

OFF THE BEAT

With Barney

"Newspapers are unlike many other kinds of businesses. Whether you have customers or not the paper comes out every week just the same. There is no such thing as closing up and taking a trip or postponing business for a week or two. Cold or hot, wet or dry, the paper always comes out."

"We are deeply grateful for the fine cooperation we have received from our friends in Ruidoso and all over Lincoln County and I am simply recalling these things to refresh the minds of all our readers that the newspaper is a vital part of any community."

Those words were written by Lloyd P. Bloodworth just 20 years ago.

Mr. Bloodworth was the founder of the Ruidoso News. He died Saturday in San Angelo, Texas.

We never met Mr. Bloodworth but his words are as true today as they were 20 years ago.

Mr. Bloodworth founded a paper. Maybe he did it to make money or maybe he did it because he believed in the future of Ruidoso and knew no community has a future without a newspaper.

We prefer to believe the latter.

In any event, Mr. Bloodworth left something behind that will endure, a voice for the people of Lincoln County.

From Mr. Bloodworth the Ruidoso News has passed through the hands of others and into our own.

Like its founder and other publishers it is now our responsibility to see that "Hot or cold, wet or dry, the paper always comes out."

It is also our responsibility to see to it the Ruidoso News provides a voice for the people.

For this reason our letters to the editor columns must and will always remain open to bona fide subscribers or residents of Lincoln County.

It is at times it costs us money to run letters when there isn't enough paid advertisement to justify printing additional pages, that's our tough luck.

The day when we fail to provide space for those who wish in a reasonable manner, to express their views will be the day when we are unworthy to publish a newspaper. When the time comes for us to shuffle off we won't be remembered as the man who founded a newspaper. But perhaps we may be thought of as a man who heeded the thought of what Mr. Bloodworth said.

Just as he promised back in January, Walter Barrett of Yuma, Ariz., dropped into the News office this week to play Santa Claus.

During the Christmas season a package sent to us was forwarded instead to Barrett. He promised to bring it by next time he came to Ruidoso.

We disregarded the warning "Do Not Open Until Christmas" and discovered a fruit cake inside. Thanks to Barrett keeping it in cold storage it tasted fine.

Board Approves Teacher Raises

BIG JOB—Moving a 900-pair cable roll to be used in a current half-million dollar Ruidoso Telephone Co. expansion program are, left to right: Charles Ward, Roy Smith and Mavis Gilbert.

LOTS OF WORDS—Can be carried on this big 900-pair cable, displayed by Mavis Gilbert, Ruidoso Telephone Co. employee. Each pair contains two conductor wires. Its being used in a current phone company expansion and upgrading program.

The Ruidoso Municipal Schools Board of Education in a special meeting Tuesday approved a $604,187 budget for the coming year, including a five per cent raise for teachers.

The budget will be reviewed by Harry Wugalter, state public school finance chief, on May 14 in Carrizozo, along with those of the other four school districts in the county. He has power to turn the budget back to the school board for re-study if he does not approve of it.

Although the budget was accepted unanimously as submitted by the school administration, the proposed teachers' raise section of it was adopted by a four to one vote.

Dan Griffith voted against it, declaring, "I feel this salary increase is being granted at the expense of the children of the school district."

He objected to the dropping of one teacher in order to obtain money for the raise. He felt it would mean a cut in the quality of the school program.

Paul Vance, high school mathematics teacher is retiring this year. He will not be replaced. As a result, advanced mathematics and advanced science will not be offered.

Pat Valliant, high school principal, said this was not as serious as it seemed because advanced science and mathematics will be offered in alternate years.

Average raise for the districts' 33 returning teachers is $386, according to Dub Williams, high school science teacher, and chairman of an advisory council that made the salary recommendations.

Under the new schedule, the starting salary for a teacher with a bachelor's degree and no experience is $5,825 a year. In the current schedule it is $5,600.

The average salary under the new schedule is $7,896. The schedule provides a $100 annual pay increase for each year in the school system and $125 for each additional eight hours of education.

Williams pointed out that the starting salary for the small Lincoln County district of Corona is $6,100. The statewide average salary for teachers is $7,364.16.

The total budget of $604,187 compares to actual expenditures of $600,448.41 in the fiscal year of 1967-68 and estimated expenditures of $594,757 for the current fiscal year.

The total proposed operational budget for the coming year is $534,037. The addition of $70,150 for debt service brings it above the $600,000 mark.

Local sources contribute only $15,675 to the budget. Other sources are: county, $33,183; state, $390,110; and federal, $533,812, making a total of $534,037 for the operation.

The budget provides $6,000 for two teacher aides.

Griffith said he thought this money might better be spent for another high school teacher, to offer a broader curriculum. He cited the dropping of advanced science and mathematics.

Williams said the teacher aides will relieve teachers in grades one through three for more individual attention to pupils. He declared these are the most important school years in a child's life.

"I agree that a small school system is limited in its curriculum," Williams said. "But we have a good teacher-pupil ratio, and that's very important."

He added that the system is in dire need of other services, including vocational training.

Principal Sid Miller of Nob Hill School said the district misses or gaubed physical education in elementary school, a special education teacher, a special reading teacher, and full-time art and music teachers.

"But these teacher aides can relieve all the teachers," Miller said. "The money can best be spent this way. The teachers were asked about it."

The budget breakdown by expenditure classification is as follows: Administration, $23,488; instruction, $340,226; attendance service, $50; health service, $7,086; pupil transportation, $33,265; operation of plant, $48,520; maintenance, $400; fixed charges, $47,269; food services, $3,000; capital outlay, $5,100; special projects, $1,840; emergency fund, $14,207; total operational, $534,087.

Coin Collection Reported Stolen

Theft of money and a coin collection from her Ruidoso residence was reported to city police by Mrs. Harry Eckert Thursday. There was no report on the amount of money taken or how activity was gained.

MOURNING—Flags fly at half-staff at the Eight Canyon Job Corps Civilian Conservation Center near Mesalero for President Eisenhower. However, they may be flying in mourning for the center itself, doomed to close June 30. Below the U. S. flag are the buffalo flag of the U. S. Department of the Interior and the ladder-symbol flag of the Job Corps. See story, Page 3, Section A.

Sewers to Cost Over $300,000

Costs of installing sewers for Ruidoso Downs were outlined Monday night by Quinton Daniel, village engineer.

Property owners in the village will vote June 3 on a $140,000 bond issue to provide funds for the project.

Daniel estimated the total cost would be $350,000 to $350,000. The figure can't be known until bids have been opened, Daniel said.

As estimated by the engineer, the cost to the owner of a vacant lot would be $1 a year.

Daniel said the project would be financed by a Federal Home Administration loan up to a maximum of $100,000 per connection. The loan would be taken out by the village and repaid by the service charge.

Other financing source would be an FHA grant and an allocation of some $33,000 under the Water Pollution Control Act.

Daniel said the decision by the village council to install a 12-inch rather than a 24-inch sewer line reduced the estimated cost of the line to $75,000.

Daniel emphasized passage of the bond issue will not commit the village to proceed with construction.

If the FHA loan is too small, the village can decide it is not economically possible to go ahead with the project, Daniel said.

The engineer explained the council would also decide what areas would be given immediate service and the time to be voted.

The means undeveloped areas within the village limits may not immediately be placed on the sewerage. However they will be taxed on the basis of their assessed value, to pay for the bond issue, Daniel said.

The engineer said large users would pay a larger share of the service charges.

Lions Threaten Market Boycott

Two members of the Ruidoso Lions Club this week approached both the local manager of H. J. Market and the general manager of the firm in Artesia and requested that the market's ad in the Ruidoso News be dropped.

The Lions Clubbers threatened a boycott of the store if it continued to advertise in the Ruidoso News.

The members urged H. J. to drop its ad because they had learned of News' plans to run an editorial on the New Mexico poem controversy they felt was not in accordance with Lions Club policy.

The editorial appears on Page 4, Section B.

Phone Company Plans Expansion

Continental Telephone Co., parent company of the Ruidoso Telephone Co., has announced a half-million dollar construction program for the Capital, Mesalero, Ruidoso and Ruidoso Downs exchanges.

Paul Brisch, Ruidoso manager, said the capital construction budget for the Ruidoso company's service area last year was $449,270. Of that, $24,344 will be spent in Ruidoso for new equipment, and upgrading of that now in use. The company will add three hundred lines to upgrade present multiparty lines to one party lines. Four hundred terminals for new telephones will be added.

Brisch said added cable should be enough to provide for the growth of Ruidoso for the next five years. In Ruidoso Downs, cable additions will permit extension of single-party service to some areas. In Capital, two repeaters will be installed to improve transmission facilities to Fort Stanton. There will also be added four pay stations, a toll carrier and two additional trunks.

In Mesalero, $44,285 will be spent, more than half of it for cable additions to upgrade service. Continental Telephone Co. is currently seeking consolidation of four of its subsidiary companies, including the Ruidoso Company, and some rate adjustments.

