionally, after the ceremony is born, they have a wedding.

"It is not strange," said Eek-pah, "for a Navajo man to have more than one wife at the same time. The woman never has any children."

The Live Stock Situation

Ways and means of cutting down the tremendous annual loss, estimated at forty million dollars, sustained by livestock industry through preventable bruises was discussed at the annual meeting in Chicago of the National Livestock Loss Prevention Board, of which the writer is a director. The membership is made up of representatives of the railroads, trucking companies, packers, growers and feeders of livestock, stock yard companies, livestock exchanges, insurance and finance companies.

The matter of loss through bruises is largely preventable through education, by pointing out wrong practices and showing better ways of handling livestock, particularly in loading, unloading and shipping. Funds for research and educational work are obtained by voluntary action. I consider this work of immense economic importance in saving this gigantic leak in our livestock business.

Many illustrations were cited where livestock of different species were loaded for transportation without regard to the probable injury or mortality due to inherent vices.

For example, a "tusk" stag loaded with calves, sheep and cattle, without proper separation, resulted in several calves and sheep being killed, the legs of the deer being crushed before the animal reached its destination.

The animal in the illustration does the damage. Here the owner was the owner's. He failed to take ordinary precaution to protect his property. Certainly if the owner himself does not show an interest in getting his livestock started right for a safe journey, how could we expect someone else without any financial interest to do the job? It would have been a simple matter to separate the different kinds of animals before starting the shipment to market.

Many other cases were discussed in the movement from ranch to market and through the markets to slaughtering plants. A heavy instrument used in loading or driving livestock will show up as a costly blemish in the meat, decreasing its selling value accordingly.

At central markets the closest possible supervision is had to prevent damage from any cause. It makes no difference whether the amount of the loss is sustained by the packer and escaped the grower the fact remains that it is an economic loss to the people, hence we are interested in preventative methods.

A committee from the National organization will hold an open meeting at the Los Angeles Union Stock Yards at Los Angeles on January 7th to see what we are doing out west to help save the industry from the terrific annual loss it is now sustaining, and to organize to salvage this great burden by proper organization for supervision to prevent it.

Transportation agencies, packers, livestock exchanges, growers and all others interested, are urged to attend this meeting and lend a helping hand. The Los Angeles meeting will be followed by similar meeting at other coast and interior livestock markets.

WHY

Name "Hoosier" Is Applied to People of Indiana

Some fourteen explanations of the origin of the term "Hoosier" have been offered, says the Indianapolis News. Meredith Nicholson, in his volume, "The Hoosiers," discussed most of them. The earliest record of the use of the word is thought to be John Finley's poem, "The Hoosier's Nest." It was argued that the word must have been well known at that time or Finley would not have used it with no trace of doubt that it would be understood. Such authorities as Governor Wright and the Indiana historian, O. H. Smith, were convinced that Hoosier is a corruption of the pioneer greeting, "Who's here?" Sulgrove, another writer of Indiana history, alluded to the explanation that the word is a development from husher, a term given in pioneer times to a good fighter who was able to hush his adversaries, and was applied to "greenies from the New Purchase" who went down to the Ohio river to work, and fought laborers from Kentucky. There seems also to be some support for the explanation that it is a mispronunciation of hussar popularized by a Polish colonel who lectured through the state in the early days. It presumes that young Indiana men were captivated by the hussars as pictured by the lecturer, and took the name and pronunciation upon themselves. Hoosier was a family name heard along the river, and another explanation is that the fondness of Indiana people for cookies made by a Louisville baker named Hoosier gained them the distinction of being called "Hoosier's customers," and finally, Hoosiers.

Why Horses Need Drink of Water at Proper Time

With Old Dobbin making a comeback on farms and many city folks moving to farms the proper care of the horse takes on new importance. Besides being housed and well fed, horses must get plenty of water and at the proper times. Even some folks who have handled horses all their lives do not know when or how often work horses should be watered. Animal husbandry experts advise that horses which have been deprived of water for a long period or those which have been worked hard should be watered before eating. It is dangerous, however, to allow an animal to drink too heavily when it is very warm or overheated. Give them just a little sip and then take them back for more when they have cooled off. A very bad practice is to water a horse heavily just before putting him to work. It is always better to water frequently than to let the animal go without for a long time and then allow him to gorge himself.

