FOUR-POINT buck shot by Lt. Gov. Bob Ferguson Thursday.

LT. GOV. BOB FERGUSON HUNTS THE CAPITANS

One shot downs one buck

BY BILLIE SURMICK
Staff Writer

Economy-minded Lt. Gov. Bob Ferguson shot one bullet during the entire deer hunt Thursday in this area and bagged one buck.

Ferguson and his former administrative aide, Lee Pittard, began the hunt at daybreak on a 50-section privately-owned ranch some 35 miles north of Capitan. Pittard got his buck several hours after the Lt. Gov. expended his one bullet — "not a silver one", he was quick to point out. The pair, who normally hunt from horseback or by walking, this time drove a vehicle over miles of ranch trails.

Pittard, who shot his first deer when he was nine years old, said, "It is a common fallacy that the deer are in the high country. They're just like cows or other grazing animals and go where the feed, water and climate are good. They're in country most people wouldn't think of as good deer country. Most deer are no taller than five feet at the shoulder and they disappear easily into dips and behind brush and their bouncing gait makes them go quickly over rough terrain."

Several head of deer were spotted early Thursday morning before the day wore on and the deer lay down, virtually hiding themselves from the hunters.

The buck Ferguson shot was accompanied by three does and only its head and part of one shoulder were visible when he got off the single shot. A man in the hunting party said, "You got the doe that walked in front of the buck" and Ferguson, not absolutely sure about the shot at that point, put his hands behind his head and said, "Take me in."

"To me, the idea of hunting is not just killing a wild animal," Ferguson said, "But it's an opportunity to get out in the field and enjoy outdoor activity and the people. We have beautiful country here in New Mexico.

"I haven't missed a hunting season in the past 28 years and the biggest buck I ever got was a 12-point at Vermejo Park. I enjoy fishing and hunting, but I believe in its being regulated and perpetuated for future generations. If we could get more young people involved in camping, hiking and outdoor recreation, it would be great."

Ferguson took his deer to Artesia Thursday afternoon where he said he will have it processed and then donate it to the hospital.

He expressed definite ideas on hunting: "I've never seen more dedicated people than we have in the Game and Fish Department. One game warden has had one day off in the past 70. We

Environmental poster contest regulations set

Smokey Bear and Woodsy Owl's 1977 Environmental Poster Contest, sponsored by The National Council of State Garden Clubs and the USDA Forest Service and State Foresters is underway.

This contest is restricted to an environmental theme which may, or may not, incorporate Smokey Bear and/or Woodsy Owl.

Entries are open to all ages, with divisions from kindergarten - grade two; third to fifth grades; sixth to eighth grades; ninth to twelfth grades; and lastly, everyone from 12th grade up.

"Participants are invited from the community-at-large," Robert Wagenfehr, Fire Control Officer with the Smokey Bear Ranger District, Ruidoso, said, "with the youth and senior citizens especially invited to enter."

Poster judging will be based, 20 percent each, on design, slogan, art work and overall effectiveness of the message. "The design should be such that anyone looking at a poster should be able to grasp the import of the message immediately, from either a picture or slogan," Wagenfehr said.

The contest rules:

— Poster size no larger than 12 x 18 inches.

— No restrictions on materials, including water color, crayons, poster paint, charcoal, pastels, cut-outs and magic markers.

— The artist's name, grade, or age (for adults), and home address is to be printed on the lower right hand corner on the back of entries.

— Entries must be mailed, no later than Jan. 5, 1977, to: Mrs. James P. Ballog, 4717 Comanche Road, NE, Albuquerque, NM 87110.

Additional information is available from the Ruidoso Garden Club or Smokey Bear Ranger Station.

Elks collecting deer hides and any wild game

BPO Elks Lodge 2086, just south of Ruidoso on Hwy. 70, is collecting:

- Deer hides
- Wild game

The deer hides, with collection barrels located in this area, are for the statewide Elks program of providing leather for the handicapped to use for raising funds. The hides are donated for this purpose.

Hides may also be left at the Elks club. For information call 257-2807 after 5 p.m. To support the Boy Scout program in Ruidoso, the Elks are assisting the Scouts in their annual big game supper, set for Dec. 12, 4-8 p.m., at the lodge.

All donations of any game, deer, bear, elk, birds, anything that will help make the big game supper a success may be left at the Elks after 5 p.m., daily or pick up can be arranged by calling the club.

"We're really in need of game," Jim Dickinson said, "to help fund Scout activities next year. Whatever you can spare we'll appreciate."

Smokey's ceremony, Wednesday

A ceremony honoring Smokey Bear will begin at 1 p.m., Wednesday in Capitan's Smokey Bear State Park.

Smokey Bear, 26, national symbol for fire prevention, died Nov. 8 in the zoo at Washington, D.C.

The program will include selections by the Capitan High School band with invocation and benediction by the Rev. Mr. Hugh Stiles.

Speakers include Jay Johnston, Capitan mayor, Ray Gallegos, State Forester, Bill Huey, State Game and Fish Director, Sam Graft, NM Parks director and US Rep. Harold Runnels.

New tote board at Downs track

Construction of a new totalisator board at Ruidoso Downs is moving ahead on schedule, according to General Manager Al Rosa.

