

Commissioners air county road woes

Lincoln County Commissioners Tuesday resolved two road problems, tabled another and scheduled a special meeting to try and solve the long-standing road problem in Fort Stanton Ranchettes.

Attorney Bill Payne, representing J.J. Di Paolo, requested the county to construct a road in exchange for an easement from Di Paolo. Payne said, "We've got an undedicated road going snakelike across his 40 acres and the adjacent property owners will agree to join Di Paolo in offering the easement. We're faced with the alternative of closing this road one way or the other and people can't get to their property."

Commissioner John Sudderth reiterated his opinion of the six-month-long problem and said, "We feel the property owners there should settle their own differences and the county does not want to be the mediator. We see Jim Wimberly and his attorney one meeting, then Di Paolo and his attorney the next meeting. There is an undercurrent from some people objecting to a road to benefit just one person."

The commission agreed to schedule a December 6, 10 a.m. special meeting "with both sides present and all interested parties to settle this thing once and for all."

Approval for vacation of an easement near Cedar Creek in West Cedar Subdivision was given to Tim Collins, contingent upon a physical investigation by county manager Les Olson.

The commission also approved a request from Otero Electric Coop to vacate Nogal

Avenue, 6th Street and an alley between 6th and 7th streets near Capitan. C.L. Brown, representing the Coop, said an agreement drawn up in 1900 was never accepted by Capitan and these roads are not within the village limits.

Another request involving Capitan was made by Phyllis Knapp who accused Village of Capitan employees of ruining Knapp Road in Thunderbird Hill subdivision. Knapp charged, "Our kids are having to walk two miles to catch the school bus because Capitan's water line installation has made this road impassable. We built the road under county subdivision regulations and put six inches of gravel on it. Now it's completely covered with mud and Capitan says it's not their problem even though it's within the city limits."

Sudderth told Knapp, "It seems to be the obligation of Capitan."

Knapp said, "Capitan accepts no obligations."

The commission took no action, but did instruct Olson to go look at the situation and report his findings at the next regular meeting.

In other action, the commission:

- Agreed to purchase two citizen band radios for the ambulances.
- Increased the county manager's annual salary to the same amount as elected officials receive — $13,200.
- Tabled signing joint powers agreement and appointing members to Regional 6 Mental Health Planning System.

- Appropriated $2,500 to the County Fair Grounds for acquisition and operational costs.
- Accepted Southwest Communications' bid of $1,989 for a transmitter tower and installation.
- Accepted Burrough's bid of $31,905 for new computer equipment to be delivered by January 15, 1977.
- Approved the Village of Ruidoso's request to use a county voting machine in the March municipal election.

Sudderth, in reviewing the recent national election said, "There was a lot of confusion and not enough parking area at precincts 11, 13 and 14 in Ruidoso. People had to stand out in the cold and by the time a lot of them found their correct precinct voting place, it was too late to vote. This is not a political consideration, but a matter of convenience and I think the three precinct voting machines should all be housed in the new facility at White Mountain school for the next election."

County clerk Barbara Lovelace told Sudderth that State law requires each polling place to be within the boundaries of the respective precincts.

Sudderth said, "The present system in Ruidoso is unsatisfactory and I'll talk to Ernestine Evans (Secretary of State) to see what we can do about it. I intend to improve the situation."

The next regular meeting of the Lincoln County commission will be held at 10 a.m., Tuesday, December 7 at commission chambers in the Carrizozo court house.

Bicentennial Thanksgiving

Thanksgiving, and the meaning of it that has been handed down to succeeding generations since the time of the Pilgrims, has undergone constant changes in concept.

No longer does the Thanksgiving observance dwell upon the hardships of those hardy adventurers, seeking respite from religious persecution abroad, who established a new home here wherein they might follow their religious beliefs without fear of reprisal. History, and it was indeed well romanticized, tells us the Pilgrims did set aside a day of feasting and of prayer mainly in observance of their newly founded freedom — and accounts would have us believe that our forefathers were indeed thankful for the blessings, though well disguised in hardship, they claimed as theirs.

Today Thanksgiving is a moment's respite from our labors — there's choice food — companionship — freedom to worship — and perhaps even a moment might be set aside to reflect upon those things for which we should be duly thankful.

For starters we can be thankful we're not living under the regime of a despot . . . Communism . . . or in any nation in the throes of political upheaval.

Unfortunately there will be those, in this land of plenty, who may not enjoy a bounteous Thanksgiving dinner . . . but perhaps we can be thankful that their numbers will be miniscule compared to those legions of the hungry in lands where personal freedoms are forbidden by the state.

Can there be those among us who will, this day, have nothing to be thankful for? The sobering thought is that there are . . . and ever will be. Democracy is not the answer to national bliss . . . but it comes closer to achieving this euphoric state than any other form of government in history.

Surely everyone can think of someone less fortunate . . . everyone has at least one blessing . . . and, if nothing else, for that each of us can be thankful this Thanksgiving Day.

SNMEDD'S NICK PAPPAS:

'County needs unemployment census taken'

South Central Mountain R&CD was advised Tuesday by Nick Pappas, executive director of SNMEDD, Roswell, to inaugurate a Lincoln County unemployment census "as soon as possible."

Pappas suggested that current unemployment figures and percentages were possibly far greater than figures available to his office.

"You should be able to interest organizations in the county, like the Chamber of Commerce and civic groups and clubs in getting behind this census," Pappas said. "It is vital to the county to know the unemployment rate and if you present it properly, I believe you can get all the help you need."

Pappas noted that the Public Works Administration has solid funding and that $7 million is available for distribution to areas in NM exceeding the 7.4% national unemployment figure and that $3 million is on hand for use by areas with a somewhat lower rate of unemployment.

"Revenue Sharing, Manpower Training including CETA programs and HUD projects," Pappas told The News, "are all based on the unemployment rate."

"Revenue Sharing helps maintain general services, Manpower Training provides jobs and HUD, through the Commercial Development Act, has funding to combat poverty, unemployment and to correct substandard housing problems."

"I believe, if this unemployment census were to be taken, that Lincoln County and the municipalities could benefit."

"One area of help is possible through requesting a government team to work through the unemployment office with the organizations that would volunteer to conduct this census."

A request from Ruidoso Downs for a new municipal building/city hall complex is, Pappas said, "under consideration and we should have an answer or acceptance or rejection within three weeks."

Regarding the proposed Sierra Blanca Airport, Pappas told the SCM, "There are

No skiing

In spite of the fact Baldy is balder than ever, the rumor persists that Sierra Blanca ski course will open Thanksgiving Day — regardless.

"Not so," say ski area spokesmen, "and we won't be opening until we get more snow."

Village halls closed Friday

The village halls of Ruidoso and Ruidoso Downs will be closed Friday to give employees a four-day Thanksgiving week end, in compliance with the accepted statewide holiday schedule for municipalities.

