Building development plan effective now in Ruidoso

Guidelines for construction of future business and industrial buildings in Ruidoso now come under the jurisdiction of the Architectural Plans Review Committee (APRC), appointed by the village trustees and operating under the provisions of Ordinance 76-2.

Present committee members are Alden Deyo, chairman; Jim French, vice chairman; Mike Mulholland, Rex Skellett and Mike Waldron. The village trustees are investigating the feasibility of naming four more committee members.

"The aesthetic appearance of the property is our first concern," Deyo said, "with compatibility of new structures to adjacent buildings and preventing needless destruction of trees native to our area of prime importance.

"Our goal is to inaugurate controls over future business and industrial structures, that a harmonious development of enterprises that will be attracted to Ruidoso as the community expands will be insured. "All of our policies are being formulated to aid developers in conforming to our ordinance restrictions."

The committee will meet each Wednesday at 5 p.m., in village hall during the next several weeks. As soon as the operation of the committee has been stabilized, meetings will be held on call for the chairman.

All applications for business and industrial building permits will be reviewed by the committee, with action to be taken within 10 days from the date the application for the permit is submitted to village inspector Chuck Brown for approval.

"Due to the fact that such building permits are requested infrequently," Deyo said, "the committee will meet to review such requests as they are made, but all applications will be considered Wednesday at 5 p.m."

Contractors, builders and individuals or corporations seeking building permits will be advised to submit preliminary building plans to APRC immediately after the exterior building design and color scheme has been selected.

"Upon receipt of preliminary plans," Deyo said, "we can immediately review them and, should there be any discrepancies with ordinance provisions, we can work out solutions prior to the issuance of the building permit and avoid lengthy delays in getting construction underway."

The committee will be accepting recommendations from individuals and groups in Ruidoso, with invitations to appear before APRC to be issued as the need for the consultation arises.

ARFS action will begin with the receipt of a drawing or plat in duplicate showing, with dimensions, the lot lines, the building or buildings, the location of buildings and the lot, and, if necessary, a boundary survey and the staking of the lot by a competent surveyor or engineer. The drawing shall contain suitable notations indicating the proposed use of all land and buildings.

The ordinance provides: "At the time application is made for a building permit for general commercial, office, or industrial buildings and before issuing the permit, the building inspector shall refer the exterior plans to the committee (ARPC) for its consideration. The committee shall have ten days in which to review and approve the plans or counsel with the owner or builder, if necessary."

"Uppermost in the minds of the committee," Deyo said, "will be the protection of the economic interests of everyone concerned as business and industrial developments accompany the future population growth of Ruidoso."

What's in a name? a 'double sawbuck'!

Aspenade — the time of the year when the aspens turn golden and photographers get goose bumps — assuming the aspens and Jack Frost cooperate with the Aspenade planners — will be observed Oct. 8-10.

During this year's Aspenade things will tend to be a bit mulish — 'cause there's a whole passie of activities involving mules — and everything the cantankerous beasts will and won't do — planned during that weekend.

One highlight will be the street parade — along about 11 a.m., give or take a while — Saturday, the ninth.

Now the parade is the key to picking up a 'double sawbuck' — a crisp $20 bill. Well, it might be limp. But it'll still be twenty bucks. And the money is up for grabs — and you can grab it by suggesting the name for the Aspenade parade theme.

Possibilities are unlimited — Bicentennial — golden aspens — and the mules, mules and more mules — and maybe even mule skinner — without knives.

If you think you have a name that'll win those 20 dollars — jot it down — take it to the Chamber of Commerce office on Sudderth — or, if you have a 13-cent stamp, mail it to the C of C, P.O. Box 638, Ruidoso, NM 88345.

The deadline for entries — to claim the 'double sawbuck' — is 5 p.m., Sept. 7 — that's the day after that $1 million quarter horse race at Ruidoso Downs — and just over a month from the days all those mules'll be cavorting and racing and displaying their obstinacy. Some of them might even be cosseted.

Anyhow — the Chamber of Commerce wants a parade theme — and they need it by Sept. 7 so everyone entering a float will be able to design it along theme lines — and instead of the faithful at the C of C cogitating upon a suitable theme name — there's $20 in it for whoever comes up with the theme selected — and that's a pretty good old deal — just for coming up with a parade theme.

Tracy Dias easily grabs Thoroughbred Derby win

Tracy Dias, getting a well-judged ride from Jerry Nicodemus, came from well off the pace to win Sunday's 23rd running of the Ruidoso Thoroughbred Derby.

The gelding put away the persistent Lefty Right at mid-stretch of the mile-and-sixteenth classic and earned $13,260 out of the gross purse of $22,100.

But the race was marred when Curra Call, the tiring pacemaker, broke down at the turn for home, apparently blocked several horses for a stride or two, and tossed Jockey Gordon Weaver to the turf. Weaver was taken by track ambulance to Ruidoso-Hondo Valley Hospital. Curra Call appeared to suffer a serious leg injury.

Tracy Dias, owned by Latane Stevens of Lamesa, Texas, ended the Derby with a 2 1/4-length lead. He covered the distance in an alert clocking of 1:46 3/5 seconds. Tracy Dias was weighted down with the top impost of 123 pounds.

The fans had him pegged at 5-2 and he returned mutuels of $7 to win, $4.20 to place, $4.80 to show. Lefty Right, with Robert Gibbonney up, held on for second and refunded payoffs of $9.80 and $6.60. The runnerup slot was worth a paycheck of $4,862.

Hard Guy Bedwell, piloted by Willie Lovell, was moving well at the end and sailed in third, a neck behind Lefty Right. The show payoff was $4.80.

Curra Call, as expected, went quickly into the lead. The early chase was also taken up by Ruidoso's six-furlong record Crazy Frills. Lefty Right was in third at this point. Tracy Dias was moving smoothly in eighth place.

As the field hit the backstretch, Curra Call turned on a powerburst and opened up at least three lengths of daylight. But this didn't intimidate Lefty Right, who began a menacing assault on the lead slot. Before Curra Call had reached the turn for home, Lefty Right went blowing into the lead. Tracy Dias was also wheeling in high gear at this point, and Hard Guy Bedwell was beginning to roll.