Cost of the project is in the $100,000 range.

The initial phase of construction, Rosa said, is progressing toward a Nov. 19 completion date. Around the middle of January, technicians from American Totalisator will begin installing the various indicators and electronic gear. Weather permitting, the entire project will be completed by the first week in February.

The new board will be 147 feet in length, which is considerably larger than the previous board (60 feet from end-to-end).

The format for the new board will be the "Western type," Rosa indicated. "It will be a much easier board to read, and will be similar to the type used at Santa Anita and Hollywood Park," Rosa said. In this format, the odds, and win, place and show pools are listed under each horse's number.

In addition to a variety of other information, the new board will show, in two locations, the numbers of the top three leaders as a race is being run.

The new board will have the same height as the old board, Rosa pointed out, but it will be so designed and located so that a patron in the foreground will have a clear view of the bottom line.

As part of the current construction phase, transformers and other electrical equipment are being installed to facilitate the addition of lights for night racing at a later date.

McCURDY MISSION TAKES CLASS AA GRID SEMI-FINAL TILT

Big Blue trounced 20-0

BY BILL WILSON

McCurdy Mission proved to be too much for the Warriors Saturday as they took the semi-final Class AA football game from the hometown team by a 20-0 score.

After the game was postponed Friday due to the heavy snow cover and inclement weather, the two teams travelled to Tularosa for the playoff match. Upon arriving in Tulle, officials of the two schools decided the field at Ruidoso was in as good of a condition as the one there and the teams loaded back in their respective buses and made the trek back to Ruidoso. With much effort on the part of many volunteers the snow was cleared from the field and the Warriors were on their home grounds.

The Bobcats wasted no time in lighting the scoreboard as they scored in the opening minutes to take the lead which was never challenged.

The Warriors tightened up on defense and held the MM squad until midway of the second quarter when once again the visitors hit paydirt to grab a 14-0 lead at half time.

AG warns Downs board of possible law violation

A quorum of Ruidoso Downs trustees, "Pappy" Johnson, Don Clark and "Boots" Nelson met about an hour and a half the morning of Oct. 26, with Wally Hjalmsquist, on improvements for the proposed All American Park at Ruidoso Downs.

This meeting followed the regular trustees' meeting the night of Oct. 25.

At the Tuesday meeting, trustee Don Clark said: "We have decided the entire project will be under the supervision of Wally Hjalmsquist and if any sub work is required, it will be handled by him."

Clark also said: "We have definitely decided that we will have a tennis court, a basketball court, a baseball diamond with hooded back stop and bleachers, restroom facilities, $4300 in playground equipment, two barbecue pits, two shelters, a water fountain, restricted parking areas, a fence to enclose the playground and cookout facilities, 50 trees, 80 shrubs, sodded grass area and a 500-foot sidewalk."

Relative to this action, the Office of the Attorney General, in a letter to village officials, signed by Harvey Fruman, assistant Attorney General, warned the Mayor and trustees of a possible violation of the "Open Meetings Act" at the Oct. 26 session.

The text of the letter follows:

"Re: Proposed All American Park
"Gentlemen:

"In the October 23, 1976 issue of the Ruidoso News, we read about your actions with regard to the proposed All American Park. The article indicates that your meeting of October 26, 1976, with Mr. Wally Hjalmsquist concerning the construction of the park may have been held contrary to the provisions of the New Mexico "Open Meetings Act," Sections 5-6-23, et seq., NMSA, 1953 Comp. (1975 P.S.). The articles further lead us to question whether the requirements of the New Mexico "Public Purchases Act" are being complied with.

"While we do intend to review these matters more thoroughly in the near future, we are now raising these questions to alert you to be certain that these laws are complied with in your future actions.

"If you care to respond to this article with specific details about your meeting and your public purchasing activity, we will consider such response in our review."

Downs firemen set ball

The Ruidoso Downs Volunteer Fire Department will sponsor a Firemen's Ball, Nov. 20, from 9 p.m. - 1 a.m., in the Gold Room of the Chaparral Motor Hotel.

The ball, planned as the first annual, is being sponsored to provide needed equipment for the department.

Tickets are priced at $7.50 a couple, which includes a free chip 'n dip snack buffet.

SNMEDD meets here Wednesday

The executive committee of the Southeastern New Mexico Economic Development District will meet Wednesday at 10 a.m., in the Inn of the Mountain Gods.

Members of the Health Systems Agency Sub-area Council will be named.

The council will serve Chaves, Eddy, Lea, Lincoln and Otero counties in Planning District VI. Members will serve, without pay, to work on health and hospital problems in the five-county area.

Nominations for council membership were accepted by SNMEDD through Nov. 11.

CONSTRUCTION is going ahead full-steam at Ruidoso Downs on a new tote board. The board, which stretches 147 feet, is rapidly taking form. The view above is from the grandstand. The new board is located a bit farther back toward the infield, but will be far easier to read, and will contain a great deal more information. The small brick walls, at left and right-center, were located at the ends of the old board. The new board is being erected at a cost of around $100,000, and is scheduled for completion by the first week in January.

need laws with more teeth in them for people who poach and spotlight. Sometimes it costs the State several hundred dollars to track down and arrest one violator, then a judge lets him off with a $25 fine. I think we should confiscate the weapon and suspend their hunting privileges. The people who hunt promiscuously and take advantage of the landowners are not only the out-of-staters, but our own people of New Mexico. Some of them kill the doe or shoot a buck, leaving the carcass and taking only the antlers.

