

SLOW BURNING FUSE mark on shattered pole.

POLE STUMP was banded by Deputy Sheriff Ted Hull so it could be sent to a laboratory for analysis.

VOLUME NO. 18 IN OUR 32ND YEAR Ruidoso, Lincoln County, New Mexico 88345 MONDAY, JULY 25, 1977

OUTAGE LASTED OVER FIVE HOURS

Power pole blasted

Electrical service to a major portion of Ruidoso ceased early Saturday with the shattering of a three phase Community Public Service Company (CPS) pole in Grindstone Canyon.

An explosive charge, suspected of being dynamite by Lincoln County Sheriff Bill Elliott, was attached to the pole and was set off by a slow burning fuse just after 3 a.m.

Shortly after daylight Deputy Sheriff Ted Hull had put bands around the shattered pole, preparatory to forwarding it, and other evidence to the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms of the United States Treasury Department, Albuquerque, for examination.

"I suspect dynamite," Elliott told The News at the scene, "but that is strictly a guess until we get the laboratory analysis. We should have the report by Wednesday."

Burley L. Nowell, district electrical superintendent with CPS, said to The News: "This is a verticle angle pole, with power coming in on three different phases."

"We ran an alternate line through Carrizo Canyon and had power restored to all sections of town up to the Children's Home by 6 a.m. The balance of our service area had power by about 8:30." The area affected by the blackout extended from Gateway on Sudderth east and north to the Municipal Airport.

The Ruidoso Police Department was without electricity but used emergency generator power to maintain radio communications. All burglar alarms, a police spokesman said, were functioning under this emergency power.

The blast tripped the breaker in the Hollywood substation and CPS crews quickly traced the trouble on the grid to the blast scene in Grindstone Canyon.

The shattered pole did not fall to the ground due to heavy guy wires supporting it. This, an investigator said, eliminated the possibility of fire through the densely wooded area extending about one-fourth of a mile to a heavily populated residential area.

MAST crew tells how it is with rescues

BY MARY WORMLEY
Staff Writer

PARAMEDIC DARRIN McGHAN, private first class, prepares for the Wednesday demonstration of the MAST helicopter hoist. The demonstration, lecture and film were part of efforts to coordinate the Ruidoso Ambulance Service and the Fort Bliss MAST team.

The Ruidoso Ambulance Service was one of the first agencies in New Mexico to take advantage of the newly instituted educational program offered by Military Assistance to Safety and Traffic (MAST). A five-man crew flew to Ruidoso Wednesday from Fort Bliss Army base to present a film and lecture followed by a practical demonstration.

The El Paso MAST program, which began in 1970 as a joint venture of the departments of Health, Education and Welfare, Transportation and Defense, is one of 23 offered throughout the United States, Chief Warrant Officer Russell Capps said.

This helicopter transport service serving the Ruidoso area has been authorized to pick up emergency cases ranging from stroke to premature childbirth and from heart attack to fractures in an area extending south from Socorro to El Paso and west of Van Horn, Texas to Lordsburg. "All civilians in this area are eligible,"

Capps said, but the program only supplements civilian programs and the MAST priority is evacuation of military.

The MAST helicopters mainly are called for highway accident pickups, but also will go to isolated areas when called.

"The team flies to areas which can't be reached fast enough on the ground," Capps said. "It's used where population centers are scattered and an ambulance pickup is not feasible."

Of the over 7,000 hours the MAST team has flown, 52 percent have been military connected transports.

The remaining 48 percent of the pickups have been civilian and involved 60 percent of the total flight time.

"When the number of civilians flown in increases, flight time increases," Capps said. "This is because civilian population centers are scattered."

The military populations are centered in El Paso and the MAST crew will occasionally fly to Holloman Air Force Base or White Sands Missile Range.

The helicopter, which is equipped with standard supplies, can carry special equipment such as incubators, back boards, resuscitators or even a doctor or nurse. It is capable of simultaneously transporting three litter patients and four ambulatory patients.

Each helicopter is manned by a pilot, co-pilot, medic and crew chief. The crew which flew to Ruidoso included Capps, pilot; Specialist Five Frank Mazika, medic; Sergeant Salvatore DeMarco, crew chief, and First Lieutenant Roy Silence, co-pilot. Accompanying the regular crew was Private First Class Darrin Mcghan, also a paramedic.

"We have a 24 hour standby crew, 7 days a week, 365 days a year," Capps said. "And a 30 minute standby crew which can be ready in 30 minutes after the call."

During the lecture, Capps told the Ruidoso Ambulance Service they should call in full information when requesting a MAST helicopter pickup, including the pickup site, patient information, destination, special equipment needed and weather conditions.

"You should be as specific as possible when giving the location of the pickup," he said. Patient information should include the number, type of injury and condition, but "it doesn't matter if they are litter or ambulatory patients when there are less than three to pickup," Capps said.

Destination and special equipment needed also should be given along with weather conditions.

"In El Paso, weather is seldom a problem, but in Ruidoso if you can't see half a mile we can't fly in," he said.

ADJACENT LOT OWNERS FILE PROTESTS

P & Z approves rezoning in Golf Course Estates

Despite angry protests from lot owners, the Planning and Zoning Commission (P&Z) approved rezoning of four lots in Golf Course Estates at their Wednesday evening meeting.

Lots 15 through 18, block 13, which originally were zoned for single family dwellings, were rezoned for multi-family dwellings to permit Devon Development to plan construction of townhouses.

Owners of the lots located across the street from the development, Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Dolgener and Mrs. and Mrs. Richard Thompson, retained attorney Mel O'Reilly to represent them in protesting the rezoning and to protest the ultimate construction of the townhouses which may cause congestion and block their view.

Despite these protests, the commission agreed to the rezoning because the protesters did not constitute "20 percent or more of the land holders in the affected area" thus not qualifying for the 20 percent clause.

This clause in the ordinances requires that 20 percent or more of the land owners must object to rezoning for the commission to not grant rezoning.

The rezoning was approved pending [SEE PAGE TWO]

Village boards to meet

Ruidoso Downs trustees will meet tonight at 7:30 at village hall, and Ruidoso trustees will meet tomorrow at 7:30 p.m., in the Ruidoso Public Library.

The Downs agenda includes the appointment of two trustees to take the places left vacant two weeks ago by the resignations of Don Clark and "Pappy" Johnson, and adoption of a resolution approving a federal highway grant to the village.

The Ruidoso trustees will consider Resolution 77-9, a cooperative agreement with the New Mexico Highway Department to pave 1.25 miles of White Mountain Drive from Hull Road to Highway 37; approve a letter of acceptance of the United States Forest Service proposals for Eagle Creek reservoir and receive a report on the recent Moon Mountain fire.

Fugitive arrested

A Texas man, wanted on an El Paso warrant alleging burglary of a habitation, was arrested at Ruidoso Down Race Track July 20 by members of the Criminal Investigation Division of the Ruidoso Police Department and of the Ruidoso Downs Police Department.

Acting under a fugitive warrant authorized by Magistrate Jim Wheeler, the officers arrested Guillermo Villegas of El Paso. At a first appearance hearing Thursday before Wheeler, bond was set at $10,000, with no ten percent allowed and Villegas was ordered held in Lincoln County jail, Carrizozo, in lieu of the bond.

THE INTERIOR OF THE MAST helicopter was explained to the Ruidoso Ambulance Service, police department and fire department Wednesday by Chief Warrant Officer Russell Capps, center.

Bar Roula wins classic

Bar Roula, a 25-1 longshot, raced to a mud-splattered half-length win in Sunday's $92,200 World's Championship Quarter Horse Classic at Ruidoso Downs.

The heavy favorite, My Easy Credit, ended up far behind after breaking a tick slowly, then getting shut off.

The outcome was surely a bitter pill to swallow for My Easy Credit's owner, Harold Burford of Milton, Kansas. The colt was going for his 10th straight victory and a clinching of the national three-year-old championship.

Bar Roula, ridden by W. R. Hunt, covered the soggy 440 yards in 22.07 seconds and lit up the tote board with payoffs of $51.40, $11.80 and $6.20. Bar Roula is owned by Hubert Vestal, Mike Johnson and John Meyer of Warton, Texas. H. C. Werner Jr. does the training.

The winner's share came out to $46,600. Shadow Flash, with Richard Vaughn up, finished second and earned $15,844. The payoffs were $13 and $7.40. Shadow Flash is owned by Donald Lynch of Scottsbluff, Nebraska.

Azure Three, a 5-1 choice piloted by Keith Amussen on the rail, nailed down third. He was three-quarter lengths behind Shadow Flash on the wire. Third returned a purse of $9,220 and a show price of $5. Azure Three is the property of C. L. Stewart of Lubbock, Texas.

