VOLUME NO. 54 IN OUR 32ND YEAR RUIDOSO, LINCOLN COUNTY, NEW MEXICO 88345 THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 24, 1977

Give Thanks

In Ruidoso, this Thanksgiving Day, be thankful:

- There's a church of your choice in which you can worship. More importantly, the doors of all churches are open to everyone.
- There are no insurmountable problems facing the true melting pot of nationalities living here.
- The village trustees are dedicated to making Ruidoso a better place to live. There is no hint of malfeasance.
- The Ruidoso school system is one of the finest in New Mexico and has been recommended for accreditation with commendation, the first time any school district in the state has been so honored.
- The fire fighters, from volunteers to United States Forest Service personnel, perform yeoman services. From the Moon Mountain fire in April to the fire in Black Forest Tuesday morning our firemen have protected valuable property with minimum damage suffered.
- Police officers, often under adverse conditions, do a commendable job of protecting life and property.
- Our two judges enjoy area wide respect for their fairness in conducting their courts.
- Planning for the future, though beset with financial and procedural problems, is designed to insure an orderly growth.
- White Mountain Search and Rescue members are on perpetual standby to render aid.

Besides, Ruidoso, with its magnificent climate, is a beautiful place to live ... and no matter what you gripe about, you don't get into any trouble.
Happy Thanksgiving.

Ruidoso's Search & Rescue seeking active members

BY EMILY LEE PHILLIPS
Staff Writer

Bracing for the winter months, when its services are likely to be needed urgently, White Mountain Search & Rescue (WMS&R) is planning some expansion of its activities.

"We want people willing to help out in any capacity — communications operators, foot searchers, sandwich makers, drivers or whatever."

Once a person joins, he or she receives training. Most members have been through advanced first aid courses, followed by instruction in outdoor survival and in search techniques.

The group wants to add more women to its ranks, for one thing. The main reason, member and past president Herb Brunell said to The News Monday, is that in some search situations "they would relate better to children and possibly to women victims."

Picture a child lost in the woods, he said, a youngster who has been told by his parents to stay away from strangers. Men carrying backpacks, wearing headlamps and carrying odd-looking search equipment might cause the child to hide from would-be rescuers, where a woman would seem less frightening.

Right now, two women are full-fledged members of the organization of 35 persons — Kay Yeatman, a Cub Scout leader who uses the knowledge she picks up from the group in training the boys, and Marie Cormier, a registered nurse at the Ruidoso Hondo Valley Hospital.

The group is also interested in bringing in additional men, and Brunell said health is not a factor except for foot searchers.

Since WMS&R began in 1961, its purpose has changed from purely social to where "search and rescue is our prime function," Brunell said.

"There are better communications, more law enforcement officers and more mounted patrol, so the need has changed ... We need better trained search and rescue people with a better understanding of search techniques — a team concept, victim containment techniques, tracking techniques."

WMS&R has some "heavy guns" in its ranks ("We're not involved with law enforcement at all," Brunell said. "Our members do not carry guns and are not involved. In searches for escaped criminals").

Paul Lukens is a search and rescue instructor for the New Mexico Emergency Services Council and is a technical rock and mountain climber.

Rex Skellet "has an uncanny ability to find the victim." A few times, Brunell said, Skellet went to the scene where the victim was last observed, leaped out of his vehicle and made a beeline in what later turned out to be the right direction.

People who have served in search parties for some time seem to develop a sort of instinct about it. There are times when a search is called and nobody seems anxious to get there in a hurry. A few film "The Life and Times of Grizzly Adams". Receiving the proclamation Tuesday were, Bill Cornford, left, assistant producer and Jim Simmons, right, producer of the series.

THE FIRE ALARM at 10 a.m., Tuesday called Forest Service and Ruidoso Volunteer firemen to a blaze behind a residence in Black Forest Subdivision. Apparently ignited by smoldering fireplace ashes and debris, the fire consumed about a half acre of National Forest Land before brought under control.

$5,000 REBATE TO RUIDOSO for the purchase of the $47,676.42 Unimog, a J. I. Case snow removal and cleaning unit for the Municipal Airport, was received Monday by mayor Lloyd Davis Jr., center, from Tom Smith, general manager of Contractor's Equipment and Supply

RUIDOSO VOLUNTEER FIRE Department assisted the Forest Service in suppressing Tuesday morning's forest fire in Black Forest Subdivision. Firemen were called to the scene again Tuesday afternoon following reports of smoke.

DAN HAGGERTY, star of the "Life and Times of Grizzly Adams" television series, suffered burns on his arms and hands when a Schick Sunn Classic spokesman told The News Tuesday, a snifter of burning brandy was spilled on him during his birthday party at Los Angeles, California. "The burns are not serious," assistant producer Bill Cornford said, "and Dan and the crew will return to Ruidoso the first week in January for another seven weeks of filming."

VOLUNTEER FIREMAN Sam Nunnally stands inside an area cordoned off by the Forest Service at the site where the blaze began. According to fire chief Bill Sealbach, a citation will be issued by the federal government to the owner of the home behind which the forest fire began.

minutes later, the "victim" turns up. Other times, the searchers are already keyed up by the time they are called, ready to spend hours combing snow-swept woods or treacherous mountainsides.

For a search to be called in this area, State Police officer Kent Waller, search initiator, has to go to the scene and decide that a full-scale search will be necessary. He notifies the three search coordinators of WMS&R — Lukens, Skellet and Dave Travis. One or more of them goes to the site to determine how many searchers and how much equipment will be required. The three coordinators have taken special training to gain the qualifications necessary for their role, under the state's

Within the state, there is a network of search and rescue groups, and some of them have specialized services available — Santa Fe does sheer rock climbing, Albuquerque has dogs, others have parachutists, communications persons, emergency medical equipment, scuba divers and equipment for tracking downed aircraft.

