Village residents will note an increase in their municipal service charges of about $1.50 per month, effective July 1. Sewer has been raised 75 cents' garbage 50 cents and the water rate has been increased 25 cents per 1,000 gallons, village manager Jim Hine has announced. Water consumption, through village meters, set a record during June with 31,670,654 gallons used. The previous high was 24,300,000 during August of 1973, according to Hine's records.

Easy Date was handily out in front to win the Rainbow Derby.

Easy Date romps to win Sunday's Rainbow Derby

RUIDOSO DOWNS, N.M. — Easy Date took a giant step toward becoming the first millionaire in quarter horse racing by soundly whipping a crack field in Sunday's finals of the $363,890 Rainbow Derby at Ruidoso Downs.

The filly, ridden by Don Knight for Walter Merrick of Sayre, Okla., got off to an explosive start in the 440-yard run and cruised under the wire with a comfortable length margin.

She clocked the distance in 21.60 seconds and hauled down $119,177. This pushed her career bankroll up to $717,035 and put her well in the clear on the list of all-time money-making quarter horses.

As soon as the betting windows opened for the Derby, Easy Date was established as a clear-cut favorite. This in itself was quite an honor, since the total earnings of the blue-chip group amounted to $1,451,995. The Derby was the richest gathering of talent in quarter horse history.

At one point, Easy Date was down to 3-5 in the wagering, but when the bell sounded, she was even money. The mutual payoffs were $4, $3.20 and $3.20.

The runner-up slot went to Hi Johnny, property of the Adobe Ranch Co. of Del Rio, Texas. Frank Henning was up. The big-hearted gelding collected a bountiful $37,262 and dished out mutuels of $9.60 and $6. He raced as a 20-1 longshot. Johnnie Goodman does the training.

I Can Go, off at 21-1 in the betting, finished a half-length behind Hi Johnny and pulled in $29,704 for third. Terry Lipham was in the saddle for Charles Bird and the Estate of Ethel Bird of Midland, Texas. The show payoff was $7.40. H. Don Farris trains the chestnut colt.

Here's how the rest of the field checked in: 4th — Bo Rax, earning $15,747; 5th — Maskeo Lad ($14,315); 6th — Chautous ($13,957); 7th — Vim And Vigor ($13,599); 8th — Mongo Jet ($13,241); 9th —

Sheswright ($12,884); 10th — Heza Charger ($12,168).

James McArthur, the trainer of Easy Date, sent the filly into the Derby in obviously well-honed condition. Under steady urging from Jockey Knight, the filly came out of the gate like a tiger and established a solid lead in the middle of the track. She stayed on a straight course the rest of the way and was never put to pressure.

The competition was plainly outrun. Bo Rax, a 35-1 shot, tried to offer some early arguments, but dropped off the pace.

At about the half-way point of the dash, when the victory seemed all wrapped up, Jockey Knight put away the whip. When Hi Johnny and I Can Go tried desperately to make up ground in the final 100 feet or so, Knight waved the whip at Easy Date just to keep her from losing interest.

I Can Go showed good early lick, but dropped back slightly at the mid-way point, and had to run for all he was worth in order to grab the third slot. Hi Johnny, never far behind, was moving at a good clip when he hit the wire.

Heza Charger, who went into the Derby with a bankroll of almost $250,000, didn't impress the fans very much and got away at nearly 13-1. He couldn't get rolling and trailed all the way.

Maskeo Lad, who set the second-best qualifying time behind Easy Date a week ago, was launched at just over 2-1, but the slinging pace was probably a little too much and he had to settle for fifth. He was never able to get in contention.

In taking the Rainbow Derby with such authority, Easy Date squared the record with both Maskeo Lad and Heza Charger — two male rivals who licked her stakes competition at Los Alamitos on the West Coast.

It was another big afternoon at the betting windows as the crowd of 8,190 wrapped up the Independence Day weekend with a handle of $465,942.

Donors needed Thursday

Ruidoso area residents will be given the opportunity to donate blood to Blood Services of El Paso, Tex., from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m., July 10 at Ruidoso Hondo Valley General Hospital.

Blood Services, a private, non-profit, organization, maintains a constant supply of blood at the hospital with two pints of O positive and A positive provided weekly. Blood of any type is always available from Blood Services for immediate shipment by bus or, in emergencies, by helicopter.

