

May's building permits exceed $2 million mark

Residential and commercial building permits issued in Ruidoso during May totaled $2,090,060 to set an all time high for any one month, according to figures released Friday by Chuck Brown, village building inspector.

Of the total, $1.1 million is for construction of the 104 room Holiday Inn with $945,460 for 28 single family dwellings, pegging the average cost of the private homes at about $33,750.

Twenty-one residential remodeling projects accounted for $10,500 while four other remodeling, additions, alteration or conversion projects will cost the builders $51,100.

Leading the list of residential permits issued are eight units of two and three bedroom condominiums at Golf Course Estates.

Three residential units will be built on Airport Road near the Texas Club turnoff.

Other single-family dwellings will be built in the following subdivisions: Holiday Acres, Pine Cliff, Aspen Run, Cachron, Forest Heights, Indian Hills, Pinecliff Unit IV, Eagle Creek Estates, McCarty, Little Creek Estates, Alto Crest II, Palmer Gateway, Apache Hills, Forest Heights, Del Norte, Deer Park and Hutson.

The record $2,090,060 figure outdistances the mark of $589,080 in May of 1977 by $1.5 million and almost doubles the $1,056,880 in building permits issued this April. Construction committed in April of 1977 totaled $622,420.

Commission approves Brown Tract annexation

The proposed annexation of 10.25 acres of land known as the Brown Airport Tract was given a boost Wednesday night when the Ruidoso Planning and Zoning Commission voted to recommend to the Ruidoso Board of Trustees acceptance of the land into the village limits.

It was the consensus of the commission the land be zoned for commercial use.

After reviewing the proposal made by H.F. Kannady on behalf of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Welch, owners of the property, the commission voted to make the recommendation.

Other Wednesday night action included: — Approval of a change in zoning from R-2 (residential-2) to C (commercial) for lots 25 and 26, block 9, Carter's Park. The change was sought on behalf of Don and Helen Atkinson, owners of the property.

— Setting a July 5 public hearing to consider a request for a change in zoning of lot 1, block 1, Flume Canyon Subdivision from R-1 to R-2. Residential-1 allows for single family dwellings, public schools, public libraries, public community buildings, public parks, churches, golf courses, clubs and lodges. Residential-2 districts allow for the above, plus, row dwellings, multiple dwellings and condominiums.

— No action on a request for a zoning variance on lot 7, Kennedy Subdivision from Commercial to 1/4-3. Residential three zones allow for the inclusion of trailer or mobile homes.

— Acceptance of a plat for lot 8 and part of lot 9, block 15, Palmer Gateway Subdivision.

— Setting a July 5 public hearing for a requested change in zoning from R-1 to R-2 for part of lot 126, and lots 131 and 123 Block BB, and tracts A, B, C, D, and E in Sleepy Hollow. The hearing will be called to also consider annexing tracts A and E into the village limits.

— Setting a July 5 public hearing to consider the zoning for a proposed development known as Airport West 5.

— Acceptance of a replat for lot 14, Ehridge Subdivision, to divide the subdivision into two tracts.

Following the P&Z meeting the Architectural Plans Review Committee:

— Approved plans for an outdoor snow cone/popcorn stand at Isaacs restaurant.

— Tabled plans for a proposed new building between Hollywood Car Parts and American Oxygen Company on Sudderth Drive, pending receipt of additional information concerning the exterior design and color scheme as well as parking facilities.

— Reviewed plans for the proposed Careage Nursing Home with no action taken as the home is not a commercial building in a commercial zoning district and not under the committee's jurisdiction.

Board finds minor vote discrepancy

The Lincoln County Election canvassing board was confronted with a minor voting discrepancy when it met to certify the results of Tuesday's primary election, Friday.

Precinct 52 (absentee) came up with 18 Democrat votes while there were only 15 Democrat absentee voters according to county clerk Jane McSwane.

The discrepancy is viewed as probably a clerical error, according to county manager Les Olsen, but it creates a problem.

Assistant District Attorney Ed Schissel, who attended the board's meeting because of the discrepancy, said, the precinct workers will have to be summoned to appear with the canvassing board before a district judge at which time the precinct ballot box will be opened and the votes recounted.

According to Olsen, the defective return will not effect the overall election.

Ambassadors may reorganize

A reception and informal meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m., June 20 for former Ambassadors and persons interested in joining the group.

The meeting-reception location, to be held in an effort to reorganize the group, which is an auxiliary to the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce, will be announced at a later date.

"As president of the Chamber," Dave Wilson said at an organizational meeting Thursday, "I feel very strongly the need for help. The board can't do it; the president can't do it.

"We must delegate responsibilities."

Wilson told the group, "Duties of the Ambassadors in the past were going out to the Inn of the Mountain Gods to meet groups, especially groups from other communities' Chambers, attending a ski program to promote the area and assisting with the All-American at Ruidoso Downs."

Tom Hornbuckle, a former Ambassador, added, "It's a public relations group, good will men. We greet people and inform them about Ruidoso at no expense to the

Bionic Babe grabs Aspen

Bionic Babe, a 9-2 shot piloted by Richard Bickel, rallied from just off the pace for a convincing victory in Sunday's seventh running of the Aspen Stakes at Ruidoso Downs.

The six furlong dash for three-year-olds packed a purse of $7,175 and handed the winner $4,305.

Bionic Babe is the property of Loy Dickson of Watonga, Oklahoma. Carl Wooten does the training. Fans who backed the stakes filly in the mutuels were well rewarded with payoffs of $11.60, $6.80 and $4. The winning time was a crisp 1:13 flat.

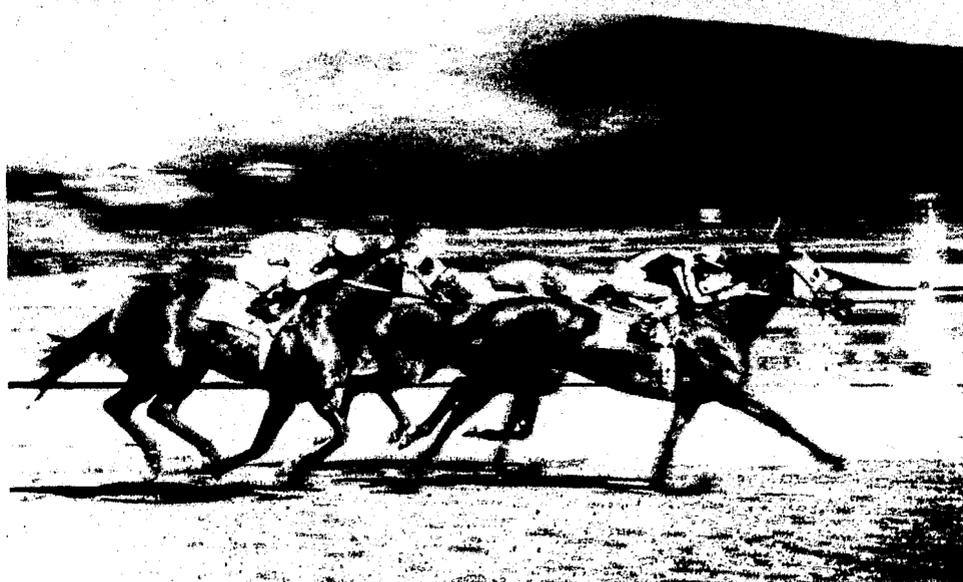

Hopeful Journey, once again playing the role of hard fighting pace maker, battled for all she was worth but couldn't muster enough staying power in the final yards. She finished second under Salustio Burgos and returned $5.20 and $3.40.

