SBAC organizing protest on BLM's airport denial

Reactions to the Bureau of Land Management (BLM) decision Thursday to deny a request for land on which to build the proposed regional airport varied from surprise to resigned expectation, but most initial responses were accompanied by a resolute determination to appeal.

Consistently similar responses came from a poll of congressmen, state, county and village officials to the denial of the request made by the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) on behalf of the Sierra Blanca Airport Commission (SBAC) for 3,043 acres on Fort Stanton mesa on which to build a jet capable airport.

The denial by the BLM was made on the grounds present range and wildlife experiments being conducted on the property by New Mexico State University (NMSU) are "more important" than the airport.

Citing the Federal Land Policy and Management Act of 1976 state BLM director Art Zimmerman said the bureau was mandated to "retain land in the federal ownership unless as a result of land use planning procedure, it is determined that disposal of a particular parcel will serve the national interest."

Specifically, Zimmerman said, the proposed airport "would eliminate or disrupt several important ongoing research programs including several years of research data," results of which would "be applicable to 90 million acres of range land in the western United States including four million acres of public lands."

He added, "Interests to be served by the airport would be more of a local interest than a national interest as compared to NMSU research programs."

FAA AREA COORDINATOR Bill Howard said Friday, "We haven't gotten a letter from the BLM yet, but we talked with SBAC which will be appealing through us to the Department of Interior" before the December 29 deadline.

"As said in the past, we don't feel the airport development would adversely impact the grazing experiment," he said. "We hope to arrange a method where the two can coexist."

"We feel the existing airport needs to be replaced from a safety standpoint and it is important to the (area) economy to have (the proposed) airport."

Howard said the FAA would assist SBAC in structuring their appeal.

Congressman Harold Runnels, who serves on the committee on Interior and Insular Affairs, subcommittees Indian Affairs and Public Lands, Mines and Mining, special investigations, said Thursday he will remain in support of the proposed development of a regional airport.

He added an investigation of the results of the experiments might be undertaken. "I am curious as to how much money has been spent (conducting the experiments) and what has been found out. I will certainly ask questions."

Senator John Conway said Thursday, "I will be glad to accompany a delegation to Fort Worth (regional FAA offices) to discuss the need for the airport with FAA officials."

"I will support any endeavors to get the Secretary of the Interior to view this in a more favorable light and I will also work in support of the airport, within the limitations of my office."

Ruidoso mayor Lloyd Davis Jr., said Thursday he felt the airport project was destined for rejection since it was first discussed in 1976.

"Two years ago the BLM turned the proposal down before it ever was formally submitted. They've spent two years trying to justify, although they already had their minds made up, the way they thought two years ago," he said.

"The BLM may be in the same category as GSA with their latest problems (and criticism) for failure to recognize local needs that vested interests around the state (oppose)."

Davis added, "I feel the proposal was diligently researched. The FAA has substantiated reports and there was a great deal of work by the commission. I don't believe the BLM was receptive to the preponderance of evidence supporting the need for the facility."

"Personally, I, and I feel the village also, will support the FAA in their protest to the Secretary of the Interior."

John Sudderth, chairman of the Lincoln County Commission said Thursday, "I can't feature them turning down the request. Certainly the county and (airport) commission will protest prior to the (December 29) deadline."

"Runnels is behind the issue, the news media is behind the issue and although the issue is not unanimous in the county... we will appeal."

SBAC commissioner representing the Mescalero Apache Tribe, Wyndham

Runningwater, said, "We'll inquire on appeal methods; at this time, I don't know what approach we'll take."

"But I did anticipate the decision and we will definitely protest."

Runningwater said the commission will seek assistance in developing their appeal from FAA, and possibly through Southern New Mexico Economic Development District and a similar Four Corner's group.

SBAC Commissioner George Shoemaker, Lincoln County, concurred with Runningwater, stating, "I expected the decision. BLM seemed to be in the pocket of NMSU."

SBAC Commissioner Terry Strickland, Capitan, said Thursday, "We will definitely continue our efforts on the airport, doing whatever necessary to acquire the land on which to build an airport."

Bill Howard, area coordinator for the Federal Aviation Administration will attend the monthly Sierra Blanca Airport commission meeting at 2 p.m., Friday in the Ruidoso Downs village offices.

The meeting had been scheduled for Thursday.

GUBERNATORIAL CANDIDATES Joe Skeen and Bruce King would not return The News' phone calls and SBAC commissioners Richard Hall and Norman Wheeler were out of town.

TOM LOUDON AT WORK on the students' shelter he's completing at the school bus stop, at the "Y" entrance to Ponderosa Heights.

Students' lives easier because of Tom Loudon

At age 79, Tom Loudon not only has a sympathetic heart. He also has the skill, energy and community spirit to translate his sympathy into effective action.

To his sympathy for children waiting in early morning snow and rain for their schoolbus, Loudon has added 36 years of experience as a construction superintendent and job planner for Warner Brothers Universal studios in California.

The result: a roofed wooden waiting area for the children, built by Loudon as a community service.

"I saw the kids waiting out here for the bus in rain and snow and everything else," Loudon says of the bus stop at the junction of Highway 37 and the entrance to Ponderosa Heights. "Every time I went by I had to close my eyes."

"I don't believe in retirement. I have to do something to keep busy and I figured this was the best way to help the kids," the 14-year resident of Ruidoso said. "I thought finally we'd get something started here and maybe we'd get something going in the community. My wife, Florence, and I have always been interested in community activities."

The students used the bus stop shelter for the first time Thursday morning, though Loudon still has some painting and concrete work to do on it.

"I've counted as many as 18 kids at one time at this stop. They gather here every morning from the Ponderosa Heights area. I had 12 to 15 youngsters who wanted to help me work on the shelter this morning instead of going to school," Loudon reported Friday.

"I built it all myself. But I had various contributions of supplies. Bones Wright, of C & L Lumber donated part of the plywood sheathing for the roof, the cement and the shingles. The framing and other sheathing came from the village scrapyard," he said.

Working on and off for two weeks, Loudon built the framing and put together all the wooden parts in his home near the bus stop. Ruidoso village employees then loaded it onto a flatbed truck and hauled it down to the stop, Loudon said.

Assistant Ruidoso Village manager Frank Potter praised Loudon's work, adding: "I'm really proud of him."

Potter said he would like to see the village put up similar shelters elsewhere but plans are limited by the lack of available space for them at bus stop areas.

"That was a good place for that one and if we can find spots for other ones we'll sure try to put them up," Potter said.

Potter said he hopes the village will be able to put up a small split-rail fence around the shelter within the next week or so and that plans call for the village to landscape the stop with shrubs and other plants.

Handicapped, junior skiers style show set

A benefit style show, with all proceeds to the Ruidoso Junior Ski Racers and Sierra Blanca Handicapped Skiers Association (SBHSA), is scheduled at the Sierra Swim and Racquet Club from 5 to 8 p.m., November 3.

Briefly, the program activities include: THE JUNIOR SKI RACERS involve students from seven years old, if they can ski, through age 18. The skiers compete in age groups until age 14, after which they enter competition in ability brackets.

All students must provide their own transportation and coaches. The ability racers practice at least three times weekly and five days a week if possible. The age group skiers are on the slopes one and two times weekly.

These racers compete in Arizona, Colorado and New Mexico.

Junior Ski Racers from Ruidoso have represented New Mexico in Western States Competition. Each year five boys and six girls, from throughout the state, are named to this elite group.

An alumni of this program, Dale Pearson, is now attending the University of Colorado at Boulder under a full skiing scholarship.

THE HANDICAPPED SKIERS' program includes students who are visually handicapped, from totally to legally blind; the mentally retarded, amputees and cerebral palsy victims. These students come primarily from Alamogordo and Fort Stanton.