Bar Roula established himself as a top contender right from the start. He got away flying on the wet turf, but was just a bit behind Shadow Flash. The two quickly engaged in a head-and-head duel. The rest of the competition was pretty well out of it, although Azure Three and Lucky Stepper had to battle one another the entire journey in order to settle third-place money.

Bar Roula picked up steam with each stride and finally had Shadow Flash's number at the half-way point. The colt finished strongly, pulling into the clear as he cleared the wire. The victory was Bar Roula's second of the meeting in four starts. He went into the Classic with a '77 money line of $12.437.

My Easy Credit, off at 80 cents on the dollar, pretty well had his goose cooked with that split-second delay. On the second jump, he got a stunning from the 32-1 longshot, Bid A Way E. The latter moved out of his lane sharply to collide with that favorite. My Easy Credit quickly found himself about three lengths in the hole, and

CLASSIC CONCLUSION — Bar Roula, a 25-1 longshot, hits the finish line with a clear-cut lead in the $92,200 World's Championship Classic at Ruidoso Downs. My Easy Credit (arrow), a heavy favorite looking for his 10th straight win, ended up far behind after being shut off at the start. The track was sloppy.

he was getting a ton of mud flung in his face. It was clearly a hopeless cause and the colt didn't extend himself the rest of the way. He finished ninth, and had to settle for an anemic paycheck of $832.

My Easy Credit came out of the Classic with a '77 money line of $191,077 — still one of the best in the business.

Here's how the also-runs checked in, with money earned: 4th — Lucky Stepper, $4,544; 5th — Ole Folles Girl, $4,810; 6th —

Go Brenda's Moon, $3,685; 7th — Bid A Way E, $2,760; 8th — Colormetast, $1,844; 9th — My Easy Credit, $822; 10th — Yogi Barre, $822.

Sunday's co-feature at 870 yards had the old crowd-pleaser, Norgor, back in action. And the durable 10-year-old went through his act like a trained seal. He broke a bit slowly from the rail position, but when the competition was foolish enough to give him daylight, he moved up quickly. At the turn for home, Norgor was in command.

He was clearly in front at the halfway point of the stretch, then moved with just enough power to hold off the oncoming Two Copies by a half-length.

Norgor, ridden by Larry Byers for the injured Willie Lovell, sloped over the course in 47.36 seconds, chalked up his fourth win in a row, and refunded a relatively generous $4,680. The jaunt was worth a paycheck of $2,040.

Buckles visits Chino, MAT's vast operations

MESCALERO — A sign on Wendell Chino's handsome desk says: "Think! It may be a new experience."

Outspoken Chino has been thinking. He has been president of Otero County's Mescalero Apache Tribe (MAT) nearly 20 years. Born on the 480,000-acre Sacramento Mountains reservation, he is also chairman of the 10-member tribal council and the boards of directors of the $18 million Inn of the Mountain Gods and Sierra Blanca Ski Basin.

Chino has parlayed millions of federal dollars and persistence into a maze of activities benefiting his 2,370 Mescaleros. Plans to expand the beautiful, popular Inn 3 1/2 miles southwest of Ruidoso call for 68 more rooms, a sports complex and a 400-capacity convention center. The minimum rate is $40 a day for double occupancy in the 134 present rooms. The chef at the inn is unbelievably named Frye.

Personable Hopkins Smith, Chino's chief aide, claims the average catch of rainbow trout from Lake Mescalero beside the plush inn is 18 inches long. All-weather tennis courts and a heated swimming pool are available. A trapshooting and skeet range is under construction a short drive away. A picturesque 18-hole golf course stretches away from the inn.

Our check showed 80 percent of inn guests are Texans. In early July reservations were booked solidly until Aug. 15. All Mescalero operations in a broad sense are without benefit of state licenses. A series of suits over liquor permits, game and fish laws, water and Indian sovereignty are pending.

Activity hums at the town of Mescalero 17 miles southwest of Ruidoso. Thirty-five housing units for Mescalero senior citizens were opened last spring at Mescalero, tribal headquarters. Occupants can ring from their homes for services from the nearby U.S. Public Health Service Hospital. A heliport pad to land patients is nearby.

Hal Fisher, appropriately named, manages the fish hatchery for the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service at Mescalero. It turns out 2.1 million trout a year to stock lakes and rivers. Pre-school Mescalero children four to six years old are served in isolated areas by MEOW (Mescalero Education on Wheels). Two mobile units, staffed by Mescalero teachers, take education to rural sectors. In summer the units carry games and treats to the youngsters.

Ponderosa pine and Douglas fir timbering, formerly the top activity, is being phased out in favor of tourism. Cattle operations, the second mainstay, continue. Mescalero Apache Cattle Growers Association manages 7,000 Stock Horse Association members own shares. Dividends are declared annually.

Thirty-eight homes for Mescaleros are under construction at Palmer's Loop on the reservation with federal Housing and Urban Development (HUD) grants. Another 138 single-family dwellings of three or four bedrooms are planned. In the last two years 100 houses have been built.

When present and scheduled projects are completed only 100 Mescaleros will not live in separate homes spaced well apart. They live with their parents, in Tularosa, 16 miles southwest of Mescalero, or in other area locations.

The Mescalero Tribe owns rapidly expanding facilities and operates Sierra Blanca Ski Basin 40 minutes from the inn on spectacular, 12,000-foot Sierra Blanca. Ski basin manager Roy Parker, imported from Colorado 13 years ago, said 4,000 skiers used the basin on a peak day in the successful 1976-77 season.

Gondolas have been repainted and much expansion work is under way at the ski basin although required environmental impact statements slow progress somewhat in Lincoln National Forest. Parker says: "Some people would like to see no new roads and development which would close the ski basin."

receipt of a waiver of notice of the hearing from one of the lot holders.

After approval of the rezoning was given by the commission, Devon Development, represented by Ron Harris, submitted a reprint of the lots illustrating the proposed development and requesting variances in the ordinances.

After heated discussion of the amount of land necessary for construction of townhouses, the number of feet necessary for setbacks at the front and rear of the townhouses and the number of square feet necessary for parking and the common area, attorney Harris withdrew the plan stating Devon Development would resubmit it at the next meeting.

In other business the commission: — Approved rezoning of Lots 3, 4, 5 in Block 15 of Golf Course Estates from single family dwellings to multi-family

No billboards mar the majestic views on the Mescalero Reservation. Only tribal directional signs are permitted. A trailer park is under construction at Silver Lake. Chino says it will cater to people "who may like to rough it a little more." Thirty-five trailer hookups are in use now for mobile and motor homes and camping units. They are constantly full but may be used for two to three weeks in a stretch.

The Mescaleros offer package hunts for elk, deer and antelope costing up to $2,000 a week. They claim state licenses are not needed for non-Indians. A new 3,000-seat rodeo arena is open at Mescalero. It is also used for powwows and other events. Feast grounds are nearby.

A wide range of services is offered to Mescaleros. For example, an outdoor hiking and camping survival course for children 9 to 12.

Chino's Cadillac is equipped with a tape deck that plays Indian music. It plays sweet music these days for the Mescaleros.

dwellings. After the meeting, two landholders adjacent to the area protested that the rezoning was approved before they could state their opinions having arrived late. Reconsideration of the area has been rescheduled for the next Planning and Zoning meeting.

— Approved rezoning of about 10 lots in the Midway Township from single family dwellings to multi-family dwellings.

— Approved a reprint of two lots in Fume Canyon subdivision.

— Viewed a sketch of the proposed White Mountain Estates project.

— Were notified Del Norte tracks, which were approved subject to the developer working out the road and utility installation with the village, have begun to construct the utilities and road prior to plat approval. At the June 8 P&Z meeting the developer was given the option to construct roads and utilities or post a bond to cover the cost of construction.

C-C Cadillac party tickets available now

Sixteen tickets to the annual Chamber of Commerce "Cadillac Party," August 15 at the Inn of the Mountain Gods, are available at $125 per couple at the Chamber office.

"The tickets include refreshments, dinner and evening's entertainment," John Hobbs, executive director of the Chamber said, "in addition to the building excitement of who will drive the new Cadillac home."

Hunter Safety Course ready

A Hunter Safety Course is being offered at the Capitán Fire Hall July 30 and August 6, with sessions both days from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Persons under age 18 are required to pass this course to carry a gun or buy a hunting license.

Early registrations may be made by telephoning Janice Eldridge, 354-2489.

Social Security information

Some social security disability beneficiaries are entitled to a "trial work period" during which they continue to receive disability benefits, according to Dan Mathis, social security field representative.

"Although all disability beneficiaries must notify social security if they work at all, those with a condition not expected to improve are allowed to work in nine separate months. If their work during these nine months is determined to be substantial, benefits end with the third month thereafter," Mathis said.

Disability entitlement may end earlier, however, if there is medical improvement in the beneficiary's condition.

