

Thanksgiving, Ruidoso Style, raises $230 for schools

Thanksgiving, Ruidoso Style, came, as usual, a little early this year, bringing in its wake an evening of hilarity at the high school gym that also raised a total of $230 that will be distributed to school classes for extra-curricular activities that cannot be budgeted for.

Such activities include certain arts and crafts projects, especially for the younger students, to purchasing supplies and instruments that can be used to enhance the curriculum.

The evening, with six faculty members volunteering as team leaders following designation as such by Supt. Pat Valliant, along with six team members more or less inveigled into participating, proceeded as smoothly as the existing chaotic conditions — to the enjoyment of the crowd — permitted.

Gimmicks included:
Blindfolded people attempting to don attire snatched from a tennis net, after which they were wheeled around the gym in a coaster wagon to the point where teammates gleefully disrobed them — mostly only down to their gym clothes... almost.

Bouncing a tennis ball down the floor with a racket and attempting to toss said ball through the basketball net proved to be considerably more challenging than the teams anticipated. Each faux pas was attributed, naturally, to "lack of practice" and not lack of expertise.

Then there were people attempting to run around the floor with innertubes around their legs, to get to a person on a trampoline, likewise encumbered, who was to jump, jump and jump to secure arm loads of balloons which were carried by devious routes to the stage where the final member had to stomp them, until they popped, with bare feet. It was said, in some circles, the stompers had been practicing — with said statements being loudly decried by said stompers.

And there's more to riding in a grocery cart pushed by a blindfolded person down a twisty maze of narrow corridors than meets the eye. Supt. Pat Valliant guided his pusher through the course in record time without losing a single point, due to the cart getting out of line. Once it was over, there were some aspersions cast by losers, but protests to the judges went unheeded.

The enthusiasm displayed by the fans indicated a little tom-foolery now and again is to be relished and these same fans snapped up the tickets for the ham and turkey and cleared the shelves of pumpkin pies.

"It was a tremendous fun evening," C-C manager Richard Cothrun said, "and though we raised $230, it wasn't intended as strictly a money-raiser, as before, but as an evening of hijinks, a real change of pace and in that, according to audience response, we succeeded admirably."

"We don't know the format, but there'll be another Thanksgiving, Ruidoso Style and it will be entertaining and different — with our efforts directed to raising a little money for our students."

BROCHURES, LITERATURE TO DALLAS, HOUSTON

Ambassadors plug 'Ski Ruidoso'

"Ski Ruidoso" is being promoted at two of the largest ski shows in the nation — Houston and Dallas — by members of the Ruidoso Valley Ambassadors armed with a ski tabloid, brochures and literature from Ruidoso ski shops.

Of prime importance will be the distribution of a sizeable number of 15,000 "Ski Ruidoso" brochures printed for distribution with The Ruidoso News and to local businesses upon the opening of Sierra Blanca Ski Resort for the season.

"Attendance at each of these ski shows," C-C manager Richard Cothrun said, "is expected to exceed 60,000 and they are a natural for us to cover because we're the closest ski area to Houston and Dallas."

The shows, at Market Hall in Dallas and Albert Thomas Convention Center in Houston, attract representatives from national manufacturers of ski equipment and apparel as well as ski areas throughout the nation, Cothrun said.

The Ambassadors are traveling in a van loaned to them by Gene Brock Ford, to enable them to transport the thousands of pieces of promotional literature boosting "Ski Ruidoso".

"The Ambassadors will distribute more than 50,000 pieces of literature at both shows," Cothrun said, "in addition to the lion's share of the special ski opening tabloid that provides excellent coverage of the facilities available to skiers at Ruidoso."

Each Ambassador is, Cothrun said, "paying his expenses for these junkets and the members are to be congratulated for their interest in promoting skiing at Sierra Blanca."

Skiing begins Friday

Skiers, get those skis waxed and boots polished because, barring an unforeseen heat wave, Sierra Blanca Ski Course has set Friday, December 3 as opening date of the season.

The Lodge will open at 8:30 a.m. and the lifts will be in operation at 9 a.m.

As of Monday, November 29, the course had a 10-inch base with 16 inches of new snow reported over the weekend.

PLENTY OF SNOW didn't have this car, with skis at the ready, stalled Sunday morning but the skier will just have to wait until about Friday to hit Sierra Blanca's slopes

Christmas tree cutting set Ruidoso trustees meeting Tuesday

National Forests in New Mexico are again offering Christmas trees on a cut-it-yourself basis. The charge will be $1 a tree. Cutting in Lincoln National Forest begins Dec. 4 between 8 a.m. - 5 p.m., including weekends. Customers are to check with the Ranger District for road and weather conditions and for the closing date of the sale.

Trees available include:
Smokey Bear Ranger District, 1,600 pinyons.