Downs trustees authorize A-A Park planning

The Ruidoso Downs trustees Monday evening authorized planning of the All-American Park to begin Friday, with preparatory work to begin as soon as feasible.

Wally Hjalquist, a licensed contractor, was designated as supervisory consultant on the park project at a set fee of $2,000. Trustee Don Clark was named to represent the village in planning procedures, with action taken to be presented at regular council meetings.

Hjalquist presented a $32,000 park budget, "with a contingency factor", covering plans for the park previously considered by the trustees.

Portions of the plan exceeding $1,250, including the all purpose courts, playground equipment and rest rooms, will be advertised for bids.

Lighting for the area, Hjalquist suggested, could be obtained by having "Community Public Service install and maintain the fixtures with the village to pay only for the cost of electricity."

Under this plan the village will issue all purchase orders and make payment for same.

To stay within the budget, Hjalquist said, it will be necessary for the village to provide laborers.

"The overall project (once materials are acquired) could be completed in as little as one month," Hjalquist said, "but the availability of labor will possibly stretch it out for up to four months."

In other action the trustees:

- Heard a report from Richard Guilez, mayor of Tularosa and president of the NM Municipal League, on legislative

Stolen truck impounded in Ruidoso

A white diesel truck, allegedly stolen in Miami, FL, two years ago, was impounded at Tommy Hall Excavating in Ruidoso Tuesday by FBI agents in Alamogordo, Lincoln County Sheriff Lee Vega told The News Wednesday morning.

A suspect in the truck theft, Rusty Zumwalt, has been apprehended in Georgia, Vega said.

The News' efforts to contact the FBI in Alamogordo were unsuccessful at press time.

RHS Office Education officers at conference

Liz Rue and Janice Crenshaw were two Office Education Association chapter officers attending New Mexico's second Leadership Dynamics Conference in Glorieta last weekend.

Rue is president of the Ruidoso High School OEA and Crenshaw is historian of the chapter. Jean Spurlock accompanied the two students to the seminar.

More than 300 members of some 50 chapters representing every county in New Mexico attended workshops and heard guest speakers during the two-day conference.

Special guest and general workshop instructor was Charles Dygert, teacher-educator at Ohio State University and state advisor to Ohio's Vocational Industrial Clubs of America.

Gold-mustached man problem to sheriff

The law books apparently don't cover the problem the Lincoln County Sheriff's department had recently with a gold-mustached man.

The Village of Carrizozo police department picked up a man who had been sniffing gold spray paint from a soft drink can. Pressing no charges, the department released him. Later the same day, Charley Engelking, sheriff's deputy, was called to Capitan to arrest a weird acting man who was sniffing from a beer can.

"It was the same darned guy,"

Engelking said, "and he was so gooney and high he didn't know what he was doing. I took him in and on the way over to the jail, I asked him if he realized he was doing irreparable damage to his brain. He was even trying to sniff the gold paint off his mustache."