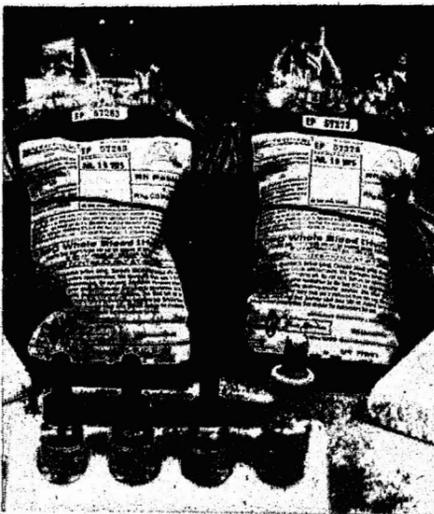

"In essence," hospital administrator Roland Walsh said, "this blood donating opportunity affords area people the privilege of repaying Blood Services for the blood that has been used here over a period of years since the last blood drive has been conducted here and I am asking for a generous response.

"All of the blood we obtain from Blood Services is priced at $26.50 a pint, which is the exact cost of processing it for transfusions. There is no charge for the blood, only for the processing." There will be three drawing stations in the hospital's conference room with the "Pink Ladies" in charge of registration and hostessing.

"We have a goal of a minimum of 50 pints for this drive," laboratory technician Rick Madden said, "and it is our hope that we will exceed that many times. It will be appreciated by the hospital if donors will telephone 257-7381 and pre-register to donate."

WHOLE BLOOD, for any medical emergency, is always available at Ruidoso Hondo Valley General Hospital through Blood Services of El Paso, Tex.

BLOOD TESTS, such as lab technician Rick Madden is performing, are required before transfusions may be administered. [Ruidoso News photos]

Ruidoso to be Bicentennial Community

Final approval designating Ruidoso as an official Bicentennial Community is expected to be received from the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration [ARBA] in Washington, D. C., before the end of July.

Ruidoso's application for Bicentennial Community status was officially approved by Chris Krahling, division director of the NM American Revolution Bicentennial Commission, June 23, when Krahling advised Ruidoso mayor Lloyd L. Davis Jr.:

"On behalf of the New Mexico American Revolution Bicentennial Commission it gives me a great deal of pleasure to formally advise you that the commission has approved your application for designation as an official Bicentennial Community and forwarded it to Washington D. C. for final federal approval. Such approval usually takes approximately one month."

Ruidoso qualified for Bicentennial Community status by complying with the three thematic areas required by ARBA:

Heritage '76: Oral review of history at the Lincoln County Senior Citizens Center. The making of cassette tapes, plus the taking of photographs, to record "feelings" of Senior Citizens taking the Bicentennial Inaugural Tour "Ojos de Amigos", sponsored by the center and commissioned by Gov. Jerry Apodaca.

Festival '76: Bicentennial Inaugural Tour — Lincoln County Senior Citizens Center. The "send off" party, "welcome home" party, and all the festivities involved with the Bicentennial Inaugural Tour — "Ojos de Amigos."

Must we have tragedy first?

In August, the State Highway Department responded to a plea for some help for pedestrians who need to cross Sudderth Drive — and put in two crosswalks as a guide for the Village. However, the tapes didn't last — and the signs weren't noticeable — and the Village officials were not interested in maintaining crosswalks or enforcing the law concerning them.

They ran a survey, near the end of school, and declared the children didn't use the one put there for their use. The children didn't use their crosswalk because they had to walk about four blocks out of their way to do so — only to find "cars didn't even slow down."

The Village officials don't want to upset our visitors or summer residents by requiring them to stop for pedestrians in crosswalks. We believe it would upset the visitor, or summer resident, or year-round resident even more if he managed to hit a pedestrian. Some visitors to Ruidoso might even like to cross the street on foot themselves, sometime. In a day when we're being begged to take the fuel shortage seriously, it seems a shame to have to get in a car and drive several blocks in order to get across the street.

It's a scary thing to wait patiently (or impatiently) for what seems a good chance to cross; then get caught in the middle by someone driving fast, or whipping out of a parking area without looking — then find cars bearing down from every direction!