The average horse requires from 12 to 15 gallons of water daily. Horses, like people, like a drink after their evening meal of roughage.

Why Quarters Have No Dates

Rumors have been spread that quarters without dates are either counterfeit or were made abroad and smuggled in. Reports like these are false, says Pathfinder Magazine. Not only would it be a hard matter to move any considerable amount of coins from one country to another without attracting the attention of the authorities, but such coins would be brand new. There is no record of any American receiving a new dateless quarter. According to the bureau of the mint, quarters of the old design had the date on a raised surface where it rapidly wore off. The new design has it on a more protected field. All such coins still in circulation are legal tender.

Why Road-Building Was Slow

The people who settled Virginia lived on large estates and plantations and had all their work done for them. In addition, the people in Virginia until the end of the Seventeenth century lived close to the water and depended almost entirely upon water methods of transportation. By 1690 there were about 60,000 people in Virginia, all of them within reach of the water. By the middle of the Eighteenth century there were still only a few wheeled vehicles and sedan chairs in Virginia and Maryland.

Why Milk Is Hard to Churn

It is a well-known fact that milk from a cow which is far advanced in the period of lactation is harder to churn than that from a cow which has more recently freshened. This is due to a gradual change which occurs in the cow as the period of lactation progresses. The effects may be at least partially overcome by adding before ripening some cream from a cow that is not far advanced in the period of lactation.

Why Collar Has White Lines

Why a sailor's collar has white lines on it is a somewhat difficult question to answer, as the authorities do not seem to agree, says London Tit-Bits Magazine. Some, however, state that the lines represent the three great naval victories of Nelson—the battles of Trafalgar, Copenhagen, and the Nile—and are there to keep alive the memory of these events.

Why Honorary Degree Is Given

An honorary degree is a public recognition by university authorities of some outstanding service to society. It has no official meaning. If an honorary degree such as LL. B. is conferred, it would not entitle that person to practice law, if he could not otherwise. One must be a member of the bar to practice in a judicial court.

Jackson Day Dinners Throughout the Nation

Speaking to the State presidents of the Young Democratic Clubs of America over a nation-wide telephone circuit from Democratic Headquarters in the Biltmore Hotel, New York, Chairman James A. Farley of the Democratic National Committee, enlisted the support of young Democrats in a drive to make Jackson Day, January 8, 1936, the largest and most impressive party demonstration ever held in the United States. Mr. Farley outlined to the heads of the State organizations in each of the 48 states and the District of Columbia a plan to hold Jackson Day dinners in every town in the country of 5,000 population or more.

The telephone circuit was the longest ever set up in telephone history, the first single call ever made simultaneously to every State. Frank Wickham, National President of the Young Democratic Clubs of America, before introducing the national chairman, called the roll. Each State President answered "here."

From the speakers table of the Jackson Day dinner in Washington President Roosevelt will broadcast a message to the probably 1,500 dinners to be held throughout the country. And in order that every participant may feel that he or she is being of material assistance on this occasion of the formal opening of the 1936 campaign, the cost of the dinners will be scaled so that a portion of the amount paid by each diner may be applied to the Democratic National Committee's deficit.

"Thousands of young Democrats have told me they want a real job to do; the opportunity is here," said National President Wickham to the State Presidents, who were reminded that the Jackson Day dinners will not be confined to the club members, so that all friends of President Roosevelt may join in this expression of their confidence in his accomplishments."

Christian Science Services

"Christian Science" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches and Societies of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, December 29th.

The Golden Text is: "Arise, shine; for thy light is come, and the glory of the Lord is risen upon thee." (Isa. 60:1)

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Believest thou not that I am in the Father, and the Father in me? the words that I speak unto you I speak of myself: but the Father that dwelleth in me, he doeth the works." (John 14:10)

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures", by Mary Baker Eddy: "Science is an emanation of divine Mind, and is alone able to interpret God aright. It has a spiritual, and not a material origin. It is a divine utterance,—the Comforter which leadeth into all truth."