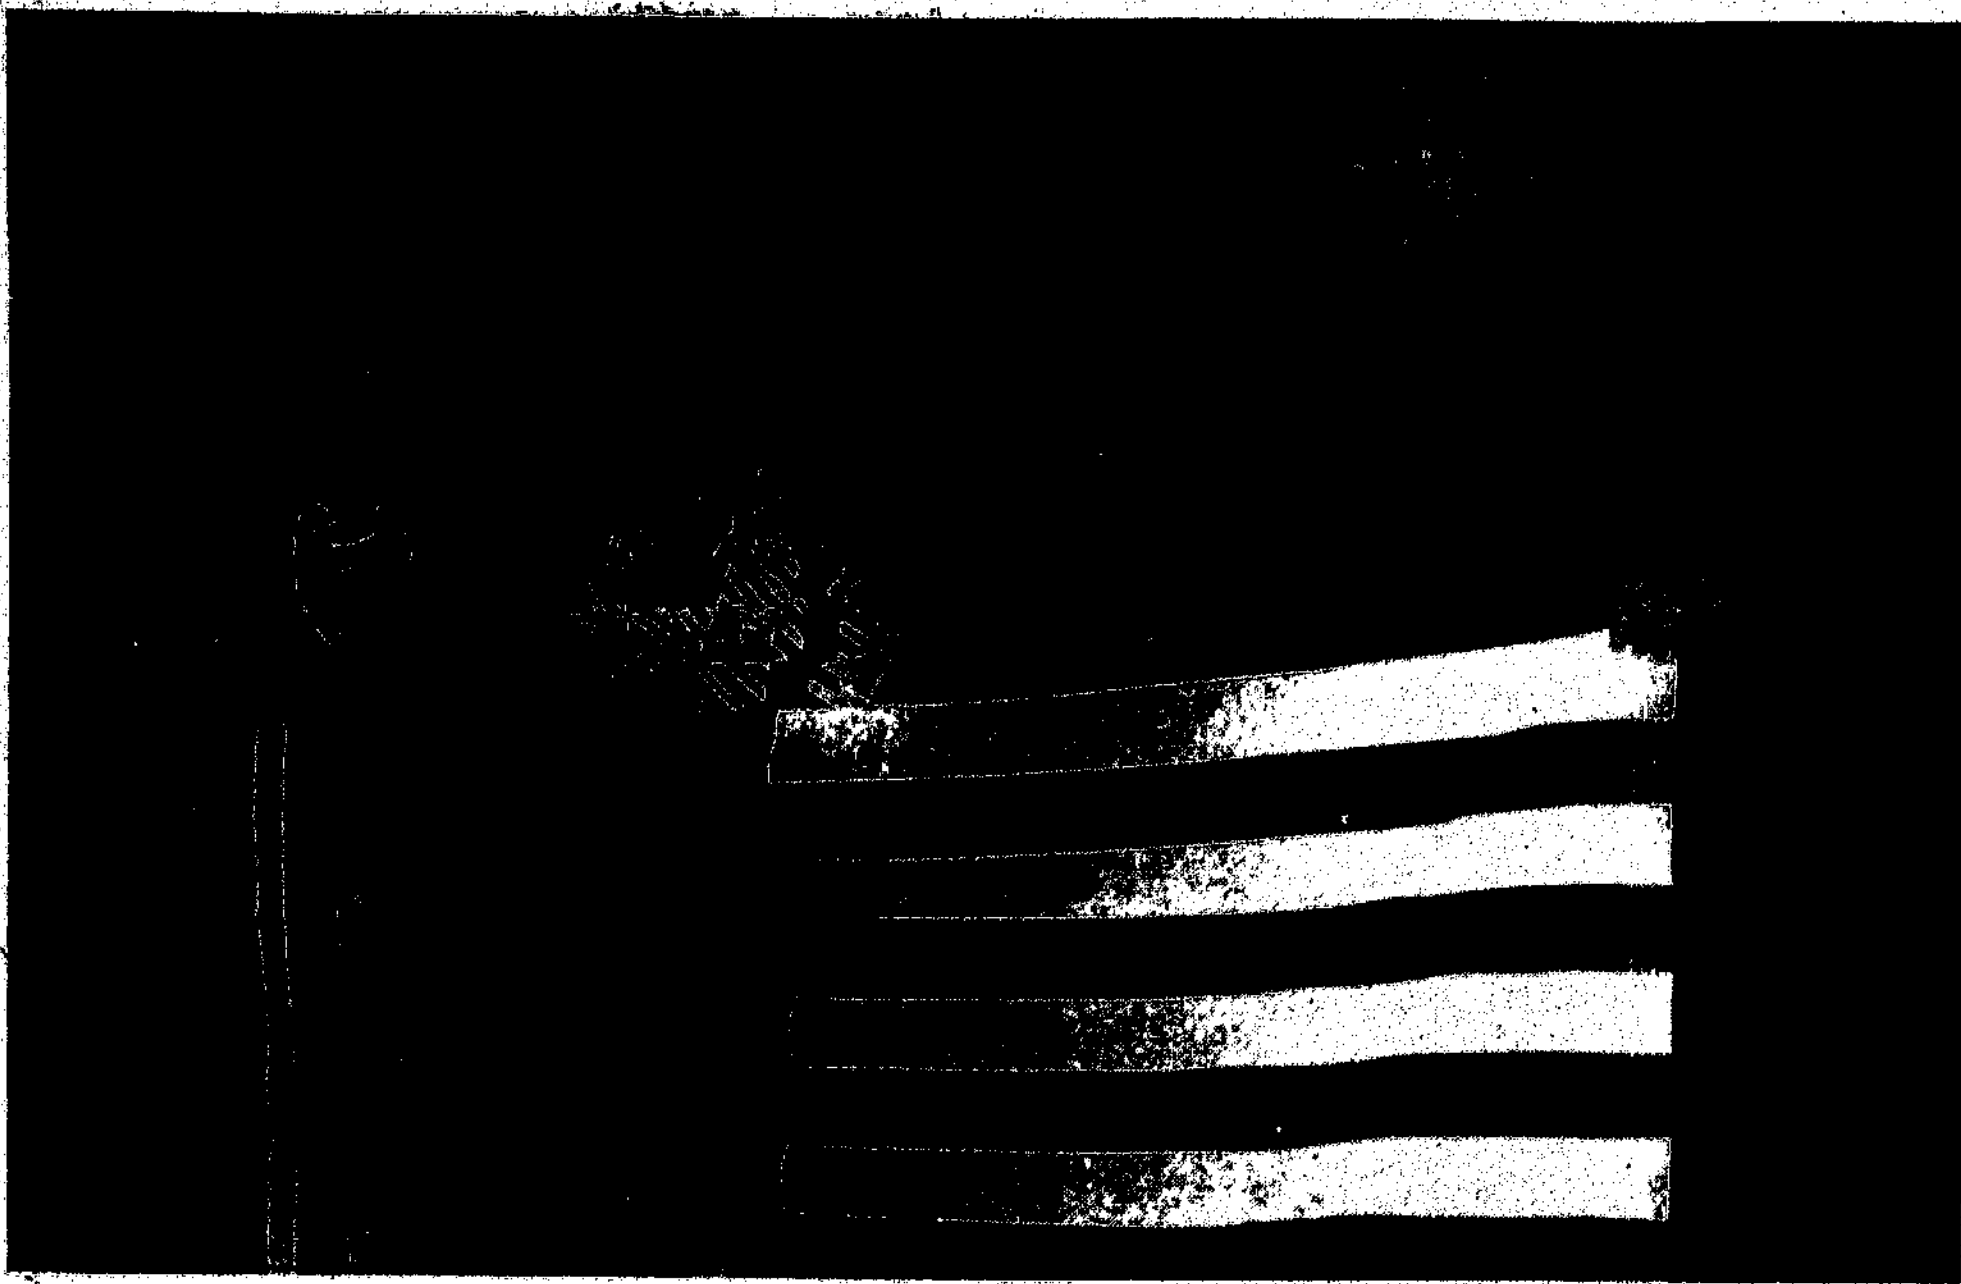

Engelking said the man answered, "God is my director. He reserved ten percent of man's brain for glue and paint sniffing and I'm using that ten percent with no harm."

"We ran a check on him," Engelking said, "and found out he'd been arrested 27 times for everything from lewdness to burglary. We found the law prohibits glue sniffing, but it doesn't specify paint. It was a bitterly cold day and this man had no extra clothes, no money and no food. The judge finally sentenced him to 30 days on a disorderly conduct charge — a catchall charge — and suspended the last 28 days on the condition he would go on to Roswell and seek employment, as he had told us he would do.

"I hope we never see him again. If a guy wants to damage his brain, that's his business, but not if he hurts someone else."

NAVY RECRUITERS honored Buckley Real Estate of Ruidoso, for services "above and beyond" rendered to the Roswell Navy Recruiting Station in providing office space, telephone and an

District, Floyd Buckley, Sallie Buckley, Capt. Andy Barrett, Navy Recruiting Area Seven, Dallas, and Ken Buckley pose with the Navy's appreciation gift.

Specialist explains planning

Community development is one of those subjects that seems difficult to understand, says Ricardo Pino, Extension community development specialist for New Mexico State University.

Perhaps the confusion stems from too many definitions and perceptions of community development. Although it's not easy to solve the problem, it can be done, Pino says.

The community development process is a method or technique for planning and developing.

Some people wonder if planning is necessary. Pino believes that if you look at the situation in New Mexico you will find that planning is not only important but very necessary. Some communities are gaining population while others are losing population. In many instances industrial development is on the increase. Farming systems are constantly changing. Of course, change is not new. However, today it seems to be happening faster, Pino says. Change brings both problems and opportunities. Intelligent forethought is needed to guide changes in the direction people feel is desirable.

Planning is not new — in fact it has been going on for years and years. The farmer plans in advance, as do successful manufacturers, merchants, financial institutions, and even homeowners. Planning is mapping out the future you hope to achieve. Successful individuals chart where they are going and what they want to accomplish.

The same principle applies to communities. They need some blueprints for the future. They need to define goals and determine how best to achieve them.

Planning for community development is much harder than planning as an individual. This is where some people have problems understanding community development, says Pino.

Planning should involve enough community people so that the plan represents their wants and meets their needs. Therefore, it's important that this plan be developed by the community people and not by an outsider. This is the only way that the community planning process can give the citizens the change they desire.

Fall cleanup reduces garden disease woes

As winter approaches, flowers and vegetables are feeling the effects of early frosts and the trees and shrubs are turning their characteristic fall colors. Before putting your gardening tools in the garage for the winter, you need to complete your "clean-up" to help reduce plant disease next year, says Emroy Shannon, Extension plant pathologist at New Mexico State University.

Many plant disease-causing bacteria and fungi survive the winter in the debris left in the garden and under trees and shrubs. This serves as the initial source of infection the following spring.

