NM LIVESTOCK INSPECTOR STONEMAN SOUGHT

Cattle rustling case broken

A concentrated 30-day investigation of cattle rustling in Lincoln County ended Friday with the issuance of warrants for the arrest of Sam C. Stoneman, 34, New Mexico Livestock Board inspector.

Stoneman, of Albuquerque, a six-year NMLB employee, is wanted on a Bernalillo County warrant charging "Receiving and passing stolen property to a sales ring" and on a Lincoln County warrant issued Friday by Magistrate Bill Payne in Carrizozo charging eight counts of larceny of cattle and sale of the cattle.

A bond of $15,000 was set on the Bernalillo County warrant and the Lincoln County bond was set at $50,000.

The investigation, beginning May 17, was headed by Lincoln County Sheriff Leandro Vega Jr., assisted by deputy sheriff Dennis Cleaver and NMLB inspectors Claude Foster, Bruce McLaughlin and "Butch" Allen.

The NMLB has asked the Federal Bureau of Investigation to enter the case. "Records indicate Stoneman possibly transported stolen cattle to Colorado," Allen said.

"We've launched a statewide law enforcement agency cooperative move to conduct further investigations," Vega said, "and in efforts to apprehend Stoneman."

Vega and Allen outlined the investigation of the case Friday to The Ruidoso News.

May 17 — Donn Dose of White Oaks reported seven cows and six calves missing from his ranch. The sheriff's office and NMLB inspectors began the investigation. Chartered planes flew the area twice. No evidence was uncovered.

May 25 — Dose reported 10 head of cattle missing. "Nothing could be checked out," Vega said.

May 26 — Mrs. Donn (Mary) Dose discovered tire tracks on the Bill McCarty ranch, adjoining the Dose ranch. "This was our first break in the case," Vega said.

June 1 — Dimmitt Bond, Corona rancher, notified NMLB inspector Claude Foster of suspicious tire tracks in the Bond pasture. Foster investigated and determined the tracks were identical to those found on the McCarty ranch.

June 2 — Allen discovered more tire tracks on the J.A. Hightower ranch, plus empty food tins. The tread marks matched those of previous investigations and latent fingerprints were lifted from the tins.

June 4 — Vega, with Stoneman now a suspect, went to Albuquerque and "found a trailer and truck with identical tire treads to those left at the Bond, McCarty and Dose ranches."

Vega advised Lee Garner, NMLB director, that Stoneman was suspected of stealing cattle.

Stoneman, who was working, was called into the NMLB office and advised of the evidence gathered against him.

"He voluntarily released the tires on the trailer and pickup," Vega said, "and agreed to meet me at State Police headquarters in Albuquerque for fingerprinting. He failed to appear."

June 5 — Vega was advised that Stoneman had disappeared and that his whereabouts were unknown.

Meantime in NMLB checking it was determined through receipts to Valley Livestock Auction, Albuquerque, that Stoneman had sold 22 head of Dose's cattle through the sales ring and that he'd also sold eight head of cattle belonging to the Harvey Sheep and Cattle Co., of Carrizozo.

Vega, meanwhile, submitted plaster casts of the tire treads and fingerprints to the State Crime Laboratory in Albuquerque. "The treads were positively identified as matching those on Stoneman's pickup and trailer and the fingerprints, from food tins on the Hightower ranch, were also positively identified as being Stoneman's."

To determine how Stoneman had managed to sell cattle through the sales ring, and to a packing plant, without a bill of sale or proof of ownership of branded cattle, Vega asked NMLB director Garner, "Why didn't the inspectors at the sales ring make Stoneman produce a bill of sale? Garner said, 'It wasn't required because it was a matter of professional courtesy'."

Allen said, "He used the confidence of his fellow inspectors to his advantage in making the cattle sales. It was just one of those things. You don't automatically suspect a brand inspector of stealing cattle and the sale was handled routinely."

Vega said that Stoneman was able to operate in the area because of a long time residency in the county and a "thorough knowledge of the ranches he was stealing the cattle from."

The investigation of Stoneman's activities during the six years of his employment will, Vega said, "be thoroughly investigated because we want to get to the bottom of this case."

The eight counts against Stoneman, obtained from District Attorney Robert Doughty in Alamogordo Friday by Vega and Allen, are:

1 — Larceny of six head of livestock from the Bud Crenshaw ranch, White Oaks, on or about Jan. 11.

2 — Larceny of one head of livestock from Bobby Dan Crenshaw of White Oaks on or about Jan. 11 and the sale of seven head of cattle to Valley Auction Livestock Co., (VAL) Albuquerque, Jan. 13.

3 — Larceny of four head of cattle from the T.H. Spencer Jr., ranch, Carrizozo, on or about Jan. 11 and the sale of these cattle to VAL Jan. 13.

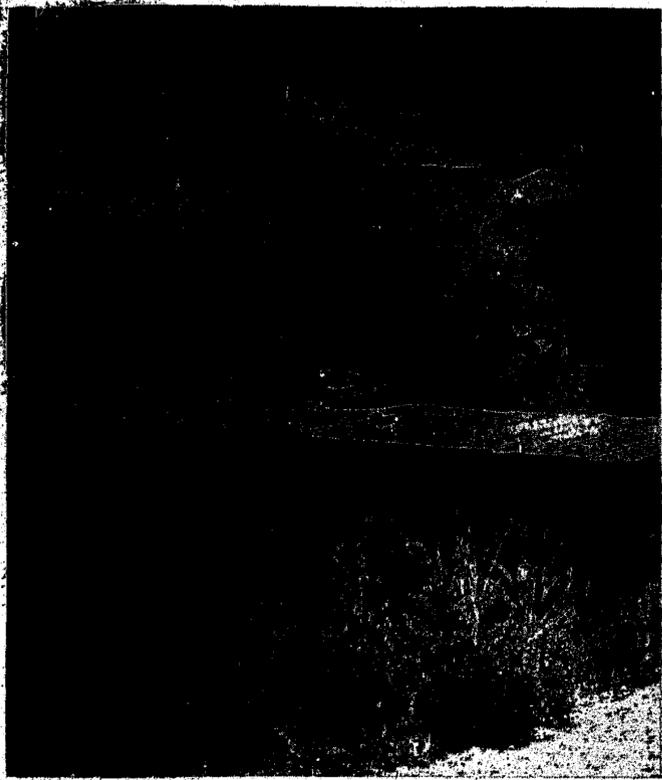

4 — Larceny of six head of cattle belonging to Bud Crenshaw on or about Feb. 19 and the sale of these cattle Feb. 20 to VAL.

5 — The larceny of 12 head of cattle from Don Dose, White Oaks, on or about April 25 and the sale of these cattle April 27 to VAL.

6 — The larceny of one head of livestock from Gallacher Ranches Inc., Carrizozo, on or about May 19 and the sale of this animal to Schwartzman Packing Co., Albuquerque, May 21.

7 — The larceny of 10 head of cattle from Don Dose on or about May 23 and the sale of these cattle May 27 to VAL.

8 — The larceny of eight head of cattle from the Harvey Sheep and Cattle Co., on or about May 30 and the sale of these cattle June 1 to VAL.

THESE BOYS AREN'T lackadaisical attitude clearly dangling a worm in a weed patch, attest, even though the river had 'cause the Rio Ruidoso is gurgling been stocked with hefty rainbows under the foot bridge. The action just hours before they tried their wasn't frenetic, as their luck.

Building still booming here

The building boom that started Ruidoso's phenomenal growth in 1972 is continuing at a frantic pace.

Through June 18, a total of $5,201,751 in building permits for the 1975-76 fiscal year had been issued by village building inspector Chuck Brown.

"The building permits are based on a valuation of $14 per square foot for construction," Brown said, "and the figures do not apply for taxation."

Previous fiscal year totals, in this boom period, include $5,188,191 in 1974-75; $7,021,103 in 1973-74 and $8,983,350 in 1972-73.