On the other hand, the courteous driver is in a dilemma, fearing if he stops to let a pedestrian by, the car in the next lane will get him. Must we wait until someone is killed or seriously injured before doing anything at least to try to alleviate the danger? Crosswalks may not be the ideal answer, but if they were put in, with adequate signs, and people required to obey the law concerning them, it might help prevent a tragedy. It might also slow down some drivers who are making Sudderth Drive a frightening place — even for cars. Might be a good idea to let the Village Hall know if there are more than two people in Ruidoso who want a way to use Sudderth Drive with some small degree of safety.

Your Social Security

Social security can make about $101 million available for vocational rehabilitation services for people getting monthly disability benefits in the fiscal year which started July 1, according to Tim Hassen, social security claims representative. "That's about $18 million more than was available in the last fiscal year. It means more disabled people can get rehabilitation training to help them return to jobs," Hassen said.

Social security pays monthly benefits to eligible workers and their families when the worker is severely disabled and not expected to work for a year or more. In selected cases, social security helps pay for vocational rehabilitation services provided by State agencies.

In fiscal 1974, over 60,000 disabled people in the United States received these rehabilitation services, paid for by social security. Of these, over 13,000 were successfully rehabilitated.

The amount available for rehabilitation services each year is 1 1/2 percent of the total amount of social security disability benefits paid during the previous year. This amount is in addition to other public monies available for rehabilitation.

Mr. Hassen may be contacted at the Lincoln County Senior Citizens Center in Ruidoso on Tuesday, July 8 between the hours of 10-12 a. m. and 1-2 p. m.

Garden Club

The Ruidoso Garden Club will have a called business meeting Tuesday, July 8, 10:00 a. m., at the home of Shirley Neuhaus.

Please bring quilt blocks.

Fire annually costs the nation more than $3 billion in direct losses. The cost is untold billions more in terms of jobs ended, production suspended, sales lost, accounts payable records destroyed — meaning lost income for owners and employees alike.

MRS. B.

By CECELIA
BARRON

It was nice having Mrs. Ellie Wintzel drop by. She is the Avon representative of this part of Ponderosa Heights. She and Mr. Wintzel are from Midland, Texas, and he is in the trailer moving business. We welcome them to our mountains and wish them success.

We had a nice visit with Mrs. Randy Jaquess and she brought me some nice magazines, which I enjoy very much. Mr. Jaquess is a contractor and has built several houses in this vicinity. Mrs. Jaquess keeps busy with her two children and the decorating, in summer; then helps out in the White Mountain School in the winter months.

Using B, G, F, and P, for best, good, fair, and poor— according to the Farmer's Almanac, the fishing guide for August is:

1-G mo-2-B eve-3-B eve-4-F eve-5- eve-6-B eve-7-P eve-8-P eve-9-P eve-10-F mo-11-F mo-12-P mo-13-P mo-14-B mo-15-G mo-16-P mo-17-F mo-18-P mo-19-P eve-20-F mo-21-P eve-22-G eve-23-G eve-24-G mo-25-F mo-26-P mo-27-F mo-28-F mo-29-G eve-30-B mo-31-B mo.

Of course this is subject to change by local conditions of weather and wind.

I remember when I was a child, my family and other families, went fishing in covered wagons and stayed a week or two. The men fished with a seine and we children waded in the creek— sometimes water up to our necks— and drove the fish down into the net.

I also recall when, the banker would have thought we were out of our mind if we wanted to borrow money to go on a vacation.

Before credit cards, we always knew exactly how much we were broke. And now a days a tax payer is a government worker with no vacation, no sick leave and no holidays.

The average married couple has already spent next year's salary and hasn't paid this year's bills.

The world is composed of takers and givers. The takers eat better and the givers sleep better; and if they do not change direction they will end up where they are going. And the children to whom you gave advice now gives advice to you.

Theodore Roosevelt said: 'The credit belongs to the man who is actually in the arena; whose face is marred with dust, sweat and blood; who strives valiantly; who errs and comes up short again and again; who knows the great enthusiasms, the great devotions and spends himself in worthy cause; who at best knows in the end the triumph of high achievement; and who at the worst, if he fails, at least while daring greatly; so that his place shall never be with those cold and timid souls who know neither defeat nor victory.'

Alaska received more federal aid in proportion to its population than any other state, last year— $695.00 per person. Indiana received the least— $133 a person. New Mexico received an amount of $301 per capita.