Leaves that have accumulated under trees and shrubs should be collected and destroyed.

The old dog who can't learn the new tricks about conserving energy will be the one with the biggest bill!

In the past few years most people have been made aware of how important it is to conserve our valuable energy sources. Through wise home energy management, millions of Americans are contributing to the conservation effort. And while they're saving energy, they're also saving on utility bills. Wise home energy management should be a part of daily living. Turning off lights when you leave the room, switching off radios and TV's that nobody is enjoying, insulating your homes properly, purchasing the proper size heating and cooling units and changing or cleaning filters every month . . . these are some of the energy conserving measures being practiced today. With the cost of fuels constantly rising, wise home energy management is one way to save both energy and money! For more information on energy management in the home, give us a call.

Supplemental rent monies available in Ruidoso area

A housing program is available to supplement rent payments of low income families in the Ruidoso area, according to Gliserio Rodriguez, inspector-counselor of Region VI Housing Authority in Roswell.

Rodriguez said a portion of the total rent payment can be made on behalf of a low income tenant by a housing assistance payment contract between a property owner and the Regional Housing Authority.

Known as "Section 8", the program regulates housing standards for each rental unit on the basis of minimums set by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

The family pays an amount, determined by examination of income, family size and other conditions, directly to the landlord and the Housing Authority makes its portion of the payments directly to the landlord.

Plans are being made to establish a regular time and meeting place in Ruidoso where interested residents can counsel with housing authority representatives.

Until that time, Rodriguez said, families in Lincoln County can apply for assistance at City Hall in Capitan or at the County Courthouse in Carrizozo.

The Silver Lining

BY DANIEL AGNEW STORM

Indian Summer Day
Indian Summer arrived today (Monday, November 22). We are still in the season of Autumn, for Winter does not begin until December 22.

This first day of Indian Summer has all the mellow, dreamy charm of all the other years except that every way you look, there are no leaf colors. That is because the season of Winter got ahead of itself this time with some record breaking cold and the trees went to sleep early, dropping their leaves till next year. Many of the leaves were gone before they could color, while they were still green.

But today just after high noon, the thermometer has climbed up to sixty-two after a night when the cold got down to 18. It is like a summer day outside, with a balmy west wind coming down the vale. As you look up the way, the world is basking in the warm sun. The hills are a deep purple from the Indian Summer mist and from smoke from the fireplaces up the valley. The mountains seem so close, and the sky overhead is a soft, velvet blue to match the purple hills. The breath of the golden grass glowing in the sun reaches you on the breeze. The incense of pinon and cedar are carried to you on the gentle wind.

Such a peaceful hush in the early cold snap! The wind now hums a little Indian Summer song. Now the wind is quiet and all the world lapses from its dreaming into a half sleep. The mountain countryside of meadow, hill and vale seems to be smiling as it dozes for a moment in the sun's warm rays.

The blue birds are out drinking from the river, their blue colors flashing in the sunlit stream. The water is clearer than any other time of year, with every tiny pebble and grain of sand plainly showing as the silvery waters flow along.

Shady Logan takes a drink along with the blue birds, the sun glancing off the sparkling river outlining his white and golden body in a trim of light so that he is a little golden dog beside a silver stream.

A crow sings calmly as he glides above in the sky of velvet blue — a soothing call, telling you all is well. The Indian Summer afternoon holds you in its spell, awakening you to dreaming and remembering and filling your heart with thankfulness to God. And the words of the one hundred and seventh psalm come to mind:

"O give thanks unto the Lord, for He is good: for his Mercy endureth forever."

Eric Bruce celebrated his eighty-fifth birthday Friday, November 19. The Lion's Club gave him a fine celebration on Tuesday the 16th, presenting him with a birthday cake and new jacket.

Eric is an inspiration to us all and we thank God for the blessing he has always been among us. And we wish our dear friend many happy returns of the day.

Lake J. Frazier
Honored on His Fiftieth
Year in Roswell

On Friday, November 19, the City of Roswell paid tribute to one of its most beloved citizens, Lake J. Frazier.

A proclamation was issued by Mayor Jerry Smith, declaring November 19 "Lake J. Frazier Day."

At a reception in Ingalls Memorial Hall, Mayor Smith presented Lake a gift from the city, and read a tribute to the four-time mayor of the city, enumerating some of the many services rendered the people of Roswell during his fifty years of residence. Mayor Smith also read his proclamation.

Larry Hess, commander of the local D.A.V. chapter, on behalf of all Roswell Veterans presented Lake with a plaque briefly stating the gratitude of Veterans for Mr. Frazier's long service in their behalf.

Mr. Hesse said, "I think we can best characterize Lake Frazier in the words of the immortal football coach of Notre Dame, Knute Rockne:

"When the going gets tough, the tough get going."

Lake, in response to the many kind words, said, "I am grateful for having made so many friends. For this is what life is all about — not necessarily what we can gain for ourselves but what we can do for others."

A Bi-Centennial
Happy Thanksgiving

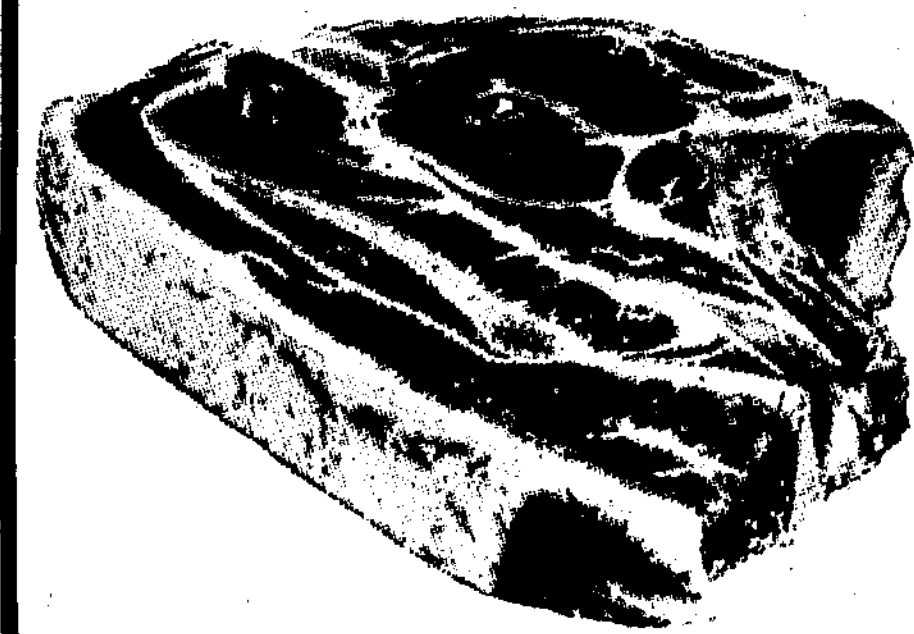

On behalf of Shady Logan, Jack Frost, the Snow Birds, and the Blue Birds, and the Pinon Birds, the Deer, the Coyotes and Foxes and all the other creatures around the Five-S Ranch, I wish you the happiest Thanksgiving you ever had. And, Oh, yes, the new dog, Solo Vino, sends his best wishes.