"The higher figures reflect the concentration of condominium building," Brown said. "However, based on inquiries I've received, I anticipate we may top $8 million in permits for this fiscal year which ends June 30."

Brown said he is receiving "three to four inquiries a week" on residential and business construction and on the building code and restrictions.

As of June 1, Brown's records show that 111 homes are under construction, that there are four new commercial buildings in process and "several permits have been issued for expansion or remodeling."

The first five months of 1976 produced

$2,955,163 in building permits compared to $2,050,883 for the same period in 1975.

The 1975 breakdown:

January — $335,300

February — 341,900

March — 281,913

April — 722,082

May — 379,788

June — 221,913

The 1976 breakdown:

January — $194,525

February — 506,182

March — 928,321

April — 725,414

May — 596,741

Twenty-five housing units totaled $463,501 in permits.

A further indication of the steady growth is reflected in water taps added in the village since 1973. Taps totaled 2,878 in 1973 and in May of 1976 there were 3,632 connections.

"During the past three years," village manager Jim Hine said, "we've been averaging just at 21 water taps a month."

"When you consider the 1970 census, which is still official, pegged our population at 2,200 and we now have 3,632 water taps, it shows we must have enjoyed considerable growth but, unfortunately, there is no way that we can update the census to get a true picture of our population."

NEW RESIDENCE in the pines.

PROFESSIONAL BUILDING nicely underway.

Volunteer Zip Coders needed

Volunteers — including those adept at looking up Zip Codes — are needed all of this week, between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 5 p.m., at the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce to look up Zip Codes.

The Chamber has a mailing list of 4/5,000 names and addresses — but a shortage of Zip Codes — and the U.S. Postal Service needs Zip Codes if they are to mail all these envelopes at bulk rates.

The occasion is the promotion of the Lincoln County Mule-O-Rama Oct. 8-10, featuring history's richest mule races with $10,000 added in purses.

This will lead up to The Lincoln County

Mule-O-Rama Futurity, with a $50,000 estimated purse with $5,000 added, to be run here Oct. 14, 1979.

All these envelopes are needed to promote Mule-O-Rama.

Volunteers will also be needed next week to stuff in all those envelopes Zip Coded this week.

"Any and everyone interested in promoting Mule-O-Rama," C-C manager Richard Cothrun said, "is not only welcome to volunteer their services these next two weeks, but encouraged to do so. We need your help and need it badly and we'll appreciate every hour of volunteer effort we can get."

Gold Scout romps to victory in 9th Kindergarten Futurity

Gold Scout, ridden by Carlos Rivas, bowled over Sunday's 9th running of the $30,348 Rio Grande Kindergarten Futurity at Ruidoso Downs.

The filly turned in an impressive job while flashing to a 1 1/4-length victory in a four-furlong clocking of 46 seconds. This was only a second shy of the track record.

Gold Scout, the property of B. Raymond Evans of Tulla, Texas, collected $15,174 and dished out mutual returns of $5.80, $4.40 and $3. Second went to the 16-1 longshot, Kristi's Lark. Gilbert Villegas was up. Kristi's Lark is owned by Virginia Sue Zarges of El Paso. The payoffs were a generous $15.40 and $5.80. Second was worth $6,069.

Third was taken by the game filly, Smash It. Jerry Burgess was at the helm. The show price was $3.40. The roan filly is the property of Sue May, Joan Leach and Carol Childs, all of Ft. Stockton. Third yielded a purse of $3,338.

The fans made the entry of Net Attack and Net Set a 3-2 favorite, but both never managed to get in contention and finished well up the track. The defeat was the first in Net Set's career.

Gold Scout established herself as an overwhelming threat right from the first jump. She exploded out of the No. 9 post and immediately went into the lead. Smash It stumbled at the start, but quickly picked herself up, and took after the leaders with authority.

Kristi's Lark came out of the pack to challenge Gold Scout as the field neared the turn for home. But from the way Gold Scout was trucking along, hopes of catching her appeared dim.

Gold Scout was well in the clear at the head of the stretch, and still moving with powerful strides. Kristi's Lark began trimming the deficit and took a long run at the pacemaker. Although the filly made up ground steadily, it was obvious she would never catch the leader.

Kristi's Lark was three lengths ahead of Smash It on the wire.

In the 5 1/2-furlong co-feature, Trail Drive came from off the pace with a willing attack to win by a length and return $14.80. Tony Trujillo was up.

Requested Honor generated plenty of backstretch speed, opened a fat lead around the turn, then scooted to a convincing victory in Saturday's renewal of the Flying Charm Stakes at Ruidoso Downs.

The five-year-old, ridden by Tony Trujillo, ended the 870-yard dash with a 1 1/4-length lead. He collected $3,450 out of the gross purse of $5,750. The winning owners are Eddie and Mignon Irwin of Wichita, Kans.

Requested Honor got away as a 9-2 shot in the powerful 10-head field and returned mutuels of $11.60, $6.40 and $5. He packed 117 pounds and toured the distance in a brisk 45.92 seconds.

Savannah Lark, with Dave Morris up, also showed plenty of backstretch speed and ended up second for payoffs of $13.60 and $7.40. Norgor, the long-time 870 champ, didn't get rolling until the final yards. But he closed well to pick up third under 121 pounds. Willie Lovell was aboard. The show price was $3.60.

Al's Vest, who raced as the public choice under 122 pounds, was never in contention and finished out of the money. He was forced to go wide most of the way, and encountered tight traffic.

Sheswright ended a nine-month vacation in Friday's feature race at Ruidoso Downs, but the layup didn't seem to take much zip out of her sails.

The fans made the classy filly a 6-5 favorite in the 350-yard dash, and she looked as good as new while leading from start to finish. She was really pulling clear at the end and flashed under the wire with a 1 1/4-length lead. Aided by a brisk tailwind, she spanned the distance in a stinging 17.46 seconds. The track mark is 17.48. J.C. Wiley was at the controls. It was his second win at the meet.

Sheswright, owned by W.L. Edwards of Ruidoso, has earned almost $90,000 so far. Friday's win was worth mutual payoffs of $4.60, $3.60, $2.60. Billy Billy Bayou, a 12 1/2 longshot, refunded $13.60 and $5.60. Jet Comanche, off at 2-1, was good for a $3.40 show price.

GOOD AS GOLD — Gold Scout hits the finish line with an eager, long-reaching stride in Sunday's $30,348 Rio Grande Kindergarten Futurity at Ruidoso Downs. The filly missed the four-furlong track mark by only one second. Carlos Rivas was up.

Forest closed to campfires

The Lincoln National Forest is closed to campfires.

The same conditions exist as those in the Gallinas Fire, near Corona, that destroyed 1,500 acres of forest in a man caused fire.

Campfires will be permitted in designated and posted areas with kerosene, gasoline or gas units meeting Fire Underwriter's specifications on the approved list.

Charcoal burners, wood and coal stoves are prohibited when used outside of dwellings.

Smoking is permitted in dwellings, in designated and posted camp and picnic grounds and in vehicles equipped with ashtrays when traveling on paved or surfaced roads.

Persons seeing a forest fire are asked to telephone Alamogordo 437-2286.

Castoffs? Worthless? Senile?

Entering its fourth year of operation, the Lincoln County Senior Citizens Center (behind the Ruidoso Public Library) is doing headlong battle with those stereotyped images of older Americans.

What's more, the Center seems to be winning, with such varied programs as belly dancing, bowling, ceramic and macrame classes, exercise sessions and tours around the country for its members and visitors 60 years old and up.

Established September 1, 1973 with a Federal Title III grant, the Center was the year long dream of Ruidoso's Golden Age Club.

"The Golden Agers had been meeting in the Eastern Star Hall where there was no place to store their arts and crafts supplies," LCSCC director Charlotte Jarratt recalled. "The present Center started then as a search for a small hobby room."

The Golden Age Club obtained sponsorship for their small project from the Village of Ruidoso then applied for a federal grant. The three years of matching funds it received exceeded all expectations at approximately $45,998 annually.

