Capitan's school board approves skiing classes

BY GWYN JONES
Staff Writer

Almost an hour of sometimes heated discussion at the Capitan School Board meeting Thursday night resulted in a decision to allow district students to participate in a non-school sponsored ski program, similar to that in effect in Ruidoso.

The action will allow parents to sign permission forms in order to take their children out of school at 1 p.m., for skiing on six consecutive Wednesdays beginning January 10.

A stipulation was made that the children must make up all schoolwork missed. The motion carried on a 3-1-1 vote, with president Virgil Hall, vice-president Pat Huey and Richard Phillips voting in favor of the action. Board members Eugene Parker voted against the measure and Horace Cordova abstained.

Parker had earlier called for institution of a program with school to be dismissed on the six half-days. That motion died in a 2-2 tie vote with Hall abstaining.

The vote came after a report on prices and services available at the new ski area by Jackie Branum.

Most of the controversy on the action centered around whether school should be dismissed and all regular activities suspended for the program, or whether only those participating should be excused.

Some teachers voiced the opinion that if half the students in their classes were dismissed, the others would have trouble finding motivation to study.

Others felt the program should be established because it would give those who could not participate in competitive school-sponsored sports a chance to learn a sport that could be a lifetime activity.

The board also approved several resolutions related to the upcoming elections for one school board member and a bond issue. Those resolutions provided that:

— The election for bond, board and levy election be called by the board.

— The resolution calling for the election be published for four consecutive weeks beginning December 21.

— Automatic voting machines will be used.

— Pending their availability, judges and clerks who had worked in previous elections would be employed again.

The resolutions mean the district may be bonded "to capacity" according to superintendent Richard Clifton. Bond agent John Archuleta explained that "the state would look more favorably on a district which has raised as much money as it can locally," meaning the state would be willing to help the district with state monies.

Following that action Cordova, who had abstained from voting, said that the district was facing "the same kind of problems we've had in the past," and that he thought "the people recognize the need for additional facilities."

He also said, "I think the people would like to see a change in administration, and come election day, we'll find out."

Chamber's Coffee Cart Wednesday

The Wednesday Coffee Cart, a Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce project, will be at the Aspen Tree, 2340 Sudderth Drive, from 9 to 10 a.m.

The general public is invited to attend and visit with Chamber officers and directors on promotional matters to encourage tourism in the Ruidoso area.

School office closing dates set

Superintendent of Schools Pat Vallant has announced that the office of secretary, in the administration building, will be closed December 25 and 26 and January 1.

The office, on all other regular business days of the school's Christmas vacation, will be open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Students in the Ruidoso Municipal Schools will begin Christmas vacation about noon Wednesday.

Classes and regular bus schedules will resume January 2.

FIRE committee evacuation map nearly finished

Members of the Committee For Insuring Ruidoso's Environment discussed final activities Thursday as work on the village evacuation maps nears completion.

Ruidoso Police Chief Paul Lukens drew arrows showing evacuation routes to be taken in case of a forest fire on section maps of the village and a copy of the Alto map was given to Don Rash for similar arrows to be drawn in.

Intersections which probably would be closed to traffic in case of a fire also were marked.

Committee members discussed routing notes to the map explaining the routes were designed for evacuation from fires which occur when the prevailing winds are from southwest to northeast.

Historically, fires in Ruidoso have traveled from southwest to northeast, prompting the routing system on the maps.

Committee members agreed to check into emergency notification systems using KRRR and the forest service station.

Once procedures are outlined, the committee members will list steps to be taken in case of a forest fire for inclusion on the map.

In other business Thursday, chairman Herb Brunell reported the Rotary Club responded favorably to their proposal to affix permanent evacuation route arrows to the club's street signs.

The next FIRE committee meeting will be at 4 p.m., January 11 in the library, where the group hopes to finalize map plans for publication.

APPROXIMATELY 150 PERSONS attended the Christmas tree lighting Friday evening at the junction of Highways 37 and 70. Mayor Lloyd L. Davis Jr., Ruidoso, and mayor Norman Wheeler, Ruidoso Downs, flipped two switches to light the tree, then the audience sang carols with the madrigal singers.

Ski report

Ruidoso Ski Area reports a packed powder base of 30 inches with beginner, intermediate and the lower half of the expert run open.

Sierra Blanca Ski Area is closed today due to high winds, but reports an undisturbed snow depth at midway of 35 inches.

Sunday's high was 45 degrees and last night's low was 32 degrees.

For skiing condition reports, call Sierra Blanca Ski Area, 257-9001, and Ruidoso Ski Area, 336-4211.

Village trash woes aired to Service Club Council

Village planning and zoning enforcement officer Emory Hatcher, at Thursday's Service Club Council meeting, requested that residents report violations of ordinances resulting in ugly or hazardous areas to him for action.

During the meeting Hatcher said there are over 400 miles of roads in Ruidoso, more than in either Alamogordo or Las Cruces.

With so many roads to cover and other duties from which it is difficult to break away, Hatcher requested that persons spotting eyesores call him.

When the village locates a dilapidated building or trash strewn lot, the exact location (lot and block number) is found and the owner contacted.

In many cases, the village will work with the owner until the lot is clear.

But, in other cases, when all efforts fail, the village attorney will file a complaint through municipal judge Sam Nunnally and a summons is issued.

"The owner has five working days in which to appear," Nunnally said. Failure to appear results in filing of a bench warrant.)

"We work out from the appearance date what needs to be done and then agree on a reasonable length of time" for the area to be cleared.

In some cases the owner and village will enter into a mutual agreement to clear the lot.

Hatcher said two separate individuals have agreed to clear lots for the village at

Lodgers' group slams reporting of weather and road conditions

BY MARY WORMLEY

The lodging committee of the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce discussed several projects and elected a chairman at their Wednesday meeting.

Selected to serve as chairman of the group was Slover Cape, former chairman of a now defunct village lodging association.

During the meeting, lodging representatives expressed dissatisfaction with the weather reports, skiing condition reports and road condition reports broadcast in other areas and states.

Committee members said often weather and skiing reports for Ruidoso never were presented, while all other state ski area conditions were broadcast and weather reports from smaller towns, such as Cloudercroft, were broadcast.

Ed Jungbluth, Chamber executive secretary, was asked to look into methods for Ruidoso's weather and skiing conditions to be broadcast.

Lodging representatives also expressed dissatisfaction with the State Highway Department road conditions reports for Ruidoso.

"One report I heard said the roads were snowpacked, but they were clear," one motel owner said, adding she had several reservations cancel because of the reports of poor road conditions.

The committee asked Jungbluth to contact the State Highway Department and determine how correct information could be included in the area reports.

The committee expressed Jungbluth to contact the State Highway Department and determine how correct information could be included in the area reports.

The committee also discussed funding advertising to promote activities during the slow times instead of using it now to promote skiing.

"If Sierra Blanca (Ski Area) doesn't advertise itself but still can't handle the crowds sometimes, then I wonder if we may be wrong and should use the advertising funds to promote other times," Jungbluth said.

Possible projects include a week of activities in June, two Aspencade parades, square dancing in early summer and an antique car show in October.

The committee also discussed a high quality art show during an off-season which would take a year to coordinate.

During the meeting, Bud Nickles, Villa and Holiday Inn, said an American Legion convention of 400 to 500 persons will be in Ruidoso June 21-23.

He added Holiday Inn hoped to encourage more conventions and possibly build a convention center and shopping center beginning next spring.

Restaurateurs discuss problems in serving food customers fast

BY MARY WORMLEY
Staff Writer

Problems of serving large numbers of hungry persons were discussed at the Wednesday meeting of the restaurant committee of the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce.

According to Cliff Anderson, Nob Hill Restaurant, Ruidoso is a different kind of resort area, where "many visitors have a time table" by which they run, even while vacationing.

"Skiers have a mental time by which they want to be at the ski area and in summer, (crowds are moved) by whatever post time has been set at the race track," he said.

Because of these timetables, "we are deluged by business all at the same time," Anderson said, adding this causes problems with serving.

Committee members agreed to draw up a "table tent" to be placed on tables throughout the village restaurants giving a "simple explanation of service and goals of service, but adding reasons" why restaurants occasionally are unable to provide good service.