Under an executive order issued in April, 1976, by Governor Jerry Apodaca, the state funds purchase of some equipment and the cost of the gas used during searches. The order, which also places the State Police in charge of all search operations in New Mexico, makes it possible for volunteer search and rescue groups — like WMS&R — to travel to search scenes where their particular specialty is needed.

The order requires that the state carry insurance in case of lawsuits brought because no search was started when one should have been, empowers search coordinators to summon helicopters or other specialized services and sets up a training program for coordinators covering victim psychology, search techniques, equipment and land navigation.

WMS&R is eager to see the executive order passed as a bill by the state legislature in the upcoming session, Brunell said.

In the area of equipment, WMS&R was one of a handful of search and rescue groups in New Mexico to receive an emergency locator transmitter for use in pinpointing downed aircraft. It was provided by the estate of the Brumfords, a couple killed in a plane crash last winter.

And last July, 20 headlamps were donated to the group by the Rotary Club. For some time, members of the volunteer WMS&R have been working on a four-wheel-drive van, and "we hope soon to have it completed," Brunell said. It will carry "all sorts of emergency equipment ... be equipped with a CB radio (which) we use in the immediate area of a search."

In short, Brunell said that WMS&R has made strides within the past year to meet standards and "we are now a recognized group, under the New Mexico Emergency Services Council."

Sierra Blanca Skiing Action

From the top . . . with Roy

By Sou' Garrett

Roy Parker has some good news! The new double chairlift is ready and raring to go for the 1977-78 season. Roy, president of the ski area, along with Denny Grover, mountain manager, dedicated the summer to the construction of this development.

The Riblet chair is 1,300 vertical feet, with an unloading and loading ramp at the midway station, and runs along the same trail as the Lincoln T-Bar but extends 2,300 longer. Altogether it is 5,000 feet long. The Riblet will load 1,100 skiers per hour.

The mountain crew also made an improvement on the Gondola lift line. No longer will the Gondola be closed due to "too much snow." They have by passed the steep section, which caused problems in the past, allowing the skier to ski the lift line (lots of powder) all season.

Another area that has received considerable attention is increased grooming of trails. Thanks to Roy, Denny and all the crew, the mountain looks super! Cheers to the men behind the scenes, and in the front!

Volunteers aid local teachers

An innovative program involving parents in the schools is in effect again this year throughout the Ruidoso Municipal School System.

For the fifth year, parents, persons without children and even a grandmother have volunteered innumerable hours in the schools to assist in the libraries and classrooms, as coaches and in other capacities.

At Nob Hill School, 30 mother aides take turns assisting with the kindergarten classes.

"Mother aides are a big part of our kindergarten program," principal Donny Weems said. "They aren't just people who come in to cut paper, they are in an actual learning situation."

In a regular kindergarten class, four learning centers of eight to 10 students are organized and taught by instructors Dawn Cobb and Pat Tate, aide Jane Baca and mother aides.

"With more adults in the class the load on the teachers is lessened and groups are smaller allowing more individualized teaching," Weems said.

"This also allows teachers to give special attention to students needing help."

The kindergarten teachers have noticed "children react differently to their mothers when they come to teach. When they come to observe, the kids want to sit in their laps."

Libby Sears, coordinator of the mother aides for Nob Hill, said, "Your child ignores you as a parent, but they are usually a little excited and proud to see their mothers working in a classroom."

"From a child you don't learn much of what they are doing at school. As a mother aide, you can see each day what the teachers are trying to accomplish."

Another area involving parent volunteers at the schools is in the libraries.

At White Mountain Elementary School, 13 parents assist in the library and at Nob Hill, five parents actually run the library.

Parent volunteers in the Nob Hill library, which opens on Tuesdays and Thursdays for first and second grade classes, "take the place of a full time librarian," Weems said.

"We open the library, check in books, shelve, straighten, repair, check books out and on overdue books, we usually give the kids a chance to return books before we send home notices," volunteer Ann Garrett said.

Parent volunteer Mary Craft said their work in the library "helps the kids get acquainted with reading materials. It gives them the confidence to go to the public library in the summer."

shapes and colors during Tuesday's session. "Being an aide is fantastic," Mrs. Abeyta said. "I enjoy it."

LEGAL EXPENSE GOOD

Any private citizen or public official is entitled to reimbursement for legal expenses when he is brought to court by the government, either civil or criminal, if the party involved is exonerated.

Otherwise, pure harassment can result from public investigators whose expenses and salaries are all paid by the taxpayer. This can happen in many ways, including allegations brought by the Internal Revenue Service against any taxpayer.

Other instances include where a public official is accused of wrongdoing in office, often purely a political maneuver to embarrass the official. Yet he now must pay for his own defense while the harassing agency is fully supported by public monies.

A case at hand is the dispute between the governor and the New Mexico State Highway Commission majority. The attorney general is considering filing removal charges against three commissioners, and he has announced in advance the state will not pay for counsel for the commissioners, presumably even if they are exonerated and remain in office.

Such harassment, if it be that, can discourage good, qualified private citizens from serving in a public capacity, even when summoned to serve by either a governor or president. Certainly if the accused person is found guilty of libel, then his costs of defense should not be borne by the government.

In this particular case, the dispute seems to be a fight for control of the commission, and a state constitutional amendment, adopted by the people of New Mexico some 15 years ago clearly gives that authority to the highway board.

It may or may not be a bad law, but when adopted, the people were tired of politics in the running of the highway department. They voted to set it aside as an independent agency. If this authority needs changing, then the proper procedure is to repeal the constitutional amendment and return authority to the governor, not harass the board members by such maneuvers as now appear in the making.