Cloudcroft Ranger District, 500 pinyon, 3,500 mixed conifer.
Mayhill Ranger District, 400 pinyon, 250 mixed conifer.

District Forest Rangers urge visitors to the mountain areas to be prepared for cold weather and possibly snowy or muddy ground. Depending on conditions, tire chains may be needed for traction. Some areas may be suitable only for four-wheel drive vehicles and if conditions become too severe sales will be stopped.

The Ruidoso village trustees will meet at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the all-purpose room of the Ruidoso Library on Sudderth.

Agenda items include:
— Opening of bids on a refuse collection system, including two trucks and 360 containers, to be paid for on a lease/purchase plan over a period of 60 months.

— Introduction of Ordinance 76-8 calling for a village election on the question of imposing an additional one-quarter percent gross receipts tax.
— Consideration of a new franchise for Cablevision.
— Filling vacancies on boards and commissions.

Oil line draft released on proposed California to Texas oil pipeline

A Draft Environmental Statement on the SOHIO Transportation Company proposal for development of a crude oil transportation system from Valdez, Alaska, to Midland, Texas, has been released by the U.S. Bureau of Land Management, according to Ed Hastey, BLM California State Director.

"Copies of the DES are available for review," said Hastey, "at BLM offices in Arizona and New Mexico, along the route of the proposed transportation system."

BLM was assigned lead responsibility for preparation of the environmental analysis pursuant to provisions of the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969. An environmental assessment of the proposed Port of Long Beach marine terminal facilities was prepared by the U.S. Corps of Engineers and is included as a part of the Draft Environmental Statement.

The SOHIO proposal involves tanker shipment of up to 700,000 barrels per day of Prudhoe Bay crude oil from Valdez, Alaska, to Long Beach, California; construction of a marine terminal at the Port of Long Beach for crude oil offloading and storage; construction of new pipeline in California and Texas; and, conversion of existing natural gas pipelines in California, Arizona, New Mexico, and Texas to crude oil transportation.

The section of the DES relating to the abandonment of the gas line and the conversion to an oil line was prepared, in part, by the Federal Power Commission. Public hearings have been scheduled for: January 5, 10 p.m. to 9 p.m., Picuris Room, Albuquerque Convention Center, 401 Second NW, Albuquerque, N.M.; and January 7, 1 p.m. to 9 p.m., Juarez Room, El Paso Civic Center, El Paso, Tex.

Those wishing to provide oral testimony at the public hearings should contact the Project Manager, Bureau of Land Management Project Office, P.O. Box 660, Los Alamitos, California 90720, in writing, by December 30, 1976, for scheduling purposes. Oral testimony will be limited to a maximum of 10 minutes for each witness.

Written comments on the DES are solicited from public agencies and interested citizens and will be accepted until January 10, 1977. All written comments should be addressed to the BLM Project Manager in Los Alamitos, California.

Information developed from the written and oral comments on the DES will be used in preparing the Final Environmental Statement, which is scheduled for publication in April 1977.

A limited number of single copies of the Draft Environmental Statement may be obtained from the BLM Public Affairs Offices in Santa Fe, New Mexico.

Copies are available for inspection and review at: New Mexico State Office, Bureau of Land Management, Room 2220, P.O. Box 1449, Santa Fe, New Mexico 87501, Telephone: (505) 988-6316.

Police investigation recovers Texas car

Two Texas youths were in custody last week following a short lived jaunt in a car reportedly stolen in Texas earlier in the week.

Being held here were William Ray Smith, 18, and John Ray Allen, 18, giving Ruidoso police both Arlington, Tex., and Ruidoso addresses.

Ruidoso Criminal Investigation Division and Police Department patrol officers, after determining that the car, a 1974 Datsun 280Z, had been reported stolen from Arlington Datsun Sales, arrested the two suspects in the vehicle shortly after 11 a.m. Nov. 24.

The charge against each suspect include: Receiving or transferring a stolen vehicle and conspiracy to steal a vehicle, by the Ruidoso CID; and Warrants by federal authorities charging theft of over $200 and under $10,000.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation, reportedly, will file charges under the Dyer Act (transporting stolen vehicles across state lines).

Extradition proceedings were instituted by the Tarrant County, Tex., sheriff's office.

Thanksgiving has come and gone — we didn't have the snow we planned so now it's — Let it snow — Let it snow — for Christmas!

Since we are still having tests and procedures on an out patient basis — Thanksgiving was a liquid diet for us! Turkey broth and cranberry juice is not bad but it doesn't take the place of the "real thing" — so here's to Christmas turkey with all the trimmings!

About the best "liquids" we've had is that special tea that Elke brews at our favorite hideout — she sent some over for us to have at home — it comes from Germany and it's the only liquid we've looked forward to!

Elke is one of those busy people who still finds time for making hand crafted items! She's working on an Indian design to crawl for a Christmas present now. She also does lovely macrame between baking and helping husband Jim in the restaurant and the sweet shop they are opening!