It has asked for an increase in the single-party business phone rate from $7.50 to $10.50 per month. Single-party residential rates in Mesalero would be reduced.

The State Corporation Commission has the requests under consideration.

Alton Gray Named Ruidoso Downs Clerk

Alton Gray was appointed Ruidoso Downs village clerk by the council this week following the resignation of Berle Nickolich.

Gray resigned his post as municipal judge following the appointment. He had been judge for some six years and the vacancy will be filled by a council appointment.

Mrs. Nickolich said she was giving up the post because of ill health. She promised to work with Gray in effecting the change over.

BOOKMOBILE SCHEDULE

RUIDOSO DOWNS — The New Mexico State Library's bookmobile will be in Ruidoso Downs for the convenience of book borrowers from 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Wednesday, April 30, and again on May 28.

Forest Closed To Campfires

Lincoln National Forest officials this week announced that because the forest is extremely dry, it has been closed to fires except in posted areas.

The dryness has been caused by high winds and the lack of moisture, officials said. All lands within the Lincoln National Forest are closed to smoking while traveling, except on paved or surfaced highways, places of habitation or designated and posted forest camps.

Campfires are not permitted except in designated and posted forest campgrounds, or with a permit issued by a Forest officer with authority to issue such permits.

The closure will remain in effect until the order is rescinded. A campfire does not include any cooking or heating device consuming kerosene, gasoline or gas, provided such device meets the National Fire Underwriters Association safety specifications. Charcoal broilers and wood-burning stoves are prohibited.

NEW STAFFER — Mrs. Berle Snyder, veteran newspaperwoman and former co-publisher of the Denver City (Tex.) Press, has joined the staff of the Ruidoso News as assistant to the publishers. She will also handle school and youth news, and plans to establish a special youth page.

Eight Canyon—"Dramatic Success" or Worthy Experiment?

By MARY BARNETT, Editor

"Some people say, 'Why don't these kids pull themselves up by the bootstraps?'" Principal Fred Stanton of the educational program at the Eight Canyon Job Corps Civilian Conservation Center said.

"But what do you do if you have no boots?"

The Job Corps was an attempt to provide boots for the boys at the bottom of the heap in American society. How well it has succeeded is a hotly-contested issue now that the Department of Labor has announced plans to close 65 centers throughout the nation—more than half of the total.

Four of these centers are in New Mexico: Grants, in Valencia County; Luna in San Miguel County; Mountainair in Torrance County; and Eight Canyon in Otero County, on the Mescalero Apache Indian Reservation.

Members of the Job Corps Center staff of 52, and the 183 Job Corpsmen, go around asking each other and strangers who drop by, if and when, the camp is going to close.

"We don't know when these centers are going to close yet, and we haven't been informed for sure that they are," Clark Stanton, center director, said.

"We have been notified by the Secretary of Labor that we are on the closure list. That's all."

U. S. Senator Joseph M. Montoya (D-N. M.) has strongly urged President Nixon to reverse the Labor department's decision to close the four New Mexico centers.

He refers to the Job Corps Conservation Programs as a "dramatic success."

Most of the people who work at Eight Canyon agree.

"In my opinion, we are doing a great job," Stanton said. "I wouldn't be here otherwise."

The boys who come to Eight Canyon are among the most disadvantaged that America produces. They are drop-outs from high schools, and even grammar schools, in the big cities of the South.

Fifty-nine per cent of them are Negroes—the ratio has been higher. Twenty-five per cent are Latin-Americans and 20 per cent Caucasians.

Most of the Corpsmen come from Louisiana, Texas, New Mexico and Arkansas. They are recruited by the United States Employment Service. Their ages range from 16 to 21.

"Many of these boys couldn't read or write when they came here," Stanton said. "They couldn't spell 'cat' or 'dog'. We've taken the majority of these kids through from near zero to GED entrance."

To the uninitiated, "GED" is the shorthand term for the General Educational Development certificate. GED is the goal for all these boys. The certificate indicates that they have the equivalent of a high school education.

Stanton admits that none of the approximately 1500 boys processed through the center has completed the requirements for GED credential there.

"When they get to that level, they transfer to urban centers and pick up further training," he said.

News releases relating to the closure of the full-time centers said the Nixon administration is planning new "inner city and near city training centers" in 27 locations across the country.

Unlike the self-contained training centers such as Eight Canyon, the new installations would provide mostly room, board and health service for Corpsmen. Training would be provided by one of the many other government manpower programs, such as the National Association of Businessmen.

Most youngsters would be trained in centers near their homes.

The new plan is described as part of the Nixon administration strategy of eliminating overlapping and duplicative federal manpower programs.

Though all the teachers and staff members interviewed at Eight Canyon were enthusiastic about the work being done for the boys, they did not all agree that a rural center such as Eight Canyon is necessarily the final answer.

"These are urban boys," one said. "They are going to have to learn to cope with an urban environment."

Stanton said that some of the boys are pretty homesick for a while. The environmental change could hardly be greater.

Most of the boys come from the slums of big Southern cities. They are plunked into the middle of a pine-wood wilderness. Most of them plan to go back to where they came from.

Lewis Moys is 18. He comes from Buente, La., which he said was a "big town." He has been at Eight Canyon for eight months. He dropped out of school in the eighth grade.

He was homesick for two or three days when he got to Eight Canyon, but he got over it, and expects to stay for a year.

Several trades are taught the boys at Eight Canyon. Moys is learning cooking, "a nice trade for a young guy." His reading is improving.

There is plenty of sports activity for the boys, he said—basketball, baseball, pool.

"On weekends, we go to Albuquerque," he reported. "We have dances at the Girls' Job Corps Center and the Youth Center."

How does he like New Mexico? "It's all right," he said, adding, "It gets cold."

He plans to return to Louisiana. Jose Davis, 19, of Houston, Texas, is among the youngest Corpsmen at Eight Canyon. He dropped out of school in the 10th grade—"just lost interest." He plans to return in September, and "get my diploma this time." He lives with his uncle and aunt. His parents are dead. He thinks his problem was that he "just got to feeling around."

Miss Helen Fred is the librarian at Eight Canyon, and also teaches advanced reading and language skills. She has taught in public schools, but likes the Job Corps work much better.

"There's no comparison," she said. "This is better any day of the week. You can do more individualized work; there are smaller classes. You can see the results immediately here."

She is franker than some about her opinion of who's to blame for the fix these boys are in.

"We wouldn't have them here if the public schools were doing the job they should be doing from Grade 1 through Grade 12," she said.

A small, dark-haired, lively woman, Miss Fred reacts like a mother hen to any implication that these boys may be somewhat less than geniuses to start with.

"You wouldn't be very smart either if you never had any decent schooling 'til you were 17 or 18," she snapped at the reporter.

"These boys want to learn. Oh, you take 200 boys anywhere, there are always some who don't. But they're motivated. That's what they came here for."

As soon as the boys get to they can read, they start using the library. They like cpones, poetry, and art books, mostly. Lots of them like to draw, and do it very well. Miss Fred has been surprised at the number who read Shakespeare. No distinguished scholars have been produced as yet, but the boys have distinguished themselves in other ways.

The center has an active Explorer Scout Post. On July 11, 1968 the Post was chartered out near the Virgin River of Zion National Park in Utah. At about 2:30 in the afternoon, Calvin Matherson, 18, was swimming with his fellow Scouts in the river. He saw a small girl fall from a rock upstream into deep water. The swift current carried her down river.

Calvin dove into the river, as the girl was washed under a ledge. He glided under the ledge, grabbed the girl in a cross-chest tow, and brought her out to the surface. He made a swimming tow of about 60 feet to the opposite side of the river, according to eye-witness reports.

Witnesses said that in their opinion, if Calvin had not promptly rescued her, the little girl would have drowned.

He has been awarded the Boy Scouts of America Certificate for Heroism, and the story of the rescue will be told in an early issue of Boys Life.

Jerry Krab, Eight Canyon recreation director, has an office that is lined with gleaming trophies, all of which the Eight Canyon boys have won in competition with 10 other Job Corps Centers in New Mexico, Arizona, Colorado and Utah.

The basketball team has been outstanding. It went to Kirtland Air Force Base and took all the prizes this year.

"We also got the sportsmanship award," he said, adding proudly, "I'd rather have that any day."

Primary emphasis in the Job Corps program is in reclaiming the lives of young men. But Director Clark Stanton reeled off figures to show that since activities of the center in March, 1968, the Corpsmen have done an estimated $112,000 worth of conservation work.

His figures show the following: Ruidoso River cleanup, $40,000; Ruidoso Downs cleanup, $7,000; White Mountain School, planting of shelter belts, $4,000; Tulare, road cleanup, park picnic tables, $6,000; Alamogordo, work for the Otero County Boys' Camp and the White Sands Oasis, $20,000; Cloudcroft Boy Scout Camp work, $7,000; firefighting in Ruidoso, $20,000.