"Suddenly, instead of just a small meeting and storage room, the Golden Agers had a full blown program with three full time paid staff members," Jarratt said. "The only problem was there was still no place to house the senior citizens."

For the first few months the LCSCC had its base of operations in the mayor's office, then Ruidosoan Helen Haist donated part of her home for office space. The Center remained there until November, 1974 when it was moved to its present location.

The LCSCC started with one official member, ex-Dexter Postmaster Ferd Sadler, who died last year.

Since that time its rolls have swollen to 838 members, its staff to five full time employees and its service to satellite branches in Corona, Carrizozo, Lincoln, Capitlan, Nogal, San Patricio, Tinnie and Ruidoso Downs.

Education & social programs and activities are open to all senior members and visitors and include ballroom dancing classes, covered dish suppers, a monthly birthday party for everyone born during that time and numerous other functions.

This year the Center obtained two 12-passenger vans and is planning to schedule several tours through the southwest during the summer, including one to the Harley Sadler Tent Show and Texas Pageant in Lubbock, July 3-4.

Although Jarratt admits the social affairs and adult education classes are best received, she feels the Center's most crucial functions are the daily reassurance calls, transportation and shopping service.

Each morning the LCSCC telephones 60-65 senior citizens on its list and checks to see how they're doing. After three unsuccessful attempts at reaching a person, someone from the Center will drive out to their house to make sure they're all right.

"Luckily, we've never found anyone dead, but we have stumbled on members who were on the floor in pretty bad shape," Jarratt said. "That's what the Center is all about . . . people doing things for other people."

The LCSCC also provides transportation on request for stranded seniors and sponsors a twice weekly shopping trip.

According to Jarratt, the Center will undergo several major changes when its federal funding runs out in August. However, instead of cutting back its services it's going to expand them.

"We're going to sponsor an adult education and recreation program for two additional age groups (18-30 years old and 30-50) beginning September 1," she said. "Each group will have the use of the Center at least one night a week and we'll have several joint functions a month."

She admits the change will probably mean a few problems as things get started, but said she has heard no dissension about the expansion by the current members. "Most of our members see the addition of the younger people as an exciting opportunity to learn from and teach the new members," she said. "It will give them a chance to show the younger generation what they can do."

Jarratt expects the Village to continue its old matching fund subsidy of at least $22,998 for the Center and hopes to get further financial assistance from the county to keep the program operating at its current level.

Additionally, the Center plans to initiate a $5 annual membership fee in September. "The fee will go toward mailing and printing costs for the Center's monthly newsletter," Jarratt said. "It's one of our major tools to let our members know what's happening and many people can't get down to the Center to pick one up . . . you know, this newsletter is the only piece of mail some of our members ever receive. It's important that we keep sending it to them."

She stressed no person would be dropped or denied membership in the LCSCC because of inability to pay the $5. "We're here to serve the community," she said, "and anyone in the county is invited to participate in or help with any of our programs."

Center hours are 8:45 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Thursday. For further information call 257-4565.

Charlotte Jarratt was 'railroaded'

Charlotte Jarratt was attending a ten day seminar in business administration in Salt Lake City when her husband Bill called her from Ruidoso.

"Have you applied for a job without telling me about it? he asked conspiratorially.

"No," she answered. "Well, I think you'd better come home as soon as possible . . . there's a surprise waiting for you," he said.

The surprise was that she'd been appointed as the fulltime director of the newly instituted Lincoln County Senior Citizens Center.

Unbeknownst to her, a group of friends had submitted her name for the job.

That was in 1973. Now, three years later, the reluctant administrator has built the LCSCC into one of the most successful, best attended senior centers in the Southwest, with 838 regular members, ranging from 50 years old to 99 year old Mollie Bosh from Nogal.

The Jarratts came to Ruidoso from Tucson, Ariz. in 1972 when a doctor advised Charlotte a change to purer air would be better for her eyes, which had recently undergone surgery.

At the time, Charlotte was an administrator for a school district and Bill was a general building contractor.

"We'd always anticipated retiring here in Ruidoso . . . the doctor's advice just helped us go into semi-retirement a little sooner than we'd expected to," Charlotte said.

Now living in a unique round house on Cedar Creek which Bill designed and built himself, Charlotte says she has found a great deal of happiness and fulfillment working with senior citizens.

"Many of the seniors here came to Ruidoso as a second home for retirement," she said. "Most of them are well-traveled, well-read and extremely intelligent. They're

CHARLOTTE behind a huge pile of paper work, as usual.

A painter content with her work

"In a time when art is fragmented into many pieces, it's good to be content with one's own work — and I am. The modern movement has become the academy of today — dictating to its followers and being defined by its critics. I think that makes good drawing, good representational painting and good craftsmanship, the free, unfettered area which to work — and New Mexico has the light, the mood and the colors to get deep responses from me." — Tallie Lipscomb.

"She is a painter who loves classic oils but has invented her own peculiar method which has become her trademark. She uses oil and turpentine on raw canvas. One thing led to another, and this method evolved," she said.

"Another of her innovations is using two panels. While doing a commission for an office building in Dallas, Texas, she was doing a large painting that turned a corner and got the idea of two panel paintings. One of her more recent paintings using this idea is a children's painting of a group of children holding balloons in the air. The children are in the bottom panel and the balloons extend to the panel hung above.

"Another design device that she uses is painting a circular design instead of a rectangular one. This eliminates framing the canvas and makes an interesting piece of art work.

"From early childhood, she has been interested in art and has put forth much effort to design and draw well. Tallie was born in Paris, Texas, attended school there before attending Penn Hall Junior College in Chambersburg, Penn., then graduating from the University of Texas with a BFA in 1955. Later she did graduate work at East Texas State University in Commerce, Texas.

"There's never been a time when art didn't interest me — even as a child it was what I liked best and did better than anything else. In school I translated into posters, decorations, yearbook art and hand painted ties at $5 each," she said.

"She found that having a BFA did not help her when she went job hunting to launch a career in advertising art. After doing some apprentice work in a commercial art studio she landed a job with an advertising agency which she still recalls fondly. "It was a rewarding job," Tallie said, "and I have found that the years in commercial art have done wonders for my painting."

"She has returned to fine art and finds Ruidoso to be a stimulating area for her. They were lucky to find a house with a full basement that serves as an ideal setting for her studio.

"The Lipscombs moved here in January from Los Alamos, New Mexico. While vacationing in New Mexico several years ago from their home in Paris, Texas, they decided that they wanted to live in this state. They were in Ruidoso on that trip and fell in love with it, but didn't feel Ruidoso was large enough at that time to support another lawyer.

But Ruidoso grew and now with husband, Bill, in law practice here and daughter, Loo, a ninth grader, they have made Ruidoso their home.

Tallie feels with the opening of several new galleries here that Ruidoso is attracting more and more artists. "The reason for artists coming together in areas is so that they don't have to go to the market — it is there," she said.

In pricing her paintings, she prices them at what she feels they are worth. "Size has nothing to do with it," she said. Another means of pricing is by the demand. "If you can't keep up with the demand, you raise your prices," Tallie said.

"She feels that people should relax more in buying paintings and not worry about someone else liking what they buy. If you buy paintings on your instincts, it is likely to go with what you have. "You see a painting that appeals to you and I feel that it is because it brings up your favorite image," Tallie said.

"Paintings are to be lived with. "If people only bought the old masters, not many of us could live with art in our lives," she said, "and I feel everyday — people should have art in their lives."

Before becoming established as an artist, she found it necessary to attend more shows and recently was entered in an art competition exhibit in Amarillo, Texas.

One means of marketing her paintings is by commission. Her paintings are shown at the Bear Claw Gallery here and Los Llanos in Santa Fe, the Whitaker in Taos, Dady Ely's Inn Gallery at the Albuquerque Inn and Dos Pajaros at El Paso International Airport.

A PAINTING which has been finished and hanging in her studio.

TALLIE LIPSCOMB with turpentine and oil in hand is shown working on a painting which is her own design device.

