DAKOTA BAD LANDS.

The "Bad Lands" of Dakota are good for nothing on the face of the earth but fossils. It is a remarkable fact that every portion of the hills there, however, are absolutely filled with evidences of animal life. Fossil insects, fishes, birds, the bones of the elephant, the mastodon, of the lion, the tiger, and of scores, if not hundreds, of extinct animals and species are to be found in the same hillside. In one declivity, where the rain had washed away the underlying earth and a heavy slide had occurred, there were found, in a space not to exceed 30 feet square, the fossil remains of seven distinct species of mammals, of seventeen species of fish and of five varieties of birds, while the shellfish and insect remains were too numerous to count. By what great natural convulsion this district was made the graveyard of millions of animals it is impossible to say, but nothing short of a tremendous and widely extended calamity could, in one comparatively small tract, have destroyed as many animals as must have perished there.

The old professor is a little near sighted, and the boys thought they would fool him. They got some pieces of cloth and fixed them up in the shape of a most wonderful bug. Then they got some real bugs and brought the whole lot to the professor.

He examined first one and then another, and gave the popular and scientific names of each, together with a little talk about the peculiarities of each, and the boys appeared grateful in the extreme.

Then he came to the cloth bug. He looked at it in a puzzled way for a moment, and then went to the cabinet for his microscope, but the boys had removed it. He came back to the table, adjusted his glasses, and scrutinized the bug more closely than before.

"Is it a rare specimen, professor?" asked one of the boys innocently.

The professor said that he could not remember that he had ever seen its like before.

"Still," said he, looking extremely wise, "I notice certain peculiarities that convince me that I know the class to which it belongs."

"But you wouldn't care to give the bug a name, would you?" asked the spokesman, while the others tried to look solemn.

"Why, yes," said the professor, blandly. "From such examination as I am able to make, without a microscope I should class it as a hum-bug."

Then the boys looked at each other and solemnly filed out without answering the professor's invitation to call again when they secured another rare specimen.

Many men, still comparatively young, will remember the terrors of the "long prayer" in the Presbyterian churches of twenty-five or thirty years ago. It seemed to be a matter of personal pride with the oldstyle Presbyterian clergyman to pray as long he could, and frequently the prayer was longer than the sermon. A prayer of thirty minutes was extremely common, and not infrequently the supplication extended to forty or forty-five minutes, and when it was ended no one in the audience could think of a single item in the list of human needs that had not been mentioned and asked for. The long prayer is a thing of the past, however, for the tendency among Presbyterian clergymen is to shorten this part of the service; and now, if a preacher prays for more than ten minutes, his congregation begins to show unmistakable signs of weariness. Occasionally one of the old-timers from country church astonishes a city audience with a prayer of twenty or twenty-five minutes, but even these exceptions are now extremely rare.

HISTORIC BELL.

One would hardly expect to find anywhere in this country, least of all in a New England mill, and still in daily use, a thing of human manufacture that is older than the oldest title of the English peerage; a thing made before the first English parliament was formed. But such a thing actually exists, and is in daily use in a factory in Saylesville, Rhode Island. It is a bell, about four inches from the crown, is this inscription: "Peter Secest, Amsterdam, Anno 1263, me fecit."

The date together with other well authenticated facts, lead to the belief that the bell was long used in a convent belfry in England, and was taken therefrom for public use during the Reformation. But the connecting link between its life in the Old World and its advent to America is the famous naval battle between the Guerriere and the Constitution.

The Guerriere, a helpless wreck, was rolling in the trough of the sea, while her brave but defeated commander, Captain Dacres of the Royal Navy, on the deck of the American frigate, the Constitution, was offering his sword to the gallant Captain Hull.

The two heroes had been friends in time of peace, having often exchanged hospitalities at the Mediterranean ports, and now Hull's magnanimity shone out.

"No, no, Dacres," he said "I'll not take your sword. Keep it!"

In the meantime the boats of the Constitution were busily engaged in transporting the crew of the defeated ship to the deck of the victor. A midshipman reported to the first lieutenant that the ship's bell had been carried away by a grapeshot from the Guerriere and that there was no way of announcing the time to the ship's company.