He did not attempt to place a monetary value on Calvin Matherson's rescue of Cynthia Louise Hoefler, or on the blood donated by Corpsmen to the Gerald Champion Hospital in Alamogordo.

Job Corps Boys To Help Clean-Up

Eight Canyon Job Corps youths will aid the Village of Ruidoso Downs in its annual clean-up Saturday (April 20).

The young men will assist in hauling of trash and burning. Any one with trash to haul or burning to be done is asked to contact Mrs. Jay Pooley, phone 378-6240.

A community covered dish lunch will follow for every one who wants to come.

Those attending should bring a covered dish to the Fire Department.

"Spend Friday cleaning up your yard, and Saturday helping to clean up your town," Mayor Jack DiPaolo urged.

High School Golfers To Enter Tournament

Ruidoso High's golf team will travel to Tucuman Saturday, May 2, to play in their fourth district tourney.

Hopes are riding high with Kenny Hunt and Tommy Spears, says Coach Leroy Gooch, both of whom still have a good chance for medalist honors and to advance to the state tourney May 10-11 in Socorro.

Other members of the team are Kent Skarda, Richard Keith and Steve Wimberly.

Ruidoso will host the final golf district match Saturday, May 10.

Former Ruidosoans Back For A Visit

Mr. and Mrs. J. Howard Morris, now of Berthoud, Colo., former Ruidosoans, are visiting in Ruidoso this week and are guests at 29 Pines Motel while here. Morris was superintendent of schools here for fourteen years, from 1949 to 1963 when they moved to Colorado.

USFS To Give School Program

Forest service personnel will present a special program on fire prevention at the Ruidoso High School gym at 2 p.m. Friday, Principal Pat Valliant announced today.

Because of the importance of the topic, students from grades 7 through 12 will attend the assembly, the principal said. Wayne White, Ruidoso, with the forest service, will be in charge of the program.

"We feel information derived from such a program is of vital importance to the education of our students," Principal Valliant said. "Due to the area in which we live, students, in turn, educate their parents on the necessity for constant vigilance in the area of fire prevention."

High School Band To Give Concert

One of the highlights of the school year, the spring band concert, will be presented Thursday, May 1 when a full evening of music will get underway at 8 p.m.

The concert will be held in the high school gymnasium and will include performances by the beginning band and intermediate band in addition to the high school concert band. All are under direction of Leroy Gooch.

Adding variety to the program will be a snare drum duo by Kenneth Shows and Larry White, and three selections by the Stage Band, "Serenade to You", Dedrick, "Swing, Swing, Swing", Seibert and "Feelin' Groovy" by Simon. Members of the select Stage Band also are members of the concert band.

Director Gooch today announced the program for the concert.

Opening numbers will be by the beginning band, comprised of 5th grade students, who will play "Jungle Rhythm".

Also Cindy Harris, Cathy Hine, Mike Hull, Carey Isham, Julie Klein, Roxie Langford, Cy Leaked, Pam McCellan, Cindy McNeil, Margaret Morrison, Bobby Neely, Margie Pearson, Eileen Poley, Mary Shaffer, Kenneth Shows, Tommy Spears.

And Susan Sharkey, Janice Stewart, Paul Stout, Kathy Wagner, Harry White, Brenda Whitfield and Dennis Love.

Members of the Ruidoso High School concert band will leave early Saturday morning for Clovis and the Southeast District Music Contest, with sights set high for top ratings in the competition.

Bands will perform at Marshall Junior High in both concert and sight reading divisions and will be judged on individual performance. The local 35-piece band will be competing in Class A, and is scheduled to play at 10 a.m.

According to Leroy Gooch, director, the band will play three numbers in the concert competition, "Coat of Arms Concert March" by Kenny, "Chant and Jubilee", McBeth and "Dedrick Overture", Williams. In the sightreading classification, the band will be required to play a completely unknown selection.

The local band consistently has selected to play concert numbers from one to two divisions above those listed for Class A. Director Gooch commented today, and in the past has averaged a Division II rating.

"Members have been working hard towards a top-notch performance for Saturday's contest," Gooch said. "We're hoping for a Division I rating, but regardless of the outcome, I know every one will be doing their very best."

The group is slated to leave Clovis for the return trip to Ruidoso about 12:30 p.m.

WINS AGAIN—All American winner Three Oh's winning the "Open to the World" purse at Sunland Park Saturday. Dixie Mon (inside) lost his rider, Larry Byers at the starting gate and finished second riderless. Cee Bar Deck was officially placed second, and Brand Len finished last. Running time was 1:19.86 seconds. Each owner put up $5,000 to enter the race, and the winners share was $16,000. All four of these horses—the best in the business—are nominated for the $50,000 World Championship Quarter Horse Classic to be July 5 at Ruidoso Downs. Nominations Secretary Liz Devine said 57 horses had already been nominated for the Classic.

Warriors Enter Rose Relays

The Ruidoso High Warriors will be hitting the embers at Tulsa on Saturday as they enter the Rose Relays.

Coach Bob Lee's squad continues to be handicapped by lack of depth but several individual performers stood out in last week's meet at Denver.

Pat Farrar turned in a double win in the sprints, taking the 100 in 10.2 and the 200 in 23.8.

Another double winner was Rick Scott who won the broad jump with a 19.5 effort and hurled the javelin 145'.

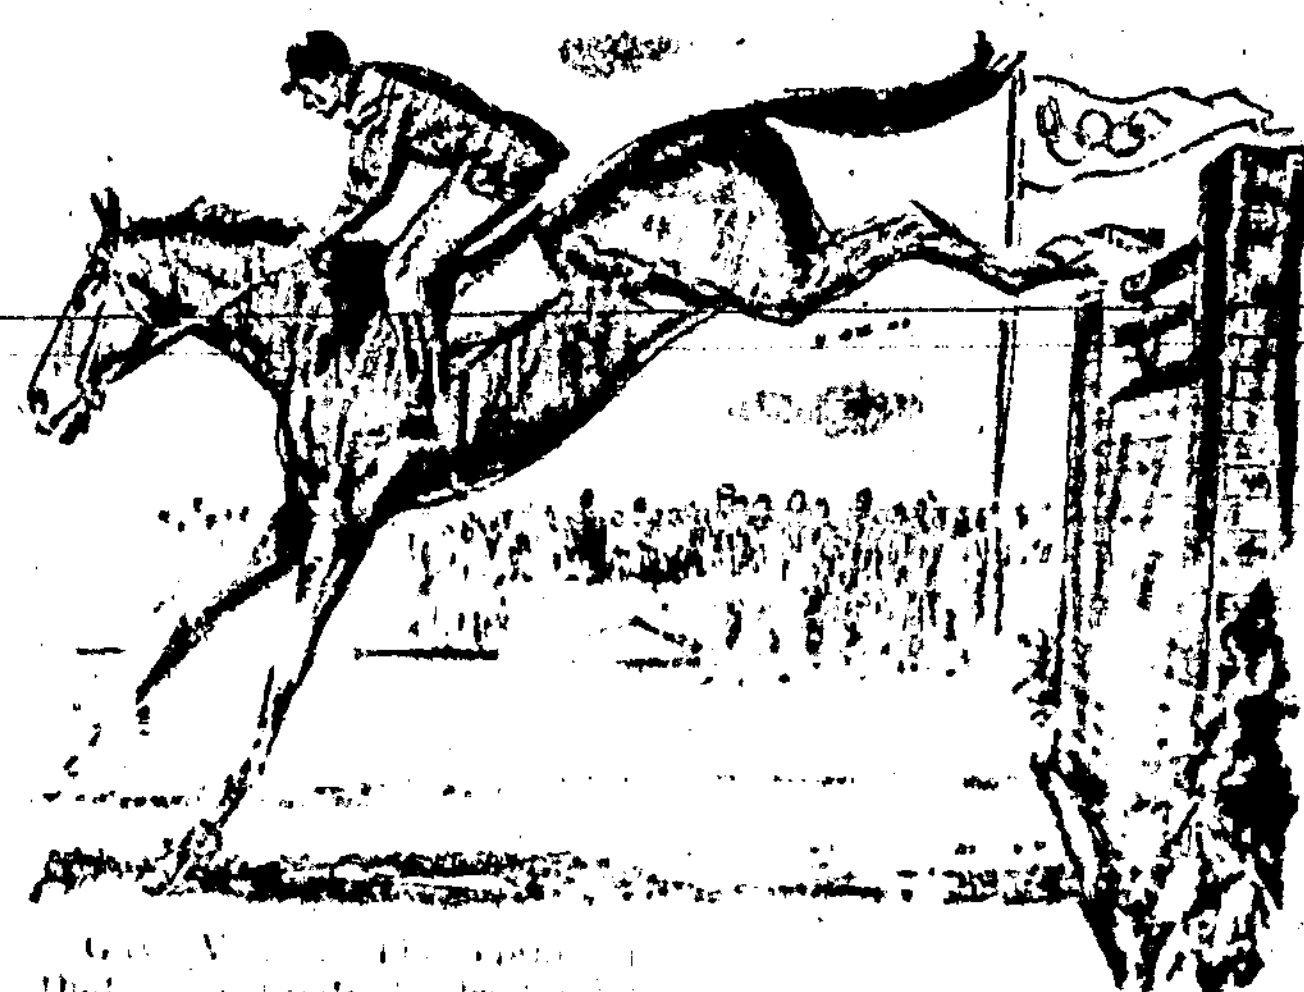

The Warriors also captured the 440 and 660 relays.