Mary — yet she found time to come to the hospital to give our hair a much needed "lift" after flattening it out on a pillow for many days! That makes you feel better than anything! Thanks Mary!

She's another busy person who makes beautiful hand crafted items between running her shop and helping her husband with their drive-in theatre!

Mary is crocheting an intricate pastel afgan for a Christmas present. Just proves the old adage that busy people seem to get more done!

THIS GOLDEN CARRIAGE has been the official carriage for the Dutch Kings since 1903. It was successfully hidden during the German occupation of Holland during World War II.

Terrie reports on life in Holland

The Stated General (the opening of the Parliamentary year) begins always on the third Tuesday in September in The Hague. The House of Representatives consists of two chambers. The first chamber consists of fifty members and the second one hundred members.

On the morning of the opening, the Queen and the Prince Consort (her husband), Princess Beatrix and her husband (Claus) leave one of the Queen's Palaces, in The Hague, which is the seat of the government, royal residence and Permanent Court of International Justice, and go through town so the public may see her, in her Golden Carriage which was given to Queen Wilhelmina in 1898 when she was crowned by the people of Amsterdam. Ahead of the Queen are mounted policemen, military bands, and soldiers, then two black carriages. The first black carriage is carrying the Lady-in-Waiting (she helps the Queen when needed). The next carriage is carrying Princess Margriet and her husband. From the Palace they are going to Binnenhof (House of Parliament). When they arrive at Binnenhof the band is playing the Wilhelmus (National Anthem). After they finish the Queen salutes the banner and enters the House of Parliament. First she goes to a small room with all her family to "freshen up." About five minutes later she enters the court room where everybody is awaiting her arrival. Then she goes to her throne accompanied by her husband who sits next to her. (Her children are sitting around her with the members of Parliament). She opens her speech with the words "Members of the House" then she looks back in her speech at the past events of the year, then she starts to give a preview of the future: Investments, efforts for the future, economy, education, traffic, democratizing, foreign affairs, development aid, and she ends by saying "wishing and hoping that we all may receive the power to fulfill the session of this, I declare the session of the Parliamentary year open." Then the President of the Chambers yells "Long live the Queen" and the audience yells three times "Hooray". Then she starts back to her little room giving the audience nods. She stays in the room about half an hour then returns to the carriage and makes another trip through The Hague and back to her palace.

Inside the Capital by Fred Buckles

(Carl Turner, executive manager, New Mexico Rural Electric Cooperative Association, Inc., looks at New Mexico's future energy needs in this informative guest column for vacationing Fred Buckles.)

BY CARL TURNER

SANTA FE — Oil and natural gas, which account for 75 per cent of the total energy consumed in the U.S., are going to be virtually used up by the year 2000. And, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics, our civilian labor force will have increased to 113 million people, compared to 85 million today.

That means we must have enormous quantities of additional energy available to create millions and millions of new jobs, and to provide for a growing population's needs.

Unfortunately, we can't take care of the problem after it develops — not for quite a while. It takes a minimum of five years, for example, to build a coal-fired electric generating plant — 10 years for a nuclear facility.

Now all this puts us right back in New Mexico and other parts of the Southwest where there are tremendous reserves of coal and uranium. The movement toward increased production of these resources has already started and should accelerate at a rate that may surprise everybody.

One of the most disturbing aspects of the energy picture today, threatening to stymie solution to our energy dilemma, is the militancy of the anti-nuclear lobby. Because their campaign to stop nuclear power development is based more on emotion than fact and reason, it is difficult to handle. You who have been reading of the battle in some of the states where a moratorium on nuclear power construction is being advocated can readily see this trend.

It seems to us that some of the things that should be done or not done to accept this challenge are the following:

— Not impose unrealistic state taxes on those resources that would severely hamper production of those resources.

— Educate the people to the realities of the energy shortage that will be upon us in a few decades, particularly the young people who will be tomorrow's leaders and decision makers.

— Institute methods of insuring, beyond any doubt, that nuclear power plants are as fall-safe as possible and that coal-fired plants are clean to that degree that will result in amicable compromise between power users and environmentalists.

— A realistic surface mining bill that protects the legitimate rights of landowners and communities against company "rip-offs" and land misuse.

— Development of a national power grid based on a comprehensive study and coordinated planning that takes into consideration the benefits of diversities between power pools and the needs of all elements of the utility industry.

— Bring a reasonable balance to air and water quality regulations.

We have studied all 200 of the available alternatives to fill the void that will certainly develop as supplies of gas and oil are reduced and as we reach the limit of expanded use of coal. The only reasonable available alternative, in addition to expanding use of coal, is nuclear power.