Students under this program, including Ruidoso's Shane Watts, an amputee, made a clean sweep of the National Handicapped Championships in Winter Park, Colorado last season.

At the International Disabled Ski Meet at Kelowna, British Columbia, Canada last season Guy Stuart, Alamogordo, a partially blind student, took first place in the entire meet. The Ruidoso team won a special award for being the best organized, trained and disciplined group.

"These accomplishments," Diana Grover of the SBSHA said, "point out the value of these two skiing programs to the youngsters and youth of Ruidoso and surrounding area."

Members of the Ruidoso Junior Ski Racers are selling advance tickets for Friday's benefit at $8 and tickets are also available at Alpine Ski Haus. Tickets at the door will be $6.50.

Ad deadline changed for ski tabloid

The advertising deadline for The Ruidoso News annual ski tabloid has been changed to Monday, November 13 at 5 p.m.

The change was made so that full distribution of the ski promotion tabloid can be made during the Thanksgiving season.

Advertisers are asked to contact Carmen Edwards or Caron Snow, telephone 257-4001, for rates and information.

In addition to being included with The News, as a special section when released, copies of the tabloid will be distributed during the peak season to familiarize skiers with the services and attractions available in Ruidoso.

Til Thompson announces future motorcyclists' convention plans

Til Thompson, promoter of the Aspencade Motorcyclists' Convention, today announced plans for another national meeting during Aspencade 1979 and one with an international flavor for Aspencade 1980.

"The vote of support accorded these conventions at the annual Chamber of

Ruidoso's trustees to meet

The Ruidoso village trustees will meet at 7:30 p.m., Tuesday in the multipurpose room of the Ruidoso Public Library.

Agenda items include:
- Reports from the Lodger's Tax Committee and remodeling at village hall.
- An appointment to fill a vacancy on the Lodger's Tax Committee.
- Report from the Animal Control Officer.
- Action to name an interim village building inspector during the convalescence of Chuck Brown.

Commerce membership meeting," Thompson said, "indicates that the delegates to these conventions are welcome guests in Ruidoso."

"It is obvious that the community knows the American Motorcycle Association (AMA) members are law abiding and generous people."

"It will be a pleasure for me to work with the Chamber of Commerce and all of the members to continue bringing these conventions here as an economic boost following the end of the racing season."

Thompson said the 1979 convention will be held from October 1-6 and that the motorcycle parade should "be bigger and better than ever."

"The top door prize next year will be a 1979 Suzuki GS 850 motorcycle, valued at $6,000," Thompson said. "It will be custom finished and will be loaded with California accessories."

The 1980 convention will be a combined venture of the Federation of International Motorcyclists (FIM) and the AMA, Thompson said.

"I will be in Munich, Germany and Geneva, Switzerland next June," he said, "and will invite 1,000 motorcyclists, that's the maximum, from Europe to attend Aspencade 1980 as the first global meeting of its kind."

The European motorcyclists will be flown to Denver, Colorado then to Roswell and will be bused to Ruidoso. These convention delegates will travel exclusively by bus during their stay.

"Our foreign guests will be here from October 1-4, 1980," Thompson said, "and I'll be arranging accommodations after I return from Europe next summer."

The international convention, Thompson said, is fully sanctioned by both AMA and FIM.

Regional Wastewater System Joint Use Board meeting set

The Joint Use Board of Ruidoso and Ruidoso Downs will meet at the Ruidoso Downs Municipal building at 7 p.m., November 6 to consider action to implement Step II of the Regional Wastewater System to serve both villages.

Step III includes construction of the new treatment plant to be located near the Biscuit Hill area, east of Ruidoso Downs, and installation of sewer lines to serve the facility.

State Construction Grants Administrator, Ken Karlson of Santa Fe, has notified officials of both villages that the Step III project has been given "Priority 4," meaning funding should be available to start construction in the spring of 1979.

At the meeting Quinton E. Daniel, Daniel Engineering Company of Alamogordo, will report on the completion of Step II, the design planning and engineering of the new sewer system.

Updated cost figures peg the project at $6 million, with $750,000 from the state, $500,000 from Ruidoso and $250,000 from Ruidoso Downs. The federal share is $4.5 million.

In addition to the treatment plant, Step III includes:

- Installation of large interceptor lines leading to the plant.
- New lines from Ruidoso to the plant.
- New sewer collection system in Ruidoso Downs.
- Rehabilitation of existing sewer lines in Ruidoso.
- New interceptor lines in the east section of Ruidoso.
- Collection lines in Brady Canyon.

The cost of the interceptor lines will be borne by each village.

The new system meets all requirements of the Environmental Improvement Agency and Environmental Protection Agency.

The plant and service lines are designed to handle a daily flow of five million gallons, estimated to serve the needs of both communities over the next 20 years.

LITTLE HOBGOBLINS, WITCHES and other frightening creatures will be on the loose on the streets of Ruidoso/Ruidoso Downs tomorrow eve, to holler "Trick or treat" as householders open their doors. Drivers should take due notice of the costumed little people, who will be busily engaged in the business at hand, and paying no attention to traffic. Desert weed possible new rubber source

The humble guayule bush, a scruffy desert weed, is on the verge of becoming the center of a new, natural rubber industry which could ultimately free America from dependence on foreign rubber supplies.

"And that's important to New Mexicans," says Dr. Wayne Whitworth, a guayule researcher with New Mexico State University's Agricultural Experiment Station. "With proper research and development, guayule could provide New Mexico's economy with an important cash crop."

According to Whitworth, "America currently imports about one million tons of natural rubber annually, and it costs us one-half billion dollars."

Just as important as the cash outlay for rubber, Whitworth says that in case of a national emergency, our rubber supply would obviously be vulnerable. And even if there never is such an emergency, scientists now estimate that the world's natural rubber will be in short supply by the mid-1980s.

Looking ahead to that shortage, the United States Senate recently passed legislation authorizing the Secretaries of Agriculture and Commerce to appropriate a total of $30 million over the next four fiscal years for researching and developing guayule.

Whitworth and other guayule researchers in Arizona, California, and Nevada say guayule, which is native to Mexico and the Big Bend area of Texas, can also be grown on an estimated five million acres of land in the Southwest. However, there are problems, and that's where those appropriated funds could help.

According to Whitworth the funds would allow him "to determine if guayule will grow and produce rubber at a level which will be economically competitive with other, conventional New Mexico crops."

Whitworth explains that one problem with growing guayule in New Mexico is that the plant is a warm-season crop, meaning its growth in New Mexico would be limited to the southern one-quarter of the state. One solution may be to cross guayule with a cold-tolerant relative named mariola.

"Mariola produces little, if any, rubber," Whitworth says. "But it is very tolerant to cold weather. By crossing guayule and mariola, we may produce a cold-resisting, rubber-bearing plant with an extended climatic range."

In addition, Whitworth is trying to increase the rubber content in individual guayule plants. Increasing that content is important because one-third of the plant's rubber supply is in the roots which means the entire plant must be dug up to obtain maximum yield.

Whitworth points to experiments conducted by Dr. Henry Yokoyama in Pasadena, California which have shown that guayule's yield of natural rubber can be increased two to six times.

Other research shows that four acres of guayule plants would be needed to net one ton of rubber. To meet the nation's rubber requirements of a million tons a year, Whitworth says, "quite a few acres will be needed."

Then, too, in order to extract rubber from the plant, factories will be needed. Mexico now operates the world's only guayule processing plant which converts 400 pounds of guayule to rubber daily.

Obviously the United States will need its own plants. "Some people estimate 10,000 acres of guayule are needed to justify building a rubber factory," Whitworth says. "But I think at least 40,000 are needed."