"There is no comparison in the quantity of game now and years ago. I'm not sure what the answer is, but I know our Game and Fish Department is understaffed and underpaid. They can't patrol all the areas. We need our laws enforced and good, sports-minded people to support them."

Ferguson said he has "hunted all over the State, but I think I'll make this area my headquarters."

Texas hunter killed on road

A Texas hunter was killed about 6:45 p.m., Wednesday, when he was struck by a pickup truck traveling in the east bound lane of U.S. Hwy. 70 near Glencoe.

Roland W. Dally, 61, of Austin, was in the company of two other hunters who were assisting him in finding his hunting camp.

NM State Patrolman Kent Waller, investigating the accident, said an eye witness reported that Mr. Dally was struck by a pickup that did not stop at the scene.

Dally was not wearing fluorescent clothing, Waller said.

Later that night Flournos Cleveland of Amarillo, was stopped by officers and it was determined that his pickup had struck Mr. Dally. Cleveland has been cited for failure to give "immediate notice of an accident."

Cleveland, Waller said, told officers stopping him that he thought he'd struck a deer that was crossing the road.

School sets bond sale

The Ruidoso school board Friday set Dec. 7, at 2 p.m., in the administrative building, to open sealed bids to sell the final $300,000 in general obligation bonds for the building program.

Friday's action was based upon receipt of bids with a net effective interest rate not to exceed eight percent per annum.

ERDA approves sewage study

The New Mexico State University Agricultural Experiment Station has been awarded a $77,000 contract to continue research on assessing the nutritive value of municipal sewage solids as a soil fertilizer and livestock feed. The contract, awarded by the Energy Research and Development Administration (ERDA), also calls for transfer of scientific instruments valued at over $30,000 to NMSU.

The new contract extends an ongoing research project through the 1977 fiscal year. The project, entitled "Recycling Municipal Wastes to Agriculture," received $85,000 in funding from ERDA last year. In addition to nutritive value, project scientists are looking for possible hazards to soils, plants or animals from heavy metals and chemical toxicants contained in the wastes.

Initial experiments have confirmed that economically important benefits can be gained from recycling municipal sewage products as livestock feed and soil fertilizer. For example, the initial animal experiments suggest that sewage products, when properly processed, provide nutrient energy and nitrogen to cattle and sheep about half as well as cottonseed meal. Cottonseed meal currently sells at about $200 per ton. Researchers are quick to caution that much further research is needed to assess and minimize hazards of chemical toxicants in sewage products before practical applications can be recommended.

Principal NMSU investigators in the research program are Dr. G. S. Smith and Dr. Herman Kiesling, both of the Animal and Range Sciences Department, and Dr. B. D. McCaslin, Agronomy Department. The research is being conducted in cooperation with Sandia Laboratories, Albuquerque, where technology has been developed to destroy disease-causing organisms in sewage solids using gamma rays from "waste" radiisotopes. The NMSU scientists are studying sewage products from the City of Albuquerque which have been "sterilized" by Sandia Laboratories.

Smith estimates that sewage products from a city of 100,000 residents could supply "feedstuffs" for livestock worth almost $1 million annually. He notes that sewage solids may someday become a major "crop" in helping solve the problems of world food scarcity.

The livestock industry is already recycling the nutrients in animal waste. Similar technology for recycling nutrients in municipal sewage could provide food for millions of people who otherwise might starve, Smith says.

NEW VICE PRESIDENTS — Joining the Ruidoso State Bank as vice presidents are, left, Doyle Lee, who will be commercial loan officer and Marshall Moore, in business development. Lee is a former bank examiner with the Federal Reserve Bank of Dallas. Moore, retired International Harvester dealer, Midland, Tex., had lived in Ruidoso the past three years.

MARY ANN DESCAMPS

Each time we make a weekend trek back to the flatlands and come winding up through the Hondo Valley approaching Ruidoso we are always enthralled with the serene beauty of the valley. In the summer bathed in fresh greens and now in the fall ablaze in russet, brown and golds.

Many of our West Texas friends always plan their arrival for a few days in Ruidoso to arrive at Tinnie about dinner time and stop off at the old building for food and drink. A stopover there is always a must because the charm of the old building still remains.

Until 1907, Tinnie was called Analla. When Mrs. Onsey Ramond was appointed postmaster that year she wrote Washington, DC and asked to have the name changed. Tinnie was her daughter's name and so it became Tinnie. There are many old landmarks along the way: churches, used-to-be saloons, and used-to-be towns!

San Patricio was named for the patron St. Patrick and the Catholic church (St. Jude's) has been standing for nearly 100 years. Beams from the first church built in the middle 1800's were used in the construction of the present church. The beams are one-foot thick.

The Buckhorn is now an art gallery and interesting to visit and see the works of art found there, but did you know it was once a dance hall and saloon?