Two problems causing poor service brought up were the inability of some cooks to cope with the large influx of persons and problems of restaurant owners knowing how many waitresses to have on hand each day.

"You cannot have four waitresses on hand (every day) when you need four waitresses one day and only one the next day," Anderson said.

Also during the meeting, the restaurant committee discussed encouraging attendance of the meetings by other restaurant owners, but noted many were interested and could not attend because their business was a two-man operation and no one could be spared.

The restaurant committee set 3 p.m., the second Tuesday of each month in the Chamber offices as their regular meeting time, date and place.

The next meeting will be January 9.

Highway crews renew snow battle

"Snow in New Mexico? You've got to be kidding." That might be a typical reaction from someone who thinks of the state in terms of desert and year-round hot, dry weather. State residents and visitors familiar with the excellent ski areas in both the northern and southern parts of New Mexico know differently.

Heavy wet snow, vision-obscuring wind-driven snow, glare ice and road-closing high drifts are all a part of the winter scene in the Land of Enchantment. "The Highway Department's job is to keep the roads open, keep the traffic moving," said Chief Highway Administrator Fred L. O'Cheskey.

"WINTER HIGHWAY maintenance is costly in terms of both manpower and money," O'Cheskey said. The department's maintenance bureau estimate for the 1978-79 winter season projects the use of 159,048 manhours and the expenditure of $4,071,940 for winter highway maintenance. The dollar amount includes labor, equipment use and material costs. Maintenance bureau officials note that these figures are estimates. Actual expenditures will depend on the weather itself.

The Highway Department's overall goal is to build and maintain roads in such a manner as to enable motorists to travel from one part of the state to another with reasonable speed, safety and comfort. The department's maintenance manual stresses this goal in regard to winter highway maintenance. "It is the policy of the Highway Department to prosecute snow removal operations vigorously on all state highways so that traffic may move freely without interruption. Snow removal is an emergency operation and takes precedence over all other work," O'Cheskey said, quoting from the manual.

The district engineer in each of the department's five operating districts has the responsibility for the planning and operation of a winter highway maintenance program within his district boundaries. The districts differ markedly in their climate, terrain and weather history. Plans for winter maintenance activities will differ accordingly.

Using the guidelines developed through the department's maintenance management system, the district engineers and maintenance engineers prepare definite assignments for each maintenance patrol. They have a meeting with the patrol foremen each year prior to the onset of the winter season.

The maintenance patrol is the operating unit for maintenance in the department. Each segment of state highway is assigned to one of the more than 85 patrols stationed across the state. At the winter maintenance meeting, assignments are made to set crew responsibilities and establish equipment allocations and priorities for snow removal. These assignments become the standing orders for patrol winter highway maintenance operations.

The weeks preceding the first snow removal are also busy ones for the maintenance patrols. Equipment must be checked and necessary repairs made. Additional preparations include the clearing of road shoulders, erection of snow fences, guideposts, and special signs along with the stockpiling of necessary salt, sand and cinders for ice control use.

THE PRIORITIES FOR SNOW removal are based on use considerations. Interstate highways serve as the major carriers of vehicular traffic both intrastate and interstate and receive the highest snow removal priority. Also in this category are primary roads with an average daily traffic count (ADT) in excess of 5,000 vehicles.

Other primary roads and important connecting secondary roads are assigned the next priority. An example of such secondary roads would be a road which provides sole access to a small community. All other paved roads on the state maintenance system are in the third priority category.

Roads leading to winter recreation areas are given second priority. Each year the state Tourism and Travel Division and private enterprise spend thousands of dollars to attract winter sports enthusiasts. Their presence has a significant positive economic impact on the state. Roads to these sports areas are given a high priority to insure the safe maximum use of the facilities by visitors and residents alike. Such use provides a maximum economic benefit to the state. Also taken into consideration is the ADT increase on such roads because of the seasonal use.

EACH OF THE DEPARTMENT'S five operating districts is responsible for winter highway maintenance on state highways in a four to eight county area. Within each district there is a variety of terrain and population concentration with a resultant potpourri of winter maintenance problems.

District 2 is headquartered at Roswell, in the southeastern part of the state. District patrols are responsible for the maintenance of state roads in an eight-county area. Chaves, Curry, DeBaca, Eddy, Lea, Lincoln, Otero and Roosevelt are the counties which form the district.

The district includes the southeastern plains area and a portion of the east central plains as well as the Capitan, Sacramento and Guadalupe mountains. Nationally known tourist attractions such as the Carlsbad Caverns and White Sands National Monument are located in the district.

Two popular ski areas, Sierra Blanca Ski Resort and Ski Cloudcroft, draw many people to the mountains in the winter months. During the winter, snow blowers are used to clear mountain roads to the ski areas. But, says District 2 maintenance engineer Worthing Smelser, "Motorists, particularly those unfamiliar with mountain driving in winter, should be particularly careful on these roads."

District 2 also has the largest concentration of urban areas within the state. Cities such as Clovis, Portales, Hobbs, Roswell, Artesia and Carlsbad dot the plains while Alamogordo is situated on the western slope of the Sacramento Mountains.

Traffic is heavy around and between these urban areas, Smelser noted. "Rain and fog, freezing rain, snow and ice, usually in one combination or another, can cause severe problems for motorists and keep maintenance patrols busy round-the-clock," he said.

SALTING AND SANDING was until recent years the standard treatment for snowpacked and icy roads. More recently, government agencies, including the state Highway Department, have been taking a hard look at the use of salt in winter highway maintenance. "The department has and is continuing to monitor the use of salt in an effort to modify negative environmental effects and damage to road surfaces, bridges and vehicles," said maintenance bureau chief Charles Barbee.

Each patrol foreman is responsible for themodification of salt use on the roads in his patrol area. However, the reduction of chemical use must be consistent with the safety requirements of the winter highway maintenance program. "Safety is and will continue to be the priority consideration," Barbee said.

DURING THE WINTER months, maintenance personnel at each district headquarters office monitor the weather reports and advisories issued by the National Weather Service office in Albuquerque. When necessary, patrols will be alerted and placed on standby. When a storm hits, the snow removal procedure is the responsibility of the individual patrol foreman.

On weekends and after normal working hours on weekdays only part of a patrol may participate in initial snow removal efforts. The remaining patrol members may be held in reserve to take over as the storm continues. If a patrol foreman sees that his crew is unable to keep up with the work, he will inform his district maintenance engineer or supervisor and request additional help from one of the district special crews.

In some situations, where a patrol is small in number or a storm particularly severe in nature, some of the patrol members may put in two or three 18-hour days in a row.

The personnel of the department's public affairs office in Santa Fe also monitor winter storm progress. An information officer will gather data from the National Weather Service, the department's own radio network, local police agencies, ports of entry and other sources. Road condition advisories are prepared by the information officers and phoned to various radio stations. The same advisories are also furnished to the newspapers, wire services and television stations. Every effort is made to keep the motoring public advised about a storm and road conditions within the storm area.

"TRADITIONALLY the Highway Department has attempted to keep all roads open and as free of snow and ice as possible," O'Cheskey said. This means that while the roads can not be kept completely free of ice and snow, they will be plowed, salted and sanded as necessary to provide free access to motorists," he added.

Severe storms with heavy snow can make these goals very difficult to achieve. Often strong winds accompany the storms and blow the snow right back on the road as soon as it is plowed away.

In some cases on the interstate and other four-lane highways it will take all of the available manpower to keep just one lane open in each direction. Under such circumstance a second lane is opened as soon as weather and manpower permit.

The Highway Department tries not to close roads. However, motorist safety is the paramount consideration. If a road becomes impassable to the average vehicle or road surface conditions fall below reasonable safety limits the road will be closed.

ONE VEHICLE DESIGNED especially for snow removal is this Sno-Go. The Highway Department has a number of them stationed around the state.

Most road closing are of short duration. There are times however during a severe storm that a road must be closed for an extended period of time. When this happens, the road is blocked with barricades manned by Highway Department personnel. Signs are also placed at the nearest road junctions and towns to notify travelers of the road closing. The closed segment is also thoroughly searched for stranded motorists.

The Highway Department works closely with the State Police and local police agencies in situations where road closings are required. When necessary the department's public affairs office notifies radio stations in the affected area.