I read where ginger bread was invented 4,000 years ago by a Greek from Rhodes. Its fame spread throughout the Mediterranean area and finally to England, then to the Early American colonies and was a favorite dessert. Two necessary ingredients were molasses and ginger; when sugar was scarce and it was called 'long sweetening' while sugar was called 'short sweetening.'

In the early days, the length of a man's arm up to his nose was a yard; and the width of his thumb was an inch. The well known baker's dozen was 13; and to make a Martha Washington cake, the recipe was a 'fistfull' of butter, 'a nutshell of sugar, plus a proverbial 'pinch' of salt, etc. So it went— when measurements really came to grips with reality. The basic units were adopted; and just about the time we have become accustomed to them, along comes the abominable metric system. What next?

The first visitors to Mars will find their days 2.7 longer than ours, making 687 earth days or 668.6 Mars days in one year. To make calendar reading easier for Earthlings, its year has been broken up into 12 months— making 55 days in June, September, and December. All the rest have 56.

If you go ice skating this winter, the Red Cross says to skate in supervised areas where the ice is at least 3 or 4 inches thick. Never skate alone and never build a fire on the ice. Be careful when crossing ice over running water. Currents can erode and melt ice from below. If you accidentally break through the ice, don't try to climb out on the thin ice around the hole. Extend both arms along the surface of the ice and then kick hard. This will help lift the body onto solid ice. Then roll to safety. To rescue someone who has broken through ice, don't stand up near the ice break. Instead, lie flat and edge along toward the hole, and push a plank, ladder, or rope to the victim. When he has grasped it, pull him to safety. Always have rescue equipment readily available.

The Dreamer

by Dannie Storm
July, The Patriotic Month
 This is being sent to you on the first of July, and it is a dreamy sort of day. The breeze is blowing now West, then East, playing a giant game of tennis or volley-ball in the sky with the white clouds. As the clouds come over the Vale and then pass on by, Shady Logan goes from sun to shade, and shade to sun, under the cedar tree.

I am dreaming of rain water running down off the hills onto the little meadows. I am watching outside now at a pretty sight. On one of the electric wires a little swallow is perched and his mother and father fly by and feed him something and then fly away for more food. The little fellow can fly but needs help feeding himself.

Tomorrow, July 2, is my Mother's birthday, and I am dreaming back over the years to see if I can remember my first fourth of July.

I read that my Native City of Valdez has been moved across Valdez Bay to a new location, after it was destroyed by the earthquake of fifty-six. I left Valdez at the age of two and a half years, and then after visiting in the "States", went back and lived in Juneau till I was seven.

In Valdez I faintly remember a grand celebration. I have a photograph of the event. I think it was the celebration of the completion of a telegraph line from Valdez to the interior.

Valdez was a tiny, friendly village in those days; and now it is a bustling place, because here is where the new pipeline from the Alaskan oil fields will end.

As I started to say, I remember a lot of candy and home made ice cream at the Valdez celebration. And somebody gave me a beautiful little silk American flag. In those days it was great to have a fourth of July pie-eating contest. The photo of the event shows a gaily-decorated long table with pies on it and young fellows standing ready with their hands tied behind them. You had to eat the pie without any help from your hands.

In Denver, after we came out of Alaska to visit the Grandparents, aunts and uncles, it seems I remember a parade with lots of Civil War Union veterans in blue marching down the street to the tune of "Marching Through Georgia". This might be mostly my imagination. I think, because my father told me of these parades and my grandpa Kennedy was a prominent man in the Fourth of July parades. He was a captain in the Union Cavalry.

Fire-Crackers
Roman Candles
Sparklers and Rockets
 I remember the parades and celebrations in Juneau, Alaska very well. There were the horse drawn fire engine, and many other wagons all decorated up with gay ribbons and tassels for the horses. I remember that as the band played the horses stepped proudly. From some of the wagons bags of pop corn and candy were tossed off to the children.

Back in those days, we used to save up our nickles and dimes and quarters to buy fireworks for fourth of July. We had fire-crackers of all sizes up to the giant cracker. And at night we had sparklers, roman candles and rockets that would go into the air and explode sending different colored stars into the night sky.