When Curra Call broke down and pulled up, this left Lefty Right with about a five-length lead and most of the stretch to go. Tracy Dias came charging out of the pack, challenged Lefty Right at mid-stretch, and went zooming into the lead when Lefty Right obviously had little more to give.

Freedom To Be, a double stakes winner at the meet, operated as a 6-1 shot this time, but never managed to offer any threat. Here's the way the also-rans checked in: 4th — Bud Luck, 5th — Easy Stuff, 6th — Infinite Traffic, 7th — Big L, 8th — Crazy Frills, 9th — Freedom To Be.

In winning the Derby, Tracy Dias improved his '76 record to 3-0-2 from six starts, good for winnings of $20,716. Last year, he earned $71,018.

Racing resumes Thursday at 1:30 p.m. On Friday, it's a 10:30 a.m. starting time since the slate calls for 20-or-so elimination trials for the $1 million All-American Futurity. Then it's back to 1:30 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

Dash For Cash, owned by Anne W. and B. F. Phillips of Frisco, Texas, swept to a brilliant three-length win in Saturday's elimination trials for the $566,042 All-American Quarter Horse Derby at Ruidoso Downs.

The All-American Derby is the world's second richest race, taking a backseat only to Ruidoso's $1 million All-American Futurity on Labor Day.

Dash For Cash, ridden by Jerry Nicodemus, clocked his 440-yard sprint in the top qualifying time of 21.71 seconds.

Carrizozo's financial woes could end soon

Purchase of a garbage truck and containers, authorized by the former governing body of Carrizozo, has apparently caused the estimated $16,000 deficit Carrizozo is now faced with, according to Al Romero, chief, local government division of the Department of Finance in Santa Fe.

Romero, who attended the council meeting Thursday night in Carrizozo said the town did not have the money to make the lease purchase agreement and that Carrizozo is the only town of its size which is supplying trash containers to residents.

Carrizozo is disbursing funds only on an emergency basis and for salaries. Since the 1976-77 budget has not been approved by DFA, the town will be working on a week to week or month or month report basis to Romero until December 1. It is hoped by that time, the village will be working on a cash basis, according to Romero.

Mayor "Bud" Payne appointed a 10-person advisory committee which will meet within the next two weeks to recommend where spending can be cut and revenues increased.

In the meantime, the swimming pool has been closed, firemen will not be paid, lights are extinguished at the airport and no authorization for water pressure lines and street repairs will be given.

Council will consider increasing rates for water, sewer and garbage, along with the implementation of the 4% gross receipts tax, depending upon the advisory committee's recommendations.

The one main account, into which various accounts were previously incorporated, will immediately be divided into several bank accounts to ascertain a more accurate accounting of funds.

TRACY WEARS THE DERBY — Tracy Dias eagerly lunges under the finish line with a comfortable 2 1/4-length lead in Sunday's $22,100 Ruidoso Thoroughbred Derby. The gelding, ridden by Jerry Nicodemus, rallied from far back under the top load of 123 pounds and easily put away Lefty Right (directly behind him) at mid-stretch. The Derby covered 1 1/16th miles.

The junior livestock sale is set for 11:30 a.m. Saturday to be followed by a junior rodeo at 1:30 p.m. The adult rodeo gets underway at 7:30 p.m.

There is no admission charge for the fair. Outside exhibits will be on display Friday morning and the fair building opens at noon and will close at 9 p.m.

Miss Bigrope received an eagle wing fan in addition to her beaded crown and will be financed by the tribe during her visitations to pow wows and other functions during her reign.

Student 'living' with rare Ibx

A graduate student in wildlife biology has begun a fulltime project of monitoring the Siberian Ibx released in the Canadian River Canyon by the Department of Game and Fish last spring.

George Merrill, assistant chief of the Game Management Division, said that Wayne Woodruff will "almost be living with the Ibx" to study their impact on the environment, including their interaction with domestic and wild species, uses of vegetation and their geographic distribution.

Woodruff is working toward his master's degree from New Mexico State University and will utilize his Siberian Ibx study in a thesis next year.

The approximately 60 Ibx, which were released earlier this year, have been monitored until now by Steve Newhouse of Roy, also a graduate student.

JERRY CRANDALL

GARY MYERS

'Three in Ruidoso' display scheduled here

"Three in Ruidoso", a special collection of works by three artists, will be featured at the Bear Claw Gallery, on Sudderth, August 27 through September 12.

Mack Petty, Jerry Crandall and Gary Myers will be on hand to introduce the public to their creations during a reception from 7 to 10 p.m. on the 27th.

PETTY of Denton, Texas, is known as the "sculptor of truth" whose bronzes are inspired from his personal experiences or his grandfather's stories of Texas, its cowboys and cattle.

"I think about a piece six months before I start it", Petty said, "to isolate motion at the right second takes a lot of thought. A good action piece has a certain, carefully chosen pose and leaves the next move up to the viewer's imagination."

He was chosen as the sculptor of Aberdeen Angus Bull and the National Limousin Bull for the North American Limousin Foundation. The Texas and Southwestern Cattle-Raising Association in Fort Worth commissioned him to do a vaquero bust. Petty has exhibited at Anderson's Gallery of Western and Indian Art, Oklahoma City, Gallery II, Lubbock and at the National Cowboy Hall of Fame.

CRANDALL of Torrance, Calif., works in oils which depict Old West characters who made today. Historical authenticity is the keynote in his detailed paintings. To get the true feeling of a horse soldier, Crandall rides in a Seventh Cavalry reenactment group.

Interested in history, the West and Indian lore since age 15, Crandall said, "Anyone who has danced like the Indian to their rhythmic drum beat or has ridden in a cavalry column with fifes and drums playing can understand my empathy for both sides."

He has exhibited his oils at Nebraskaland Days, Saddleback Around of Cowboy Art, Gallery 88, Centennial Commemoration of the Custer Battle and Greater Santa Fe Art Show.

MYERS has lived and worked in Ruidoso since 1975. His watercolors portray Indians, horses, saddles and emotions in contemporary southwestern themes.

"I have to keep movin'", Gary said about his participation in annual shows in California, Montana, Washington, Arizona, Nebraska, Oklahoma, New Mexico and "all over" Texas.