That is not to say that we are not interested in the expeditious development of solar energy, geothermal power and other potential sources to help satisfy mankind's enormous energy appetite. We are. But nuclear, and especially the breeder reactor, is the logical answer to our near-term needs — because the breeder will provide abundant, economically priced power and conserve our precious uranium resources, which otherwise will also be rapidly used up.

Scientists tell us the breeder will provide 600 times the energy from one pound of uranium than we get from a ton of coal.

Expansion of generating capability will require increases in annual coal production of about 200 million tons of Eastern coal and 220 million tons of lower-BTU content Western coal by 1985 to provide a total of about 825 million tons for electric utilities, more than double the 1975 usage.

The problems are staring us in the face, but, fortunately, there are people in this country who recognize the needs of the future and who are working to guarantee that we have the power we need by the year 2000. It isn't going to be easy, but with rational thinking and planning, we can accomplish the tasks that will be springing up consistently in the next three decades.

Reflections . . .

by billie surmick

An autopsy of Good Sam: (1) The cause was not a popular one. Our society is on a youth kick which believes it's all downhill after 30. Wisdom and grace do not automatically come with age. In fact, a person's traits are often magnified as he grows older — whether they be desirable or undesirable. The Europeans and Asians respect their elders and learn from their experiences. At the rate we Americans are going on our eternal search for the fountain of youth, we'll soon adopt the old Eskimo tradition of putting our old ones afloat on an iceberg. (2) In the wake of Watergate and other riptiffs by big business and government, people were suspicious of an organization which required the citizenry to rake up site land and cash which, in turn, was handed over to the organization. (3) The fund raising committee, although composed of hard-working, dedicated people, were not professional beggars full of experience and expertise. (4) The business community isn't what it used to be. We now have younger people and people encumbered with families and their financial needs. In days past, the free wheeling, big hearted gamblers made up the nucleus of our town and generously supported worthwhile projects. (5) The image of a nursing home in the minds of some people was one of an old folks home fraught with despair, not hope. Public education of what the facility was all about failed. Any of the five situations was sufficient to deal a death blow and the Good Sam project was faced with all of them and maybe more.

The press is a handy scapegoat on which to blame any and all problems and complaints. Many people don't stop to realize writers merely report the news, they don't make it.

In 1956, Arabian countries consisted of herdsman, tents, huts, poverty and an occasional missionary to administer inadequate medical aid. In 1976, the countries boast some of the finest medical facilities in the world, banks galore, free housing, utilities, color television and unlimited amounts of sea water being converted to serve a vast wasteland of deserts and its people. One small country has an annual per capita income of $70,000 and its sheik makes $10 million a day from the Black Gold running from the bowels of the earth. Germans, Japanese and Americans have been imported to run the country's business and laborers from nearby communities have been imported to do all the work. Along with unimaginable wealth has come solutions to social problems and the creation of additional problems. After cornering the market of Zuni Indian jewelry three summers ago by paying the silversmiths huge retainers and loading out the jewelry in private planes, the Arabs all but ruined the market and are now peddling the wares at flea markets and swap meets. A man we know in Phoenix watched one Arab lose a cool $1 million at the crap tables in Las Vegas last week. They infiltrated the insurance and mortgage banking businesses in America and did our economy no favors. Being the caretakers of one of the most valuable natural resources in the world is an awesome responsibility of too much too soon. How will conditions be by 1985?

J. C. Fenney years ago was reported to have dined with a prospective manager of one of his stores. Fenney refused the young man employment within minutes of their conversation. When asked why he was so hasty in his rejection of the man, Fenney replied, "He put salt and pepper on his food before he tasted it. I can't use a man with that kind of judgment."

FUNNY GOINGS ON

All the funny goings on in this country don't occur in Washington, D.C.

Aside from the fact that folks in Ruidoso shop in Roswell, Roswell in El Paso, El Paso in Dallas, Dallas in Chicago, Chicago in New York and New York in Paris . . . and some of the Parisians look like they are in the Salvation Army . . . there are for instances of people helping themselves:

- The dairy operator who buys margarine with his cream check.
- The cotton producer who weaps man made fabrics.
- The sheep man who won't eat mutton.
- American industrialists buying made in Japan products.
- Bourbon distillers who drink nothing but French wine.
- Detroit's automobile magnates driving Italian sports cars.

And people still wonder why the local, regional and national economy is sagging . . . and why the ruble is more stable than the American dollar.

NO DOUBT ABOUT IT

An irrefutable "no doubt about it" answer to a question asked by a poet of a sixth grade class opens up a whole new field of understanding.

Said poet held up a pencil to the children and asked what was in it . . . the smart kids said "lead" . . . the smartest said "graphite and wood" . . . then there was the boy who said "no", to these answers. The individualistic one, on being prompted, said: "Words".

So happens that this particular lad was generally considered by his teachers to be a slow, daydreaming but thoroughly likeable dillard. But this much is certain . . . he had a perception beyond his years, beyond his mentors . . . and beyond any concept of students considered to be his mental superiors.