The agronomist reasons that because guayule is harvested only at three-year intervals, and because the whole plant is harvested, more acres will be needed to maintain the factory.

Whitworth says the process of extracting rubber from guayule is relatively simple. "The plant is defoliated, as the rubber is in its roots and bark," he says. "It is then ground up to release the latex and put in water. The latex coagulates and floats, while the debris sinks. Once the latex is extracted, it still contains a high resin content which must be removed."

Whitworth concluded by saying guayule has been used for centuries. For instance, the Aztec Indians chewed guayule, extracted the rubber and converted it into balls which they used in games resembling basketball.

Back in 1910, the bush also supplied 10 percent of the world's rubber supply. And during World War II, under the Emergency Rubber Project, guayule supplied more than 50 percent of the United States' supply of natural rubber. Unfortunately, at the war's end, when Asian rubber again became a accessible and inexpensive, the Emergency Rubber Project was abandoned and the humble, desert-loving bush was relegated to the status of a weed and forgotten.

But in the future, this hardy weed may once again play a significant role in the world's rubber supply.

Veterans' benefits rise

The veterans disability act signed by President Carter October 18 will increase compensation for up to 69,000 veterans, their dependents and survivors in Colorado, Wyoming, New Mexico and Utah.

The law provides for a 7.3 percent increase in compensation and other allowances, note directors of Veterans Administration (VA) regional offices in Denver, Colorado, Cheyenne, Wyoming, Albuquerque and Salt Lake City, Utah.

The law, retroactive to October 1, refines the complex system of VA benefits for service-connected disabilities.

Persons affected number nearly 2.55 million nationally and 33,969 in Colorado, 4,353 in Wyoming, 18,565 in New Mexico and 12,037 in Utah.

Under the new law, veterans who have lost one arm or leg or its use, and have since lost the paired arms or legs from non-service connected causes, will get an added monthly $175. Those who are 100 percent disabled through service-connected loss of three extremities will receive increased monthly compensation.

Disabled veterans whose prostheses cause excessive clothing wear will receive a 7.3 percent increase in their $203 annual clothing allowance.

Seriously disabled veterans requiring hospitalization, except for the payment of a special aid-and-attendance allowance, will get $900 a month to employ a health-care practitioner.

The new law increases the VA allowance for dependents of veterans with service-connected disabilities by 7.3 percent. Eligibility has been broadened to include dependents of veterans rated 30 percent or more disabled. The same increase has been granted to dependency and indemnity recipients — the widows and children of veterans whose death was service-connected.

The new household rate for surviving spouses receiving dependency-indemnity payments, who are disabled and confined to their homes, was set at $45 a month.

Surviving spouses and children of veterans who die of non-service-connected causes are entitled to VA dependency-indemnity payments — provided the veterans were totally, permanently disabled for service-connected disabilities at the time of death and had been so rated for 10 years. However, that 10 year requirement is reduced to five years from date of discharge for veterans recently separated from service.

The new law increases by $500 — to the $3,800 level — the one time allowance to assist purchase of an automobile by veterans with certain serious disabilities.

Effective next January 1, the law hikes the special VA pension paid to holders of the Medal of Honor to $200 a month.

Other provisions: — Maximum burial allowance for service-connected deaths was raised by $300 to the $1,100 level. That for non-service-connected deaths was increased by $50 to the $300 level.

— Memorial markers are provided for deceased veterans whose remains are unrecoverable.

— Secretary of Defense will place a plaque in Arlington National Cemetery Memorial Amphitheater honoring Vietnam era veterans.

— Only Americans will be hired as superintendents and deputies by the American Battle Monuments Commission for overseas cemeteries.

Under provisions of the Veterans Housing Benefits Act signed October 18 by President Carter, the VA will be permitted to pay the average actual cost of a headstone or grave marker purchased by a veteran's survivors. The marker must be aesthetically compatible with the cemetery and durable.

Another section of the act requires the VA to pay $150 to any state or its political subdivisions as reimbursement for a veteran's burial in a veterans cemetery the state owns.

Also authorized in the housing act is a VA 50-50 grant in aid for establishing, expanding and/or improving state veterans cemeteries. It permits the state to count up to 50 percent of the value of land set aside for that purpose as a portion of its share.

The action reflects the congressional view that the federal government should assist states in establishing veterans cemeteries but that states should retain long-term responsibility for care and maintenance of them.

Solar home exhibition set

New Mexico State University (NMSU) will open a new solar demonstration house on campus and make major changes in the already-existing solar home this year, officials said.

The university's second solar demonstration house should be ready for occupancy by January, according to Dr. Thomas Mancini, mechanical engineering professor who has supervised the solar home projects the last two years.

The flat roof southwestern-styled home under construction, just south of the university golf course off Frontage Road, has a "very simple" passive system for heating and cooling, Mancini said. The system, called a "Skytherm," consists of a water pond on the roof with well insulated movable panels to adjust the temperature.

In the winter, the panels are opened during the day to allow the sun to heat the water pond. At night, the panels are closed to retain heat. In the summer, the reverse takes place: the panels cover the water to prevent heating during the day and open at night to allow cooling.

The 1,900 square-foot house, estimated to cost $50,000 and an additional $5,000 for the solar system, is predicted to maintain an internal temperature between 68 and 80 degrees, winter and summer.

Meanwhile, a new study of NMSU's first solar house, the Collins Casa del Sol, adjacent to the new house, has been started by Dr. Edward Lumsdaine, acting director of the New Mexico Solar Energy Institute and a mechanical engineering professor.

A solar assisted heat pump is being installed in the Collins house to cut down on electricity costs, and to improve heat pump performance. The Collins house has an active solar system with roof collectors and a heat pump.

While trying to cut back conventional energy use and improve efficiency, Lumsdaine also will conduct two studies never before done on the house.

The house will be "zoned" with five convactor units, allowing researchers to control how much energy is used in each zone. The other study will examine energy load management in solar homes which also have conventional back up energy sources. To plan future energy needs, designers and industry need to know more about when and how much conventional energy will be needed in solar homes, Lumsdaine said.

Since the Collins house was built two years ago, students living in the demonstration house have collected data on its performance. A full report will appear later this fall.

One thing designers have learned from the Collins house is that the 46 solar collectors on the south facing roof provide more than adequate heating.

During the next phase of study, two thirds of the collectors will be blocked off to determine if fewer collectors will provide more even heating, said Randy Matzkanin, a mechanical engineering student who lived in the house for two years.

Rierson heads Downs P & Z

Officers elected by the Ruidoso Downs Planning and Zoning Commission (P&Z) at a special meeting Thursday night were Don Rierson, chairman; Bill Zink, vice chairman, and Howell Pugh, secretary-treasurer.

In other action, the commission changed its meeting night to the third Monday of each month.

The commission also gave tentative approval of plans for the Mountain Shadows subdivision, which would be located just north of River Park subdivision in northeast Ruidoso Downs. The plans must be approved by the state Environmental Improvement Division before they are brought back to P&Z for approval as a subdivision, village clerk Virginia Spall said.

Coffee Cart Wednesday

The regular Wednesday Coffee Cart, a Chamber of Commerce sponsored project for community participation, will be hosted by Brunell's November 1 at the Chamber office on Sudderth, from 9 to 10 a.m. Brunell's will be closed until 10 a.m., this Wednesday.

Wanted man arrested here

The Criminal Investigation Division (CID) of the Ruidoso Police Department, acting under a warrant issued in Dona Ana County, Wednesday arrested Manuel Reyes, Las Cruces, in a Ruidoso residence.