The Drake, converted into a lukewarm favorite at 3-1, came on with a desperate stretch bid but was out muscled by Bionic Babe in the straightaway. The Drake got in third, only a neck behind Hopeful Journey. Gilbert Viltescas was up. The show price was $3.80.

Bionic Babe, breaking from the Number 6 post, went a bit wide in the first turn, and stayed on the outside down the backstretch. Hopeful Journey was winging along on the front end but was being stalked by the 13-1 outsider, Make It Me.

As the field neared the turn for home, Bionic Babe had moved into third place and The Drake was just beginning to

Carrizozo Health Center bids let

A Ruidoso-based construction firm, Service Contractors, submitted the apparent low bid of $43,600 for the construction of the proposed Carrizozo Health Center.

The firm's bid outdistanced the only other bid of $75,000 from Armstrong Brothers, yet over ran the amount of money budgeted for the project by the county commission.

Despite the overrun the bid was accepted by the commission with the additional money to be appropriated from the county's general fund.

The county's total budget for the project was $77,620 with $28,000 to go toward the purchase of an existing building, north of the current Carrizozo hospital building, and $14,455 to be used for the purchase of a modular building to be added to the existing building.

Service Contractors' bid will run the cost of the project to $86,055.

Contained in the budget for the project is a $7,500 contingency fund to be used for unforeseen expenses.

County manager Les Olsen said the contingency fund could be used to help defray the over run which does not include $4,545 to be used for architectural and engineering fees.

With the addition of the architectural and engineering fees, minus the contingency fund, the net overrun, which will probably come from the county's general fund will be about $5,480, according to Olsen.

The bid opening Friday capped off about three years of planning for the project, Olsen said, adding that with a Carrizozo Health Center the county should have adequate health services.

Under the terms of the county plan the Zia Therapeutic Center, Alamogordo, will take control of the existing hospital building as a training center for developmentally handicapped adults.

The new center will be housed in a building previously known as the doctor's offices. The building will be completely remodeled.

Under terms of an agreement with the Zia Center, the county will retain the use of the existing X-ray facilities at the current Carrizozo Health Center.

Motorcycle gang woes aired at public meeting

BY MARY WORMLEY Staff Writer

With the grim warning "You haven't even begun to see the problems you are going to have with outlaw motorcycle gangs," representatives of various law enforcement agencies confirmed rumors the Bandidos are expected to return to Ruidoso and requested assistance in soliciting additional law enforcement personnel.

"We have no idea if groups will come to Ruidoso this summer or in what numbers," Paul Lukens, chief of the Ruidoso Police Department, told the Service Club Council and area residents at a meeting Thursday.

"But, they have contacted (a local motorcycleist) and chances are good they probably will come."

A State Police representative said, "If they do return, we need a uniformed show of force. The only answer is a show of force and to babysit the hell out of them."

But, to ensure the necessary number of law enforcement officers in Ruidoso during the visits by such motorcycle outlaws as the Bandidos, who held a national convention here last September, the representatives requested residents write to the Governor, Attorney General, head of the State Police, and Bob Doughty, District Attorney, 12th Judicial District, Otero County Courthouse, Alamogordo, 88310.

"Express your feelings," Doughty said, "so we'll get the number of (law enforcement officers) we request."

"You've had no serious incidents, yet, so people in northern New Mexico don't realize you have a problem."

"If we have 50 to 70 officers, that's almost enough to keep up with them occasionally," Lukens said.

But, representatives from the law enforcement agencies at the meeting agreed "there is no answer to our problem" which would not create incidents or violate the civil rights of the gangs.

"Several groups were ready to load up in pickups and shoot a bunch of the Bandidos last fall," Jack Johnson, State Police Sergeant, said.

"I wish we could condone this, but that would start something the town would have to finish."

He added, "Next year, if we need to request additional police, we will request a tactical team."

"There's no solution, except for the town to make them unwelcome."

Lukens told the group, "Twenty years ago, you could have met them at the city limits (in vigilante groups). Now, (anything) is a violation of their civil rights."

"What it boils down to is they have the rights of any other person. They smell, they're mean and they'll cut your throat, but they have civil rights."

"You haven't even begun to see the problems."

He added, "Legislation and civil rights acts have eliminated drastic legal action on the group, which cuts it down to violation of individual laws."

"In criminal violations, we must have a violation, victim and proof."

"Last year we had 15 complaints and no complainants."

"None of the complaints were signed which is a requirement for criminal prosecution."

SPONSORED BY THE SERVICE club Council, Thursday's meeting was held to discuss the rumors the Bandidos and other motorcycle outlaws will return to Ruidoso this summer, consider what can legally be done when they are here and to review their actions in the past.

Speaking on behalf of the new owners of the Buckaroo Lounge, Larry Montero told the nearly 70 persons attending, "I can only speak second hand, I wasn't an owner last year. But the Buckaroo was their hangout and this year one of the men who frequents our establishment told us he'd been contacted a couple of weeks ago by the cycle groups."

Montero added it was his understanding that the Bandidos were responsible for a stabbing, beating and threatening people in the Buckaroo and "stopping traffic and profanely harassing motorists."

"Their (sergeant at arms) was injured in an accident and law and order lasted two days after that. They refused to pay for drinks or only paid a portion. Finally, the Buckaroo was closed down on their last day in town."

Montero added, "They openly broke the law (drinking in public). Locals can't do that without being arrested, yet the Bandidos did this openly."

Lukens told Montero, "Larry, this may sound silly, but actually they were on their best behavior."

"We have yet to receive a call for assistance from the Buckaroo Lounge. The stabbing was investigated. The victim said his friend was being beaten, he went to help and was knifed. But there were no identifications."

"There were a few (other) things we found out by rumor. We heard of a rape behind Sierra Cleaners; there was no victim, no information."

"We did have a 16-year-old girl who had her face kicked in.

"It seems this girl left Washington state ... began hitchhiking, wound up in Albuquerque with the Bandidos and then came here for Labor Day."

"She was in the Buckaroo with her old man ... who told her to bare her upper body. She refused and was kicked in the face."

"We found her wandering, bleeding on the sidewalk."

"Again, there were no identities."

"They are a very interesting group of people."

Johnson asked Montero, "Larry, would you have signed a complaint, knowing your business would or could be burned to the ground by morning?"