New Sports Stadium Opens

ALBUQUERQUE — The new multi-purpose sports stadium in Albuquerque promises to be a major attraction not only for New Mexico, but for the entire southwest. Its primary use will be by the Albuquerque Dodgers, members of the Double A Texas League, but when they are not using it, it will be available for any event that requires large outdoor quarters, such as sports shows, equipment shows, and will also be used for high school football, tournaments, and university baseball.

The stadium belongs to the City of Albuquerque, and was built with $1.4 million dollar general obligation and revenue bonds, in what must be a record for Albuquerque — 1 year, 1 month and 1 day from the day it was started.

The stadium opened March 31, 1967, with an exhibition game between the Cleveland Indians and the San Francisco Giants with every seat taken and about 3,000 standing. Players, city officials, fans, and visiting dignitaries from around the state and southwest were high in their praise of the new stadium. It seats 10,200 which includes 1070 box seats, 160 preferred grandstand seats, and 7,644 general admission seats. Over a third of the seats are individual plastic chairs with arm and back rests.

The stadium was designed by architect Max Flinow and a feeling of openness is achieved by a cantilever roof which places no obstructions in front of the fans. A 262 ton concrete ring provides an anchor to the roof structure.

March Permits Worth $100,000

The Ruidoso News
Friday, April 25, 1968

Building permits were issued during March in the village of Ruidoso for $98,200 worth of building. The same figure for March, 1968, was $43,969, and for March, 1967, $23,720.

The March building permit total was the highest since last October, when building valued at $122,928 was authorized.

The building permits issued by the village do not reflect the total value of the construction, because they do not include electricity and plumbing.

Don Hart, village building inspector, said approximately 20 per cent should be added to the building permit figure to obtain the actual value of a building.

The highest building permit valuation of the month was that of a permit issued to V. A. Miller, Box 41, Hollywood, for construction of a $15,000 service station in the Palmer Gateway area.

The building will be 80 feet by 30 feet, and of concrete block construction. It will have six rooms all on one story, and a concrete slab floor.

Other permits issued were as follows:

Dr. J. R. Kuhn, Ruidoso, Lot 7, Block 6, Hamilton Terrace, garage remodeling, $5,000.

J. P. Rosson, Lamesa, Texas, Lot 8, Block 12, Carter's Park, one family residential construction (mountain cabin), $1,500.

W. E. Seay, Lamesa, Texas, Lot 8, Block 9, Carter's Park, den addition, $1,500.

W. J. Williams, Box 75, Hollywood, Lot 15, Block 3, Hamilton Terrace, enclosed porch, $2,300.

Hornaday & McLaurin, Odessa, Texas, Lot 1, Block 8, Carter's Park, set permanent trailer house, $2,000.

Ruidoso Homes, Box 231, Ruidoso, Lot 2, Block 1, Wingfield Subdivision, office alteration, $400.

C. W. Burdett, Kermitt, Texas, Lot 11 and 12, Block 24, Ponderosa Heights III, $8,000, one-family residence.

Dr. Robert C. Roney, Lyubock, Texas, Lot 6, Block 16, Country Club Estates, $25,900, estimated cost, one-family residential construction.

Ava McCune, Box 683, Ruidoso, Lot 7, Block 1, Skyview Subdivision, $15,000 estimated cost, one-family residence.

Total valuation of one-family residences authorized by permit in March was $55,600, of houses and apartments, $7,100, and of non-residential building, $35,000.

VICTOR H. ZAHNER

One of the highlights of the Third Investment Seminar of the New Mexico Bankers Association here this weekend will be an address by Victor H. Zahner, President, Zahner and Co., Kansas City, Mo.

Zahner has had a long and distinguished career in the field of municipal bond financing. In the 1930's, he got his start with the City National Bank of Kansas City. He handled almost every aspect of municipal bond research, analyzing municipal credits and guiding cities, school districts and counties in the best method of financing.

This early experience provided the foundation for the later back ground that saw Zahner serve as financial advisor to the State of New Mexico on their bond issues from 1961 through 1963.

As a result of the depression in the thirties, there were a great many refundings because many municipalities could not meet the debt burden they had previously established. It was during this period Zahner gained invaluable experience in working out the refinancing or re-setting of municipal indebtedness for school districts, cities and counties.

After ten years with the City Bank, Zahner—still under the age of thirty—along with two other men opened his own firm, handling municipal bonds exclusively. The venture lasted until 1942 when it was halted by the war, but the threads were picked up again in 1945 at the end of hostilities.

In 1950, Zahner was elected Chairman of the Southwestern Group of the Investment Bankers Association. He was later placed on the National Finance Committee of the Investment Bankers Association.

In 1960, he was elected for a three-year term as governor of the Southwestern Group of the Investment Bankers Association.

The Zahner firm underwrote its first issue of municipal bonds in New Mexico in 1939 for an extension to the water system for Spring.

In 1961, the large exchange was completed with the State Investment Council. Tax exemption on municipal bonds was worthless to the state invested funds and their holdings of municipal bonds were exchanged for equal per value of government bonds. It materially increased the principal amount. Subsequently, the prices for the government bonds improved materially and the state sold the exchanged bonds for a large profit.

National Highway System Progresses

SANTA FE, New Mexico has completed 700 miles of its 1,000 designated for participation in the National System of Interstate and Defense Highways.

New Mexico Magazine's April issue, in an article "The Scenic Interstates," maps these highways: Interstate 25, from the Texas border to below Las Cruces to the Colorado border above Raton; Interstate 40, from the Arizona border west of Gallup to the Texas border east of Tucuman; and Interstate 10, from Las Cruces west through Lordsburg to the Arizona border.

The article, written by photographer H. L. James, contains vivid color and black and white shots from each of the three interstate highways.

Station To Promote New Mexico Tourism

KOAT-TV on Wednesday started a summer-long campaign of visual and audio non-commercial messages aimed at increasing tourism in New Mexico.

These messages will be presented every hour of the telecast day. Each color message will feature a different area of the state, or city in the state, or scenic attraction, such as a lake, a stream, a canyon, a mountain, or other scenic attraction. Some of the messages will promote the good fishing, camping and hiking areas around the state.

The purpose of this campaign is two-fold, KOAT-TV said: To stimulate tourism and outdoor participation by residents of the state who fall in the coverage area of KOAT.

To attract out-of-state visitors who are visiting New Mexico or traveling through and are exposed to these messages in hotels or motels, airports, or other travel waiting rooms.

Artisan's Shop Schedules "Exhibit in Three Shades"

A portfolio of watercolor and black-and-white media, works of three young women with distinctly diverse backgrounds and artistic styles, will go on exhibition Sunday, May 4, at The Artisan's Shop, Suddarth Drive, according to owner David Travis.