The effects of a severe winter do not end with the melting of the snow. Snow, ice, freezing and thawing all have a wear and tear effect on the roads. Cracks, potholes and eroded shoulders are the legacy of a hard winter. During milder winter weather temporary road repairs are made by the patrols. More permanent pothole patching, shoulder repair and crack sealing are deferred until spring when warmer temperatures allow the use of permanent patching materials.

THE WHOLE PURPOSE of this heavy expenditure of manpower and money on winter highway maintenance is to enable motorists to travel within and through the state safely, with reasonable speed and comfort. The men and women of the Highway Department work hard to achieve this goal.

Success however is dependent, in part at least, not on department efforts but on the driving skills and good sense of the individual motorists. "All motorists must accept the responsibility for their own winter driving safety," O'Cheskey said. Their vehicles must be properly maintained and winterized. Chains or snow tires along with a box of sand and a shovel should be standard winter equipment in snow-prone areas.

Good winter driving habits must be learned and practiced. Weather awareness must become a part of travel plans. The driver who ignores weather forecasts and makes unnecessary or hurried trips into a storm area is asking for trouble.

The combination of the Highway Department's aggressive snow removal program and individual motorist winter driving care will help to achieve the department's goal. That combination will enable motorists to travel within and through the state safely and with reasonable speed and comfort.

Capitan's school board

Board members went into executive session twice during the meeting to discuss school personnel matters. They heard a complaint from Charley Booher in the first session and considered a leave request during the second.

Clifton gave a report on the fire which destroyed the old gymnasium at the high school November 22. He said an insurance representative was meeting with architects to determine a replacement value. Later, the insurance representative will meet with the board to achieve a settlement, Clifton said.

Clifton also read a brief report made by a deputy fire marshal, which outlined damages incurred in the fire and said the "probable cause may have been faulty wiring" in the area over the stage.

In other action, the board:

- Approved a budget increase of $1,000 to be placed under line item 109.10, athletics.
- Were advised by Clifton of a state directive prohibiting the district from obtaining liability insurance through a private company. The insurance will now have to be purchased through the state.
- Accepted a bid of $5,502 from Perteet, Parks and Associates for property insurance for a one year period.
- Approved a bus contract of $52,374.96, with minor revisions since the original contract was accepted in August.
- Heard a card of thanks from the girls' volleyball team and coaches, for the board's assistance in sending the team to the state finals, where they won the championship.
- Set May 23 as an extra day of school to compensate for time lost because of school dismissal during the recent snowstorm.

no charge, receiving in return the salvageable materials.

Another method of clearing a lot calls for the use of village equipment and labor with a lien filed against the property.

According to Nunnally, the lien is paid when the property changes hands, which conceivably could tie up village funds for many years.

Hatcher also touched briefly on removal of junk cars from lots.

"Junk cars are very touchy subjects," he said. "The problem with removing them, even the ones with no windows or engines, is that the owner can say they are antiques and sue."

"We are trying to work out the differences between antique and junk cars."

In other business Thursday, the council: — Heard a financial report on Home Health Services from Mary Ann Jennings, on behalf of Verna S. Adams, who thanked the council for their support.

— Received a thank you from Pat Delhotal for their assistance in funding the October 30 children's symphony concert, — Heard a report from the Reverend E.W. Campbell and Dr. Donna Harper on the Ministerial Alliance plans to organize assistance for the needy.

— Heard a brief report from Ed Jungbluth, executive Secretary of the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce, that new members have joined the Chamber, old members have rejoined and the Chamber subcommittees are functioning well.

— Heard a report from librarian Kathy Moore, the Olde English Madrigal Feast raised approximately $800 but some statements are outstanding.

The next Service Club Council meeting will be at 1 p.m., January 4 in Nob Hill Restaurant.

Caroling series beginning tonight

The First Christian Church of Ruidoso is sponsoring three nights of Christmas caroling tonight through Wednesday.

Carols will be sung tonight by the First Christian Church choir, Tuesday by the Ruidoso High School choir and Wednesday by the choir of the Methodist Church.

The public is invited to drop by the church, located near the "Y", to hear the singing between 6 and 6:30 p.m.

THE FOUR FOOT HIGH gingerbread house is a mosaic of candy and cookies.

Gingerbread house on display at Inn

Over 20 hours of work, 120 pounds of powdered sugar, countless eggs and a lot of devoted care went into Guenter Schillalles' gingerbread house on display at the Inn of the Mountain Gods.

The four foot high and two and a half foot wide confection is a representation of the traditional fairy tale of Hansel and Gretel with the evil witch lurking in the front, ready to pop them into an oven.

Schillalles, who has been pastry chef at the Inn since July, baked sheets of gingerbread and formed the house, then covered everything with glaze royale, a mixture of sugar, eggwhite and creme of tartar.

A variety of candies and cookies in patterns of shingles, bricks and posts were then pushed into the glaze royale as it hardened.

As visitors view the house some of the candy disappears, and Schillalles has had to replace it.

"But that is alright," he said in a clear German accent.

The house will be given away to a visitor to the Inn on New Year's Day. Tentative plans call for a number to be baked into a pastry and the person biting into the slip will win the cake.

"Whoever wins should bring a pickup to get it," chef Jake Schmitz said.

Schillalles moved to Ruidoso from Philadelphia, where he was pastry chef at the Hilton Inn.

Originally from Germany, he has brought specialties such as Black Forest cake and rum cake to the southwest.

He learned to make gingerbread houses while in Germany, "but I've never seen one that big in Germany."

One year, Schillalles baked a smaller gingerbread house which sold for $150 almost immediately after being put on display.

Another specialty cake, an opened book, won the Minneapolis Culinary Arts Exhibit, and was promptly stolen.

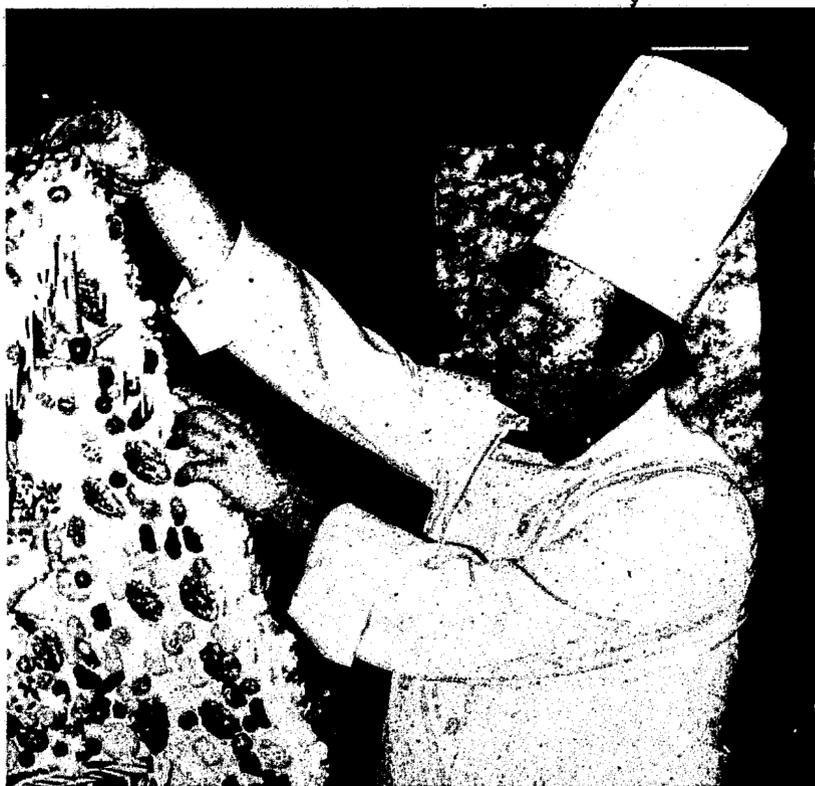

But the cake at the Inn hasn't been sold or stolen (yet). Visitors are welcome to go by and see it or try to win it New Year's Day!

A TINY SANTA Claus watches from the top of the house.

THE EVIL WITCH is waiting at the front door, inviting Hansel and Gretel inside.

The Dreamer

BY DANNIE STORM

The spirit of Christmas grows brighter each day.

This is being sent to you on December 15, the middle of Christmas, the sacred month. And all the world outside is blue and white and soft green with purple shadows all through the soft green mountains.