Ken Moore, administrator Ruidoso Hondo Valley Hospital, asked Johnson, "If I file a complaint, could I have police protection?"

Johnson replied, "The reason so few file is fear of retribution, possibly not immediate retribution," adding that police would give the best protection possible.

District Attorney Doughty told the group, law enforcement officers could enforce misdemeanors such as drinking in public, but such enforcement could cause a major conflict which would be "too big of a price to pay."

When questioned whether the police department could incarcerate members of the group, Lukens said, "If it was a rank-and-file member of the group, we probably could cope. If it's a national officer, I doubt if we could. They have a great sense of loyalty."

Lukens told the group, "Most people regard the Bandidos as overgrown juvenile delinquents, but they are adults. Some are professional business people during the week and Bandidos on weekends."

"In the group are hardened criminals, 100 percent mean from the ground up. They have attorneys retained and also as members of the group. They know the laws."

"We've been discussing the Bandidos, but there also are the Hells Angels, Huns, Hessians, Devil's Advocates, Widownmakers, Scarlets, Entertainers and Rock Creek Bandidos."

"All have been here in the last six years," Lukens said.

"Essentially, the groups have territorial imperatives and are incensed by transgressions," he said, citing as an example, the Huns and Hessians did not come to Ruidoso last year because they were having a battle in Arizona.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE members met Thursday to discuss efforts to revive the Ambassadors, an auxiliary to the Chamber. The group planned a reception and informal meeting of former members and interested persons at 7:30 p.m., June 20, location to be announced.

Registration for swimming lessons continues through this afternoon. UNDER THE WATCHFUL EYES of life guards, a group of youngsters enjoyed keeping cool in the Municipal Swimming Pool Friday afternoon.

Swimming lesson signup ends today

Registration for beginning swimming lessons at the Ruidoso Municipal Swimming Pool will continue through today, according to pool manager Chris Sparks.

Taught by a certified Red Cross instructor, the lessons are open to persons over six years old at a cost of $20 per person, Sparks said.

Lessons will begin at 9 a.m., three days a week, with a total of nine in the teaching program. During registration, Sparks will conduct an informal poll to see if interest exists for the implementation of a program to teach water safety instruction and advanced rescue. If the advanced classes are started, Sparks said they will be taught by a certified Red Cross instructor.

Sparks recently took over management of the Ruidoso pool having been manager of the Tularosa and Roswell public pools. In addition, she has served as the head lifeguard at Bottomless Lakes State Park. She has about six years of swimming pool management behind her.

She said the swimming pool, now open for public use has a full staff of capable lifeguards on duty when the pool is open to the public and for lessons.

Pool hours are 11 a.m. - 6 p.m., seven days a week.

Bionic Babe

unleash his long run at the leaders. Bionic Babe took a wide turn into the stretch, perhaps forcing The Drake to loose some terrain.

At the head of the lane, Hopeful Journey was digging in for the final assault, preparing for a stretch seige. Bionic Babe and The Drake appeared to be on even terms. But when the real running began at the midway point of the stretch, Bionic Babe clearly put away The Drake, took dead aim on Hopeful Journey, and surged into the clear in the final half dozen strides.

The Aspen victory put Bionic Babe's 1978 record at 3-1-1 from eight starts, and swelled her current money line up to $19,776.

SUNDAY'S CO-FEATURE at 400 yards brought out a band of big money three-year-olds and commanded nearly as much attention as the headliner Call Me Gotta, making his '78 debut, was pegged as an odds on favorite while gunning for his sixth straight victory. But the colt found more than he bargained for, and was unable to get into early contention. In the final stages, he dissolved into the pack, finishing fifth, as Medley Glass, off at nearly 4-1, went storming to a brilliant 3/4-length win. Jerry Nicodemus rode the winner.

Miss Thermolark, last summer's Rainbow Futurity winner, finished a plucky second in her seasonal bow. Biffy Pass came in third.

Fans who backed Medley Glass got $3.60 on the win end. The winning time, chalked up against a headwind, was 20.13 seconds.

EXCLUSIVE TALENT, a 7-2 shot, put together a crushing stretch drive, and zipped to an easy win in Saturday's headliner at Ruidoso Downs.

The chestnut colt ended the 5/8 furlong sprint with nearly a five length lead. Henry Uriegas was in the saddle.

Exclusive Talent is owned by Mack Yates of Cherokee, Texas. The winning payoffs were $8.20, $4.80 and $3.60. Me Francis, another 7-2 shot, tried to duel Exclusive Talent in the final stages but was no match. Me Francis ended up second for tote returns of $4 and $3.40.

Final Drive came in third, paying $5 to show. The favorite, Double B. Express, trailed in the early going, but managed to pull in fourth. The winning time was 1:07 1/5 seconds.

"So far we've managed to keep from having a war in the mid town. It's neutral territory which is unusual. How much longer this will last I have no idea.

"They could burn the town down; it's not beyond their capabilities," adding, "they are well armed troops ready to sack and burn."

District Attorney Doughty said, "You are going to have the problem until they find a better place to go."

Lukens added, "The national council (of the Bandidos) has decided they like Ruidoso, they like all you people. And they are thinking of acquiring property in Lincoln County (for use as) a national headquarters."

Johnson asked Dave Parks, representative of the group which owns Parson's Mine, where the Bandidos camped last fall, "If they came up with the money would you stand by the citizenry or sell?"

Parks said the land presently is leased to a mining company, but if it was on the market it would be a difficult decision.

Parks said the Bandidos did not have permission to camp on the land nor did they pay fees. "We didn't like having them out there, but between the choices of there and Ruidoso, we preferred them out there in the canyon."

DURING THE MEETING, the group touched briefly on the liquor transported to the Bandidos last fall, and Aspenade.

"I looked into the incident," Doughty said, referring to the transportation of liquor on Sunday to the Bandidos' encampment in an effort to keep them from town by Lincoln County Sheriff Bill Elliott.

Ruidoso Downs Mayor Norman Wheeler and Ruidoso Downs Chief of Police Lynn Martin.

"I used a district attorney's discretion and decided not to prosecute. I turned it over to the attorney general who turned it over to the Liquor Control boards."

On Aspenade, Lukens said, "It's an unfortunate fact, the bad bikers follow the good bikers and I have counseled against Aspenade."

"A great many good people come up and behave themselves, but as a result of last Labor Day . . . you are beginning to feel the results of the presence of these people."

"Outlaw motorcyclists are like polio: easy to get and difficult to get rid of."

At the conclusion of the three hour meeting, the group agreed to schedule another meeting in two weeks to further discuss the situation.

Villages' trustees to meet

The Ruidoso Downs trustees will meet at 7 this evening in municipal hall and the Ruidoso trustees will meet at 7:30 p.m., Tuesday in the Ruidoso Public Library.

Agenda items at Ruidoso Downs include:

- Annexation of the "Mystery Spot" area and Parker's Brees Ranch.
- Three proposed ordinances covering the operation of All American Park, an amendment of the present dog ordinance and initiation of an additional one half of one percent gross receipts tax to become effective July 1, 1979.
- Consideration of price quotations for the purchase of new garbage trucks.
- The first hearing on the proposed budget for fiscal 1978-1979.