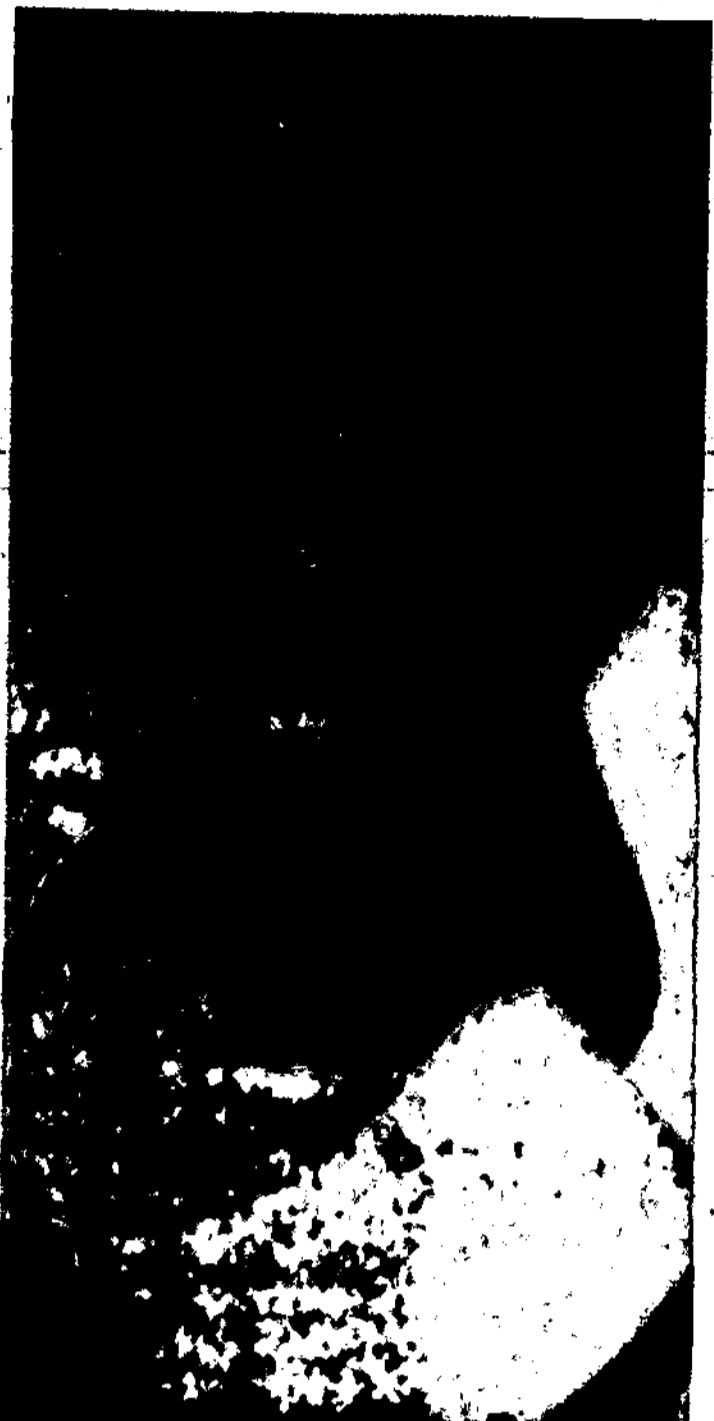

E. JANET CLEMENTS

The art show, titled "An Exhibit in Three Shades" in recognition of the three geographic areas they represent and which "shade" or influence is represented in their styles, will continue through May. Exhibiting their works will be E. Janet Clements, who paints under the name of "Rane", Jane Colby (Shin, Bok Soon) and Marguerite Costigan Graw, all of Lawton, Okla.

Jane Colby, born and educated in Korea, represents the oriental "shade". Her work is a subtle combination of the influence of modern Korea on a basic traditional Oriental art style. Several of her sumi ink paintings—a method where no more than three colors are exactly applied to rice paper—will be included in the showing. "In nature," she says, "there is contrast. The value of asymmetry is that there always is space, both physical and intellectual, for us to fit ourselves into. In so doing we complete the harmony because we become a part of it."

Mrs. Colby is a member of the Korean National Art Association, and her work has been accepted in the highly competitive annual Korean National exhibit.

MARGUERITE COSTIGAN GRAW

The works of Marguerite Costigan Graw represent the "second shade"—northeast America. The 23-year-old artist, born in New York and raised on the Pennsylvania farm of her father, artist-designer Philip Richard Costigan, has a special interest and talent in the creative use of black and white media, and in watercolor's saturation with light and air. She attended the Philadelphia Museum School of Art and has taught art classes and exhibited in Hawaii, Pennsylvania and Oklahoma. "Watercolor," she believes, "is still a young medium. It's full potential has yet to be realized, to be rescued from stagnation." She does not limit herself to "methods" of working but tries to fully exploit the medium.

The "third" shade—the southwest—is contributed by E. Janet Clements, whose works are representative particularly of New Mexico, Oklahoma, Texas, Arkansas and Colorado.