Reyes was wanted on charges of receiving stolen property valued at more than $100 but less than $2,500. The arrest was made, as the suspect attempted to flee on foot, by a Ruidoso police officer and a Lincoln County deputy sheriff. He was held in the Ruidoso jail until being transferred to a Las Cruces jail Thursday.

In an incident involving the theft of a 1977 pickup Wednesday, owned by Jimmy Melendrez of Ruidoso, CID's alerting port of entry authorities at Isleta, Texas, resulted in the recovery of the vehicle the same day. The identity of the driver apprehended in the stolen vehicle was not released to the CID at the time of the arrest.

Homemade clay ideal entertainment for restless pre-school children

Fall's here and the children are back in school — those that are old enough, that is. But what about the child that's too young to go but old enough to want to "play school?"

Spark their creativity, says Mae Martha Johnson, Extension food specialist at New Mexico State University. With a little imagination, you can "cook up" all sorts of low cost clays and paints from ingredients you already have in your kitchen.

PLAYDOUGH

1 cup flour
1/3 cup salt
3 Tbsp. water, approximately.
Combine flour and salt. Add water. Knead until the consistency of bread dough. It's ready for small hands to shape and knead! Store in airtight container in refrigerator. Sprinkle with more flour if it becomes sticky.

COOKED DOUGH

1 1/2 cup flour
1/2 cup cornstarch-blend with cold water
2 cups boiling water
1/2 cup salt
Add salt to boiling water. Combine flour with cornstarch and water. Pour hot mixture into cold. Put over hot water and cook until glossy. Cool overnight. Knead in flour until right consistency, adding color with flour.

PASTE

1/4 cup corn starch
1/3 cup cold water
3 cups boiling water
Mix cornstarch and cold water. Add this to the boiling water. Stir until mixed and slightly thick. Cool. Store in an airtight container in refrigerator. Discard if mold appears.

FINGERPAINT

1/4 cup liquid dish detergent
few drops food coloring
Stir slowly in a glass dish. Your fingerpaint is ready to use in seconds, and washes out easily from children's cotton clothes. Use on old newspaper, brown flattened paper bags, or plain paper. (Powdered paint can be substituted for the food coloring.)

Make your own bubble stuff. Combine 1/4 cup glycerine, 1/2 cup water and 1 tablespoon detergent in a jar. Children can blow bubbles with a bubble pipe or straw.

Try vegetable printing. Make a stamp pad by soaking several layers of cloth with paint. Cut chunks of potatoes, celery, carrots, cucumbers or other vegetables to use as stamps.

To arouse an interest in plant life, sow bird seed in a sponge. Sprinkle the seed on both sides of the sponge and place it in a dish. Keep the sponge continuously moist and watch for germination in four or five days. Youngsters can observe the formation of roots, stems and leaves as the plants develop.

Short story series Garden Club's film tonight

SOLDIER'S HOME by Ernest Hemingway is the film for the American Short Story Series held at the library tonight at 8. The series is sponsored by Altrusa and the Public Library.

In SOLDIER'S HOME, Harold Krebs is a soldier who returns home after World War I has ended and the greeting of heroes is over. Deeply changed by the experience of war, he cannot conform to the expectations of a community in which he feels alien. Krebs wants only to make his life run smoothly — to avoid lies and complications. Painfully, he faces the fact that he loves no one.

program on winterizing

"Green Expectations" are what the Ruidoso Garden Club members and guests will have if they follow the advice given by Mrs. J.A. Silkwood at their October 17 meeting in the Ruidoso Public Library multi-purpose room.

The program dealt with "putting gardens to bed for the winter" in order to have the best results next spring.

During the business meeting, president Mrs. Roy Avery advised that election of officers for the next term will take place at the November meeting. She also announced that the fall state board meeting will be held at the Woman's Club in Roswell October 31 and urged those who can to attend.

Isobel Rigby, who represented the Ruidoso Garden Club at the recent fall District Five meeting in Hobbs, reported on the activities and projects of the district.

Hostesses for the refreshments served from a decorated table were Mrs. Hal Yoder, Mrs. L. Counts and Mrs. W. B. Winniford.

Group organizes to revitalize Lincoln County Art Association

Approximately 50 persons attended a meeting Thursday to discuss revitalizing the Lincoln County Art Association.

A former association existed, which sponsored an art symposium and several shows, but it died out in the late 1960's.

"Many members moved away and interest died," Dave Travis former association president, said.

"The objectives of the organization were to encourage participation in the association with the end being greater promotion, appreciation, and enjoyment of a variety of art forms."

The organizational meeting was held to discuss reviving interest in the association, with one of the main objectives the reestablishing non profit status and filing with the Internal Revenue Service.

In another step toward their goal, the group elected officers including Pat French, chairman, Anne George, secretary, Tatti Hayden, treasurer, and Sonya Smith, parliamentarian.

Also, Jerrold Flores, volunteered to write a newsletter to be sent to those attending and others who are interested but did not attend.

During the meeting the group discussed sponsoring a project to build an art center.

"A development company has offered land for a theatre arts building," French said.

Joan Griffith, who has been active in several little theatre groups which have tried to get started in Ruidoso, said: "Land is one thing which, in the past, has kept us from developing."

"We'd plan a concert, an artist (show) or little theatre performance, but there was never any place to hold them."

"To build a small theatre/cultural building, people would have to be willing to raise the funds."

Other ideas discussed during the meeting included composing a materials list for use by area artists, sponsoring children's programs and craft classes and arranging caravans to other cities for ballet, symphony or other performances.

'The Music Machine' sets performance tour

A tour of performances of "The Music Machine," a family musical, will conclude with a program in Ruidoso November 12.

The schedule of performances begins with a program at 7 p.m., November 5 at Christ Community Church in Alamogordo, then performances at Camp Sierra Blanca November 11 and at Hogar de Emmanuel orphanage in Juarez, Chihuahua, Mexico.

The group will present a final performance at 7 p.m., November 12 at Community Methodist Church in Ruidoso.

Rehearsals for the presentations will be held through the next few weeks at Community United Methodist Church under the direction of Carlene Wadley.

Cast in the lead roles are Tim Wadley, Marnie Warlick, Timmy Wadley, Sylvia Turner, Kim Prophet, Kerrie Prophet, Greta Schmitz, Lois Covill, Danny Racher, Tom Kenyon, Wendy Walker, Wanda Walker, Chris MacWhorter and David Potts.

Chorus and dancers are Roger Marshal, Becky Ray, Lisa Harris, Noelle Wiltshire, Laura Blackburn, Linda Blackburn, Cindy Looten, Chris Spall, Eric Anderson, Paulette Sanchez, David Swalander and Dawn Leavitt.

Instrumentalists are Joyce Nix, Monica Sharp and Dawn Osborn.

In charge of props are Cyd Wright and Inez Schmitz; costumes, Pam Wiltshire; lights, Farrell DeSoto; sound, Kenny Foster; stage, Sammy Pirelli; make up, Stephanie Walizer and choreography, Kim Prophet.

ALLERGIES seem to plague more people more often today than ever, possibly because of increasing impurities in the air. Whatever the reason, those who are bothered with allergic reactions certainly don't want to invite them.

The right carpet, and routine carpet care, can help cut down some allergy problems in the home. For instance, dust is allergenic, so it will pay you to vacuum your carpets regularly, picking up surface and deep-down dust.

Bare floors allow dust to stir around and "fly" more, increasing the irritation to humans, young or old. Carpets tend to "catch" dust, so regular vacuuming keeps the whole room cleaner, fresher.

Also, you should choose a non-allergenic carpet where family allergy problems are known to exist. Many of the newer man-made fibers, like polyesters and acrylics, are non-allergenic. But remember, too, that natural fibers, like wool, are often treated to make them non-allergenic. They'll be labeled if they're treated, so take a look...or ask us.