Since social security disability benefits are paid people with disabilities expected to last as little as one year (not entitled to a trial work period), it is especially important that anyone receiving such benefits notify social security at once if he gets better or works at all. "Failure to do so may result in sizable overpayments which would have to be repaid," Mathis said.

Mathis may be contacted at the Lincoln County Senior Citizens Center in Ruidoso Tuesdays between the hours of 10-12.

'Missile' discharge forbidden in village

Instances of the violation of the village ordinance prohibiting "propulsion of missiles" have occurred recently with reports made to Jane Parnell, children's probation officer, and the Ruidoso Police Department.

"Due to the strong possibility of personal injuries," Parnell said, "as well as damage to property from these violations, steps have been taken to enforce this ordinance and everyone, especially parents of children, are advised that this will be the case."

Parnell released the text of the ordinance: "Propulsion of missiles consists of shooting, slinging or throwing stones, rocks, pellets, BB shot or any kind of missile, object or substance whatsoever in any manner as to be reasonably likely to cause injury to any person or property. This provision shall not be construed to prohibit target firing when conducted so as to secure safety of the inhabitants of the Village. Target firing may be permitted when conducted on ranges meeting the specifications and upon obtaining a permit from the Village Clerk based on such proof."

Daily vacation Bible study set at Episcopal Church.

Starting the first two days of August, the Episcopal Church of the Holy Mount will hold daily vacation Bible school classes for children, and weekly Bible study groups for adults.

Both programs are open to persons of all faiths, Father Delbert Achuff, pastor of the church, said.

Bible school classes, called "Reach Out," will take place August 1-5 from 9 till 11:30 a.m. at the church.

Classes will be for four and five-year-olds, for grades 1 and 2, grades 3 and 4 and grades 5 and 6.

Teachers will be Father Achuff, Mrs. Howard Tate, Mrs. Paul Jones and Mrs. M. R. Delboal. Music will be under the direction of Louise Achuff.

The Bible study course will begin Tuesday, August 2 and continue each Tuesday from 8-9:15 p.m. through September 13.

The course will begin with a survey of the New Testament, covering the first six weeks, followed by a consideration of the first three Gospels, or the Synoptics, for the next two weeks.

After a break of two weeks, the course will resume with a book by book study of the rest of the New Testament.

Father Achuff said regular attendance will be required, and serious reading will be expected.

The church is located at 121 Mescalero Trail in the Gateway. For information, call Father Achuff at 257-2356.

August 4 is Band Day at Ruidoso Downs

Thursday, August 4, has been named Ruidoso High School Band Day at Ruidoso Downs Race Track.

The proceeds of all advance entry tickets to the track for that day, sold by members of the band and the Band Boosters, will go directly to the band.

Band members and Boosters will meet Friday, July 29 at 8 p.m., in the band hall at the high school to plan the sale.

Gooch urges that members attend.

Gospel group "Aslan" sets two performances

The Gospel rock group Aslan will give a concert Saturday at 8 p.m., at the First Christian Church, and again at Canyon Light, in Noisy Water Restaurant, August 13.

Three of Aslan's four members have parents residing in Ruidoso. The members, Craig Bogard and Dusty Neergaard, are the children of Ira and Arlene Bogard of Ruidoso, and Bill Neergaard is the son of Agatha Neergaard of Ruidoso.

The other member of the band is Lynn Ann Boxard, wife of Craig.

The Aslan group is based in Tinton Falls, New Jersey, and the four members have a full-time missionary outreach to black teenagers in a low-income, high-crime area in Monmouth County, New Jersey.

All college graduates, the four hold Bible classes, varied activities and a basketball program for youths aged ten to 18.

The group has toured extensively and sung for all ages in coffee houses, prisons, hospitals, rest homes, public schools and churches of all denominations.

THE GOSPEL GROUP "ASLAN"

Barbershop quartet to sing for Floricade

The Golden Ring Quartet, an all-female barbershop group, will entertain at the Altrusa Club's annual Floricade in September, Altrusa has announced.

The four members, who belong to the El Paso Frontera Chapter, Sweet Adelines, Incorporated, are Mary Lou Dierdorf, lead, Kay Eskew, tenor, Rosemary Calderon, baritone and Rosa Lee Watts, bass.

Mrs. Dierdorf is the associate director of the chapter, and has also served as president and treasurer. She has been a member for 14 years.

Mrs. Eskew, who has sung with several quartets, began singing with the chapter while still in her teens.

Mrs. Calderon, a member for four years, is immediate past president of the chapter. She is the choreographer and currently holds a position as council member, representing the chapter at regional meetings.

Mrs. Watts, a member for 12 years, has been president and treasurer of the chapter, and currently is vice president. She has sung with several quartets.

The group takes its name from a barbershop music term — if a chord "rings," it is in tune.

Freezing preserves quality of produce

You can save part of your summer by freezing your fresh garden produce. Freezing is simple and will keep foods closer to fresh than any other method of preservation, says Mae Martha Johnson, Extension food specialist at New Mexico State University.

Freezing preserves quality, but does not improve it. So harvest and freeze in small quantities. Rush the vegetables from the garden to the freezer, Mrs. Johnson says.

Packaging materials should be moisture-vapor proof, durable, leakproof and easy to seal and mark. Rigid containers made of plastic, glass or aluminum are suitable, as are plastic bags with or without waxed cardboard covers. Glass canning jars with straight sides can be used successfully.

All vegetables except green peppers should be blanched or heated before freezing. This stops the enzyme action and helps preserve color, flavor and texture.

Packages should be placed in the coldest section of the freezer for initial freezing. Food should be frozen as quickly as will freeze within 24 hours. This is usually two to three pounds of each cubic foot of freezer space, Mrs. Johnson says.

A readable label and a current inventory will help keep your frozen food supplies up-to-date. Foods which have been frozen for the longest periods of time should be used first.

If the electricity goes off, don't panic and don't open the freezer. Food will stay frozen for one to two days if the freezer is filled with food and the door is not opened.

Drying preserves foods

Drying is the oldest method of preserving foods and is still an economical choice. Drying requires little equipment and conserves storage space. Most fruits and vegetables can be preserved by drying, says Mae Martha Johnson, Extension food specialist at New Mexico State University.

Dehydrating preserves food by removing enough moisture to prevent decay and the growth of bacteria. The bulk and energy content of the foods are not affected. However, there will be some loss of vitamins and minerals in the drying process.

You can dry food by using the sun, the kitchen oven or a portable food dehydrator. New Mexico's high summer temperature and low relative humidity make sun drying quick, easy and the most economical method. All you need are drying trays (clean window or door screens work well) and some cheese cloth.

Drying does not improve the quality of food so use only top quality fruits and vegetables, Mrs. Johnson says. Only fruits and vegetables that are suitable for eating fresh are suitable for drying. Select and prepare the food for drying the day it is harvested.

All food needs some preparation and pre-treatment before drying. Blanch vegetables with hot water or steam to inactivate the enzymes and preserve the color and flavor during drying and storage.

While you can blanch fruits, sulfuring (exposing food to sulfur fumes) is better. Sulfuring helps maintain the fruit's color, flavor and vitamins. It also discourages insect infestation during the drying process.

Dried foods should be packaged promptly in clean, dry, insect and rodent proof containers. As a precaution against insect contamination, place sun-dried foods in your freezer for 48 hours after packaging. Then store them in a cool, dry and dark place.

(Public Service Commissioner Gary Blakeley says the PSC caseload has tripled in recent years in this guest column for vacationing Fred Buckles.)

BY GARY BLAKELEY

SANTA FE — The Public Service Commission has received requests from 10 New Mexico utilities for rate relief before the end of 1977.

The PSC scheduled hearings in September for El Paso Electric Co. which serves the Las Cruces area. Hearings will be in Las Cruces to allow consumer input. The proposal is for a 27 per cent increase to yield $4.9 million. El Paso Electric Co. told the PSC that after the rate hearing is ended it will apply for a "Cost of Service" index, similar to the rate device now used by Public Service Company of New Mexico.

Southwestern Public Service Co., Amarillo, withdrew a proposed 13.5 per cent rate increase it had filed with the PSC for its Clovis system. Southwestern Public Service Co. said it would file another proposed increase with the PSC soon.

PSCNM was denied a 200 per cent increase in Santa Fe water rates but was granted a 120 per cent hike. PSCNM appealed to Santa Fe District Court the "rate of return" allowed by the PSC. PSCNM is also awaiting a decision by the PSC on its application for a 130 per cent Las Vegas water rate increase.

Other New Mexico utilities scheduled for rate hearings are Hobbs Gas Co., Raton Natural Gas Co., Paradise Community Service Co. of Albuquerque, Jai Gas Co., and pending rate requests by Gas Company of New Mexico (GCNM) and Kit Carson Electric Cooperative, Taos. The Hobbs and Paradise hearings will be held in the communities to allow consumer input.