There's no accounting of observations made by his teachers following this incident . . . but the first thing each of them should have done the following morning . . . when they looked into the bathroom mirror . . . was to have said "Good morning . . . stupid!"

THE OLD MONEY BIND

The NM Municipal League . . . naturally to benefit municipalities . . . will heckle the 1967 legislature over the Municipal Gross Receipts Tax . . . with an eye to getting more money for municipalities . . . and seeing as most residents of municipalities want more services and improvements . . . with the municipality picking up the tab . . . there shouldn't be any argument . . . from those doing the wanting.

The League is asking for the right to allow municipalities to tag one cent onto the present four percent tax . . . as of now, municipalities can put on one-quarter percent at the discretion of the councils and another one-quarter percent if the voters approve. As an alternative, the League is suggesting that the legislature increase the sales tax to five percent, with two percent returnable to the municipalities.

In Ruidoso and Ruidoso Downs . . . where there is a crying need for street repairs, for example . . . any returnable tax monies would be more than welcome . . . and, by jinkes, there's the happy thought that the thousands upon thousands of tourists, seasonal residents and convention guests would be contributing generously to our welfare . . . and you can't hardly beat a good old deal like that.

Might not hurt to start heckling Sen. John Conway and Reps. John Bigbee, John J. Mershon and Maurice Hobson to work for this tax change . . . with the end result being that our twin villages'd have a few more shekles to work with.

'Course it'd increase your shopping tails . . . and we could all gnash our teeth . . . and bellyache . . . and pay . . . but in the final analysis, this least painful of all taxes would accumulate in the villages' coffers to our benefit. And no matter how you slice it, it's our money that'll come back.

BRIEF BIT: Slim pickings is the situation that exists this day in the aftermath of the Thanksgiving feast . . . and that just has to be a happy thought . . . CD

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:
Regarding the proposed Sierra Blanca Airport:

In all probability the economical impact as projected should this project be completed is no exaggeration. The amount is some $500,000,000.00 which will find its way into the area. Further, this jewel would probably trigger development of the surrounding area beyond all dreams.

It would appear that our Land Grant University, who object to the location, has some interesting figures to contend with. Breaking the 2,000 acres down into a return basis finds the per acre worth is $250,000.00 per acre for the 20 years necessary to complete the works, or $12,500.00 per acre taken on an annual basis.

From an experimental standpoint this small piece of real estate brings forth wealth unheard of in grazing circles. It appears it would be a feather in the cap of our experimental agency to not only get behind the proposed airport, but to lean over backwards to mold it into their experimental range. Frankly, it is an asset to all concerned.

Most sincerely,
Jim Tully

Dear Editor:
I would like to clarify a statement in your recent article on the latest meeting of the Sierra Blanca Airport Committee. It was stated that Mr. Jim Tully (president of the Ruidoso Water User's Association) as spokesman for over 100 families, was for the proposed jet airport at Fort Stanton. Mr. Tully represents these people only in the matter of water rights. If he, personally, is for the airport, that is fine. But to falsely represent himself as having permission of these families in other matters as well is in error.

There are many families who are against the airport and until the association votes to have him speak on our behalf in this matter or others, we insist that Mr. Tully refrain from falsely representing the Association.

Thanksgiving has come and gone - we didn't have the snow we planned so now it's - Let it snow - Let it snow - for Christmas!

Since we are still having tests and procedures on an out patient basis - Thanksgiving was a liquid diet for us! Turkey broth and cranberry juice is not bad but it doesn't take the place of the "real thing" - so here's to Christmas turkey with all the trimmings!

About the best "liquids" we've had is that special tea that Elke brews at our favorite hideout - she sent some over for us to have at home - it comes from Germany and it's the only liquid we've looked forward to!

Elke is one of those busy people who still finds time for making hand crafted items! She's working on an Indian design in crewel for a Christmas present now. She also does lovely macrame between baking and helping husband Jim in the restaurant and the sweet shop they are opening!

Another busy gal is our beautician,

Mary - yet she found time to come to the hospital to give our hair a much needed "lift" after flattening it out on a pillow for many days! That makes you feel better than anything! Thanks Mary!

She's another busy person who makes beautiful hand crafted items between running her shop and helping her husband with their drive-in theatre!

Mary is crocheting an intricate pastel afghan for a Christmas present. Just proves the old adage that busy people seem to get more done!

THIS GOLDEN CARRIAGE has been the official carriage for the Dutch Kings since 1903. It was successfully hidden during the German occupation of Holland during World War II.

Terrie reports on life in Holland

The Stated General (the opening of the Parliamentary year) begins always on the third Tuesday in September in The Hague. The House of Representatives consists of two chambers. The first chamber consists of fifty members and the second one hundred members.

