P&Z DECISION UPHELD ON 2-1 VOTE Trustees veto condo unit

The Ruidoso trustees Tuesday evening, on separate two-to-one votes, denied an appeals hearing request by Forest Development Company (FDC) to:

- Change zoning in a portion of Sleepy Hollow Subdivision, in the Upper Canyon, from R-1 (single family dwellings) to R-2 (multiple family dwellings); and

- Annexation of acreage contiguous to the subdivision, to provide 44.9 acres for the proposed R-2 development.

FDC's appeal action stemmed from a September 6 denial of the zoning change by the Planning and Zoning Commission (P&Z) on a five-to-four vote. Voting no on the change were commissioners George Shoemaker, Earlene Phillips, Stanley J. French, Martin Rose and Alden Deyo; with commissioners Betty Patton, Rex Skellett, Mike Mulholland and Denny Loverin voting yes.

Other P&Z action affecting FDC September 6 included passage of a recommendation to the (Ruidoso) trustees for the annexation of about 39 acres of land in the Sleepy Hollow Subdivision, to be zoned R-1.

Prior to the presentation of FDC's development plans by engineer Tim Collins, village attorney Ron Harris advised the trustees that their action must be directed to the question of the effect the zoning change would have on the "public health, safety, morality or general welfare (of the community) and that it not be discriminatory."

Proponents of the project addressing the trustees included Collins, attorney Lee Huckstep, Howard and Kay Caster and

In other action the trustees:

- Tabled bids received for 4x4-inch by 8-foot street marker posts pending receiving bids for 6x6-inch by 8-foot posts for the same purpose.

- Accepted the low bid of Rick's Albuquerque, $2,752.

Mayor Lloyd L. Davis Jr., advised the trustees that the 39 acres FDC is seeking to have annexed to the village is designated as "O" (open area not suited for development) on the Land Use Map of the Commission, to be effective January 1, firming changing zoning in Lot 1, Block 4, Hamilton Terrace from R-1 to R-2.

- At the final hearing, adopted Ordinance 78-16 annexing 80.03 acres, known as Mountain View Subdivision.

- Authorized ambulance service director Ross Schwarz to apply for rate increases through the state Corporation

The Ruidoso Downs trustees Monday evening were in unanimous accord that the village must take drastic measures to solve the problems caused by unlicensed dogs running loose.

"It's costing us," mayor Norman Wheeler said, "from $15 to $17 per dog to have it captured, kept in the pound three days and destroyed. At the rate we're going, we'll go broke just paying to have dogs caught."

None of the trustees, including mayor Wheeler, had any complaints against the Animal Control Officer. "He's doing a good job," Wheeler said, "it's just that when he catches 20 dogs, 40 come into town to take their place."

After discussing contacting federal, state and county agencies for help with the dog problem, even to hiring a "government hunter", the trustees decided to set a date, between Thanksgiving and Christmas, for a community meeting to determine a course of action to be followed to control stray dogs.

"All dogs must have tags, be vaccinated, and so on," Wheeler said, "but when you see an untagged dog on someone's porch, no one claims it. We've got to find a means to control these dogs without going broke." Prior to the open meeting, Wheeler said, "Anyone with any ideas, legal ideas, that is, on solving our problem is invited to discuss those ideas with me, any trustee or at any council meeting."

Action on Resolution 78-17, on uncollectible water accounts, resulted in the village writing off accounts four years old. "I recommend that we raise our deposit

The next board of education meeting will fees for home rental units and leased businesses," Wheeler said. "There's nothing we can do if anyone runs up a $50 water bill over two months, then skips town."

The trustees authorized village attorney Dick Parsons to investigate the possibilities of increasing the cash deposit to make water connections on rental housing and leased businesses and to report his findings at the November 27 council meeting.

The trustees reviewed the pre-

The planned improvements include construction of a 60 by 100 foot basketball court, including lights and fencing at $12,440; a softball field, with lights, fencing and sprinkler system, $9,040; storage building and concession stand, $8,000; playground equipment, $1,320 and a group picnic shelter with slab, tables and grill, $3,500.