Energy conservation will receive close PSC attention as already demonstrated in the Santa Fe water decision. The commission interprets its regulatory mandate to require consideration of approaches available to New Mexico utilities to conserve resources while maintaining adequate services to customers.

The PSC will soon order utilities to prepare and submit detailed information on present and future demand and supply and to develop and submit plans to provide adequate services while reducing the need for costly expanded facilities. The hearing process will probably require a year. The PSC will provide its own, contracted expertise.

The PSC is also revising its rules and regulations, known as general orders. A complete, thorough review of these is in progress to assure consumer input and utility protection.

The legislature this year amended the Public Utilities Act to allow one commissioner to hear cases, other than rate cases which still require two commissioners.

The PSC also now has authority to appoint hearing officers for many of its cases. The legislature also granted the commission a $747,400 appropriation, compared with $323,400 received as recently as 1975. The PSC will hire expertise for many upcoming cases.

Additional PSC staff will include a gas engineer, starting Aug. 1. He is Robert Swartout, now employed by the New York Public Service Commission.

Certified Public Accountant Jack Gordon Jr., joined the PSC staff July 1 as head of the audit unit. He was formerly employed in the state auditor's office.

The commission is interviewing applicants for executive director to assist in administration and coordination of the PSC staff.

The PSC caseload has tripled in recent years.

PAY RAISE FOR HOUSE

WHEN THE House of Representatives danced its little pay raise gavotte Rep. Millicent Fenwick of New Jersey told her colleagues: "We're not fooling the public. They know exactly what we are up to here." Anyone who doesn't know hasn't been paying attention.

Mrs. Fenwick was referring to the fact that, in preparation for an anticipated vote the next day on appropriating money for their $12,800 pay raise, the members cancelled a $2,500 cost-of-living increase. As Rep. Charles W. Whalen Jr. of Ohio put it, "The timing represents a charade."

Charade or not, it is done — and badly done. The questionable thing about it all is not so much the size of the raise, though such a whopping boost all at once does seem rather gross, but the legislative trickery and deceit involved throughout the process.

Much has already been said about the back door method by which the raise was approved — by simply allowing the pay commission's recommendation to stand, without a record vote in House or Senate. This has now been compounded by the strategy followed in the House in the latest go-around.

The leadership saw to it that the question of approving money for the congressional raise was irrevocably tied in with the question of funding for raises for some 20,000 other high-level federal employees. Thus the two questions could not be separated when it came to a final vote. The procedure leaves a bad taste in the mouth. —The Valley Courier, Alamosa, Colorado

GIVE 'EM BACK

Texas, give us back our Carlsbad

Caverns!

The current issue of "Holiday and Vacation Planning Guide to the Federal Parks of the Southwest" has, on pages 44-45 a description of "Carlsbad Caverns National Park, Texas." Texas!!

We realize the federal government has tremendous power, and many times does things against the wishes of people involved, but we stoutly object to the Department of Interior moving our Carlsbad Caverns to Texas.

What does Texas want with them anyway? We have always been led to believe the Lone Star State already has almost everything.

We know it's more hot air and money, and lousy chili, but we also know Texas doesn't have anything to compare with Carlsbad Caverns. The only holes in the ground Texas has are all wells, and pure jealousy may be the reason the federal government was talked into giving the Caverns to Texas.

A spokesperson in the office of Gov. Jerry Apodaca hotly denied the Caverns were the stakes in a bet between Jerry and the governor of Texas on the Texas Tech-UNM football game last fall. UNM lost the game, sure, but the Caverns TOO?

We could understand how such an outright theft could be perpetrated if Lyndon Johnson were still president, but Jimmy Carter is from Georgia and has never seen a hole in the ground any bigger than a fence post hole.

Another possibility is La Raza arranged the deal because they felt the Caverns were attracting too many racist tourists to New Mexico, but a La Raza spokesman said this was ridiculous. "We don't care about the dirty, rotten racist tourists as long as they are in racist Carlsbad and not in unprejudiced Tierra Amarilla," he scoffed.

The only possible explanation is this is a political payoff by the Carter Administration. Texas voted for him in the 1976 election, and New Mexico went against him. As punishment for New Mexico and reward for Texas, the President must have given Texas the Carlsbad Caverns and we'll bet the Carlsbad Chamber of Commerce is completely unaware of this.

We would alert our congressional delegation to this disgraceful affair and urge them to do battle in the halls of congress on our behalf.

Also, we demand that Gov. Jerry Apodaca take immediate steps to get our caverns back before the Texans gas all the bats and turn it into a shrine for Lady Bird Johnson.

Gentlemen, this is WAR! It is above partisan politics. Republicans and Democrats must fight together. Remember: Today the Caverns — Tomorrow the State! — The Rio Grande Sun, Espanola

BY INTERPRETATION

Quoting spoken words verbatim orally ... if the statement wasn't recorded ... is a virtually hazard-free undertaking ... 'cause who's to prove you wrong.

Quoting the spoken word in print can put the person quoting in a predicament not dissimilar to dunking your pinkie into a fingerbowl containing a hungry piranha ... 'cause the printed word is easily perusable.

So it was that a story complimenting Jean Morgan, RN, director of nursing at Ruidoso Hondo Valley Hospital (RHVH), on her expertise in her chosen profession ... appearing in The News ... came right out plain and said ... as a direct quote ... that there wasn't anything in the line of nursing at RHVH that Jean couldn't do. What was meant was ... Jean could step into the breach to take over a duty nurse's post ... to free a nurse with a specialty to handle an emergency ... which is one of the reasons she is director of nursing at RHVH.

By interpretation ... mine ... that's what the entire statement said ... by interpretation ... Jean's ... it set her up as being infallible ... which leaves it up to Jean's co-workers to blame me for not absolutely clarifying the written word ... so there'd be no mistaking that Jean can substitute for any duty nurse on a moment's notice ... from carrying bed pans to giving a patient expert care.

And, by jinkies, Jean ... that's how it was and how I hope it'll be.

CONGRATULATIONS JERRY

When it comes to whomping up victuals, Carrizozo's Jerry Hourigan has long enjoyed more than a modicum of local acclaim ... and he added a new laurel by filling up a rib crown roast with meat and beef bacon, to be the top cook in the New Mexico Cow Belle Beef Cook-Off ... for which effort he'll depart these mountains September 15-16 to let the judges sample his succulent roast at the National Beef Cook-Off at Columbus, Ohio.

Back at Columbus chef Jerry might hear the old familiar Jerry Who? And they'll probably figure he's some upstart from south of the border who doesn't know what he's getting into ... in this national competition ... but I can just see Jerry's grin ... as he gets down to business ... and the aroma from that luscious roast permeates the air ... and ol' Jerry'll just keep his cool ... and that roast cooking ... and chances are those standing ribs'll have the judges wishing it was a lot bigger. And what better claim to fame for New Mexico than to have a Hourigan be the nation's best beef cook ... that'll have those judges interested in family trees digging into their research volumes ... and, should this come to pass, Jerry's chuckle will win his competitors over to his style of cooking ... which might be good news for Land of Enchantment beef producers ... no?

JACK'S STILL NO. 1

I don't think that Jack Nicklaus is over the hill ... not when he lost two tournaments ... while setting a course record ... to lose by one stroke to a man who beat Jack's record tally before it could be a record.

This being No. 2 isn't exactly to Jack's liking ... and while breaking existing course records isn't what could be interpreted as being in a slump ... it stands to reason ... in my opinion ... that Jack'll win one of the big ones ... soon ... and his detractors will have to again pay him his just due.

Me'n Jim Burns was talking golf t'other day ... over ... aw, you guessed ... a glassa ice tea ... when Nicklaus just happened to be mentioned ... and me'n Jim opined that ol' Jack'd get his game together ... and get started on building up his list of major wins again ... if'n he gets a little help.

Last I saw of Jim he was studying a map of Florida ... with a gleam in his eye ... like maybe he was giving considerable thought to having a round with Jack ... and mutterin' something that sounded like "two-bits a hole". Just in case you doubt that Jim isn't a man to back up his convictions with money.

BRIEF BIT: In case you think baseball'll last forever, Joe Namath isn't trying to keep from being the No. 3 quarterback for nothing ... CD

Old Lincoln Days
Preparations
Have Begun

A happy crowd of folks gathered the evening of July eighteen at Lincoln to make plans for the annual historical pageant, "The Last Escape of Billy the Kid."

Veteran actors of all ages, and new folks interested in playing in the show gathered at a grand barbecue prepared for the pageant people by Bill and Pat Ward.

The show is always held each year in the first weekend in August. This will make the show two evening performances Friday and Saturday, the fifth and sixth, and an afternoon performance on Sunday the seventh.

Director Mickey Thomas announced that practices will be in the evenings of Tuesdays and Thursdays of each week beginning Tuesday July nineteen.