MR. ADVERTISER
"Everybody knows me and where I am and what I sell." If you've ever felt that, read this:

- The U.S. Government reports that after one year, 20% of the population of our country moves on to another location.
- In two years the 20% figure jumps to 30%; in three years it is 38%.
- After 10 years, 66% of the population of the nation WILL HAVE MOVED!

Can any retailer really afford to sit back and feel "they know me, where I am, and just what I sell"?

THINK ABOUT IT!

PENSIONS A SORE SPOT

We continue to wonder how much longer the American people will permit public officials, both elected and employed, to maintain the position of a privileged class, all at the expense of you, the taxpayer.

It is repeated many times a year as we see Congress add to its numerous fringe benefits and salaries. The pension programs for most federal employees and state officials exceed those in private industry, and the salary scale for federal employees is well ahead of comparable jobs in private industry.

The civil servant, thanks to House leadership assistance, has been able to block efforts to put him under the Social Security retirement system, all to the advantage of the so-called privileged class.

This retreat from uniformity was led by House Speaker Tip O'Neill, Ways and Means Chairman Al Ullman and Rep. Robert Nix, chairman of the Post Office and Civil Service Committee, all Democrats.

Rep. Joseph Fisher, D-Va., whose district probably has more federal employees than any other in the nation, suddenly discovers a month ago that the biggest single issue on the minds of his constituents was how to stop Congress from forcing 2.5 million federal workers to exchange their lucrative retirement system for the lesser benefits of the financially flabby Social Security system.

Under the Civil Service pension fund, federal employees contribute seven percent of their pay, compared to the present 5.85 percent under Social Security, but they get much larger benefits. A $15,000-a-year government worker can retire after 30 years (not necessarily at age 62 or 65) at $708 a month. The same worker under Social Security will get a maximum of $400 monthly, plus allowances for dependents.

Social Security coverage for several million servants would have produced $25 billion in badly needed revenue for Social Security for the first two years. But Congress did not choose this course; instead, Congress decided the rest of us will have to pay even more to allow our civil servants the luxury of avoiding Social Security. After all, it's only tax money that underwrites those superior pensions for the privileged. —News-Bulletin, Belen

Making Up For Lost Time

This has been a big year for Paula Delfeld of Brownsville, Wisconsin. Her first book was published, she celebrated her golden wedding anniversary and the birth of her first great grandchild and took first and third place awards in a Wisconsin photojournalism contest. All of this at the age of 70.

Mrs. Delfeld's writing career started back in the early 60s when one of her daughters was thinking about taking a college course. Mother and daughter both ended up taking a creative writing course and Mrs. Delfeld has been at it ever since.

"I never even thought about writing until my eight kids grew up," Mrs. Delfeld told a writer from The National Council on the Aging.

She's made up for lost time, though, having published around 400 magazine and newspaper articles in the last 15 years, many of them illustrated with her own photographs.

"My earliest attempts at writing were pretty dumb," Mrs. Delfeld recalled. "I think I really started to grow when I became a correspondent for a newspaper in Appleton. I don't write for them anymore but I still contribute articles to a paper in Fond du Lac."

Her writing skills refined by numerous magazine and newspaper articles, Mrs. Delfeld started work on her book, "The Indian Priest," which is about Father Phillip B. Gordon of Douglas County, Wis., the first Indian in the United States to be ordained in the Catholic Church.

"It took about three years to research and write," Mrs. Delfeld said. "There's a world of difference between writing a full-length book and polishing off a thousand word article."

But write it she did, and after two publishers rejected it, the book was accepted and published by the Franciscan Herald Press. Buoyed by the success of her first book, Mrs. Delfeld is now completing her second.

Aside from her various writing projects, Mrs. Delfeld finds time for a number of writers' organizations. She also paints, collects books and heirlooms, refinishes furniture, grows plants and occasionally speaks to groups. She has also been a choir member for 25 years.

As if that weren't enough to keep her busy, Mrs. Delfeld also cares for her husband, who is homebound because of serious health problems. She also says that her own back trouble has slowed her down—one can only imagine Paula Delfeld's productivity when she's operating at 100 percent capacity.

"Some people say I'm unusually busy for a person my age," Mrs. Delfeld said, "but I don't agree. I think every senior citizen has a talent they can put to use by going to school or taking correspondence courses. With so many things to do in life, it's unusual for a person my age not to be busy."

THE BOB NEWHART SHOW airing Saturday, December 3 (check local listings for time and station) concerns an older woman who lives in the past, relishing the days she and her late husband were in show business. People think she is dotty, but in reality she has adopted this stance as her way of coping. Ultimately, she proves to have more moxie than the rest of them. The producers would like to hear your opinion of their treatment of older persons. Write to:

THE CONNECTICUT General Insurance Corp. has abolished mandatory retirement, permitting its nearly 12,000 employees to work as long as their performance is satisfactory. Robert D. Kilpatrick, president of the corporation, said that the trend toward liberalized retirement has emphasized leaving a career at earlier ages.

"However, that philosophy overlooks an important group—the employees who want to continue their careers beyond 65," Kilpatrick said. "We recognize what a valuable resource they are, and although our retirement range continues to begin at age 55, it is now extended for as long as an employee wants to continue and maintains satisfactory performance."

Yours and Ours

BY ROBERT E. HUBER
SANTA FE — The New Mexico National Guard may be ready, but it's also in trouble. Attacks from within and without come almost daily aimed mostly at recent or pending promotions to high officer ranks.

Sources within the Guard say Adj. Gen. Frank Miles has been bending Guard rules from Washington to make appointments pushed by the governor's office.