Approval of the grant application is pending, with the federal portion to be $17,000, the state's share $8,500, with the balance provided by in kind contributions from the village.

In other action, the trustees:

- Were advised that the Planning and Zoning Commission will meet at 7 p.m., November 20 in Municipal Hall, to discuss subdivision problems.

- Set 7 p.m., as the starting time for village trustees to meet during the winter, effective November 27.

- Were advised by the state Bureau of Revenue that no petitions had been filed protesting the addition of one-half percent to the Gross Receipts Tax effective July 1, 1979 and that the new rate would be effective on that date.

- Adopted Resolution 78-15, the annual inventory on outdated equipment.

- Granted occupation licenses to Unique Creations and to J.C.'s Place, with the latter to present his Gross Recipts Tax number to village clerk Virginia Spall before the occupation license would be issued.

Bible newspaper representative and recording artist Ron Griffith will perform Friday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Timothy Wadley for the Inspiration Corporation's Friday Fellowship. The performance, which is open to the public, begins at 7 p.m.

A renewed interest in home care, one of agencies in 1973 to 17 licensed agencies today according to the New Mexico Department of Health and Environment; the State agency responsible for licensing home health agencies in New Mexico.

These agencies, all providing a range of health care services to people in their own homes, are located in Albuquerque, Santa Fe, Espanola, Los Alamos, Farmington. Taos, Las Vegas, Alamogordo, Ruidoso, Roswell, Las Cruces, Deming, Hobbs, Carlsbad and Artesia. In addition, plans are underway for home care in Raton, Clovis and Truth or Consequences.

Home health care agencies provide such services as nursing care, home health aide, speech therapy and physical therapy to patients in their own homes under the direction of the patient's own physician. These services are carefully planned and coordinated with the goal of minimizing the effects of illness or disability or to restore health.

Home Health Services of Lincoln County started in October, 1976 with a federal seed money grant. The telephone number is 257-5189.

Home health care agencies provide appropriate services needed by the individual patient and family through the use of employed staff and contractural arrangements,

Referrals are made by the patient's physician for patients leaving the hospital still needing nursing or other services or, for some patients, home health care can be provided in lieu of a hospital stay. Referrals are also made by family members or other community agencies, however, the patient's physician is consulted prior to beginning home care services.

In the 1976 session of the New Mexico legislature, a law was passed requiring all New Mexico health insurance carriers to offer a full home health care benefit to their subscribers. In addition, Medicare and Medicaid pay for home health services through a certified agency for those eligible. Some agencies have grants or United Way funding to help pay for ser-

Attracting beginning skiers key to new ski area's success

BY JOHN NEYLAND Sports Writer

The resort isn't nearly the size of Sierra Blanca. And it doesn't captivate the viewer the way Sierra Blanca does.

Nor are its hills as steep or as long. It doesn't stretch into the sky the way Sierra Blanca does. In fact, compared to the 45 minute drive through the sky to Sierra Blanca, the drive to the new Ruidoso Ski Area barely gets the engine warm.

But don't sell the new Ruidoso Ski Area short. Its manager, Ralph Rush doesn't. Rush thinks that the very success of the new area may depend on its dissimilarities from Sierra Blanca.

Whereas Sierra Blanca appeals to all skiers, and mainly those of better than average ability, Rush thinks the new area will catch the eye of the beginner. And for more than one reason.

"It takes less money and time to learn than at Sierra Blanca," Rush said. "Beginners don't want to drive an extra one hour and a half to learn to ski."

Rush thinks another benefit of the new area is the day care center for all kids under six years of age.

Another big plus indirectly will be Sierra Blanca, Rush believes. Since Sierra Blanca attracts such a large crowd, they aren't able to handle all of them, Therefore, Rush said, the new area will get the runoff.