One time in Juneau, when I was six years old I raised a garden and went selling my lettuce and radishes through the streets of town. The folks bought them like hot cakes. Men working in the street would buy them and give me all the loose change they had, and start eating the radishes right there. This was in the days when the growing of vegetables in the town of Juneau was just beginning on much of a scale. The governor, Governor Strong at that time, gave prizes to the school children for growing vegetables.

I went all the way through town and ended up at the harbor where there was a little Japanese fellow living in a house boat. I had just two bunches of white radishes left in my basket, and I happened to notice, when I went on his house boat that he had the inside of the little house stacked with fire crackers and fireworks of all kinds.

When I said I wanted to buy some, he asked me if I would trade the radishes. Of course I would. Then he filled my basket up to overflowing with every kind of fireworks. I could not believe my eyes, and the Japanese smiled from ear to ear at the surprised look that must have been on my face. I was a millionaire in Fourth of July fireworks. This was just a few days before the Fourth. I divided the fireworks with my brothers when I got home.

I was always making presents for my Mother and Father in school and bringing them home. Also for my brothers. I made my Mother a little woolen set of a Scotch Cap, scarf, and muff out of red and green yarn for Christmas. I brought wild flowers to my Mother all summer from the woods for a "Flower shower".

Mother was always telling me to love my brothers and my Father and be good to them. So from time to time I would give them presents. My Mother and Father used to draw me pictures for us children to entertain us through the long winters. Some of our favorite pictures that they drew were ducks.

On this trip home with my fire-works I saw a celluloid duck in the window. I hadn't given my father anything for a long time so I bought this duck for my father, for a fourth of July present.

Mother smiled her golden blue-eyed smile of delight; for she loved to see me be kind and loving to my Father, and brothers. My father carried this duck with him on his travels all his life.

So you see, remembering Christmas, Halloween, Thanksgiving, and Fourth of July will set you to dreaming, bringing back days of your childhood as clear as day.

July is a great little month for dreaming and for making dreams come true.

Shady Says A Word
 Dear Friends everywhere:

I know the Ridge Runner thinks fireworks are great and no doubt he had a lot of fun with them when he was a boy. But he was lucky. Fireworks are really dangerous. And July for all its happy times is full of dangers. I am not trying to spoil your fun. I am trying to see that you have a happy summer. You need to be careful swimming. Out in the middle of a lake or river, do not get out of your canoe or row boat to take a swim. That canoe or row boat can drift in the wind faster than you can swim. Be careful in driving. Be careful and watch everything. And be happy in July.

A Prayer for Pets
 I wish to thank Juan Duenez of 3609 La Luz, El Paso, Texas for the prayer he sent to the El Paso Times for "Today's Prayer" for June 30.

"We give thanks Oh, God, we give thanks and we invoke Thy name for those wondrous pets You gave us."

"A man's dog stands by him in prosperity and in poverty, in health and sickness, he guards the sleep of his pauper master as if he were a prince. When all other friends desert, he remains."

"Bless our wonderful pets, in Jesus name, Amen."

Say a prayer for everyone, and keep smiling.
 Yours, ever the same,
 Shady Logan

Greeter Guide Dog Retires

by Frida Bryan Hyatt

For years Muttsy served as greeter and guide for guests of Ponderosa Courts here. Now that he is 15 years old and has had surgery he has retired as official greeter. But he still sings, with his master Joe Reinhardt, "How much is that Doggie In The Window?"

All Joe has to do is start singing the song. Muttsy will sit up and bark at the end of each line— just at the right time.

For years the unusual trail guide and greeter in Ruidoso delighted guests with his natural ability. "He is a tan and white Welsh Corgi", says Joe, speaking of Muttsy, a dog in a class all his own. "Corgis are rated the best cattle dogs in the world", he adds. "There are not many of them in the United States because people don't realize what fine pets they make."

Muttsy is indeed quite a pet. Mr. and Mrs. Reinhardt own the Ponderosa Courts. Muttsy owned, for many years, the greeting and welcoming part of it. He knew many tricks and he was self-taught.

"What impressed me most", says Joe, "and amazed the guests was that Muttsy met each one of them and welcomed them. If they brought their pets (we permit lap dogs) Muttsy not only made friends with them, he protected them. He kept other dogs away from them."