Myers has traveled to Europe with the Oklahoma Artists in Germany, sponsored by Marlboro, and was recently selected to show with the American Painters in Paris. He has exhibited paintings in the National Cowboy Hall of Fame, Royal Western Watercolor Show and Solon Borglum Sculpture Exhibition. "Racing Saddle", one of his paintings, won first prize for watercolor at the New Mexico State Fair and appeared on the stallion cover of Quarter Racing World Magazine. Two of his paintings now hang in Big Chief Headress Collection of Oklahoma.

New Mexico has received $15.8 million BLM funds

The Bureau of Land Management today sent a check for $15.8 million to the State of New Mexico.

The payment represented the State's share of U.S. revenues for the first six months of 1976 from oil and gas leasing, from grazing fees, and from sales of public lands and materials.

Arthur W. Zimmerman, the Bureau's New Mexico Director, said a similar payment of $174,517 was sent to the State of Oklahoma for the same period.

The checks were delivered to the respective state treasurers and will be allocated by the states according to their respective state laws.

Revenues shared with New Mexico were divided, by source, as follows: oil and gas, $15,491,012.25; grazing, $317,850.82, and public lands and materials sales, $29,632.97. The payments represent roughly one-third of the revenues collected by the Federal Government under the Mineral Leasing Act, the Taylor Grazing Act and other statutes.

In the same order, the figures for Oklahoma were: $172,436.02, $120.05, $1,961.47.

By grazing district in New Mexico, the grazing shares were as follows: Roswell, $50,136.91; Las Cruces, $46,414.56; Socorro, $18,931.19; and Albuquerque, $15,453.47. The shares represent approximately 33 per cent of revenues.

By county, in New Mexico, the grazing receipts breakdown was as follows in the order of their contribution:

Lincoln	$28,642.44	De Baca	7,182.29

An artist with vision

Religious and philosophical themes are often the personal visions of Rod Parkinson's wood carvings and paintings. Parkinson, another of the many artists who has made Ruidoso his home, moved here last spring from Lubbock, Tex., where he was in the art department at Texas Tech University for 28 years. Ruidoso was already a familiar place to him, as he has been a summer visitor for many years.

He held "paint outs" here for several summers and although now retired and supplementing that retirement with a shop that is more like a museum, he said, "I still feel like I'm an educator because a museum is one kind of education."

Many of his "objects de art" are included in the shop but other artists' work, collected over the years, are found. An abstract, done by one of his students several years ago, is hanging there and Parkinson has been experimenting with a rotating spot light to give it a pulsating effect and sense of movement.

Another wall in the old house that has become a "museum" and work shop is framed to reveal magazines that were used for insulation in the walls. "The old magazine illustrations have become a source of inspiration to art students in the past few years," Parkinson said, "along with the nostalgia interest in music and other things of the past."

Parkinson believes in communicating with people. "Some artists like the mystic," he said, "but I feel an artist needs to talk about what he is trying to say. I feel that paintings should be named — not numbered — so that people would know what the artist is trying to say."

He is presently more involved in wood carving than painting, but plans to resume painting this winter. He is now working on a commission for a series of wooden doors which depict Psalms.

He works from sketches, first on a smaller piece of wood and then on the actual panel. In the preliminary stage he makes certain there will be sufficient lighting to give the carving the depth required.

Light relates to both carving and painting. "Sculpturing and painting blend together in my mind," Parkinson said.

Many times in wood carving the piece of wood both limits and suggests the subject. One interesting piece, found in a friend's wood pile, was left in its original form and only required some finish work. "After all," Parkinson said, "God made the tree, we only recreate."

In 1971 the magazine, Artist USA, showed a painting by Parkinson entitled "New Lunar Mystic" showing the shapes and forms he felt might be found on the moon. A photo sent down later reveals much the same forms that were depicted by the artist in the painting.

One of his relief carvings is on display at the Chamber of Commerce office. He now hopes to find the time to finish other works. One of his paintings shows a pond off Sudderth that was done ten years ago, and as the scene has changed, he plans to finish it from memory.

One of his watercolors is in the permanent collection of the Texas Fine Arts Association. Many of his portraits and paintings are in private collections. His portraits today are the scriptural personalities found in his wood carvings.

His own interest in communication and expression is exemplified by the spirit of his painting and sculptured forms. He hopes now to have more time for this expression.

Happenings

by Jerry

Do you have triskaidekaphobia? In case you don't happen to suffer from it — that's the fear of the number 13. Then there is Friday the 13th which is supposed to be an unlucky day. Funny we didn't realize it was Friday the 13th this month until after we got to work and flipped over the desk calendar!

Until that moment we had only wondered why we stumbled over the throw rug getting to the bathroom — broke a mirror trying to put our face on — groped for the phone at 6:00 a.m., wondering why someone would be calling at that hour — rushed out the door to work only to find that stray dogs had been in the garbage cans and left their mark all over the front lawn — couldn't have been because it was a Friday the 13th!

At least we kept telling ourselves that because we've certainly had worse days — there was that time that we ran out of gas at 3:00 a.m., 12 miles out of Ruidoso, had to hitchhike in, only to find that there were no all night service stations, got off at some friend's house and kept them up until 6:00 a.m. — then waking the cab driver to get home, only to find that our phone was out of order and there was no way to call a station or notify the phone company without walking about a mile to a grocery store to use their phone — and that wasn't a Friday the 13th!

Hope that Bill Thomas, V.P. of the race track, had a better Friday the 13th because it was his birthday! Know that it started out to be a good day for Bill because a group of us helped him celebrate beginning on the evening of the 12th and by midnight when Bill's birthday rolled around no one was aware of it being Friday the 13th — only that it was Bill's birthday! If your day didn't progress as well as it should have, Bill, there is always next year when it falls on a Saturday — and Happy Birthday, again, Bill!

Since Mr. Pat is too busy to go, — let's take a trip to Mexico without him — and enjoy some Mexican cuisine! It is delicious!

Although you see McDonalds and Kentucky Fried now in Mexico that is for the American tourist who thinks that eating in Mexico has to tear into the taste buds or that eating in Mexico just means huevos rancheros!

If you really can't get away for a jaunt south of the border — here is a recipe to try until you can get away!