"Sierra Blanca is so overcrowded," he said. "They turn away hundreds a week, thousands a month. We will be able to fill to our capacity with the overflow."

Especially if from that overflow, the majority are beginners. Rush doesn't expect to attract many advanced skiers.

"We'll get a small percentage of expert skiers," he said. "They might take some race classes.''

But for the most part, the new area will be catering to the beginning skiers if Rush's hunch is right. But won't the new area run out of beginners to teach? Rush thinks that is an impossibility.

"We have the whole state of Texas," he said. "There is a never ending supply of beginners. There will be more as the year progresses.

"There is a non-exhaustible supply of

"That's going to be a real big plus," he beginners from Texas. If we were in Wyoming or some remote place like that we might have a problem. But there is a never ending supply of Texans wanting to learn how to ski.

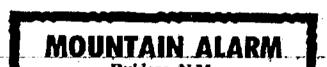

> About the only shortcoming the new resort may have, according to Rush, is the lack of lodging.

"That really bothers us," he said.

Other than that, he said, he believes the first year of operation will go smoothly. He isn't even concerned with the low altitude and the possibility of a lack of snow. The Ruidoso area can make its own.

To make its own, however, the temperature must drop below 30 degrees. If that doesn't happen, the resort could be in financial trouble. But Rush claimed he wasn't expecting to open until Christmas and close in February.

"There will never be a time that we can't open from that time to that time," he said. "Any more time than that just means bonus skiing."

Ruidoso C.B. Club Doings

BY THE ZOOKEEPER

With winter very close upon us, the procedures for helping skiers and traffic on the highways was discussed at the Monday night meeting at K-Bobs. We also reviewed some of the problems that we had to cope with in assisting traffic on the ski run road, and discussed better ways to handle these situations.

As you know the Handicapped Skiers are in need of a portable storage building in which to store their equipment. This needs to be on skids and about 12X16. Anyone that can assist in any way, with a building, material, or talent and time, contact Diana Grover, or any C.B. Club member. :- We have been asked about the three 2s on the club emblem, some of the new members do not know about them.

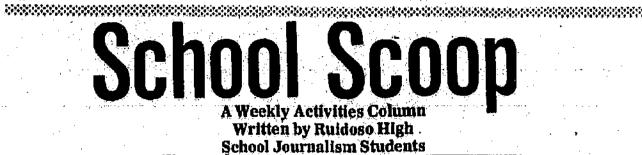

Our motto is: 2 serve Our community, our county, and anyone who needs help or assistance via C.B.

2 Party To enjoy our club, our friends, and also a common bond, and interest in C.B.

2 Procrastinate This needs no explanation, as this always follows the above on C.B.

It was brought to the attention of all, that the Ruidoso C.B. Club is nearing the end of their second year. On January 15 we will have our club birthday party. This may seem early to announce this but, it is time to start thinking about next year, who will be our officers, what will be our goals, and when will be our parties.

If you were at the meeting Monday everyone was glad to see you, but if you were not able to come, we missed you. See you soon.

The humanities class, taught by Raymona McAdams, took a field trip last weekend to Amarillo, Texas. They went to the Amarillo Art Center to see a display of jewelry by Peter Carl Faberge', court jeweler for the Russian Czars during the 1800's. Returning from Amarillo they visited the Panhandle Plains Historical museum at West Texas State University and were able to see the inside of a full scale pioneer town.

Students on the humanities trip were: Chris Carson, Lisa Delhotel, Andrea Haddix, Lynn Holly, Toni Scarbrough," Susan Travis, Shirley Martin and Gena Ratliff. Sponsors for the trip were; McAdams, Mrs. Bill Ratliff and Mrs. Wesley Scarbrough.