"The thing we are seeking is justice in the common sense interpretation of that word—the interpretation that means 'do unto your neighbor as you would be done by.' That interpretation means justice against exploitation on the part of those who do not care much for the lives, the happiness and the prosperity of their neighbors."—Pres. Roosevelt

How Calotabs Help Nature To Throw Off a Bad Cold

Millions have found in Calotabs a most valuable aid in the treatment of colds. They take one or two tablets the first night and repeat the third or fifth night if needed. How do Calotabs help Nature throw off a cold? First, Calotabs are one of the most thorough and dependable of all intestinal eliminants, thus cleansing the intestinal tract of the germ-laden mucus and toxins. Second, Calotabs are diuretic to the kidneys, promoting the elimination of cold poisons from the system. Thus Calotabs serve the double purpose of a purgative and diuretic, both of which are needed in the treatment of colds. Calotabs are quite economical—only twenty-five cents for the family package, ten cents for the trial package. (Adv.)

Soot water is excellent for plants. Put soot taken from chimneys, furnaces and stoves into a bag and suspend bag in a pail of water. Let stand for a week before using.

There is nothing like a beautiful piece of red lacquer to give the note of color that lifts a room from its state of former drabness. It may be a magazine rack or a coffee table, but the lacquered pieces we have in mind are exquisitely done with a finish as smooth and suave as an eggshell. The designs in gold are fine and delicate and the appearance of these exceptionally lovely pieces is quite different from the average lacquered furniture.

Custard pies should be baked in a hot oven for the first ten minutes. The crust will then be set and filling will not soak through crust. Reduce heat after first ten minutes so that filling will not boil.

Something quite different in the way of ash trays are charming little oak leaves made of hammered silver. And beside being extremely useful they have the added virtue of being in keeping with your table silver. So many ash trays look out of place if you want to put them on the table.

A Lucky New Year's Error

By LUELLA B. LYONS

IN ABOUT three hours it would be New Year's eve, but to Eve Blair that meant nothing but headache, for she was packing to leave Stephen, and was going back to mother. Hadn't Steve said she had mistreated his elderly Aunt Ann, and had been selfish, and a host of other hastily-said things, that she was watering the things that she had packed to allow that she could have them?

"Listen, here at the New Year's committee headquarters we are swamped with calls for singers. I thought of you, so I wonder if you and Bud won't go out to the Lubberman Home and sing a while for the old folks there. A few old hymns and a few old, sweet ballads, to last from 6:30 to eight bells. Can we depend on you, Eve?"

"You just bet you can. We'll be there," and the phone clicked as the other party hung up the receiver with a thankful sigh. "Must be that Steve offered our services on some other occasion and forgot to tell me about it. Wonder how she knew we used to nickname him Bud? Oh, well, I'll postpone going home to mother till morning; no use in letting these folks down because of our inability to get along." Eve was already digging out Steve's old accordion, her old gulfar, some old song books and a hymnal.

It was while Steve and Eve were returning from the old people's home, where they had spent a very happy evening, that Steve fished a letter out of his pocket and held it toward Eve. "Let's burn this old farewell note together when we get home, honey. We can forget and forgive, can't we?"

Eve nodded happily as she snuggled against him as he drove. The trip of cheer had paid many kinds of interest for both the older folks and for Steve and Eve.

"Who could be calling at this time of night?" they wondered as they entered the apartment to hear the phone jangling, demanding.

"Eve?"

"Yes, of course."

"Well, you see it was this way: I was to call Bud and Eve Pairsend and one of my helpers got you on the phone. It was a coincidence of course, especially after the way you took the request. Just a few minutes ago I discovered the mistake and phoned the Home only to be told that we had better never try to send them any other entertainers but you two, so it seems you made a grand hit with them and are elected for the job again real soon, if you're willing..." and on went the effervescent and the explaining.

The little god of penmanship, his job finished, left the scene content with his day's work. Eve held close in Steve's arms, all thoughts of a separation gone, perhaps, forever.

TURNING A NEW LEAF

By KATHERINE EDELMAN

THE glow of soft lamps lent their charm to the living room. Comfort and beauty were two words that symbolized the interior of the Sexton bungalow. Eleanor and Dick, home for the holidays, seemed to be enjoying it all. Eleanor was munching from a box of home-made candy.

"Isn't it nice to be home, Dick?" she murmured. "Mother and dad are precious, making things so comfy."

"Yes, they are?" Dick answered thoughtfully. "I wonder if we really show our appreciation. By the way, where are they now?"