Avocado Mounds Villa Montana
3 large avocados, halved and pitted
Juice of 2 lemons

1 breast of boiled chicken, diced
1 medium onion
3 medium tomatoes, peeled, seeded, chopped
1 handful of cilantro or parsley, chopped fine
Salt and pepper
2 tablespoons olive oil

Brush avocado halves with juice of 1 lemon. To the chicken add the cilantro or parsley, salt and pepper to taste, the olive oil and remaining lemon juice. Fill the avocados with the chicken mix, and garnish with chopped onions and tomato. Serves 6.

FINALIZING PLANS for the annual Altrusa Club's Floricade September 1st are, from the left, Gladys Glenn, Joe Koegler and Sis Koegler. Glenn, Ruidoso Flowers, is a member of the floral committee which is responsible for the flowers and supplies to be used by the guest designers. Also serving on the committee are Kim Graham, Ruidoso Flowers, and Norma Phillips, Art and Flower Nook. Koegler will be the auctioneer for the event and his wife will be guest commentator. The Koeglers are formerly of Midland Floral Services, Inc.

Indian Arts, Crafts Show at La Luz

The third annual All Indian Arts and Crafts Show will be held at Gallery LaLuz, Sept. 4 - 6, with the displays open from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. daily.

Gallery LaLuz is a non-profit organization funded by the New Mexico Art Commission and the National Endowment for the Arts.

Clara Lee Tanner, professor of anthropology, University of Arizona, Emeritus 1975-76, will lecture on "The Changes in Southwestern Indian Arts" at the School for the Visually Handicapped at 7 p.m., Sept. 2.

"Silversmiths at Work", at the gallery Sept. 4 - 5, is a new feature of this year's show, with jewelry being made before an audience.

Judging the show will be Allan Houser, Indian sculptor of Santa Fe, and Lawrence Golsh, Indian painter and jeweler of Phoenix. An Award of Excellence will be given by Gallery LaLuz members, with the recipient selected by the gallery artists.

Items to be displayed include jewelry, rugs, sand paintings, pottery, silk screen prints, paintings and beadwork.

Kitchens hold aids to beauty

Your kitchen may be hiding a host of beauty aids. While they may not smell as sweet - or look as pretty as expensive commercial preparations, they can be just as effective, says Susan Wright, Extension young family specialist at New Mexico State University.

For facial care, consider using mayonnaise as a cleanser for dry skin. Use it as you do a commercial product. Cornmeal is an effective cleanser for oily skin. Mix a small amount of soap suds and use as a scrub to remove dead skin, to clean pores and to stimulate your complexion.

Egg whites, slightly beaten, can be applied as a facial mask to tighten and tone your skin. Apply a generous coat of the egg white, allow to dry and coat again. Wear the mask for about a half hour before rinsing it off with warm water. Try a similar application using ordinary grapefruit juice if you have oily skin and large pores, Miss Wright says.

Your hair can benefit from kitchen beauty aids also. Try a rinse of lemon juice and water or vinegar and water after shampooing your hair. Either is good for oily hair. To condition dry hair, use mayonnaise as you would a commercial conditioner. After applying the mayonnaise, wrap your hair in a towel dampened with warm water for about 15 minutes. Then, shampoo your hair carefully to remove the conditioner, rinse and comb. Your hair will be soft and easy to manage.

A cosmetic lotion for soothing itching or sunburned skin can be made from cider vinegar. Add one cup of petals from a favorite flower or leaves from a favorite herb to one pint of boiling water and simmer two minutes. Add one cup of cider vinegar and pour into a clean container. Seal and let stand two weeks. Be sure to strain before using.

Rough elbows benefit from lemon juice - rub them with it frequently to make soft and smooth. Another softening lotion can be made at home from products that may not be found in the kitchen - but, it's worth the effort to obtain them. Blend one cup distilled water, two teaspoons rose oil and ¼ cup plus one teaspoon glycerin until the mixture is smooth and clear. Use frequently to keep hands and cuticles soft.

Yours and Ours

POLITICAL WARFARE

Now that the wound licking is underway in Republican ranks... and the Democrats are presenting their united front...

limit on some of the downhill drags.

Seems just about all of the traffic laws that apply to cars apply to bicycles. And seems, further, the bicyclists really aren't paying as much attention to the traffic laws as car drivers...

friendly wagerin' goin' on... and if there ain't... well, it just won't be no horse race.

By jinkies, I can't see the connection between the US Bicentennial and unearthing Roman chariot racing...

SEASON'S WINDUP

There's just nine more racing days... two weekends... and, outside of the film crew, there'll be no echo of the ponies' hooves...

'Course there'll be whole herds of jackasses... er, mules... cavorting around a race track... and stuff... come Aspencade and Oct. 8-10...

Anyhow... back to the racing season... and it's impending demise... it's gonna make it tough on Ruidoso's drivers...

Seems just like yesterday when post time for the first race of the '76 meeting brought Ruidosans to the full realization that the harvest season was upon us... and come Sept. 7... by dawn's light... or midafternoon sun... the tallying can begin...

BRIEF BIT: The only question in New Mexico's Carter-Montoya-Runnels "ticket" is: who's trying to ride whose coattails...

What's Your Opinion?

QUESTION: What do you think about a jet-capable airport for this area?

"It would be nice to have if it doesn't interfere with the beauty and balance of nature." — Hubert de Sercey, plumber's helper

"I think it would be great. It would beat having to drive from the airports in Roswell and El Paso." — Joan Dunlap, housewife

"I believe it's a necessity if Ruidoso is going to continue to grow and attract people to the area." — Pete Keegan, restaurant manager

"I think we definitely need it." — Lisa Wyler, bar manager

"I believe it would be a good deal to bring more people in." — Shirley Burelsmith, assistant trainer

"It sounds like a good idea so far as being able to catch a flight and not having to drive so far. It will be fine as long as it's not right in town so we won't have to listen to the jet noise in the canyon." — Mike Collins, shop owner

ABE'S PAY HIKES

Mayor Abe Beame of New York recently approved pay hikes for management-level officials which will cost over $8,000,000 a year.

But representatives of the states in Congress about a year ago voted to spend two billion dollars of the taxpayers' money to "save" New York from financial collapse.

Thus the average citizen has a right to expect Abe Beame, and everyone else in charge in New York, to reduce spending and hold the line on city pay scales — already lavish in comparison with most.