Let us all be especially thankful during this thanksgiving season of the two-hundredth birthday of our beloved country. Let us awaken in our hearts our deepest gratitude to God for his blessings of the past, today, and forever.

The '76 season was a good one for the Ruidoso Warriors. It left behind memories of joy and sadness in the hearts of every RHS athlete and fan.

The season jumped to a fast start as the varsity basketball record was 8-7. The team took third in the Ruidoso Classic, first in the Lincoln County Tourney, first at the Dexter Tourney, second at the Regional playoffs and third at the State Tournament in Albuquerque. The junior varsity team followed up with a season that proved to be a little more trying but full of valuable experience turning out a win-loss record of 2-13. The freshman and junior high teams had it easier with a win-loss record of 6-3 and 8-2 respectively.

The girls basketball team popped the net with a winning season, taking first at the Lincoln County Tourney in Capitan. The RHS matmen had a hard go of it with a record of 3-11 but came thru in the final rounds, sending four men to district and state. The Warrior wrestlers placed twelfth in the AA-AA State Tourney with 20 points and placed highest of all AA wrestling teams.

For the first time in Warrior history tracksters sprinted to first place in the district meet. They also placed seventh out of 28 teams in the State competition. The female members of the RHS track team also had a rewarding season taking second and third at most of their meets and sending one district runner to the State competition in the 440 and 220 yard races.

Golfing proved to be a successful sport this year as the RHS team placed very well at the district tourney.

School Scoop

The Chamber of Commerce and Ruidoso Public Schools got together to present Thanksgiving Ruidoso Style Nov. 23 at 7 p.m. in the gym.

The competition consists of five teams headed by Mr. Pat Valliant, Mr. Doyle Howell, and the three principals, Mr. Tom Hanson, Mr. Sid Miller and Mr. Mike Gladden. Each team has six players, three women and three men. The event was patterned like "Almost Any Thing Goes." All money made went to the School Funds.

FHA is moving into action Thursday Dec. 9 with the installation of new officers and members. There will be practice Monday Dec. 6 at 3:30 p.m. It will be held in the RHS home economics room at 7:00 p.m.

The Ruidoso Schools will be let out Thursday and Friday the 25 and 26 for the Thanksgiving holidays. They will resume school Monday Nov. 29.

Council looks at changes

The RHS Student Council held a meeting last Wednesday, Nov. 17, to discuss various topics concerning the council. A discussion was brought up concerning the change of the honor roll, in which you average all of your grades together to give you your final grade. Steven Parks brought up a petition that was signed by students and faculty members concerning the honor roll change. Some students and faculty members feel that our current honor roll is wrong and should be averaged into one grade. A vote passed that something be done about the matter.

In a later meeting the Student Council elected John Hall DAR Citizen of the Month, and Melanie McGuire Junior Rotarian. The Student Council plans to hold another meeting sometime after the Thanksgiving Holiday.

The girls came through again as the Volleyball team took first at District, second at Regional and second at State.

Tennis served to be another promising sport at RHS with two matches in the team's favor and high hopes of going to state in the near future. The last finalized sport of the '76 season in Ruidoso was Warrior football. The big guys on the varsity team won three games, tied two and lost five, then went to Jal for the bi-district championship and on into the semifinals. The junior varsity team had a tough season with no wins as opposed to the eighth and ninth grade teams' records of 4-0 and 1-3.

The Warrior athletes and fans are all hoping that the 1977 season will be as rewarding as the past year was.

Drama Club to attend contest

The Drama Club plans to attend the South Western High School Play Contest January 7 through 10 at UNM in Albuquerque. The trip will be financed by a ski raffle to be held soon.

Tryouts were held for the "Trysting Place" but because of the small number of parts Mr. Ken Newsom, drama teacher, has decided to choose another play. Tryouts will be held sometime after Thanksgiving.

At last year's contest in Albuquerque, the RHS Drama Club brought home 40 per cent of the awards given. They hope to do as well this year.

Journalism class attends workshop

The Ruidoso High School journalism class attended a workshop Nov. 23 in Hagerman. The purpose of the workshop was to demonstrate yearbook layout and design. It was hosted by Taylor Publishing Co. of Dallas and El Paso. Attending the workshop from Ruidoso were 18 students and their journalism teacher Mrs. Kathy Dacy. This workshop is a step in trying to improve the 1977 Tomahawk.

Seniors take test

Students from Ruidoso and the surrounding area took the ACT Assessment on Saturday, Nov. 20 at 8 a.m. in the Ruidoso High School cafeteria.

ACT analyzes and organizes the information that each student provides about his interests, abilities, experiences and goals. It then tests the students over four subject areas — English, Math, Social Studies, and Natural Sciences. All of this information is put into a Student Profile Report (SPR). The SPR's will then be released to the colleges and scholarship agencies chosen by the student.

The report provided by the ACT Assessment is so complete that many colleges accept the ACT report in place of their usual admissions application form.

hold dinner

The Ruidoso Booster Club held a football and volleyball banquet last Monday, Nov. 22, for all the varsity cheerleaders, football players, volleyball players and the players' parents.

The banquet was held at the Ruidoso High School cafeteria. The food was brought and prepared by the members of the Booster Club in honor of the players. Basketball season

Inside the Capital by Fred Buckles

SANTA FE — Rep. Von Rue Crawford, R-Hidalgo-Luna, would not require purchase of a motor vehicle tag in New Mexico until a driver had lived in the state six months.

Crawford will propose the change in the 1977 Legislature meeting Jan. 18. He said a vehicle license is required now after 90 days of residence. Crawford is trying to accommodate Deming area winter visitors. A Deming grocer, Rep. Crawford said he may ask the legislature to outlaw trading stamps in New Mexico. He said: "I'm a merchant myself and I prefer to merchandise on the merits of my products and on my services rather than on promotions such as trading stamps. It would be helpful to the state to promote more realistically through the media rather than through trading stamps. The consumer pays for the trading stamps in the end."

Rep. Crawford says a tax cut should be effected "if the surplus keeps building." He would reduce the gross receipts tax. "That way we would not disrupt our tax base," Rep. Crawford says.

A brief filed by the state in a U.S. District Court suit in Albuquerque, holds the state has a historical and legal right to regulate liquor sales on an Indian reservation. If that right is denied, the brief says, the state might move against a tribe's wholesale supplier. The brief was filed in a suit by the U.S. Justice Department for Mescalero Apache Tribe. The tribe holds that, under its powers of self-government, it doesn't need a state license to sell liquor at its Inn of the Mountain Gods resort near Ruidoso. The state brief contends the 21st Amendment to the U.S. Constitution (which ended prohibition) requires the tribe to obtain a license. It says the amendment gave the states clear power to regulate all liquor within their borders. The brief also says: "The state's clear power to stop sales by wholesalers to unlicensed operations requires the tribe to get a license or see its supply stopped."