"Oh, mother is putting the last finishing touches on my dress for tonight. And dad is packing the freezer of cream that he made."

Dick was silent for a moment, then he jumped quickly from his chair. "Do you know, Eleanor, that we're two pretty selfish children?" he cried. "Here we sit around, doing nothing, leaving mother and dad the burden of everything on their shoulders."

Eleanor's face showed concern. "You're right, Dick, we really ought to be ashamed. But it's not too late to help. Let's surprise them. How about us fixing the sandwiches and salad for the party? Mother planned to do it while we were dressing."

In a minute they were in the clean, white kitchen, taking things from the refrigerator. Very carefully, they fixed the brown and white sandwiches, wrapping them in wax paper. Deftly, too, using mother's recipe, Eleanor made the big bowl of fruit salad and set it away. Dick helped with everything, and they washed and dried the dishes and utensils used.

Just as they had put things away, mother looked in the door. "Why—what are you doing, children?" she asked wonderingly.

Eleanor rushed over and gave her a big hug. "We've just woke up," she whispered. "Dick and I have been pretty selfish, sitting around while you and dad worked so hard. But we're going to be different from now on—and we're going to have lots of fun, helping you and dad."

"Well, the cream is all set up," dad said, as he opened the door leading from the basement, "and it's going to be pretty good."

Eleanor rushed to his side and kissed him. "Dad, you've been just a darling," she exclaimed. "Dick and I have just woke up to how much you and mother have been doing for us. And we hereby solemnly declare that we're turning over a new leaf for the New Year."

"THE BELLS of AVALON"

A New Year's Story By ALICE B. PALMER

NORMAN TREAT was sorting over his music at the radio station and wondering what he was going to sing on the New Year's program. Boyishly enthusiastic and filled to the brim with the New Year's spirit, he hummed, "The Bells of Avalon," over and over again.

"I have it, Norm! I have it!" shouted his manager. "You're to sing a complete program of 'Bell' lyrics. You're to be able to hunt them up and go over them in no time. Let's see, there's the 'Bells of St. Mary's,' a beautiful song, then there's the good old-fashioned 'Blue Bells of Scotland.' And oh, yes, the best of all, Norm, 'The Bells of Avalon.' So get busy and practice up, old boy, and be all set for 'ten bells' by the clock, on New Year's eve."

Thus the manager hurried out and on to other worlds to conquer. Norman sat stupefied. He did not mind the old time "Blue Bells of Scotland" or "St. Mary's," both lovely songs, but the "Bells of Avalon"—that was the catch. How could he do it? What if Charlene should hear him? It had been her favorite song and many a time he had sung it to her accompaniment on the piano. "The Bells of Avalon!" What memories that particular piece stirred within him! How they both had adored it! Then suddenly without explanation she had become engaged to another and Norman had been "out in the cold" ever since.

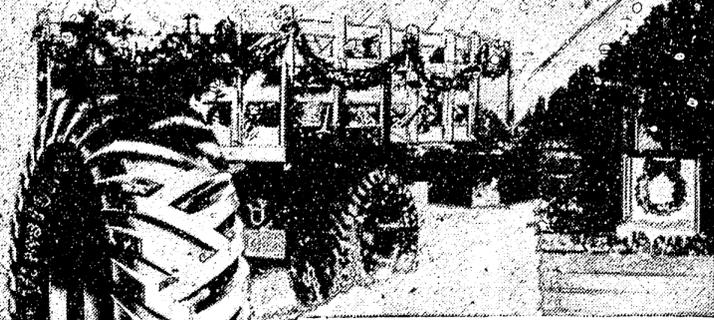

At precisely "ten bells" on New Year's eve the following announcement came over the air: "We are now to hear a fifteen minute program of delightful 'Bell' songs, appropriate for the occasion, by none other than our celebrated tenor, Norman Treat."

Norman had arranged his "Bell" songs in order, leaving "The Bells of Avalon" until last. He did not know why he had done this, but he had. Soon the rich tones of his lovely tenor voice were floating over the air in one glorious "Bell" song after another. Last of all he sang with tender, heart-rendering expression, "The Bells of Avalon!" "I wonder if you hear the bells, my dear?" he sang directly to Charlene. Then the deep-toned studio bell accompaniment chimed joyously in a reminder of the midnight hour.