Outside critics, meanwhile, say Gov. Jerry Apodaca's recent promotion of Col. Robert L. Sands of Albuquerque to Air National Guard general is unsuitable because Sands is alleged to have disregarded equal employment opportunity laws.

Within the Guard, officers say the appointment of Capt. Joe Montoya as training officer of the Fourth Battalion in Tucumanari was not legal. They say he was not qualified when the appointment took place because he was not then a member of the National Guard.

Guard Bureau regulations, sources say, insist that appointments like Montoya's must come from the ranks, but Montoya was not a member when he was appointed.

The appointment came, according to the sources, because the governor's office insisted that more officers with Spanish names be appointed to high officer ranks.

At the same time, the American GI Forum, an organization of Spanish surnamed members, called for a retraction of the Sands appointment.

But disgruntled officers in the Guard ranks say at least eight out of 10 recent appointments have gone to Spanish named officers.

Miles, who was appointed to the adjutant post by former Gov. Bruce King, was never accepted by the Federal Recognition Board of the Army as a general. A letter from the board said Miles lacked leadership qualities.

Quick arithmetic by one New Mexico lawmaker — Sen. Aubrey Dunn of Alamogordo — shows only $35.6 million will be available for Gov. Jerry Apodaca to keep his promise to divide $45 million between taxpayers and local governments.

Those figures, Dunn says, are based on calculations by Apodaca's own Finance Department.

Apodaca last month said he wanted to provide a $30 million permanent tax cut to taxpayers and at the same time give $15 million to struggling local governments, all out of surplus.

But Dunn says only the $35.6 million surplus may be available, and even that could be in doubt.

The Finance Department, meanwhile, can't make up its mind how much surplus will be available. In less than two months, the difference in estimates has a spread of more than $40 million.

State Sen. Gladys Hansen, D-Las Cruces, is the latest woman to enter the Secretary of State race, and her entry may hurt some candidates but will probably help one.

Former Secretary of State Betty Florina and Eastsjider Shirley Hooper will be hit hardest by Hansen's entry into the race — Florina because of her past reliance on strength from the Las Cruces area, and Hooper because of her legislative contacts statewide.

Santa Fe businessman Sammy Garcia, the only male so far in the race, may get a boost from Hansen however because of his divide-and-conquer-the-ladies campaign.

Former Gov. Bruce King and fellow Democrat Lt. Gov. Bob Ferguson are acting like it's next spring instead of this fall. Both are hustling to almost daily meetings, speeches and organizational juntas in an attempt to round up all the delegate votes they can find to the Democratic Convention next spring.

King says he hopes to hold onto the delegates he now has by the time the Democratic Convention takes place. He claims 93 percent of the delegation at this point.

But Ferguson, of Artesia, has found help from some Apodaca supporters, and in spite of a late, indecisive campaign, he has managed to pick off a few delegates.

Both men are busy setting up staff structure and hope to be operating smoothly by Jan. 1.

NEW ENERGY POTENTIAL

In a time when everyone is convinced that the fossil fuel is fast running out as the major energy source for the planet, researchers are frantically striving for new energy sources.

Nuclear energy, which was thought to be the ultimate hope only a generation ago, is now generally conceived to be of limited utility in the long run. What, then, is the answer?

New Mexico may well have a couple of the answers, if ways can be found to make the energy extraction economical. They are, of course, wind and sun. There's no doubt we have both of these in abundance.

Dr. Kenneth Barnett of the Physical Science Laboratory at New Mexico State University has been working with the problem of getting energy from the wind. He feels that the greatest potential is to turn wind energy into electricity. Right now, though, wind driven generators are not economical for homes or businesses, except in isolated areas many miles from commercial electricity.

Wind generated electricity is now stored and used from storage batteries. These batteries are not particularly efficient and energy is lost. A promising alternative, Dr. Barnett says, is an electronic device which would permit the use of wind energy when the wind is up and commercial electricity when it is not.

The solar energy area is of course, the most exciting of the new prospects. According to Dr. Ahmad Shouman, Mechanical Engineer at New Mexico State University, this is the energy source which holds the greatest promise for New Mexico. Dr. Shouman had a research project funded some four years ago by the National Science Foundation to determine the feasibility of small electricity producing solar units for the home. The project, which was to have been conducted in Egypt, fell upon political hard times and Dr. Shouman was not able to finish his investigations.

He remains, nonetheless, convinced that it will be possible in the near future, at least in sun-drenched parts of the world such as New Mexico, for families and small businesses to have solar driven units that will not only heat and cool homes but also provide all the electrical needs. This, he says, would free up the electric companies to provide the power to industry and reduce need to generate large amounts of electricity for private use.

Both these scientists see hope for the future of energy in this area without reliance upon fossil fuels. —Lincoln County News, Carizozo

NO SAND ELEPHANTS

Sunday, Kay ... that's m'bride, you know ... and ye ed did, in company with Sarah Frothro and Willard Arnold ... being's it was such a beautiful morning ... he away to the White Sands ... to continue our search of long standing for the elusive sand elephants.

Whilst quaffing an ice tea ... 'twas just the thing to hit the spot as we assumed squat poses atop a sand dune ... prior to turning the squat into a plop ... we kept a constant surveillance of the shadows under the overhanging dunes ... 'cause that's where sand elephants lurk ... when they're not sand blasting one another ... to trumpet the fear of the wilderness into the quaking hearts of timid folks who know not they'll do no harm.

Of sand elephants, we spied none ... but there's hope that on our next junket we'll be successful ... 'cause we did spy a small herd of wee birds, known to all purveyors of sand elephants as feathered friends of the elusive beasties that pick sand fleas from behind the huge, floppy, ears ... 'cause sand elephants can't get a rear hoof behind an itching ear.