We'll be glad to answer all your carpet questions, and delighted to show you the great array of values we're showing right now...carpets you'll be proud to show off, at low prices to surprise you. Come in and take a good look around!

Lordsburg win buries Warrior playoff hopes

BY JOHN NEYLAND
Sports Writer

The Lordsburg Fightin' Mavericks capitalized on a costly Ruidoso error in the first half to down the Warriors 28-7 and send the Warriors' playoff hopes to the cemetery.

With Lordsburg leading 6-0 on the strength of two Joe Mora field goals, Warrior punter Mark Dutton backed up to receive the snap deep in his territory. Center Jay Raulerson snapped the ball over Dutton's head and Lordsburg took over on the Warrior five yard line. A few plays later, running back Larry Guerrero bruiser two yards for the touchdown. The extra point failed but Lordsburg had doubled their lead over the troubled Warriors to 12-0 at the half.

Warrior coach Darrel Stierwalt thought that was the turning point of the game. Had Lordsburg not received such an easy score Ruidoso would have been within six points at half time.

"That was the turning point of the ball game, I thought," Stierwalt said. "Didn't you?" he asked assistant coach Barry Nelson. Nelson nodded his agreement.

Although that turnover and eventual Lordsburg score hurt, the killing blow occurred later in the first half. The Warriors had moved inside the Lordsburg 10 yard line with less than a minute left on the clock. The Warriors were out of time outs and weren't able to score before time ran out.

"That was a turning point," Stierwalt said.

Earlier the Warriors had been stifled at the Lordsburg 25 yard line when, facing a fourth and one, the Warriors went for the first down and came up six inches short.

"That hurt us," Stierwalt said.

The Warriors did what they needed to do in the third period defensively. They kept Lordsburg off the scoreboard. But, offensively, they were also shut out. Then, in the fourth period Lordsburg put the game away.

David Holguin ran one yard for a touchdown. Joe Mora added the point after kick. Holguin figured into the final Lordsburg score. He hit Eloy Marquez on a 40 yard pass play to seal the Warriors' fate. Mora again added the point after.

The Warriors averted a shutout late in the fourth period mounting an impressive 90 yard drive. The score came on quarterback Borde Williams' six yard toss to end Jeff Elliot. Mark Dutton added the point after.

In the final analysis, the same thing as always killed the Warriors. Inexperience in the offensive and defensive lines hurt. So did the absence of tackle Truman Bob, who was injured in practice Thursday afternoon. He has torn ligaments in his knee. Stierwalt doubts his availability the rest of the season.

"We really needed Truman Bob. That really hurts us," he said. "From what I can tell Jovian Smith (Bob's replacement) did a good job. But they found a weak spot on our left side and just kept pounding. Boom, Boom, Boom."

Operation Game Thief pays off

Operation Game Thief's (OGT) telephone has rung steadily for the past several weeks, reports OGT coordinator Dan Pursley. Department of Game and Fish officers are busy investigating cases in all areas of the state.

Pursley said Operation Game Thief's toll-free hotline, 1-800-432-4263 — is receiving from 15 to 25 calls a week, and sometimes more, with information on big game and other wildlife law violations. In addition to OGT calls, department officers are investigating cases brought about through intensive patrols.

Operation Game Thief, a cooperative citizen-department effort to curb poaching, pays $250 or more for tips in big game cases and $50 or more in violations involving small game, game birds or other protected species. Callers are not asked to give their names to the department or testify in court.

Pursley said field reports into the department's Law Enforcement Division indicate that magistrates are extracting large fines from defendants found guilty of violating the state's wildlife laws. The department's conviction rate is between 90 and 95 percent, he added.

Fines, civil damages when applicable, defendants, magistrates and arresting officers in cases that have recently come to court:

— $300 for spotlighting, levied against Zane Williams, 21, Otis, by Carlsbad Magistrate L. L. Linnewah; Waldo Weatherspoon investigated.

— $400 each for shooting from a vehicle during an antelope hunt, levied against George Radcliff, 37, Fairhope, Alabama and James McLean, 33, Point Clair, Alabama by Roswell magistrate Robert Ramirez, Game and Fish officers Ron Porter and Ruben Gonzalez investigated.

— $150, plus $150 civil damages, for shooting three turkeys out of season, levied against Charles Sipko, 26, Silver City, by Silver City Magistrate John Scholl.

— $400 each, plus $300 civil damages, for illegal possession of antelope, levied against Guadalupe Carrasco, 23, Hobbs, and Dan Sutherland, 20, Hagerman, by Roswell Magistrate Robert Ramirez. Game and Fish officers John Goodwin, Bruce Stout and Waldo Weatherspoon investigated.

— $400 fine, assessed against Albert Mandillas, 58, Cloudcroft, on charges of illegal possession of a deer in a case heard by Alamogordo Magistrate Henry Prelo. Three other defendants in the case, previously convicted, were also fined $400 each, and the department will assess an additional $100 in civil damages for the state's loss of the deer.

— $200 fine, assessed against Merle Miller, no age available, Ruidoso, by Ruidoso magistrate Jim Wheeler, on charges of exceeding the possession limit by 15 doves. In addition, the Game and Fish Department assessed $150 civil damages — $10 per bird.

— $500 fine ($1,000 total, $500 suspended), plus $300 civil damages, assessed against Danny R. Cordova, 47, Santa Cruz, on charges of illegally killing an elk in the Pecos Wilderness. Magistrate Pat Romero, Las Vegas, heard the case.

Hunters use heads to keep warm

Attention deer hunters with cold feet and hands. Keep your hat on! If your head is uncovered, that's probably why you are cold.

Susan Wright, extension clothing specialist at New Mexico State University said that a surprising amount of body-heat loss occurs at your head. When the head is covered, the heat that is saved goes to other places — like the hands and feet.

Wearing gloves will also help preserve body heat. But, more importantly, gloves will prevent hands from becoming deeply chapped and weathered.

Thermal underwear can also help hunters stay warm. The underwear traps a layer of still air in the fabric and acts as an insulator to keep body heat in and cold air out.

Thermal underwear is made from three basic types of fabric: thermal-knits, insulated or quilted fabrics and fishnet (or brynje). You can buy shirts with short or long sleeves, pants with long legs, vests and boot-socks.

Thermal-knit fabric are lightweight and can be worn indoors for short periods of time, Wright said. They are machine washable and dryable.

A layer of absorbent cotton is used on the inside of the underwear to prevent a "clammy" feeling due to perspiration. The outside of a thermal-knit may be a blend of cotton with polyester, acrylic, nylon or even wool.

Insulated underwear is made in layers which are quilted or laminated together. Cotton is usually used on the inside layer with a nylon tricot or taffeta for the outer layer. The insulating layer may be foam, polyester fiberfill or other batting material.

Insulated underwear is lightweight and more cumbersome than thermal-knits. However, it gives more protection against extreme cold than other types of thermal underwear. It is machine-washable and dryable, shrink resistant, dries quickly and needs no ironing. It is not suitable for indoor wear, Wright said.

Fishnet underwear is made from cotton cord knitted in an open mesh fabric. The extra large holes in the knit trap warmth from the body, yet allows the moisture of perspiration to evaporate. Fishnet underwear should be purchased to fit snugly and is worn under a conventional T-shirt or long johns. This knit does not have as much stretch as thermal-knits and is not as comfortable as the other styles of underwear.

When selecting thermal underwear, choose items with sleeves, legs and necklines with ribbed cuffs, Wright said. Sizes are usually according to chest and waist measurement for men, women and children.