Just off the main road is Arabella; however, not much remains there. It is said that it was once called "Los Palos" or "the sticks" and was named for a lady who once took care of the mall there whose first name was Arabella. The town was nestled at the eastern tip of the Capitan Mountain.

When you pass the adobe styled home with "Casa Linda" over the entrance way, did you know that the late actress, Linda Darnell, once lived there? Other famous persons live just past the polo grounds — Peter Hurd and his wife, Henrietta Wyeth, also a famous artist. Other famous people who have received mail in the valley at one time are Helen Hayes, Charles McArthur, Paul Horgan, Judge John Biggs Jr., Teresa Wright, Nevin Busch and even a Thailand prince.

Next time you are coming to Ruidoso by way of the Hondo Valley — slow down — pause, reflect — both beauty and excitement await you!

Mary Ann Descamps, a social worker with the Counseling Center in Alamogordo will be in Ruidoso to provide counseling services to residents each Tuesday from 2-5 p.m. at the staff conference room at Ruidoso-Hondo Valley Hospital.

"We counsel individuals, provide follow-up therapy for mental patients and offer counseling in marriage and family problems," Descamps said, "and our fees are based on the individual's ability to pay."

Descamps has her masters as a social worker and seven years experience in the field. She recently joined the Counseling Center which was formerly named the Southwest Mental Health Clinic in Alamogordo.

Descamps said people may call 257-7381, extension 16 for an appointment and average sessions are 45 minutes each.

Inside the Capital by Fred Buckles

SANTA FE — A lawmaker committee will vote decisions Friday on key death penalty and flat sentencing bills for action by the 1977 Legislature.

The death penalty bill would establish a two-step system in capital cases. Guilt or innocence would be determined first by a jury or judge. If the verdict was guilty, the death penalty or life imprisonment would be assessed in a separate proceeding. The bill before the Criminal Justice Study Committee also narrows the first degree murder definition.

Atty. Gen. Toney Anaya says a U.S. Supreme Court decision voided New Mexico's present mandatory death penalty law, adopted in 1973 and amended in 1975. The reason: Present New Mexico law does not set standards for imposing the death penalty. The proposed bill is patterned on Florida, Georgia and Texas death penalty laws upheld by the U.S. Supreme Court. New Mexico repealed the death penalty in 1969, except in rare circumstances, but restored it four years later. Gov. Jerry Apodaca opposes the death sentence principle but he might accept a bill with a narrowed death sentence definition.

The flat sentencing bill is intended to deter crime by decreasing discretion in the criminal justice system. For example, the term for a second degree felony could be a fixed seven years instead of the present 10 to 50 years. Committee aide John Anderson says: "Defendants would not be out on the streets in six months. It also gives the inmate a good idea when he'll be out of prison." The flat sentencing bill enjoys strong support with fast-rising crime rates. New Mexico Prison Warden Clyde Malley supports flat sentencing.

Malley opposes another bill, pending before the panel, that would separate the warden and State Prison from the Corrections Department. The governor would name the warden. The warden would be responsible for administration of the State Prison. At present the warden is named by the state corrections secretary.

Malley says: "I have to work so closely with all other Corrections Department satellites. If we sent a man to the Los Lunas facility, say, I have to be ready to take him back, if necessary. If I was on a separate system, it would break down in a hurry."

The legislative committee, headed by Senate President Pro Tem I. M. Smalley, D-Deming, has endorsed a proposed $23 million medium security facility near State Prison Honor Farm south of Los Lunas. Anderson says the major purpose is separation of first offenders and others amenable to rehabilitation from hardened criminals at the central prison. He says: "Moving first offenders to the proposed facility will make rehabilitation possible. The repeater rate may be reduced. Quite frankly, we cannot reach prison reform before we have another facility."

Eight units for 60 men each would be in buildings at the Los Lunas site. Two units for women with a combined capacity of 132 would be built. The admissions and orientation unit for the entire State Corrections Department would be there. It could accommodate 50 men and 10 women prisoners. Other structures proposed in the 20-building complex: Separate administration buildings for men and women prisoners; separate academic and vocational education buildings; a gymnasium, service building and library. Adult basic education, special and college level classes would be offered in the academic building.

A state severance tax bond issue would finance the medium security complex. It would be occupied about three years after the legislation became law. Citing the seriously overcrowded central prison 10 miles out of Santa Fe, Warden Malley says of the medium security facility: "We need it badly. Probably the biggest need is in diagnostic evaluation. More and more judges are sending prisoners here for diagnostic evaluation. This takes 60 days. This is a poor situation to place such prisoners in."

"If fixed sentencing is adopted, all prisoners will go through diagnostic evaluation. Adequate facilities for them are needed badly." Licensed capacity of the central prison is 850 but it held 1,012 inmates Tuesday — 162 or 19 per cent more than the limit. The central prison count was 968 men and 34 women. Besides, 51 older, short-term prisoners were at Camp Sierra Blanca and 181 at Los Lunas Honor Farm. The over-all total was 1,322. The escape rate at the bulging prison system has boomed in the last year.