The white is from the fields of snow, glistening under the gold sun shining down from a pure blue sky of Christmas blue.

All through the mountain land the Christmas spirit glows brightly, filling the day with a joy of the season of our Lord and Saviour.

This day brings back countless happy memories of days of childhood during the Christmas season.

This message will reach you on the eighteenth, and on twelfth will be the birthday of the little spirit dog, Shady Logan.

STILL SNOW BOUND

Today, the fifteenth, makes nine days that I've stayed over on this side of the snow. This is the longest I've ever been snow-bound. The Christmas-like weather helps the awakening in us the spirit of the season. Over here across the creek, the Christmas is bright and strong in my heart. I have been delayed doing those things which bring the Christmas spirit to others.

Yet seldom in my life have I been more aware of the true Christmas spirit than during these nine days. Many kind friends have come across the creek through the snow and mud to bring me groceries, hay and medicines and the beautiful poinsettias sent by Mery Green and brought by Ken Green and Mc O'Reilly.

Next time I will tell you of others who helped me so much during the snow-bound days, like Laroy Leighton, Craig Whipple, Mrs. L.E. McCutcheon, Rex Skellett, Jack Spall, Bob Pior, Juan Baca and others.

I hope to be across the creek to see all of you in a few days and until then I send you all the blessings of our Lord and Saviour.

Jones/Sterbe vows exchanged

In a 6:30 p.m., November 18 candlelight ceremony at the Community Methodist Church, Ruidoso, wedding vows were exchanged between Janet Lee Jones and Jeffrey Ellis Sterbe. Dr. Edwin Chappell of Abilene, Texas officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Lee Jones of Ruidoso and the bridegroom is the son of Colonel and Mrs. Richard Sterba of Albuquerque.

Escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of candlelight satin organza with a silk guipure applique empire bodice. The full lace edged and applique trimmed skirt flowed into a chapel train. The sheer, full length bishop sleeves and Queen Anne neckline were also accented with matching lace. Her chapel length silk illusion veil was attached to a Camelot headpiece and also featured the guipure applique. The bridal bouquet was a cascade arrangement of sweetheart roses and stephanotis centered with gardenias in a background of baby's breath and English Ivy.

Vows were exchanged before an altar decorated with ivy covered spiral candelabras holding ivory tapers accenting the log cross. Pedestals held silver candelabras of ivy, sweetheart roses and baby's breath.

In keeping with tradition: for something old, the bride wore a sterling silver heirloom charm bracelet belonging to her late maternal grandmother, Mrs. J.B. McFarland; new was her bridal outfit; borrowed was a gold bracelet from her matron of honor; blue was the garter which had been worn by her mother in her wedding and for luck she wore a sixpence in her shoe.

Mrs. Dana Brown of El Paso, Texas served her friend as matron of honor. Other bridal attendants were Cathy Carlile of Durango, Colorado and Carla Odum of Arlington, Texas. All wore floor length dresses in mauve and carried bouquets of sweetheart roses and baby's breath in ivy.

MR. AND MRS. JEFFERY STERBE

Serving his friend as best man was Steven Feldman of Faribault, Minnesota. Groomsmen were Robert Sterba, brother of the bridegroom, and William McArthur of Albuquerque. Ushers were Michael Jones of Salt Lake City, Utah, brother of the bride and Carroll Waggoner of Albuquerque.

A reception honoring the newly married couple followed the ceremony at the Texas Club. Serving in the house party were Mesdames Claude Osborn, Sloan Osborn, Roy Clements, George Taylor and Lora Mae McFarland, aunts of the bride; Mrs. Winford Carlile, Mrs. Harold Ruddels, Mrs. Kenneth Miller, cousin of the bride, and Stacey O'Dell.

Out of town guests included the bride's paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Roy N. Jones of Spearman, Texas and the bridegroom's maternal grandmother, Mrs. Frank Kreeger of Albuquerque.

A rehearsal dinner was given by the bridegroom's parents at Cousin's, Friday evening. After a wedding trip to Salt Lake City, the couple is at home in Peralta.

The bride is a graduate of Lovington High School and New Mexico State University, where she was a member of Zeta Tau Alpha Sorority. She is employed at Bernalillo County Medical Center as a financial analyst.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Highland High School in Albuquerque and Washington University in St. Louis, Missouri. He was a member of Beta Theta Pi fraternity. He is a strategic planner for Public Service Company of New Mexico in Albuquerque.

Pre-nuptial courtesies included a shower in the home of Mrs. Joe Witherspoon, Lovington; a shower in the home of Mrs. Marshall Moore, Ruidoso; a shower in the home of Mrs. Eddie Myers, Albuquerque; a bridal luncheon at Alto Country Club and a bridemaids' luncheon in the mountain home of Mr. and Mrs. Winford Carlile.

Parnell/Wilson vows exchanged

Wedding vows of Judy Parnell and Jim Lee "Tuffy" Wilson Jr., were exchanged December 10 at First Christian Church with the Reverend Ken Cole officiating.

Serving as maid of honor was Betty Corbell and best man was Tony Corbill. The couple plans to make their home in Ruidoso.

UNM researchers seek answer to desertification

Three University of New Mexico (UNM) researchers are looking at how marginally productive land, which covers much of the state, can sometimes deteriorate and become less productive.

At its extreme, this process, which is known as desertification, can turn previously usable land into waste, said Rosalie Fanale, a cultural anthropologist with the Remote Sensing Division, a joint UNM-National Park Service office. Fanale has developed an interdisciplinary research program, called the Southwestern Desertification Project, to measure desertification in the San Juan Basin of New Mexico. Also involved in the project are James I. Ebert, an archeologist with the division, and Thomas R. Lyons, division chief.

"Although desertification has often developed from natural causes alone, the current international effort is especially concerned with the impact of human use and land management practices on fragile dryland environments," Fanale said.

She said there is general agreement among researchers that desertification is accelerated through such activities as agricultural development, burning, overgrazing, urbanization and population increases.

"The desertification process is first a human problem and needs to be assessed as it relates to both people and the physical and biological elements of the environment," she said.

The project will use remote sensing data to determine the mobility patterns of the people in the basin area and to develop an index of vegetational diversity.

Remote sensing data, which is gathered from aerial and satellite surveys, is necessary because of the difficulties associated with making repeated ground level surveys over the large land areas involved, Fanale said.

"We believe remote sensing, which allows the measurement of environmental variables at a wide range of scales and resolutions, is an indispensable adjunct to the study of desertification," she said.

So far, the indicators which scientists have generally agreed upon as representative of the desertification process have all been expensive and complex to use in part because of the lengthy ground surveys involved for each indicator. If some of these indicators can be combined and adapted to remote sensing techniques, the study of desertification will be greatly improved, Fanale added.

numbers of plants in an area has been suggested as one way of monitoring desertification caused by overgrazing. The problem is that this requires extensive field work.

"One possible solution to the problem of having to touch and name plants on the ground is the definition of general characteristics of the environment which may indicate systemic change in a wide variety of geographical settings," he said.

"One of these is vegetational diversity."

Because the test is still being developed, he said a key part of the project will be to better determine exactly what the index measure is.

"By monitoring vegetative diversity through time, it should be possible to determine not only whether a process of environmental change is taking place in any area, but possibly what stage this change is in," Ebert said.

In this project, the researchers are assuming that vegetational changes which have already occurred in the basin are related to changes in the Navajo grazing patterns.

"We are postulating that Navajo resource use strategies, in the past much more than today, centered around a finely tuned environmental knowledge, plus access to a large and diverse area, so that mobility patterns could vary according to pasture quality and productivity," Fanale said.

For this reason, she will be gathering data on the ecological, social and economic forces which have influenced grazing in the basin.

"Results from the sample sites will allow us to relate changes in mobility to vegetation change," Fanale said.

"Comparing our findings from various areas will permit us to show variations in this process in different settings."

"By comparing mobility patterns and environmental and economic constraints between areas, we will then be able to show relationships between different social factors and different environmental impacts."

The result, Fanale said, would be a tool which could help provide the information needed to properly manage arid and soon-to-be-arid lands.