Calculated hunting method best bet to nab deer

Some mule deer hunters seem to take game year after year, while others may go several seasons without firing a shot. Jim Vaught, a successful veteran of many mule deer hunts in states throughout the Rocky Mountains, is a former guide and, as a conservation officer with the Department of Game and Fish, has also watched hundreds of other hunters utilize some of the best and some of the worst of techniques.

"One of the most important things is to consider the general region where the most deer are going to be and to remember where they're going to be under specific conditions within those regions," Vaught said. "Considering all the preparation that goes into a hunt, a person should think positively about driving the extra distance to go to a better deer area. Another few dollars' worth of gasoline and several hours' driving time are well worth the trouble." Among the most common mistakes he and other game officers have seen, he said, are "being in the worst places at the worst times; that may sound simplistic, but it's true; guys that are road hunting, or hunting too close to the roads and camps where the most activity is, are badly hurting their own chances of finding deer."

He has watched, he said, while hunters worked the canyon bottoms heavily but herds of mule deer calmly chewed their cud from a safe distance back up on the ridge.

"They won't move a long ways unless they're really pressed," Vaught said of the mule deer. "They'll just move away from the areas of most activity — even into less cover, rather than more, if there are fewer hunters there. The idea that there aren't enough hunters around to move the deer is shoddy philosophy when it comes to hunting mule deer. Too many hunters simply move away and into better hiding."

The stratified deer season sharply reduces the number of hunters afield at any one time, compared to opening days of former seasons, and makes the hunting more pleasurable for many hunters he's contacted, Vaught said.

His own method? "First, go to the region where the most deer are, and locate signs of deer within that. If you can't find sign, the deer aren't there, and you should hunt somewhere else. Second, my favorite way is to leave camp early — way before daylight — and be on top of the ridges when the sun starts up, because the deer are going to be up and stirring around most during that first hour of daylight. After that, they're likely to be bedded or at least resting in cover."

Deer rest where they're most comfortable: in cool, breezy places if bothered by insects on hot and windy days, more commonly in shaded areas on the lee side of hills during warm weather, in more heavy cover during wet weather. Many hunters, perhaps worried about being snowed in and not being back to work on time, leave at the first sign of bad weather, he noted — right when they should be prepared to stay and hunt.

"Wet weather helps a hunter move quietly, and deer stay active longer into the day when it's cool and cloudy. With fresh snow on the ground, tracks are easy to locate and deer easier to see," Vaught said.

Seeing deer is many hunters' most difficult task, he said. "These animals have evolved through thousands of years, and they don't make it their habit to be easily seen. That's why it's important to be hunting when they're active, at first and late light; during the day binoculars can be a big help."

Glassing an area says off only when it's done thoroughly and systematically, and when the binoculars are used on areas where deer ought to be at a particular time of day under particular weather conditions.

Larger bucks will be running singly or in small bachelor herds during November's deer season, and usually range in rougher country than do the herds of does and smaller bucks.

Volleyballers downed twice

The Ruidoso Warriors girls volleyball team ran into some trouble this weekend in Hatch. The trouble was named Animas and Lordsburg.

Head coach Sergio Castanon was hoping the Warriors would sweep both games. A sweep would have given the Warriors a number one seed in the district tournament this weekend, also in Hatch.

The Warriors faced Animas first on Saturday and lost in two games, 15-7, 15-8. Castanon wasn't all that disappointed, however.

"Animas is a tough team. Overall we played pretty fair," he said.

In the second game Saturday, Ruidoso lost two close ones to Lordsburg, 15-12 and 15-13. The narrowness of the losses gave Castanon some hope for the district tournament.

"Don't be surprised if we win some," he said. "We may come back with some victories."

The Best Thing We Can Do For Ourselves Is Send Another Effective Senator To Santa Fe. Bobby Dan Crenshaw

The important issues are all there... and waiting: tax reform, holding down the size and cost of state government, giving Otero and Lincoln Counties the way to improve our everyday services without placing additional tax burdens on us.

What we're waiting for is another State Senator committed to those goals -- with the energy to make sure the job gets done.

haven't had before. And that can make all the difference to Lincoln and Otero Counties.

BOBBY DAN CRENSHAW is a native New Mexican. A successful businessman, a family man involved in the community, and a good neighbor who thinks the same way we do -- he knows we can do better in Santa Fe.

BOBBY DAN CRENSHAW. Another effective Senator for Otero and Lincoln.

Now is the time when we can accomplish so much with a common sense approach to state government and with the kind of cooperation and old fashioned commitment that we're just not getting from our State Senator right now. Attitude has a lot to do with it, and Bobby Dan Crenshaw brings a strong voice, a firm commitment and the energy and attitude to the job that we

Capitol Comment

Santa Fe — Sign of the Times: For months there has been a sign underneath a balcony at the huge PERA building in the Capitol City warning people to stay clear because the balcony might fall down.

It's taken that balcony as long to be repaired or fall down as it has taken the legal-beagles to take action on the close-out report of the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) — a report which was submitted by the Human Services Department's Investigations Unit last October 23rd.

That probe unit was staffed with fifteen "investigative-audit type" personnel and included two clerical and secretarial persons in the support section.

Although $80,000 originally was set aside for the investigation, the total cost came to $66,308.

In all, a total of 106 reports were completed by the investigative staff and a copy of each report was kept on file at the Human Services Department and another turned over to the Office of the Attorney General.

If our sources are correct, and we're certain they are, even though the Attorney General's Office received a copy of the entire close-out report and the 106 reports, a total of seventy-two were singled out for "specific" consideration, which means in those cases charges could be filed of a serious nature.

Our sources say steps will be taken right away to move for a joint session between HSD and the AG's office to "get the show on the road."

Standing in the wings are the Federal investigators from the Employment Security Department, who have been patiently waiting for the locals to clean up their own act.

If action isn't taken and soon, you can expect the Feds to step in.

Short Shorts: While covering the candidates in the Big Duke City, this reporter turned down an offer to fly with Senatorial candidate Tony Anaya to Carlsbad for a Demo function that fed 2,000 plus.

And are we glad! Anaya had to make a quick flight back and the weather was so bad and rough, the pilot decided to forget about returning to Santa Fe and set down in Roswell.

Tough Toney and his staff decided to rent a car and drive back to the Capital City. The little gal at the car rental counter didn't recognize the State's Attorney General and asked him if he was a jockey!!

That's too much horsing around for a candidate who only recently was called a midge by the State Senator from Taos, C.B. Trujillo.

Food for Thought Item: One of our Northside "birdies" likes to play with legislative voting figures and came up with the following appraisal: If right-to-work should pass the Legislature during the 1979 session — then, liquor reform legislation would fail.

His look-see at the voting records shows the same guys traditionally against liquor reform to be in favor of right-to-work, so in a session when both issues get exposure, you can draw your own conclusions.

The liquor reform legislation our "birdie" is referring to concerns changes in the present quota system.

Flying High: Every time a new Administration takes office, you can bet there will be talk about a "study" of the State's airplane use.

This reporter never has seen a truly comprehensive report on the entire New Mexico "air force", although several studies have been made of aircraft assigned to specific agencies.

Just for the record, has anyone ever checked to see if there is an overall policy for pilots for activities such as staying overnight or flying back "deadhead"? We're just asking, that's all.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

We recently returned from the Motorcycle Aspenade Rally. We had a great week and hated to leave your beautiful city. I would like to relate a story one of the fellas with us, Rick Money, told us.

While shopping, a lady merchant told Rick she was glad to see us come. He asked why. She said the racing people are too busy gambling and don't spend much money, in town. The skiers can't spend much because their equipment costs so much. But, you bikers will buy anything in the place!

