Vandals destroy quantity of mail

Vandals destroyed an inestimable number of letters by throwing a suspected incendiary bomb into a mailbox outside the main post office in Ruidoso early Saturday morning postmaster Elwood Gradine said Tuesday.

All mail placed in the box between 5 p.m., Friday and the time of the fire about 1 a.m., Saturday was destroyed.

Some letters were charred, but vaguely identifiable and the postal employees will try to contact the senders, Gradine said.

But they won't begin looking through the remains until a postal inspector checks it.

Gradine said officials suspect an incendiary bomb because "a match couldn't burn as much mail as was burned in the container."

County commission eyeing road improvement projects

Tentative plans for the improvement of three roads located within the county were unveiled at Monday's meeting of the Lincoln County Commission.

Depending on the outcome of a cooperative agreement application with the state and a grant application for federal funds, county residents may see the Fort Stanton Road paved from Devils Canyon Road to Alto Crest, the Nogal crossing paved and resurfacing of a 1.5-mile section of county road located in Carrizo Canyon from the Ruidoso city limits to the Mesquero reservation.

The Nogal crossing joins State Highways 37 and 48 between Capitan and Nogal.

Costs and design features of the three projects are pending approval of the twin applications.

A request for fifty percent matching funds from the state highway department will be made for upgrading the Carrizo Canyon section, according to County manager Les Olsen. He said the county project will complete resurfacing of Carrizo Road. The project was initiated by the Village of Ruidoso which supervised upgrading of the road to the village limits.

Initiation of the Fort Stanton and Nogal Crossing projects hinges on reception of a Safer Off-Systems grant from a federal program. Olsen said the county will apply for the grant through the State Highway Department.

According to Olsen, under the terms of the federal program, federal funds may be received on a 78/22 percent matching basis with the county paying the 22 percent share. Olsen indicated that the entire Fort Stanton Road may not be approved for funding. However he said the county would push for priority funding of the project to extend at least to the proposed airport site from Alto Crest. This section of road would include access to the new Fort Stanton landfill.

Other action Wednesday included:

— Apportionment of $800 to finance construction of an electrical coyote-proof fence to extend about thirty miles north from Hondo and about 30 miles south from Hondo. The commission has already approved an $800 grant for half the project. The additional $800 will finance the second

Jockey Club moves to buy Fortuna tracks

The Ruidoso Jockey Club Tuesday received authorization from the State Racing Commission to seek Security and Exchange Commission (SEC) approval to purchase Ruidoso Downs and Sunland Park racetracks from Fortuna Properties Corporation.

The commission granted sale date extensions of November 30, 1978, for the Jockey Club to complete the purchase of the tracks and gave Fortuna 60 days beyond March 30, 1979, to find another buyer in the event the Jockey Club doesn't purchase the facilities.

"An arrangement was reached and signed between Fortuna and the Jockey Club," Al Rosa, president of the two tracks, said Wednesday to The News, "enabling the Jockey Club to pursue fund raising activities and follow SEC procedures. Fortuna is genuinely interested in the offer made by the Jockey Club, a New Mexico organization."

Jockey Club manager Lloyd L. Davis Jr., said Wednesday to The News: "We are pleased to have reached an agreement with Fortuna, the one signed before the racing commission. The Jockey Club will close the transaction 15 days after receipt of SEC registration, which we expect well in advance of mid-November."

"Attorney Robert F. Watson of Ft. Worth, Texas, is leaving immediately for Washington, D. C., to represent the Jockey Club in SEC transactions."

Downs increases garbage rates

The Ruidoso Downs trustees Monday evening gave formal approval to raise garbage collection rates charged by the sanitation department to subscribers in and around the village. The rates will go into effect August 1, with the first billing September 1.

Action on the proposal was initiated at a June 16 meeting of the trustees in which Juanita Burke, sanitation commissioner, outlined the need for a new garbage collection truck for the village. She said the present truck is rapidly deteriorating and would not be fit to make trips to the new Fort Stanton sanitary landfill.

Her recommendation to increase sanitation rates included four alternative rate schedules. She was backed in her endeavor by the full board of trustees, which selected one of the schedules to go into effect in the village.

In passing the new rates mayor Norman Wheeler said, "If we don't get our rates up, we're going to be out of the garbage collection business."

The new rate schedule is as follows:

— In-village residential collection will be $4.50 per month; residential collection outside the village limits will be $5.50 per month.

— In-village commercial collection will be $11.50 while collection for commercial establishments located outside the village limits will be $12.50 per month.

— Restaurant collection will be $25 per month.

Other action Monday night included:

— Acceptance of the financial report for June.

— A report advising of the availability of group insurance for trustees.

— A presentation from John West, chairman of the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce Arts and Crafts committee, in which he asked for suggestions from the trustees regarding the arts and crafts fair. The trustees advanced no suggestions.

— Formal adoption of the Gross Receipts Tax ordinance which will raise gross receipts taxes paid by village merchants to 4.5 percent effective July 1, 1979.

— No action on a proposed ordinance limiting animals access to All American Park.

Dumpsters set on village streets

Sanitation employees have started placing garbage containers (dumpsters) in residential areas of the village, to speed pickup of refuse through the use of hydraulic lifts on top loading compactor trucks.

Two hundred 1 1/2 yard containers are now being placed, with another 200 scheduled later this year. The 1978-1979 fiscal year budget contains funds that will enable the service to be extended to all residential areas during 1979.

"Residents are asked to use the container closest to their home," solid waste superintendent A.T. Corona said Tuesday. "These containers are intended only for use by families, not for building material waste, as the pickup trucks are not designed to handle this type of refuse.

"Also, once the containers are placed in an area, there will be no pickup of trash bags or emptying of garbage cans as we have been doing."

Assistant village manager Frank Potter said Tuesday: "This is not an experiment. We are changing over the garbage operation to the metal containers to improve service to our residential customers."

"All builders, contractors and others with waste are expected to make use of the new sanitary landfill on the Fort Stanton road, and are responsible for hauling their own refuse."

Mule-O-Rama will continue

Lincoln County Mule-O-Rama president Bill Ward said to The News Wednesday: "All bills are paid, we don't owe anybody, and Mule-O-Rama will continue as one of the fastest growing fall attractions in our area."

Specifically, as to Mule-O-Rama's obligations, which has caused considerable controversy in recent months, Ward said:

— "All payments for the 1979 futurity, about $14,000, are on deposit in the bank."

— "All outstanding bills, about $5,000, have been paid."

Ward also said that payments for the 1979 $50,000 (estimated) futurity for three-year-old mules running 400 yards, are "coming in steadily."

A lawsuit against Mike Taylor, of Clovis, former Mule-O-Rama accountant, Ward said, "will be filed following completion of the audit of our books now underway."

The third annual Mule-O-Rama will take place over two weekends, October 6-8 and 13-15, at Western Highland Track, Ruidoso Downs.

"This year's program," Ward said, "will feature show and arena events the first weekend and concentrate on racing the second."

"The condition book is now being written and will follow past programs, except there will be much more action."

The second October weekend, Ward said, "will feature racing of the two-year-old mules that are eligible for the 1979 futurity. We want the owners of these mules to have the opportunity to race them this fall, to get some idea of how they'll perform next year."

During the 1979 Mule-O-Rama, Ward said, "We'll hold futurity trials the first weekend, and run the consolation and finals the next. With the planned $50,000 futurity purse, we expect plenty of paid up entries and a lot of fast mule racing action."

Mule-O-Rama, Ward said, "will not be asking for any local support money, from the Lodgers Tax, or any place else. The association will do what I said we would, pay our own way."

"We plan to offer local merchants the opportunity to sponsor purses for some of the races, but we're not looking for operational funds."

Ward said the association's permanent address is: Lincoln County Mule-O-Rama, Post Office Box 38, Lincoln New Mexico 88338, telephone (505) 653-4896.

DAVIS BLAMES ENGINEERS FOR PROJECT DELAYS

Mayor forces dam action

Four strongly worded recommendations, designed to speed up water and sewer development in Ruidoso, were submitted to the Ruidoso trustees Tuesday evening by Mayor Lloyd L. Davis Jr.

Davis' recommendations followed the announcement by village manager Jim Hine that he, with engineer Tom Mann Jr., Roswell, were to meet this afternoon with Soil Conservation Service (SCS) officials in Albuquerque to discuss with representatives of the United States Forest Service, State Engineer's office, United States Corps of Engineers and Farmers Home Administration, the final review of Eagle Creek Dam plans by the Portland, Oregon, SCS office.

"SCS officials," Hine said, "would not disclose, over the telephone, any details of the report we'll discuss Thursday."

The mayor then submitted these recommendations to the trustees:

— Should any problems with the design of Eagle Creek Dam, etc., arise Thursday that can't be resolved that day, can't be resolved within a two week time period, that the village terminate the dam contract with Mann Engineering, Roswell, and engage Boyle Engineering, Ruidoso, to complete the project.

— That Hine should advise all agencies

Watering ban lifted

The ban on outside watering and car washing in Ruidoso, in effect since June 15, was lifted by the Ruidoso trustees Tuesday evening.

Water superintendent Jim Goodman advised the trustees that water storage is "now sufficient" to permit normal use of water by residents.

involved with the Regional Wastewater System that the village has terminated the contract with Daniel Engineering, Alamogordo, and engaged Boyle Engineering to complete the project.

— To increase to $500, from the current $160, the water connection fee in Ruidoso. This will be the new installation fee, separate from the meter deposit fee.