State continuing tourism efforts

New Mexico will continue to develop international tourism even if the federal government limits funding for the United States Travel Service (USTS), according to David Santillanes Jr., director of the New Mexico Travel Division. Recently, the Office of Management and Budget recommended that the international promotional functions of USTS be eliminated and its $14 million budget be cut by more than 50%.

"According to all available research, international tourism will increase an estimated 24% in 1979, and I want New Mexico to share in that additional revenue," Santillanes said. "Without federal support, we will have to manage our foreign contacts personally, and increase the amount of private sector participation, but we will continue to solicit the foreign tourist market."

The travel industry is currently the third largest employer in New Mexico. "Increased foreign tourism will provide a broader and therefore a more stable market for New Mexico. We will need this market for future economic growth," he said.

Santillanes is currently planning a trade mission and sales blitz to Europe in early March to coincide with the International Tourism Exchange in Berlin. Additional meetings with travel agents and tour brokers will be arranged in London, Copenhagen and Geneva. All four cities are already supplying travel tours to New Mexico through our major tour agents, Southwest Grey Lines, Triple A and Going Places Travel Company.

Santillanes estimates that the trip will cost approximately $1,800 for all his expenses as the Travel Division's representative. "The cost would possibly buy a one-third page ad in a major German magazine," says Santillanes. "Personal contact will benefit New Mexico much more than a single ad."

Due to foreign travel contacts made during the last year, eight European companies are including New Mexico in their 1979-80 tour programs. "On the basis of domestic spending figures, we estimate that these foreign tours will generate a minimum of $120,000 to New Mexico's economy," Santillanes said.

In preparation for the European trip, Santillanes recently attended the States and Cities Days sponsored by USTS, December 4-6. Representatives from 45 states and 55 cities were present and met with the USTS foreign directors. The primary theme of the meeting was the growing importance of the United States as a travel destination point for foreigners. For the first time, due to the dollar's devaluation, America is a bargain for the foreign visitor.

Disabled veterans given new identification cards

The Veterans Administration (VA) is issuing personal identification cards to nearly 161,000 service-disabled veterans in Colorado, Wyoming, Utah and New Mexico to emphasize their top priority in obtaining treatment at VA medical centers and outpatient clinics.

The innovative move was ordered by VA Administrator Max Cleland who said: "Veterans disabled in the military service are of prime concern to the VA. These identification cards will expedite the medical care they receive and will serve as a constant reminder to our employees as well as to veterans themselves that they are special people entitled to special care from their government."

There are more than 30,000 service-disabled veterans in Colorado, nearly 3,900 in Wyoming, 11,000 in Utah and 16,000 in New Mexico.

Cleland said the new identification system doesn't remove the need to make appointments for examination or treatment at VA medical centers. He said the only time a service-connected patient does not get priority attention is when there is an emergency for another patient.

Eligible for the cards in addition to the more than two million Cleland wrote to nationally are another 500,000 veterans with service-connected disabilities for which they aren't now being compensated. They won't be contacted by VA but may call the nearest VA regional office or medical center for information.

Dr. Lumsdaine to head Solar Energy Institute

Dr. Edward Lumsdaine has been named the new director of the New Mexico Solar Energy Institute. Lumsdaine, who has been acting director since September, replaces Dr. Robert San Martin now serving as director of the Division of Distributed Solar Technology at the United States Department of Energy in Washington, D.C.

Lumsdaine's bachelors, masters and doctorate degrees in mechanical engineering have been awarded by New Mexico State University. He has worked for the Boeing Company in Seattle and taught at South Dakota State University and the University of Tennessee.

In 1977 he returned to New Mexico State University (NMSU) as a professor of mechanical engineering, a consultant to the NMSU Physical Science Laboratory and assistant director of the solar institute.

He is considered an international authority on solar energy and has been instrumental in bringing many research grants to the NMSU campus. His Egyptian project, funded by the National Science Foundation, introduces solar energy to a small village for irrigation and other Lumsdaine, a native of Shanghai, China, his wife, Monika and their four teen-aged children consider New Mexico their home. The family recently moved into a hybrid solar house designed and built by the couple. The Lumsdaines have written and published numerous technical and non-technical papers about solar energy.

Traffic fatalities total 599 through November

The Transportation Department of the State of New Mexico released traffic fatality statistics for the month of November.

According to the Secretary of Transportation, Mr. Ruben Miera, there were 47 fatal accidents resulting in 53 fatalities. Forty-four (44) of the accidents were single family incidents, 1 accident resulted in the loss of 3 lives, 1 accident resulted in the loss of 2 lives, and 1 accident resulted in the loss of 4 lives.

The number of New Mexico traffic fatalities for 1978 at the end of November was 599. There has been at least one traffic fatality in each of the state's 32 counties. The largest toll has been in Bernalillo County where 113 lives have been lost. Motor Vehicle accidents resulted in 456 fatalities, pedestrian accidents resulted in 90 fatalities, motorcycle accidents resulted in 48 fatalities, and bicycle accidents resulted in 5 fatalities.

Where the information is available, it has been determined that alcohol has been involved in 59% of the fatalities this year.

Ruidoso nabs consolation win at Cloudcroft Tournament

The Ruidoso Warrior basketball team rallied to win the consolation bracket of the Cloudcroft Tournament this weekend after losing their opening game, but that loss left a sour taste in coach Barry Nelson's mouth.

"I was disappointed that we lost that first ball game," Nelson said. "We just kind of gave it to them. We had a mental breakdown. We shouldn't have lost it."

The team Ruidoso lost to, Cliff, won third place in the tournament, defeating Cloudcroft 66-48. Weed defeated Dexter 53-52 for the championship. It marked the second week in a row that Weed won a tournament. Last week, they knocked off Hatch to capture the Ruidoso Classic.

The mental breakdown Nelson spoke of came in the final period with the Warriors nursing a nine point lead. Ruidoso committed four turnovers and Cliff took advantage of all of them to cut the lead to one. From there, the contest was nip and tuck, with Cliff winding up the winner, 63-62.

"I felt like we could have won the tournament if we hadn't lost that first game," Nelson said.

As down as the Warriors were, they bounced back in grand fashion against their second round opponent, Anthony. Ruidoso grabbed an early lead and never looked back as they trounced Anthony 90-54. Despite the win, however, Nelson wasn't entirely pleased.

"We got off to a slow start," he said. "I wasn't satisfied because we weren't playing up to potential."

The Warriors continued to disappoint Nelson in the consolation finals against Reserve. Although Ruidoso eventually won the game 58-45, the Warriors started slowly. The score at half was in Ruidoso's favor, 21-20.

"I told the kids at half, I'd rather lose than play like this," Nelson said.

In the second half, Ruidoso sped up the pace of the game with an active press. They also started converting baskets off their fast break offense.

"We broke it open with the press," Nelson said. "We started fast breaking and working together."

Overall, Nelson was pleased with some aspects of this team's game. Going into the tournament, Nelson had vowed to slow down the pace of the offense. He was pleased with the new slow-down offense. But when the Warriors need some added punch, Nelson turned to the fast break and the Warriors responded.

"One thing I was pleased with was the way the running game improved in the tournament," he said. "I was also pleased with the slow game. We can use both of them."

"If we play a team we can run with, we will," Nelson continued. "If not, we'll slow it down. I think that will be a great asset for us."

Nelson believes it will be a great asset if the Warriors can cut out some negative aspects of their game. One bad habit that concerns Nelson is his team's knack for fouling. Another bad habit Nelson would like to eschew is turnovers, which is what cost Ruidoso the game against Cliff.

"I'm not pleased with the turnovers," he said. "We're making too many turnovers. We had 23 and 18 in the first ball games. Turnovers beat us in the Cliff ball game."

"We're still up there in fouls," he said. "Those are still something that is getting us into trouble. We have to correct that."

Nelson also hopes the Warriors can start hitting a better percentage of their shots. He's not displeased with the shot selection, but he is displeased that they are not going in the basket.

"Our field goal percentage is still low," he said. "We shot 36 percent against Reserve and Cliff. We're getting decent shots. We're rushing them a little. The players are still a little uptight."

Nelson also hopes the Warriors can become more consistent. Currently, Ruidoso has three players that play good games at a time. Nelson worries that all five never have a good game at the same time. This mystery plagued the Warriors at Cloudcroft.