A fine spirit of fellowship prevailed at the barbecue, and everyone looked forward to having a grand time practicing for the show and presenting the three performances to those who come from everywhere to see the clock turned back to pioneer times in Lincoln County.

The show goes back one hundred years to the eighteen-seventies to the days of the Lincoln County War, and traces the career of Billy the Kid going through the various turning points in the early day drama and ending with the young gun man's escape from captivity, against odds of "One million to One."

The show takes place in an outdoor amphitheater with a stage made of open ground and a large raised platform. Arranged all across the main stage are the Church, the Torreon, the Courthouse, the Saloon, the McSweeney home, and Blazer's mill.

Guns, pistols, saddles and clothing are authentic to the days of one hundred years ago. Horses, mules and burros gallop, trot or walk through the scenes on the open ground. And the gun fire is very realistic, especially in the night performances, as the fire from the black cartridges shows up. And the sound is echoed all around the surrounding hill.

Began As A Part
Of New Mexico's
Four Hundredth Birthday

The show was begun in 1940 as Lincoln County's contribution to New Mexico's quarter-centennial, or four-hundredth birthday. The whole celebration was called "A Day in Old Lincoln," and the pageant was on feature. The main feature was a gathering and introduction of old timers, and the day in Old Lincoln was put on as a tribute to our pioneers of the southwest.

Back in 1940 there were many old timers who came to the day in Old Lincoln and it was this gathering that was the principal attraction.

The pageant became so popular, however, with young and old that it was extended to two performances and then three.

The first pageant was held with the main street of Lincoln as the stage, and the first Billy the Kid was Peter Hurd.

Billy Shrecongott, who plays the Kid this year and for several years past is Kid number six, the others being Peter Hurd, Johnnie Davis, John Thomas, Tommy Taylor, and Earl Taylor.

Many of the players in the pageant are descendants of those who took part in the real drama of the early days, and all the actors are local people who have the story in their blood.

Much work has gone into the pageant through the years to make the show more realistic. Many old time features such as buggies, and stage coach, add color to the show. So keep the first weekend in August in mind, and tell the word around.

Birthday of Fritz Christian

On the sixteenth of July I happened to be talking with Fritz Christian our long time friend, and he mentioned that it was his birthday.

Fritz is a well-beloved and long-time resident of Ruidoso and we wish him many happy returns of the day and all God's blessings.

Teenage artists painting T-shirts

If you are looking for an indoor summer activity to interest all your youngsters, let them decorate a T-shirt. These are easy and very popular, says Susan Wright, Extension clothing specialist at New Mexico State University.

You can create your own designs with felt-tip pens or tube-shaped textile markers. Just make sure the ink is "permanent" so it won't wash out, the specialist cautions.

An alternative is textile paints. They're heavy, so they'll soak through, yet won't run when you apply them. You can use a stencil brush or a "found object" — such as a fork, an empty spool or corks — to apply the paint.

Closely-woven natural fibers, such as cotton, linen and some cotton-blended synthetics, accept paint well. Check your marker's instructions for any restrictions on use.

Paints "take" better when applied over a padded surface. So line your item with a blanket or newspapers. This padding also will keep the paint from seeping through to lower layers.

A simple design is easiest, especially if you're working with a felt-tip marker. Apply the lightest color first, Miss Wright says. That way, you can shift your design more easily if you make a mistake.

Farm Day set at Las Cruces

Finding ways to expand food production without a concurrent expansion in energy use provides a challenge to agronomists at the New Mexico State University Agricultural Experiment Station. The results of meeting that challenge will be on display at the Plant Science Research Center Open House — Farm Day, Aug. 3.

Most production practices used on America's farms were developed when energy was cheap and most uses of energy were highly profitable. Now, higher energy prices and the emphasis on energy conservation are causing NMSU agronomists to evaluate energy use as well as profitability of proposed new practices.

Some scientists point out that all of the easy improvements in food production, such as hybrid corn, widespread use of fertilizers and improved chemicals for weed control, are already developed and in use. They indicate that we are not likely to see any dramatic increase in food production because future improvements are going to be much harder to achieve. Yet, agricultural scientists at NMSU believe we can continue to develop a new technology to help grow more food with no added energy use. They are working on a number of ideas for expanding food production which should require no additional energy.

Some scientists are refining ideas and technology already available or are adapting existing practices to local geographic areas. Other efforts involve more basic research studies which will require considerable time before producing positive results.

Agonomists play a key role in these efforts to expand food production. At the Open House — Farm Day at the NMSU Plant Science Research Center, some of the major agronomic research at NMSU will be on display. Researchers will be there to answer questions to interested farmers and homeowners.

In the area of fertilizer efficiency, soil and plant scientists are trying to expand the use of soil tests, refine soil-testing procedures, develop improved fertilizer formulations and improve the timing, rates and methods of fertilizer application. They're also looking at how the root systems of crops can be modified to use fertilizer more efficiently and use nitrification inhibitors to keep nitrogen fertilizer available in the soil for a longer time.

Other research involves tolerance to water stress. Agronomists have long realized the importance of selecting plants that can withstand drought and still produce a reasonable crop. Scientists have recently developed techniques to diagnose how well a plant is reacting to moisture stress. These new techniques should help agronomists develop varieties that are at least tolerant to moisture stress and capable of producing crops under less-favorable circumstances.

And since insect and disease problems still account for sizable crop losses in New Mexico, reducing or eliminating these losses will increase total production. Agronomists are trying to develop crops with a broader range of resistance or tolerance to these pests. They are trying to develop resistance to specific pest problems where pesticides are not available. Agronomists are also looking at the effect of changing cropping patterns, such as the use of short-season cottons, to disrupt the life cycle of insects.

Multiple cropping systems, another form of agronomic research, show considerable promise for producing more food on an acre of land. The low grain prices that farmers were receiving until a few years ago limited interest in multiple cropping to high value crops such as vegetables. Now, with higher grain prices, short-season crops and reduced tillage systems, multiple cropping with field crops is becoming feasible in the corn belt and many other areas of the country. Multiple cropping practices are not yet perfected, but more research is being devoted to these promising systems.

In the area of nitrogen fixation, plant breeders are using new tools to develop leguminous plants that do a better job of capturing atmospheric nitrogen, thus making their own nitrogen fertilizer. These improved legumes would have increased yields and store more nitrogen in the soil for future crops. There has also been considerable interest recently in the possibility of nitrogen fixation by bacteria growing in association with the roots of grass crops. Development of nitrogen fixation in grasses would have far-reaching effects because grasses are the principal food crops for man and domestic livestock.

Growing more food with today's energy will not be easy, but it is not impossible. It will take time and money for NMSU agronomists and other agricultural scientists to do the research and develop the technology. Then it will be up to America's farmers to put the technology to use.

of the Ruidoso Chamber of Commerce about a year. Part of the shop is a health food store, stocking vitamins, natural herbs and grains, etc.

Country living needs look

Many people dream of moving out of the city into open rural areas. They want to produce their own fresh fruits and vegetables, maybe some eggs, pork or beef, and have a pleasure horse for the youngsters.

This picture may look very attractive to a young family. It can also be very expensive, if you don't weigh all the advantages and disadvantages of such a move before you make it, says Robert Coppedge, Extension economist at New Mexico State University.

A homie with a few acres can cut down on some food expenses and may even supplement the family income, explains Coppedge. Taxes are usually lower in the country, too. But transportation cost to work, school and town for shopping are going to be high. A second car may be necessary. City water, sewage and garbage collection usually aren't available in rural areas, and you may not know how much you miss them until they don't exist.

For some, moving to rural living will be going back to a kind of life they knew as children. For others, it will mean starting a completely new way of life. Be sure you are prepared for the change before you sell your city home and move to the wide open spaces.

Unless you know something about gardening, caring for livestock and rural living, you may be disappointed with your "new way of life." Will your family be as enthusiastic as you are? Will you still be enthusiastic after putting a hard season of work into the fresh eggs, vegetables and livestock that you envision for your table? The difference between what it costs to grow a hog and the price you pay at the store for pork isn't as great as you may think either, cautions Coppedge.

Both the location and size of your part-time farm will have a bearing on how happy you and your family will be. Select a rural home carefully. Good soil, adequate drainage and general appearance of other homes and farms in the community should be considered. Distance to schools and to nearby communities, and the type of roads and water supply may also influence your decision.

The amount of time you and your family want to spend farming and caring for your country home, as well as the amount of capital you can invest, will determine how big it should be. If you don't have much extra time, it's best to settle for one to five acres and specialize in vegetables, small fruit or other crops that take only a small amount of land and machinery. Livestock can be interesting and profitable but they do require daily care throughout the year. It may prove difficult to schedule a vacation or holiday away from home.

Before you make the big move to the country, remember to look at the problems as well as the pleasures.

WHEN A PASTURE has been grazed year long for several years the forage is eaten away and undesirable plants usually take over.