The appearance of the birds of prey ... so far as sand fleas are concerned ... heartened us in our search for sand elephants ... and but for the fact that our supply of ice tea ran out ... and sitting in the sweltering sun on a white sand dune is no place to be without ice tea ... we'd more than likely have sighted our quarry ... 'cause where sand fleas munching birds are ... there the sand elephants await nearby to have sand fleas plucked from behind their ponderous ears. Next time we'll take more ice tea.

WHOSE RULES, BOB BOY?

After a bit of reflection on Robert Ferguson's ... he's hoping for the Democratic nod, come convention time, to seek the governor's chair ... comments to News publisher Ken Green during a reception for Bob ... i.e., "The thing that brought about my remarks was the markers. I'm not trying to be an authority, but those markers shouldn't have have been extended. We are all governed by rules and those rules should not be broken."

Bob's researchers have been a mite lax ... 'cause, if memory serves, there are no rules against State Racing Commission members running a tab at race tracks ... if'n management considers them a good losing risk.

The pros and cons of commissioners betting the ponies ... on their own, or the track's, money isn't the point ... the point being, until there are laws against this, racing commissioners should be able to make their wagers on the nags ... if'n their chances to win are no better than any other bettor. And apparently ex-commissioner Herbert Tabet didn't have any inside information ... at least any that produced winners.

RECOGNITION AT LAST

Someone named S. Christopher Meigher III spent 13 cents of TIME money to advise me: "Because you're the kind of person we want most as a subscriber ..." and "In just an hour or two a week, (TIME) is an easy, enjoyable way for a busy, intelligent person like you to keep informed on the events and ideas that affect your life ..." and other such comments tending to bolster my ego ... the none-so-subtle pitch was made that in order to remain the intelligent person Meigher claimed I was, I couldn't get along without TIME. And who can get along without time?

The offer's clincher ... perhaps due to the intelligence Meigher boldly tells me I have ... was they'd give me 2,810 TIME covers if'n I'd subscribe ... like fast, before they run out of covers.

As to my intelligence ... and many there are that question same ... I've news for Meigher III ... an Einstein I'm not ... but I'm smart enough to know that one thing I can get along without is 2,810 TIME covers. For one thing, I don't have time enough to spare to look at them.

BRIEF BIT: People who feed their faces wind up with messy napkins ... and a happy Thanksgiving to you ... CD

Letters to the Editor

Dear editor:

I am so glad you published the letter on our Little League (football teams). I have a son who is four years old and I have decided to have nothing to do with it now or later.

I hope Mrs. Tolbert (November 17 Letter to Editor) will practice what she preaches. If we are lucky none of the boys, Captain or Ruidoso, have read the article. It was very bad taste to publish your letter. I'm sure the boys that have read this have even more ideas in their heads now. (Too bad).

Also if you know Captain is No. 1, Super Bowl or not, then you don't need to play the games, because you would always win them anyway. Right, Mrs. Tolbert? And if Ruidoso is so unsportsman like why are you fighting to play them? (Ruidoso).

Instead of the parents, coaches, holding the meeting, let the kids get together and see how they feel.

Mrs. Tolbert, stick to the bench! I'm sure your questions will be answered, but with the state your mind is in you would not take them sincerely.

I hope we don't hear anymore of this bull, it is childish. Maybe this whole thing will not affect the boys and girls. And by the time my son decides he wants to play, I pray I keep my mouth shut and wish them all a good game!

Hopefully, you will find something else to do in your spare time. Please, no more bull!