The legislative committee will also review the New Mexico Detoxification Act. Amendments to this state's law are needed to conform with a Uniform Detoxification Act and qualify for $200,000 in federal money. The panel will also look at confidentiality sections of the 1972 Children's Code. The committee may decide to re-submit to the 1977 Legislature the massive Juvenile Code that failed in the 1976 Legislature. It is a complete revision of the present Children's Code.

Reflections . . .

by billie surmick

And another myth goes down the tube . . . I'd always thought that fishermen were the most terrible tellers of tall tales until I hitched a ride with two deer hunters last week — Lt. Gov. Bob Ferguson and his former administrative aide, Lee Pittard. Their yarn was spun something like this: "We were out hunting with this old fella one time in awful rough country and on a bitterly cold day. We flushed a herd of deer outa this canyon and the old guy gets off a shot at this enormously big buck. All of a sudden the doe in front of the buck fell dead on the ground and the buck just stood there. He didn't make any attempt to run even when the old guy started up the hill toward him. When the hunter got up to the buck, he saw that his eyeballs were all shriveled up and he had been holding the doe's tail in his mouth. He realized then that the buck was blind and the doe had been leading him around. The old boy didn't want to shoot him, so he just led him back to camp and slit his throat."

A local man the sheriff's department deputies picked up last week was lucky he was saved from himself. Seems the guy had tanked up on a great volume of "antifreeze" as a precaution against the cold night. He then built a fire alongside the highway and keeled over into it. He was equipped with a quart of booze and food stamps.

Farewell, ole Smokey. You were a part of my childhood when the fire fighters found you in 1950 and I've followed your career and what it signified throughout your 26 years. It's as hard to say goodbye to you as it would be to Santa Claus or Coke.

When a person is elected to office or agrees to serve on a committee, it is with the assumption he is qualified and/or interested in the work involved. When he becomes disinterested, disenchanted, or for whatever reasons does not or cannot do the job, then I say let him step aside and let another take his place. To do otherwise, is a disservice to himself and the people he represents.

The old dog story in journalism classes said that if a dog bites a man, that's no big deal, but if a man bites a dog, that's news. The wire service tells us a Frenchman was cleaning his gun when his dog became excited and jumped up on the gun, causing it to fire a bullet which hit a passerby, gravely wounding him . . . at least, that was the story the Frenchman told the Gendarmes.

Those yellow stripes down the center of Sudderth must be painted with lemon juice — the kind you used as a kid writing secret messages that became invisible within a very short time.

AIR POLLUTION HITS FORESTS

One of the most important characteristics of air pollution is that it gets around. Though there is a tendency to think of it as an urban phenomenon, the fact is that pollution moves freely across municipal and state boundaries; it rides on the air currents, and can do harm far from the point of origin.

This has been given fresh emphasis in a survey of California's national forests. A study by the U.S. Forest Service, according to that state's Air Resources Board, shows air pollution damage to tens of thousands of evergreens in Sequoia-Kings Canyon National Park and in the Los Padres, Sierra and Sequoia national forests.

All these wooded areas lie east of the San Joaquin Valley. Forest officials report having observed bands of smog moving out of that valley for a considerable time. One of them is quoted as saying, "There is nothing we can do about it."

Those frustrated officials are themselves helpless, true; they cannot impose anti-pollution controls on the San Joaquin Valley. Society as a whole can act to reduce air pollution, however.

This cannot be done on a wholly local basis; nor, as the above example shows, is it a strictly local problem. A concerted, many-faceted program which involves governmental units from the local to the national level is required. Only such a program will curb the amount of poisons spewed out, safeguarding not only the valley that generates them but also the distant uplands and forests to which the winds carry them. — The Valley Courier, Alamosa, Colo.

NO IMPORTANT ISSUES RAISED

The issues in the current presidential campaign would appear rather insignificant when a crude joke in a private conversation can be blown up to force the resignation of a cabinet member.

Former Secretary of Agriculture Butz should have known better, but few Americans who would qualify for a high government office if it were based on the crude jokes they have enjoyed hearing or telling.

We wonder if the public officials who demanded Butz' resignation could pass a test of "never sinning" in public office. Surely there were better reasons for his departure from the administration's cabinet.

And just as surely, the current campaign has not raised any important issues when a crude joke can be made a national issue. — The News-Bulletin, Belen.

editorial

It's a problem of diminishing numbers that's plaguing Gov. Jerry Apodaca. As governor, he's one of 50, as a US Congressman he'd be one of 435, or so, as a US Senator, he'd be one of 100. Which leaves as a moot question why Jerry isn't busily opting for a cabinet position in the Carter regime. — CD

BUTTON BUSTER SON

If'n Paul Payton . . . who got ousted from writing "The Way of the West" and hoodwinked into penning "The Ways of the Past" in the Lincoln County News . . . isn't suffering from a shortage of buttons from the chest area of his shirts, he could be . . . legitimately.

Seems Paul's son . . . Tony . . . did . . . in Jack Schmitt's opinion . . . perform yeoman duties in Schmitt's election campaign to the US Senate. And . . . as all good and faithful laborers in the quarries should be compensated . . . seems that Tony'll be forsaking the beautiful southwest for the hubbub of Washington, D.C. . . . as Sen. Schmitt's administrative assistant.

And it's likely Paul'll be taking full credit for getting Tony off to a good start in life. And, by jinkies, maybe he's entitled.