Happenings

by Jerry

We were so sorry to hear of Callie Roselle dying recently. She was 90 and a long time resident of this area. A few months ago we called her to set up an interview because someone had told us about all of her Bi-Centennial decorations.

When we called her she was so thrilled that someone was interested in her project and said to come on over anytime. She said she was always at home so we set up the interview for either Tuesday or Wednesday of that week.

Due to a busy schedule it was Wednesday before we made it over with camera in hand. After knocking several times and not getting an answer we were concerned and asked a neighbor if she knew where she might be.

She told us that the day before she was up on a ladder in her home putting up some more Bi-Centennial decorations, being quite excited that someone from the paper was coming over, and fell from the ladder, breaking her hip.

Hoping she would recover soon and return from Roswell where she was hospitalized, we were still planning to do the interview. Now that won't be possible. Wish our timing could have been better because just talking to her on the phone we know she was a great lady.

Talked to Barbara Duff last week. She recently returned from a convention in Hawaii, which turned out to be a workshop for Barbara. She didn't even get to take a dip in the ocean or hardly see it. No one but Barbara could go to Hawaii and stay that busy!

Had a nice visit with Al and Flossie Stubbs last week. They have had a place up here for years and come up often from Roswell. Al is an old boss of mine. He was formerly editor of the Roswell Daily Record.

Dear friends, Betty and Harold Powell from Levelland, Texas, were up for a week's stay in their home last week. They really came up for a rest and to recoup from son, Ledlie's wedding, but rolled up their sleeves to help yours truly move. It sure was appreciated!

Don't let the ads fool you — Moving is not an adventure!

Sandra Dacy stays busy with her family, church and club activities, but she still finds time to cook. Other hobbies she enjoys include sewing, painting and gardening.

Sandra and her husband, Wayne, moved here four years ago from San Angelo, Texas. They have two daughters, Melissa, 8, and Tina, 2½. Tina is retarded.

Tina is a beautiful child with short brown hair, but at 2½ is not able to do what other children her age do. She requires much of her mother's time.

Sandra's main interest is in the Lincoln County Association of Retarded Citizens which she helped organize here. Its function is to help those families who have a member who is retarded and to help in sharing their problems.

Sandra found that the acceptance and realization of having a retarded child to be the greatest hurdle. After the acceptance that your child is different you find comfort and understanding from others who face similar problems. Wayne, who is a Texas Aggie, owns Service Contractors, Inc. here. They are members of the First Christian Church. Sandra is active in Beta Sigma Phi.

Another important member of the family is Frisbee the family poodle.

Sandra likes to serve her family hot bread often and here is one of her favorites:

Prepare your plants if you're vacationing

If that well deserved summer vacation takes you away for an extended time, be sure your landscape is in order before you go, advised Ricardo Gomez, Extension horticulturist at New Mexico State University.

Cut the lawn just prior to leaving and make plans to have the grass mowed during your absence if necessary, Gomez says. Lawns should be cut at least every two weeks. Uncut grass is a sure sign you are away and an invitation to thieves and vandals. Overgrowth will also tax the grass plants and appearance after cutting will be unattractive.

Water the homegrounds well just prior to leaving. A good, slow soaking will likely last the plants a week or more without supplemental watering.

Heavily mulch those plants which tend to show water stress early. Plants which demand more frequent summer watering include annual flowers, coleus, mums and plants, trees or shrubs set out during the spring.

Sink potted plants in a cool shaded bed outdoors and water well. Sinking the pot below the soil level will prevent drying from summer wind or heat. If your absence is a long one, you could place house plants in plastic bags making sure that they will not be in direct sun. This will conserve moisture until you get back.

Cut flowering annuals and perennial blooms to encourage new growth and blooms for your return. If old blooms and seed heads are allowed to remain on the plants, growth and a new bloom crop will be retarded, Gomez says.

Supplemental feeding is in order after pruning. A light application of a complete and balanced fertilizer worked into the top surface soil, then watered in, will promote growth. Fertilize house plants with a liquid house plant food at the time of watering.

A central core with moveable wings.

This single-story cedar-home design is as roomy as it is versatile — a welcome respite from today's mass of confining split-levels. Ideal for the family that enjoys entertaining, its core or "center stage" features a spacious sunken living room with exposed beams and a huge fireplace wall (including a kitchen pass-through for hearthside snacking).

"Off-stage," one wing is occupied by an inviting entryway, a den and garage, while the other is devoted primarily to bedrooms. And both wings (the entire plan, in fact) can be tailored to suit individual needs. They might, for example, be joined at a sharper angle to accommodate a narrower lot.

All as a result of factory engineering and an unusually flexible building system. For more than 70 other applications, send $2 for our Planbook.

Fiesta de San Juan set at Old Lincoln

Fiesta de San Juan, commemorating San Juan Baptista, Patron Saint of the Lincoln Catholic Church, will be celebrated June 25-27 in historic Old Lincoln Town.

Archbishop of Santa Fe Robert Sanchez of Albuquerque will preside at Saturday's 10 a.m. Mass, with area churches participating in the service and procession.

The San Juan Church was built in 1884. For many years it was Lincoln County's largest church and served as parish headquarters. Building the church was a community venture with labor, adobes and materials donated, with very little cash involved.

The Hondo 4-H Club will be featured in a series of Mexican Folk Dances to be presented at 1 and 2:30 p.m., Sunday as one of the highlights of the two-day celebration.

Two private collections of memorabilia will be on display during the weekend.

Clark Pflingsten, for the first time, will set up his collection of Indian artifacts and articles from the Fort Stanton area in the Torreon Shop. The artifacts include local pottery, baskets and mats in traditional and cultural designs. Pflingsten will explain how they were made and used and where they were found several times both days.

Claude Walker will display his collection of saddles, bridles, bits and other riding gear that he has acquired through the years, in the Huff House of La Placita Shop. Much of Walker's collection has been geared from area rodeos over the years and he will be on hand to give the details of the accomplishments of the cowboys who contested with the gear. Area artisans will add to the festive air of the celebration in 25 booths displaying paintings in all mediums, sculpture, jewelry, needlecraft, weaving and leather goods.

ARTIFACTS COLLECTED by Clark Pflingsten will be on display during the Fiesta de San Juan celebration in historic Old Lincoln Town Saturday and Sunday, June 26-27.

CRIMINAL LAW FOR 2076
Though laws are meant to cure crime, they can also create it. That fact may seem obvious; the law, after all, is the index to what is or is not criminal. Yet, when we try to forecast the future of the criminal and the law, there are implications worth a second look.

For laws do change. At various times and places in the past it has been legally wrong to practice witchcraft or to teach blacks to read or to deny that the Earth is the center of the universe. By the year 2076, our legal system will no doubt be revised again.

Laws are enacted, of course, to protect the private citizen and the whole society. When they are supported by a solid moral consensus, they work well. They often fail, however, when they attempt to force the morality of some intolerant power group on minorities with conflicting ethical or moral values.

For a case in point, let us glance at national prohibition. The Volstead Act was well-intended, but it made automatic criminals out of many good citizens who saw no harm in alcohol. Not only was respect for law widely eroded, but the enormous profits from rum-running created the criminal underworld that remains a powerful force in America.

Though prohibition is gone, I am afraid that we are repeating the same national tragedy today by outlawing marijuana. Though the medical evidence seems to show that alcohol is more destructive to its users than marijuana is, the drinking majority is using the law to wage a futile and expensive warfare on the pot-smoking minority. This war can never be won, but it has already created a new generation of criminals.

The laws against such hard drugs as heroin are equally good producers of criminals and crime. An addict has to have his fix. When the law keeps prices so high that he cannot earn it honestly, he is driven to crime. Often he must become a pusher to support his own habit. When a new legal crackdown drives prices up, the result is that he has to loot another home or knock off another filling station or persuade another high school girl to try her first fix. Such conflicts with the law are due partly to the generation gap, but also partly to cultural and ethnic prejudices.