I'm sure some did not want us to come and "ruin" their town and I hope we didn't. Most of us try to leave a good impression. However, if you reflect on tourism as your main source of income or at least the largest, 5,000 people in one week can dump a lot of money. I know how much we spent. We were conservative, but if we multiplied

HOW'S YOUR PSYCHE?

How's your psyche today? If you didn't know you had one, you have little cause to be embarrassed. Maybe you were old-fashioned enough to have only a traditional education. You spent your time on things like math and science.

Now that you have your facts straight and the numbers right, you find that the world is not all that interested in quantifying and calculating. The scientific method is out; guesswork and games are in.

Today it's hard to pick up a magazine that is not sympathizing with your neuroses. You are suffering from reaction formations or symbolic displacement. You need to get into transcendental meditation, transactional analysis, orgone, Rolffing, bioenergetics, or give out with a primal scream.

TV talk-shows routinely discuss therapies such as psychodrama, role-playing, and encounter groups. Newspapers have daily installments of biofeedback charts, which promise to be a distraction surpassing even signs of the Zodiac. Astrology is seldom taken seriously, but biofeedback is considered new science.

Anyway, if you yearn to know the future, tarot cards, numerology, handwriting analysis, quartz crystals, Druid rune stones and Kirlian auras have the answers, never mind the courses of the planets.

When you stop to think about it, there appears to be at least a fair chance that we had simultaneously all gone nuts.

While we agree that raising one's consciousness can open new horizons, and that holistic health appears to be the best candidate, in the long run, for keeping life and limb intact, it also appears to us that it's easy to go off the deep end.

Subjective reasoning does have its place in life, but if you rule life by it, you may soon be living a life style that is not far removed from the Kinky farm. —Hop Graham, The Lovington Daily Leader

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

(This communication was addressed to John Neyland, sports writer with The Ruidoso News)

I thank you very much for having an interview with me, but I don't think any conflicts between myself and the officials was the topic of our conversation. I was quoted as saying, "I don't like them (the officials) and that I sense that they are plotting against me before a game." Many of my quotes, especially regarding officials, were reported incorrectly. And some statements attributed to me were things I did not say. Surely you could have picked a better topic than anger with the officials to write about. You misquotes have left me in a bad light with some people. The write-up would have been a lot better without the part about the officials.

I have participated and enjoyed sports a great part of my 17 years. They have been an important part of my life. I fully realize that games require officials. I've come to respect many of them and do appreciate good ones.

CAME THE SNOWS

Awakening to a ... and KRRR's Ed Hyman is ecstatic (?) about this phrase ... "Snow white is beautiful" Monday morning was a pleasing, if somewhat discombobulating, experience ... setting the stage for the delights of winter ... which will arrive in due time ... with, or without, undue haste.

Anyway ... discombobulating time returned ... with less of a vengeance than on the morning of Monday ... Thursday ... to find the bluejays chasing the lesser feather bearers from the feed trough, before Old Sol'd risen high enough to shine over the mountain ... if'n it'd been clear enough for this soul-warming phenomenological experience to occur.

Getting back to Hyman ... to say naught of News publisher Ken Green ... both were ecstatic Monday morning ... and in a state of felicitousness Thursday, albeit very early in the day ... because generous snowfalls had blanketed Harmony Valley ... giving amateur photos the opportunity to vie for the prizes being offered by the "Snow white is beautiful" photo contest being sponsored by The News and KRRR Radio.

'Course ... there's this much about the elysian ebullience displayed by Green and Hyman ... they didn't have no snow to shovel to get from their abodes to the street out ... and, as contest sponsors, they didn't have to get doused by Ponderosa pine boughs shedding their white and soggy burden, as they tried to focus on a shapely pine cone adorned with a generous coating of freshly frosted raindrops ... as they gazed ... enraptured ... on the "Snow white is beautiful" scenery brightening the landscape so luxuriantly Thursday morn.

It is to be hoped that all the amateur photos eagerly awaiting the moment to enter the photo contest ... who got caught with their cameras out of grasp as Monday's snow became apparent in the dawn ... did their thing Thursday ... and snapped lots of "Snow white is beautiful" scenes ... to enter the contest ... and win their just desserts ... and be acclaimed for their prowess in the press and via the airwaves ... and to bask in their glory ... and ... above all ... to free Hyman and Green from the tortuous period of awaiting the contest's end ... after which, perhaps, they can combine their talents to promote vital projects ... such as skiing ... and regional airports.

ELECTION REFLECTIONS

With the exception of those insensitive clods attempting to belabor your ears on election day via radio, soliciting your vote ... the 1978 campaign has one week to go ... possibly more to the relief of the candidates than the voters ... and for confirmation that it's been trying campaign ... for starters ... you might ask Toney Anaya.

Remember when Bruce King slipped by Bob Ferguson in the struggle to get the Democratic nomination to run for governor? And, remember how Ferguson didn't exactly risk breaking a leg by climbing on King's bandwagon? 'N then ... rumor has it ... Bruce up and visited Bob ... and they chatted ... and, by jinkies, Bob up and became a buddy-buddy of Bruce ... and Bob popped into public view ... bobbin' on Bruce's bandwagon. And that same rumor has it that Bruce offered Bob a political plum ... tenuously ... a political plum ... singular ... more valuable than 17,953 boxes of apples. You know ... by jinkies ... a rumor like that's worth checking out ... like the next time you're visiting with Bruce or Bob. The answer might be mighty interesting ... and it has nothing to do with apple pie ... rumor has it.

'Course there's Congressman Harold Runnels ... he ain't sweatin' none ... seems no Republican or Independent saw fit to expend energy and funds to run against him ... a testimonial to Harold that's hard to come by in politics.

Getting back to Anaya ... seems that Senator Pete Domenici's standing on his record ... and Anaya's stomping on it ... and rumor has it that Pete's not buying nearly as much foot balm as challenger Toney.

The important thing ... come November 7 ... is that YOU head for the polls ... and vote your convictions ... 'cause it's your chance to speak up ... to have your opinion counted ... a chance you get only every two years. And remember ... there's no admission charge to enter the voting booth.

BRIEF BIT: One reason Governor Apodaca isn't concerned about that $100 a plate feed at the governor's mansion is that he won't have to wash the dishes ... GD

The Dreamer
BY DANNIE STORM

On The Eve
Of My Birthday

This is being sent to you on the twenty-sixth of October, the eve of my birthday. And my heart is full of grateful happiness. And I want to share this thankfulness and joy with you, as we have shared so many blessings together over the years through the Silver Lining, The Dreamer, and our daily lives together.

Indian Summer returned for a day, yesterday, and this morning a little blanket of snow covered the mountain world. Now, today, the snow has melted under the very light rain and just a high noon the rain has stopped altogether.

A little snow on the high mts up the vale is there behind little misty clouds and just a little rain. All this reminds me that the weather all through these last few days is very much like the days before my first birthday in Valdez, Alaska.

Our father told me often about the long trip he made on foot through rain and sleet and snow to be present at my arrival into the world. My father enjoyed making trips on foot through rugged country in connection with his work as prospector, mining engineer, and government surveyor. On this trip he and his companion made the trip practically in a trot, and they made a short cut to save time. I think the distance was about twenty-five miles. They went across some ice that was not frozen enough and my father's companion went through. After quite a struggle the companion was saved and they both went on soaked in the icy water with the wind blowing.

My father said this was the hardest trip he ever made. And somehow this long trip was a bond between Mother, Father and myself, and also my oldest brother, John. We were all drawn even closer together in gratefulness and love. On this eve of my birthday I thank God for his care of Mother, Father and John in Heaven.

This being written on the twenty-sixth reminds me of something in my early childhood. When I was about two years old my father asked me, "Dannie, how much do you love me?" I thought a while and then said, "Twenty-six, and more than that."