— That Hine, and/or assistant village manager Frank Potter, be designated as liaison officer for all communications between engineering firms in charge of village projects and all agencies involved with present or future projects.

Davis charged that both engineering firms had not effectively dealt with all agencies involved to avoid the costly delays in beginning construction on the dam and sewer projects. He also said that monies from the new water connection fee would be used for the purchase of additional water rights. "We have a limited water supply and we'll need more as the village continues to grow."

Trustee George White moved that the mayor's recommendations be approved, with the second by trustee Ab Gunter. Both trustees voted aye, with Davis registering an aye vote for the record. Trustees Sherman Atwood and Frank Sayner were absent from the meeting.

In other business the trustees:

— Approved replats of Lot 7, Block 9, Green Meadows First Addition and Block 1, Lot 1, Flume Canyon Subdivision.

— Accepted, pending approval by the Lincoln County commissioners, replats in Cedar Creek Subdivision, on the size of lots. The subdivision is not within the village limits.

— Instructed village attorney Ron Harris to develop a specific ordinance controlling the operations of itinerant merchants.

— Were advised by Hine that no report on the Ruidoso-Ruidoso Downs sewer project would be available until the after the next meeting of the Joint Use Board.

— Accepted the report of the July 5 meeting of the Planning and Zoning Commission.

— Approved the installation of street lights on five intersections on Swallow Drive, Pinecliff.

— Ordered the preparation of an ordinance establishing a new water purchase contract between Eagle Creek Intercommunity Water Users Association and the villages of Ruidoso and Capitan.

— Were advised by Hine that 1.75 percent of the total base wages in the 1978-1979 fiscal year budget would be incorporated in the new budget for unemployment compensation benefits, pending receipt of approval of the budget from the Department of Finance and Administration (DFA). Hine said DFA notification of the new, and lower, rate was received July 5 and that the trustees could act to make it effective.

— Authorized payment of $3,315 in dues to the New Mexico Municipal League.

— Approved a concert, on request of

El Paso man shot here

An El Paso, Texas, man was shot in an incident at 5:45 p.m., Wednesday on Highway 70 near the Elks Lodge.