The damage already done by our insane laws will not be easy to erase. The criminal underworld now has deep roots and vast power. Crime is supporting millions of people, whose ways of life will be hard to change. Yet, by the end of our tricentennial century, things will be different.

Exactly how, it is hard to say. Certainly, crime can be controlled by stern enforcement of the law. The rulers of the People's Republic of China have apparently wiped out the drug traffic and most other crime. The cost, however, has been estimated at sixty million lives, a price no free society would pay.

We can hope for a better answer: a society in which the law no longer manufactures crime and criminals on such a devastating scale. Such a society might well abolish penalties for "victimless crimes" such as drug addiction, gambling and the sex acts of consenting adults. It should offer room for successful and productive living, with fewer defeats and frustrations to drive its citizens to drugs or other sorts of self-destruction. /Dr. Williamson, English Professor, Eastern New Mexico University.

SHORTAGE OF MUNITIONS

As Congress prepared to make the momentous decision for independence two hundred years ago this week, the prospects of more intense and widespread warfare with Great Britain were not to be desired.

General Washington faced an especially critical situation because of the acute shortage of gunpowder and weapons. Since Britain had cut off trade two years earlier almost all the supplies of gunpowder had come from France. The government of France had closed its eyes to the activities of French and American smugglers. Even with some one million pounds of gunpowder imported by 1776 the supply was still far below the demand.

To remedy this situation Congress had established the Secret Committee in the fall of 1775. This group was to use American produce in payment for munitions. The chairman of the Committee was Robert Morris of Philadelphia. The major contract had been awarded to Morris' own trading firm, of Willing and Morris.

Robert Morris did not hide the fact that he profited from this arrangement, and there seemed little public concern about a possible conflict of interest. Most people seemed to believe that the cost was worth it if the munitions could be obtained. The committee also contracted with other firms to procure munitions for similar costs.

The shortage of gunpowder was more critical than the shortage of weapons themselves. Although many were in disrepair, there seemed to be enough rifles if they could be supplied with powder. Shot and powder was in short supply in 1776 that the average allocation was nine musket rounds per man compared with about sixty for British soldiers.

Because of the situation, several ingenious schemes were devised to end the shortages. For example, saltpeter, a critical element in gunpowder, was being sought in the refuse of stables, cellars, and outhouses. The mold from these sources apparently could be boiled down to produce nitrous salt.

To provide lead for bullets, Astronomer David Rittenhouse had removed the lead weights from the clocks in Philadelphia and replaced them with iron weights.

Benjamin Franklin's suggestion that soldiers be issued bows and arrows to be used in lieu of weapons was politely ignored. Even so, soldiers in the rear had been issued twelve foot iron shafts to use as spears.

Obviously, the military situation would become more critical when independence was formally announced.

Meanwhile in Spanish New Mexico a similar situation existed for a change. For years, the Spanish settlers had faced a shortage of weapons, shot, and gunpowder that they could not get the home government to rectify. Therefore, they lived constantly with the possibility of an uprising of Native Americans that they could not resist for a lack of weapons. /Donald W. Whisenand, history professor, Eastern New Mexico University.

Yes. Unless you know something we don't, it's impossible to do everything you like to do at the same time. Or all the time, for that matter. And anyone who tells you different speaks with forked tongue. That's why, in choosing a resort condominium, you should consider Interval Ownership.

A PLAN FOR ALL SEASONS

Interval Ownership (or "Time sharing") is a plan by which you pay only for the time you use. And what you pay reflects a proportion of ownership in both the building and land. If your thing is schussing through the white stuff, purchase a week or two in Winter and ski Sierra Blanca. Or, if the green stuff is more your cup of tea, you might want some time during racing season at Ruidoso Downs. Well, we could go on and on. But why belabor a point? There are lots of these time sharing things around. It's just that ours is the best.

Alcoholism...the disease

BY RANDI MCGINN
Staff writer

"You should have seen Bob last night! He was plastered again." "Margaret was hysterical at the dance, she passed out in the middle of the floor!" "Boy, I was loaded all weekend, you shoulda seen me." The comments are familiar. You've heard them about friends, relatives, perhaps yourself. When the drunk spree are infrequent, the stories bring laughter. When the spree smack of alcoholism they bring pity and often, disgust. Unfortunately, people rarely see chronic drinking sprees as what they really are... symptoms of the disease of alcoholism. Indeed, many people fail to even recognize alcoholism as an illness. Most people believe drunkenness is what is wrong with the alcoholic, when inebriety is actually only a sign of an underlying problem. "People are sympathetic at the sight of physical ailments... a terminal cancer patient, a deformed or crippled child, someone dying of leukemia," one alcoholic said, "but let the alcoholic display the symptoms of emotional or mental illness and people are ready to call down the wrath of God on him."

Instead of offering treatment for the alcoholic, many people react with accusations, revulsion and finally, rejection. The misconception of the alcoholic's condition is understandable, since the disease exhibits few of the conventional symptoms of what society would call an illness.

A disease is commonly thought of as having descended, unwanted upon a person, rather than being actively pursued.

Furthermore, the alcoholic displays few of the characteristics of a sick person. Sick people are thought of as being helpless or bed-ridden, eager for help, usually cooperative and grateful for the assistance rendered to them.

Compare that image to the "sick" alcoholic who is usually mobile, demanding, ungrateful, resentful, hostile, uncooperative, disruptive, unreliable and difficult to help.

In the pamphlet entitled "But Is He Really Sick?" an anonymous writer contends the historical tendency to regard the alcoholic as completely responsible for his condition is a serious block to the ready acceptance of the concept of alcoholism as a disease.

"Once launched on a drinking career, booze takes the steering wheel away from the alcoholic and he often has no more control of his condition than the man sitting in the back of the bus," a local member of Alcoholics Anonymous observed.

Despite the unconventional characteristics of alcoholism, doctors and researchers agree that it is definitely a disease... a disease that can ultimately result in insanity and death unless treated.

"There are many aspects of alcoholism that appear at variance with our operating socially defined criteria of illness," Dr. Joseph Adelstein said. "However, there is no doubt in my mind that all of the behavior patterns are part and parcel of the alcoholic's illness."

"Once society can see alcoholism for what it really is, we can begin offering treatment instead of platitudes and pity," another local AA member said. "The only real shame attached to being an alcoholic is the refusal to do something about it."

For help with an alcoholic problem contact one of the local AA chapters, 257-7265 or 257-5216.

LIFE ON THE DESERT— THEN AND NOW

Anyone living in Needles, California or Yuma, Arizona, will tell you that an air conditioner is the most important appliance a person can buy. Both these Southwest desert towns experience many days of 100-plus temperature readings each year.

Nowadays, everything in the desert is air conditioned, from beauty salons to automobiles, but 83-year-old hotel manager Kathleen Brown of Yuma, remembers when there was no air conditioning.

"When I moved to Needles in 1916, there was nothing but Gila monsters and mosquitos," she told a writer from The National Council on Aging.

Mrs. Brown was born in Arches City, Texas, where her father was also in the hotel business. "He was also the sheriff for a while, and hauled freight — by mule train," she said.

She moved to Yuma in 1911, well before the age of air conditioning. When she married the now deceased Mr. Brown, who was a railroad man, they moved to Needles, a town noted mainly for being the hottest spot in the nation.

They lived there off and on until 1931. Mr. Brown was gone much of the time because of his work and Mrs. Brown worked as a seamstress, a profession she practiced most of her life.

Back in Yuma, she took over a small rooming house in 1940 and ran it for the next four years. "The owner had gotten the rooming house as a wedding present and wanted to come back there to live out her final days," Mrs. Brown said. "I ran the place until 1944, when I got a chance to manage the Drake Hotel up the street."

Thirty-two years later, she's still managing the Drake Hotel, attending to all the details of running a small, 14-room hotel.

"I don't see any reason to quit working," she said. "I don't feel old enough to sit down. I had an aunt who lived to be 107 and I told her I was going to live to at least 100. I figure I'm just getting started, don't you?"

Mrs. Brown is active in professional and social clubs and still drives her own car — which is air conditioned.

She finds nothing unusual about being active at 82. "I guess the good Lord just decided I should have a long life," she said. "As for my still working, that's just desire. If you want to do something, then I always felt you went ahead and did it. The calendar may say I'm old, but the way I feel, it must not be telling the truth."

Plot against burglars

When you're mapping out your summer vacation, consider the highways, hotels — and the hometown burglars.

An abandoned house makes an easy target for rip-off artists, so come up with ways to combat the thieves, advises Leo Yates, Extension family life specialist at New Mexico State University.

Round-the-clock security guards are one solution. But if you're short on cash, substitute some common sense. The trick is to make the house look occupied while you're out of town. Here are some steps you can take, Yates suggests.

Arrange for someone to mow the lawn. A shaggy front yard advertises your absence. Invest ten dollars in an automatic timer for lights. Consider timers for the radio and television, too.

Tell the mailman and paperboy to hold all deliveries. A stuffed mail box and a stack of papers are dead giveaways. Don't leave notes for the mailman. Burglars are waiting for just this kind of tip-off, Yates says.

Ask a trusted neighbor — not the whole block — to keep an eye on your house. Leave a key with your neighbor for emergencies. Don't announce your trip in the community newspaper. That goes for church and school newsletters, too.

Of course, there's no foolproof method for out-foxing thieves. But there are a number of ways to minimize your losses. Put your prized possessions in a safe deposit box.

Take small items under the toilet tank lid. Burglars tend to grab what's handy, so tuck valuables in out-of-the-way places. However, don't stash everything in the same spot. Otherwise, the thief could hit the jackpot with one discovery.

Identify your property with an electric engraving pencil to assure fast identification in the event of recovery of stolen items. Many police departments make these engraving pencils available on a free loan basis.

Jot down the model and serial number of property on an inventory list. If the items are stolen, the police have a sure way to identify them. Some police departments even furnish property inventory forms and invite you to file a copy with them. These are a handy reference if you need to file an insurance claim.

What should you do if you return to a burglarized home? Call the police, then sit tight. If you tidy up the place, you could destroy valuable evidence, cautions the family life specialist.

SURRENDER OF CORNWALLIS
In this last and most decisive battle of the Revolutionary War, Lord Cornwallis, leader of the British forces at Yorktown, Va., was so humiliated by the defeat and capture of his 7,000 men that he would not personally surrender his sword to the victorious Washington and Lafayette, and had it brought instead by an associate.

Visit Amistad Reservoir

Some of the snow that melts on the steep slopes of the Sangre de Cristo Mountains in northern New Mexico flows westward into the Rio Grande.

Some of it trickles away from the Rio and forms the headwaters of the Pecos. The two rivers, whose magic names spell excitement to every kid who ever watched a western movie, are only a few miles apart in these mountains.

But the Rio Grande and Pecos take vastly different routes to get to the same place, wandering hundreds of miles apart as they move toward the Gulf of Mexico.

Finally, they head back together and meet in a rush just above the sun-baked cities of Del Rio, Tex. and Ciudad Acuna, Mex., forming Amistad Reservoir, a big, friendly body of water that qualifies as the world's third largest man-made international lake.

At conservation level, the reservoir extends up the Rio Grande for some 74 miles, up the Pecos for 14 and up the Devils River for 25. The primary purposes of Amistad Dam and Lake are flood control and water conservation. But more than a million people last year found this desert oasis to be a barrel of fun.

The National Park Service manages the recreational facilities and programs on the United States side of the lake, which is the catalyst for myriad activities, including hunting, fishing, scuba or skin diving, swimming, hiking, boating, camping, enjoying nature and taking advantage of the international flavor of the area.

But if you're planning a trip to Amistad, don't worry about elbow room with a combination of almost 1,000 miles of shoreline between the U.S. and Mexico sides of the lake. There are more than 100 square miles of water and land in the park.

The diving fraternity is particularly enamored with the lake because of its clear, blue water that allows for maximum visibility. "It's the cleanest water I've ever seen," commented the representative of a diving organization during an international championship held at the lake in 1975.

Divers at the lake must adhere to strict rules, according to park superintendent Edward C. Rodriguez, Jr. "Divers must have certification from an approved organization, a diving buddy and display a diving flag," he said.

Fishing at the lake is also outstanding. Although best during the early spring and summer, it's a year-round sport.

Championship bass tournaments have been held at the lake in the past. Other fish likely to find their way into your creel are channel and yellow catfish, crappie, sunfish, ocean striped bass and walleye. A Texas fishing license is required and state regulations enforced; in Mexican waters, a Mexican license is necessary.

Hunters, too, will enjoy Amistad. There is a special bowhunting season for deer, dove, quail and waterfowl may be hunted with shotguns in accordance with Texas state law.

SANTA FE — An Albuquerque liquor license was sold for $215,000.

John Devoti, doing business as Stadium Club, 1400 University Blvd. SE, sold the dispenser's permit to Stadium Club Inc. — Gene Wood, president; David C. King, vice-president; and John Stolecki, secretary-treasurer. An agreement filed in the state liquor agency lists the total price at $235,000. Good will was compensated at $5,000 and equipment was valued at $15,000.

A $50-a-year liquor license was part of an $800,000 deal for a Holiday Inn at Silver City, sold by Feinberg Realty Co., headed by Milton D. Feinberg, El Paso, to Silver City Associates — Roland Ramsey of Turlock, Calif., and Jack Osborne, Silver City. Tabulation of the $800,000: Buildings, $698,000; land, $50,000; license, $30,000; furnishings, $14,000; machinery and equipment, $13,000.

A liquor permit was in a $1.4875 million sale of Rimrock Motor Inn at Farmington by Rimrock Motor Inn Inc., Stephen Lincus, president, to Max Williams, Farmington. Included were the motel, 4.3 acres, the license, improvements, supplies, fixtures, inventory and equipment. Sen. Jack Tannehill, R-Albuquerque, and Charles G. Taylor, Santa Fe, were officers of the selling corporation.

Santa Fe Lodge Inc., doing business as Turf Club, Santa Fe, sold its liquor license and real estate for $127,500 to Mineral Abstract Service Inc., Fred Horst, Santa Fe, president. Taylor is Santa Fe Lodge Inc. president and Mineral Abstract Service Inc. vice president. Santa Fe Lodge Inc. formerly leased the license from Layon E. Stevens.

Apparent sale price was $50,000 for a Farmington liquor license transferred from Coury and Coury Inc., Betty L. Coury, president, doing business as Esquire Liquors, to Ore House Inc., James Arias, Durango, Colo., president. Furniture, fixtures, supplies, equipment, a lease and leasehold improvements were in the total.

At Las Vegas John, Rosa A. and Touflick N. Fidel, doing business as El Fidel Hotel, sold a liquor permit, real estate and other personal property for $125,000 to Philip J. Wolff and Cristiano B. Griego.

r. and Mrs. Frutoso Trujillo sold a Santa Fe liquor license for Santa Fe Lounge and Package Store for $80,000 to William S. Sorensen. Equipment inventory was in the price.

Gordon Lard, doing business as Conchas del Sur, bought a liquor permit for an apparent $30,000 from Conchas Fishing and Ski Lodge Inc., D.E. Adams, president, at Conchas Dam. The license, fixtures, furniture and equipment were in the deal.

State Liquor Director Carlos Jaramillo approved all of the license ownership transfers recently.

Bids are being reviewed on a one-year state fleet insurance contract for liability, property damage, medical payments and uninsured motorist coverage. Fidelity Insurance Agency, Roswell, bid an annual premium of $365,944 on 2,826 state vehicles. Within the total premiums range from $20 a year for trailers to $220 for trucks. Al Lake of the Roswell agency represents Commercial Standard Insurance Co., Fort Worth. Part of coverage would be re-insured with American Re-Insurance Co. Fidelity Insurance Agency has the present contract as representative of Gulf Insurance Co. Gulf is no longer in business in New Mexico.