Recently the Alpine Shifters, Ruidoso High School Bicycle Club, and their sponsor Galen Farrington participated in a Bicycle Fiesta in Socorro. Team members and their scores were; Mike Fannin, two seconds and one third; Greg Collier, three seconds, one third, three fourths, two fifths, and one seventh; and Galen Farrington took seven firsts. The Shifters won team competition and Farrington was second in overall competition. Greg was the only one to compete in all twelve events. Each race was run by age groups. This weekend the Shifters will be making a 40 mile trip to Capitan and back.

Thursday, November 9, the RHS Pride Band traveled to Roswell to participate in the SENMMEA Marching Contest. The Band came back with a II rating, which is considered excellent.

Saturday, the eleventh, the band

The United States History classes held a contest last week, Tuesday through Thursday. Each class was divided into three groups, President, Legislative, and Judicial branches and were to draw a graph of the power they have over the other two branches. The class that did the all around best job got to kick back on Friday. Second period won with fourth period close behind taking first runner up. third period was second runner up with fifth period being disqualified for being turned in late. Bruce Hancock, teacher of the class, said, "I thought a tremendous job was done by all of the classes and I couldn't have chosen a winner without the help of other faculty members."

The Christmas Holidays will begin December 21 and continue through January 1.

Girls basketball practice began Monday. 35 girls turned out for the meeting. They will have practice everyday after school. band and the concert season starts with preparations for a Christmas concert.

A former student was enrolled this week, she is Sherry Hirsch, a sophomore from Lakeside, Arizona.

A free morning assembly will be held Tuesday, November 21. It will feature Lloyd Sumner, a bicyclist, who will give a presentation on his four years experiences

Capitol Comment by Ernie Mills

Santa Fe Keeping the record straight: therk back in our recent columns and you'll see where this newsman predicted the Gubernatorial contest between Democrat Bruce King and Republican Joe Skeen "could end up with as few as four thousand votes separating the victor from the loser - in fact the final margin could be under two thousand votes."

Of course, the results won't be final until the State Canvassing Board gets together to certify the accuracy of the county-bycounty returns ... and, it may be questionable for awhile what will be the outcome of the GOP contention their party lost several thousand votes because of voting machine problems in the Bernalillo heights.

As this column was being written, the figures from the Secretary of State's Office showed King with 174,180 votes compared to 169,093 for his opponent Skeen.

That makes a difference of 5,087 and if that holds up, we'll be 1,087 votes off our prediction.

Our predictions also showed Demo Attorney General Toney Anaya much closer to his Republican Pete Domenici in the contest for the U.S. Senate - and as far back as the convention of the New Mexico Press Association, Albuquerque Pete confided he thought our prediction was much more accurate than some of the highly-publicized polls.

The polls were giving Domenici something like sixty percent of those polled to thirty percent for Anaya with ten percent undecided.

Our crystal ball showed Domenici with fifty-five percent and Anaya forty-five percent, with chances good Tough Toney would close the gap.

Late figures from the Secretary of State showed Anaya with forty-six percent of the vote compared to fifty-four percent for Domenici, which has to be considered something of a victory for Anaya considering the size of Domenici's war chest and the shoe-string campaign Anaya had to operate.

The chuckle is that not only do the newsmen check the bumper stickers, but the candidates campaign forces as well. But the campaign people wrote down the license plate numbers and they know who the owners are !!!

New Mexico politics — it's wonderful. Booze Boss-Chatter: Round Housers are wondering about the future of longtime state liquor director Carlos Jaramillo. Carlos has been booze boss since 1971 when he was appointed by then Governor Bruce King,

Some speculators say Jaramillo's differences with the Organized Crime Prevention Commission make him a Controversial figure that must be evaluated twice in his present job.

They expect Jaramillo to transfer out of his liquor post — into another government area - possibly law enforcement. Some birdies say New Mexico Retail Association Director Bob Gold would make a strong liquor director.

Gold chaired a blue ribbon citizen panel which studied New Mexico's liquor laws in-depth and held statewide public hearings on possible changes in those laws.

The birdles also say that Gold, a former broadcaster, has the personality and public image needed to make the red hot agency go from the public relations viewpoint.