The Ruidoso agenda includes these items:

- Report on opening of bids on a side-loading refuse truck and containers.
- Public hearing on the proposed uses of Revenue Sharing Funds for fiscal 1978-1979.
- Consideration of annexations of land, zoning changes, subdivision of a lot and a replat of one lot, all approved by the Planning and Zoning commission.
- Request of the American Legion for waiving the present club liquor license fee of $300 annually.
- Status report on the Eagle Creek Dam project.
- Setting the final budget hearing for June 27 and a resolution regarding changes in the 1977-1978 fiscal year budget.

Community development accurately predictable

New Mexico communities trying to attract new businesses and more people, need to know there are predictable steps by which communities develop. Ignore those steps and community development can be a total disaster.

"Community services are added in predictable sequences," say the authors of a research report published through New Mexico State University's Agricultural Experiment Station.

The report, entitled "Development Strategy for Nonmetropolitan New Mexico — The Community Services Approach," gives community developers specific guidelines to follow in developing community facilities and services.

Not only are services predictable, say researchers Clyde Eastman, Robert Coppedge and John Romanek, they are also cumulative.

As you might expect, hospitals appear in towns and cities having pharmacies, physicians and dentists. But what you might not expect is that chiropractors, optometrists and medical and dental laboratories always appear after hospitals and never before.

According to the researchers, community developers must know where their community is on the scale of medical services development before they can add new services. The medical scale begins with a pharmacy and, in orderly fashion, adds a physician, dentist, hospital, chiropractor, optometrist and medical and dental laboratories.

Because communities always add medical services in the above order, towns the size of Vaughn, Hagerman, Magdalena and Wagon Mound, which do not have pharmacies, will be wasting their time trying to attract a physician.

Conversely, the larger towns of Lovington, Portales, Raton and Silver City, which already have a pharmacy, physician, a dentist, hospital, and chiropractor can now add, in order, optometrists and medical and dental laboratories.

The researchers also found that recreational services appear in predictable order. Theaters, golf courses, and dance halls always appear before sporting goods and hobby stores. And all of these appear before bowling alleys and skating rinks.

Truth or Consequences, Lordsburg, and Tucumcari have theaters, golf courses, dance halls and sporting goods or hobby stores. Thus, the next logical addition would be a bowling alley and then a skating rink.

Raton, Socorro, Gallup and Ruidoso are all further along on the recreational scale and have theaters, golf courses, dance halls, sporting and hobby stores and bowling alleys. Their last recreational addition would be a skating rink.

The researchers also found there is a definite sequence in the appearance of communication and transportation facilities. Again the order of their appearance is predictable. Railroads, Western Union and a first class post office all appear before a commercial airport, daily newspaper and a U.S. highway intersection.

The researchers did find one unexpected result — there is essentially no relationship between per capita income and the range of medical and recreational services.

However, the researchers do point out that they only measured the range of these services, and not their quality. It is probable, the researchers feel, that income could be more related to quality than to the range of available services.

In conclusion, the researchers said that "cooperation among small towns in a trade area can result in greatly improved economic potential for the whole area."

"Excessive competition with the resulting duplication of facilities hurts everyone. Not every small town can have its own doctor and hospital, for example. It is far more fruitful to shoot for the next appropriate service and develop step-by-step than to reach for unattainable and unrealistic goals," according to the researchers.

State withholding rates drop July 1

New Mexico State withholding tax rates will be reduced effective July 1, 1978. Revised withholding tax rate tables have been mailed to all New Mexico employers. The withholding tables have been revised because of the permanent income tax rate reduction passed by the New Mexico Legislature for tax year 1978 and subsequent years.

Along with lower withholding rates for married persons and single persons, the new withholding rate tables provide a special option for a married person whose spouse is also employed. The old state withholding rates have tended to underwithhold married couples filing joint returns where both spouses are employed. The federal withholding law allows such married employees to choose to be withheld at the higher rates for single persons. Married employees who have elected that federal option should ask their employers to withhold state income tax under the "alternate rates" provided in the revised state withholding tax tables. The "alternate rates" withhold a greater amount each payroll period so that employees may avoid the inconveniences of being under-withheld for New Mexico income tax purposes.

Mary Rich heads health council

Mary Rich, Carrizozo, was elected chairman of the Region Six Sub-Area Council (SAC) at the New Mexico Health Systems Agency (HSA) meeting in Roswell June 2. She replaces Dr. William A. Boehm of Alamogordo whose term expired.

The new vice chairman is Dr. Pardue Bunch of Carlsbad.

Region Six covers Chaves, Otero, Lea, Eddy and Lincoln counties and has offices in Roswell. Richard Estes has been appointed a full time staff member and will be working out of the Roswell office.

Rich is a member of the executive committee of the state governing body of the HSA and a board member of the Region Six Health Planning Association which covers New Mexico, Texas, Arkansas, Louisiana and Oklahoma.

She has been active in the health planning field and is interested in rural medicine development. She serves as chairman of the Carrizozo Health Center Advisory Committee and the Zia Therapy Center Carrizozo Advisory Committee.

Rich is president of the Carrizozo Chamber of Commerce and chairman of the Lincoln County Democratic Party. She serves on several civic and business committees.

Dr. Bunch, the new vice chairman, is a former president of the New Mexico Medical Society. He is a consultant in family practice at New Mexico University Medical School, a member of the American Academy of Family Practice, past chief of staff of Artesia General Hospital and continues to be active in the New Mexico Medical Society.

Dr. Bunch is a graduate of Duke University Medical School and has been in the practice of medicine in Artesia for 32 years. He has been active in health and medical organizations during those years. He is a member of Rotary and a member of the Artesia Chamber of Commerce.

Estes, who has assumed the staff position of Region Six, lives in Roswell where he has been the Emergency Medical Service coordinator for the region for the past year. Prior to that, Estes was a rehabilitation counselor in Clovis.

He is a native of Tucumcari and received his bachelor's and masters degrees from New Mexico State University in social welfare counseling.

The members of Region Six SAC voted to establish an executive committee to conduct the region's business between council meetings.

The chairman was authorized to appoint three representatives to the executive board in addition to the two officers, with each of the five counties to be represented.

The group will begin implementation of the 1977 health plans for the area. Rich said that several parts of the program were in effect in Lincoln County as pilot projects, that she and Estes would work with counties in the region through the SAC members.

HSA in New Mexico has the responsibility of planning programs to meet the needs of the state, of implementing those programs and of reviewing health institutions and programs that require federal funding.

Rich said Region Six would continue an emphasis on involvement of local representatives and governments in health planning.

Clovis author charges impure air causes illness

BY VIC HOGSETT
Staff Writer

More than two million Americans are gradually dying of slow suffocation, according to a man who has made his life work studying the effects of breathing impure air.