WITH ALTERNATING USE of pastures within an allotment a rancher maintains growth of desirable plants.

Range and wildlife management vitally important to forest service

BY MARY WORMLEY
Staff Writer

Management of range and wildlife, under the direction of staff officer Larry Ankiam in Smokey Bear Range District of Lincoln National Forest, are integral facets of the complex United States Forest Service.

Range management is conservation of vegetation and forage in order to provide food for domestic livestock and wildlife populations.

In order to do this, forest lands suitable for grazing have been broken into allotments which are granted for grazing to qualifying ranchers.

To qualify for a permit, a rancher must own a minimum of 80 acres of private land adjacent to forest land or he may lease private land adjacent to the forest.

The rancher also is required "to provide water on the land and facilities for handling animals," Ankiam said.

Once qualification has been determined, the rancher may submit an application for consideration. On the application he gives the number of cattle or horses he wishes to run, a description of the brand and a detailed description of the base land. On the permit application, the rancher agrees to comply with forest service regulations.

The forest service will consider the application and the allotment requested and then determine the number of cattle which can feasibly graze on the land without damaging the forage. A schedule also will be made so the rancher can alternate pastures within the allotment and rest certain areas so the forage will grow.

"You can't have maximum forage productivity and get desirable species to maintain themselves on a one pasture system," Ankiam said. "Forage requirements can't be met when an area is grazed year long, year after year."

When this happens, an invasion of undesirable plants usually occurs because all desirable plants have been eaten off.

"We try to break into pastures of equal size and capacity and work out a system where ranchers can alternate grazing and rest some areas until the next year," he said.

"It's important to maintain the composition or better the composition of a pasture and the only way to do this is to give the plants a period of rest."

Ankiam said there are four types of permits, 10-year term, temporary, on and off and private land, which vary widely. Ankiam also directs management of wildlife.

Fish and wildlife populations in the national forest are managed under a cooperative system with the state Game and Fish Department in efforts to maintain forage and to keep their numbers in balance with the food and shelter available, Ankiam said.

"The forest service is in charge of the habitat, while the Game and Fish Department is in charge of setting hunting seasons," Ankiam said. "The forest service does have input into the Game and Fish Department as to what needs should be provided."

To maintain the habitat for animals, the forest service ensures forage is available for the herds which range from the relatively rare to this area white-tailed deer to coyotes and from elk to bobcats and bear.

They also develop water sources. "Providing water makes habitat available which has not been usable," he said.

When the forest service builds a trick tank (self-supplying water source) they "try to provide access to and escape from the tank so an animal that falls in can get out," Ankiam said.

RANGE AND WILDLIFE MANAGEMENT staff officer Larry Ankiam shows the height of spring western wheat in a pasture which is in a period of rest.

RUIDOSO — Al Rosa, general manager of Ruidoso Downs and Sunland Park, says $2.75 million will be spent on capital improvements at Ruidoso Downs if the owners, Fortuna Properties Inc., can settle licensing problems with the New Mexico Racing Commission.

Tabulation of proposed Ruidoso Downs improvements: Turf Club, $1 million. Capacity would be raised from 900 to 1,000. Expansion would be toward present parking areas. Work would be done between racing seasons. Stables area: Staggered over four years, stables capacity would be raised from 1,200 to 1,700 horses. Old barns would be replaced and new ones would be built. The stables area outlay would be $1 million. Grandstand concessions: The grandstand concession area would be totally remodeled for $750,000. Facilities would be added and some present stands would be relocated. Work would be done between seasons.

Rosa, president of Fortuna Properties Inc., says: "We would finance this through banks with our own financial capability." The betting handle at Ruidoso Downs was up 9 per cent for the first 35 racing days over the first 34 days of 1976.

Service of Continental Telephone Company of the West, which wants a permanent 13.5 per cent rate increase, is slow at Ruidoso. We dialed "Operator" and the phone rang 33 times before anyone answered. We had much trouble calling the town of Mesalero from Ruidoso although it is a local call.

A sign-up of ranchers for a range caterpillar spraying program was begun in Lincoln County. The target date to begin spraying was Aug. 12. Federal funds were available. Rancher committees were formed. Asst. Director Leo Griego of the State Agriculture Department said: "The Southern part of Lincoln County has had the most range caterpillar egg hatch. It's almost complete there."

Griego said in all of Lincoln County 657,000 acres were infested, in Guadalupe County, 80,000 acres, in Chaves County, a few hundred acres, and in Torrance County, a small area. Griego said: "The hatch in Central New Mexico is very spotted."

Spraying for range caterpillars was finished on 270,000 acres in Union, Harding, Colfax and Mora Counties. Dylux 1.5 all was sprayed from fixed-wing aircraft. Gov. Jerry Apodaca declared an emergency in Northeastern New Mexico because of range caterpillar infestation.

State Engineer Steve Reynolds assessed New Mexico moisture conditions: "We're still in a general sort of way, except in the Northwest corner, pretty much up to the normal for the calendar year." But Reynolds said farmers in Arch Hurley Conservation District "were hurt because the level was low at Conchas Dam." Reynolds said farmers in Carlsbad Irrigation District were also hurt because runoff was low on the Pecos River. He said water was released from Summer Lake to ease problems.

Reynolds said: "East Side farmers are in pretty good shape for moisture — Clovis, Portales, Lea County." July rainfall was normal.

Mountain States Construction Inc., Albuquerque, was apparent low bidder at $3,790,540.50 on seven miles of construction on US-67 from Des Moines southeast in Union County. But the State Highway Department engineer's estimate was $3,749,420.85. Bids were opened Friday.

The State Park and Recreation Commission postponed action on a joint Truth or Consequences-Sierra County request for the commission to be lead agency in an effort to preserve the 50,000 acre feet of minimum pool at Elephant Butte Reservoir. The state commission asked for an updated evaporation rate table before voting on the request.

The commission authorized its staff to negotiate an increased breakfast meal rate for the Youth Conservation Corps food contract at Elephant Butte Lake State Park. State Parks Commissioner Sam Graft was authorized to adopt measures to control water skiing at Elephant Butte Lake should drawdown of the reservoir make precautions necessary.

The state commission approved sale of the liquor license at Ute Lake State Park to an individual. The liquor permit, owned by park concessionaire Arnold Wall, will be moved outside Ute Lake State Park. The commission conditionally approved transfer of the lease for Ute Lake Cafe from Wall to Al Hampton of Logan. Charles Horn and Associates of Santa Fe was picked as prime contractor for architectural and engineering design of proposed Lea County State Park near Hobbs.

Gov. Apodaca replaced George Lambert of Elephant Butte with Betty Rivera of Albuquerque on the State Environmental Improvement Board and Charles A. Nicholson of Belen with Dell Bachel of Taos on the State Liquefied Petroleum Gas Commission.

The new Community Assistance Council will review 12 applications for $10 million in state money for areas impacted by energy or mineral development Wednesday (Aug. 3) in Santa Fe. Among applicants are Eunice, Lovington, Williamsburg, Sierra County-Hillboro, Truth or Consequences and Valencia County-Mount Taylor-Water Association.

The 1977 Legislature created the council. Lt. Gov. Bob Ferguson, Artesia, governor-running Democrat, set organization meetings Friday in hometown Artesia and Saturday in Carlsbad.

GOVERNMENT INTERFERENCE

The Supreme Court's recent decision that there can be no demand for abortions at taxpayer expense has been met with both boos and cheers. The boos are from those who say this action removes from poor women an option middle class and rich women can exercise at will — abortion of unwanted children. The cheers, mostly, come from those morally opposed to abortion no matter who pays for them.

The correctness of the decision lies between those extremes, though. Where it is written in our laws that all those things the rich or well-off can afford and the poor cannot must be provided the poor by the government? Food, necessary shelter and basic medical care are the only support the government should have to furnish. It already goes too far in extending myriad and, to a great degree, unaccountable programs to those who qualify as deprived under the federal guidelines for each program.

That these programs have been abused is an understatement. Most citizens who are concerned and aware of what goes on around them have known of the abuses and fraud riddling the government welfare morass for years. The roar from the citizens back home has finally become bitter and loud enough that it is beginning to penetrate those marble walls and great metal doors of our government institutions in Washington.

So now the Supreme Court has taken a step and said "This is something the government doesn't have to do for you. If you want it, you must take care of it yourself."

Some have criticized it as being economically illogical — the government refusing to pay a couple of hundred dollars for an abortion, so gaining an unwanted child which often will have to be supported in welfare payments for 18 years. While this is a valid point, it would become moot if the money that normally would be spent on welfare payments for these children and abortions was turned to an extensive program to educate people about responsible contraception.

If such a program were successful, it would eliminate itself from necessity within a few short years. The present programs of government payments for abortions and welfare payments will go on forever if something isn't done to stop the need for them.