On the morning of the opening, the Queen and the Prince Consort (her husband), Princess Beatrix and her husband (Claus) leave one of the Queen's Palaces, in The Hague, which is the seat of the government, royal residence and Permanent Court of International Justice, and go through town so the public may see her, in her Golden Carriage which was given to Queen Wilhelmina in 1898 when she was crowned by the people of Amsterdam. Ahead of the Queen are mounted policemen, military bands, and soldiers, then two black carriages. The first black carriage is carrying the Lady-in-Waiting (she helps the Queen when needed). The next carriage is carrying Princess Margriet and her husband. From the Palace they are going to Binnenhof (House of Parliament). When they arrive at Binnenhof the band is playing the Wilhelmus (National Anthem). After they finish the Queen salutes the banner and enters the House of Parliament. First she goes to a small room with all her family to freshen up. About five minutes later she enters the court room where everybody is awaiting her arrival. Then she goes to her throne accompanied by her husband who sits next to her. (Her children are sitting around her with the members of Parliament). She opens her speech with the words "Members of the House" then she looks back in her speech at the past events of the year, then she starts to give a preview of the future: Investments, efforts for the future, economy, education, traffic, democratizing, foreign affairs, development aid, and she ends by saying "wishing and hoping that we all may give the power to fulfill the session of this, I declare the session of the Parliamentary year open." Then the President of the Chambers yells "Long live the Queen" and the audience yells three times "Hooray". Then she starts back to her little room giving the audience nods. She stays in the room about half an hour then returns to the carriage and makes another trip through The Hague and back to her palace.

Inside the Capital by Fred Buckles

BY CARL TURNER

SANTA FE — Oil and natural gas, which account for 75 per cent of the total energy consumed in the U.S., are going to be virtually used up by the year 2000. And, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics, our civilian labor force will have increased to 113 million people, compared to 85 million today.

That means we must have enormous quantities of additional energy available to create millions and millions of new jobs, and to provide for a growing population's needs.

Unfortunately, we can't take care of the problem after it develops — not for quite a while. It takes a minimum of five years, for example, to build a coal-fired electric generating plant — 10 years for a nuclear facility.

Now all this puts us right back in New Mexico and other parts of the Southwest where there are tremendous reserves of coal and uranium. The movement toward increased production of these resources has already started and should accelerate at a rate that may surprise everybody.

One of the most disturbing aspects of the energy picture today, threatening to stymie solution to our energy dilemma, is the militancy of the anti-nuclear lobby. Because their campaign to stop nuclear power development is based more on emotion than fact and reason, it's difficult to handle. You who have been reading of the battle in some of the states where a moratorium on nuclear power construction is being advocated can readily see this trend.

It seems to us that some of the things that should be done or not done to accept this challenge are the following:

— Not impose unrealistic state taxes on those resources that would severely hamper production of those resources.

— Educate the people to the realities of the energy shortage that will be upon us in a few decades, particularly the young people who will be tomorrow's leaders and decision makers.

— Institute methods of insuring, beyond any doubt, that nuclear power plants are as fail-safe as possible and that coal-fired plants are clean to that degree that will result in amicable compromise between power users and environmentalists.

— A realistic surface mining bill that protects the legitimate rights of landowners and communities against company "rip-offs" and land misuse.

— Development of a national power grid based on a comprehensive study and coordinated planning that takes into consideration the benefits of diversities between power pools and the needs of all elements of the utility industry.

— Bring a reasonable balance to air and water quality regulations.

We have studied all 200 of the available alternatives to fill the void that will certainly develop as supplies of gas and oil are reduced and as we reach the limit of expanded use of coal. The only reasonable available alternative, in addition to expanding use of coal, is nuclear power.

That is not to say that we are not interested in the expeditious development of solar energy, geothermal power and other potential sources to help satisfy mankind's enormous energy appetite. We are, but nuclear, and especially the breeder reactor, is the logical answer to our near-term needs — because the breeder will provide abundant, economically priced power and conserve our precious uranium resources, which otherwise will also be rapidly used up.

Scientists tell us the breeder will provide 600 times the energy from one pound of uranium than we get from a ton of coal.

Expansion of generating capability will require increases in annual coal production of about 200 million tons of Eastern coal and 220 million tons of lower-BTU content Western coal by 1985 to provide a total of about 625 million tons for electric utilities, more than double the 1975 usage.

The problems are staring us in the face, but, fortunately, there are people in this country who recognize the needs of the future and who are working to guarantee that we have the power we need by the year 2000. It isn't going to be easy, but with rational thinking and planning, we can accomplish the tasks that will be springing up consistently in the next three decades.

In Ruidoso and Ruidoso Downs . . . where there is a crying need for street repairs, for example . . . any returnable tax monies would be more than welcome . . . and, by jinkies, there's the happy thought that the thousands upon thousands of tourists, seasonal residents and convention guests would be contributing generously to our welfare . . . and you can't hardly beat a good old deal like that.