Sunland Park Hoofbeats

BYRICK SHAPIRO
SUNLAND PARK
PUBLICITY DEPARTMENT
VETERAN JOCKEY Elbert Minchey will be out of action for about six weeks due to an injury he sustained when his mount, Miss Rocket Queen, went down during the second race Saturday. Minchey was immediately sent to Providence Memorial Hospital for X-rays and it was determined that he had fractured his right collar-bone. Miss Rocket Queen broke both front legs and had to be killed.
THE TRIALS for the upcoming $18,371 Sunland Fall Quarter Horse Derby were run Saturday. Oh Tabasco set the fastest qualifying time in winning the first division. Here's the list of qualifiers: Oh Tabasco, 21.59 1/2; Jet Rockette, 21.71 1/2; Double Te, 21.73 1/2; Azure Three, 21.76 1/2; Kid's Rib, 21.86; Mr. Barlaris, 21.92; More Better, 21.93 1/2; Wee Dream, 21.94; Kinda Sudden, 21.97; Siren Song, 21.98. The winner of the derby will receive an invitation to the Champion of Champions race at Los Alamitos Racetrack in California.
INEZ SULLIVAN, who's been a mutual employe at Sunland Park since the track first opened in 1959, observed a special occasion Sunday. This remarkable lady turned 82 years old and fellow mutual workers gathered for a birthday party, complete with cake and all the trimmings. Inez, during the summers, also works in the mutual line at Ruidoso Downs.
THE FIRST BIG Q on Sunday's program attracted a wagering pool of $14,732 — a seasonal record for the Big Q connected to the first two races. Sunday's first Big Q, incidentally, produced 3,480 "live" tickets — another seasonal record.
BLACK WATER, a five-year-old gelding owned by Bert and Tillie King of Belden, will be out for the rest of the fall meet, according to trainer Ted King. After running a close second to Son Of Mark October 30, Black Water apparently fractured a bone in one of his ankles. The chip has been removed but Black Water will be unable to race until spring. The gelding had already won over $25,000 this year with a record of 4-3-0 from 11 starts.
TRAINER JAMES M. McDOWELL won his first race on a recognized track when his charge, Ruble Noon won Friday's fourth race. The 21-year-old is in his first season as a trainer. Ruble Noon, a three-year-old colt owned by Terry G. Taylor of Las Cruces, paid mutual prices of $8.00, $3.20, and $3. Joe Ober was up.
FRIDAY'S FAVORITES hit the winner's circle four times on the 10-race card while four others ran second. In Friday's first race She's A Hostess, a maiden two-year-old, won by 5 1/4 lengths as the less than even-odds favorite. That was the largest daylight win of the evening.
THE APTLY-NAMED SPEED SPOOK — who's owned by an outfit called the Speed Farms of Alex, Oklahoma — gave a good demonstration of speed in Saturday's ninth race. The colt, making his second start of his career (and his first since July 3), led all the way against maidens and finished the 5 1/2-furlong sprint six lengths in front. He paid $5.40 to win. Stephen Rodriguez was up.
HY LUCKY JAY, who won last year's Riley Allison Futurity but was subsequently disqualified, won Saturday's 5 1/2-furlong feature by a neck. The colt broke poorly but wasted no time in grabbing the lead. Hy Lucky Jay ran the sprint in 1:04 2/5 seconds, which is the second fastest time for 5 1/2 furlongs this season. Hy Lucky Jay will now be on his way to the Arizona Paradise Futurity, which will be run December 23 in Phoenix.
AFTER HAVING BEEN examined by the track veterinarian, Dr. E. R. Hinshaw, She's Always Right has been declared fit and capable of performing without medication and has been reinstated to racing.
JOCKEY DARRELL BLEVINS was fined $50 for failing to have control of his mount, Vitendriver, while leaving the starting gate during the tenth race November 13.
FAST GAS, a 10-year-old gelding and a one-time stakes giant in the southwest, won his second race of the Sunland meeting in Friday's tenth race. As the even money favorite, Fast Gas, with Victor Jaramillo at the helm, broke well and quickly grabbed the lead to stay there. He finished 3/4 lengths in front. Fast Gas is the only horse of that age to have won a race at Sunland Park this season.
THE EIGHTH RACE November 18 produced three stewards' rulings for misjudging the finish line. The three jockeys involved, who were all nabbed for a $50 fine, were John Cushing (astride Connie Ruth), Gilbert Villegas (Barrister Sib) and Tony Trujillo (Tablin).
THE DAILY BETTING average is now rocking along at $220,082, and that's a whopping gain of 14.4 percent over last year's comparable $192,227. A total of 218 races have been run so far this season, and betting-per-race stands at $19,180. At this point last year, the betting-per-race (197 races) was $16,898.
GODS PROMISE, a two-year-old gelding, set the season's second highest win payoff after winning Sunday's fourth race. With apprentice jockey Ramon Apodaca in the saddle, Gods Promise broke out of the gate first, faded to third and then, re-grabbed the lead to stay there. The gelding returned mutual prices of $82.40, $40.60, and $15.40. The seasonal win record of $124.80 was set by Nu and Crafty November 12.
THE NO. TWO No. 4 and No. six post positions all brought home six winners over the racing weekend to show the highest percentages in that category. Here's the complete seasonal breakdown: 1 — 28; 2 — 27; 3 — 28; 4 — 24; 5 — 31; 6 — 29; 7 — 19; 8 — 16; 9 — 12; 10 — 8; 11 — 0; 12 — 0.

Biting dogs major problem in state

Dogs bite one of every 100 persons in New Mexico each year, according to the best estimate of Dr. O. J. Rollag, veterinarian with the Health and Social Services Department.

Two persons have died in the state within the last 18 months as the result of dog bites, he reminds.

"These are only examples of the problem of dogs and their control," Dr. Rollag said. "The problem is becoming increasingly severe in all parts of the state. It can only be controlled by residents becoming more responsible for their pets and pets' actions."

Dr. Rollag said his estimate of the number of dog bites in New Mexico takes into account the large number of such incidents which go unreported and in which no medical attention is sought. He said the Albuquerque Animal Control Center receives reports of about 2100 dog and cat bites each year. A recent survey in Dona Ana County revealed about 600 bites take place there annually.

"I would estimate the overall dog bite rate in New Mexico ranges from 500 to 1200 bites per 100,000 population each year," he said.

"This is double the national average of 300 to 600 bites per 100,000 population."

It is not the so-called "stray" dogs which do most of the biting, Dr. Rollag said. Most is done by pets, many of which are allowed to run loose.

These accounted for the 79 percent of bite victims who returned a questionnaire sent out in the survey.

Only 14.5 percent of the reported bites were by so-called "stray" animals, according to HEW reports.

The two deaths from dog bites in the last 18 months were both caused by bites by the family's own pet. In May, 1976, a 68-year-old Albuquerque woman died of a general infection which started as the result of being bitten by her own dog. Last March, a 4-year-old Dona Ana County boy died after being attacked by the family pet, which bit the boy so badly he died within a few hours.

Dr. Rollag cited reports of the federal Department of Health, Education and Welfare stating more than one million animal bites are reported each year in this country and it is believed only 25 to 50 percent of the bites were reported. A survey of bite victims reported by HEW in 1975 revealed 22 percent were owners of the animals or lived in the same house, 31 percent were friends or neighbors and only 28 percent were strangers to the owners.

"These statistics show the necessity for pet owners to be responsible, take good care of their pets and train them well," Dr. Rollag said. "The owner should make certain their pets are vaccinated regularly against rabies and other dog diseases. And while a dog should be exercised regularly, he should not be allowed to roam free."

Dr. Rollag believes the problem of dogs and their bites is increasing because there are more dogs. He said with the increase in crimes, more people are acquiring dogs as protection for themselves and their property. And they are buying larger dogs.