I remember the delighted smiles of Mother and Father; and all through the years "Twenty six and More than that" became a little beloved slogan of love between Mother, Father and myself, and all the brothers.

A new Neighbor

One day about Tuesday of last week I met my close neighbor and good friend Gerry Tully in the Grocery store. He said, "You have a new neighbor." "Who is that?" I asked. "Our little boy," said Gerry.

Then he told that little Gerald Mackey Tully Jr. was born October twenty one. So now little Malaika has a little brother and there is great happiness in the home of Jane and Gerry Tully, just across the river from the Storm Ranch. We rejoice along with the Tully family and we wish "Little Mack" all happiness and God's blessings.

Birthday Cards

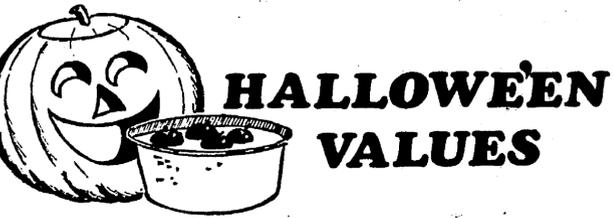

I received a very welcome birthday card from my Cousins, Claud and Marguerite Stevens in Escondido, California. As always, word from my cousins was full of cheer and blessings. I send them back my love and thanks.

Mrs. Effie Melhop of Dexter and Ruidoso sent me a birthday card full of kind wishes. Effie is a great lover of wild flowers and all of Nature's wonders, and we all appreciate this dear friend.

Our faithful friend, Mrs. Maxine Ross of Los Angeles, California sent me and Solo Vino a wonderful birthday remembrance, along with best wishes from her dog, Shane, and cat, White Princess. Solo and I extend our thanks for this kind remembrance.

The twenty seventh of October is an anniversary for the Storm Ranch dog, Solo Vino. Two years ago he arrived here in the house cold and hungry in a driving blizzard. The little Spirit Dog, Shady Logan and I took the little black dog in, and gave him a home. Today Solo Vino is the picture of health and happiness and grateful and proud of his home.

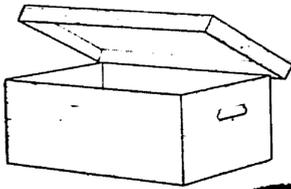

Again, thank you for all your kindness and help through the years. Let us rejoice and thank God for our countless blessings.

Corona avoids penalty on using too much gas

Nick Franklin, Energy and Minerals Department Secretary, has announced the signing of an agreement that will enable the Village of Corona to avoid financial difficulty arising from the shortage of natural gas.

The agreement releases the village from a penalty it would otherwise have had to pay for exceeding an interstate pipeline gas consumption entitlement for the period from May 1 through October 31, 1978. The agreement was made between Corona, the El Paso Natural Gas Company (EPNG) and the Jicarilla Apache Indian Tribe.

"I am grateful to the Jicarillas and El Paso Natural Gas for their generous cooperation in this matter," Franklin said. "Corona has exceeded its summer entitlement by over 42 percent and without this agreement would have been charged five dollars for every thousand cubic feet over allowance — a considerable hardship."

According to the agreement, which will be in effect for 60 days, Corona's penalty debt will be cancelled and EPNG will continue to deliver penalty-free gas to the village through the company's interstate line. Meanwhile the Energy and Minerals Department will purchase equal amounts of gas from a new well, PC-108, on Jicarilla land in northwestern New Mexico, for delivery into the EPNG system. Corona will be purchasing its gas from the energy department rather than from EPNG.

After expiration of the agreement, the department will retire from the scene and the net result will be that (1) EPNG has a new source of gas, PC-108, and (2) Corona is no longer faced with the penalty for exceeding its summer 1978 entitlement.

Groundwork for the agreement was accomplished earlier this year. In January the Jicarillas granted the State an option to purchase the first 60 days' production from certain new wells on tribal land, for emergency sale to communities along the EPNG interstate pipeline. EPNG agreed to transport the gas.

News from the County Agent

With the first freeze, livestock owners often lose livestock. It happens suddenly with no prior signs. These losses are often caused by the animal eating certain plants that have been stressed by freezing temperatures. These plants develop a nitrite poisoning. The nitrite in the frosted plant is quickly absorbed into the blood causing the animal to stagger, be short of breath and the mucous membranes dark colored. The blood is chocolate colored for about two hours after death.

The nitrite replaces the oxygen in the blood and actually suffocates the animal causing death. Animals can often be saved if they are given methylene blue intravenously. If the animal will eat, feed them a little grain and it will slow the absorption of nitrite into the blood. Remove the animals from the pasture if possible. Otherwise feed cattle a pound of grain a day until the frost damaged plants have started to dry up.

If you expect to get the most from your irrigated pasture you must manage it properly. Start with good seed — put in properly prepared seed bed. In this area the tall fescues give the best results as irrigated pasture grass. Some of the varieties are Fawn, Kentucky 31 and Alta. Fawn Fescue has outyielded other fescues up to 15 percent in some tests.

The best time to plant is late summer or early fall about September 1. Alfalfa gives more total forage but when it is more than 40 percent of the pasture forage, it can cause bloat problems. To get the most out of a pasture it needs to be irrigated about every 10 to 14 days using about 3 inches of water on sandy soil and 4 inches on loams.

Rotational grazing is essential to getting the most from the pasture. The pasture should be grazed for not over one week and rested two weeks.

Fertilizers — use up to 100 pounds of nitrogen in two or three applications each year. Also use 50 pounds of phosphate per acre each year.

A 'what'-hole cover?

The Woonsocket (R.I.) City Council, subsequent to their renaming manhole covers "person"-hole covers, and after weeks of ridicule, has restored the traditional name. With regard to the original vote, a verse from Councilman F. Lanctot's poem says it all: "I pride myself on common sense/ I usually know right from wrong/ But after that vote on person-holes/ I'm sure I deserve the gong!" We concur fully.

SUMMER OF MY GERMAN SOLDIER

Kristy McNichol stars as a troubled Jewish youngster whose search for friendship and understanding results in a major crisis when she meets a young German prisoner of war interred near her Deep South hometown, in 'Summer of My German Soldier.' The world premiere drama will inaugurate the 'NBC Theater' series Monday, Oct. 30 on NBC-TV.

Esther Rolle and Bruce Davison also star with Michael Constantine and Barbara Barrie in the World War II-era drama.

McNichol portrays Patty Bergen, daughter of the only Jewish couple in a sleepy southern town in 1944 who has endured an uneasy relationship with her father (Constantine).

When German POW's are brought into the area and show up one day at the Bergen store to purchase hats, Patty meets Anton (Davison, pictured with Miss McNichol), an articulate young man who speaks fluent English. Later, Anton flees his work camp and Patty attempts to convince him of the futility of his escape plan. When she fails, she allows him to hide in an abandoned loft she has claimed as her private hideaway.

HOW TO PICK UP GIRLS

Fred McCarren, Bess Armstrong and Desi Arnaz Jr. (pictured left to right) find a bench in Central Park to be a safe and sane hiding place from the rigors and exhausting demands of "having a good time" in Manhattan's swinging singles bars in 'How to Pick Up Girls,' a fast-paced comedy of life on the prowl, making its world premiere on 'The ABC Friday Night Movie,' Nov. 3.

The film also co-stars Alan King.

McCarren plays a naive mid-Westerner who comes to the Big Apple and encounters a more worldly-wise young man (Arnaz) who educates him in the ways of the big-city life.

This specially made-for-TV flick was filmed on location in New York City with many of the Big Apples' prime singles bars showcased throughout the movie.