THORN IN PO'S SIDE

Back in Rochester, NY, the Paul Brennans have . . . four-handedly . . . taken on the U.S. Postal Service in the delivery of mail in that city . . . and the USPS is holding like a bay steer wallowing in a pool of sheep dip.

Seems that the Brennans are delivering letters . . . for 10 cents each . . . and that same day service is guaranteed . . . whether the recipient lives across town . . . or across the street. And there's no way USPS can match that.

Further seems USPS is claiming they have a monopoly on first class mail . . . but, by jinkies, the Brennans ain't handlin' no first class mail . . . they're delivering letters . . . by hand . . . which means their letters ain't mail.

The Brennans are handling some 600 pieces daily . . . $60 gross . . . which, at the price of petrol, should bring their income to within sight of the poverty level . . . but they're looking ahead to more letters and busier days.

What really must gail the USPS is the fact that private enterprise is proving that keeping the government out of mail business can improve service . . . leaving USPS with two choices: take the Brennans to court and lose . . . or hire them to teach 'em how to deliver the mail on time.

RED-FACED RAINBOWS

There should be a lot of red faces around the home office of The International Order of the Rainbow . . . and all because of an apparently popular girl, having a black mother, who was accepted into the order.

Seems the high office bigwigs, upon being advised that this girl, with a white father and black mother, had been accepted into the Rainbow, promptly cancelled the charters of 136 Iowa chapters . . . and probably congratulated themselves on their act.

There's apparently no law in Rainbow prohibiting blacks from becoming members . . . but bigotry apparently did reign supreme . . . and there's a lot of shaken and confused girls in Indiana, Iowa, 'cause it was their acceptance . . . on a vote by members . . . of the black girl, that precipitated the action.

It's been years since I've watched Rainbow ritual . . . which, I recall, is impressive in its simplicity . . . and I don't recall anything in the ritual that would tolerate the action taken by the head office of the order.

The Grand Master of Masons of Iowa took umbrage with the charter cancellations and put Masonic Lodge buildings off limits to all Rainbow meetings . . . and bully for MWM W. Ross McCulla.

Yup . . . nothing like having a service organization for young girls . . . one to teach high ideals . . . and then to have a buncha bigwigs decide not to practice what the order has to offer . . . unless there's a color barrier . . . and so much for the efforts of a few that has done little for the harmony of many.

It isn't as though this black girl tried to force her way in to the Rainbow . . . 'cause there ain't no way . . . applicants gotta be voted on . . . white balls elect, black balls reject . . . vote for the good of the order . . . and so the Iowa girls did . . . and at the next meeting of Rainbow International, there ought to be lots of vacancies to be filled at the highest level.

BRIEF BIT: Dollar-a-gallon gas is preposterous . . . expensive, too . . . CD

Most new homes come with a lot of promises.

Ours comes with a guarantee.
 Every new Lindal home-building package comes with a warranty — one with some real teeth in it. Standards we can guarantee because we control them all the way. Beginning with our own logs and sawmills, and continuing through precise made-to-order engineering. It's a unique system with some genuine buyer benefits. Our warranty is but one of them. For examples of more than 70 others, stop by or send $2 for our Plankbook and designer's kit.
 Bringing nature home — made-to-order.

GI home loan interest drops

The third decrease in the GI home loan interest rate ceiling this year was announced by Joseph S. Cordova, Director of the VA Regional Office in Albuquerque. The new maximum rate, effective October 18, is 8%, a reduction from 8.5% set on March 30. The rate had been decreased from 9 percent to 8.75 on January 5. For a veteran buying a home with a 30-year, $30,000 GI loan, the .5 percent decrease lowers the monthly payment by about $10.50. It could result in a savings of almost $3,800 over the life of a 30-year loan, Cordova said. The rate change does not affect existing loans. Once a loan is made, the interest rate remains the same for the life of the loan. The 8% rate was agreed upon jointly with the Department of Housing and Urban Development. An increased supply of mortgage money is the principle reason for the lower interest rate, Cordova said.

The VA guarantee loans made by private lenders to eligible veterans, unmarried surviving spouses and active-duty military people. During fiscal year 1976 the VA guaranteed almost $10 billion in home loans, a record dollar volume.

More than 9.5 million veterans have obtained over $129 billion in loans to purchase homes under the VA loan guaranty program since its inception in 1944.

Smokey the Bear

I have just received word of the death of Smokey the Bear, the beloved creature who was rescued in the 1950 fire on the Capitan mountains, and who has won his way into the hearts of America and the world. (This is being sent Nov. 9.)

I rode over to the fire in Jesse Harris's truck with a bunch of fellows from his saw mill, and we did what we could to help control the fire. Volunteers came from every direction.

The Capitan Mountain where the fire was burning is made up of big jagged boulders. It is a wonder the trees can grow. The place is really a giant rock pile, full of rock slides, and other dangerous places.

I was swinging an axe cutting a fire lane. Chink Beavers was foreman of the crew. Years afterward Chink used to talk about the fire and brag on my work with an axe.