The Reinhardts have had their welcomer since he was weaned 15 years ago. At Christmas time he gets stacks of cards and letters from all over the country. People who have stayed at the courts, especially children, remember the short-legged, friendly dog.

When parents call for reservations the first question is "Do you have a vacancy?" The second question is: "How is Muttsy? or How is the Great Mutt?"

"When a guest arrives Muttsy is ready to 'sing' with me", Mr. Reinhardt points out. He has perfect timing on the doggie song. It is one of his outstanding tricks and he still does it.

The land north of the cabins operated by the Reinhardts drops sharply down to the Ruidoso River. There are a lot of these trails. To the west, trails lead up to the Lookout Tower, a fire lookout perched on top of a mountain.

Muttsy knows all these trails. He knows the guests who come to the courts, too. Mr. Reinhardt explains: "If they were regular guests, Muttsy was well aware of it and glad to take them on one of the trails. But if they were strangers he insisted they unload some of their luggage first. Then he would show them along one of the trails." All Mr. Reinhardt needed to say was: "Take them to the river."

Muttsy would start toward the network of trails leading on the river. He sized up the situation. If anyone was fishing on the river or if a car was parked on the river alongside one of the trails, he selected another one. Muttsy took a few steps, looked back, and made sure he was being followed.

"If someone took a short cut", said Joe, "Muttsy felt he was not responsible for that person and was through with him. He also led people up to the Lookout Tower, a trek of about two miles. He took it slowly so they could keep up with him."

In the Reinhardt living quarters Muttsy would play hide and seek, his favorite sport. Mr. or Mrs. Reinhardt could hide in any part of the area— in a closet or behind any article of furniture. The dog would find them.

Ruidoso calls itself "The Year Around Playground of the Southwest", and rightly so. Certainly one of its attractions is Muttsy, a smart cattle dog that has become a genius with people and beloved by a host of "fans."

"Sorry but Mr. Hughes does not need a publicity man."

BICENTENNIAL NOTEBOOK

Donald Whisenhant
Watchful Waiting

While the storm clouds were gathering in the aftermath of the conflict at Lexington and Concord, all eyes were on Philadelphia for it was here that the second meeting of the Continental Congress was scheduled to convene on May 10, 1775.

When the first Congress adjourned in October, 1774, it had scheduled a second meeting for May, 1775. Having no idea that war would begin the second meeting was designed to assess the impact of the economic boycott — the Association — against British products. Now with fighting having already begun and with military forces being created in the colonies, the job of the second Congress would be much more serious and important.

Despite the tense political and military situation, life did go on in other ways. For example, the painter Copley is said to have injected the first note of romanticism in 1775 in his painting, "Brook Watson and the Shark." This painting depicted a naked boy attacked by a shark while his friends in a boat tried to rescue him. "Unlike other 18th century masters, Copley did not try to paint morals or load the painting with intellectual content."

During the same year the first surgical textbook written in America was published by Dr. John Jones, personal physician to both Benjamin Franklin and George Washington. Titled "Remarks on the Treatment of Wounds and Fractures," it is a far cry from the sophisticated surgical techniques available today. In fact, surgery and all medical practices were in a very primitive stage of development. As is so often the case, advances in medical knowledge were to be greatly enhanced by the Revolutionary War that was just beginning. Wartime conditions usually provide more opportunities for physicians to try new methods and for experimentation because of the unusual circumstances of war. That was certainly the case during the Revolution.

In Spanish New Mexico the conflict described last week continued. In addition to harassing Spanish settlers, the Plains Indians also presented a danger to the Pueblos. For example, on May 1, 1775, residents of the Pecos Pueblo were attacked while working in their fields by a band of Comanches. In the ensuing struggle three Comanches were killed and several were wounded. Three of the Pecos Indians were also killed and three horses were stolen. Two days later Santa Clara Pueblo was raided by a band of Navajos who stole several horses.

The continued problem for Spanish officials in New Mexico was defense against these small hit-and-run attacks. Since they were never provided with adequate resources, such attacks were a very common occurrence.

NATIONAL ORATORICAL WINNER

J. Burgess goal is A-A Futurity

When Jerry Burgess was a senior in high school, he took part in a national oratorical contest. The finals were held in Oklahoma City, and Jerry, already showing a way of getting ahead, won first place. His subject was rural electrification.

Burgess then decided to major in speech—but since he needed to pay his own way, it took three colleges and nine years before he finally got his degree from Northeastern State University.

Burgess' moonlighting work was a little unusual. "Ever since I was nine years old—and weighed about 45 pounds—I'd been riding in match races in Oklahoma," he recalled. "I kept on riding when I went to college. Usually, I'd ride in a mutual meeting in New Mexico in the fall, then go back to college in the spring. So it took a while to get my degree, but I stuck with it."

During those long college years, Burgess considered becoming a veterinarian. Then he decided he'd try to capitalize on his gift for gab, and got into the communications field. Today, Burgess does his best talking to horses. "He's one of the finest chips-down riders in this part of the country, especially when it comes to a hundred-grand quarter horse dash which requires ice-berg nerves, a cool hand, tremendous talent and that instinctive knack for getting home first."

Burgess, now 31, spends his summers at Ruidoso Downs, where he's currently in a nip-and-tuck battle with Willie Lovell over the lead in the jockey standings. Burgess, like Lovell and Jerry Nicodemus and a handful of others, are the men you look to if you think you've got a quarter horse which can run—really run.

Today, Burgess isn't nearly as concerned with rural electrification as he is with the $1 million All-American Futurity. "But you know, an ability with words—an ability to communicate with people—is important," Burgess says in that methodical, iceman way of his. "If you can talk with people, it's a big help in getting along. It's a help in whatever endeavor you're in. The way I see it, a lack of communication causes so many problems, and hard feelings. I can see this in my work as a jockey. Just to be able to really communicate with the trainers and owners you work with—that's a great asset."

Burgess started riding in New Mexico in 1965. Since 1970, Ruidoso Downs has been the mainstay on his circuit. Burgess has a way of finding himself on stock of the first water. For example, he rode Top Bug, the champion two-year-old of 1968. He was also the man aboard another national champion, Cinder Leo. Then there's Full Moon Zee-tee, a champion two-year-old who ran up winnings of $125,000.

Burgess also piloted Mr. Hay Bug, who collected about $178,000. His current assignments include Showum Jet, a winner of some $140,000 so far; the two-year-old colossus, Bugs Alive In 75; and Chicory Moon, who wins stakes with clockwork regularity. "Chicory Moon is one of my favorites," Burgess says. "He's been so consistent. I've started with him about 37 times, and we've won about 24 races."

Basically, the way Burgess sees it, this business of riding race horses, and competing in races which carry purses of several hundred thousand dollars, is a bit abnormal. The pressure can be intense. "But the trick is to live a normal life, and not let the pressures get to you," he said. "If you let your job affect you, your whole life ceases to be normal. You can't worry about an upcoming race. But you've got to treat those big races a little differently. You've got to be mentally prepared and well rested. You need a good night's sleep. I'm not at all restless the night before a big race. But the night after, I review the race in my mind—as if it were on film in a projector. Win, lose, or draw—I re-run the race, trying to figure out what I did wrong, or what I did right, or what I need to improve. You learn something from every race."

When you get right down to it, it's pretty gratifying to win a race, he says. "Look at this way. Every year several thousand horses start their racing careers. Just a few are winners. To be able to ride one of these horses gives you a big sense of accomplishment—besides being pretty good for your bank account."

But one goal that's eluded him so far is the All-American Futurity. "That's the race I've been trying to win. I've ridden a third, two fourths and a fifth in the All-American. When you're in the starting gate for that race, you're in a different world. The drama is immense. But you take it calm and easy, and tell yourself it's just another race. You need fast-gut reflexes, and tremendous co-ordination—all in just a short burst of time."

If Burgess ever wins the All-American, he'll probably make a great after-dinner speaker on the subject. And that's a long way from rural electrification.

Lincoln County 4-H to take Red Cross course

A special Red Cross swimming program for members of the Lincoln County 4-H Club will be held at the Carrizozo municipal swimming pool in the near future. The program is under the direction of long-time 4-H leader Mrs. Truman Spencer, Jr.

"Better Be Safe Than Sorry" and "Don't Overestimate Your Ability" will be the themes of the program. The session, the fifth annual summer for the program, will be taught by Nancy and Jackie Dross, qualified life guards under the Red Cross program.