Not long ago Abe and other city fathers worked up a program to defer payments on debts, to stretch out the process, so some tough economy moves could be avoided.

Those who thought New York City should have been allowed to default, and come out of its mess on its own, by belt tightening and economy moves, are not encouraged by political and less than-tough economic maneuvers by politicians.

The dangerous precedent set by Congress in bailing out New York City should not be repeated. That city has a moral obligation to buckle down to the job of restoring its economic viability with vigor and determination — by strict economics and curtailed waste, graft and free-loading.

why can't agencies of the federal government do it? "It" being a successful effort to reduce gobblegook to plain, readily understandable English.

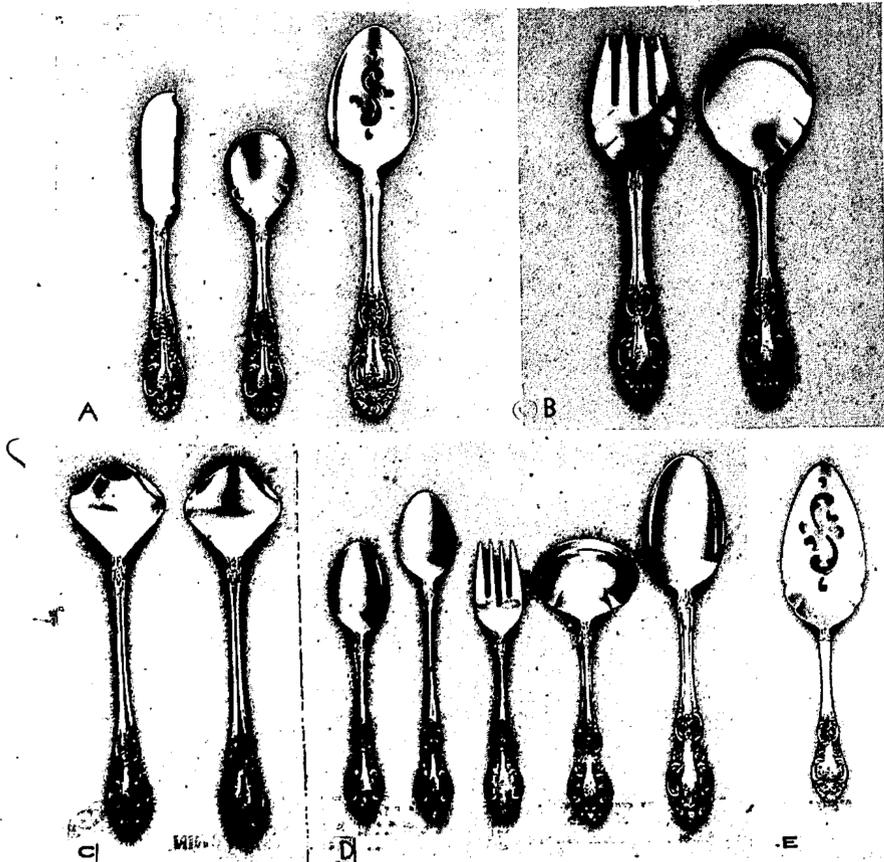

Time was when participants in joint savings accounts at Continental got the lowdown on the pertinent rules this way: they were informed... that all deposits made (or any interest) in this account may be paid to us jointly or severally, and may also be paid upon our joint or several others, whether the others be living or not and the receipt and acquittance of the person to whom any such payment is made shall be a valid and sufficient discharge and release...

Now (oh blessed relief!) people with savings accounts are told: "If this is a joint account, any or all of the joint owners can make deposits or withdrawals. When we do business involving a joint account we can act on the written instruction of any one or more of the joint owners."

Our favorite illustration of how plain talk came to Continental Bank of Chicago has to do with what happened when you owe the bank money. Under such circumstances, the old instructions informed customers, "... Continental Bank shall have the right to charge against this account any liabilities, at any time existing and howsoever arising." Which now reads: "If you owe us money and it's due, we can use the money from any account you have with us to pay the debt."

Only a rabid optimist would envision across-the-board changes of such merit in the lingo of the bureaucrats. There has been some improvement in recent years, though. Let's hope that Chicago Continental's translations into plain talk will give the Washington effort a new shot in the arm. — The Valley Courier, Alamosa, Co.

Kansas City — New Mexico Reagan delegate Earle Chapman says U.S. Senator Pete Domenici of Albuquerque "has hurt himself in the New Mexico Republican party already by his support of President Ford."

Albuquerquean Chapman, 45, a Sandia Laboratories engineer-scientist, says: "Domenici is further damaging himself in the New Mexico GOP speaking for Ford during the national convention before other state delegation caucuses." With other top Ford leaders, Domenici pushed for Ford support at Kansas, Maryland and Vermont caucuses.

Outspokenly critical of Sen. Domenici, Chapman said: "Domenici is decreasing his chances for renomination and reelection in 1978 by his support of Ford. His chances will be hurt more unless he improves his Senate record in the next two years." Domenici was a vice presidential prospect to run with Ford. Asked if he would back Domenici for vice president, Chapman said: "I'm not all that impressed with Domenici's record."

The 21-vote New Mexico delegation here is solid for Reagan. Domenici was beaten by Reagan forces at the state GOP convention as a Ford delegate candidate. He is staying here with the New Mexico delegation at its motel.

Sen. Domenici says: "President Ford asked me to work for him in his campaign for the nomination and be of some help. I don't think anyone can satisfy everyone's likes and dislikes. I'm very comfortable with what I've done as US Senator. I'm perfectly at ease to defend my record and performance. I believe I've done a good job to this point, and I believe New Mexicans, specifically Republicans, believe I have."

"I'm doing what's right, and New Mexicans respect me for that. I don't see how I could have done anything differently on consideration for vice president. The president asked me to submit my credentials and background. I believe most New Mexicans agree that it's a privilege. I don't believe this will have any adverse effect on my career."

An Albuquerquean 17 years, Chapman said he changed his voter registration from independent to Republican in the 1964 Goldwater campaign. He was on the national convention credentials committee.