Casimir M. Nickel, a Clovis author and retired hospital administrator, said the air we breathe in and around the home is often loaded with harmful gases that can contribute to immediate illness and if inhalation of these gases is prolonged, they can cause death.

Many people, Nickel said, believe breathing pollutants means breathing smog or air made impure by auto, factory or cigarette emissions, but the problem can be three to five times greater inside a home located hundreds of miles from a smog-infested area.

"Many nonsmokers live in a Pollyanna world," Nickel said, "they do not realize that numerous gases, such as nitrogen, sulfur, and carbon oxides, are manufactured within their houses by modern machines and gadgets."

People who are sensitive to these gases are literally allergic to the progress of the twentieth century and may not even know it, he said.

He added this problem, which afflicts about two percent of the United States population, involves hypersensitivity to gases released from synthetic materials at temperatures as low as 70 degrees, gases released from improperly installed fossil fuel burning furnaces and electric motors, chemical gases found in common household items such as cleaners, perfumes, cosmetics, deodorants, hair sprays, insecticides, etc., and spores and carbonized particles found in common house dust.

Nickel said the phosgene, cyanide, nitrogen sulfide and carbon monoxide gases released by these materials can be the cause of organic illnesses as well as disorders associated with allergies.

In his book, "Breathing For Survival," Nickel cites medical sources as attributing some cases of asthma, stuffy nose, headache, neuralgia, arthritis, multiple sclerosis, diarrhea, eczema and hypertension that have resulted from house-dust allergy.

"We find disease invasion of every major bodily cavity incited by inhalants," Nickel said.

According to him, only about 500 of the nation's approximately 311,000 physicians recognize the link between diseases in the body and respiration. He added that the problem is in the hands of the sufferer.

He advises persons with certain unexplained maladies to try and establish a link between the affliction and any new object, odor, or food the person has been around. He said people that are hypersensitive should personalize their homes and get rid of the things that might make them ill. He admits that this is often impractical in which case the person should install air purifiers to strain the noxious gases from the air they breathe.

In an interview with The News, Nickel outlined his personal history involving his own hypersensitive condition. He contends that at several times in his life he was afflicted with certain ailments that were diagnosed as in his head. At one point he complained of a feeling of suffocation that occurred only at night, while in bed. Nickel said he discovered that he had a urethane foam mattress and according to him urethane can release harmful gases, gases he is sensitive to, at temperatures below body temperature. He said his problem cleared up after he changed mattresses.

"Gases are more prone to be released from synthetics when they are heated," Nickel said, "but it appears that less gas is emitted with time."

He said many of the chemical gases he is sensitive to afflict him much like a heart attack, but he added, the symptoms of inhaling pollutants can manifest themselves in many ways, in almost any part of the body.

Nickel said the source of these gases abound in the average household and can include nylon or other synthetic carpets, upholstery, clothing, floor tile, paint, long-standing drinking water, electrical appliances whose electrical field causes the formation of ozone, plastic articles, cushions, etc.

"The problem is sufficiently complex that each (hypersensitive) individual must create their home for themselves," Nickel said.

Nickel is currently writing a book in collaboration with several medical doctors, in which he outlines ways in which new home builders can gas proof their

A Cool June

In the more than half a hundred summers that I have been here in the land of the pinon and pine, this is the coolest June I can remember.

Today, June seven, the wind is in the north east and the air feels fresh and with a touch of cold like in the very early spring. Really, the air just seems cold because you see the green world all around you and hear the song birds, and know you are in June, the time of the warmest days, year and year out.

The floating clouds in the sky, drifting from time to time in front of the sun, help to keep the world cool. Where is the cool air coming from? Is there still snow on the top of the Rocky Mountains in Colorado and the northern part of the state?

The cool northeastern wind is a blessing because it helps Mother Earth retain the moisture of the recent rains; and this helps keep the world green as it waits for the next rain.

Mid-Summer Flowers Already Blooming

Summer does not arrive until the twenty-first of this month, and yet all in a day some of the flowers that usually come out with the July rains are already blooming by the wayside.

One of the favorites of these is The Indian Paint Brush, a real westerner that cheer the summer days all through our country west of the Mississippi. It loves to grow in the mountains and foot hills, and the prairies of all our western land. The flower certainly is well named. They resemble little paint brushes dipped in bright vermilion paint, standing in little clusters amidst the green grass — pointing to the summer sky. You may see them out in a field, or along a mountain side amidst the pine trees, or on a little rocky ledge beside the road, cheering you as you pass by, and telling you that you are in the American West.

Another world wide favorite is the clear yellow of the English evening primrose. Later on the primrose blooms in pink. The primrose blooms in temperate regions all around the world and is so called because it blooms in the evening, and sometimes on cloudy days and cool mornings.

Still another American favorite that is blooming now is the Black-eyed Susan — a golden yellow flower with a dark center.

Day by day the favorite flowers will be blooming, especially with the good rains. There will be the Scotch Blue Bell, wild columbine, English buttercup, Rocky Mountain Gilia, and wild snap dragon. In the higher reaches, the wild violet, the Alpine wild rose, the Forget-me-Not and the Blue Flax and the Scotch Blue Bell.

These are the flowers which welcomed our mother and myself and three younger brothers when first we came to this land more than a half century ago.

Cactus Flowers

The land of the pinon and pine is a mountain region away to the south, surrounded by plains and deserts in all directions. For this reason we have a great variety of plants, birds and other life.

Some of our most colorful and beloved flowers are the cactus blooms. Some of them are beginning to bloom now, and we will have a few words about them later on.

Warren Cobean And Joe Montoya

Two natives of New Mexico were called home by our Lord recently: Warren Cobean of Roswell; and Joe Montoya, former United States Senator.

Warren Cobean was born at Fort Stanton ninety years ago, and had a colorful career in Mexico before he settled in Roswell where he served a term as mayor, and was always active and helpful in his home community and state.

Joe Montoya, widely known as "Little Joe", was born in Pena Blanca, in the northern section of our state. Joe served his state and country in a career of public service which extended over forty years.

He was only twenty-one when he began his career of public life, and only sixty-two when he was called home by Our Lord.

Our hearts go out to the loved ones and friends of Joe and Warren and we all take comfort in knowing that they are safe and happy with God in Heaven.

A Green Summer

We have a wonderful beginning to the greenest summer in many a day. The apples and other fruit are growing rapidly. The clouds are gathering for another rain. Let us rejoice always, and thank the Good Lord for all our blessings.

DOUG MARKHAM and SHERRIE BELLON

Bellon-Markham nuptials set

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Bellon, Ruidoso, announce the engagement of their daughter, Sherrie to Doug Markham, Ruidoso, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Markham of Alamogordo.

The couple is planning a June 24 wedding at the Gateway Assembly of God Church with the Reverend James Alexander presiding.

She is currently employed as a dental assistant to C. H. Tate, D.D.S., and Markham an employee of the Forest Service in the Smokey Bear District.