In the opening game against Cliff, Stanley Cape scored 24 points. Rodney Thomason and Jeff Elliot added ten. Against Anthony, Cape had 20, Thomason 17 and Elliot ten. In the final game against Reserve, Cape hit for five points, Thomason for 14. Elliot hit his season's high, 24.

"I can't get them to play a good game all at one time," Nelson said.

Although the Warriors didn't place any players on the all-tournament team, Nelson was pleased especially with the play of Cape and Thomason.

"Stan Cape should have made all-tournament," Nelson stated. "He played some good ball games. Rodney Thomason is looking good for a sophomore."

RUIDOSO SENIOR KICKER/PUNTER Mark Dutton was named to the Class AA all-state football team announced Sunday. Dutton was the only Warrior selected to the team. He was named the state's outstanding kicker as well as punter. Among Dutton's accomplishments this season was a 43 yard field goal in the Warrior's season opener. Dutton's reaction to the news: "I'm pretty satisfied."

Ten Warrior gridders earn post season honors

Four Ruidoso Warrior football players occupy five spots on the coaches' District 6-AA all-district team announced Tuesday. The sole Warrior named to the offensive team was senior guard Ray Herrera. The Warriors placed two seniors on the defensive team. They were Steve Cox, linebacker and John Whitlock, defensive back.

The other two positions are manned by one Warrior, senior Mark Dutton. Dutton was named as the all-district kicker and punter.

Rounding out the all-district selections were: center, Freddie Barla from Lordsburg; guards; Lonnie Jaramillo of Estancia, Jody Bryant of Animas and Herrera; tackles; Joe Lopez of Estancia and Bryon Sims of Hatch. The ends were Bo Luttrick of Estancia and Edward Ogay of Hatch.

Jody Eddy of Animas was selected as the top quarterback in the league. Rounding out the backfield were Mark Chavez and Joel Newton of Estancia and Ricky Bouvet of Hatch. Gene Autry of Hatch was the fullback selection. All except Bouvet and Newton are seniors.

Heading the all defensive team were: ends; Allan Strain of Lordsburg and Pepe Alvarado of Hatch. Ricky Chavez of Estancia and Howard Frederickson of Lordsburg compose the rest of the interior line.

Besides Cox, Bo Luttrick of Estancia and Bennie Williams of Lordsburg compose the linebacking tandem. The defensive backs are headed by Whitlock, Eloy Marquez of Lordsburg and Leo Guerra of Hatch. The safeties selected were: Ron McCall of Estancia, David Holguin of Lordsburg and G. Ray Johnson of Animas. All except Guerra are seniors.

Ruidoso also had five players elected to the second team. They were Borde Williams, quarterback; Jay Raulerson, center; Steve Cox, fullback; Truman Bob, tackle and John Cabot, defensive back.

Warriors named to the honorable mention team include: Ricky Dennis at defensive back and Scott Neal, defensive end.

Raulerson, Cabot, Neal and Dennis all return to the Warriors for another year of eligibility next year; Neal and Dennis have three and two years, respectively.

Jekyll and Hyde syndrome takes toll on girls' basketball

The Ruidoso Warriors girls' basketball team did their imitation of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde, blasting Tularosa Friday 49-38 and falling to Goddard Saturday 59-34.

"If you had seen them play both nights," head coach Sergio Castanon said, "you would not have thought they were the same team."

Friday at Warrior Gym, Ruidoso spotted the Wildcats a two point lead before blowing them away. Ruidoso tied the score at two with less than six minutes to play in the first period. They then ran off the next ten points for a 12-2 lead. Although Tularosa cut the lead to five points in the second half, Ruidoso commanded the game all the way.

"They hustled," Castanon said. "Free throw shooting was good. Everybody kept their cool. They looked like they did at the end of last year."

Lori Swain led the way for Ruidoso, scoring 19 points. Kristi Perryman and Lisa Shaw aided the Warrior cause, adding 10 and six points, respectively.

With a pressure defense forcing Tularosa into many errors, Ruidoso managed to mount a 16 point bulge in the third period. They led 39-25 after three periods. Tularosa never seriously threatened the Warrior's lead in the final period.

Saturday, Ruidoso traveled to Goddard for a contest with the Class AAAA team.

According to Castanon, Ruidoso lost the game before they walked onto the court.

"Goddard had a couple of tall girls," Castanon said. "We saw them and figured since they were a Class AAAA team, there was no way of beating them. When they have that attitude, there's no need in playing."

"They need to have more confidence in themselves," he continued. "We made mental errors. We didn't do anything compared to the hustle Friday. They weren't into it. They were flat."

Ruidoso's leading scorer, Lori Swain, managed only two points all night. Only Kristi Perryman and Kelly Cothrun kept the Warriors within shouting distance with 16 and 12 points, respectively.

The Warriors have the holidays off before they return to the court. Castanon doesn't think the loss to Goddard will diminish Ruidoso's desire to win.

"Girls forget it," he said. "They've probably already forgotten it. Sometimes I wish they'd remember more."

Skier breaks endurance mark at Angel Fire

Angel Fire skier Kirk Hill, 23, successfully completed his attempt to set the world's endurance record for skiing. Hill set out to accomplish this feat noon Wednesday, skiing Angel Fire's "The Bump." He completed his attempt at 3:45 p.m. Saturday.

Hill's feat of 63 hours and forty-five minutes topped the old mark of 54 hours. Hill attempted the record in an effort to raise funds for the American Cancer Society.

Hill's reason for quitting when he did, more than eight hours sooner than he planned, was well founded. His wife said, "He was too exhausted."

A juggling act is a great crowd pleaser, as the expressions of these White Mountain Middle School students reveal.

Billy Woodul discovers that juggling not only requires extreme concentration...

Juggling ... a crowd pleasing act

A bit of encouragement is essential in the training of hats.

The "Original Cowboy Juggler" Jay Evans, 25, of Albuquerque, says his present lifestyle is "kinda nice" despite the rigors of the road travel and hazards of tossing axes, machetes and sickles into the air above his head.

Employed by the National School Assemblies agency, a Hollywood firm, he travels the western United States juggling and clowning for hundreds of junior high and high school students.

Evans, who has been juggling for "six or seven years," used to hitchhike around the country and "pass the hat" after a performance to support himself.

He was "cowboying around

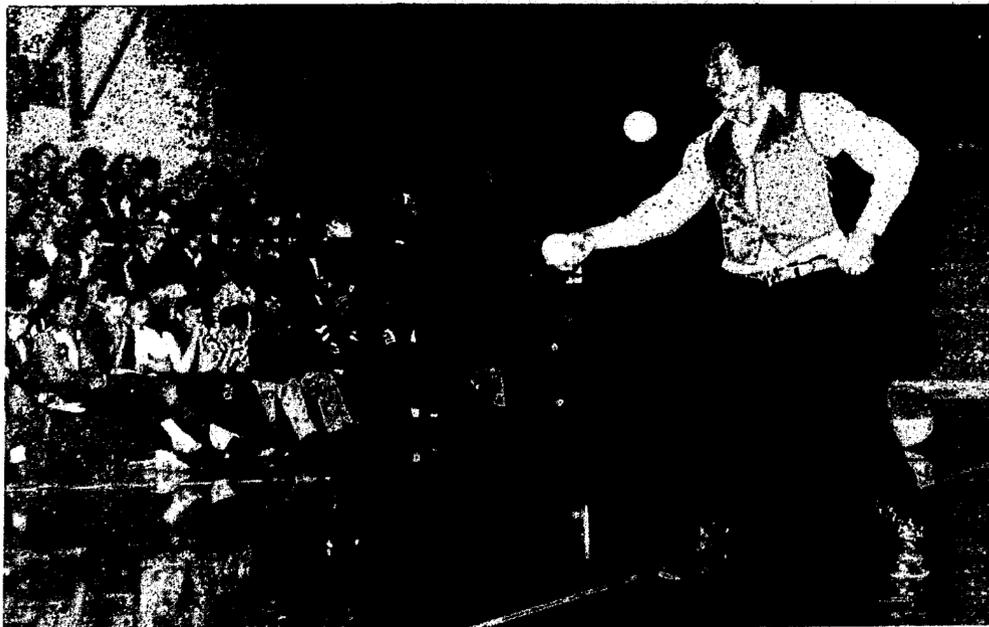

Magdalena" when he heard about the school assemblies agency, wrote to them, auditioned and was hired. They also employ musicians, dancers, performers skilled in rope spinning, bull whips and even "a guy who plays bass guitar with his feet," according to Evans.