It is not only the expense of such programs to which we object, it is also the demeaning role in which they cast their recipients. Individuals cannot abdicate their responsibilities to the government and still retain their pride. And when can life be without some measure of pride?

In any case, the nation's biggest court has said the government is not required to furnish this particular service to its citizens. That is a bright point in what has been a long gathering gloom of increasing government suffocation by all-encompassing involvement in individual lives. — News-Bulletin, Net

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:
Pity the poor pedestrian attempting to cross the Sudderth speedway!

Before someone is maimed for life or that life terminated post haste, shouldn't the city dads provide for some pedestrian crosswalks?

And isn't it about time we stop bragging about the fact we have ONLY ONE STOP LIGHT and provide several along Sudderth? These stop lights will provide gaps in the bumper to bumper traffic permitting both vehicular and pedestrian traffic an opportunity to egress and progress.

'LUCKY' EDDIE ABEYTA

Eddie Abeyta ... with a lot of help from wife Emma ... not only distributes refreshments from his stand at Bent ... he also ... with more help from Emma ... has an orchard ... grows plums, peaches, apples ... grass, weeds and stickers ... in a plot of ground that could raise rice.

Knowing ... 'cause Eddie'd advised me ... that the peaches and plums were ripe for plucking ... me 'n' m' bride ... that's Kay you know ... drove through the rain Saturday to do a little plum and peach pluckin'.

M' bride eyeballed the weather outside the Abeyta trailer and promptly settled down for a long chat with Emma leaving me 'n' Eddie to do the pluckin' ... so, orchard bound, after leaving the blacktop, we allibered to a half near a loaded peach tree. To this point, all was well.
Acting upon Eddie's "follow me" ... I tried putting my saddle steps into his boot steps ... and promptly wound up knee deep in a ditch running full of water so muddy a catfish couldn't have spotted a sluggish frog ... and there I stood ... with no one to offer a hand ... unless Eddie's guffaws ultimately served that purpose ... 'cause by the time I caught up with him, he was so high in a peach tree I couldn't get at him ... thank goodness.

Eddie pointed out the plum trees ... so I sloshed over to same ... to discover the first three-legged ladder I've ever eyeballed ... and after only three missteps ... without taking time out to make mud pies ... I found the contraption quite stable ... and, in a matter of moments, became a plum plucker of skill so inefficient I'd starve to death working at it ... even at $5 a peck.

The bride eye-balled my Sunday best pants on our return ... but as soon as she saw the fruits of our labors ... especially mine ... all was forgiven ... I think. I convinced her it was muddy good fun ... I think.

The Abeyta's two-year-old grandson eyed our luscious store of fruits of the orchard ... and, almost sadly, it seemed, turned away. Seems Michael'd gone through whole bunches of peaches and plums the day before ... and said fruit'd turned about-fair-play and had gone through him. But, gee whiz, being two and all, how's a fellow to know?

To keep the story going ... there came a tapping on the door ... and there ... in the downpour ... stood John Moyer ... family friend of Eddie and Emma ... assistant vice president of the El Paso National Bank he was ... at least, that's what his card said ... and seems ... 'cording to John ... that his little foreign sports car just up and conked out ... right smack dab in front of Eddie's ... and the fact that the yellow plums were plucked, ripe and waitin', by the boxfull, had naught to do with it ... I think.

Anyhow ... John lays his problems onto Eddie's sympathetic ear ... all about how his fuel pump was actin' up ... and stuff ... and that he'd nursed it as far as it'd go ... with the coincidence being where it conked out.

So ... between grabbin' a fresh plum ... and sippin' an ice tea ... John gets Eddie to agree to tow him to Ruidoso ... for repairs ... or condolences ... so ... after John's nursed his coughing, struggling speedster a few yards down the road ... Eddie up and halted broke it with a length of nylon rope ... and off they went ... up over Apache Summit ... with all well.

John slipped his little jobber into gear on the way down the Summit ... osterisibly to kinda keep the tow rope straight ... like he was pushin' Eddie ... and ... it happened! ... with a snap the tow rope broke ... seems the jolt did something ... and John sped off ... with Eddie in hot pursuit ... until John hove into port at the Sierra Swim and Racquet Club ... his home base here.

What happened was ... Eddie swears ... John's electric water pump ... on the vehicle ... got to sprinkling the wires ... and the jolt shook the water off ... and he was home free. A likely story ... considerin' the plums ... 'n' ice tea.
BRIEF BIT: Some members of The Congress, it seems, think they can do no wrong ... unless Jaworski is able to catch them at it ... hopefully ... CD

The Silver Lining

BY DANIEL AGNEW STORM

July Grows Greener

With the recent rains, wonderful July is growing greener by the hour. Even when the grey clouds are overhead, the earth is in a velvet green glow. The leaves on the trees are growing with all their might. You can almost see them grow. The pinon cones are getting into full size through the magic of the rain.

The smell from the rapid-growing grass, leaves, and evergreen shoots is ever so refreshing on the summer breeze. All the song birds, the robin, the meadow lark, blue bird, and pinon jay, are singing the song of July — the happy melody of a summer growing greener by the day.

This morning, July 26, the sun is out bright and no sign of clouds, but the woodpecker is calling from the hillside, saying that it may rain again this afternoon.

After the first good rain, all along the meadows and under the trees on the mountain and along the river, the wild flowers of all colors have suddenly appeared like magic. Where were these little creatures of Heaven's own beauty just a few days ago? They were there although we could not see them. Back in the winter they were little seeds under the snow. Then through the dry days of May and June they were still in their earthy beds dreaming of the time they would awaken into tiny plants and grow, form their buds, and bloom.

Now the dream of the sleeping flower seeds has come true and they are smiling by the wayside doing their bit to make us happy. The colors are unusually pure and clear this year, especially after a rain, with the sun making rainbow colored, ruby, sapphire, and many other kinds of jewelry from the drops of rain that the flowers are holding on their petals, and buds.

The Wild Flowers
Are Here All In A Day

Especially pretty after the rain are the wild snap dragon, the Rocky Mountain Gilia, and the Scotch Blue Bell. The purple-blue of the snap dragon shines from a distance, all through the mountain and foothills country. The flowers are bell-like, and artistically formed so that they catch a large amount of rain drops which sparkle and shine in lights and colors which add to the blue and lavender and purple of the flower itself.

The Rocky Mountain Gilia is that red, scarlet-red trumpet that grows on a spire or long stem about four to five feet high. In good rainy seasons like this year, the plants may grow to six or seven feet tall, with the little red trumpets from mid-way up the stalk, all the way to the tip. The trumpets begin forming toward the bottom end of the spire at the first rains of July, and then working their way to the tip top, as the buds open through the days. This way the Scarlet Rocky Mountain Gilia can be seen along the way all through the summer and early fall.

Beginning now, the Scotch Blue Bell, also known as the Hair bell, grows all around the world in the north temperate zone in places like Scotland, Norway, Sweden, and Alaska.

In mountain regions farther to the south it grows in altitudes which have climate and plant life and bird life much the same as found in these Northern countries.

It is of a soft blue hanging on a stem so thin that from a distance it can not be seen, giving the impression that the bells are ringing their quiet tones out in the thin air. Then when you get close you find the stem near the bell is thin as a hair, explaining the name "Hair Bell."

The Scotch Blue bell is a sight that grows more welcome each year in little clumps under the pines, out across the fields and up on mossy banks and rocky hillside. The blue bell is at home anywhere in the mountain country, and for all its delicate and tender appearance, is wonderfully hardy and strong. This is something that we are grateful for because this way our little friend, the Blue Bell, is ringing in the breeze and smiling at us in many places throughout the mountain country.

Other Great world wide favorites that are coming into bloom now are The Wild Columbine, The English Buttercup, the Wild Violet (in higher altitudes) the Blue Flax, Black-eyed Susan, and the blossom of the Wild Strawberry and the Wild Raspberry.

These are only a few of the many flowers that add their colorful blessings to our life here in the mountain home land. Later on we will take up a few more, and we will go into the picture of the fruit of the orchards and the wilds. Meanwhile, let us thank God for a beautiful summer and all our other blessings.

News from the County Agent

Sheep Enemy No. 1 — The Coyote: The greatest single enemy western sheep have is the coyote, according to the U.S. Economic Research Service survey of sheep producers in the western States.

Coyotes, by killing sheep and lambs, have cost sheepmen and consumers $37 million in 1974. Most of this was lost by farmers and ranchers from reduced sales; but consumers also lost from higher lamb prices and reduced quantities. Hardest hit by the predators were 5,000 western sheepmen, about one tenth of all the west's total sheepmen, who lost an average of $4,000 each in 1974.

Signs of Attack: Sheep and lamb predators usually leave tell-tale clues on the carcass. For example, a domestic dog will usually kill by slashing at the sheep's hind legs and back; a cougar will bite the top of the head; and an eagle will leave talon marks on the back and head. But the most common finding is bites in the neck of a ewe or lamb — the mark of a coyote.