The much enjoyed program was over and Norman heaved a deep sigh of relief. Still filled with the lovely vision and presence of his lost sweetheart, he turned to leave the studio when a telegram was thrust into his trembling hand. He hardly dared open it, but when he did, he read:

"I heard the 'Bells of Avalon,' Norm! Won't you spend New Year's with Charlene?"

HOW

AMERICA ACQUIRED NAME FROM GREAT NAVY TOR. America was named, of course, for Amerigo Vespucci, the Italian navigator and merchant, who first visited the New world 1492 years after its discovery by Columbus. notes a writer in the Cleveland Plain Dealer. Vespucci was a ship chandler in Spain, and having helped to fit out a number of expeditions, decided in 1497 to make a voyage westward himself. Between then and his death in 1512 he went on four or five expeditions to America.

More important for his own fame, he wrote a book which was the first to show that South America was a continent and not an archipelago. It was translated into several languages and did much to acquaint scholars with the character of the transatlantic discoveries. For this reason, one of his translators, the German, Martin Waldseemüller, proposed in 1507, that the new continent be named for Vespucci. The suggestion had a gradual adoption, and the name America, which Waldseemüller had offered, came finally to be extended to the northern continent as well as the southern.

How Birds Find Way in ### Making Long Journeys

How do birds find their way? They have the same senses that we have, but seem to have another sense, called a sense of direction, says a writer in the Ohio Farmer. Birds differ in respect to the speed and distance traveled. It is thought that the Robin does not get outside of the United States. Some Robins may be found here throughout the winter. The Bobolink, which is with us for a short stay in the summer, goes to a winter home about 4,000 miles away. About two months is required for the journey. There are land birds that nest in Alaska but spend the winters in Hawaii, 2,000 miles away. This is an all water route, so these birds must make the journey in one continuous flight. At an average rate of 40 miles per hour, this would require 50 hours flying time with no chance to stop for rest or food.

How Cards Were Used Religiously

It is said that a soldier was once brought before the mayor of Glasgow charged with playing cards during divine services. He gave as his excuse the strange fact that his deck of cards served as a prayer book. He said: "The ace reminds me of the One God; the deuce, the Father and Son; the three, the Holy Trinity; the four, the four evangelists; the five, the five virgins; the six, the number of days of creation; the seven, the day of rest—the Sabbath; the eight, the number of righteous people in the ark; the nine, the ungrateful lepers; the ten, the Ten Commandments; while the king and queen represent the Queen of Sheba who sought wisdom from King Solomon."

How to Mount Plants

The specimens are laid for pressing between sheets of unsized paper that will readily absorb the moisture. Lay out plants artistically, showing under and upper parts of leaves and various surfaces of flowers. The plants should be pressed between dryers, which are sheets of heavy felt paper. The specimens should then be mounted on sheets of stiff white calendared paper, surgeon's isinglass plaster being used. These strips are put over portions of the plant that are liable to separate from the sheet. A label should accompany each collection of one or more specimens. On it should be written name, locality, collector, and any useful data obtained.

How Wind Can Be Seen

The weather bureau says that to see the wind, hold any flat, smooth surface having a straight edge (a straight-back hand saw is excellent for this purpose) against the wind, but inclined to the vertical, with the straight edge uppermost and leaning with the wind, then sight along this straight upper edge towards a white object. If the wind is moderately strong one will see it pouring over the straight edge like water over a dam.

How to Test a Thermometer

To test a Fahrenheit thermometer, place the instrument in a bath of cracked ice and see whether it registers 32 degrees F. This will give you at least one point on the scale which you know to be correct. If the thermometer reads high enough place the bulb in boiling water. The reading should be 212 degrees F. Comparison with a thermometer known to be accurate is probably the simplest way of testing.

How Glass Magnifies

Magnification depends on the bending of light in passing from one medium to another. In the magnifying glass the eye is placed near the lens and the rays from a small object are bent that they appear to be coming apart and to come from a much larger object.