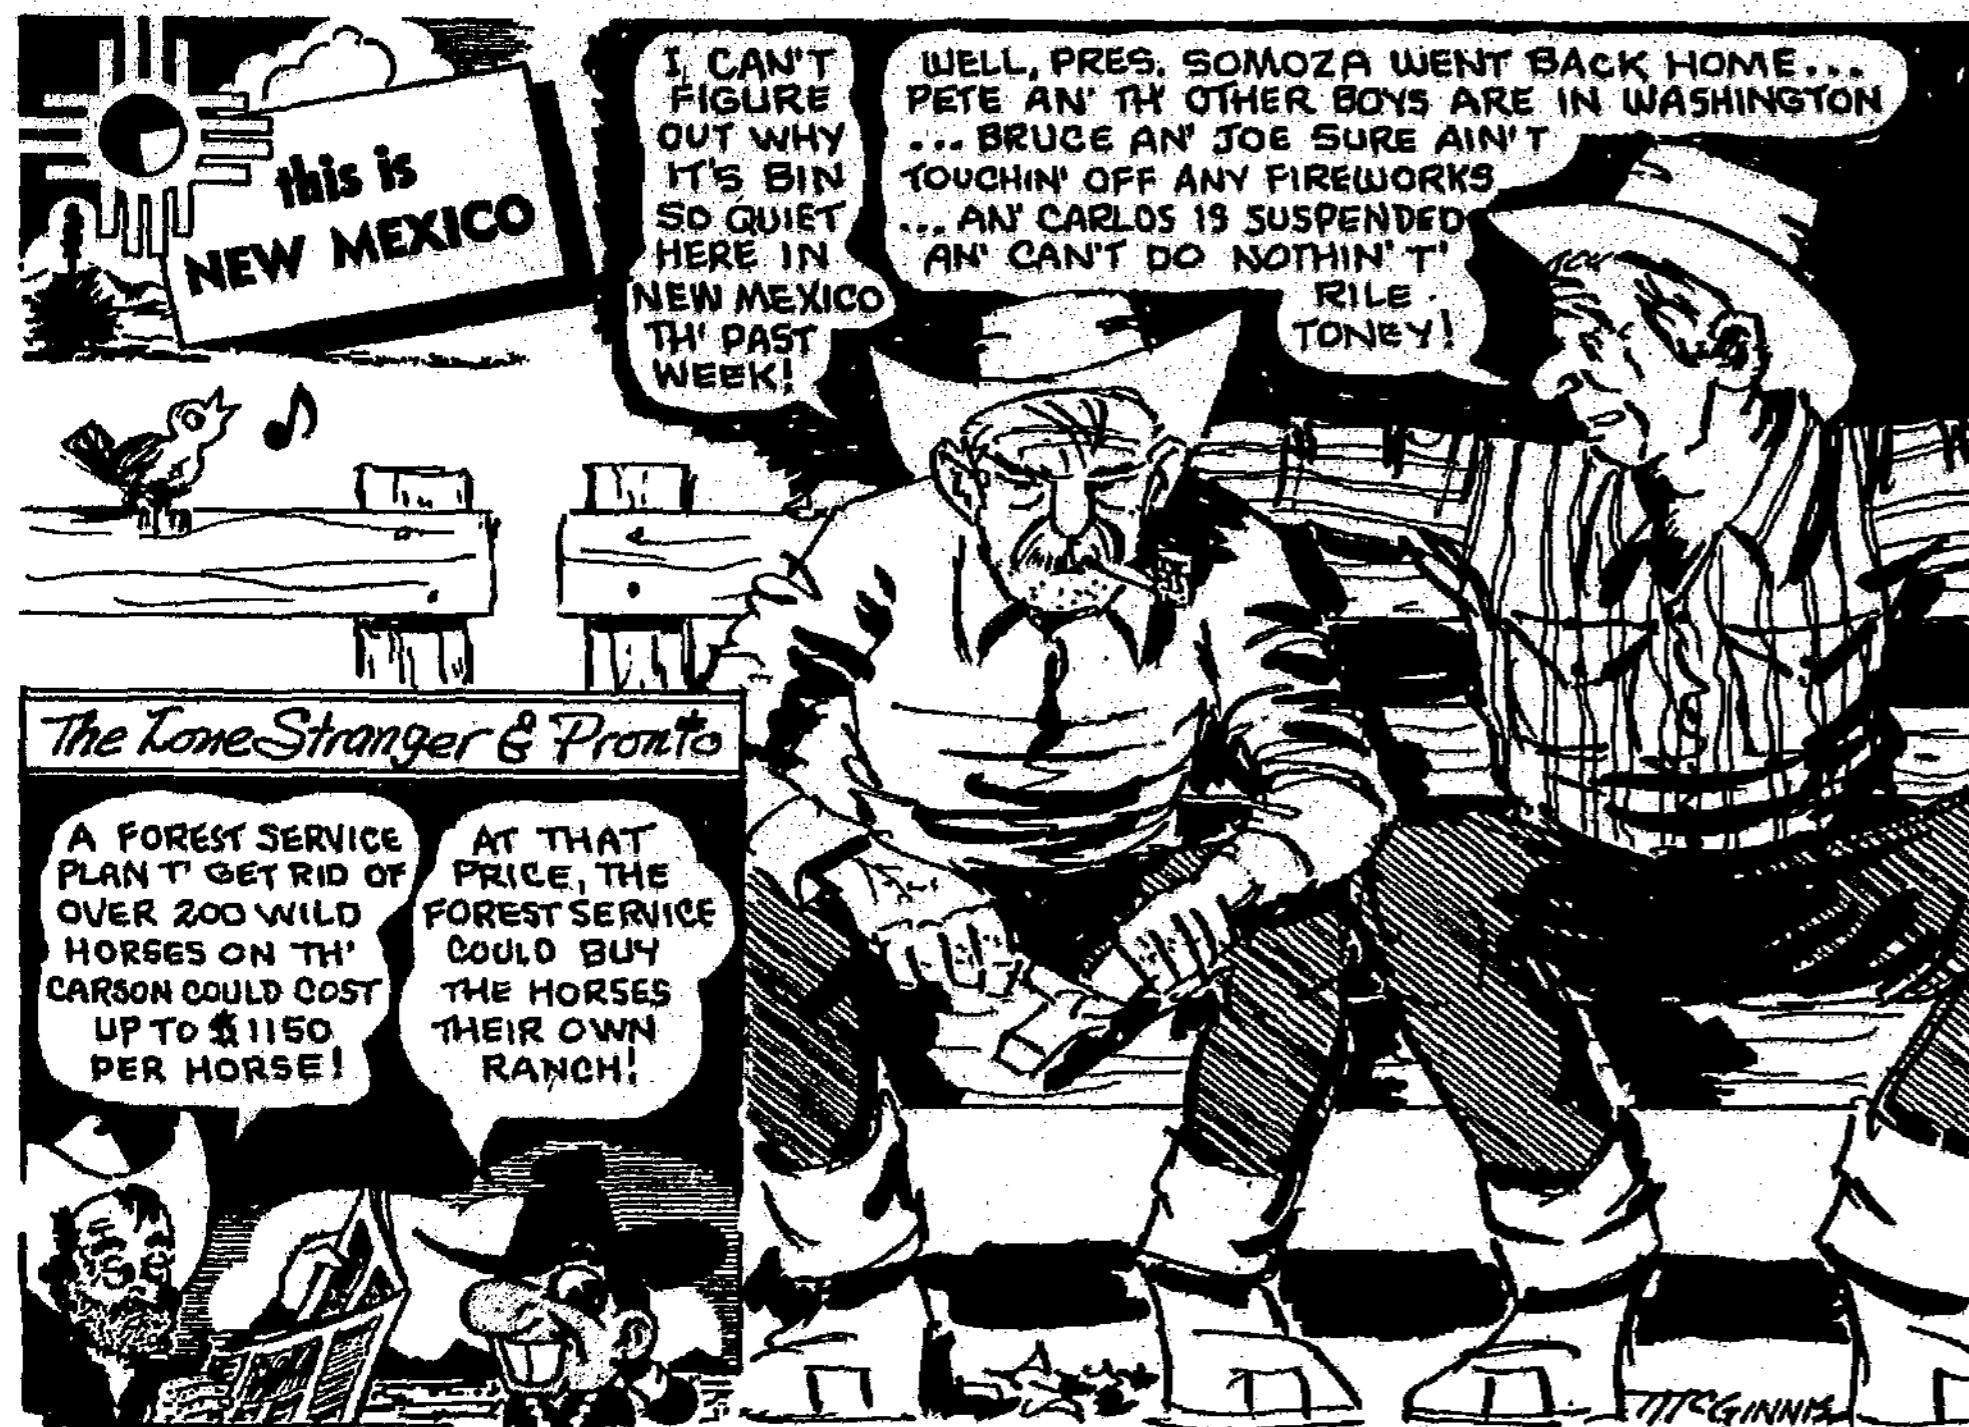

Juan Carbajal, 29, received a gunshot wound in his right leg and was transported from Ruidoso Hondo Valley Hospital to Hotel Dieu Hospital in El Paso by MAST helicopter last night.

Arrested in connection with the incident were Jose I. Martinez, 34, Armando Montoya, 22, and a 16-year-old juvenile, all from Alamogordo. The police did not announce who shot Carbajal.

Martinez and Montoya, who were incarcerated in the Ruidoso jail, appeared before Magistrate Jim Wheeler this morning on charges of aggravated battery with firearm enhancement. The juvenile, who is being held in Carrizozo, will have a detention hearing at 1 p.m., today.

"There are no specific answers now on the case," Dave Pfeffer, Criminal Investigation Division, Ruidoso Police Department, said.

OBVIOUS MISUSE of a residential garbage container is checked by solid waste superintendent A. T. Corona Tuesday morning. "These residential containers are not to be used for disposal of building waste," Corona said, "and we'll do everything possible to stop it."

Village receipts increase sharply past fiscal year

Ruidoso's past fiscal year receipts, released at Tuesday evening's trustees meeting by village manager Jim Hine, show an income of $1,805,866 for fiscal year 1977-1978, up $347,504 over the $1,458,362 received by the village in fiscal 1976-1977.

The two sharpest increases, accounting for $276,396 of the total, were $165,246 in Gross Receipts Tax, including the one half cent added by trustees' action and referendum; and $111,149 in water, sewer and garbage collections.

"The figures show," Hine said, "that our community is growing faster than most of us realize."

"Not only does our sales tax receipts prove our economy is solid and growing, but the increase in sewer permits and sewer and water connections substantiates our well known building boom.

"The most direct benefit noticeable to our village taxpayers is the street improvements underway, made possible solely by the passage of the one-quarter cent sales tax that is earmarked for the street department."

School seeks state approval of bus routes

The Ruidoso Board of Education voted Tuesday to request all bus routes in the Ruidoso School District be approved by the state under a revised State Board of Education hazardous walking condition regulation.

With the state's approval of the request, children in the district will continue to be eligible for bus transportation to school and funding will be allocated to the district.

Without the request approval the regulation calls for children attending kindergarten through sixth grade and living within a mile of their school, to walk to school; students attending seventh through ninth grade and living within a mile and a half to walk and students in high school living within two miles to walk.

The request was prompted by a memo from Bill Loshbough, director of school transportation division, the state Department of Education, detailing the criteria of the new regulation, which updates a former version.

The Ruidoso Public Schools had been designated as a hazardous walking area under the former regulation and Superintendent of Schools Pat Valliant said he believed the state would grant the request because of existing conditions in Ruidoso.

"All roads except Sudderth Drive, Mechem Drive and Highway 70 qualify (as hazardous) under a regulation stating hazards exist on mountainous roads when little or no off road walking space is available (shoulder or path) and the traffic volume exceeds 60 vehicles per hour.

"Highway 70 and Mechem Drive (qualify as hazardous under a regulation stating hazardous conditions exist if there is less than 3.5 feet of walking space outside of curbed roadway on at least one side of the roadway. Sudderth Drive qualifies as no pedestrian crossings are in existence and there are no controlled intersections," Valliant said.

In a letter, to be delivered to Loshbough by Valliant, the board said there were other factors to consider including when "the racing season starts, approximately one month before the Ruidoso Schools are dismissed for the summer, the volume of traffic is multiplied many times and during the winter months when the ski season gets underway, the volume of traffic again increases, plus icy road conditions make walking most hazardous."

The board approved appointment of Barry Nelson as head basketball coach as recommended by Valliant and high school principal Tom Hansen. Nelson replaces Thurman Sanchez, who asked to step down.

President Dave Parks told the board a suit had been filed by Irma Jean Jones, parent of John Hall, a former student who broke his leg during a physical education class.

In other business Tuesday evening, the board:

— Approved the resignation of Patsy Racher, secretary to the high school counselor.

— Approved hiring of Marge Cannella, kindergarten teacher, Jody Wynn, special education teacher at the mid school, and Doriely Stierwalt, teacher aide at the mid school.

— Approved a request to Public School Finance for a temporary cash loan of $12,014. Need for the temporary loan was brought on by the delay in sending out county tax and property assessment notices.

— Approved checks.

— Heard a report from Valliant that problems with natural gas lines in the junior high section of the high school had been remedied at a cost of $2,920 by Valley Plumbing.

The next meeting of the Ruidoso Board of Education will be at 8 p.m., August 8 in the administrative offices.

half. According to commissioner George "Lee" Straley, the additional funds will come from the Farm and Range Improvement fund which currently enjoys a $52,000 net unencumbered balance.

The commission also rejected two bids submitted by Snell Systems Incorporated and Bob Marley for construction of the fence. Olsen said the bids technically did not meet bid specifications.

According to county extension agent Ralph Dunlap, the fence is of a new design developed in Australia to keep dingoes and sheep separated.

The county will readvertise with "more specific bid specifications" Olsen said.

— Ratification of a bid award to the Valliant Company which will supply the county with tax bills and other tax forms. Valliant's low bid of $4,247 outdistanced a bid of $4,370 from the Burroughs Corporation.

— A report from county roads superintendent Guy Henley regarding obstructions on various county roads, including cattle crossing installations.

— No action regarding a cooperative resolution for upgrading Carrizo Road from the Ruidoso village limits to the Mesquero reservation. A representative of the State Highway Department was scheduled to be on hand for the commission meeting, according to Olsen. The matter was tabled pending reception of department from the engineer.

— Approval of the county treasurer's report for the months of May and June.

Glencoe flood prompts road check

A spokesman for the state highway department said Tuesday that efforts are being made to rectify any possible design errors that may have contributed to damage caused by a flood in Glencoe July 3.

The storm which dumped between 3 and 4 inches of rain on the Glencoe area in less than one hour caused the ruin of one family's automobile and loss of personal effects and deposited more than a foot of mud, silt and boulders in Saint Annes Episcopal chapel.

District Highway Engineer "Buddy" Hewitt said the Roswell district of the State Highway Department (SHD) has filed a formal request with the department's Santa Fe offices for a drainage engineer to inspect the drainage features of the area.

Hewitt added that his office also applied for an emergency purchase request which allows the retention of an environmental services organization to clear two 200 to 300 foot culverts blocked with mud and debris from the flood.

He also said Irving Slak, assistant maintenance supervisor out of Roswell, has had a crew in Glencoe helping to clean the area since the flood occurred.

"That's about all we can do right now," Hewitt said.

The flood prompted comments from several Glencoe residents that the SHD had been notified on several occasions that drainage from a section of United States Highway 70 was funneled into the low area occupied by Alma Ellis' service station, the Racher family home and the chapel.

Ellis said her yard had been covered with mud and silt because of the flood. She added that her air compressor had been ruined, her septic tank filled and her water well polluted with silt.

Besides losing their car, Patsy Racher said her family lost several irreplaceable personal belongings. She describes the affair as a horrible nightmare.

The News was unable to find record of any protests made to the SHD. Patsy Racher said Mr. and Mrs. Ellis had filed several requests to have the drainage changed.

Mrs. Ellis said she had not filed any requests herself. However, she added her husband had talked to a construction foreman when the highway was being built. She said the foreman worked for the contractor and not for SHD.

Specifically, Ellis said her husband asked the foreman about the advisability of laying a culvert under the highway to channel water from the south side into the low area.

"While they were building the road my husband tried to get them to change the drainage," Ellis said. "He told them water would come in here."

She added that when her husband was informed that the added culvert involved a field decision he did not pursue the matter.

"We just let it go," she said. "We didn't have any problems until now."

She added that her husband had died before the road was completed.

Hewitt would not say there was no design error concerning drainage.

"We don't hold ourselves blameless," he said. "We do the very best job we can. When something like this happens we try and correct it."

"We can't control the elements," he added.

A spot storm of this magnitude would probably cause flooding into that area regardless of any cost effective drainage design, he added.