Might not hurt to start heckling Sen. John Conway and Reps. John Bigbee, John J. Marshon and Maurice Hobson to work for this tax change . . . with the end result being that our twin villages'd have a few more sheekies to work with.

'Course it'd increase your shopping tabs . . . and we could all gnash our teeth . . . and bellyache . . . and pay . . . but in the final analysis, this least painful of all taxes would accumulate in the villages' coffers to our benefit. And no matter how you slice it, it's our money that'll come back.

BRIEF BIT: Slim pickings is the situation that exists this day in the aftermath of the Thanksgiving feast . . . and that just has to be a happy thought . . . CD

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:
Regarding the proposed Sierra Blanca Airport:
In all probability the economical impact as projected should this project be completed is no exaggeration. The amount is some $500,000,000.00 which will find its way into the area. Further, this jewel would probably trigger development of the surrounding area beyond all dreams.
It would appear that our Land Grant University, who object to the location, has some interesting figures to contend with. Breaking the 2,000 acres down into a return basis finds the per acre worth is $250,000.00 per acre for the 20 years necessary to complete the works, or $12,500.00 per acre taken on an annual basis.

From an experimental standpoint this small piece of real estate brings forth wealth unheard of in grazing circles. It appears it would be a feather in the cap of our experimental agency to not only get behind the proposed airport, but to lean over backwards to mold it into their experimental range. Frankly, it is an asset to all concerned.

Most sincerely,
Jim Tully

Dear Editor:
I would like to clarify a statement in your recent article on the latest meeting of the Sierra Blanca Airport Committee. It was stated that Mr. Jim Tully (president of the Ruidoso Water User's Association) as spokesman for over 100 families, was for the proposed jet airport at Fort Stanton. Mr. Tully represents these people only in the matter of water rights. If he, personally, is for the airport, that is fine. But to falsely represent himself as having permission of these families in other matters as well is in error.

There are many families who are against the airport and until the association votes to have him speak on our behalf in this matter or others, we insist that Mr. Tully refrain from falsely representing the Association.
Lynda A. Sanchez

1976 Small Business Person of the Year

(No. 4 of a series)
 Robert J.S. Snow, President of Rosie O'Grady's, Inc., Orlando, Florida, is one of the 1976 Small Business Persons of the Year selected by the U.S. Small Business Administration.

Rosie O'Grady's is an entertainment complex in the inner city areas of Orlando and Pensacola. Snow got the idea for his old-fashioned, good-time emporiums while he was a U.S. Navy pilot, recuperating from a plane crash in 1966.

In 1967 he opened the first Rosie O'Grady's in a seedy warehouse in a blighted section of downtown Pensacola, dispensing dixieland music and refreshments. With his flair for showmanship he drew a packed house opening night and started a success that's never quit. Snow subsequently acquired the entire block and turned it into a full spread tourist attraction of Spanish, French and British pubs, restaurants and shops.

 From his initial investment of $3,500 gleaned from Navy severance pay, and the sale of his sports car and antique gun collection, Snow has built a business that gross $ in excess of $2 million annually.
 In 1974 Snow purchased an old run-down section of Orlando and inaugurated what is called the Church Street Station project. In less than a year he renovated a mercantile store into a Rosie O'Grady's, which attracted nearly 300,000 customers in its first 12 months of operation.

 The Church Street complex is presently being renovated to include four entertainment areas, four restaurants, 15 shops and three open courtyards. It will take another few years to complete.
 Snow is doing what he enjoys. He loves old buildings and loves to restore them. Further, he is a great believer in rejuvenating old downtowns, and is pleased to be conducting urban renewal without federal money.

At only 34, Snow has accomplished a lot. In addition to his burgeoning businesses, he played a full role in community activities. His awards range from various businessman of the year selections to business beautification and architectural distinctions.
 The Small Business Administration provides counseling and financial, procurement and management assistance to small business people.

Bicentennial Notebook

WASHINGTON CROSSES THE DELAWARE

On Christmas night 1776, General Washington made a dramatic counter-attack and won the first major American victory of the Revolutionary War. Since evacuating New York several weeks earlier, Washington had retreated across New Jersey and crossed the Delaware River into Pennsylvania. Criticized by some for retreating in the face of the enemy and fearful of the continued erosion of morale, Washington knew he had to do something. On December 13, General Howe had sent most of the British army back to winter quarters in New York. He left garrisons at Trenton, Princeton, and three other New Jersey towns. Washington was informed that the force at Trenton was a Hessian unit under Colonel Johann Rall that was not prepared to meet an attack. Therefore, Washington decided on a daring plan to attack the garrison at Trenton. The original plan called for three American forces to cross the Delaware River during the night and attack Trenton from three directions. Because the Delaware was so filled with ice, only the force commanded by Washington was able to get across. This is the crossing depicted in the famous painting of Washington standing in the bow of a small boat. At 8 a.m. on December 26, Washington caught the Hessians by complete surprise. The battle lasted an hour.