They are both graduates of Alamogordo High School where Markham served on the Key Club, senior class council, high school choir, played basketball for four years and performed with a gospel group known as The Harvesters.

She sang in the high school choir, was president of the Christian Club and performed with a gospel group known as the Signs of Peace.

Both attended the Southwest Assemblies of God Bible College.

New crib safety standards set

New federal safety standards for all types of baby cribs are in effect now. Babies spend most of their early months in the crib, but all cribs are not safe havens for babies, says Suzi Holder, Extension housing specialist at New Mexico State University.

Each year between 150 and 200 children in the United States die from accidents involving cribs. Another 40,000 infants are injured seriously enough to warrant medical attention, Ms. Holder says.

While the standards affect all new cribs, many parents borrow cribs or buy used ones. Use the standards as a guide to selecting even a used crib.

According to the standards, slats that are spaced no more than six centimeters (2 3/8 inches) apart prevent the infant from slipping between slats.

Select locking devices that take 10 pounds or more of pressure to operate in two separate actions. This safety feature prevents the baby from releasing the drop side.

The metal "hardware" should be designed to avoid pinching, bruising, laceration, crushing, breaking, and even amputation of fingers and toes.

Also look for a mattress with a snug fit on all sides. If more than two fingers will fit between the mattress and crib side, the mattress is too small. Be sure to get the correct size mattress for the crib.

The crib also should have a large enough distance between the top rail and the mattress to discourage your baby from trying to climb out. Most crib accidents occur when infants fall while climbing out of the crib.

Once you select a crib, remove all plastic packaging material and destroy it immediately.

Regardless of whether the crib is new or used don't keep your child in the crib once the height of the side rail is less than three-fourths your child's height. The crib should not be used as a playpen, Ms. Holder says. "Selecting a safe crib is only part of the job, there is no substitute for the watchful eye of the parent," the specialist says.

homes to provide for a clean environment. The release date is subject to the acquisition of a publisher.

His current book was subsidized by himself. He said the book has yet to pay for itself but he feels it was worth it if it has helped hypersensitive persons.

"I wrote the book as a present to my fellow humans," Nikel said, "People don't realize the problem, unless they are hypersensitive themselves."

He added that this includes many doctors who are inclined to cover up their ignorance of the problem by accounting for an illness as psychosomatic or by prescribing drugs to fight the symptoms of the condition, but drugs that don't take care of the cause. Often he said such drugs have a synergistic effect and compound the original problem.

FIREMEN WERE CALLED Sunday afternoon to a blaze which gutted a duplex near the Elks' Lodge. Firemen at the scene speculated the blaze possibly may have been caused by a faulty waterheater. (News photo by Mary Wormley.)

INSTRUCTIONS TO CHOP through the roof were given to firemen from other volunteers on the ground. Responding to the fire Sunday afternoon were units from the Ruidoso Volunteer Fire Department, Ruidoso Downs Volunteer Fire Department and the U.S. Forest Service.

Fall webworm hatch looming in near future

The first generation of fall webworms will be hatching soon. Fall webworms are the woolly caterpillars that feed on leaves. They make their unsightly webs on poplars, cottonwoods, elms, mulberries, willows, pecans and many other ornamental and fruit trees in New Mexico.

When the web nest is small, it can be removed from the trees by cutting a few twigs and leaves, says John J. Durkin, Extension entomologist at New Mexico State University. Since the worms don't leave the web until they are full-grown, make sure the entire web is cut away. Then, destroy the worms by stepping on them or throwing them in a garbage can with a tight fitting lid.

Many insecticide sprays, such as carbaryl, Diazinon, Orthene or a general garden spray, will control the worms. Also, the bacterial disease, Bacillus thuringiensis, is effective.

Check all broadleaved trees closely at least once a week during the summer. If the webs are already covering several leaves and are too large to cut out without ruining the shape of the tree, spray immediately. Only the foliage around each web needs to be treated.

All webworms from last year spent the winter in the pupal stage (resting stage between worm and moth). They hid in protected places such as the cracks between the soil and the foundation of buildings.

Many die during the winter, but females that survive emerge during late May and early June. Each female moth can lay several clusters of eggs containing 400 to 1,000 eggs per cluster.

The eggs hatch in about one to two weeks and the young caterpillars start feeding. The caterpillars live about 30 days, drop to the ground and pupate. The pupal stage lasts about one week and then new moths emerge to start the second generation.

Most of the caterpillars that pupate in the summer survive. Therefore, if the first generation of caterpillars is not controlled, large numbers of moths emerge to lay great quantities of eggs in August and September.

The moths are satiny white. They are attracted to light at night but are seldom seen in the daytime.

For more complete information, ask your county Extension agent for a copy of "Fall Webworms and How To Control Them," Circular 439, or write the Bulletin Office, Box 3A1, NMSU, Las Cruces, N.M. 88003.

DIFFERENT TEXTURES do a lot more than just offer variety on the carpeting scene. There is no such thing as a "best" texture for every purpose, and each may function well under special circumstances.

Shag is at or near the top of the popularity poll today, but it is not all things to all persons. Some find it too casual or informal in the very long lengths, and harder to vacuum. Happily there are short shags, too, so there's shag to please any taste. But you may be happier with another texture on stairways, for instance, where all the traffic is concentrated.

Loops and twists come in all styles and lengths. They make very durable carpet textures, and are thus practical in rooms that take a beating or that have limited traffic lanes because of the room's arrangement or furnishings. But remember that some fibers, such as nylon, wear longer than others, so texture is not the only consideration.

Loops and twists show very little shading. Plushes do. They are like velvets in that characteristic, as they are in general appearance. Rub your hand across velvet or a plush carpet to see what we mean. Many homeowners and designers love this look of shading or shadowing, but others don't. Check your own reaction before choosing plush.

Our showroom displays offer a delightful choice of textures, including many combinations. You won't find better variety or value anywhere... or as much assurance of expert carpet counsel at no extra cost. Come in and see!

School of Medicine designing program for country doctors

The University of New Mexico (UNM) School of Medicine has been awarded a $81,034 grant from the W.K. Kellogg Foundation of Battle Creek, Michigan, to design a medical school curriculum aimed at training primary care physicians to work in rural areas.

The program was developed by the Curriculum for Primary Care committee of the medical school, headed by Dr. S. Scott Obenshain, assistant dean for undergraduate medical education; Dr. Arthur Kaufman, and Dr. J. Dayton Voorhees, both assistant professors in the department of family, community and emergency medicine.

"We wanted to develop a curriculum that would be significantly different from traditional medical education," Obenshain said. "The curriculum will deal exclusively with clinical problems and will offer students an opportunity to spend significant portions of their medical education in rural New Mexico."

Students will spend the first nine months learning the basic clinical skills necessary for patient care. Students will then be required to move to a rural area of the state where they will spend up to six months working with primary care physicians. They will then return to the UNM School of Medicine for advanced clinical science as well as continue their clinical exposure by actually working with patients.