"Protection may, or may not, be the result of acquiring a dog," he said. "To achieve the purpose for which a dog was obtained, he must be well trained and he must be kept at home."

Quail prospects look very good

Thanksgiving marks the opening of quail season this year. According to a Game and Fish Department population survey, hunters in the southern part of the state should take to the fields close to home. Those in the northern half should go south.

"The number of quail observed this year during our annual survey is up 80 percent over last year in the southeast and up 72 percent in the southwest," said Jim Sands, head of the department's game bird research projects. "This means an increase of 38 percent over our five-year average of observations for the southeast and a jump of 85 percent in the southwest."

In the northern part of the state, the situation is reversed, said Sands. "Populations appear to be down significantly throughout northern New Mexico. Our surveys revealed a 76 percent drop in the number of quail counted in the northeast this year, from our five-year average, and a decline of 73 percent in the northwest."

"However," Sands pointed out, "our best quail populations have always been in the southern part of the state, so it should be a great year for quail hunters."

He attributes the upsurge in bird numbers in the south to a good winter with above-average rainfall and a good hatch. "The greater the rainfall, the more food available for young quail, and the greater their survival rate. In the north, on the other hand, we had a very dry winter last year, and it's taking its toll on the quail."

Quail populations are surveyed in late summer, after the majority of the year's young have hatched. Quail season runs November 24 - January 31. Bag limit is 15 birds per day and 30 in possession. Quail hunted in this state are scaled, Gambel's bobwhite and harlequin.

Wilderness Wisdom

with Wayne Calloway

DEAR WAYNE — How good are collapsible fishing rods? LARRY L. MD.
DEAR LARRY — There are some good collapsible rods on the market, most of which push into the handle like the antenna of a portable radio.

This type rod serves a definite purpose for the traveling fisherman with limited space. It is most often used by the traveler whose primary purpose is business or something other than fishing, and packs the rod in case the opportunity presents itself.

It is doubtful that the collapsible rod will satisfy the die hard fisherman's likes as well as his favorite pole will. The fisherman who has sacrificed considerable time and expense to carry out a fishing trip will most likely make arrangements to bring his tried and true favorites along.

DEAR WAYNE — I have been told the Chesapeake Bay retriever is the best duck dog available. Is this fact? MAYNARD J., MD.

DEAR MAYNARD — If I were to say that the Chesapeake was best, I would be inundated with letters from owners of other breeds. He does, however, have many favorable qualities which make him one of the best.

The Chesapeake is courageous and rugged and able to withstand frigid weather and icy waters. They have a natural love for water. They are well suited for water because their coat is oily which resists penetration of water.

The Chesapeakes major drawback is that they are usually quite aggressive toward other dogs and will frequently fight when given a chance.

In the pure interest of a hunting dog, it would be difficult to make a better choice than the Chesapeake.

DEAR WAYNE — I am a handloader and load bullets for my .270 hunting rifle. Recently on the practice range, I found two fired cartridges with missing primers. When I attempted to reload them, the new primers would not stay in. It appeared the primer hole had enlarged. Is this due to defective brass? PHIL S. IN MONT.

DEAR PHIL — Probably not. I am surprised that you, as a handloader, do not recognize this subtle warning of high pressure.

Popped primers and enlarged primer holes are usually signs of extreme pressure and should not be taken lightly.

Chances are you are using maximum charges, or beyond, listed for your cartridge. The .270 caliber tends to carry higher breech pressures than many of the other popular cartridges. To push this pressure higher through more than recommended loads is pushing your luck.

Cut down your charges and chances are you will attain better accuracy.

DEAR WAYNE — Although I am aware of his massive size, is the Alaskan brown bear really as dangerous as he is painted to be? KATHY W., ILL.

DEAR KATHY — The Alaskan brown is extremely dangerous. While like most wild animals, they prefer to be left alone and will avoid man if possible, but when surprised at close range or in defense of their cubs, they will often fight furiously. An unarmed man is but a small obstacle to an enraged brown bear.

They are very unpredictable and can move unbelievably fast.

Face to face confrontations should be avoided at all costs.

The Silver Lining

BY DANIEL AGNEW STORM

I Wish You

A Happy Thanksgiving

Today there is a happy song of Thanksgiving in our hearts, echoing down through the years, with one happy memory after another bringing a glow of joy into our soul.

It is a wonderful thing — this uplifting and cheering spirit of thankfulness within us. Our voice is full of good will and carries a note of friendliness when we speak.

Deep from the happiness of our heart comes a smile upon our face that brings the Thanksgiving message to loved ones, friends, and to all we meet through the day. This way the spirit of Thanksgiving grows and spreads and brings its glow of love and friendship brighter and brighter in our lives.

The spirit of Thanksgiving binds us all together with a sacred bond as fellow Americans and children of God. Contentment, happiness and gratefulness fill our souls on this great day, giving us a wonderful lift to our spirits as we travel along life's-blessed way. Days, weeks and months after Thanksgiving we are cheered and encouraged by the memories of Thanksgiving day.

So rejoice on this great day; and let us all help one another to be ever more grateful to each other and to God.

I wish you a happy and blessed Thanksgiving.

Three Days of Wind

It never falls when we have a long, sunny Indian summer that sometime along in November we get a windy spell.

The west wind began gathering speed on the eighteenth evidently tired of so much of the north wind in the country. For two days and nights the west wind blew all its might, and you wondered if the wind had gotten started and forgot how to stop. Then on the third day the wind was still blowing. This was a long windy spell for November and you wondered if the weather man had gotten his seasons mixed up, and was giving us a spell of March weather.

The first day you could tell it was November because the air was full of leaves, flying in the western gale and floating down the stream. On the third day there was hardly a leaf left, and it seemed like a day in March.