The State Highway Commission will open bids Dec. 3 on a bridge replacement project in Quay County on NM-18 about 8.3 miles north of NM-86. A 2-lane span 120 feet long is specified.

Stanley Egli, administrator of Espanola Hospital, was chosen by St. Vincent Hospital board of trustees at Santa Fe to replace Santa Fean Benjamin Padilla who resigned. Egli received 10 of 15 board votes.

Gov. Jerry Apodaca appointed Merhage (Junior) Michael, 49, of Grants to the Valencia County Commission. A merchant and rancher, Michael had been assistant county manager for Western Valencia County for 18 months. A San Mateo native, he said he would quit his county job immediately.

A magistrate court jury acquitted Frank Tabet, Belen businessman, on two counts of selling packaged liquor on Sunday. The jury in Magistrate Gilie Sanchez's court found Tabet innocent in Los Lunas of selling liquor in his store on two Sundays, May 2 and 9.

The Water Development Committee, headed by outgoing Sen. Odis Echols, D-Clovis, recommended a $500,000 appropriation by the 1977 Legislature for water research, conservation and development. The interim legislative committee said in its final report: "New Mexico water problems will be the crisis of the future. The problems of providing all of New Mexico with water on an economical basis may compare with the state's present energy crisis in the 1980s and 90s." State Engineer Steve Reynolds said the water problem is worsening in Curry, Lea and Roosevelt Counties. Underground water is mined heavily for irrigation. The water table is being lowered. Wells must be drilled deeper and costs mount accordingly. Rep. Crawford, a member of the interim committee, said a serious water problem also exists in Southwestern New Mexico.

Central Valley Electric Cooperative, Artesia, asked the Public Service Commission to approve rate increases. A PSC hearing is set Dec. 16 in Santa Fe. The composite residential rate would be raised 7.1 percent. For 250 kilowatt hours per month the residential rate would be raised from $9.05 to $9.49, up 4.86 percent, exclusive of a cost of power purchase factor. The cooperative serves customers in Chaves, Eddy and Lea Counties.

Rep. Tom Brown Jr., D-Eddy-Chaves, looks for a rugged 60-day general legislative session. Rep. Brown says he will probably reintroduce his bill to cut state income taxes by moving all wage earners down one tax bracket. All wage earners would benefit but middle and low income groups would receive the most advantage. Brown says: "The principal purpose is to help people whose incomes have risen in the last five or six years but inflation has eroded their purchasing power."

Rep. Murray Ryan, R-Sierra-Grant, says: "For the third or fourth year in a row there is room for tax reduction. I would like to see it in the income tax area with special consideration for middle income residents. Increased coal and uranium taxes should be in severance taxes and the revenue should be put into the permanent severance tax fund."

Sen.-elect Lawrence Goodell, D-Chaves-Eddy, will ask for assignment to the Senate Conservation Committee. Goodell noted the committee considers oil, water and agricultural legislation, subjects vital to his district.

Highest bid at a State Land Office sale in regular sale oral bidding was by Union Oil Company of California for a tract 12 miles from Eunice.

Yours and Ours

editorial

There is an unanswered question behind Gov. Jerry Apodaca's proposal to whittle the number of governmental agencies to a functional few, in view of the rebuff he suffered at the hands of the voters on his favored "Yes for Two" amendment, and that is: What is the political motivation behind it? — CD

by billie surmick

Bill Carpenter passed through Ruidoso this weekend and after dragging main one time, he mused, "I'd forgotten my home town is so small that the ice cream shop has just one flavor."

We've often chuckled over my step-brother who, years ago, was taking an unusually long shower — from the sound of the running water. Pat peeked in the bathroom to discover John sitting quietly and dryly on the floor several feet away from the shower. Little boys (circa '76) possess about the same amount of eagerness. Our vacuum had been running an unusually long time Sunday when I peeked in the room to see why No. 3-son Chad was taking so long to sweep a bedroom. There sat the sweeper busily humming in one corner and Chad busily humming in the opposite corner.

No. 2 & 3 sons are in the Valley of the Sun to celebrate Thanksgiving with their other parent and their mother has been abed with stomach flu. I think she got sick when she watched them take off with bathing suits and tennis rackets in hand . . .

Some slang expressions keep hanging around — century after century: Lousy (1690), Like a drowned rat (1508), Wild goose chase (1595), Three's a crowd (1430), Needle in a haystack (1563), So-so (1530) and It Never rains, but it pours (1749).

Some organizations are involved in productive projects. Others aren't. Initiating, tea-sipping, black-balling and tongue-wagging are okay. Offering a helping hand to a shut-in, young mother or oldster is better.

A man who slipped and fell on the floor of a hospital corridor got a first hand look at professional pride from a cleaning lady who said, "When I started to work here, them floors was in terrible shape. Since I've been doing them, you're the third person to fall down."

Chad announced to me that the Osmonds are "morons". I asked why he thought so and he told me that he'd read that they were. I questioned how they could be mentally deficient and be starring in a weekly television variety show. We asked Larry if he'd read anything like that and when he got through hysterically giggling, he gasped, "No, Chad, they're 'Mormons'."

The sins of omission were laid at my doorstep last week by a letter from an old friend. It was lamenting the end of our friendship . . . I couldn't believe that I'd been so busy being busy that I'd overlooked nourishing our relationship with regular letters and occasional phone calls . . . but I had. I spent the next day realigning my priorities and wiring her flowers.

Why does swallowing one's pride leave a lump in the throat?

OLD SKULLBUSTER

Once a whiskey barrel is empty, as the sea captains of yore who used to rock mighty harsh corn squeezings into meekness as they bounded over the briny would tell you, the chances of getting a headache out of that barrel are mighty slim.

Comes now the Consumer Product Safety Commission to say it ain't so . . . especially if'n you have your noggin too close to an used white oak whiskey barrel that someone, to preserve an aura of authenticity, left the bung in.

Say you're mighty proud of that barrel . . . and you like it handy by the fireplace. That barrel might have soaked up some 20 pounds of booze while used to smooth said booze to something approaching palatability . . . and all that heat can turn the whiskey residue to fumes . . . and said fumes can cause the plugged barrel to explode . . . and if'n you're leaning over it at that moment . . . whammo! Old skullbuster strikes again . . . and you've knots on your noggin . . . and the anvil chorus gets off on a wrong note.

With the major problem being . . . explaining to all of your Doubting Thomas pals that it was an empty whiskey barrel that almost did you in.

A SUCCESS FAILURE

Seems there was this man in California who wanted to become a daddy . . . being as he is the last male in his family tree and he wanted the name carried on . . . but his wife couldn't present him with a bouncing bundle of joy.

This threw said frustrated daddy into quite a tizzy . . . until he got to thinking about the cattle industry . . . and the part bulls play in populating the nation's farms with calves under a system much favored by cattlemen.

So . . . he advertised for a test tube mother . . . and found an agreeable female . . . and a doctor who'd attempt to carry out his wishes . . . and without him knowing her, or vice versa . . . in due course of time the joy of fatherhood was indeed his . . . only thing, he's right back where he started from, in his drive to perpetuate the family name . . . 'cause he test tube fathered a daughter.

Wonder what his interpretation of "half a chance" is.

MORE MINUTIAE

The Arabs, as they moved out of Persia after conquering it in the seventh century, gave the world the rose. As it turned out, they also gave the world enough oil to keep all the wheels turning anyone wanted to turn. As of today, the Arabs are once again in the position to give the world something . . . in this case it's their version of Winston Churchill's famous victory sign . . . the Arabs fold the forefinger.

A NMSU family finance specialist . . . familywise . . . has been busy pushing a pencil on the cost of bringing little income tax exemptions into being. And it's a right frightful cost . . . if'n the figures are right. Seems that a newly-born infant comes with a price tag of $2,194 . . . covering everything from doctor bills to crib. Thing like that might give tax consultants a new headache.

Place called Blazing Saddles . . . in Yonkers, NY . . . lived up to its name . . . and not in a blaze of glory . . . but in ragin flames that turned the edifice into a blazing inferno. Some of the local citizenry might take a moment's pleasure from the fact that the building . . . empty at the time of the fire . . . belonged to a motorcycle club. But . . . in view of the intense interest in motorcycles in these hills . . . and the people cycles bring . . . with saddle bags bulging with currency . . . to keep cash registers jinglin . . . it doesn't seem likely anyone with a cash register would wish ill to any motorcycle club . . . especially considering there'll be a gigantic convention here next fall.

Looks like Jimmy Carter's "good friend" . . . to quote Jimmy . . . Henry Kissinger isn't likely to benefit much from said friendship . . . which really doesn't leave much to be said for one-sided friendships. 'Course maybe Henry will convince Jimmy he needs him in the conduct of Jimmy's upcoming foreign affairs . . . and Jimmy isn't much for affairs . . . according to Playboy.

BRIEF BIT: Regardless of your bill of fare for Thanksgiving dinner . . . be truly thankful that you didn't have to pay twice as much for half as much . . . CD

Vocational educational promotional plan begins

Funding for a one-year pilot project to help eliminate the "social stigma" associated with vocational education has been awarded the New Mexico Advisory Council on Vocational Education, Executive Director Daniel Lopez announced today.

"By 1980 only 20% of the job opportunities will require a college education," Lopez said. "We feel that post-secondary vocational education is not only an alternative training for employment but possibly the only viable one for many

New Mexicans."

The proposal grant by the Vocational Education Division of the State Department of Education will involve radio and television spots, a film, and a series of workshops.

Jean Jordan has joined the Council staff as an Information Specialist to develop the multi-media federally-funded program. Along with Council members, Jordan will conduct informational workshops throughout the state.

"We hope to promote greater awareness among elementary and secondary students, local school board members, and the public in general of job opportunities through vocational training," Howard Cowper, chairman of the 18-member State Advisory Council, said.

Council members, who serve without pay, are appointed by the Board of Education and represent a wide cross-section of business and community leaders throughout the state. Their in-pit assures a direct correlation between business needs and vocational course offerings in the state's 8 vocational schools and high schools.

"Many people erroneously consider vocational education second-rate, a last resort for students who can't make it in college. It just isn't so," Lopez said. "The motivations and goals of vocational students simply differ from those who are college oriented."

Sewing leather requires care

Court Report

Sewing leather can be a real adventure. If you are considering sewing a leather project such as a coat, select the style carefully, says Susan Wright, Extension clothing specialist at New Mexico State University.

The size and shape of the skin or skins can limit your style choice. If the skins are small, garment pattern sections can be cut apart at suitable places and pieced. A yoke can be used or a center back seam may be necessary.

Before you begin, alter the pattern to fit. Trim around all the pieces on the cutting line. Because leather is cut as a single thickness, make duplicates of all pieces marked "cut two." Mark them "left" and "right." Also make a folded duplicate of pieces marked "place on fold."

Now you are ready to lay the leather out on a flat surface with the right side up. Direct the top of each pattern piece toward the neck of the skin. As with fabric, the lengthwise direction of leather is more stable than the crosswise.

Tape the pattern in place and cut out each piece carefully. Next, mark the construction details on the wrong side of the leather using a pencil or chalk. If marking must be done on the right side, use chalk or small pieces of magic transparent tape.

Before sewing on the garment, make a test seam to determine the correct machine needle size, pressure and thread tension. The needle size will vary with the weight of the leather — number 11 for lightweight, number 14 for medium weight and number 16 for heavy weight. Stitch the seams with polyester thread using no more than eight stitches per inch.

After determining the correct stitch and pressure, sew the garment as the pattern guide directs. As you work, use paper clips, bobby pins or magic transparent tape to hold garment sections together.

Sew seams carefully the first time, because ripping will leave permanent holes in the skin. Back-stitching seams may cause the leather to tear. Therefore, tie threads on the wrong side to secure seams.

Pressing seams in leather is done with your fingers or with a wooden mallet. Often after the seams are hammered open, they are glued flat using a special leather glue.

Topstitching with a very long stitch can also be used to keep seams flat. Seams may be topstitched on both sides to keep them flat. The seam allowance may also be turned to one side and topstitched in place. In casual styles, seams are often lapped and stitched to achieve a flat appearance.

If the garment has set in sleeves, attach them before sewing the garment side seams. Sleeves which must be eased into the armhole may appear too full. If so, the cap of the sleeve may be trimmed as much as one-quarter of an inch in the area above the notches. After trimming, match the edges of the sleeve to the armhole and paper clip them together so that the ease is evenly distributed. Sew the seam with the sleeve-side up to avoid stitching folds into the seamline. Then, sew the sleeve seam and side seam in one operation, Miss Wright says.

Edges such as hems and necklines can be finished in a variety of ways. For casual garments, simply trim the excess length or seam allowance off.

For a less casual finish, topstitch just inside the seam line before trimming. If a finished edge is desired, straight edges can be turned under one-half inch and glued or topstitched in place. If a curved edge is to be turned, it must be slashed or notched before it is finished.

Fasteners for leather garments will vary. If buttons are used, buttonholes can be made by cutting a slash and sewing a double row of straight stitching around it. A machine buttonhole can also be used if the stitches are widely spaced. For a very elegant look, make bound buttonholes.

1976 Small Business Person of the Year

[No. 3 of a series]

Paul L. Macler, President of Macler Industries, Friendship, New York, is one of the 1976 Small Business Persons of the Year selected by the U.S. Small Business Administration.

Young (33) Macler is something of a local celebrity and rightly so. He has been credited with revitalizing one of New York state's oldest foundries and bringing increased employment to his community.