New Mexico Reagan delegate Jack Morgan, Farmington, blasted the Reagan strategy that attempted to force Ford to name his vice presidential choice 11 hours before balloting began on the presidential nomination. The New Mexico delegation voted, 20-1 for the Reagan proposal. Morgan, a state senator, also opposed the Reagan tactic as a convention rules committee member.

A lawyer, Morgan said New Mexico delegation chairman James P. "Corky" Morris, Albuquerque, asked him to sit in the alternates section while the convention voted on the critical Reagan-Ford issue. Morris confirmed that he made the suggestion which would have removed Morgan from voting in the pivotal fight.

Morgan called the Reagan move "a hastily drafted, new rule designed to force President Ford to name someone who, the Reagan people hoped, would provoke some slippage of Ford support." He added: "It was a move to compensate for the mistake Reagan made in naming Schweiker. The proposed rule was an obvious political strategy move. The Reagan people made a mistake to try to change the rule at a late date." The pro-Ford rules committee rejected the tactic, 59-44. The convention acted on it as a committee minority report.

Morgan said: "There has been some persuasion directed at me and some heated words exchanged on this issue with Reagan leaders and within the New Mexico delegation."

New Mexico delegates, with alternates excluded, met in a closed session with liberal Pennsylvania Senator Richard Schweiker at Reagan's convention headquarters hotel. It was an effort to cool strong New Mexico delegate opposition to Schweiker as a potential Reagan running mate. New Mexico Reaganites questioned Schweiker at length.

Delegates Russ Darbyshire, Anthony Steve Schalk, 21, and Mrs. Jimmy Sluder both of Albuquerque, attended a $150-a-person, young Republican fund raising reception-dinner addressed by New York Senator James L. Buckley, Republican Conservative.

New Mexico Reagan delegate Cobby McKinney, Clovis and New Mexico convention guest Larry Johnson of Hobbs, a Ford supporter, gave impromptu talks at a lively rally hosted by the 29 dedicated Michigan Reagan delegates in the Crow. Center Hotel. Ford's convention headquarters. Mrs. McKinney told the responsive Reagan crowd from Ford's home state: "I visited with Andy Carter Monday night. He said Reagan has 1,140 delegates. We've already got it won."

Carter of Lovington, is Reagan's national field operations director. A lawyer, Johnson said: "If Gov. Reagan wins the presidential nomination, I will support him 100 per cent, and I'm sure everyone else will, too."

Albuquerquean Schalk, the youngest New Mexico delegate, says: "Either Ford or Reagan could beat Carter in New Mexico." Among New Mexico Ford backers who are convention guests are Celine Davis Raff, sister of prominent Albuquerque Democrat Charlie Davis, and retired educator Paul Jiron, 65, of Albuquerque; Lea County GOP chairman Bill Gottschall; Santa Fean Irene Senutovitch and Mary Ann Gomez, state GOP vice chairwoman and Tillie Simion, Red River.

Ex-Farmington resident Anna Cocklin, now of Scottsdale, Ariz., is here campaigning for Reagan. She is a former top New Mexico GOP leader.

Delegation chairman Morris urged the New Mexico delegates to stay in their seats on the convention floor. Sixteen of the 21 delegates were in their seats at the first convention session and only 13 at the second session.

New Mexico National Committeeman Robert Davidson, Albuquerque, said Mississippi delegation leader Clarke Reed kept the 20-vote Mississippi group uncommitted to try to prevent Ford from picking a liberal as his running mate. The Mississippi contingent was the largest uncommitted delegation in the convention Tuesday among only 92 remaining uncommitted delegates as the Ford-Reagan battle headed for a showdown.

Mrs. Sluder, the delegation's vice chairman, wore a dinner-plate sized Reagan button to the convention.

A red-and-yellow "ojos de dios" (God's eye), a gift from Albuquerquean Robert Rhodes to the delegation, disappeared after the first convention session. The New Mexican had placed it on top of the New Mexico standard but lowered it because it obscured the view of camera crews. Johnson spent two hours searching throughout the convention arena at Morris's request. However, he was unable to locate the lost ojo. Albuquerquean Bob Bush and Mrs. Sluder finally located the ojo three and one-half hours later in a storage room in the arena basement level after the convention recessed Monday night.

NMSU wins communications contest ribbons

New Mexico State University's Department of Agricultural Information took honors in this year's communications contest sponsored by the American Association of Agricultural College Editors (AAACE). During the recent AAACE Convention held in San Antonio, Tex., the NMSU department won one blue ribbon, three red ribbons and one white ribbon.

The blue ribbon went to the information training letter, "Informing Yours" and was the only national blue ribbon presented in that category. The winning issue, "Plan to Teach Your Old Overhead Some New Tricks," was written by Jeanne Gleason, associate agricultural editor.

Red ribbons were awarded to both the department's weekly newspaper releases and magazine stories. They were edited by Norm Newcomer, agricultural editor and department head, and Ms. Gleason. "Centralized Cotton Ginning: A Local Analysis," edited by Virginia Johansen, associate agricultural editor, also won a red ribbon.

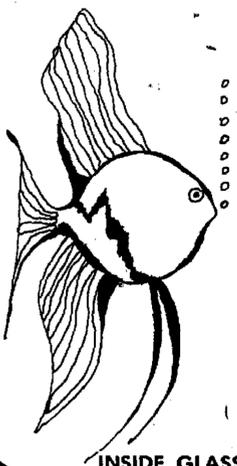

"Beginning a New Century," a national Experiment Station centennial publication edited by Mrs. Johansen, won a white ribbon in the direct mail division.

New Mexico took these honors in national competition against strong winners, such as Cornell University, the USDA, Kansas and North Carolina.

The AAACE communications critique and awards program provides constructive critique of the communications produced by agricultural editors. The program is also a basis for idea sharing and recognition for outstanding materials.

THE IMPOSSIBLE DREAM

Yes. Unless you know something we don't, it's impossible to do everything you like to do at the same time. Or all the time, for that matter. And anyone who tells you different speaks with forked tongue. That's why, in choosing a resort condominium, you should consider Interval Ownership.

A PLAN FOR ALL SEASONS

Interval Ownership (or "Time sharing") is a plan by which you pay only for the time you use. And what you pay reflects a proportion of ownership in both the building and land. If your thing is schussing through the white stuff, purchase a week or two in Winter and ski Sierra Blanca. Or, if the green stuff is more your cup of tea, you might want some time during racing season at Ruidoso Downs. Well, we could go on and on. But why belabor a point? There are lots of these time sharing things around. It's just that ours is the best.