But Gold has been with the Retailers for a number of years and the insiders figure it would take a lot to pull Robert from his present Santa Fe duties.

Coalitions Forming: Birdies say coalitions of support are forming within at least one agency of the state government - hoping to convince Governor-elect King that he should appoint a certain person as cabinet secretary.

But while support is gaining for retention or replacement of certain key people in the government, those involved should make no mistake - Big Bruce will make his own decisions!

Insiders said before King and his family left on a post election vacation, one key staffer asked the chlef executive-elect what should be done with the numerous verbal and written requests for employment within the new administration.

HIGH PRICED HEAT

As fall approaches, more and more folks are giving thought to alternate or supplemental sources of heat for the coming cold months. The fireplace builders have been covered up with work for the past two years, right on through the summer months. In many cases the high cost of space heating has given us an excuse to indulge in some enjoyable diversions. The $3,000 fireplace which formerly was thought of as a wild extravagance is suddenly being weekend of the 1978 general election found thought of as a "long-term investment." Fireplaces, however, with very few exceptions, won't stand up to a test when you put the pencil to them. Most are very inefficient heat converters and dispersing One volunteer, taking information systems. Usually at least half of the heat packets from house to house, dropped off goes right up the chimney. In many cases The designers are coming out with some new "firebox" style fireplaces where the combustion area is enclosed and the heat loss reduced; also manufacturers offer blower systems that draw air around the fireplace and exhaust it into the house for better dispersal of the heat being generated. However, the open fireplace that crackles, pops, gives off dancing light and smells good is still the preferred design. It has a warm, romantic tone that enclosed systems are not going to be able to match, and in the final analysis, that's what makes the conventional fireplace so appealing. Anyone owning a fireplace has observed that different kinds of wood have different energy values. The harder woods such as ash and oak burn slower and seem to give off more heat. Pine, pinon and other softer woods burn much more quickly, but they are preferred because of their aromatic smoke. Again, aesthetics over economics. On costs, however, we are confident that wood is going to be running way behind in energy efficiency. Unless you can walk out the back door and cut and gather your own — which we flatlanders can't do — wood is still a luxury heating item. Depending on how hard you can bargain. a cord of good, seasoned pinon will cost you from $60 to $100. Again, we need to know the BTU value, but we will hazard a guess that it's very low when you figure it. out. For about the same price you can buy a ton of coal. We do know what the BTU value of coal is. It's usually a little more than 10,000 BTU's. We burn coal in our ski truck, the Moose, because it's so much more efficient than wood. We are quite sure a ton of coal will put out more heat than a cord of wood - and of course it doesn't take near the space. But even if you were burning 10,000-BTU coal at $100 a ton, gas would be cheaper, believe it or not, even at today's high gas prices. If you as a homeowner, figure your gas cost at $4 a thousand cubic feet, you are buying about 1,000 BTU's. At this rate that would mean you would buy 25,000 BTU's for $100. Thus the gas would still cost less than half what the coal would cost on an energy efficiency basis, not to mention the cleanliness, flexibility and convenience that is inherent with burning

Republican Manuel Lujan's resounding victory over Democrat Robert Hawk for a Congressional seat, just might have Democrats Governor Jerry Apodaca and Attorney General Toney Anaya looking at their hole cards in the political poker game determining their future bids to be public servants — with both discovering they were dealt a joker: Senator Harrison Schmitt. — CD

POLITICAL BOOMERANGS

Lincoln County Democrats aren't alone in wondering "wha hoppen?" ... as the dust settles following the Republican victories in the November 7 election.