"We design for normal rain fall," Hewitt said. "Sometimes we find out the hard way that we might need bigger pipe or whatever."

Hewitt indicated that controlling all storm situations would involve huge sums of money. He said that not all section of highway in the state could be designed to handle all flooding situations.

Exercise rider Jim Smith dies after track mishap

Jim Smith, 23, an exercise rider at Ruidoso Downs, died Monday afternoon following injuries suffered in a spill earlier in the day.

The tragic mishap occurred around 9 a. m., Monday as Smith was working a quarter horse down the homestretch. The horse was going at full speed when the sounds he was making startled another horse which was being ponied on the track.

The startled horse veered into the path of the oncoming horse.

Smith was thrown underneath his horse and suffered severe head injuries. He was immediately taken to Ruidoso Hondo Valley Hospital, where physicians quickly summoned a military helicopter, and Smith was flown to Sierra Medical Center in El Paso.

John Phillips, Ruidoso Downs steward for the State Racing Commission, said: "It was just a freak accident. No one is held responsible."

Smith, Ruidoso Downs, is survived by his wife and two young children. He worked mainly as an exercise rider for trainer Gerald Rich. He was also licensed as a jockey and had one out at this year's meeting, finishing third in a quarter horse race.

According to information available, Smith had worked at Ruidoso Downs as an exercise rider for the past few seasons.

Smith's death was one of few fatal injuries suffered by either jockeys or exercise riders in New Mexico racing history. Steward Phillips noted the last fatality involved jockey Richard Lujan, in a morning workout accident at Ruidoso Downs around 1961. A few years before that, Phillips recalled, an exercise rider was fatally injured at La Mesa Park.

Neither of the two horses involved in Monday's mishap appeared to be seriously injured.

Broadcasting company files for FM license

A third application for a construction permit to build a new FM radio station at Ruidoso was filed this week with the Federal Communications Commission. Previously applying for a FM permit were Sierra Blanca Broadcasting, Incorporated, (KRRR) and Triple R Broadcasting, Incorporated, both of Ruidoso.

The third firm, Ruidoso Broadcasting Company, proposes to build a FM station to operate 16 hours daily.

Douglas Stalker, a partner in the company, will be the general manager. Facilities requested are 93.5 MHz in the FM band.

Other partners include Vivian and Bill Harrell of Laredo, Texas and Ruidoso.

"Our survey of the community gave us a strong indication of the need for the new radio service," Stalker said.

He has been associated with radio stations in Georgia, Oklahoma, Illinois and has been with KVOZ in Laredo for seven years where he is now general manager.

Stalker said the station will feature contemporary country music and news and a variety of other programs.

Bonito Fire Department answers calls

Chief John Hall reports that June activities of the Bonito Fire Department include:

— One auto accident, with two persons injured.

— A grass fire in Alto Village, controlled by 15 fire fighters, including Alto Village, State and Federal Forest Service personnel.

— Responding in five minutes to a fire in a camper, enabling some of the belongings of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gregson and family, Austin, Texas, to be saved. Pastor Jim Johnson, of the Church of the Nazarene, housed the family and law enforcement officers also assisted them.

— Answering two other car fires, two small grass fires and rescuing a horse from Highway 37 with the aid of Fleming Stables.

Hall also said that John McGarr and Mike Carhato, new department members, are enrolled in the Emergency Medical Technician training course.

Lafferty.

— Approved the form of a proposed ordinance to impose an additional one quarter percent Gross Receipts Tax, effective July 1, 1979, to be submitted to the Bureau of Revenue for approval. Following state approval, the trustees can adopt the ordinance.

— Approved Resolution 78-10, authorizing Municipal Airport manager Tim Morris to apply for approximately $2,000 in grant monies from the State Aviation Department, to install a non-directional, low frequency, radio transmitter at the airport. The installation will serve as a homing device to improve navigational safety and would be installed, stalled, operated and maintained by the village.

Cattle diets determine grazing management

Ranchers who know exactly what forbes and grasses their range cattle select can develop optimal grazing and supplementing programs.

According to animal scientists with New Mexico State University's Agricultural Experiment Station, range cattle don't eat just what is growing on the range. They eat what they like. Knowing exactly what forbes and grasses cattle prefer to eat will allow ranchers to change their management programs to favor these species.

To find out exactly what cattle like to eat, range scientists Rex Pieper and Jorge Rodriguez analyzed the diets of grazing cattle. Their objective was to determine the seasonal changes in the dietary composition and selectivity of cattle grazing on desert grassland range.

The researchers conducted their study at the College Ranch in Dona Ana County. Vegetation on the pasture is dominated by black grama, mesa dropseed and red three-awn.

The researchers found that grass species constituted the major part of the diets, 64.2 percent in July, 51.0 percent in August, and 73.3 percent in November. The remainder of the diet was made up of annual broad leaf plants.

Specifically, the researchers found that mesa dropseed comprised more than 40 percent of the diet in July and August, but less than eight percent in November.

On the other hand, they found that black grama comprised less than eight percent of the summer diet, but nearly 64 percent of the November diet.

High preferences were shown for plains brome, grass, woolly paperflower, silverleaf nightshade, dalea, and bladderpod.

Cablevision planning new programming

A spokesman for Cablevision of Lincoln County said a decision on their application to the Federal Communications Commission, Washington, D. C., to add new programming, should be made by August 15.

In an effort to upgrade their service, the company applied June 16 to construct "a fixed communication satellite earth station, receive only."

The receiver would enable cablevision subscribers to view first run movies on a special channel and it would transmit television programs from larger cities.

Doctors name noted editor as keynoter

Dr. Cory SerVass, editor and publisher of the Saturday Evening Post, will be the keynote speaker July 18 at the Ruidoso Family Practice Seminar.

This is the twenty-first annual summer seminar to be sponsored by the New Mexico Association of Family Practice. More than 200 physicians from 13 states are expected for the July 17-20 sessions.

During the four days, the family practice doctors will discuss topics which relate to the health of the entire family. Topics will include acute complications of diabetes, high-risk pregnancies, skin diseases and marital counseling.

Carrizozo Chamber sets Saturday dance

The Carrizozo Chamber of Commerce has scheduled a benefit dance July 15 at the Carrizozo Country Club, with proceeds to be used for Chamber projects.

The evening includes cocktails at 7 p.m., with the dance at 9, to the music of the KIBBY All American Band. Snacks will be available and door prizes will be distributed during the evening.

Western artist Gary Gore holding one-man show here

Western artist Gary Gore will be presenting a one-man show, beginning with a 7 p.m., cocktail party July 21, at the Shop of the Blue Gem and Art Gallery. The show will continue until July 27.

A native of Hereford, Texas, Gore has shown his works extensively throughout Wyoming, Arizona, New Mexico and Texas.

Gore is a registered member of the American Academy of Fine Arts, Incorporated. His original works are registered with the academy, which, according to Gore, has accepted, for the first time, a limited edition, full-color Gore print for certification.

Gore is best known for his realistic style of art employed in his western character portraits of cowboys and Indians. He employs pastels and oils as his primary media.

His works have been accepted into the Texas Ranger Hall of Fame in Waco, Texas. He says he has spent considerable time photographing and taping subjects in Arizona and New Mexico.

"My specialty would have to be western character studies," Gore said. "An old Navajo who outwardly was overcome by the white man's force but his eyes show the spirit forever lives in the Navajo heartland."

"The aging cowboy with skin weathered and hardened by the sun and hard work, a soiled and stained (but never to be without) hat, a slight gleam in the eye saying he would have life no other way; the legendary American cowboy."

Gore's works are currently shown at Dodson Galleries at Taos, The Hanging Tree Gallery at Midland, Texas and Main Trail Gallery at Jackson, Wyoming.

Five common insects invade tropical plants

Americans spend billions of dollars on tropical foliage plants. Unfortunately, these houseplants are popular with insects, too.

In the warm and humid atmosphere necessary for plant growth, insect pests multiply and feed the year around, says John Durkin, extension entomologist at New Mexico State University.

These plants are very delicate and susceptible to injury. Therefore, plant owners need to keep a constant check on the condition of their plants.

Almost any insects may be troublesome. The most commonly encountered pests are mites, mealybugs, aphids, whiteflies and scales, Durkin says.

Mites (red spiders) are quite small but often very abundant. A magnifying glass will help you to see them. Mite feeding causes spotting and rusetting of the foliage. Small amounts of silken webbing on the underside of the leaves indicate the presence of mites.

To control mite infestation, wash the plants with a strong spray of water to dislodge the mites. This can be accomplished in the kitchen sink or shower.

Serious infestations should be controlled with a chemical. Use Kelthane or Orthene sprays according to label directions, or a pressurized spray can labeled for use on houseplants. Two treatments five to seven days apart are usually needed.

Mealybugs are soft-bodied insects coated with a white cottony covering. They resemble bits of cotton clustered under the leaves and in crevices.

They are commonly found on African violets, coleus, chrysanthemums, ferns, palms and scheffleras, Durkin says. They suck the plant sap and may eventually kill the plant.

To control mealybugs, dab them with a swab dipped in rubbing alcohol. It may be necessary to continue this treatment every four or five days for several weeks. Severely infested plants should be taken out-of-doors and sprayed with a solution of malathion or Orthene.

Aphids are small, soft-bodied insects about the size of a pinhead. They may be green, pink, yellow or black. Aphids cluster on the underside of leaves, tender shoots and flower buds.

They suck sap out of the plant, causing leaves to curl and discolor. They may eventually kill the host. They cause spots of sticky honeydew in which a black, sooty mold often grows. This gives the plant an unsightly appearance.

Infested plants may be syringed with a stream of warm water, or washed with warm, soapy water. A pressurized spray can labeled for houseplant insect control can also be used. Heavily infested plants should be taken out-of-doors and sprayed with malathion or Orthene.

Whiteflies are tiny, white, four-winged insects that cluster on the underside of the leaves. They fly up in clouds when a heavily infested plant is disturbed. The nymphal stages are on the underside of the leaves, too, but are small and difficult to detect without magnification.

Like aphids, they suck plant sap and secrete honeydew. They are difficult to control because they are resistant to many insecticides commonly used by the homeowner.

Severely infested plants should be taken outside and sprayed three to five times at three-day intervals with Orthene. Add a teaspoon of liquid dishwashing detergent per gallon of water-insecticide mixture and apply as a fine mist spray. Plants that cannot be taken outside should be treated with a pressurized spray can containing SBP-1382 (Resmethrin) or nicotine. Use exactly as directed on the label, Durkin says.

Scale insects live on the stems and underside of the leaves. They are tiny and difficult to spot until the infestation is severe. They may resemble flakes of dandruff or small blisters on the plant. They, too, suck sap, secrete honeydew and can kill the host plant.

To control scales, gently scrub the leaves with warm, soapy water. Heavy infestations should be treated outdoors with spray mixtures of either malathion or Orthene. Infested plants can be dipped, pot and all, into a bucket of diluted insecticide. Larger plants should be sprayed until completely covered. If the pests persist, you should destroy the plant to prevent spreading of the insects to neighboring plants.

As always, when using any pesticide, follow the instructions on the label.

Carrizozo Woman's Club sets annual Market Place

The third annual People's Market Place, sponsored by the Carrizozo Woman's Club, is scheduled for August 20, from 11 a.m.-4 p.m., in Spider Park, Carrizozo.

"We wish to invite all artisans, craftsmen and musicians in the area to participate," club member Sue Stearns said.

Groups, individuals and organizations intending to participate in the Market Place are asked to register immediately with Stearns, Post Office Box 98, Nogal, New Mexico 88341 or with Mary Spencer, Carrizozo, 88301, telephone 648-2875.

Stearns said a limited number of booths will be available.

Patricia Reaves enjoyed entering pageant

Although Miss Ruidoso, Patricia Reaves, didn't place at the Miss New Mexico pageant last weekend, she felt it was a very worthwhile experience.

"I had a wonderful time. It was one of the best experiences I've ever had," she said.

Reaves said a Miss Ruidoso pageant will be held next year, and is urging interested girls to consider competing.

Reaves also said she hopes to enter the contest again in a few years.

The winner of the pageant was Jennifer Leigh Schubert, 21, Hobbs.

Lincoln County War Centennial observance

The Lincoln County Historical Society has planned a day of activities July 15 to commemorate the Lincoln County War Centennial.

At 10 a.m., members of the society and interested persons will meet at the Glencoe turnoff on Highway 70 and proceed to the site of the slaying of William Tunstall, a victim of the war.

At the site, they will erect a marker and have a bring-your-own picnic lunch.

After the lunch, the group will travel to Lincoln for a presentation on "The Nature of Violence" by historian Peter Hendrickson, an expert on the Lincoln County War.

Off the Book Shelf

by

Herb Seckler

Edmund Bentley in something he titled "Biography for Beginners," wrote:

The art of Biography is different from Geography. Geography is about maps but Biography is about Chaps.

I do not know if Necah Stewart Furman was familiar with Bentley's little verse, but if so, it is fortunate that in writing the biography of Walter Prescott Webb she ignored the lesson. It was Geography that Webb saw as the determining factor in the development of the West, and it was a major theme in his writings.

Webb was a product of the Southwest. Born on a farm in Texas in 1888, he began life at the edge of the frontier where he participated in and observed a civilization in transition from the horse and wagon to missiles and polluted skies. From his own observations and experience he saw how the arid plains impacted on the first settlers. It led him to explain in his writings how these settlers adapted to the land.

Webb's writings frequently involved him in controversy. His ideas often stirred up some juices in those unwilling to have their comfortable assumptions challenged. His article, "The American West: Perpetual Mirage" which appeared in a 1957 issue of Harpers, brought forth an outcry from Western Congressmen and Chamber of Commerce. He was accused of defaming the West.

Webb had argued that the development of the West was a result of its deficiencies and that the West had developed a special talent "for making the most of little." He pointed out how cowboys were invariably portrayed as golden knights and western artists, were compared to Michelangelo. Webb, who genuinely loved the desert, found it necessary to express his regrets for offending anyone and to explain that his purpose was "to help them understand their country and themselves."

Furman was well aware of the pitfalls of being a "first biographer" particularly in dealing with a rather complex man. One friend described Webb as "a man first, a writer second, a historian third, and an academic last and incidentally."

Herself an historian and a product of the University of Texas, Furman does a fine job explaining Webb's historical ideas. She also uses insight in portraying Webb the man and does not hesitate to paint in the wars. She reveals his prejudices stemming from his regional orientation, a calculating mind and an ambitious nature, but underlying all, she is sympathetic and even reverent.

The author uses anecdotes and statements to tell us something about the man. For example, because of his difficulties in gaining academic eminence he had great sympathy for graduate students. He said of his own doctorate, "I did not earn it. I have sat on many doctoral committees, always spiritually very near the cornered candidate, and I have never sat on one where I could have passed the examination."

Webb was more at ease in the presence of ranch hands than academics and he could cuss and swear so as to make a mule skinner blush. He was also fond of eating in out of way places, one being the Chicken Shack on the old Austin-Dallas Highway, where he said, "there weren't any god-damned music boxes to beat his ears off."

Webb would have liked that in his biography. It is a fine portrait of an interesting man and it helps us to understand Webb who did much to explain how we got where we are.

I-n-s-i-d-e the Outdoors

by Gary Dollahon

As campers, picknickers, and sportsmen utilize their leisure time to take to the outdoors and enjoy the beauty of nature they are aware of, but have a tendency to ignore, the presence of lowly pests.

Unfortunately, these pests, collectively referred to as bugs, cannot be controlled with pest strips, fly-swatters, insect repellents or bug sprays.

Truth of the matter is, there is just no simple solution to controlling these bugs.

Perhaps you have guessed by now that the term "bug" in this case refers to those pests that scatter litter across the face of our earth. That is, these bugs are litterbugs.

Perhaps out of laziness, or simple disrespect for beauty, the litterbug deposits billions of tons of litter every year along roadsides, lakesides, streambanks and campgrounds across the United States.

New Mexico is no exception to the litterbug's devastation. In fact, recent figures released by the state reveal that at any given moment more than 19 million pieces of garbage are scattered around New Mexico. Of course, this is just a fraction of the 500,000 tons of refuse New Mexicans produce each year.

Most of New Mexico's garbage is neatly disposed of in the dozens of landfills throughout the state. But, when you are dealing with a billion pounds of trash a year, it is obvious that the chances of all of it getting to a landfill are slim.

The state's litter problem is becoming a very serious matter, and state, county, and city clean-up efforts are costly ones with practically negligible results.

An experiment conducted by the state last summer consisted of workers collecting all the litter along a mile of I-40. On July 27, these workers picked up 10,000 pieces of trash. One week later on the same mile stretch, 8,500 pieces of litter were gathered by workers.

In trying to come up with the real cause of the state's litter problem, it might be of interest to note the constituents found by New Mexico's Environmental Improvement Division's litter study.

Sixty nine percent of all litter was found to be beverage related, that is, bottles, cans, plastic containers, cartons and "pop top" tabs. In some areas these items accounted for 98 percent of the total litter.

Paper products contributed about 10 percent of the trash, while other bottles and cans made up about 4 percent. The remaining 14 percent was classified in the miscellaneous category.

Recognizing that a litter problem exists in the "Land of Enchantment" is easy, but finding a solution to such a problem is difficult.

Littering is against the law. However, as it is difficult to relate any logic to the littering demonstrated by the earth's most intelligent creatures, it is just as difficult to enforce the littering law.

New Mexico Game and Fish officers have the authority to enforce litter laws in outdoor related activities such as hunting, fishing, and camping and they issue a number of citations for this violation each year.

Nevertheless, just as litter cleanup is no solution to the problem, neither is law enforcement. Instead, it is going to take individual pride to defeat the litter problem.

Until the public is informed and educated in litter control, litter cleanup and law enforcement efforts will have to continue their small roles in the solution to New Mexico's litter problem.

Your cooperation and support for anti-litter controls in New Mexico are greatly needed. Step on a litterbug today.

SLAP YOUR OWN BRAND ON SOME RUIDOSO LAND
IN ALTO NORTH we have listed a double-wide mobile with several added rooms, some of which are not quite finished giving a buyer a chance to display talent with tools. Two lots are a part of this package — flat lots with good trees and soil that in the past has produced fantastic garden vegetables. A sale is being sought only because of the owner's ill health.
ON THE TOP of Ponderosa is a very small house with a view that makes you think you can step from the deck onto Sierra Blanca and be half way to the top. Two lots are a part of this package, on pavement and where the house sits the land is level. The house is small and so is the price.

SEEKING SUGGESTIONS concerning the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce sponsored Professional Crafts Show, John West, right, chairman for the production, went before the Ruidoso Downs Board of Trustees Monday night. He promised the trustees the July 29-30 event would be the best show ever. He said it was the first all-juried show and would be held indoors in an attempt to alleviate parking and over crowding problems. West also said he could see no reason why the Ruidoso area could not develop into the best art center in the country. "We've got an awful lot of talent involved and the perfect setting for a major art show," he said. Noting that the show would be held in Ruidoso Downs at the Chaparral Convention Center, he asked the trustees for any suggestions designed to help insure the show's success. Mayor Norman Wheeler said the trustees would take the matter under advisement. Village attorney Richard Parsons is pictured, center, trustee Juanita Burke, left. (Ruidoso News Photo)

LIGHTNING LACED the skies over Ruidoso Tuesday night bringing false hopes of measurable amounts of rain to valley residents. Despite the rumbling and light show, only trace amounts of rain were recorded. However the national weather service said Ruidoso residents will have a good chance of receiving measureable amounts of moisture through the remainder of the week. (Ruidoso News Photos by Walt Green and Vic Hogsett)

BY CAROL W. CAGLE

SANTA FE — Albuquerque's summertime "Downtown Saturday Night" festivities, now provoking political controversy in the state's largest city, also mark the emergence of Mayor David Rusk as a strong contender for higher office.

The festivities are being held in the central business district each Saturday night during the summer, featuring live music, food booths and local entertainment.

And thousands of residents have been showing up each weekend, mixing on the streets closed off to vehicular traffic and demonstrating the popular appeal of the idea of restoring a sense of community to the sprawling Albuquerque metropolis.

The greater Albuquerque area has grown dramatically during the past 15 or 20 years. Freeways, high shopping center complexes, burgeoning residential suburbs and new financial and industrial centers have marked the development of the 300,000-person city.

But along the way, the city became even more segmented and "balkanized" into a collection of communities and neighborhoods where there was little intermingling and sense of social sharing.

Albuquerque became a force in state politics. It contributed a 21,000-vote margin to the gubernatorial campaign of Republican Dave Cargo in 1968, enabling the maverick challengers to overcome the strength of Democrat Gene Lusk in the outlying areas.

It contributed margins to Republican candidates for Congress, enabling the GOP to take three-to-one control over a congressional delegation that had featured all four Democrats for years.

The city itself contributed its residents as candidates. Manuel Lujan Jr., an Albuquerque insurance man who had never run for political office before, topped 10-year congressional Democrat Tom Morris in 1968 and has been in Washington since.

Pete Domenici, a Republican with appeal in the Democratic precincts of the Valley as well as the suburban Heights, vaulted from city commission chairman to the U.S. Senate.

Although the city's elections are supposedly non-partisan, the two major parties are actively involved in the municipal scene — especially since the mayor-council system replaced the old city commission plan.

Harry Kinney, a close ally of Domenici, was Rusk's predecessor.

And Rusk himself, who was elected last year, is a political figure with long-time Democratic ties on the national and state level.

Rusk is from the Georgia family of Dean Rusk, who was secretary of state during the Democratic administration of Lyndon Johnson. He came to Albuquerque as a specialist in labor and manpower programs after having served in the United States Labor Department in Washington. During 1976, he was active in Georgian Jimmy Carter's successful drive toward the presidency.

Rusk went to Santa Fe as an Albuquerque representative in the State Legislature, serving as a Democrat and a prominent member of the ruling House faction of Democrats headed by Speaker Walter Martinez. He became a committee chairman and got good media coverage in the Albuquerque press as a chief sponsor of Democratic Governor Jerry Apodaca's reorganization package.

Now, Rusk has encountered Republican opposition to various aspects of his crowd-pleasing "Downtown Saturday Night" festivities — including his idea for the city to buy a liquor license for lease to downtown business establishments. But the opposition also shows the GOP is taking Rusk seriously.

ON THE MINT JULEP

Much has been written about the mint julep ... it being, devotees claim, ambrosia ... then there was Irvin S. Cobb ... he claimed, unless the libation was quaffed with respect, there was the omnipresent danger of having the face of your pocket watch crack.

Basically, the mint julep contains fresh mint, cracked or shaved ice, sugar, water and bourbon ... with some wags saying the more of the latter the better.

But it took R. B. Harwell to describe it fully: "The julep is part ceremony, tradition and regional nostalgia, part flavor, taste and aroma; and only by definition liquor, simply syrup, mint and ice." You must tend to discount his account ... seems he was partial to this particular beverage.

Again it was Cobb who insisted the mint be crushed with a wooden pestle and that the concoction be quaffed from a pewter tankard. Said Cobb: "Who has not tasted one has lived in vain." But don't sweat it ... Cobb was well known for pithy statements ... some more true than others.

Then there was Henry Watterson, editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal for 50 years ... that's a newspaper in Kentucky ... who, it is claimed, spoke thusly of the julep: "Pluck the mint gently from its bed, just as the dew of evening is about to form on it. Select the choicest sprigs only, but do not rinse them. Prepare the simple syrup and measure out a half-tumbler of whiskey — then throw away the rest of the stuff and drink the whiskey straight."

Should you now have worked up a thirst ... relax ... you, too, can whomp up a mint julep. Pour two jiggers of bourbon, two teaspoons of water, one teaspoon of powdered sugar, 4 sprigs of mint into a frosted glass and muddle ... There's no danger of your becoming muddled at this juncture ... Next, fill the glass with shaved ice ... stir gently ... add a mint sprig or two ... nothing like a bit of garnish ... get two straws and sip.

And ... after two or three refills, you'll understand why so many thousands of horse race fans who attend the Kentucky Derby never see it.

ABOUT THAT WATERING

The question came up Monday afternoon, as to whether it's OK to water your posies ... grass ... or wash the family jalop ... using village water ... a habit purchasers of municipal water regularly indulge in.

Frank Potter ... he's village purchasing agent and sort of ramrods the village complaint department ... said, "We don't want people watering ... not until we get some rain on the mountain."

So ... it's appear ... if you insist on watering before the village says it's OK ... you're pulling a no-no ... something no law abiding citizen with a healthy conscience would do ... besides seeing as the grass don't grow nearly as fast if it ain't watered ... you're doing your bit to conserve energy ... yours. Besides, think of the saving of wear and tear on your lawn mower ... to say nothing of liniment for your aching back. And, in the case of comments from your helpmate, a deaf ear won't hurt.

Besides ... the rains'll come ... unless there's a long dry spell ... which is sort of unlikely ... 'cause everyone around here knows it rains all summer ... no question about it ... except ... when'll it start?

And remember ... listening to a little bellyaching at home is much cheaper than listening to the judge.

COURTEOUS DRIVERS

Seems there's numerous drivers on Sudderth who are observing the familiar sign: "Courtesy Pays" ... 'cause in crossing the street I've noticed drivers slowing down, or stopping, to let pedestrians cross ... and a goodly number of the cars have Texas license plates. Yup, seems there's a bunch of good old boys from the Lone Star State, looking out after us New Mexicans.

BRIEF BIT: If it weren't for the little problems that keep fouling things up, really be thrown for a loss when the big ones come along ... CD

editorial

In 19 years of conducting grazing rotation experiments on Fort Stanton's 20,000 acres, the College of Agriculture, NMSU, has reached the conclusion they need 19 years more to reach any conclusions. In addition, NMSU experimenters are going to fight turning over 1,700 acres of Fort Stanton land to the proposed regional airport, which would provide an immediate economic impact on our area. Besides, we think 18,300 acres provides a lot of room to rotate grazing experiments, seeing as there's no assurance the experimenters will learn anything beneficial to agriculture in the next 19 years.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

The article in last Thursday's paper concerning the flood in Glencoe on July 3 is excellent. The pictures really show the unbelievable amount of mud and debris that were deposited there by the water that raged down the highway.

However, there are two other chapters to the story that I would like for the public and the State Highway Department to be aware of.

The Texaco service station that is next to the church and owned by Alma Ellis was not left untouched by the flood. This lady has complained several times to the Highway Department about the water that ran into her business front every time it rained. She knew, along with many others, that the drainage system off the highway was inadequate. The water that ran down and off the highway came two inches from going into her store. It ruined her air compressor, filled her septic tank, ran into her water well, and did some damage to the under skirting on her home. This doesn't even take into account the silt and debris left behind in her driveway and yard. Also I must mention the emotional trauma she is going through after going through the flood in 1965 also. It will take months for her place to be back to normal.

The third chapter concerns myself and my children who live behind the service station and church. Not knowing where the water was coming from, and never dreaming it was being funneled into my yard from the highway, our only thought was to get away from the canyon behind us. In doing so, my car that I've had about two months was flooded by the water. We abandoned it in hip deep, muddy, swirling water and tried to save a few other possessions, because we thought our home was going to be washed away. When we got past the church, we encountered water that was so swift and deep that it knocked my sixteen year old son and myself off our feet, causing us to drop and lose what we were trying to save.

The things were baby books and family picture albums that can never be replaced. My insurance adjuster says my car is a total loss. Cars can always be replaced, but the keepsakes, winter clothes, books, and Christmas decorations we had saved over the years and stored in the building behind the church cannot be replaced so easily. The water level reached as high as 4 feet in that building. Another eight or ten inches and it would have been in my home. It will be a long, long while before my children and I will be able to forget the horrible nightmare and panic we went through that day. And we will never be able to relax when it rains until that faulty drain is repaired satisfactorily enough to carry rain water through and into Eagle Creek as it is supposed to do. It is a shame that people have to suffer before something is done to correct a situation that should have been corrected years ago.

Dear editor:

We have addressed this letter to you, but in essence, we are making an appeal to all fellow pet owners and animal lovers of Ruidoso.

On Sunday, July 2, we "lost" our dog. Bandy is a miniature white poodle wearing a green leather collar. He is very friendly with all people, and especially likes children. Unlike some poodles, he is not the least bit finicky. He eats anything from the hard, unappealing dry dog food to "Trix" cereal, with or without milk. He enjoys people snacks, especially tortilla chips with a little salt. When "lost", Bandy was in dire need of a bath; he has grown to love the freedom of tromping around the mountains unescorted by myself or my husband. As a matter of fact, he has a fairly large cocklebur mangled in the hair of his right ear.

Also enjoying the serene environment of living in the "cool country", we felt secure in allowing Bandy outdoors by himself. We feel within our hearts that Bandy, being the cute and lovable dog that he is, has been picked up by someone. We have contacted the correct authorities, have run radio spots broadcasting his disappearance, and we have placed a lost ad in the local newspaper.

We are offering a reward for his return to us, with no questions asked. Since this was a holiday weekend and there were several visitors in town, it may be difficult for us to obtain any information on his whereabouts.

If anybody has seen a dog fitting this description, please contact us. We are not insinuating anything by this letter; we merely want to find our dog and have him home with us.

Dear Editor: (July 3)

Where is the chief law enforcement officer of Lincoln County on this second biggest holiday of the year for Lincoln County and the biggest holiday of the year for Capitan? It is my understanding that he is taking an untimely vacation in Colorado or is he discreetly shirking duty as chief law enforcement officer of the county?

Are the taxpayers aware that Sheriff Elliott is seemingly doing what he does best — avoiding any problems or confrontations which might arise in the line of duty or might be politically advantageous?

I find it almost unbelievable that Sheriff Elliott would make himself unavailable on a holiday weekend of this magnitude, in light of past occurrences on major holidays. Will he be conveniently on vacation, in the hospital or out of town on Labor Day weekend, if and when outlaw motorcycle gangs or other unfortunate circumstances besiege us?

I sincerely hope your readers will consider the credibility of the above as one citizen to another, not as a political slam from one candidate to another.

Jockey/Trainer of the week

BY KAREN HALLORAN
GENTLEMEN'S FEATURE, recent winner of the Kansas Futurity kept alive her chances for the Triple Crown in the initial trials for the upcoming $440,000 (est.) Rainbow Futurity. The filly, owned by Gerold and Darlene Blue of Amarillo, Texas, coursed to an easy 2½ length win Thursday with (J. C. Wiley aboard) to claim a berth in this Friday's final elimination trials.

H. C. Werner Jr., the trainer of Gentlemen's Feature, sent out the most qualifiers, since eight of his charges finished either first or second. H. Don Farris was next in line with seven qualifiers.

JOCKEY JACKIE MARTIN had a busy time during the trials with 29 mounts. But his chores paid off handsomely since 10 of his mounts qualified (more than any other rider), including Flying Passmen who's earned over $60,000 so far. Martin turned in six third place finishes as well.

SIX TE, who set the top qualifying time in the 350 yard Kansas Futurity trials at 18.11½ seconds looked in top form once again in Friday's 12th race. Although the gelding qualified simply by winning his trial, he also turned in the fastest time of the 38 heats in 20.12 seconds for the 400 yards. Moon Lark was right behind with a brisk time of 20.13 in Thursday's 10th race.

WITH 19 TRIALS both Thursday and Friday, jockeys with plenty of mounts were well worn by the end of the day. But they were at least spared the lengthy trek from the winner's circle to the jockey room after each race. Rather they rode in two gold carts, furnished by Sonny Edwards to give them a brief respite between mounts.

THREE OH'S was the top sire among the trial qualifiers. Eleven of his offspring made it into this Friday's eliminations. They include Oh Jet Van (with earnings of $53,795), Oh Shiney ($14,366), Kepas Oh ($11,412), Oh Honi Oh ($19,511), Tiffy Oh ($8,835), Sure Oh ($2,506), Dot Dot Dot Dash ($2,457), Third Act ($1,264), Oh Three High ($1,572), Oh Oh Lady Oh ($2,963) and Copasetti ($818).

OTHER TRIAL NOTES: The biggest longshot was Easy Capri Lil in the 16th division who returned $40.80 to backers... All but two of the favorites finished in the money during the trial competition and, of course, 24 qualified for next week's trials

... Miss Royal Cynthia and the largest margin of victory, winning by 43/4 lengths in the first division.

THE HIGHEST WIN PAYOFF of the weekend resulted from a 400 yard allowance bout Sunday. Mr. Tiny Dial (No. 6), completely overlooked by the fans at $1-1, competed against stiff caliber veterans Jet Commanche and Jazzy Hank, and breezed by for a 3/4 length margin and a $104.80 return.

FROM KID TO LUENE brought the sale topping price of $13,200 at the Ruidoso Downs Summer Sale Saturday. Consigned by Albert Anderson, the son of stakes winner Crazy Kid and Tulene was sold to the Western Slope Air Drilling Company of Odessa, Texas.

LONGSHOT BETTORS must have skipped a heartbeat after the second race Sunday when Easter Boy (25-1) became the object of an inquiry. The maiden colt, with Joe Reyes at the helm, poured on the speed in the 5½ furlong sprint and was well in front at the wire. But the stewards took his number down and placed him second for interfering with No. 10, Crazy Jane (7-2), several times in the stretch. And the longshot ended up with sizeable returns of $19.40 and $12.20 to place and show.

TWO ALL-TIME LOWS turned up in the mutual payouts during Friday's trials. The combination of Dickey's Fireman and Barnstormer (6/10) in the Daily Double proved to be so popular it returned only $3.60. Then the overwhelming choice of the The First Edition and Budget Balancer (8/3) in the sixth race brought the exacta payoff down to a slim $4.40.

THE ONLY DEADHEAT for place in the trials turned up in Thursday's fifth trial, when Flicka Bie and Dot Dot Dot Dash were deadlocked at the wire. A shake was held to decide which horse would get a berth in this week's trials, but the stewards later ruled both horses would compete since the shake procedure was not outlined in the original nomination blank.

Three riders deadlocked with five wins each over the racing weekend at Ruidoso Downs. But Jackie Martin dominated in seconds and thirds and thus took home the Jockey-of-the-Week title.

Martin had a full schedule from the four days of racing. He took 35 trips to the post and had most of his success in the Rainbow Futurity trials Thursday and Friday.

The young helmsman used his expertise to gain berths in this week's final elimination trials for 10 of his mounts, including Moon Lark who turned in the fastest time of 20.13 seconds in Thursday's round.

Martin's complete weekend tally was five wins, seven seconds and nine thirds. His efforts moved his position in the overall standings from sixth to fourth for a current record of 28-19-17 from 162 starts for a 18.0 win percentage.

W. R. Hunt turned in a successful performance over the weekend as well, notching five wins, two seconds and two thirds. Two of his victories came on relative longshots as well. He scored with both Moon Mania ($28.20) and Lucks Chideclight ($12.60) Friday. They'll move on to this week's set of Rainbow trials.

Hunt remains in the final slot in the overall standings with a 20-11-9 score from 118 starts for a 18.9 win percentage.

J. C. Wiley, the third candidate for the title, finished up the four days with five wins, three seconds and two thirds. That moved him to seventh in the standings with a 22-17-14 record from 130 starts for a 16.9 win percentage.

H. C. Werner Jr. maintained his undisputed control of the trainer standings and notched the Trainer-of-the-Week honor. His weekly tally topped out at seven wins, three seconds and three thirds.

Werner, who's been at the head of the standings since the beginning of the season, now holds that spot with an overall record of 27-19-15 from 145 starts for an impressive 18.6 win percentage.

His closest competitors in the weekly battle were Leo Craghead, Don Farris and Johnie Goodman. Each had three victories.

Turf action resumed today with a 1:30 p.m., starting time for the 12 race card. Friday, final elimination trials for the $440,000 (est.) Rainbow Futurity take the spotlight with the finale of that event coming up July 30.

Three-year-old and older quarter horses take to the turf Saturday in the World's Championship Classic trials at 440 yards. First post reverts to 1 p.m., Sunday with the $10,000-added Billy The Kid Handicap, a seven furlong test for three-year-olds and up, slated as the feature.

THE EVANGELISTS

Recent newspaper reports about huge secret funds maintained by several famous evangelists, controversy over how the money is being spent, and who spends it, have dimmed the image of fundamentalist religion among some.

Letters to editors in various sections of the nation reflect a second look many are now also taking at lesser fundamentalist preachers, many self-appointed and many relatively uneducated.

Though one never criticizes sincere religious beliefs, it must be admitted — and should be faced — that many make a living in the preaching business. And all the relatively ignorant, uneducated, self-appointed fire and brimstone artists obviously aren't divinely inspired. Some preach a narrowminded, sitting-in-judgment doctrine, with much emotionalism — with fear one of the major ingredients.

It would be desirable if meaningful educational standards, plus other screening, could be required of all claiming to speak for the Lord. But this is an impossibility. As a result, some very primitive thinkers, and some money-makers, are taking advantage of many good, ignorant people, using religion as their road to power, importance and money.

Most of the exploiters of provincial ignorance, but not all, are found in rural, so-called backwoods communities. It is often amazing the hold various religious, faith and cult leaders obtain over good, and otherwise sensible, citizens, just as it's amazing what religion and conversion can sometimes achieve in human beings.

Perhaps today, at last, more and more are beginning to look hard and ask some questions about religious showmen, and the qualifications of many know-all-the-answers, home-made fundamentalists — and their finances. Santa Rosa News

Summer Sale hits $211,200 in auction of 64 thoroughbreds

A total of 64 head passed under the gavel Saturday night at the Ruidoso Downs Summer Sale of Thoroughbred Yearlings, bringing in total receipts of $211,200. The average price was $3,300.

The top price of $13,200 was paid by W. J. Carlile of Western Slopes Drilling Company of Odessa, Texas.

Carlile's winning bid went for the bay filly, From Kid To Luene. She's by the California speed star, Crazy Kid, out of Toulouene.

Carlile also took home two other head, Macho Native (a chestnut filly by Native out of Anuwar) for $5,500, and an unnamed filly by Wage Raise out of Ho Chi's Girl for $2,500. The total sale outlay by Carlile was $21,200.

The top consignor was Albert W. Anderson of Irvine, California. Anderson sent seven head through the auction arena, and the group (including one repurchase) brought $47,700. Included among the contingent was the sale topper, From Kid To Luene.

Sales manager Richard Thompson expressed his thorough satisfaction with the venue, saying he was especially pleased by the acceptance of the new format. The Summer Sale, starting with the current edition was limited to thoroughbred yearlings.

"It was an excellent debut of the new format, and we feel next year's edition will reflect considerable growth," he said. Thompson forecasts a two night session in 1979, with about 150 head passing under the gavel.

Approximately 1,500 buyers were on hand Saturday night, and the bidding, right from the start, went at a lively pace.

Here are the other members of the Anderson consignment, and the prices they brought:

— An unnamed colt by Crazy Kid out of Global Hi, purchased by Jay Childers of Borger, Texas, for $4,100.

— An unnamed colt by Crazy Kid out of Hill of Glory, also purchased by Childers, for $2,700.

— An unnamed filly by Crazy Kid out of John the Battle, purchased by James N. Hooks, of Ama, Texas, for $5,600.

— What A Kid (Crazy Kid-Melissa), purchased by L. Cox of Austin, Texas, for $10,000.

— Unnamed colt by Bicker-Thank Heavenly, purchased by agent Rex Skiatook for $4,500.

The venue also had two other $10,000 purchases. Lloyd Allen of Oklahoma City, Oklahoma, paid that price for an unnamed colt by Scout Leader out of Binalady. The colt was consigned by Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Jones, Rancho Jonata of Buellton, California, got a $10,000 check for their unnamed filly by Gentlemen's Game out of Bottle Baby. The buyer was Cletus Jones of Wichita Falls, Texas.

The Silver Lining

BY DANIEL AGNEW STORM

The World Is Turning Green

This is being written on the tenth of July, and the glorious summer days grow brighter with new wild flowers and new green in fields and trees.

The rains came true to the tradition, around the fourth of July, and the world has responded by wearing a mantle of every shade of green which grows more colorful every day. As your eye travels over the mountain landscape, the fields, hills valleys and mountains — shining in the sun send a little of their green color into the very air itself so that the world is all a-glow. The White Mountain is like a giant emerald outlined against the blue sky, with a little crown of clouds on top.

Today, in the early afternoon, just one third of the way through July, the world is dreaming in a lull between the rains. All across the sky to the west, a row of billowy clouds extend from horizon to horizon, ever so gradually moving this way — down the vale.

The flag on the new flag pole is floating, flying the colors of our beloved nation, flashing and rippling in the East Wind. The blue birds visiting their drinking fountain near the large apricot trees are delighted with the flag. The Western blue bird wears the American colors with blue coat and wings, and red vest on a white front.

Wild Flowers

Just the last few days here at the place, there is a golden flower that grows in clusters on plants about a foot high. They bloom always in July, and you can tell by these flowers the kind of summer season we are going to have. In just a day these little plants have sprung into bloom shining their pure golden colors in the bright sunny air. This is a sign of a good growing year. The earth has received good moisture and will be given even more.

Along the way the wild snap dragons in their purple blue, and the vermillion of the Indian Paint brushes cheer you as you pass by.

The good snow of winter and the recent rains on the mountain are bringing out all the favorite wild flowers in their full glory. Some of these are The Scotch Blue Bell, The Wild Iris (sometimes called blue flags), the wild rose, English buttercup, Wild Wall flowers, Blue Flax, and Forget-Me-Not.

Gardens and Orchards Thriving

The welcome rains have brought new life into the vegetable gardens and orchards all through the mountain land. At the lower reaches of the fruit belts apricots are ripe and peaches are ripening fast. Apples are beginning to show color.

July is the month of rapid growth for the gardens fields and orchards, especially if the rains are abundant. We are already off to a good beginning in the July growing season. And there is every promise that this will be one of the greenest July's we have ever seen.

We are all grateful to all who helped to make the fourth of July season a safe and happy time. This great time of celebration brings home to us the many things for which we have to be ever so thankful. Now I see the rain approaching from the west. Let us all Thank God for our blessings.

Catching fish a matter of timing

While it's not true that 10 percent of the fishermen catch 90 percent of the fish, it's obvious that some anglers catch far more fish than do most others.

Interviewing expert anglers within and outside the Department of Game and Fish to find out why, the agency found that following a few simple rules will help almost anybody catch more fish.

Keying fishing activity and technique to the fishes' habits is probably the single most important secret the experts revealed and, because basic fish activity patterns are predictable, can quickly be applied by beginner and experts alike, the agency said.

Also important are bait and its presentation, weather and even phases of the moon, but timing is the most important first step.

During the hot days of summer, mid-day fishing is almost fruitless for most people — yet convenience brings many people out then, leaving them sunburned but fishless. Why is being on the water at first light and again after sundown so important?

The department explains that water temperatures on trout streams, for instance, are usually in the low to mid 50s at dawn, shoot up into the mid 70s in the heat of the day, and fall again when shadows cross the water. Trout are more active at the lower temperatures and, because hatches of many of the insects they feed upon occur in late afternoon, are more likely to be feeding during those times of day.

Lakes stratify during the summertime — form into layers of varying temperature and other conditions — somewhat like a three-layer cake, the biologists have found. In this case, the frosting is in the middle layer. Most fish will be found in the so-called temperature transition zone, the center layer. In most of the smaller trout lakes, the layer most fish will be in starts about eight feet below surface and ends at about 15 to 18 feet in depth. Examples are Fenton, Jackson, Snow, Maloya and Quemado lakes. Larger trout lakes — Santa Cruz, Abiquiu, Heron, El Vado, Cochiti — have temperature transition zones generally beginning at about 15-20 feet extending to 40.

Here again, say the experts, early morning and late afternoon fishing will find the fish spread through the mid and upper zones, feeding more actively than they do during daytime. Fishing at night by lantern light is extremely productive, and many have found that casting large, dark wooly worms or streamers over the lakes at night brings hard strikes.

The warm water lakes also stratify, and warm water fish will seek the temperature transition zone's preferred oxygen levels during mid day — and will also have sought shelter around rocks, under docks, submerged trees, and the like, avoiding the bright sunlight that penetrates these lakes to considerable depths. These fish respond much the same as trout do, feeding early in the morning and late in the evening. Fishing for bass and walleye after dark, with a trotline set out in a cove for catfish, can put protein on the table.

Generally, fishing is better right after a rainstorm and during the dark phase of the moon, whether compared to night or daytime fishing in the full moon.

Using natural baits — worms, grasshoppers, crickets, crayfish, minnows, nymphs, hellgrammites — or flies and lures simulating them is almost always going to produce more fish than using prepared baits. Clear plastic casting bubbles, fished off a spinning rod and baited with wet flies or wooly worms, can make a fly fisherman out of almost anyone.

Off-road vehicle use regulations proposed

Proposed regulations which will set the ground rules for operators of off-road vehicles (ORV) on public lands managed by the Bureau of Land Management were published in the Federal Register, Friday, July 7, 1978. ORV's include dune buggies, motorcycles, snowmobiles and other cross-country vehicles.

The proposed rules would designate the public lands as one of three categories for ORV use — open, limited or closed. About 13 million acres are managed by the BLM in New Mexico and all of this acreage would be designated in one of the three categories.

Open areas would provide for ORV operation subject only to regulations and vehicle standards for that particular area.

A limited designation would indicate an area where the use of ORV's would be subject to limitations such as numbers or types of vehicles allowed, times of use or other restrictions.

The closed category would prohibit ORV use in that particular area.

The public has 60 days in which to submit comments on the proposal. Comments received will be considered in the final regulations.

The type of designation for a specific area will depend on the character of the land, protection of resources, safety to the public and conflicting uses of the area. Wilderness or primitive areas managed by the BLM would be closed to ORV use.

Off-road vehicle use related to commercial activities such as geophysical exploration, mineral prospecting or livestock management would be allowed in closed or limited areas through provisions in leases or permits. For example authorization to use an ORV by a grazing allottee to aid in fence repair or water well maintenance could be made a part of a grazing permit.

Persons interested in the proposal are invited to comment on the proposed rules by writing to the Director (120), Bureau of Land Management, Washington, D.C., 20240, prior to September 7, 1978.

When it rains...

... it pours.

This month's electric bill was probably higher than normal... and there are several reasons for this unusual increase. The first rate increase since 1969 was reflected in this month's billing. At the same time that the rate increase went into effect, rising temperatures caused air conditioning requirements to push up home operating costs. Add to these the fact that our supplier experienced a breakdown in a coal fired generating unit, making it necessary to turn to more expensive alternate fuel. Any one of these factors can cause higher electric bills... but when they all happen at once, it's expensive for all of us. We have tips available on holding down home operating costs through wise home energy management. If you're interested, give us a call.