The Dreamer
DANIEL STONE

"A Long, Hard Trip."
Our father, Lynn Whippo Storm, whenever he would be feeling a little bit under the weather, would listen to all the advice about medicine and rest and then shake his head and say, "I need to take a long, hard trip."

Dad was one of the greatest walkers I ever knew. I thought I was a fair ridge runner, but even when he was up in years, I could not touch him with a ten-foot pole. He had many a long trip on foot in Alaska from 1908 until 1914 or 15 as a prospector, mining engineer, and government surveyor. He always carried a pack on his back.

One of the hardest of all his trips he made with another fellow to be present when I came into the world at home in Valdez, Alaska. If I remember correctly he said the trip was made from Cordova to Valdez; but when I look at the map, I can hardly realize it. Surely they camped out along the way. It was over rugged country with long inlets from Prince William Sound, late in October. (I was born on the 27th.)

To save time they began cutting across the inlets on the thin October ice, but overplayed their luck. Dad's companion fell through, and it was after a tough battle Dad rescued his pard and both of them were soaked with the icy water. Still they pushed on like it was nothing.

Dad arrived at the house just a little while after I was born. He used to say through the years:

"When I came in the door and saw you lying on the bed all red and smiling, I took a liking to you."

Dad used to say that he could not see how I have changed a bit in looks with the years.

He was thankful and relieved that Mother and I were all right, and surely the long, hard trip made him even more glad and grateful. Somehow I think that The Lord placed a benediction upon Dad and Mother and all the children on account of this long Alaska tramp through swamp and timber, swollen streams and ice to be at the bedside at the birth of his second child.

For he always had a warm spot in his heart for long trips on foot. He doted on the word "hard" when speaking of a long walking journey. The harder the better.

I Borrow A Page From Dad's Book

So the other day I was looking out at the green hills and the white clouds and thinking back through my life to the days in Valdez. Somehow it came to me that "a long, hard trip" was a great thing for mind, body, and spirit. And taking a leaf from Dad's book, Shady and I set out. I carried a few fencing tools, a small coil of wire and a half block of salt.

I was worried about Shady but soon found that he was worrying about me. The ripening rays of the August sun began to beam down. I noticed Shady was traveling in the shade of pinon, cedar and juniper, stepping every inch he could in the shade.

Halfway up the mountain I was wet with sweat, and I began to remember the old Mexican saying, "John is too old to be a goatherder."

Up on top of what some of the old timers used to call the "cow stairs" on a little flat, all green and cool, we saw Teddy the Bull with some of the cows. They were lying down for a mid-day siesta and Shady and I joined them. The sun in the pinon tree above us baked out the pinon incense and waited it down through the shade. A little song began strumming through the pinon branches, played by the soft wind. And I began to know what "real contentment" means. Here in the sweet smelling woods, all cares drifted away.

After a bit we went on, and Shady stopped at a little clearing pointing his nose back home, much as to say, "Don't you think you have come far enough, Bo? Don't go too far the first trip out in a long time."

It was so pretty back in the hills that I kept going a little farther and a little farther. From time to time Shady would just stop, panting under a tree and look the question at me with a grin. "Isn't it about time to turn back, ridge runner?"

Finally I took his advice, and we turned back, and Shady struck a trot passing through shade wherever he could. Our bottle of water began to run low, and I began saving it for Shady. I pulled some little alpine mint that the Spanish call "poleo" and chewed on it to help the thirst.

The clouds moved aside and the afternoon sun beat down. Shady, beginning to see I had snowed down, began to rest frequently under a pinon or cedar so that I would rest too. The farther we went the longer the distance remaining seemed.

On Moose-head Point we could see the birth has been a sacred bond between himself and mother and me and all the brothers.

Yes, here at home after the long trip, God sent down a benediction from the Beautiful Heaven; there was a sacred blessing in being so tired. Having spent all your physical strength sets your spirit free, and opens the eyes of your soul to see things more clearly than ever.

God in His infinite goodness brought the loving presence of all our loved ones fondly close and near here at this sacred little home at the foot of the hills, and the little spirit-dog and I were filled with Heavenly happiness with the sky glowing with the gold and purple colors of the gloaming.

place far below, and I gave the last of the water to Shady. Just at sundown we walked down to the pick-up on the knoll, and drove home.

How grateful Shady and I were for the simple blessings of life. Just to drink all the cool water you want! The wonderful blessing of being able to walk over God's earth. Just to breathe the pure air, and to see the beautiful world.

All along the trip I had felt my father's presence close to me, and now at home his spirit was ever so near.

I realized once more how his "long, hard trip" to be at my bedside at the time of my

Cattle give more than just meat

Quickly now, what do marshmallows, surgical sutures, steel ball bearings, leather and insulin have in common?

Give up? In one way or another, all are derived from or use a derivative of cattle in their production process. Beef is just one of the things we get from cattle, says Larry Foster, Extension beef specialist at New Mexico State University. An average 1,000 pound steer yields about 432 pounds of steak, roasts and beefburgers.

Of the remaining 568 pounds, the majority yields a vast array of edible, inedible and pharmaceutical by-products. Most consumers are totally unaware of how many important products rely on some cattle by-products for their existence, Foster says.

There are edible and nutritious parts, such as kidneys, hearts, brains, tripe, tongue and liver. Some of the edible by-products are also well known, such as leather, felt and hair from the hide.

However, few of us are aware of the wide variety of lifesaving, life-improving drugs derived from cattle. The best known is insulin which is needed every day by 1.25 million American diabetics.

Although they don't rank in the life-giving category, there are other by-products which prolong the life of automobile tires, hold plaster on walls and asphalt on streets or insulate homes. Lubricants, cosmetics, adhesives and violin strings are also on the cattle by-products list.

Cattle have always enriched man's life. Their importance to modern man goes far beyond the source of a nutritious and enjoyable food. Too, it is the many uses for by-products that helps keep the cost of beef well below what it might be if these by-products could not be used.