Take Minnesota. Maybe you've never heard of charismatic Wendell Anderson ... the popular hockey playing governor who resigned his office to have himself appointed to the United States Senate seat given up by Vice President Fritz Mondale. Anderson's a DFLer . . . that's Democrat Farmer Labor, founded by the late Hubert Humphrey . . . and the DFL's held sway in Minnesota for years. November 7 ... however ... the DFLers joined the GOPers in handing Anderson a resounding defeat in his bid for election to the Senate . . . he was really clobbered ... not only that ... the new governor is Republican ... maybe an Independent Republican ... and the house'll be 50/50... and both of the state's

Clipped comment

Chuckles: A long ways back, this column noted the number of automobiles parked in the lot at the PERA building with Joe Skeen for Governor stickers on the bumpers.

It was obvious, there were many more Skeen stickers in that lot than King stickers ... but not so the day after the election. In fact, we didn't see one Skeen bumper sticker on a parked car in that lot.

Veteran King said those seeking employment should be asked to submit a resume and reminded the King administration will not take over the reigns of government until January 1.

But here's the kicker: Most of the literature tauted GOP Bernalillo county candidates . . . and they were being given out in Santa Fe.

And that's why we call it the Merry Round House! .

NM-NEA ASKED?

In preparing his anti-inflation program for the nation, President Carter may not have consulted with the New Mexico Division of the National Education Association. Less than two days after the President explained his anti-inflation goals to the nation over television, the NEA-New Mexico announced it will lobby for a 15 percent increase in the state's funding for each pupil during the next session of the state legislature. Current funding of $1,020 would be in-creased to $1,180. This level, it was explained, will allow public schools to maintain present programs and to place a high priority on teacher salary increases. Other legislative goals would provide cost-of-living increases in retirement benefits, retirement at any age after 30 years of service, full service credit for unused sick leave and no reduction in present retirement benefits.

BRIEF BIT: Could legalizing Sunday package sales of booze be proven in court as an unfair business practice against your friendly bootlegger? ... CD

VETERANS PREFERENCE

A court action has been begun, challenging the constitutionality of veterans' preference in the dispensing of federal jobs.

The contention of some women is that this is, in effect, discrimination against women, since more veterans are men. And, of course, if the law had applied only to male veterans, it would constitute per se discrimination.

One can understand the chagrin of a jobseeker at seeing veterans' preference deny her a job. But the fact that men have been called on to fight the nation's wars in the past, many of them giving their lives for their country, and families, in the process, was also a sacrifice - by veterans.

THE WRONG GUY

Several weeks ago, during one of our periodic "Public Relations Drug Raids", State Police mistakenly arrested the wrong man. Instead of a user or seller, they swooped down in the pre-dawn hours with newsmen in tow and arrested a Santa Fe county juvenile probation officer who was not only stunned and surprised, but completely innocent.

The goofup was well-publicized so the innocent victim certainly should suffer no damage to his reputation, but it probably was a bit traumatic being hauled out of bed and arrested as a dope peddler. What should concern the general public in this situation is the ease with which an innocent man was indicted by a grand jury on false information, arrested and taken to jail. If such arrests are made simply on the basis of a statement from an informer, without checking them out more com-pletely, perhaps it's time we examined the fairness of our grand jury system.

Helping you save energy and money is what the National Energy Watch Program is all about! For more information call or come by the Community Public Service Company office.

The President had recommended an inflation peak of 7-8 percent, not 15 percent. - News-Bulletin, Belen-

Women of late have insisted that females be enrolled at the service academies and taken into the armed services in practically all capacities. This is now being done. Therefore, the onal job preference advantage of males is in steady decline, numerically.

Males and females serving in the armed forces both earn job preference in the process. Females currently objecting to job preference object to it for both sexes. But there is no sex discrimination in the law. A better argument can perhaps be made for the proposition that only veterans who see combat duty or who serve in combat areas get federal job preference. But this would, in effect, discriminate far more heavily against females. --- Santa Rosa News

Also, perhaps law enforcement people, who obviously enjoy and seek out the publicity attending a raid such as this. should be required to offer proof other than the statement of an informer before an indictment is handed down.

It is small wonder there is a blg splash when the arrests are made, but few if my of those arrested are convicted. - The Rio Grande Sun, Española