At that moment the Guerriere gave a succession of heavy plunges and the clear tones of a fine bell rang out over the water.

"There you have it," Lieutenant Wadsworth said to the midshipman. "Go get the Englishmen's bell; there will be no further use for it on board that craft."

The Guerriere surrendered at seven o'clock in the evening of the Nineteenth of August, 1812, and at eight o'clock that same evening Peter Secest's bell; in sonorous tones, rang out the hour on board "Old Ironsides."

It was immediately pronounced a success, and a decided improvement over its predecessor, and at once became a great favorite with the ship's company.

With the lapse of time, the bell, amid the confusion and debris common to a great navy-yard, became misplaced, lost its identity, and was thrust carelessly to one side. It found its way to the scrap heap; was afterwards sold by the United States authorities, and finally came to rest in its present quarters.

Quite a number of Elk have been seen close to Magdalena.

Antelope are plentiful near Magdalena, likewise, wild turkey.

The people of Prescott say they spent $13,000 at the Albuquerque fair.

RAILROAD MEETING.

A meeting of the citizens of White Oaks was held at Young & Taliaferro's Hall, last Friday evening, for the purpose of considering the action of the El Paso railroad convention, hearing the reports of the delegates from this place, and making arrangements for doing White Oaks' share of the work on the proposed road.

The meeting was opened by J. Y. Hewitt and was resolved into a permanent organization, of which T. W. Heman was elected president and E. McB. Timoney secretary.

The action of the delegates to the El Paso convention was fully endorsed, the free right of way through White Oaks and Lincoln county and $1,000 for survey were guaranteed, and it was decided to place an exhibit of the resources of this county before the Denver Board of Trade. The meeting was addressed by Messrs. Ross, Watson, Hewitt, Heman and others. Committees were appointed as follows, after which the meeting adjourned until Oct. 12th:

Committee on the survey—William Watson, chairman, assisted by A. Schipzing, E. R. Bonnell, U. Ozanne and G. R. Young.

Committee on right of way: W. H. Weed, chairman, assisted by Jones Taliaferro, W. M. Hoyle, E. W. Parker, J. A. Brown, M. H. Bellomy and M. G. Paden.

Committee on subscription to stock: J. Y. Hewitt, chairman, assisted by L. W. Stewart, W. C. McDonald, G. L. Ulrick, J. P. C. Langstone, A. Ridgeway and Albert Zeigler.

THE WHITE OAKS ROAD.

SANTA FE, N. M., Sept. 30.—The secretary of the committees of promotion, appointed by the Albuquerque convention, called to consider the extension of the Colorado narrow gauge system to White Oaks and El Paso via Albuquerque, today sent out circular letters to residents of all localities interested, asking for information on the following points:

"First—Your idea of the route the proposed railroad should take giving your reasons.

"Second—What resources you now have developed or in process of development for railroad traffic, giving amount.

"Third—What undeveloped resources would be made available by the construction of such a road?

"Fourth—What inducements your locality will offer for the construction of such a railroad, in cash bonds, right of way, depot grounds, land, etc."

From the replies received to the above questions the committee will be able to prepare statistics for a report to the convention which meets November 20, and the answers should be in not later than November 1.

WHAT THE PAPERS SAY.

The Albuquerque Citizen says: "The people of the Rio Grande valley will rejoice to see a line of road completed from Las Vegas to El Paso. If such a road is built a branch road from this city would tap the main line in a very short time, and another from Socorro would be built. Such a system would supply the whole of eastern New Mexico with excellent railroad facilities."

The Trinidad Advertiser says: "From the interest aroused, the proposed railroad line is recognized as one of the most important to Colorado and New Mexico that has ever been contemplated, and certain it is that no city on the line will receive as much benefit as Trinidad. That it is no imaginary scheme, but a solid, substantial business enterprise, the fact that $10,000 was pledged at the meeting for a preliminary survey is evidence sufficient. That it has been so well started the interest must not be allowed to lag, and Trinidad must join hands with the other cities in pushing it to success."

"The Denver Republican says editorially:

"It seems that the Denver delegates to the El Paso railroad convention pledged this city to raise $200,000 in subscriptions to the Trinidad-El Paso railway. This amount is no more than Denver ought cheerfully to subscribe, and if the matter be properly presented to our people, there will probably be but little difficulty in securing the requisite subscriptions. There was a great deal of enthusiasm in El Paso the other day in regard to this enterprise, for the people of that town appreciate how great the benefit of the completion of this road would be to them. This line would open up a large part of New Mexico to the trade of Denver, and it would, further more, be a new avenue of traffic between this city and the republic of Mexico."

The Albuquerque Citizen says: "It is rumored that Jay Gould himself is back of the scheme to build a new road through New Mexico to El Paso via Las Vegas and White Oaks. Mr. Gould controls the Union Pacific, which has a line from Trinidad to Catskill, in Colfax county, and when he was at El Paso several years ago he had parties to manipulate things so as to get control of the El Paso-White Oaks franchise. What the territory wants is more railroads, and if Jay Gould desires to build new lines, let him do it." For the benefit of the Citizen it is here stated that it was decided at the convention held in this city to build, if possible, the road independent of any other road. Of course if these funds could not be secured it would then be necessary to call in the aid of some corporation, and the Union Pacific, on account of its connections, would be the most likely to be the first one asked.—El Paso Herald.

The Las Cruces Republican says:

"From the best information we could gather, the chances of Las Cruces getting a railroad from Denver are not flattering. Other sections overshadow ours, and unless great inducements are offered, any railroad built from Denver is likely to go to the northwest or southeast of us. If to the southeast, the country will be benefitted though this valley be injured. Another convention is to be held at Albuquerque on November 20. Las Cruces should not fail to see to her interests."

In its November number the Cosmopolitan will publish series of the letters written by Gen. W. T. Sherman to one of his young daughters, between the years 1859 and 1865 and covering most of the important events of the war of secession. These letters present graphic pictures of a great soldier amid some of the stirring scenes in which he was a giant figure, and in them the patriotic spirit of the Federal general is seen to have been most attractively tempered by a strong affection for the Southern people. The fraternal feeling which glows in these letters is in refreshing contrast to the sectional bitterness which characterized the period, and they will constitute an interesting and important contribution to the literature of the war.

Judge W. C. Hazeldine, general attorney for the Atlantic & Pacific was in Washington, D. C., the other day, stopping at Willard's where he said to reporter:

The admission of New Mexico to statehood is not a question of politics. The Territory is so evenly balanced that no man can say whether it would be republican or democratic, but regardless of partisan feeling the people are a unit in their demand for statehood. Their claim there-to is based on nothing but justice, and they hope that the fifty-second congress will hearken to their appeal.

The Kansas Republican League keeps insisting that mortgages are an evidence of great and increasing prosperity. Whereupon the St. Louis Republic pointedly suggests that this is a mighty comfortable theory until you have to pay up to stand off the Sheriff and prevent foreclosure.

It is said that there are about 20 buffaloes in the Yellowstone National Park, but visitors seldom see a specimen of this race that has been hunted so nearly to the point of extermination. Their whitened bones are to be seen on every hand, and it is a pathetic sight. At several stations in Montana are great piles of these bones brought in by the Indians, and by settlers, to be shipped to points where they are converted into fertilizers. In the Park there is no caged menagerie of the wild animals it contains, but outside the gates, at Cinnabar and Livingston, live specimens of the mountain lion, bear, coyote, rattlesnake, etc., are to be found close to the railroad track. The mountain lion we saw at Livingston is really a formidable beast, much larger than, and full as fierce as the Canadian lynx.—Ex.

Rev. Dr. Jenekes, rector of St. Paul's cathedral, Indianapolis, created a sensation last week by saying that he had 70 proofs that the world will end in ten years, 69 of them taken from the Bible. He prophesies a war in Europe within six months that will last several years that will make clear the mystery of the lost tribes of Israel. Those who expect to wear their hats several years can paste in them this prophecy, and await developments.—Portland Transcript.

Kansas farmers have paid off more than seven million dollars of their mortgages so far this year, and the returns for the big crops are not yet in. The country's prosperity was never greater than it is now.

The League of American Wheelmen has reached a membership of full 22,000.

Chinese Odd Fellows are about to erect the tallest building in the world—34 stories high. It will contain 110 rooms, exclusive of lodge halls. The top of the tower will be 450 feet above the street level.

Mrs. Jefferson Davis is unfortunate with her book, the memoirs of her husband. It was generally supposed she would realize at least $20,000 from it. But the publishers, the Belford company, have failed, and there is slight hope of realizing anything out of the $10,000 they admit they owe Mrs. Davis. She is said to be in urgent need of the royalties due her.

A small water spout, traveling from south to north, crossed Chloride and Mineral creeks, some two miles above Chloride last week, and sent a volume of water down through the town with a rush. No damage was done by the water giant.

Died, at midnight, October 7 1891, Jefferson D. Grumbles, aged 30 years.

Mr. Grumbles had been sick with mountain fever for nearly a month, but was recovering and was supposed to be out of danger, when a relapse set in and all efforts to save him were unavailing. He leaves a wife and little daughter and hosts of other sorrowing friends.

Mr. Grumbles came here from Texas, ten years ago, and has ever been one of the most enterprising and public-spirited of our citizens. He was foreman at the "Old Abe," for nearly a year, and as soon as his death became known the mines, mills and business houses, were closed. The funeral was held at the Congregational church, under the auspices of the Knights of Pythias, and a long train of carriages, followed by a procession of the miners, accompanied the body to its final resting place.

Mrs. Clara Seymour, of White Oaks, died Thursday, October 8th, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, at the age of 90 years and 9 months.

The deceased was born in Saratoga, New York, Dec. 29th, 1800. There she passed her childhood and her early married life. When of middle age, she moved to Illinois, and, seven years ago, a widow for the second time, she came to White Oaks to make her home with her daughter. A stroke of paralysis, six years ago, left her helpless, and since that time she has been dependent on the care of her daughter. She retained her mental faculties in a remarkable degree until about a year ago, and visitors were often entertained by her keen comments on what she heard. She suffered much during the last weeks of her life, and death must have been a welcome relief.

The funeral will take place at the residence of Mrs. Julia Seymour, this afternoon, at 3 o'clock.

The railroad committees have all been at work this week but have not yet made their reports. The committee on survey fund collected $300 in a few hours and we understand that the rest is now secured. On right of way the committee went over the ground on Wednesday and Col. Heman reports that the entire line through the city with depot grounds etc. as well as other donations of land on each side of the city have been made. It begins to look like White Oaks people mean business when we see all of our people uniting their efforts in one direction to secure the railroad.

Dr. Smith, Army Surgeon, went to Fort Stanton, Monday, having been summoned from Los Angeles, Cal., to consult with Dr. Bannister in the case of Col. O'Leary, commanding officer at Fort Stanton, who is dangerously ill of the disease now prevailing there.

Mr. Ellis, of Lincoln, has an orchard of 600 apple trees which were set out nine years ago. About 200 of the trees are in bearing this year, for the first time and the branches are weighed to the ground with their load. About 1400 pounds of the Wine Sap and 3000 pounds of another variety of winter apple are already harvested. He has grapes, pears, peaches and plums in abundance.

Kistler, we will give you more items from now on until the completion of the road and consider White Oaks fortunate in having all columns of the Optic open in the interest of the road.

A large company has been organized to invest money in the White Oaks country. It is composed of the leading business men of El Paso, Denver, Las Vegas and Trinidad. Judge B. H. Davis, E. B. Bronson and W. D. Austin, of El Paso, are interested. These men are showing their confidence in the new road by investing money where they can never realize on it until the road is built.

W. H. Rynolds, a barber from Trinidad, is in the city. He has sold his shop at Trinidad, and will open a shop at White Oaks.—A. B. Citizen.

FOR OVER FIFTY YEARS.

It has been said that skillful advertising will accomplish wonders, and this is partly true, for it is no uncommon thing to see various nostrums achieve a brief notoriety in this way. But they do not outlast the notices that herald them. Thus it is that the mercury and potash remedies are constantly appearing before the public in new disguises. Advertising, however, will not account for the popularity that S. S. S. has enjoyed for fifty years, nor for the fact that it has become a household remedy; nor will advertising account for the thousands of testimonials that the people have given in its behalf. Only the most substantial merit can account for the estimation in which this wonderful medicine is held.

RECOMMENDED AS THE BEST. In Kansas, Fort Scott, Mo., May, 1888. I suffered from temporary blindness for two years, for which I used Pastor Koenig's Nerve Tonic, and can recommend it as the best medicine for similar troubles.

St. Francis, Wis., Oct. 24, 1888. A member of my congregation told me that he had used Koenig's Nerve Tonic with good results. He said that he had tried many other remedies which had failed, but that he had given the person some of Koenig's Nerve Tonic and he continued to use it. The appetite returned, gradually, the anxiety disappeared, the headache left, and today the sufferer, who had almost despaired, is enjoying excellent health.

A new seven-column paper will be started in White Oaks about Nov. 1st, proximo, or as soon as a new and complete outfit can be shipped here.

It is the intention to make the paper the equal of any Weekly in the Territory, and to ensure the success of this enterprise as well as advance our railroad interests and Lincoln County interests in general. It will be necessary for our citizens to aid it by their patronage and in every possible way. If there is any one thing that can aid us in our railroad and other enterprises of modern necessity, more than any other, that medium is a live newspaper. Until the advent of the new and greatly enlarged paper the Interpreter will continue its regular course under its present management.

$300 REWARD

FOR ORE THIEVES!

The common experience of this camp shows that much is lost by the mine operators by the stealing of gold in specimens, if not in amalgam and bullion. Therefore the "Old Abe" Co. offers a standing reward of Three Hundred Dollars for the arrest and conviction, or for information leading to the arrest and conviction of any person guilty of stealing any of the property of the Old Abe Co., even the smallest specimen of ore. The rule of this company is to mill all specimens. Therefore none of the ore from this mine can be honestly held as specimens. And as the receiver, with guilty knowledge, is as guilty in law as the thief, this offer applies to the holders of Old Abe specimens.

Mr. Lee. "Why, Adie, you needn't cry about it. I only said Mrs. Allen was a very well-informed woman, and I trust you would follow her example."

Mrs. Lee. "Yes, and last week you said you wished I could manage to look as stylish as Mrs. Allen, and she makes all her own clothes. But she has what I have."

Mrs. Lee. "What is that?" Mrs. Lee. "Well, she gets all her information from the magazine they take. I admit that she knows all that's going on, and I can't do as well as she does if I had the same source of information. She lent me the last number of her magazine lately, and I learned more in one hour's reading about various social matters and the topics of the day, than I would pick up in a month by my occasional chats with friends. It certainly covers every topic of interest from the news of the day down to the details of housekeeping; and everything is so beautifully illustrated, too. Every time I find a new recipe for every month, she comes back and teases me to get you to take Demorest's Family Magazine, as the stories are so good. For instance, I have a recipe for a new place is found for faces also in his pages; and Mr. Allen swears by it. It is really wonderful how it suits every member of the family."

Mr. Lee. "Well, perhaps I had better send for a specimen copy; for, if it is anything like what you say it is, it will amuse and interest the whole of us."

Mrs. Lee. "I see that W. Jennings Demorest, the publisher, is based 14th Street, New York, is glad to send a specimen copy for 10 cents, so we can't lose anything, as each number contains a 'Fashion Order' entitling the holder to any Pattern she may choose, and in any size—which alone makes each copy worth 50 cents; and I just want a jacket pattern like Mrs. Allen's. The subscription price is only $5.00 a year; and I must say I can't see how they can publish so elegant a magazine for so little money."