Classes will be conducted each Tuesday morning and will include verbal as well as swimming lessons. Such things as sunstroke, heatstroke, insect bites, snake bites, eye and fish hook injuries, broken backs and necks from diving, and preventative measures for lightning storms, will be covered in the program.

In Passing

By ALL LANE
"Big Brother" is here! The big brother we read about in the quasi-science fiction of "1984" several years ago that eavesdropped on all the citizens of the country and made their decisions for them. Now the federal government is sponsoring numerous "toll-free" numbers, by which you may report on your neighbor. We have been informed that almost all bureaus now have such numbers for that purpose—with the latest being the EPA, where you may report your neighbor if you think he is spraying his yard with a chemical that endangers "the environment."

This smacks of Russia and old Germany, where even the children were taught to report their parents for "crimes against the state." We had always assumed that the laws of the land protected our citizens through the courts, without the necessity of reporting everything to a central governmental agency. — So we were wrong...

This is how race horses get those odd-ball names

Finding a name for the new baby or the dog is a simple affair. Babies are often named after dad or mom and the dog—barring any originality—will answer to Spot or Lassie.

But the naming of a race horse is a much more complicated matter. Usually, it takes some doing to get a name approved. And many horses have names so much alike it's easy for even the seasoned fan to get mixed up a bit now and then.

Professionals can have their problems, too. Take Bob Dudich, long-time announcer at Ruidoso Downs, Sunland Park and the New Mexico State Fair. Sound-alikes are his headaches.

"There were two horses which almost always raced in the same event and it would always create a tough call for me," says Dudich. "They were named Black Beau Deck and Dee Beau Black. You had to be on your toes to keep them straight during the running of the race."

The task of approving quarter horse names is the job of Jim Goodhew, chief of the New Registrations Department of the American Quarter Horse Association in Amarillo. He reviews all names submitted and then turns to his computer to see if they are acceptable.

"I can always tell what song country-and-western folks are listening to by the names they submit for their horses," Goodhew said. "I would say the 'Streaker' was the name of the year in 1974. We received thousands of names with the Streaker in there somewhere.

When 'Hello Dolly' was at its peak in popularity, five out of every ten we received included Dolly."

Some of the rules are broken more than others but they all get tested sooner or later. "Of course, any name that is off-color is not acceptable," he said. "There might be a little old lady out there somewhere who would really get upset about a name, so we have to be very careful."

"Sometimes we miss one and then all we can do is hope no one complains," Goodhew admits.

According to the American Racing Manual, almost 90 percent of the names submitted for thoroughbreds are rejected for some reason or another.

Naming a quarter horse is less difficult since the rules are not so restricting. If you want to name your quarter horse Alka-Seltzer Plus, you could do it, probably with a note of thanks from Miles Laboratories. But for a thoroughbred you'll have to ignore all product names. Neither is it allowed for a thoroughbred to carry any name that implies advertising or even hints at the promotion of a product.

Even if you love your mother-in-law, you can't name your thoroughbred after her without her written consent. But if she's deceased, you may use her name unless she did something to become famous or infamous.

I Am The One To Beat has a nice ring to it, but you couldn't use it as the handle for your thoroughbred or quarter horse since there's an 18-character limit. There are only 15 letters in the name but spaces and punctuation marks count as letters. If you tried to submit the same name this way—lamtheonetobeat—it might be acceptable (if it hasn't already been taken). Names of quarter horses can only be used once. For thoroughbreds, a name could be used a second time if it hasn't been used within the last 15 years, or if it hasn't been made famous by Man O' War, Candy Spots, etc.

So with all the limitations on names, how do people find names for the thousands of horses that are registered each year?

Large ranches often develop a system for naming their charges. One ranch in Connecticut names its horses with the same letter all year, then switches to a new one the following year. For example, in 1969, all horses had names beginning with the letter A. In 1970, the key letter was B and so on. This lets the owner know immediately which year the horse was born, but it limits his name-choosing to a single first letter.

If you have a good stallion, many of his offspring are likely to reflect his name in theirs. There are probably hundreds of horses with the name Leo, Jet or Bars as part of their name.

With over 1,000,000 quarter horses' names already on file, it seems the possible choices are becoming limited. The next time you go to the races, look over the program. If you come up with a good name, mention it to an owner or trainer. They could use the help.