He entertained at Capitan, White Mountain Middle School and Ruidoso High School last week, juggling, among other props, cowboy hats, balls of all sizes, cigar boxes and weighted poles, as well as the hazardous items mentioned above.

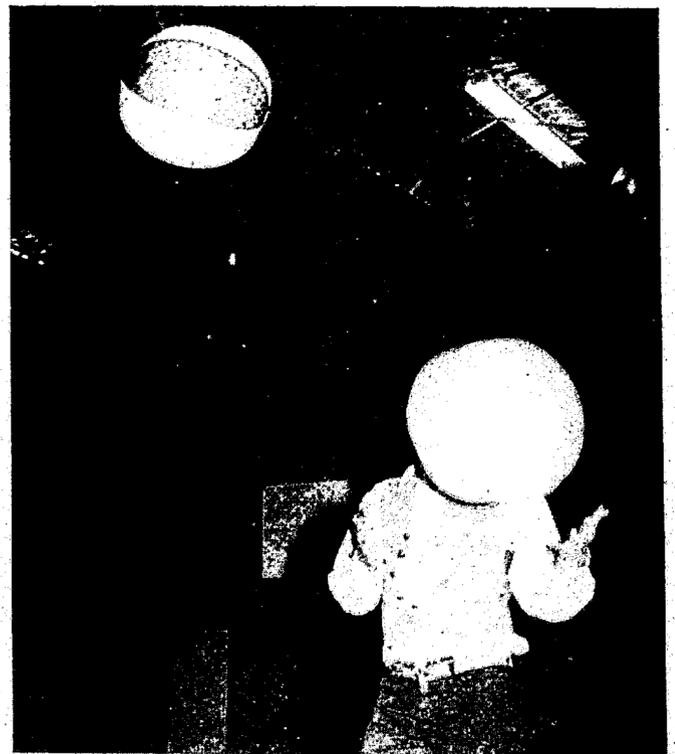

Balancing dinner plates on his elbows, Evans advised the kids, "Try this at dinner tonight — Mom will get a big kick out of it."

...but also the ability to remain calm under pressure.

Though it may take years to learn how to "hold your mouth right,"

...the dedicated juggler never loses site of his goal.

Santa Fe — Wheels Turning: A couple of days ago, this reporter said little effort has been made since the Democrat House caucus to mend the fences between Demo conservatives and moderate-liberals — the birdies now say the wheels were set in motion by the middle of last week.

Our sources — and that means "good sources," say the initial feelers have been put out for conciliatory efforts on the part of the old "Mama Lucy" faction, which is now the liberal-moderate group and the conservatives, which have plenty of muscle.

Both sides are going to have to "give" plenty and it will be up to the level heads to prevail over the "soreheads" so the Lower House can put together a unified Demo effort.

In Legislative language, that means the Demos as a group can tussle with the Republicans and when the session gets down to the wire, the entire House — Demos and Republicans — can stand together against the Senate.

Prediction: If the initial peace-making efforts are successful, look for the House Democrats to set a date near the end of the year for a rousing unified caucus effort.

Don't Say We Didn't Tell You. Big Prediction: Big Bruce King did not name all of his Cabinet appointments late last week, which means a few more of the Apodaca incumbents are still sweating.

Our "birdies" in the Round House third floor transition office say the Governor-elect is really wrestling with the problem of what to do with the Cabinet Secretary post for Transportation.

Ruben Miera, the present Cabinet Secretary for Transportation, is a long-time loyal Democrat and in a practical sense one of the most efficient administrators in State Government.

Miera never has gotten the kind of credit he deserves for his administrative abilities because he has been active in politics and doesn't hesitate to put his neck on the chopping block.

The Kin forces figure that Miera was a supporter of Lt. Gov. Bob Ferguson in the Democratic primary and Ferguson was running against Big Bruce.

There is no doubt that Ruben got on the King bandwagon in the General Election.

This go-round, however, Bruce King is a tougher Chief Executive and from everything we have seen to date he is keeping book on those who were on the King team from the start and who were the Johnny-come-latelys.

Several guys who were with King from the opening gun of the primary have their eyes on the Transportation Cabinet post.

Our source says Bruce King now is wrestling with the problem of whether to forgive and forget Miera's efforts on behalf of Ferguson in the primary or reward one of the stalwarts who was all the way with Bruce through the primary and general.

How About That: This column has been touting the Business Leaders Clinic, which is held in the Capital City in recent years during the Legislative Session.

This year, our tipster says the Third Annual Business Leaders Clinic has landed a top member of the President's Office of Management and Budget for a key speakers slot.

The speaker's name is Bo Cutter and he'll be on hand for the big banquet which will cap the two-day affairs, which also will feature key Legislative and executive personalities.

BUT FLESH WEAK

A Louis Harris public opinion survey provides another footnote to the volume summed up in those poignant words, "The spirit is willing, but the flesh is weak." The poll indicates that, while most of us know we'd be better off if we ate less and exercised more, the usual pattern is to go right on eating too much and exercising too little.

Nearly three-quarters, 71 per cent, of those questioned agreed with this damning statement: "I myself, and most people, just go on doing the things that make us less healthy even when we know we shouldn't." This in the face of an agreement by 67 per cent that a change in their eating habits would improve their health, and by 62 per cent that lack of exercise was bad for them.

An intriguing adjunct to these findings is that medical advice about diet and exercise seems to play a relatively minor part. The results do not make it clear whether this is because doctors are not offering enough advice on these subjects, or because their patients are not acting on their advice. The figures are suggestive, however: only 10 per cent of those on a diet said they started the diet on doctor's orders; only 17 per cent credited doctor's advice with getting them started on a regular exercise program.

The onus does not fall entirely on the medical profession; each of us is fundamentally responsible for personal health habits. But it appears evident that doctors could make a significant contribution to their patients' health by pointedly advising them about diet and exercise. Many who know their faults in this regard seem to have a need to be authoritatively told what to do about it. — Alamogordo Daily News

HIGH INTEREST

Necessary at the moment, because of dollar and inflation problems, high interest rates nevertheless hurt primarily the ordinary citizen.

The average American takes out a mortgage on his home, and many get loans to buy new cars. The wealthy needn't borrow. Indeed, they often profit by high interest rates — which bring them a better return on their investments.

The current U.S. economic dilemma was produced by President Carter's misjudgment of the economic situation in 1977 and 1978. He thought he could utilize new deficit budgets to begin various new aid programs, enlarge others, and still maintain the dollar's credibility.

President Carter in 1976 promised to balance the budget in four years — but has changed his goal and instead only talks about reducing the deficit. Increased spending and new programs, without achieving that balanced budget, have undermined confidence in both the dollar and the Carter Administration abroad.

High interest is President Carter's newest tactic to check inflation. Ironically, the very people who need government aid and who are the first to be hit by high interest rates. Obviously, therefore, overspending in the end hurts the little man more than it does the wealthy. That may be why polls show a vast majority of Americans now want the federal budget balanced every year. The politicians in Washington don't translate that message into responsive action. — Santa Rosa News

SLOW-GOING VOTE PROBE

We're anxiously awaiting the results of the FBI probe into charges of election illegalities in New Mexico a month ago, but it seems to be slow-going.

There must be complications beneath the surface of what appears to be a fairly obvious discrepancy at some 23 precincts in Bernalillo County. Republicans are convinced there was some tampering, and they further point out that if an average of 120-130 votes for Joe Skeen were "lost" at each of the 23 precincts, it would mean the difference between winning and losing.

As it stood at certification time, Democrat Bruce King maintained a 3,700-plus vote lead over Republican Skeen. Skeen himself does not like the way the election smells and has refused to concede.

It's an insignificant protest in light of everything else, but we'll stand with Skeen until someone or some agency finally sifts through this entire can of worms. — Artesia Daily Press

editorial

The problems developers are experiencing in Ruidoso, in annexation as well as subdivision expansion, should prompt the Planning and Zoning Commission to draw up easy-to-follow ordinances that would virtually eliminate variances and promote the orderly growth everyone in Ruidoso seems to be in favor of. —CD

Stuph & Junk

... by
Cale Dickey

COMMENDABLE GOAL

Couldn't help but chuckle over ... as well as admire ... the statement of West Point cadet-elect ... courtesy of Congressman Harold Runnels ... Steve Cox ... in that he ... once enrolled ... wants to "get a good rank" so he can "be in charge of the freshmen" when he's a senior.