The last 15 months of this new curriculum will be in advanced clinical training including a minimum of three months in rural sub-internship, possibly back in the same rural area where a student did the initial training.

In the traditional medical school, students are exposed to academic subspecialist physicians rather than primary care physicians. Many believe that this role modeling has contributed to the increase of subspecialization. This program hopes to reverse this trend.

Students who apply to the Curriculum for Primary Care Program will be carefully screened for commitment to the goals of the program and high aptitude for primary care service in rural areas. The medical school hopes to take the first 10 students into the program in August 1979.

Currently the school admits 73 new students each year. The new program will select from the 73 rather than increase the total enrollment.

BY CARROL W. CAGLE
SANTA FE — When he died this week at the age of 62, Joseph M. Montoya had spent 42 years in the New Mexico public arena and was one of the best known politicians in the state.

Although he climbed to the top of the state's political ladder and was one of the most powerful senators in Washington, Montoya was known by many as "Little Joe" for his diminutive stature and while on the campaign trail sometimes referred to himself as "the barefoot boy from Pena Blanca."

That's the small village in Sandoval County where Montoya grew up, and he always tried to keep in touch with the problems and needs of those with little political power even while he was gaining more and more himself.

For years he probably dreamed of becoming, one day, New Mexico's senior senator — a post known not only for its power but for its honor and prestige. Especially since the New Deal days of the Thirties, New Mexico and other western states have accorded great importance to their congressional delegations who helped bring dollars and projects from Washington.

Seniority was a key factor. It helped Arizona get the massive Central Arizona Project, and it helped New Mexico get oil and gas installations like Sandia and Bartland bases in Albuquerque, Los Alamos Scientific Laboratories, and the San Juan-Chama Diversion Project.

From the Thirties and extending into the early Sixties, the "Spanish" seat on New Mexico's Senate delegation was held by Dennis Chavez, who combined seniority with seats on the important Appropriations and Public Works committees to produce results for New Mexico.

Clinton P. Anderson, after serving in Truman's cabinet, went to the Senate in 1949 and stayed there for four six-year terms, and the Chavez-Anderson combination was a powerful one.

Dennis Chavez died in office in late 1962. Edwin L. Mechem, then the Republican governor, resigned and his lieutenant governor, Tom Bolack, became governor and appointed Mechem to the unexpired term.

Mechem had been a popular, four-term governor but when the 1964 election came, Joe Montoya easily bested the Republican and moved one more notch up the political ladder.

He moved from the U.S. House of Representatives to the other side of the national capitol and soon won coveted seats on the Appropriations and Public Works committees himself. The Senate post capped a climb that began with his election to the State Legislature from Sandoval County when he was not quite yet 21 years old. Later he served as lieutenant governor, during one of Mechem's terms as governor, and finally to the Congress.

Anderson's fourth term ended in 1972 and Republican Pete Domenici in January 1973 became New Mexico's junior senator. For four years, Montoya was the "senior senator."

He won his first Senate seat in 1964 when Lyndon Johnson was coasting to a landslide victory over Barry Goldwater. He was re-elected to a second six-year term in 1970 over a Goldwater Republican, Anderson Carter of Lovington.

But New Mexico was changing. The four-person congressional delegation already had changed from its long-standing Democratic dominance to a two-and-two split, featuring Domenici and Rep. Manuel Lujan.

Came 1976 and it was Montoya's time to be ousted. He was defeated by Republican astronaut Harrison Schmitt, who never had run for public office before and who thus represented a dramatic change from the years before when political figures like Joe Montoya worked their way up through the elective ranks to the top.

The passage of Proposition 13 by California voters, slashing property taxes by a reported $6 billion or so, may inspire New Mexicans to make a similar attempt. The next legislature could help bring property tax revision into being by changing the law that bases the pay of county officials on the county's assessed valuation. —CD

PAMPERED JUVENILES

As President Richard Nixon used to say "I want to make it perfectly clear" ... and my opinion on handling first offense juveniles ... for minor infractions of the law ... Is that said juvenile should receive every consideration from authorities ... because I don't think there's a kid on the street who shouldn't be forgiven that first offense ... If it's something that harmed no one, other than said offender, the juvenile should be accorded a second chance ... 'cause there's possibly not a person alive who hasn't been given another chance ... as a juvenile ... and as an adult ... one or the other ... and there's a strong likelihood of this happening in both instances ... methinks.

Under this minor infraction business, I also concur with the policy of anonymity ... no reason to persecute a kid, just because he goofed ... once. It's the for instances of repeat juvenile offenders ... those kids who are always winding up before juvenile authorities ... and glorying in their experiences ... 'cause they know no matter what, they're home free ... and free to show their disdain for law and order ... which they do, with vigor.

True, treating second or seventy offense repeaters as adults might not be an effective deterrent to the offending juvenile ... but such treatment wouldn't be encouraging unlawful acts ... which is almost what present practices in handling repeat juvenile offenders amounts to.

Perhaps the time will come when the kid capable of planning and carrying out a crime of some magnitude ... be it shoplifting, burglary, auto theft ... acts that'd find an adult facing a stiff fine and/or some time in the pokey ... that said kid will be treated as an adult ... 'cause it's been clearly demonstrated he can think and function as an adult ... and takes personal pride in his prowess ... and doesn't care who know it.

Hypothesis. Suppose a juvenile mother is adjudged to have committed child abuse ... say to an infant ... 'cause examining doctors generally have no problem defining child abuse ... particularly in the more flagrant cases. Under present laws, the offender enjoys complete anonymity court records are unavailable to the media ... and punishment generally is limited in duration to the remaining time before the offending child becomes a legal adult. In this for instance ... as with all planned and executed crimes ... treating the juvenile offender as an adult would seem to be justified ... 'cause, if'n the penalty was more severe than a tongue lashing ... and said kid knew he'd have to take full responsibility ... and punishment ... should he be found guilty ... it just might cause said kid to think twice before sticking his neck out ... and it might not ... but if such a scheme would prevent 10 out of 100 offenses from being committed it'd be that much of an improvement. By jinkies, if'n it kept just one kid out of trouble ... it'd be worth it ... and this is strictly my opinion.

I look at a person's teen age years as one of life's most glorious experiences ... of a zooka. The opportunities to learn enjoyable ways of living are unlimited ... and this is strictly supposition on my part ... it appears to me that the adult enjoying a well rounded teen age, tends to be a reasonable and well rounded adult ... 'cause said adult ... assuming they'll admit to enjoying their peccadillos as a child ... knows from whence comes the motivation to live, learn and experiment ... and some of my memories of teen age fun times are cherished ... as are the times when the sweet cherries became sour grapes.

'Course I'm also more than a little prejudiced when it comes to coping with the problems associated with the turmoil of living those teen years ... 'cause my two kids became fully responsible for their actions upon reaching the wise old age ... and "wise" age ... of 12. And both of them took their lumps ... full well knowing that any situation they got themselves into, that good old permissive dad ... the guy giving them their adult responsibilities a mite early in life ... wouldn't be there to bail them out. This did lead to some rather involved circumstances ... and, by jinkies, in my case, I'd do it again.