The only other bid is a $977,680 annual premium by Richard M. Cottrill Insurance, Albuquerque, representing All-Star Insurance Corp., Fort Worth. The unit premium would be $290 for trucks and $315 for passenger cars. Al A. Longshore, State Purchasing Office insurance specialist, said both bids met specifications. But they were referred to the Finance Department's new Risk Management Division, State Insurance Supt. Ralph Apodaca and the Governor's Insurance Advisory Committee because of questions raised on the stability of the insurance companies.

State Corporation Commissioner Floyd Cross will receive $550 a month in retirement benefits after he retires June 30. Cross has compiled 19 1/2 years of public service, including 11 SCC years.

State Revenue Bureau tax collections totaled $367,808 million for July-May, up 11.8 per cent or $38,893 million over the same fiscal 1974-75 months. Revenue Bureau state general fund collections for May totaled $33.976 million, up $5.527 million or 18.4 per cent over May, 1975.

Gross receipts and compensating tax collections for July-May were up 11.1 per cent or $17,505 million to $175,506 million. Net personal income tax receipts were up $4.26 million or 8.3 per cent to $56,095 million.

FAREWELL COLUMN

This will be my last column for the Ruidoso News.

No mean bosses, no job disappointment, no health problems or ulcers . . . just a move to what is supposedly a greener pasture in law school, at the University of New Mexico in Albuquerque.

Newspaper columnists have always been suspect of being a little cracked and masochistic for exposing their perceptive (and many times, not so perceptive) opinions to the world. In the past six months I've begun to discover why.

I mean, who really cares what Henrietta Jones from Podunk, Idaho, thinks about abortion or equal rights or the local animal shelter?

Sometimes you wonder if anyone is really reading the jumble of thoughts you took a few hours trying to organize or if your column is simply lining someone's parakeet cage.

And then, out of the blue, someone writes you a nasty letter . . . "You are full of hogwash!" the letter says (though not always in those words) and you're overjoyed because at least you know one person USED to read what you wrote.

Every once in awhile a stranger will stop you on the street and swear he's seen you somewhere before . . . "Oh," you respond, ego swelling, "you've probably seen my picture in the newspaper." "No, that's not it," he answers pensively. "I was thinking more along the lines of the bulletin board at the post office."

Occasionally a little girl will pick you out of a crowd. "Look mommy, there's the girl daddy throws darts at, at home."

Or perhaps someone will call you at the office to let you know you spelled the word "metamorphosis" wrong. "Well, what'd you think of the column otherwise," you ask, fishing for compliments, response . . . anything! "Oh, I never read the column, I just look for mistakes."

So much for being over proud as a newspaper columnist.

"Is it worth it?", you ask yourself each time you sit down to the typewriter. Each time, the answer "yes" bounds back at you, sometimes feebly, other times resoundingly.

My columns haven't always been well thought out or written. Many, many times, they haven't even been right. But if, in the last half year one of them has made you stop and think a little, then thank God I've done my job occasionally.

Not to say I haven't reaped numerous rewards from this job.

Ruidoso has proved a fertile culture for discovery of self and others. It has taught me more in the last six months than I learned in all my years of college and, like so many out of state visitors who've discovered the beauty of this area, I'll be back.

Thanks for the chance to share my ideas with you. Hasta la vista, Randi.

Clipped Comment

(Editor's note: This was written prior to the death of Don Bolles, murdered Phoenix Arizona Republic reporter. It is being reprinted here because of the timeliness of the writer's remarks and the points he makes to guide our elected officials to become watch dogs to keep our corruption out of government, at any and all levels.)

THOUGHTS ON BOMBING A NEWSPAPER REPORTER

One thing I can't make fun about. It's too sickening. For the six years I worked as a reporter on the Arizona Republic in Phoenix, I knew well investigative reporter Don Bolles. Today, he is fighting for his life in a Phoenix hospital. He has lost one leg and faces loss of another, has lost an arm, as well as going on dialysis for possible kidney failure.

Don was maimed last Wednesday when a bomb ripped apart his car as he backed out of a parking space at a Phoenix motel. All indications are that some element of organized crime he was investigating struck back at him in this cruel manner. They didn't intend to wound him. They meant to kill him.

A suspect has turned himself in to police but won't talk. Don already has told police about the person he was going to meet on a news tip when he was set up.

Editorial
Any movement, by anyone, to expedite solving the loose animal problem plaguing Ruidoso and Ruidoso Downs residents isn't readily apparent. Lip service is being accorded the problem and passing-the-buck suggestions are prevalent. Why aren't the villages' officials acting?

A NEWSPAPER'S ROLE

From a personal standpoint, the value of a newspaper to the reader is hard to put into words.

If the newspaper stomps on your corns, whorps your pet ideas, ignores your causes . . . you don't view it in a kindly light.

Should it so happen events that are newsworthy are those that serve your cause . . . the newspaper's only doing its job. Until, of course, comes the "But what've you done for me lately?" bit.

Deciding the paper's role in the community is the constant concern of the publisher . . . with this decision fraught with complications.

Then there's the problem of names . . . break into print for an accomplishment and it's beautiful, your name in print . . . get your name in print off the police blotter and there's an outside chance your opinion of fair and equal treatment for all is somewhat influenced.

Ah . . . yes . . . all too often a newspaper writer winds up with a thorn in his nose when all he did was bend over to smell the roses.

Every newspaper reader has a personal point of view . . . and one such expression, published in April of 1961 in a west coast paper, written by a six-year-old girl named Diana . . . casts an entirely different light on newspapers . . . collectively or individually.

Diana wrote: "Newspapers. We need them so we can know who reeks, and who drowns and who shoots somebody. And who wants a house or who dies or gets a baby. It tells if your dog is lost. They tell about shows and how much things are. They are good to swat things with like files and public officials. They are good on shelves and to make bond fires. They also do under a baby's plate and to keep dogs offa things. You can put potato peeling in 'em and you can put one when you defrost. Newspapers, we need 'em."

And that's a summation you can't hardly argue with.

ULCER REPORT NO. 2

My bride's ulcer . . . with m' bride bein' Kay, you-know . . . is doing its thing. Can't say the same for Kay.

At this stage, she isn't exactly waitin' down her poached eggs with gusto . . . seems she ran out of gusto . . . 'bout three weeks back. And there's a seeming lack of it in her present world.

Not that she's complaining . . . oh, she might be griping a wee bit about no pepper . . . and no ice tea . . . and no steaks . . . and no rabbit food.

And then there's me. I'm really not following her diet too closely. 'Course . . . I've nothing against poached eggs . . . but THREE times a day? And I do try and chomp my celery quietly . . . and ever so gently do I tear crispy, crinkly lettuce . . . and I turn on the exhaust fan, so's to clear the room of the odor of browning steak . . . and all sorts of helpful things like that I do do.

Seems, though, there's a turning point in the offing . . . 'long 'bout the 25th . . . this month . . . she's gonna take her ulcer to the laboratory . . . and there's gonna be a peck takin' session . . . and stuff . . . and with her determined Finn determination . . . she's by jinkies gonna see to it that I take her out that very evening . . . for steak . . . salad . . . potatoes . . . and all such goodies . . . and furthermore, by jinkies, she's gonna savor a glass or two o' ice tea . . . and that old ulcer'd better be prepared.

Yup . . . that old tannic acid scare about ice tea ain't scarin' my bride none . . . and you can bet all your Lipton's stock on that.

BRIEF BIT: There doesn't seem to be anything a Congressman can do that he can't explain, justify or deny . . . to his own satisfaction . . . CD

When something is as horrible as the bombing of a newsmen for doing his job too well occurs, citizens had better wake up. The "Mafia-style" gangland operations are not restricted to TV shows and history books and movies, or to Chicago or New York or Las Vegas; they're much closer. Even Deming has had its experience with the former American Pail Corp., linked in many ways to organized crime figures in Illinois. There was one of the largest organized rings of aerial drug smugglers headquartered in Luna County.

The answer is for citizens to be alert to such intrusions, and to help law enforcement agencies and the courts in ridding the community of this element.