On this fire the ridge running of this ridge runner was put to the test. We got so exhausted we would lie down by one of the burning logs out in a place where we had the fire under control. It was bitter cold at night up on top of the mountain and we would lie close to the fire. Then it would get too hot and we would move away. Finally I dozed off and woke up with a start. A fire had whipped up not far away and I got out in front of it and began cutting a little fire lane. The fire was burning not too violently, but suddenly the wind came up and several trees burst into flame. I lost my directions and instead of running back to the clearing I ran the other way with the fire following me. I stumbled and fell down several times between the jagged boulders, but I would get up and run some more, with the fire lighting the way.

Pretty soon, thanks to God, the fire slowed down and I went around it and back to the cleared area.

A bunch of us were sitting up around a burning log when Jim Ramsey came up and told us that he had seen a bear cub with his feet badly burned, hardly able to walk and at the mercy of the fire. He said he and some other fellows had rescued it and the cub was being taken where he could have medical attention.

Jim, the great arrow-head maker and student of Indian lore, had been all over the Capitan Mountains on foot - all over this whole region, for that matter - and he was a scout for the fire fighters.

I remember how all of us were glad when "Smokey", as he became known, was rescued.

Smokey is a great American character. He is a symbol of American qualities: compassion, freedom, love of Nature, conservation, and patriotism.

Smokey's death occurred in our bicentennial year, and he will be remembered as long as the wind sings in the pines and spruces of the mountains. Surely God, who looks after all His creatures, has Smokey in His loving care.

New Mexico's Bird,

The Paisano

This bicentennial year, I have been thinking from time to time about our American wild animal citizens like the coyote, the mustang, the American eagle, the bear, the deer, the blue bird, the robin - and especially our own New Mexico paisano or road runner, or Chaparral bird.

Not long ago, my neighbor, Bob Lambert, "The Arizona Kid", asked me, "How long since you have seen a Road Runner?"

I thought a while and then realized that I had not seen one of these delightful birds in two years or so. I used to see three or four a year here at the place. The tame little fellow would stop as he crossed the road to make his friendly signal. He brings up his long tail and his head at the same time so they almost meet over his back.

The people of Old Mexico say that this is his way of saying, "Saludos, Paisano." (Greetings, Fellow Countryman.)

I told Bob that I had not seen a Road Runner for a year or two, and that I wondered what had happened to them.

"I saw one today up on the ridge," Bob said. And from there we began talking about this interesting fellow countryman and fellow New Mexican of ours.

"There is one bird that the cats will not bother," said Bob.

The bird gets his name "Paisano" from the early Spanish explorers who came into Mexico and the Southwest. They saw this bird everywhere and thought to themselves that surely this tame and friendly bird was welcoming them to the new world. So they began greeting the bird every time they saw him, saying, "Buenos dias, Paisano. Buenas tardes, Paisano." (Good morning, fellow countryman. Good afternoon, fellow countryman.)

He gets his name "Road Runner" from the playful habit he has of racing cars along the road or running in front of horseback riders, or just running along the road to get up speed so that he can take off and glide up into a tree or onto a fence post.

His name "Chaparral Bird" was given him by his fellow countrymen in South Texas where he is very much at home in the chaparral, the Spanish name for thick brush country, full of cactus and mesquite. This is a beautiful bird when you see him close, his feathers flashing rainbow colors dominated by grey, black and a touch of green.

I am reading again the article on the Paisano by his south Texas fellow countryman, J. Frank Doble, the great Texas writer. When I finish the article I will bring you some high lights of this bird. The Old Mexico people rank him next to Coyote as the most intelligent of creatures. He has a sense of humor and is lots of company.

During our bicentennial year let us become better acquainted with our American animal citizens. The more we know them the more we appreciate them. And let us say a prayer for Smokey the Bear.

Refrigerate bulbs to insure early blooming

With the help of a refrigerator, you can trick flower bulbs into blooming months ahead of the schedule, says Doug Bryant, Extension horticulturist at New Mexico State University.

The strategy is simple. Simply put the bulbs in the ice box to make them think it's winter. Then take them out of cold storage to make them think it's spring. This is one way to fool mother nature into providing a window sill full of flowers in the dead of the year, Bryant says.

Tulips, Hyacinths, and Narcissus, including daffodils, are popular choices. However, there are scores of varieties and some work better than others. Stick to varieties recommended for indoor use, Bryant says. Check nursery pamphlets and bulb labels to find the bulb varieties suited for indoors.

When choosing containers, the depth and drainage are key factors. To allow sufficient room for root growth, select a container twice as high as it is wide. You can use a coffee can, clay pot or wooden box, but make sure there is a hole in the bottom for drainage.

Bulbs look best when they are planted densely, so don't buy too many containers. A six-inch pot — rim-to-rim measurement — can hold about four hyacinths or daffodils or six tulips.

When it comes to the potting mix, don't be too fussy. Since plant nutrients are stored inside the bulbs, rich soil isn't essential. Try a packaged potting mix or make your own. Simply combine equal parts of soil, sand and peat moss, Bryant says. Once you have gathered your materials, you're ready to get down to the business of planting the bulbs.

Begin planting by covering the drainage hole of the container with a piece of clay pottery, broken china or even gravel. Add some potting mix and set the bulbs on top. The tips of the bulbs should be level with the rim of the pot. The root tip is delicate, so don't pack your bulbs in the soil. Just set them down gently with the tips pointed up.