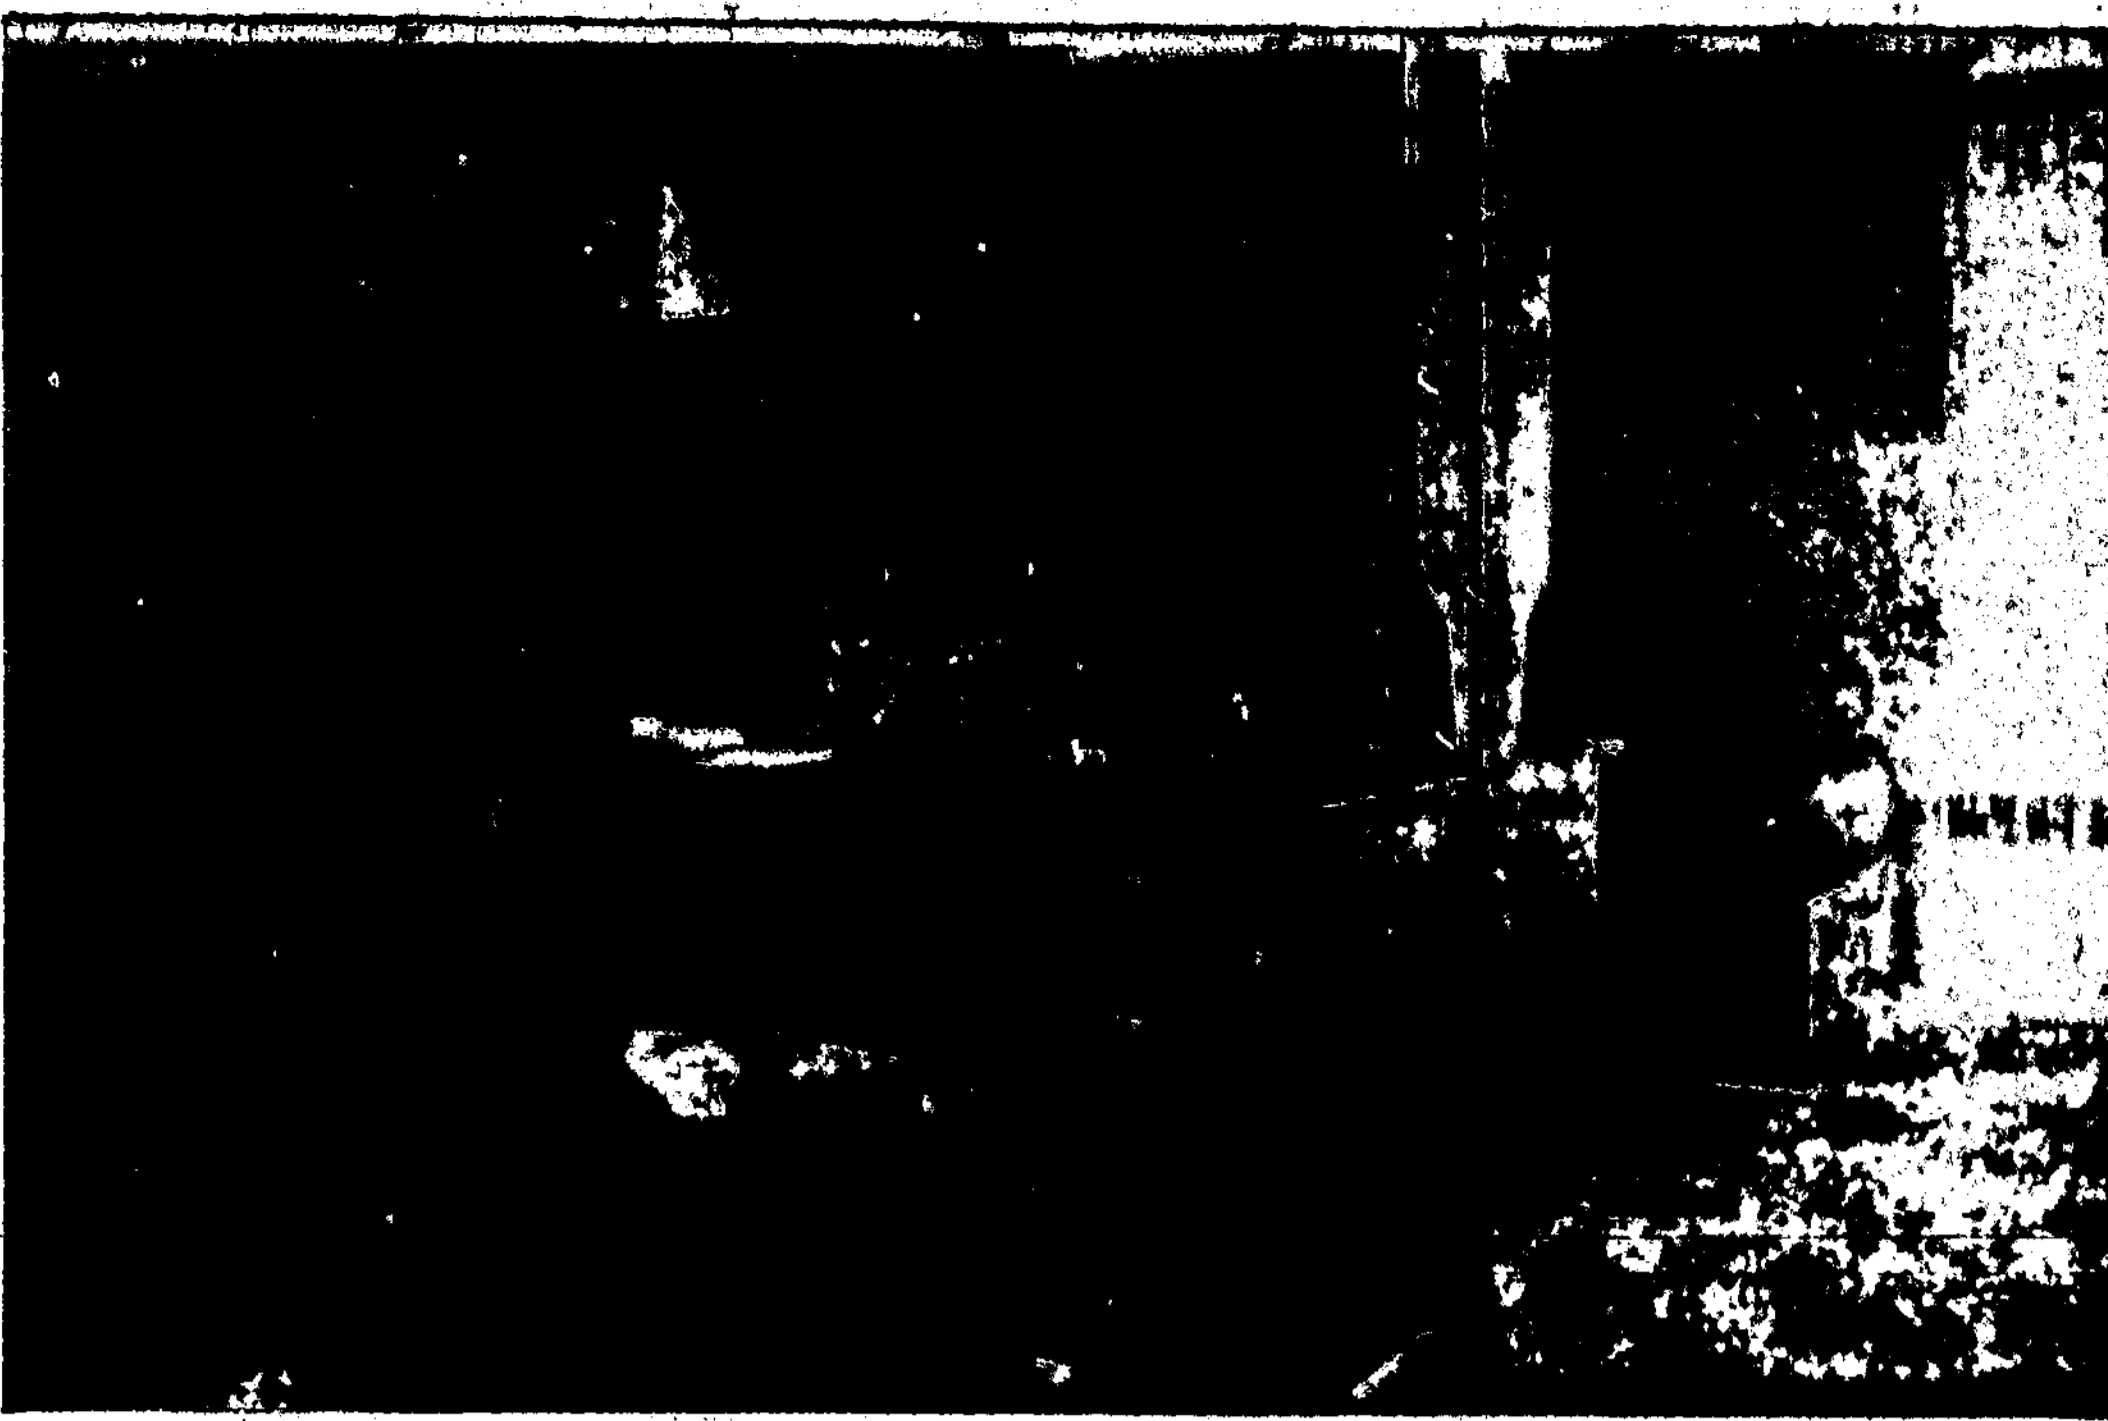

Owner of the Rane Studio and Art Gallery in Lawton, Okla., her artistic medium is oil with emphasis on landscape. She also works in all painting and drawing mediums.

Mrs. Clements, who has been painting since the age of 12, has studied at the University of Oklahoma, art instruction school and under numerous nationally-known artists. Her illustrations have appeared in numerous publications, and her work has been exhibited in museums and galleries in New Mexico, Texas and Minnesota.

"To paint a landscape is to record a moment of nature with the atmosphere presented and the emotion felt," she comments, "neither of which will ever occur exactly the same again."

The exhibit opens Sunday, May 4, at 2 p.m., with regular hours following to be 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily. Travis said the artists will not be able to be present for the opening, as they currently are completing a mural at Ft. Sill, Okla., but will be in Ruidoso at a later date.

NEW MEXICO CATTLE ON FEED
On April 1, 1969 there were 192,000 cattle and calves on feed for slaughter market according to the New Mexico Crop and Livestock Reporting Service. The April level is 13 percent above last April's level of 170,000 head and 8 percent under the January 1 estimate.

NEW COTTAGE — Contributions of people from all over New Mexico financed this new cottage at the New Mexico Boys Ranch, 17 miles south of Belen. The ranch is a free non-sectarian home for underprivileged boys. The new building includes eight bedrooms housing 18 boys. The boys themselves did most of the unskilled labor. An open house was held Sunday.

Letters To Editor

Memories of Alto

Editor: Browsing through the April 4th edition of the Ruidoso News, to which I subscribe, my mind was whipped back some 60 years.

The picture of the school house being demolished and the article to the left of the picture about the new Alto post office took me down memory lane to my family settling in the Alto area.

Although I was born three days travel, by covered wagon north of Roswell while my parents were on their way to the Alto country, my three sisters and one brother of which only one sister is still living, were all born in Alto.

My grandfather (W. H. Lane) was at one time post master of Alto and had a grocery store.

The children of our family attended the one room log house that was the forerunner of the "Little Red School House", recently demolished. If the school house in dead it's three R's are still being taught in many walks of life. The pupils and their descendants cover many things:

An executive of Philco. A retired Air Force officer. A professor of sociology. A city engineer. An electrical engineer for Western Bell. TV actress. Many in the teaching field or married to teachers. Top radio rider. Ranchers. Businessmen of all kinds. Plus the needed good citizens.

My mother (Lurline Lane) died in June of '68 and I wish she could have lived long enough to see the college built at Ruidoso. She was a teacher at one time and believed greatly in education.

I do hope the people who view Alto Lake from this site can also walk along the creek bank as we did while children on our way to

Gathering Data

Editor: I am in the process of gathering early history data on White Oaks, N. M. and its early day citizens and it is my plans in due time to write a book on this project. It is my thinking that there is several folks living in your area that once lived in White Oaks or nearby or descendants of those early pioneer families.

Any readers of your paper that might be able to give me the name and address of any early day citizens of White Oaks will certainly do me a favor by sending the names and addresses to me. I am looking for any old newspaper, articles, old letters or anything on paper, old photos of White Oaks or its citizens. I will make copies of anything sent to me and then return as soon as possible.

My mother, Mrs. Maggie Gallagher Kelt who was born in White Oaks in 1890 and raised there all her life speaks quite often of the Bonnell hall that was quite a gathering place during the early days in White Oaks. I feel sure there is some of the descendants of this family living in the area your paper services. I myself was raised all my younger years in White Oaks and am well acquainted with many of the old pioneer families that used to live in and near White Oaks.

Any help your paper can give me on this project will be appreciated and I will be most happy to answer any inquiry from your readers.

Sincerely yours,
John J. Kelt, Sr.

MA'AM JONES Eve Ball Writes About Pioneers

By BARNEY BARNETT (Publisher)

If unvarnished history of the New Mexico frontier is your dish, you'll eat up Ma'am Jones of the Pecos by Eve Ball.

Reading the story of Barbara Jones and her life in Lincoln County during the turbulent years following the Civil War, one finds himself sharing the hopes and disappointments of this courageous pioneer woman.

It causes one to remember the old adage: "A man looks to the mountains while his wife sees the snake lying in his path."

This was Ma'am Jones of the Pecos, a woman who shared her husband's dreams yet retained her practical approach to life.

Mrs. Jones befriended the Apaches and was loved by the Mexicans. She found room in her heart for a wait although she had nine sons and a daughter of her own.

Eve Ball vividly paints the triumphs and tragedies of Ma'am Jones. To readers in the Ruidoso area the book will be fascinating because of its portrayal of places as they were in the 19th century.

To those who never heard of places such as Hondo, Mesilla or Ruidoso Eve Ball's work will loosen flights of imagination.

Eve Ball has a straight forward, direct style of writing. As a result, Ma'am Jones of the Pecos moves swiftly.

The descriptive phrases are excellent and Eve Ball wastes no words, preferring to leave to the reader the right to imagine.

Ruidoso News Friday, April 25, 1969

A sentence such as: "Johny said a Spanish mule and played a hand-forged bit in his mouth," conjures up the whole picture of men in a corral and the crudely-formed bits.

Other times Eve Ball approaches poetry in her prose. Such as this descriptive paragraph about the Apaches:

"Again they were cold and hungry. They had neither horses, food nor arms for making a second attempt to get to Mexico, and they settled into apathy of the hopeless."

All in all "Ma'am Jones of the Pecos" must be considered a valuable contribution to the history of not only New Mexico and the Southwest but the United States.

Foreman Introduces Gun Control Repeal

U. S. Representative Ed Foreman has introduced legislation in the House of Representatives to repeal the Gun Control Act of 1968.

Foreman stated that he was introducing the measure in response to hundreds of letters from New Mexico residents voicing dissatisfaction with the new gun laws.

Poem Declared Hottest Issue

By FRED HUCKLES

News Items From Ruidoso News
Issue of April 22, 1969.

School board members and administrators this week were urging patrons of the Ruidoso Municipal School District to vote Saturday on the proposed $40,000 bond issue, with which to purchase land and to augment a federal grant of $100,000 for constructing a new high school.

Marvin Grindstaff from Loveland, Texas, last week purchased the Diamond Bar in downtown Ruidoso, formerly the Davis Bar, from Billy and Larry Matlock.

L. C. (Curly) Robertson and Winnie Tidwell, both of Escondido, Texas, opened a new barbecue pit in Hollywood on U. S. Highway 70 last week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Mendes of Mosca, Colorado, were the winners of a new Chevrolet pickup truck given away in a trade expansion program sponsored by more than a dozen Ruidoso and Lincoln County merchants.

The existence of Carrizozo, Vaughn and numerous unincorporated communities is threatened by what has been termed "an attempted water grab by the U. S. Government". It is reported the U. S. Government is negotiating with the Southern Pacific Railroad for the purchase of Bonito Lake and its estimated 750 million gallons of water per year as a water supply for Holloman Air Force Base. The town of Alamogordo has been acting as an agent to obtain this water which it will furnish to Holloman if negotiations are successful.

It found the "Love-Lust Poem" and other materials presented "Inappropriate for freshman English in that they constitute a kind of experiment with language attitudes that is not justifiable under the conditions that usually pertain in the sections of freshman English."

The legislators and members of the public who objected to the "Love-Lust Poem" have won. They have made their point, and it has been accepted by faculty and administration.

It may seem to some that because the two teachers used such teaching methods and materials, these men are beyond redemption and their careers should be ended.

This was not the finding of the committee of faculty members who interviewed witnesses ranging from class members to State Sen. Harold Rummel, of Lea County, who first brought public attention to the Poem.

It found that Williams, especially, was an asset to the University.

The basic problem in this entire affair hit upon by the faculty committee in its discussion of the "generation gap".

On one side of this increasingly yawning gap, the committee found segments of the older generation with their traditional values, some segments of the younger generation and on campus, many faculty members and students "whose preoccupation are not primarily with the burning social, ethical and moral questions of the day."

On the other side of the gap is a large part of today's undergraduate population, graduate students and young faculty members in the humanities and social sciences, and a small part of the adult population with values that can be called "avant-garde" or liberal.

The disturbing thing is that people on the opposite sides of this widening gap are having increasingly difficulty in understanding each other.

To many of the older people, frank descriptions of sexual acts, "unnatural" or otherwise, are shocking. They see college teachers — a highly suspect group anyway — undermining traditional community values and polluting the sensitive minds of the young.

Those on the other side of the gap see it all very differently. The vast difference of viewpoint has been reflected in the letters to the editor columns, particularly in the Albuquerque papers.

The students and the so-called "avant-garde" are appalled by the Vietnam war — a very present and personal problem for every young person, by poverty in the midst of plenty, by inequitable taxation that permits millionaires to go untaxed while common wage-earners pay heavily, the expenditure of billions on military hardware while social problems are neglected, by hunger, racism, economic exploitation, ugly slums, barren lives, the cruelty of man to man, polluted streams, polluted air, the destruction of forests, the ruin of beaches, the deterioration of the American environment.

And they see their parents appalled by what? A poem.

It is a time not for mutual recriminations but for an attempt at mutual understanding.

It is disturbing that some groups are demanding strict legislative controls over the University, reaching down into the individual classrooms. This would be the end of the free inquiry essential to a fine university and to the development of young minds capable of dealing with the complex problems of today.

"If you want to know a decent man, look for the vices he hates in others. You will have the lines of force of his fears and terrors, you will breathe the odor that befalls his beautiful soul." — Jean-Paul Sartre.

THE POEM AND THE GAP

As everybody in New Mexico no doubt knows by now, two University of New Mexico teaching assistants were suspended following the uproar over the presentation of the allegedly obscene "Love-Lust Poem" by Lenore Kandel to a freshman English class.

Dr. Ferrell Heady, UNM President, subsequently reinstated the two teaching assistants at the recommendation of the Special Advisory Committee which he appointed to investigate the affair.

As a condition of reinstating the teaching assistants, Heady ordered stricter supervision of the course content in the English Department. Such supervision was recommended by the committee. Heady also obtained an agreement by Lionel Williams and Ken Pollack, the two assistants, to abide by such supervision. The advisory committee found that Williams and Pollack did no harm to their students, and with few exceptions, unmarried teenagers in the class found the poem inoffensive, although they were "taken aback" by the subject matter and language.

The report says, "We can only conclude that the materials which caused the controversy should not have been selected except under the most carefully controlled circumstances (e. g. for a highly select group of students taught by a highly experienced teacher)."

It found the "Love-Lust Poem" and other materials presented "Inappropriate for freshman English in that they constitute a kind of experiment with language attitudes that is not justifiable under the conditions that usually pertain in the sections of freshman English."

The legislators and members of the public who objected to the "Love-Lust Poem" have won. They have made their point, and it has been accepted by faculty and administration.

On the other side of the gap is a large part of today's undergraduate population, graduate students and young faculty members in the humanities and social sciences, and a small part of the adult population with values that can be called "avant-garde" or liberal.

The disturbing thing is that people on the opposite sides of this widening gap are having increasingly difficulty in understanding each other.

To many of the older people, frank descriptions of sexual acts, "unnatural" or otherwise, are shocking. They see college teachers — a highly suspect group anyway — undermining traditional community values and polluting the sensitive minds of the young.

Those on the other side of the gap see it all very differently. The vast difference of viewpoint has been reflected in the letters to the editor columns, particularly in the Albuquerque papers.

The students and the so-called "avant-garde" are appalled by the Vietnam war — a very present and personal problem for every young person, by poverty in the midst of plenty, by inequitable taxation that permits millionaires to go untaxed while common wage-earners pay heavily, the expenditure of billions on military hardware while social problems are neglected, by hunger, racism, economic exploitation, ugly slums, barren lives, the cruelty of man to man, polluted streams, polluted air, the destruction of forests, the ruin of beaches, the deterioration of the American environment.