Newspapers also have an important role in informing and alerting the public.

That is what Don Bolles did. Ironically, he had become frustrated in recent months with investigative reporting. He felt the police, courts, state and local governments were ignoring, or not doing enough, about the corrupt characters he exposed. In recent months, he had been doing regular reporting . . . covering the Arizona Legislature. But, the gangster mentality apparently has a long memory. Somebody got him.

If the intent was to scare the press and the law enforcement people and courts, the opposite has resulted. There is more determination than ever now in Arizona to root out, expose and jail the organized crime hoodlums in that state. New Mexico should be all the more vigilant at the same time. — Harold Cousland, Deming Headlight

Planning ahead solves moving problems

Sooner or later, moving day arrives for virtually every family in America. Each year, one family out of five moves, and an average individual will move 14 times in his/her lifetime.

In theory, moving day is a time of excitement, anticipation, and happiness. In fact, moving day is frequently marked by frustration, headaches, fear, and unexpected expense.

Many of the problems and expenses related to moving can be reduced or eliminated if you are willing to do at least some of the work yourself. Here are a few tips:

There are basically four means of moving: van line, rental equipment, owned or borrowed equipment, and liquidation. The latter three are essentially do-it-yourself and together they comprise about three-fourths of all household moves.

One method may seem just right for you, depending upon how much money you can spend, how much work you're willing to do, and how much damage to your goods you're willing to risk. Money alone won't guarantee a damage-free move, so consider this:

Van lines are most expensive because they will do all the work for you.

Rental equipment — trucks and trailers — cost about half as much as van lines.

Owned or borrowed equipment may be the least expensive method, but there are several hazards: the equipment is not designed for moving furniture and you may not be able to obtain moving aids so the chance of damage is increased and the job may be harder. You may have to make several back-and-forth trips, and you won't have any insurance protection for your goods. However, for local, short-distance moves and very few goods, this can be quick and cheap.

Liquidation means you get rid of everything you can't carry in your car or suitcase. This is great for bachelors and those folks living in furnished apartments, but you should measure the cost of replacing your goods against the cost of moving some of them. It may be cheaper to move them.

You don't need to settle on just one method of moving. Depending on your ability to pay and work, a combination of different methods may yield the most desirable results and still result in substantial savings.

For instance, no matter what method you choose, you save money by doing your own packing. Obtain sturdy packing cartons from the van line, rental equipment dealer, or local stores, and pack correctly. Van lines charge for packing and unpacking services.

Then, if you don't want to do anything else, call a van line. Or if you want to save even more, and at the same time insure that you won't be stranded in a new home without furniture or clothes because the van was late, rent a trailer or small truck and move clothes, dishes, beds, smaller furnishings and valued items. Have a van line move the heavier items: appliances, etc. You'll save some money because you do part of the job yourself, but you won't wear yourself out. This is especially good if you are moving into or out of a highrise, downtown apartment.

If a van line is completely out of the question, see about getting several friends with pickup trucks and make the move caravan style, possibly augmented by a rental truck for appliances, large furniture, or any items that you don't want open to the elements while you drive around. That way, you can still use equipment designed for moving (a rental truck or trailer), but you'll be able to get by with a smaller piece of equipment (lower rental rate) and may be able to get a part-day rate (lower than full 24-hour rate).

If you use rental equipment for all or part of your move, be sure it is equipment that has been designed for moving household goods and not freight. Does it have smooth interior sides and deck, weatherproof construction, padded rub rails, recessed tie downs, locking doors? Trucks built for household moving will feature low decks, slide-out loading ramps, easy-riding suspensions, and comfortable cabs.

Regardless of how you move, get rid of things you don't really want or need. Clean out closets, storerooms, attics, and basements before moving. Sell what you can at a yard sale or donate items to charity. Don't plan on moving everything with the idea that you'll do the weeding out at a new place — you're just paying to move things unnecessarily.

SALUTE TO CHAMBER MEMBERS

This is a regular feature in the Monday edition of this newspaper to introduce the members of the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce

BENNETT'S INDIAN SHOP, one of the oldest businesses in Ruidoso, has been in operation for almost 50 years. Clayton and Helen Bennett have been trading and selling fine Indian jewelry for more years than there has been a Chamber of Commerce, but they have been members of that organization since its inception.

Bennett's is located just west of the "Y" on Highway 70. Mr. Bennett points out with pride that he is a charter member of the Indian Arts & Crafts Association.

SIERRA BLANCA CABINS

REPLACES - KITCHENETTES - TV

COMFORTABLE AND SECLUDED, are the Sierra Blanca Cabins, yet just one block off the main "drag" on the river, near midtown Ruidoso. "Mac" McDougal, a 14 year Chamber member, offers one and two bedroom cabins with kitchens, fireplaces and television. Some of the cabins have recently been remodeled but Mac says he left two or three in the rustic state for people that might like it that way. Plans for expansion in the near future will see more new units, along the river at the Sierra Blanca Cabins.

The Dreamer

BY DANNIE STORM

Doe Bowman Graveside services were held Tuesday, June 15 at Forest Lawn Cemetery for Doe Bowman, widely beloved race horse owner and trainer, who was called home to our Lord at the age of eighty seven.

Doe remained active in his chosen field as a horseman until just a few days before his death, and gained countless friends day by day through seventy-five years of running and training horses.

Among the children and grandchildren present at the services were his daughter, Mrs. Ruth Rogers, his son, Robert Bowman, and his granddaughter, Mrs. Herb Claggett from San Luis Key Downs, California.

Religious services were under the direction of the Reverend Ronnie Wilson.

Granddaughter, Mrs. Herb Claggett, addressed the large gathering of loved ones and friends in which she expressed the love and devotion amongst Doe and all his folks — and also his great appreciation and high regard for his many friends.

"I do not want anyone to cry at my funeral," Mrs. Claggett quoted her grandfather as saying, "I know God, and God knows me. And I know God will take care of me. Instead of being sad, I want all of you to have a party."

True to Doe's wishes, a buffet dinner was held after the services for loved ones and friends at the Ruidoso Downs Track cafe.

Going back over her childhood, Mrs. Claggett said, "We never called him 'Grandfather', we called him 'Doe'. Doe would come to see us and bring with him a large truck which he set down in the middle of the room. When he opened it, the top tray was filled with chewing gum, oranges and bananas. And Doe told us to help ourselves."

Mrs. Claggett went on to tell more memories of her grandfather, all bringing out clearly Doe's devotion and thoughtfulness to his family and friends.

Besides working with horses, Doe was a driller of Artesian wells for many years. She said he drilled the largest one in the world at Artesia.

It was good to see so many at the services of our dear friend, Doe, and we are happy that he is now safe and blessed in the loving care of our good Lord in Heaven.

The Blossom Of The Wild Grape

The last of the blossoms is filling the air with its wonderful refreshing essence — the wild grape. In the early morning the aroma floats up from along the river mingling with the freshness of early day. Then at high noon it drifts on the warm breeze blowing softly down the vale. Then at peaceful eventide, it comes to cheer you in the gloaming, riding on the cool air sitting up from the river as night draws near. And all through the night it is a companion of the moon and stars, greeting you with its mystic little message of summer, as you step out into the peaceful night.

This time of year, oftentimes your sense of smell will suddenly receive the cheerful and refreshing little thrill of the wild grape blossoms away off in some canyon in the hills or high on a rocky bluff — where the wild grape vine has found water close to the surface of the earth. The aroma of the wild grape is the breath of June.

Edward Iste

Shady and I will deliver you this message (this is June 16) on our way up to Mescalero where we will attend the services of Edward Iste, a veteran of World War II.

The services will take place at the beautiful Mescalero Cemetery nestled in a mountain valley south across Tularosa River from Mescalero.

We ask the friends and loved ones of Edward Iste to take pride in knowing he has served our country; and we take comfort in knowing our friend is now safe and happy with friends and loved ones whom he has rejoined in Heaven with our Lord.