Now ... by jinkies ... that's a commendable goal ... laudable ambition, even ... and ... if'n he can cut the mustard as an underclassman ... and become an upperclassman ... he just might be in a position to make it easier on the freshmen when he's a senior than the seniors did for Steve when he was a freshman.

My personal contact with West Point came through taking orders from West Pointers ... and if'n some of those Pointers acted as seniors at the Point, as they acted as fresh-out-of-school shavetails ... it's a wonder the academy is still in operation ... not even considering some of the recent scandals that almost rocked the foundation of the system to its core.

It's almost a certainty that Steve's appreciation of the system will change radically as his indoctrination continues ... and it's possible his outlook will likewise change ... but, by jinkies, with as much determination as he's showing to succeed at the Point ... he'll probably graduate at the top of his class ... and, before his hair changes to grey, he could have four stars ... and ulcers.

DOODLER'S DELIGHT

'Tweren't too long ago that Hop Graham ... publisher of the Lovington Daily Leader ... came a cropper of a problem with his rolls of newsprint ... from which copies of his paper roll from the presses off.

Seems the paper mill shipped him two rolls of 28 inch wide paper ... along with whole bunches of 30-1/2 inch rolls, which he normally uses.

So ... Hop's problem became ... what to do with those two narrow rolls. Even at $345 a ton he paid for those short rolls, he couldn't get the mill to take them back ... something about the cost of shipping being more than the value of the paper.

Now ... being Hop's the sort of fellow that likes to have his readers get value received ... what'd he do but print two full pages on one side of those skinny rolls ... and leave the skinny sections ... blank ... sticking out into the gutter of the paper ... and advising his readers to doodle ... or in any other manner ... utilize the bonanza of blank paper provided them at no cost ... except to Hop.

Which just goes to show you Hop has a imagination ... why if'n he'd plattered tic-tac-toe designs ... or optical illusions ... on that blank sheet ... he'd have had reader impact that'd have had him sipping his ice tea with gusto ... and if'n it happened to be busy ... he'd have put it along alone.

NOISY BUSINESS DEAL

Might be a law against raising fowl in the village limits ... 'cause some people'd be hollering foul ... but for those as can stand the noise, there's a bundle to be made raising guinea hens.

Now these noisy critters ... famed for their piercing cry when strangers approach their domain ... or when they just feel like hollering ... are easier to raise than angleworms at the North Pole ... and provide luscious dark meat ... that has diners forgetting about seconds as they tear into thirds.

As to the guinea hen ... one that's properly coddled will produce about 150 eggs in nine months ... and the eggs are likewise good coddled. And you can grow one from a keet ... that's a baby guinea ... to about 3.5 pounds in about 18 weeks ... and peddle the meat ... though it might take a spell to find a market.

And there's a final advantage ... once you've butchered and shipped your birds ... you'll enjoy the fruits of your labor ... say nothing of the beautiful silence that'll prevail, where once the birds' raucous calls resounded through their vale.

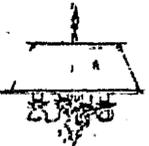

BRIEF BIT: There isn't a single aspect of the joys of Christmas giving that can't be completely shattered with the arrival of those post Yule bills ... CD a mis-step just after the wire and almost sent his rider flying. But Coombs quickly recovered his balance and took his tour of the winner's circle. Note the flock of snow geese passing over the Sunland grounds at upper left.

Sheep now big business

"The sheep industry is growing, and growing fast!" said Jim Sachse, Extension sheep specialist at New Mexico State University. "More, ewe lambs are being saved for breeding purposes and old ewes are in exceptionally strong demand."

On the surface it would appear that established producers are expanding their existing flocks while many new producers are getting into the sheep business, Sachse said. Older ewes which normally end up at the packing house, are being sold to other ranches at prices the packer can't afford.

Ewe lambs are bringing $10 per hundred more than comparable wether lambs. Slaughter numbers are down about and older ewes are not going to traditional packer markets, Sachse said.

"This recent upsurge and interest in sheep production is probably a direct result of the increasing profitability of sheep and their natural ability to most efficiently convert renewable resources into meat and fiber."

"New Mexico produces fine woolled ewe lambs and the older ewes are in exceptional demand, largely because of their quality and reputation for wool production," Sachse said.

Many of these older ewes are going to farms or newcomers to the industry. If these newcomers are to share in the profits of sheep production, they must treat the older ewes with tender, loving care.

"An 'old ewe' operation can produce one of the quickest returns on an investment and be as profitable as any type of livestock production venture. It can also be disastrous," Sachse said.

In order to make a profit, these older ewes must be treated for external and internal parasites, provided with adequate feed and constantly watched for any signs of unfitness.

One of the most critical periods is before lambing, when these older ewes may succumb to lambing paralysis. Reduce the possibility by giving the ewes plenty of exercise and a high energy concentrate four to six weeks before lambing.

Many of these older ewes have poor teeth and are unable to fully satisfy their nutritional requirements from grazing. They should be supplemented with hay or grain, Sachse said.

Damaged udders are common in older ewes. Lambs born to ewes with little or no milk should be grafted to other ewes or bottle fed. Either method requires added labor and excellent management.

"The industry's future looks exceptionally good," Sachse said. "Its success depends to a large extent on continued expansion. Fortunately, newcomers have a good opportunity to make a respectable profit."

For cold morning starts have car battery charged

It's an icy morning and you're running behind schedule. You dash to your car to leave for work, only to find yourself grinding away on the starter button because the frigid weather has cut your battery's power.

Added to the weaker battery power is the stiffer oil viscosity which puts an additional strain on the battery. Because your vehicles react differently to cold weather, the family auto should be conditioned to meet New Mexico's occasional cold snap, Charles Hohn, Extension agricultural engineer at New Mexico State University (NMSU), said.

A fully-charged battery will deliver all of its cranking power at 80 degrees or 26 degrees C. The battery's power delivery capacity decreases with a drop in temperature. When the temperature drops to freezing, this same fully-charged battery will deliver only 65 percent of its power.

This explains why battery sales increase the day the first really cold spell hits New Mexico, Hohn said. The freezing weather magnifies the problems of weak and marginal batteries which are probably due for replacement anyway.

As cold weather becomes more common, you should have your battery checked at the service station to determine whether it will make it through the winter. If it will take a charge, get it fully charged for the cold days ahead. If the old battery has trouble holding a charge, a new battery may be in order, Hohn said.

Clean around the battery mount and cables using baking soda and water. The soda neutralizes the acid accumulation and other corrosive elements, Hohn said.

Remove the cable clamp and clean all contact surfaces with a knife or steel brush. Firmly tighten cable clamps on battery terminals. Then apply a thin coat of grease to the surfaces of the terminals and avoid over-tightening, which could cause clamps to crack.

Finally, change the heavier summer oil to a lighter oil in the winter, or use multiple-viscosity oil. A car tune-up, which includes new points, plugs and condenser, will also help make starting easier and avoid stalling when cold weather arrives, the NMSU specialist said.

'TWAS THE NIGHT BEFORE CHRISTMAS

A kindly clockmaker, a friendly family of mice and a sensitive Santa Claus join together to add holiday cheer during the coming Yuletide season when 'Twas the Night Before Christmas,' is rebroadcast Monday, Dec. 18 on CBS-TV. The half-hour special is narrated by Joel Grey and adapted from Clement Moore's famous Christmas poem.

Featured in the special are the voices of Tammy Grimes as Albert Mouse, John McGiver as the Mayor of Junctionville, and George Gobel as Father Mouse.

The town of Junctionville is troubled that Santa Claus will pass over their village when they find that his feelings have been hurt by an unsigned letter to the editor of the local paper denouncing him as a myth. Sensitive Santa has returned the town children's letters marked "Not Accepted by Addressee." Only the scholarly Albert Mouse, who resides in the walls of Trundle House, seems to ignore the situation. Could he have written the letter to the editor?