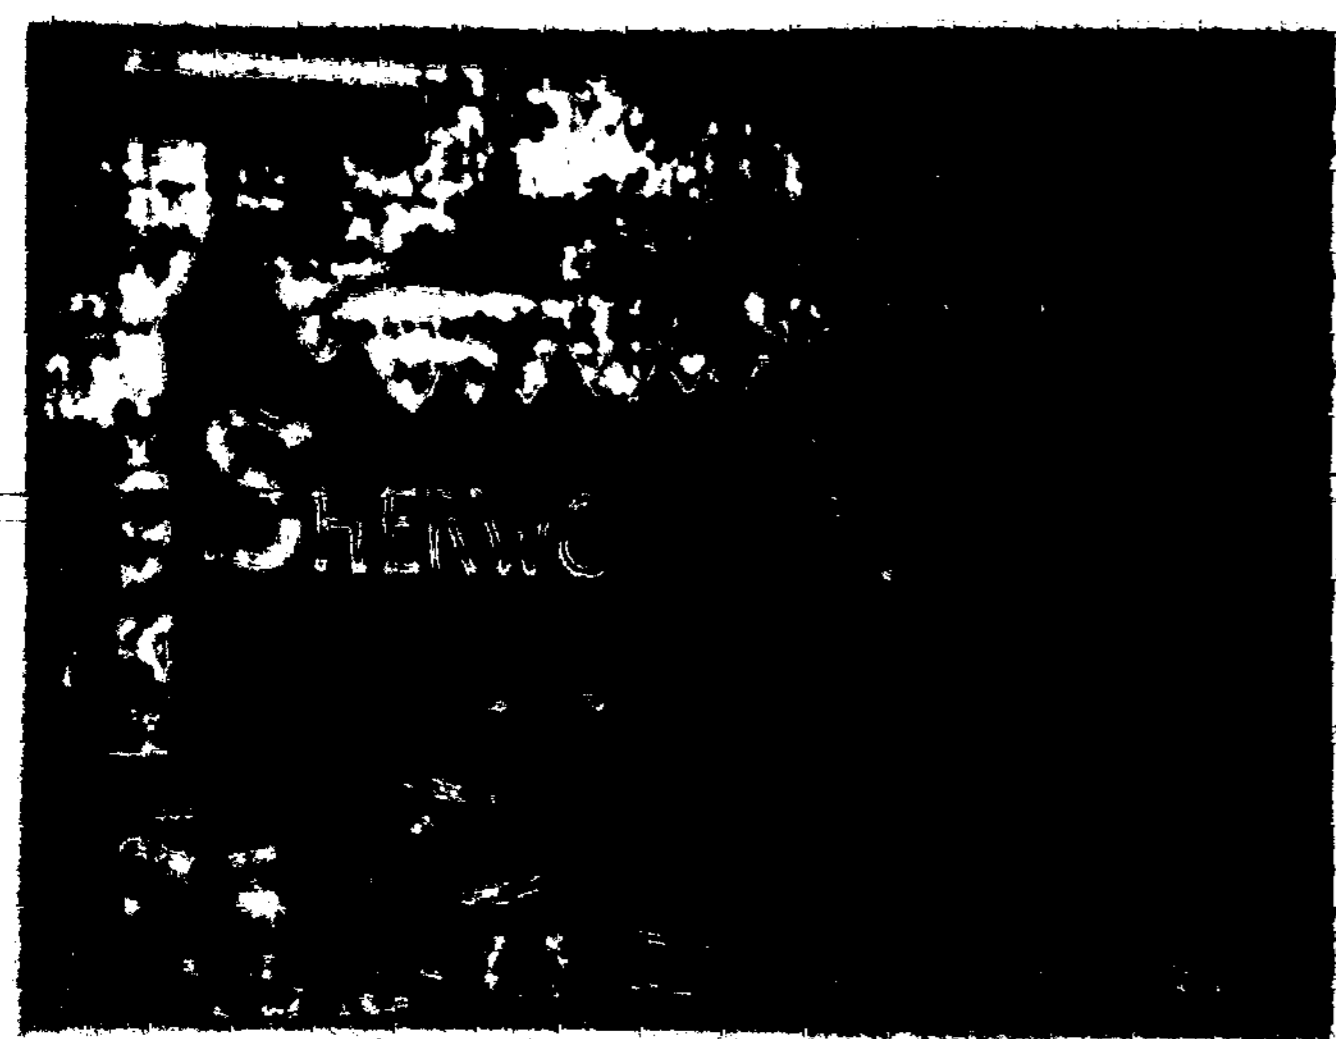

And they see their parents appalled by what? A poem.

It is a time not for mutual recriminations but for an attempt at mutual understanding.

It is disturbing that some groups are demanding strict legislative controls over the University, reaching down into the individual classrooms. This would be the end of the free inquiry essential to a fine university and to the development of young minds capable of dealing with the complex problems of today.

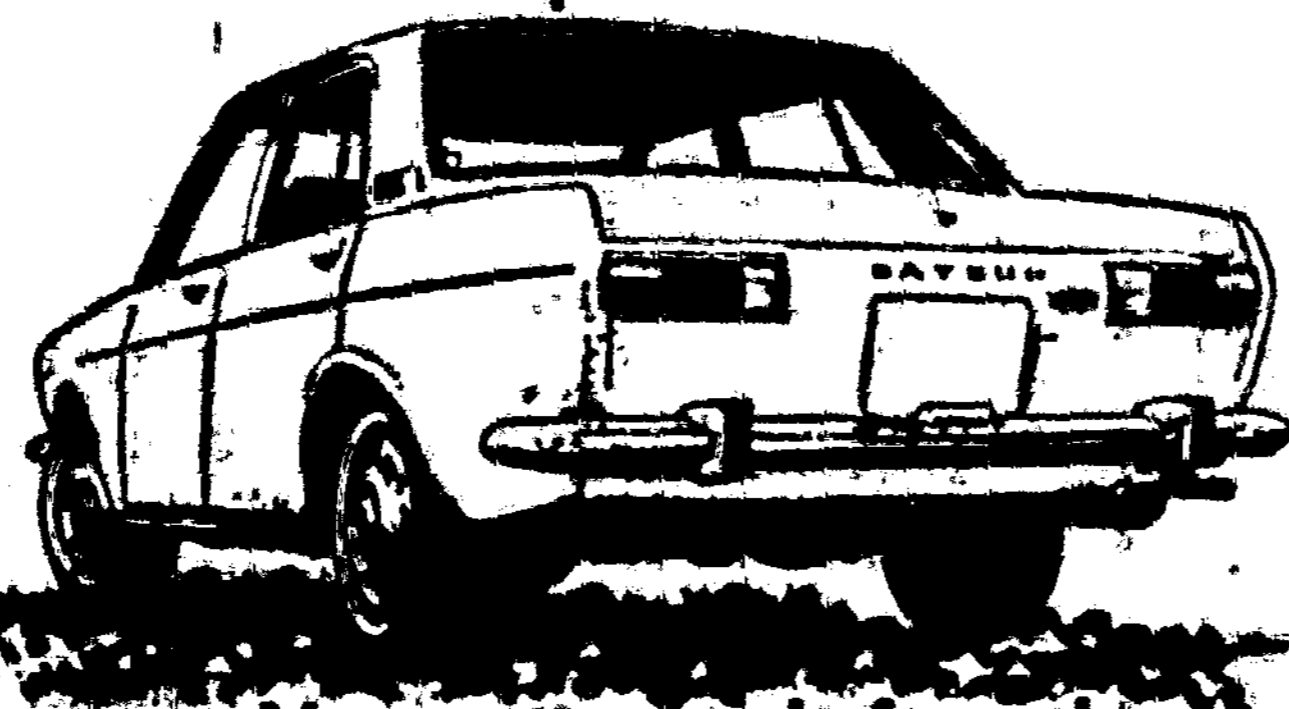

"If you want to know a decent man, look for the vices he hates in others. You will have the lines of force of his fears and terrors, you will breathe the odor that befalls his beautiful soul." — Jean-Paul Sartre.

Social Security Now Recognizes Working Mother

Recognition of the working mother's contribution to her family support triggered a change in the social security law according to Don Noble, social security field representative.

A recent social security amendment permits payments to children of retired, disabled, and deceased women who worked under social security enough to be insured under the program.

The benefits payable to minor, disabled, and student children, under 22, were formerly paid only those whose mothers worked at least 1 1/2 out of the 5 years preceding death, disability, or retirement, or who provided at least one-half of the children's support in the years ending with entitlement to benefits. Now payments may be made to natural or legally adopted children without meeting this requirement.

Those eligible under this provision, but who may have delayed applying, may receive benefits back as far as April 1963 if they apply for them in April of this year. Noble said, since applications are effective for 12 months in the past.

He urged those interested in this or other social security provisions to contact Noble May 1 at the Council Room in the Ruidoso City Hall. He will be there from 10 to noon and 1 to 2.

Alumni Help UNM

Acquire Photographs

Alumni of the University of New Mexico have helped the university's Art Museum acquire an important collection of the 19th century photographs which includes one of the earliest known pictures of the noted Negro orator and abolitionist writer Frederick Douglass.

About 470 daguerreotypes, ambrotypes and tintypes are included in the collection, purchased for the museum by the Greater UNM Fund. Money in the fund is contributed by UNM alumni.

Better See Land Before You Buy It

The new law which requires many interstate land sellers to register with the federal government does not lessen the need for personal inspection of any property being considered for purchase, the president of the Ruidoso Board of Realtors said today.

Johnny Mobley explained that regulations implementing the Interstate Land Sales Full Disclosure Act will go into effect April 28.

Under these regulations, sellers of 50 or more unimproved lots must, in most cases, file a detailed statement of record or registration with the newly formed Office of Interstate Land Sales Registration in the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

ment of record or registration statement with the newly formed Office of Interstate Land Sales Registration in the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

"It is important for would-be purchasers to realize that this new law is designed to be a disclosure statute, and nothing more," Mr. Mobley declared.

"There is a tendency on the part of the public to assume that because the federal government agency has cleared a registration statement, the judgment of the government is that the property for sale is reasonably priced. This is just as valid now, even with the new full disclosure law in effect, as it ever was."

Mobley commented, "The success of the new Interstate Land Sales Disclosure Act as another consumer protection law will depend on the restraint exercised by developers, the government's land sales registration office, and the public."

"The best assurance for the buyer or that he is getting his money's worth in any real estate transaction, however, is personally to inspect the property and to confer with a professional in real estate.

"Whether buying or selling real property, it is wise to see a realtor, for in order to use that term, registered in the U. S. Patent Office, a real estate practitioner must be a member of the local and state boards and of the National Association of Real Estate Boards. More important to the real estate seller or seeker, a realtor subscribes to a strict specific code of ethics."