BRIEF BIT: Limiting state and county political campaigns to two months would result in tremendous savings to the taxpayer ... in ear and eye strain ... CD

NMSU station proposed site of $3 million plant

New Mexico State University's (NMSU) Agricultural Experiment Station is the proposed site of a satellite Plant Stress and Soil Moisture Conservation Laboratory costing nearly $3 million.

The Las Cruces facility would be one of three federally funded laboratories. A central laboratory of 22 scientists would be located at the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station in Lubbock, Texas, with a satellite lab of eight scientists located at NMSU and three scientists at the University of Nebraska, Lincoln.

Overall goals of research conducted at the NMSU facility would be to develop management systems to efficiently use diminishing irrigation water supplies and rainfall. Additional research would be conducted to develop drought resistant crops.

NMSU was recommended as a satellite station because of its agricultural research community, favorable climate, suitable land and water resources and close proximity to the Texas facility.

According to L. S. Pope, dean and director of the NMSU College of Agriculture and Home Economics, "drought is a consistent part of New Mexico's agriculture. Therefore, we are in a unique position to conduct research on droughty conditions occurring in the Southwest as opposed to areas where those drought conditions would have to be manufactured."

Pope added that another advantage in locating the facility at NMSU is "our considerable research experience with droughty conditions. In addition, we currently have research aimed in the direction of genetically adjusting crop plants to limited moisture availability."

He referred specifically to research evaluating the potential for improving alfalfa production under less than optimum moisture conditions. He added that basic research findings from alfalfa research are expected to be applicable to other plant species useful in drought-stress areas.

"In essence, a Plant Stress facility located at NMSU could get off to a running start," Pope said.

Another plus factor in locating the facility at NMSU is "our established background in developing and conducting international programs," he said. "We are expanding our efforts south of the border, particularly in Mexico and the nations of Central and South America where we have already shown an ability to respond to drought problems in those areas."

Pope also pointed out that "research conducted at NMSU's proposed facility could have far-reaching effects, not only in New Mexico, but on a regional and worldwide basis in arid and semi-arid parts of the world where increased production of food and fiber is urgently needed now."

Referring specifically to New Mexico, Pope said "water has always been the major factor limiting the state's agriculture. Essentially, we have little or no chance of increasing our fresh water supplies. Therefore, we must turn to alternative measures. One alternative, vital to the state's agriculture, is to increase research on plant mechanisms that combat drought stress."

"Locating the proposed facility at NMSU would be a great step forward for agriculture in New Mexico," he said.

Alternative measures developed at the proposed Plant Stress Laboratory would be accompanied by fringe benefits. For example, the continued use of improved cropping and management systems will reduce energy requirements, conserve natural resources and improve the environment.

Research done at NMSU could be coordinated with international agricultural research centers through such programs as the International Center for Research in the Semi-arid Tropics located in India and the International Maize and Wheat Improvement Center in Mexico.

Robbery suspect sought

A warrant for the arrest of a suspect in the 3 a.m., May 8 robbery of the Hollywood 7-11 Store at the "Y" in Ruidoso, has been issued by the Otero County Magistrate's Court.

Officers of the Criminal Investigation Division (CID) of the Ruidoso Police Department conducted the local investigation.

Store manager Carol Bolin stated the subject "had what appeared to be a white plastic sharp instrument," displayed during the time he took an undetermined amount of money from the cash register.

A CID spokesman reported the suspect "jumped over the counter, pushed the manager around and ordered her to lie down on the floor," before opening the cash register. "The suspect's jumping over the counter was reported in instances of robberies of convenience stores and package liquor stores in Alamogordo and Roswell," the spokesman said, "leading to the suspicion that the same man was involved in all of the robberies."

Bolin said she did not see an escape vehicle.

— BY JOEY SASSO —

CONFIDENTIAL REPORT: ABC's 11 p.m. 'Eyewitness News' anchorman Larry Kane and his 6 p.m. counterpart Roger Grimsby have not shared angry words. In fact, Kane says, they haven't talked at all in the year that he's been in New York. Kane, 34, who moved to New York last June from Philadelphia, reportedly earned more than $250,000—a higher salary than Grimsby—and made no secret of his intent to become a star. Grimsby resisted strongly and there were several clashes between the two. Kane, who will return to Philadelphia by midsummer, told me, "I'm not going to be part of any character assassination. We don't have a relationship at all. I don't even say anything to him. We've never even had a conversation." Remember Morticia of 'The Addams Family,' attractive Carolyn Jones? After 10 years, she finally walked out on conductor Herb Greene. Soon after she left, a gun went off and one of Greene's ears was shot away, apparently self-inflicted. Now the divorce has come through and she was ordered to pay him alimony of $200 a month, on his plea that with only one ear it's hard to conduct an orchestra.

TV BACKSTAGE: Mama Lucille Ball must think it's serious for she gave a family dinner for her son Desi Arnaz Jr. and his steady gal Melissa March. Usually Lucy stays well out of her children's romances but she seems to be giving this one every boost she can. Kate Jackson has had it with Hollywood men. "There's just no way I could be married to an actor, no way!" she said firmly. "I just couldn't be married to a man who spends more time looking in the mirror than I do. Actors are good people, sure. But they're much too vain and I'm really turned off by vanity. I don't even like my own. But so far I've never met an actor who didn't have an extra-large dose of it." Kate would certainly know about Hollywood actors since she's dated enough of them. In the past two years, she flitted from Warren Beatty to Nick Nolte to Sam Elliott but each romance fizzled. The love bug has bitten pretty Marie Osmond and singer Andy Gibb—but mama and papa Osmond are really unhappy about the romance. Because the Osmonds' Mormon faith strongly supports close family life, non-Mormon Andy is bad news. He is divorced but worse is that his ex-wife claims Andy will have nothing at all to do with his young daughter Peta. The romance may not split the religious Osmond family but it is certainly causing a terrible strain. Friends confess that Marie, who is becoming extremely independent now that she's 19, is still furious that her parents refused to let her star in the movie 'Grease' with John Travolta. It also may be that Marie knows she won't get many choice film roles if she remains known as a goody-goody, although she proclaimed to Barbara Walters on TV that she conducted her career "according to the teachings of the Bible."

ON THE TV SCENE: Suzanne Somers was furious at a guard who wouldn't let her on the 'Three's Company' set when she forgot her ID badge. She wants him fired but he was just doing his job... Pamela Sue Martin (formerly of 'Nancy Drew') stars as a Las Vegas showgirl in the NBC movie of the week 'Human Feelings.' She'll be the cover girl for July's Playboy magazine... 'Happy Days' regular Anson Williams is in a happy daze since he and Lorie Mahaffey have named the day: Monday, Dec. 18. They celebrated their engagement with a party at Anson's Hollywood Hills home. Henry Winkler toasted the happy couple with Teacher's Scotch, the No. 1 scotch of partygoers.