If you're working with tulips, turn the flat side of the bulbs toward the side of the container. Later the leaves will form a symmetrical border, the NMSU specialist says.

After you've placed the bulbs, cover them with potting mix until the tips are barely visible. Water thoroughly, let drain and label each container with the bulb name and planting date.

Store these newly planted bulbs in the refrigerator or in a dark, cool place where the temperature is 35 to 48 degrees Fahrenheit. Cover the containers loosely with plastic wrap or tin foil to prevent drying, Bryant says. Storage time depends on the bulb. Hyacinths and tulips need at least 12 weeks in the ice box or cold storage. Daffodils require 15 weeks or more. The longer the storage, the longer the stems will be.

Bulbs need water during the cold storage period, but too much moisture invites rotting and disease, Bryant says. Therefore, keep the soil moist but not soggy. Leave the containers in the cool storage until the sprouts are at least 3 inches high, then move the plants to a semi-dark warmer area and hold for one or two weeks at 55 to 60 degrees Fahrenheit. Water as necessary.

Finally, give the bulbs sunlight and room temperature 65 to 70 degrees Fahrenheit. Time lapse between the end of cold storage and the beginning of blooming is usually about one month. To prolong bloom life, keep the bulbs away from heat and the hot sun. When the bloom fades, pinch off the seed pod but leave the foliage, Bryant says.

One season indoors is about all the bulbs can take. But, if you transfer them to the garden, they may go on blooming for many years to come.

Bicentennial Notebook

PROCLAMATION BY THE HOWES

Perhaps they thought that the Americans were disillusioned by the losses of Washington's army in the past two or three months. Or perhaps they thought that individual Americans had recognized their mistake and were willing to return to British loyalty. Or perhaps they were just hoping for a favorable response from some Americans.

Whatever their motive may have been the Howe brothers, in command of British forces in America, issued a proclamation on November 30, 1776. The statement commanded that all persons actively engaged in warfare against the British crown should immediately lay down their arms and return to British authority.

All persons were "to desist and cease from all such treasonable actions and doings, and to relinquish all such usurped power and authority, so that peace may be restored." All persons who would swear an oath of loyalty to the king would be pardoned for their treasonous acts.

Today, we cannot be sure what all the motives of the Howes were, but certainly their objective of stopping American resistance failed. Perhaps, the views expressed by an article by "An American" in the "Boston Gazette" on December 30 were representative of American thought.

In very flowery and sarcastic language this writer ridiculed the Howes for the proclamation. He said that it was very curious to "see slaves offering liberty to free Americans." He further stated, "thieves and robbers offer to secure our rights and property; murderers offer us pardon."

He stated that the proclamation was as absurd as if the Grand Turk had sent two representatives to England to convince Britons to become subjects of Turkey. He also hinted that several European powers were preparing to aid the Americans "to revenge past injustices received from Britain."

Obviously, any hope of reconciliation had now been lost; the Americans could only be brought back under British authority by force.

Meanwhile, in the Spanish Southwest the reforms to improve frontier defense were still floundering. The new presidial line to protect the frontier had been established by 1776, but it was not proving as effective as had been hoped. Presidial officers were roaming farther afield attempting to apprehend raiding bands of Native Americans, but in so doing they left the presidios unguarded. Smaller war parties continually raided the settlements, killing some of the residents and stealing the much-needed horses. Often the garrisons were left afoot because of these raids.

A solution to this problem was obviously a greater financial commitment by the Spanish government, but that was not forthcoming. — Donald W. Whisenand, history professor, Eastern New Mexico University.

Motor Vehicles registration

The Department of Motor Vehicles has released information concerning the 1977 registration or re-registration of the approximate one million vehicles that are titled and licensed in New Mexico annually.

The annual re-registration process began October 28 when more than 7,000 re-registration billings were mailed to vehicle owners who had special license plates in 1976. Special license plates include handicap plates, legislative membership identification plates, prestige license plates, and new and used car dealer license plates.

Motorists who have received billings should pay particular attention to the return date for applying for vehicle registration. Although applications for re-registration will be accepted past the return dates, vehicle owners are urged to complete and return all necessary forms and payments by the requested dates in order for the registration process to run smoothly.

The remainder of vehicle owners who did not have special plates on their vehicles during 1976 should begin receiving their billings for re-registration this week.

The first 300,000 re-registration billings were mailed November 1 to those persons whose last name begins with the letters A through H. On the following Monday, November 8, the second major mail-out was completed for vehicle owners whose last name begins with the letters I through N.

The remainder of the massive computerized mailing program will take place November 15. Vehicle owners whose last name begins with the letters O-Z will be mailed re-registration billings for their vehicles at this time.

It is anticipated that the DMV will handle approximately 12,000 returned billings per day. In order to do this, additional temporary night personnel will be working to complete the many transactions necessary to produce a registration certificate and sticker.

Individuals who do not receive the billing certificate for re-registration of their vehicles, or have questions concerning information on the billing receipt, should contact their local Department of Motor Vehicles field office, or call toll-free 1-800-432-4409.