Some historians believe that the new position was created because of the mismanagement of the northern frontier by Viceroy Bucareli. If this were true, relations between the two officials could directly influence the direction, for good or bad, of the government of the northern provinces.

Thus, New Mexico ended 1776 on a somewhat uncertain note. — Donald W. Whisenand, history professor, Eastern New Mexico University.

The Thankful Month
Drawing to a Close

Here we are on the next to the last day of November, the Thankful month. And our bi-centennial Thanksgiving Day was celebrated with many a joyful homecoming and many prayers to God for His many blessings.

Although the great day itself is past, yet the spirit of thankfulness abides with us still, and will be with us all our days till the next Thanksgiving season, and all the Thanksgiving days that lie ahead.

From November we look over into December, the sacred month. And we feel our heart swell with divine joy as we look forward to the celebration of the birth of our Infant Saviour, Christ, Our Lord.

Brother Lynn's Birthday
This is being sent to you on November 23, and I am looking forward to the birthday of our brother, Lynn, which is the twenty-eighth. I am thankful for this great brother who was born in the thankful month.

Lynn has been in my thoughts very much during his birthday month, and as I tried to draw his fine qualities of character to myself, he has been a blessing to me all through this month.

Mark, another wonderful brother, has his birthday in September and his blessing was given to me during the beautiful month of September as I tried to draw his great qualities of character to myself. At this writing, I am hoping to visit Mark in person. He said he might be by during November on his way to Arizona and back. I look forward to seeing Mark and his wife, Fern. Maybe he did not see the pick-up over at the house and has already come by and gone back to Houston. If I do not see Mark this trip I will get to see him soon. May God bless him and keep him.

The years are flying by, and I must make a trip down to Dripping Springs and Houston, Texas to see Lynn and Mark and their families. Lynn and Mark spent many happy days in the land of the Pinon and Pine, and their thoughts are ever drifting fondly out this way.

"Indian Fall"
This has been a very unusual autumn. That last cold snap that broke so many records, it was colder in El Paso than it was here at the place, and there was more snow in Carlsbad than there was here. The outstanding thing about the cold snap was that it came so early, and this brings up several little unusual things about our fall season.

A while back I told you that on account of the early heavy snows we had an Indian Spring instead of the traditional Indian Summer. Usually, Indian Summer follows the first hard freeze, and this comes mostly in late November. But this time we had snow and cold in October and early November. So now in these warm days that followed, bees came out and new grass and herbs and a few small flowers sprang up in sheltered places, just like Spring.

Now, something tells me that there are going to be warm interludes way up in December and over into January that you might call "Indian Fall". All in all, it should be a very good winter and fall season for Mother Earth and her creatures and for all of us.

A Word From Shady Logan
Dear Friends,

Well, as the Ridge Runner says, the thankful month is just about over, and what a wonderful month it has been. Lots of snow back in the hills, to keep the world cool and plenty of bright sunshine to keep us healthy and make the winter grass grow. This way, the cows and other grass-eating creatures will get a break. They love to stay back in the hills when there is snow. They know favorite places where they can drink the pure snow water and eat the winter grass that comes up in the sheltered places when the snow water and the sun get to work.

As the thankful month gets ready to lead us over to the sacred month, I want to thank all of you for your many kindnesses and helpful deeds and your good thoughts and your prayers. May God bless you.

Yours ever the same,
Shady Logan

A Brief Note from Jack Frost
Dear friends of Lincoln County,

I wish to thank you for all your patience in face of all the unexpected weather — early snows and so on.

There is a reason behind all this. There are going to be some cold spells through the winter, and as I said before, I want you to get a little bit used to the cold. In a sunny climate such as yours in Lincoln County, when we do have a cold snap or two through the winter, the changes in temperature between night and day, and from one day to next, can be very great, oftentimes making you grab for a coat one minute and walk around dressed very lightly the next.

These changes in the season are good for you. And also the changes in temperature in the winter are healthy also, if you are used to it, and stay in good shape.

If you take good exercise and eat right, you will gain in health through the Lincoln County winters. The change from brisk mornings to warm afternoons and back to cold evenings keeps your system alert and on its toes. All the vital forces within you are wide awake, and this makes you all the more alive and happy.

I am going to bring you some pointers about winter safety and winter health as I promised. But right now remember this: When snow thaws off the highway in sunny places, there still may be ice on the shaded curves during the late fall and winter. So be on the watch for this. Be careful always in driving, and walking along the highway.

We had a happy November, so let us look forward to a joyous December. With every good wish, I remain,

Yours ever the same,
Jack W. Frost