Sheep producers disagree with environmentalists about the extent of damage caused by coyotes and how they should be controlled. Research sponsored by government agencies and universities also has considered these questions. In seven biological studies, autopsies were performed on sheep and lamb carcasses to determine cause of death. Verified coyote kills ranged from less than 1% of lambs on seven California ranches with predator control, to 29% of lambs on a Montana ranch with no predator control.

Polsons outlawed: At the center of the predator control controversy is the 1972 ban of polsons. With nearly half of the west's sheep and lambs grazing on federal land, the 1972-75 seasons showed the highest rates of lamb loss of any years recorded. According to producers, increased coyote predation was the major cause of this loss.

In the study, ERS researchers also report: More than half the western commercial sheep producers (those with flocks of 50 or more head) report some losses from coyote attacks. Nearly 250,000 adult sheep, in addition to the 730,000 lambs, were killed by coyotes in 1974. Disease accounts for less than 2% of lamb deaths; weather kills about 4.5%. Geographically, loss rates of lamb and sheep to coyotes were highest in States with public range grazing and mountainous terrain. Lamb loss rates attributed to all causes have been increasing in the western states, while loss rates for adult sheep have been declining slightly.

Reports yet to come: There are other questions regarding the issue of predator control, such as how different methods compare as to cost, effectiveness, humaneness, and impact on other wildlife. Future reports will attempt to answer these and other questions, including the reasons behind the reduction in western sheep production. But one factor is already clear: The coyote is the major predator of western sheep.

I have spent several days in the past two weeks weighing and registering market animals for the Lincoln County Fair. With the help of Dee Proctor, Dan Ware, Jerry Bruckett and many others, we weighed 27 calves, 37 pigs and 132 lambs. Some of these animals will not make the minimum weight limits and will show in the feeder animal class. Any calf under 875 pounds, lambs under 80 pounds and pigs under 100 pounds on August 25th, will show in the feeder class. Only market animals weighed and registered during the past two weeks will be allowed to show at the Lincoln County Fair.

Breeding animals in the swine, beef cattle and sheep classes will be allowed to show without being weighed.

Jockey/Trainer of the week

W.R. Hunt rolled to five big wins over the weekend — including two stakes races — and picked up Jockey-of-the-Week honors at Ruidoso Downs.

Hunt turned in a tremendous four-day performance, going to the gate 13 times and finishing in the money 12 times. His weekend total was 5-2-5 and it added his overall account to 26-19-33 from 148 trips to the gate.

Saturday he picked off the 5th race aboard Triangle Pass and the 7th astride Dial Pepper. Billy's first big win of the weekend came Saturday in the Zia Stakes.

DOUBLE STAKES WINNERS — Jockey W.R. Hunt and trainer H.C. Werner Jr. picked up honors as Jockey and Trainer of the Week. As a team they scored five winners including the Zia Stakes Saturday and the World's Championship Classic Sunday.

He rode Comin' Easy to a nose victory and the winner's share of the $8,000-added purse. Hunt also notched a win the same day on Bar Face Kid in the 8th race.

The culmination of Hunt's great weekend came Sunday in the featured $32,200 World's Championship Classic. Hunt rode Bar Roula to a half-length victory.

Gary Sumpter also turned in a five-win performance over the weekend. He took 30 trips to the starting gate and came home with 5 wins, 5 seconds and 2 thirds. His effort shot him into second place in the jockey standings with an overall record of 20-22-23 from 209 attempts.

Carlos Rivas, last week's honoree, remains at the top of the standings with a 53-51-54 tally out of 203 starts. Rivas finished the weekend with three winners after sitting two days out.

Trainer-of-the-Week honors go to H.C. Werner Jr., who favors Billy Hunt as his jockey and wound up with five winners, all ridden by Hunt. Werner's weekend record stands at 5-2-5 from 15 tries, including both stakes wins recorded by Hunt. Werner remains at the top of the trainer standings with a tally of 29-22-27 from 163 tries.

A big weekend of racing is on tap with two stakes grabbing the spotlight Saturday — the first Lady Handicap for three-year-olds and up with a $6,500 added purse and the Rainbow Futurity Consolation.

The weekend will climax Sunday with the 14th running of the rich Rainbow Futurity. Over $440,000 is at stake with a fat $153,188 set aside for the winner. The Rainbow will be televised live to some 15 western states and will be seen as far away as Boston, New York State, North Carolina and Ohio.

First post through Saturday is 1:30 p.m. Sunday things get underway a half-hour earlier at 1 p.m.

LORD WINSALOT, last year's winner of the Kansas Futurity and runner-up in the All-American Futurity, will not race this year according to trainer Roscoe Yates. Yates said that Lord Winsalot has been having difficulties with a back injury sustained during a Derby race at Los Alamitos earlier this year. Yates does hope that Lord Winsalot will heal quickly so that he can compete as a four-year-old next season. The gelding has won $411,399 so far.

NIP N DUDE, the colt that set the third-fastest qualifying time for the Rainbow Futurity finale, was recently purchased for $30,000 by Charles B. Hatfield of Ft. Smith, Arkansas. Hatfield bought the colt after his original entry for the Rainbow died, and he was left without an entry. Nip N Dude was originally purchased in the All-American Yearling Sale last year for $11,000.

BOB'S NITE OUT, a sophomore gelding who won under a $20,000 claiming price at Hollywood Park in May, made his Ruidoso debut as a 5-1 shot in Sunday's 9th race. He easily put away some swift company and won by plenty of daylight. Before shipping to Ruidoso, he turned in some extremely quick workouts at Hollywood. Betty Harless was up for her eighth win of the meeting. The win payoff was $14. Bob's

Nite Out is owned by Elizabeth Smith of El Paso.

STRATE MISS, the gelding who won the Inaugural Purse in May, went out for the second time Saturday. As the 2-1 favorite, Strate Miss turned in a charging stretch run and finished third.

THE DRAKE, a colt, won his maiden Saturday after being knocked around in the stretch. Gilbert Villacast straightened him out after being bumped by Bickie Ann. The Drake won by a head. He went off at even odds. Bickie Ann finished second.

A HAPPY PAPPY won the 12th race Saturday by six lengths. He led all the way in the seven-furlong bout and paid well at 4-1 odds. Larry Brooksher engineered the victory.

APPRENTICE JOCKEY F. E. URIOSTE picked up his first victory of the season at Ruidoso Downs in Sunday's first race. He was aboard State's Turn and won by 1 1/2 lengths at 7-1 odds. Urioste swiftly came back in the 4th race and notched his second win aboard Kelseykin. At 5-1 odds, Urioste took Kelseykin to the early lead and came across the wire 4 1/2 lengths in front.

CO GO, a gelding who went off at 12-1 in Saturday's Zia Stakes, took the early lead but suddenly veered toward the rail. Jockey Gary Sumpter had trouble straightening him out but still managed to finish second by a nose to Comin' Easy who grabbed the lead after Co Go went to the rail.

OFFICER STEVENS, a $4,000 claimer, won Sunday's third race in the mud in an impressive eight lengths as the odds-on favorite. Carlos Rivas took the gelding to an early lead and no contender ever got close after that.

MEDIA VISITORS over the weekend included Art Lawler, sports columnist for the Abilene Reporter-News; Randy Sanders of the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal editorial staff; and Russell Letz, sports director for KBIM-TV in Roswell.

JOCKEY HENRY URIEGAS was fined $250 for careless riding which resulted in interference to the inside horse while astride Regal Try during the 9th race Saturday, July 16.

JOCKEY STEPHEN RODRIGUEZ was hit with a $25 tab for having a dog in the stable area.

THE UPCOMING RAINBOW FUTURITY, which is televised regionally by the All-American Network of Topeka, Kansas, will also reach audiences in Boston, New York State, North Carolina and Ohio.

Let's look at the kitchen:

1 DISHWASHER. Load your dishwasher to capacity before running it. Turn off the dishwasher after the final rinse cycle instead of allowing it to run completely through the drying cycle.

2 RANGE. Be certain you choose the proper size burner for each pan. The pan should be the same size or slightly larger than the surface unit. Use the least amount of water possible when cooking vegetables. Check to see that all burners are turned off when you're through.

3 OVEN. Cook several dishes at once when baking. Avoid the temptation to open the oven door for a "peek" — each time you do, your heat loss can be 20%. Preheat only the required amount of time. Don't line your oven with foil — it interferes with the heating process.

4 REFRIGERATOR/FREEZER. Keep both your refrigerator and freezer full, without overcrowding. A half-empty unit uses more electricity because air is harder to keep cold than chilled foods and liquids. When frost buildup reaches 1/4", defrost promptly. Keep the doors closed — frequent and prolonged door opening lets in warm air and makes the appliance work harder.