Tricentennial Century

The world climate changes. Fifteen thousand years ago, the ice was a mile deep over the site of Chicago; the sea level was 300 feet lower because of all the water frozen on the continents. We are now enjoying a warm spell in one of the glacial eras that grips the Earth every quarter of a billion years, perhaps each time the sun carries us through the gas and dust in the spiral arms of the Milky Way.

During this freak hot spell, there have been minor variations. Two thousand years ago, the seas were several feet lower. When Leif Ericson discovered Greenland in the year 1000, he may have found something green; the Danish settlers stayed several centuries, till the returning cold drove them away.

There are even shorter cycles of change. In our own century, Alaska's Mendenhall glacier has retreated from the building erected for viewers. The records seem to show that our current short hot spell reached its peak about 1940.

Beginning in the 1960's, there has been a cooling trend. I was reminded of it many times last winter when the TV weathermen announced another broken temperature record. Though all these climatic changes are still uncertain in cause and rate and duration, our tricentennial century promises to be cooler than the past.

How much cooler? Though nobody knows, quite a small change could bring back the ice, through a dangerous trick of nature. Bare soil absorbs most of the solar energy that falls on it, but snow reflects most of the sunlight back into space before it can warm the air. A fall of even one or two degrees can have a vast effect on the snowmelt, triggering greater changes.

The signs are already alarming. The great Arctic island of Baffin Land was free of summer ice for more than thirty years, but permanent ice came back in 1972. Robert Andrey reports a study of cores bored from the Greenland icecaps that show the beginning of the last age, nearly 100,000 years ago. The recorded change was very sudden.

The same fall in temperature now would wipe out most of the Earth's food production in a hundred years or less. Andrey writes, "The kill would have included the entirety of Canada, most of the American Mississippi Valley, virtually all of the Soviet Union, much of China, and the cereal-growing regions of Australia and Argentina."

We can hope that nothing quite so severe happens during our own century. The odds seem to favor a relatively mild cold snap, lasting only a few hundred years, but even that would slash the world's food production.

We ought at least to be prepared. We ought to discourage the birth of more billions than we can expect to produce food for. We ought to press hard for the development of hydrogen fusion power to keep us warm through another age of ice. We ought to be planning for colonies in space, where human civilization might be freed forever from the uncertain whims of our mother Earth. If we fail to prepare, we could perish like the mastodons whose frozen bodies have been found in Siberia where the sudden winter of the last ice age caught them a hundred thousand years ago. Dr. Jack Williamson, English Professor, Eastern New Mexico University.

Clipped Comment

UP TO LITTLE GUY

Forces backing approval of the constitutional amendment allowing elected officials to serve two consecutive four year terms are marshalling their forces for the big showdown this fall.

They will have money, organization and political savvy.

It's time someone organized against the amendment and perhaps even suggest we return to the former system of two consecutive two-year terms. Four years is sure a long time between elections.

We are reminded of a few years ago when all the big politicians, educators, UNM professors and many civic leaders worked for adoption of a new state constitution.

The little guy spoke up at the polls, however, and rejected it. We still have faith the voters who have consistently rejected the two 4-year term idea will do the same this fall. — Rio Grande Sun, Espanola

Going Strong

by Gerry Johnson

THE FIRST LADY OF SOUTH DAKOTA Exceptional is one of those words which has been so overused that its real meaning has been lost. But 85-year old Gladys Pyle of Huron, South Dakota is exceptional in the true sense of the word.
 Her life has been a series of firsts; first woman elected to the South Dakota State Legislature; first woman to serve as secretary of state; first female Republican elected to the United States Senate; and other firsts too numerous to mention for lack of space. Women had only gained the right to vote five years before Miss Pyle was elected to the South Dakota legislature in 1923. Women and politics rarely mixed in those days but this was no deterrent to her entering the race.
 "I realized I was under closer scrutiny than the men running for office," she said, "but I never felt awkward and none of my opponents made an issue of my sex during the campaign."
 While she was in the legislature, Miss Pyle ran for and won the office of secretary of state. She subsequently ran for governor, receiving the highest percentage of the popular vote, but fell just short of the necessary 35 percent required to determine an outright winner.
 "There were four men in the race besides me," Miss Pyle told a writer from The National Council on the Aging. "One of them had powerful forces backing him and when the outcome was decided by special convention, he was elected governor."
 Undaunted by her defeat, she remained in politics and was later elected by the largest majority in state history to fill out the term of a United States Senator.

 "It made quite a stir back then," Miss Pyle reminisced. "All the papers took my picture because I was the first female Republican Senator."
 Miss Pyle has had a life-long interest in politics. Besides the many offices she has held, she has attended numerous national conventions. At one of them she recorded another first by nominating the Governor of South Dakota for President; she was the first woman to ever nominate a presidential candidate at the Republican National Convention.
 Although no longer active in politics, Miss Pyle is still working as an insurance agent. Almost every morning she walks the streets of Huron conducting business, discussing the affairs of the city with civic leaders and calling on sick friends.
 She still lives in the family home her father built in 1894. The house is on the National Registry of Historic Places of the National Park Service and Miss Pyle occasionally leads history buffs on tours.
 Considering the full life and significant achievements of Gladys Pyle, it's no surprise that she has been honored by the Huron Chamber of Commerce with its Distinguished Citizen Award and by the local Business and Professional Women's Club as Woman of the Year.
 In a less tangible — although equally important — way, Miss Pyle has scored still another first: she has been honored for restoring the true meaning to the word exceptional.

Cooperatives to study future role in state

The current and future role of cooperatives in New Mexico will be the focus of the 21st annual conference of the New Mexico Cooperative Council, August 23, at the Inn of the Mountain Gods, near Ruidoso. The conference will be held in conjunction with the stockholders meeting of the Wichita Bank of Cooperatives, says Gene Ott, Extension farm management specialist at New Mexico State University.
 Wesley McClendon, Deming, council chairman, will cover "Your New Mexico Cooperative Council." Dr. Randall Torgerson, national administrator for the Farmer Cooperative Service, will look at the cooperatives of Tomorrow.
 New Mexico State University's research and teaching programs concerning cooperatives will be the final presentation. Michael Cook, department of Agricultural Economics and Agricultural Business will represent NMSU.
 The day will conclude with election of directors to fill the expired terms of McClendon and Glenn Ezell, Portales.