The French cabinet is not chosen by the president as is the cabinet in the United States. If the cabinet falls the president has to call a new one. The president has the right to dismiss a minister, who chooses his own

Enable Farmers to live better and more Happily

"Only a few generations ago interdependence between agriculture and industry was not in any way as great as it is today," said President Roosevelt in his address before the annual convention of the American Farm Bureau Federation in Chicago, "but now your welfare depends in part on what you in the country do and in large part on what people do in the cities as well. Your own experience of three and four years ago doubtless brings all this vividly to your minds. Because things in city and country both got out of balance, and purchasing power had declined to the point where people in the cities did not have the money to buy farm products and people on the farms did not have the money to buy city products, the recovery program was a many-sided one. The administration and the Congress that took office in March, 1933, recognized that the emergency they faced then came from many causes and endangered the life of many groups.

"Consequently it put the power of government behind not only railroads and banks but the industrial workers of the country, the farmer, the small home owner, the unemployed and the young people who suffered from utter lack of opportunity. It was a great emergency and it required swift action. Mistakes were inevitable, because it was a new field.

"Justice and old fashion common sense demanded that in the building up of purchasing power we had to start with agriculture. What you wanted and what you and I have endeavored to achieve was to put an end to the five forces that were driving American agriculture into bankruptcy or turned them virtually into serfs, forced them to let their building, fences and machinery deteriorate, made them rob their soil of its God-given fertility and deprive their sons and daughters of a decent opportunity on the farm. To those days I trust the organized power of the nation has put an end forever.

"I say 'the organized power of the nation' advisedly, because you and I as Americans who still believe in our republican form of constitutional government know, as a simple fact, that 48 separate sovereign states, acting each one as a separate unit, never were able and never will be able to administer individual laws adequately to balance the agricultural life of a nation so greatly dependent on nationally grown crops of many kinds.

"I promised to do what I could. Let the record say that a relative purchasing power of below 50 per cent has moved up today to better than 90 per cent. The best available figures show that farm income has increased nearly three billion dollars in the past two and a half years. This buying power has been felt in many lines of business; outstanding among these is the farm equipment industry in which employment jumped from 27 per cent of the total average in October, 1932, to 32 per cent in October, 1935. In the motor car industry, which has found some of its best markets on the farm and in small towns, over the same period employment has jumped from 22 per cent to 106 per cent. These simple figures show the material development that has been benefited by the improved conditions of the farmer's condition. The moving money into the farm and into the farmer's pocket is a big thing.

"The recovery program was a many-sided one. The administration and the Congress that took office in March, 1933, recognized that the emergency they faced then came from many causes and endangered the life of many groups.

prices; but at the same time the total net income of city dwellers is several billions higher than in 1932 and I think you will agree with me that bargain prices for food in 1932 were little comfort to people in cities with no income whatever.

"Though food prices in the cities are not on the average as high as they were in 1929, yet they are in many cases too high. It is difficult to explain why in many cases if the farmer gets an increase for his food crop over what he got three years ago, the consumer in the city has to pay two and three and four times the amount of that increase.

"Lifting prices on the farm up to the level where the farmer and his family can live is opposed chiefly by the few who profited heavily from the depression. It is they and their henchmen who are doing their best to foment city people against the farmers and the farm program. It is that type of political profiteer who seeks to discredit the vote in the favor of a continued corn-hog program by comparing your desire for a fair price for the farmer to the appetite of hogs for corn.

"Yet I know that the great masses of city people are fair minded. They, like yourselves, suffered deeply from the depression and I believe with all my heart that millions of these city people, struggling back toward better days, resent the attempts of political advantage-seekers and profiteers to heap ridicule upon the recovery program that all of us are making.

"The recovery program was a many-sided one. The administration and the Congress that took office in March, 1933, recognized that the emergency they faced then came from many causes and endangered the life of many groups.

are saying that farmers have been victimized by the new reciprocal trade agreement with Canada. If the calamity howlers happen to be right, you have every assurance that Canada and the United States will join in correcting inequalities but I do not believe for a single moment that the calamity howlers are right. Greater trade is merely another word for more production and more employment. The proof of this particular pudding is in the eating; the best way to judge the accord is to observe how it works out. Analyze and remember the source and the motives of the objections. Remember the old saying, 'It all depends on whose baby has the measles.'

Controlling the Nile
Before the flow of the Nile river was controlled by the dam, its average rise was about 5 feet. Thirty feet meant a destructive flood, while 18 feet meant poor crops and starvation. The reservoir behind the dam assures a regulated flow and makes possible the cultivation of 8,000,000 acres that were formerly desert.