Macler Industries produces a wide range of castings used in the automotive field, such as carburetor parts and parts used in power steering, hydraulic brakes and air pollution control. More than eight million automobiles in the U.S. feature Macler products. Macler also manufactures non-automotive castings for power plants, refrigerator compressors and air conditioners.

In 1968 Macler, just out of the Army, took over the helm of what had been his father's company. His parent, in ill health, had sold the firm two years previously, but repurchased it. During the period of non-family ownership the foundry suffered severe losses and much of the equipment was obsolete.

Macler undertook a drastic reorganization and modernization effort that in a matter of months resulted in a complete turnaround for the firm. He has since doubled, tripled and quadrupled the foundry's production capacity. In 1973, sales had grown to $2.9 million and in 1975 they reached $4.9 million.

The firm employs one in 10 working people in the town, many of whom are handicapped. Recently, the business received an award from the American Legion for hiring the handicapped. Macler is known as a pollution fighter, having installed a revolutionary pollution control device that was a first for the industry. He also established a Bicentennial projects fund for the community and is a benefactor of local art competitions.

The Small Business Administration provides counseling and financial, procurement and management assistance to small business people.

Fish eggs ready for stocking

More than 2 million eggs were taken from Parkview Hatchery this week by game department biologists. It's all part of the department's overall job of keeping the state's waters stocked with fish, said Dick McCleskey, assistant chief of the Fisheries Division.

The eggs were taken from rainbow trout brood stock and will be incubated at the hatchery, then distributed to rivers and lakes throughout New Mexico. McCleskey said the department expects to take up to 6 million eggs from the trout at Parkview this year.

Annually, the Game and Fish Department provides the state with millions of fish, said McCleskey, including warm-water species in addition to trout. The methods of securing these fish and eggs are some of the most intricate and interesting aspects of the department's operations, he said.

Rainbow eggs are brought to New Mexico from as far away as Australia, though most are of domestic origin. The Department annually trades with other states for fish that may be lacking here, but surplus there. For example, New Mexico will soon be receiving 200,000 to 300,000 kokanee salmon eggs from Colorado.

"We trade walleye eggs taken from our populations for kokanee salmon from Colorado," said McCleskey. "In this way we can take advantage of a surplus in each state." McCleskey explained that at the end of the five years the department hopes New Mexico will have a self-sufficient population of kokanee at Navajo, which can be used to start salmon in other suitable waters.

The department also trades walleye eggs for rainbow trout and many warm-water species. A recent trade with Texas brought Florida and striped bass to New Mexico's warm-water reservoirs.

In And Around Ruidoso

Turkey could have been nation's symbol

Should the turkey, rather than the bald eagle appear on the Great Seal of the United States? If Benjamin Franklin had had his way, the turkey would. In a letter to his daughter he commented, "... the turkey is a much more respectable bird, and withal a true original native of America."

Domestic turkeys now raised in the United States are a far cry from their ancestors which were hunted by American Indians, says Mae Martha Johnson, Extension food specialist at New Mexico State University.

Turkeys in the market today are in a wide range of sizes to fit every family's needs. Small families can select small turkeys, four to eight pounds, parts (quarters, halves or breasts) of large turkeys or boneless turkey rolls. Larger birds, up to 25 pounds, will suit the needs of large families or groups.

If all of the meat can be used, large turkeys are more economical because they yield more servings per pound. When buying turkeys under 12 pounds, allow three-fourths to one pound per serving, Mrs. Johnson says. For turkeys over 12 pounds, count on one-half to three-fourths pound (ready cook weight) per serving. This allows for generous servings. Boneless turkey rolls or roasts will yield three to four servings per pound.

Young turkeys are more tender than older ones. Young birds may be labeled young turkey, young hen, young tom or fryer-roaster. Older, mature turkeys will be slightly less moist and tender and require more care in cooking, advises the food specialist. A yearling turkey weighing 12-16 pounds should be cooked one and one-half to two hours longer than a young turkey of the same weight.

A "tent" of foil placed over the bird during roasting will help retain moisture and prevent over browning. Regardless of the type of turkey you buy, follow any directions for cooking that may appear on the label.

The supply of turkeys for this Thanksgiving season is larger than last year's, so the price per pound will be lower. Lowest prices will probably be posted for some turkey parts, such as hind quarters. Next in line, price-wise, should be yearling turkeys, with young turkeys priced highest. Young toms are frequently priced a few cents lower than young hens, and house, or private brands frequently a little lower than national brands. Many national brands feature self-basting, which also adds to the price. Locally-grown young turkeys will usually be a few cents higher than turkeys shipped into the state.

Since the majority of the turkeys are frozen, be sure to allow plenty of time for proper thawing. The bird may be thawed in the refrigerator for one to three days, depending on size. Place it on a tray with its original wrap in place. In an emergency, the turkey may be thawed, still in its original wrap, in cold running water for two to six hours.

Planning is necessary to settle farm estates

Settlement costs of the modern farm estate are going up each year, says Gene Ott, Extension farm management specialist at New Mexico State University. The main reasons include inflation, appreciation of land values and increased economic pressure for larger farm units.

This means that the gross value of an average estate is above the estate tax credit. To avoid higher settlement costs, a farm family should become aware of its individual situation and do the necessary planning now, advises Ott.

If you don't have a plan to pass on your property, the state of New Mexico has a plan for property that is subject to probate. If you do not have a "will" or better arrangement, the New Mexico law will be followed, Ott says.

Ott says he is not recommending a "do-it-yourself kit." One or more professionals are needed to assist a family in developing an estate plan.

Ott suggests that a lawyer, qualified in estate planning, is the key person. You may also need an accountant, insurance person and trust officer. Your plan needs to be tailored to your resources and family needs, he says.

Unfortunately, many families cannot come to grips with this problem. This is because they are either not aware of the present day costs of no planning, or they are afraid of what they think is a complex subject. They may also be wary of outsiders who seek to help develop a plan.

Actually, you are unconsciously developing part of an estate plan every time you acquire property, determine how the title will be held, or purchase insurance, Ott says.

Before making your plan, you need to make an inventory of all assets. List the items and their present market value. Settlement costs are based on present day values, not the adjusted cost basis.

You should also list a few objectives you wish to accomplish. A few common objectives include providing total family satisfaction; treating all children equitably — not necessarily equally; maintaining an efficient farm; minimizing estate settlement costs; and providing liquidity — that is, a source of ready cash to settle the estate.

Farm estate planners have two special problems. First, most of the farmer's estate value is in land — with little value in cash assets. In addition, few plan for available cash funds at death to meet the estate settlement costs without having to sell property. Selling property at estate settlement time adds to settlement costs and means the land often does not sell for the top price.

If there are debts and sizeable amounts of estate taxes to be paid at settlement time, the executor may have to sell part or all of the farm. Therefore, the estate plan needs to recognize the possible need for cash. Things easily converted into cash include savings accounts, stocks and bonds, grain and livestock and life insurance.