Just in the middle of the third day the wind stopped as if it had run out of breath, suddenly. Then a cold wave moved in. On the night of the twentieth it got down to twenty. Then on the twenty-first, the West wind began again, warm and balmy blowing down the vale. And back into the world comes the Indian Summer weather.

What Good is Wind?

Not so long ago, wind ran the wind mills which pumped water and ground the grain — and also sailed the boats in oceans of the world. We still have windmills and a few sail boats. Yet we wonder why there are so many days of hard wind.

There is a great purpose in the wind.

It has a lot to do with our weather, the running of the sap in the trees, and in many other ways. The wind puts in a thoughtful and dreamy mood. It makes you remember and look ahead. It makes you grateful for the simple blessings of life. The voice of the wind is company out in the wilds, and makes you appreciate the roof over your head at home. There is something about the wind that strengthens friendship. The singing of the wind makes you want to sing; and your spirit wants to fly through the air on the wind.

There is one thing about wind that we need to remember. It makes us be more careful, especially of fire.

Another thing to remember is that the wind always brings rain or snow.

So cheer up. The wind is an old friend, a member of the weather family. And is a messenger of many good things.

Again, I wish you a happy and blessed Thanksgiving. I am thankful for the blessing of being able to send you these messages, and your kind thoughts and wishes, and your prayers.

Operation Game Thief making poachers pay

Three men who did some illegal hunting the last few weeks are wishing they had played the game by the rules, according to Dan Pursley, coordinator of Operation Game Thief, a Game and Fish Department law enforcement program.

Pursley said Operation Game Thief, which offers rewards to persons who report game law violations, has wrapped up three cases this week and investigations are continuing on almost 60 others.

The program is offering a $1,000 reward for information leading to the arrest of poachers who killed four elk on Mt. Taylor last weekend (Nov. 11-12), leaving most of the meat lying, said Pursley. He explained that the department has some evidence, but not enough to crack the case, and is appealing to someone who might have heard or seen something that could give them a lead. Pursley said the elk were probably spotted in the early morning, and a blue-green Chevrolet pickup, carrying a camper with a missing door, was seen in the area Saturday.

Attempting to take a deer out of season cost an Arizona man $510 in one of the three OGT cases made this week, said Pursley. Mike S. Ochoa, 21, of Clifton, Arizona, was fined $400 plus $10 court costs and $100 civil damages by Reserve Magistrate Ron Gardner, and was also given a suspended 60-day jail sentence. Caller #175 observed Ochoa shoot at and wound the deer, and contacted department officer Randy Johnson, Reserve, with the information. The caller returned his $250 reward to OGT, said Pursley.

Tony Lozano, 46, of Deming, illegally killed a javalina in the Burro Mountains last week, according to Pursley, netting himself a $300 fine handed down by Magistrate John Scholl, Silver City, and a $100 charge for civil damages. Caller #176, who saw the crime and reported it to OGT, has received a $250 reward. Department officer Billy Skaggs, Deming, investigated the case.

The third case involves a Carrizozo man, convicted of illegally killing four deer, said Pursley. Edward Vega was fined $300 and assessed $400 civil damages — $100 for each deer — by Carrizozo Magistrate Bill G. Payne. The case was initiated when caller #177 observed Vega shooting at the deer from his vehicle, and contacted State Police officers Jack Johnson, Captain, and Dale Housley, Carrizozo. They apprehended Vega and called game department officer Joel Paiford, Carrizozo, whom they assisted in the investigation. The caller has also received his $250 reward, said Pursley.

Operation Game Thief pays $250 for information leading to arrest on charges of violating big game laws and $50 for other game cases. Pursley added that in cases of particularly flagrant violations, such as the Mt. Taylor elk case, a larger reward is offered. Callers to the toll-free number, 1-800-432-1263, need not identify themselves or testify in court. In cases where the person observing a violation cannot get to a phone, Pursley said they should contact the local game department office or officer.

The Operation Game Thief reward fund is maintained entirely through donations, and reward disbursement is administered by a citizen's task force.

Social Security information

"The Social Security Administration has established a special Medicare enrollment period for CHAMPUS beneficiaries because of a recent Department of Defense ruling," Dan Mathis, social security field representative, said today.

Beginning January 1, 1978, CHAMPUS (Civilian Health and Medical Program of the Uniformed Services) no longer covers beneficiaries who are entitled to Medicare hospital insurance.

Many CHAMPUS beneficiaries entitled to Medicare hospital insurance haven't signed up for Medicare medical insurance because their CHAMPUS coverage gave them similar protection. But, when their CHAMPUS coverage ends in January, these people will be without medical insurance protection unless they sign up now for Medicare medical insurance.

The special enrollment period runs through December 31 of this year, and gives CHAMPUS beneficiaries the opportunity to sign up for Medicare medical insurance before their CHAMPUS coverage ends. Medicare medical insurance for those signing up during this period will become effective January 1.

"This special enrollment period applies only to CHAMPUS beneficiaries," Mathis said.

Mathis may be contacted at the Lincoln County Senior Citizens Center in Ruidoso Tuesdays, between the hours of 10-12.

"R" numbers...your key to proper home insulation.

Choosing home insulation and making the best possible buy can be very easy if you let the "R" numbers be your guide. The "R" numbers you see indicated on home insulation packages stand for resistance to winter heat loss or summer heat gain. Recommended "R" numbers for the southwest range from R-26 to R-30 for attic insulation. The higher the "R" number, the higher the resistance to winter heat loss or summer heat gain. Although there are many kinds of excellent home insulation in varying thicknesses, if two brands have the same "R" number they will both do the job equally well. For more information on the advantages of good home insulation and the "R" numbers, call your friends at:
