

New gear for rescue group

Improvement efforts by White Mountain Search and Rescue (WMSR) have begun, promising a better equipped organization.

In recent days the group has received several donations and entered into fund raising projects in efforts to purchase rescue and radio equipment.

With donations of $250 apiece from Ruidoso Jockey Club and Ruidoso-Sunland Corporation plus $500 from Ruidoso State Bank, the group has ordered climbing gear for technical evacuations, first aid equipment, ropes and helmets.

According to Rex Skelton, WMSR field coordinator, "Individuals usually supplied their own equipment, but now the club has its own equipment instead."

The prior method was "too much expense for individuals and the organization never knew where equipment was or if the individuals owning needed equipment would show up."

WMSR also accepted an offer from Rotary Club donating the proceeds of the April 17 enchilada dinner.

The group already has drawn $1,000 for the equipment, and will reimburse Rotary after the dinner.

In addition to WMSR purchasing three hand held emergency band radios and a mobile-emergency band radio for their rescue van, several individuals purchased radios which can be used in conjunction with the organization's equipment.

Downs Trustees have quiet meet

The Ruidoso Downs trustees took action on only three items of business Monday night, tabling all other matters because of the absence of two of the five board members.

Accounts payable were approved with the exception of a bill from Gene Brock Ford for $565.20, for the exchange of motors in two village police cars.

The mayor said the bill was much higher than expected, and that he wished to discuss it with company representatives before authorizing payment.

Police Chief Lynn Martin said he had received an estimate from the company for $275, and it was his understanding that this was a total, rather than a per-car estimate.

The trustees also approved the resub of five lots in Agua Fria Estates Subdivision. The owners of the lots plan to repdivide the lots into four parcels of land. Those parcels will then be sold.

Although the lots are not within the city limits of Ruidoso Downs, they are "within the planning radius" and consequently required the approval of the trustees.

Glencoe PO safe found

Sheriff Ernest Sanchez reported Monday that the safe stolen from the Glencoe Post Office had been recovered. The safe was discovered missing January 2, and was picked up by postal authorities Saturday in Truth or Consequences.

The safe was found last Friday, spotted by a motorist who was traveling on NM #1 east of Hillsboro. The Sierra County Sheriff's department recovered the safe from a culvert near the road, according to a source in T or C.

Despite the fact that the bottom of the safe had been "bashed in," some means was found to identify the safe, and postal officers were contacted.

Ski report

Skiing at Sierra Blanca Ski Area is on powder with six inches of new snow and an undisturbed snow depth midway of 36 inches.

The State Highway Department is requiring chains on the road today.

Ruidoso Ski Area reports four inches of new snow and a 30 to 40 inch packed base. All lifts are operating and all runs are open.

An area spokesman suggested motorists have snow tires or chains on their vehicle when coming to Ruidoso Ski Area.

Wednesday afternoon's high was 42 degrees and Thursday morning's low was 30 degrees.

For skiing condition reports, call Sierra Blanca Ski Area, 257-9001, and Ruidoso Ski Area, 336-4211.

Pro cup ski races under way

Denver's Ted Marolt fought off a rally by Oregon's Brian Raasch in the finals of the Yukon Jack-Sierra Blanca Pro Cup race to win a large portion of Wednesday's $2000 prize money. Scott Mackie, also of Colorado, defeated Burgenor Nestor of Colorado for third place.

Marolt, last year's runner-up in the race, built a large enough lead while racing the faster blue course to hold on to the title once Raasch took his turn on the blue course.

"The blue course was faster," Marolt said. "The red course had deeper ruts at the end. They slow you down."

Most of the fastest times of the day were recorded by racers on the blue course. Such was the rule, but there were some exceptions. Still, Marolt's strategy when he took the red course was to ski as hard as he could.

"I wanted to stay with him all the way," he said. "You make mistakes when you relax." Marolt may have relaxed a little, but not enough for Raasch to overcome the lead.

Marolt, by winning the championship, won five head to head competitions. Other racers didn't fare nearly so well. Ruidoso's Joe Bob McGuire was one that didn't. In the first round of the competition, McGuire failed to negotiate either the blue or red course.

Marolt will attempt to win the race for a second time today. This year, the Yukon Jack-Sierra Blanca Pro Cup consists of two separate races. Like Wednesday, a field of 32 racers will begin and race until there is only one left.

The races, which are head to head competitions, are scheduled to begin at 10 a.m. There is no admission.

DENVER'S TED MAROLT WON THE YUKON JACK-SIERRA BLANCA Pro Cup ski race Wednesday, narrowly defeating Brian Raasch. Marolt, runner-up in last year's race, defeated five opponents en route to the championship.

Winter Carnival this weekend

This year's Winter Carnival, in conjunction with the Yukon Jack Pro Races and originally scheduled at the Inn of the Mountain Gods, will be held Saturday at the Ruidoso Ski and Recreation Area.

The events, similar to the ones last year, will be geared to family participation in an effort to involve the community. Events include: log splitting contest, log dragging contest, races for kids and adults and family relay races.

The festivities begin at 12:30 p.m. Saturday and admission to the contests is free. The day of fun will be concluded by a torch light ski exhibition in the evening. A party at the area will follow.

The Winter Carnival almost didn't get off the ground this year because of complications. But the help of the following sponsors made this year's Winter Carnival possible: Nottingham's Deli, Morgan's Mountain Sports, Dave Wilson Photographics, KHRH radio, Alpine Ski Haus, Ray Held's Ski Shop, Mini-Mart, Cousins', Sierra Blanca Sports, Cup Hardware, Olympia Beer and Rush Rentals.

Chamber prepares for nominations

The nominating committee of the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce met Monday to discuss objectives and scheduling for the upcoming board election.

One of the main goals discussed by the committee was encouraging community input on the nominations.

"Nominating committees are criticized as an elite group that sits back and chooses 'you and you and you,'" chairman Sunny Hirschfeld said.

The committee agreed to accept and encourage suggestions for nominees from the community and "if valid we will consider them" but not guarantee their nomination.

Another goal discussed by the committee was increasing board representation from the valley.

"We're the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce and I hope we can be more representative of the valley," Hirschfeld said, urging the committee to consider eligible persons residing in the Hondo Valley for nomination.

During the meeting, the nominating committee which includes Al Juzge, Morgan Clough, Florence Wilson and Mike Morris, also discussed the guidelines for nomination set in the Chamber bylaws.

According to the bylaws, the committee "shall nominate only those members who, in their opinion, are capable of leadership, vision and a comprehension of the complex economy of our village and the interdependence and interrelationships between all segments of the community."

Also, "no director shall be nominated as a candidate of any faction, profession or business but shall be representative of the membership as a whole."

Bylaws also state seven members are to be elected to serve a two year term, but the Chamber general membership also will elect one person to serve a one-year term.

In past years length of terms and vacancy appointments have become confused to the point where eight directors were elected on odd years and six on even years instead of the seven-seven breakdown.

Nogal fire station gets approval

The Lincoln County Commission, meeting Tuesday in Carrizozo, approved a budget transfer that will provide for the construction of a new fire station in the Nogal area.

The money is to be transferred from the county's general fund, pending approval of Al Romero, local government division chief of the state Department of Finance and Administration (DFA), and added to the Nogal fire fund. Total cost of the project will be about $19,500, according to county manager Les Olson.

The planned station will be a 30 by 60 foot, metal shell, with 14 foot eave, two bays and a concrete slab floor. The current fire station building is inadequate, a department representative said, because of the recent purchase of a firetruck too large to be housed there.

Olson said two lots for the construction had been donated to the county by Ralph Forsythe.

County Agent Ralph Dunlap and Jack Wallace of the New Mexico State University (NMSU) Extension department, presented an informational report to the commissioners about the process of selection of a county agent. Dunlap may be leaving soon to accept employment in a sheep-raising operation in Tunisia.

Wallace said that once a vacancy is confirmed, the position would be advertised for 30 days at NMSU. After that time, the applicants would be reviewed. The county commissioners would be consulted, Wallace added, to get their input on the applicants, before a final recommendation was made to the administration.

The Lincoln County position would be filled on a two-year contractual basis, Wallace said, which would allow for the rehiring of Dunlap should he wish to return to the job.

The commission held bid openings for the annual county fuel contract and for photographic equipment for the sheriff's department. C.R. Petroleum Company was low bidder for the fuel contract, with a base price of 56.4 cents for regular, 43.5 cents for diesel and 59.0 cents for unleaded fuel.

Dave Wilson's Photographic was the sole bidder on cameras and support equipment at $3,577.55. Olson said the bid was within the capital outlay provided by a recent grant for the sheriff's department, and commissioners voted to accept it.

County roads were another major consideration at the meeting. Fred La May requested graveling of the road running off Highway 37 to La May Ranch Estates. He was informed that the road was part of the county school bus roads upgrading project, and his request would be acted upon.

Assistant District Attorney Daniel Bryant said he would write a letter to Robert Runnels, another property owner

Visitor info center about ready

Construction on the new visitor information center at the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce will be completed by early February, executive secretary Ed Jungbluth said Tuesday.

The addition, which essentially encloses the porch area, will triple the available space for information and will allow for 24 hour service.

The construction will be delayed slightly because the glass door was damaged and because some of the lettering has not arrived.

Once construction is complete it will "take some time to get it all set up," Jungbluth said.

"We hope to offer everything we have inside—pamphlets, brochures—and be as helpful to the tourist as possible, but still eliminate the spoken word."

In addition to the 24 hour information service, the center also will offer a communications board.

"Many people who come to town need to meet," for example two families who are coming from different towns and need to meet before finding accommodations or maybe "Harry and Phyllis need to tell John and Mildred where they are," he said.

To add these persons, the Chamber information center will offer a board for messages.

According to Jungbluth, "The most frequently asked question is how to get somewhere, which cannot be taken care of with a brochure."

To assist visitors in finding where they want to go, a large map of the village and area will be posted in the center.

On the map the Chamber "will list businesses by category" and give their location.

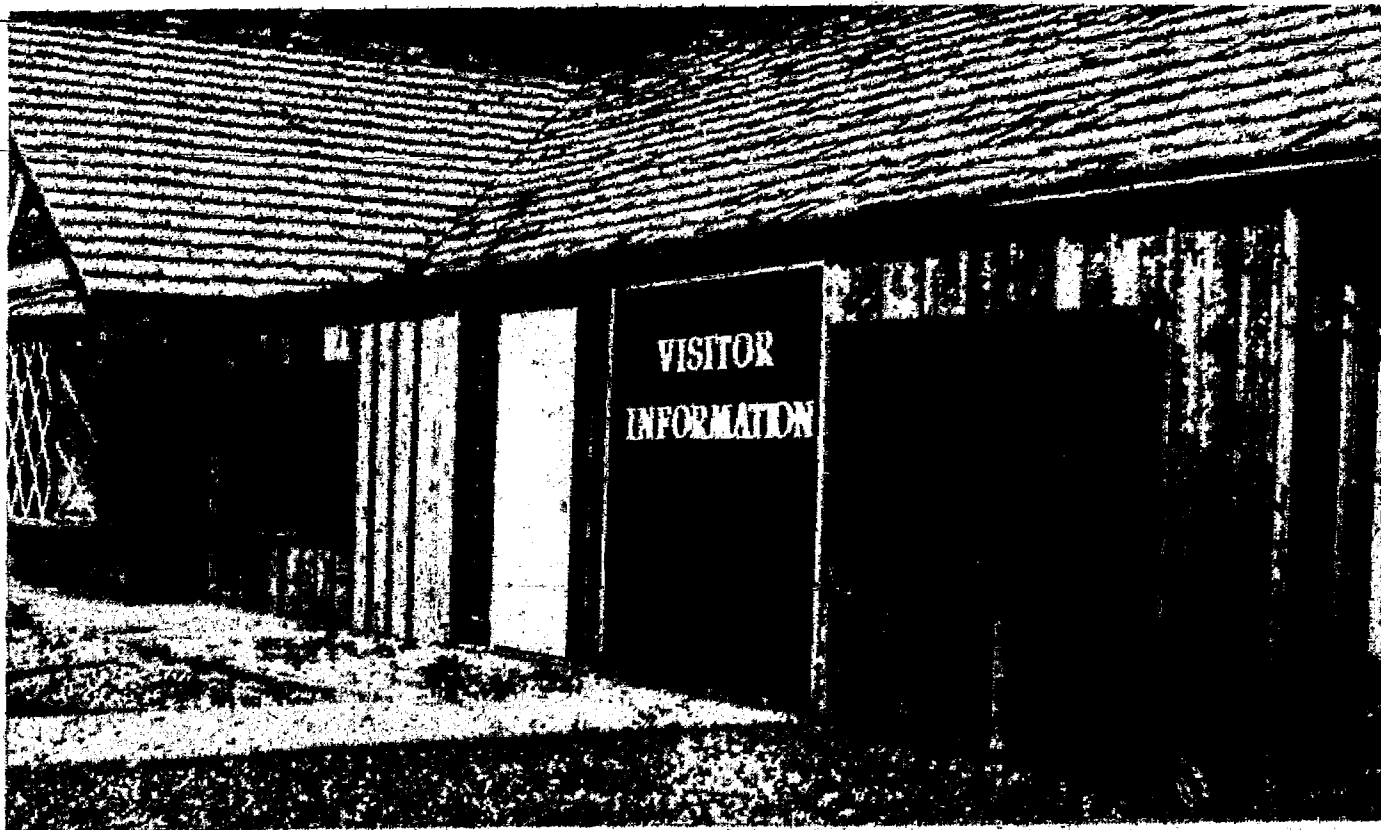

Businesses are invited to have their location marked on the map for "a one time cost of $25."

The map project has been designed to pay for the center construction costs of $3,500 to $4,000, Jungbluth said.

Categories to be listed are restaurants, Realtors, lodging, ski shops, financial institutions, art galleries, gifts and curios, clothing, grocery stores, miscellaneous retail and miscellaneous.

Other locations to be marked on the map will be the hospital, Ruidoso and Ruidoso Downs village halls and police departments, swimming pool, golf courses, airport, theatre, racetrack, campgrounds, ski areas, library and churches.

For more information on the project or to sign up call the Chamber at 257-7336.

VISITOR INFORMATION addition to the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce should be complete by early February. Completion will be delayed because the letters for "Center, Open 24 Hours" have not arrived and the glass door was damaged and must be replaced.

Smokey Bear District road damage more than $500M

Lincoln National Forest representatives have requested $500,000 to $600,000 from the Federal Highway Administration for repair of roads in Smokey Bear Ranger District damaged in the December 19 flood.

Roads most seriously impacted are the Eagle Creek road, main Bonito Lake road from Highway 37 to the Rio Bonito Subdivision, road to Southfork campground off the Bonito Lake Road, Parson's Road from Tanbark Canyon through Parson's Mine to Nogal and Nogal Canyon Road.

According to Jerry Adamson, Forest Service engineer, the Highway Department has agreed to assist with funding the repairs but no specific dollar amounts have been announced.

Cedar Creek Road also sustained some damage, but is not eligible for federal assistance because it was less seriously impacted.

Heavy maintenance or blading and general light repair are needed on Cedar Creek Road while the other roads require repair, restructuring and occasional new construction.

Although damaged, the roads are "more or less accessible" with high clearance vehicles such as pickups or four-wheel-drive vehicles.

Adamson said the roads most difficult to drive are the last quarter mile before Rio Bonito Subdivision, Tanbark Canyon to Bonito, and Eagle Creek Summer Home area.

"In those areas you definitely need a four wheel drive for numerous reasons such as water, ice or boulders."

The only damaged area which remains inaccessible is Southfork Campground, where the flood washed away the approaches and left a free-standing bridge.

Other Forest Service facilities in Smokey Bear Ranger District sustained damage estimated at $40,000 to $50,000 on trails and about $10,000 on recreation sites.

Paul Gordon, district ranger, said the trails damage estimate may be low as "we have no idea of the extent of the damage until we get up in there" during the spring melt.

Cleaning debris from the trails and repairing recreation facilities does not qualify for federal assistance, but would if a national disaster area were declared.

If a disaster area is not declared by the President, then cost of those repairs will have to be absorbed by the Forest Service.

The repairs "have to be done, but they may not get done immediately and even maybe prolonged over three or four years," Adamson said.

In an "overview and recommended direction for storm damage," Adamson wrote "if we do the necessary reconstruction/restoration, it will be demanding on our current manpower and support facilities. Some activities must be deferred or cancelled to have a timely completion of emergency funds."

"There are numerous items which must be completed very soon to define priorities so as impacted and concerned use can be responsive. Economic analysis reports, in-depth planning, scheduling, designing, right-of-way, acquisition if necessary, land line location, negotiations with the county and other activities will definitely affect our current programs."

Adamson recommended, "The impacted district and concerned staff should meet in a joint session to develop an action plan after the final assessment is completed. An early date in February is recommended."

Community aid meet set for February 8

An organizational meeting to discuss formation of a community aid program will be held at 7 p.m. February 8 in the library.

At the meeting, discussion will center around forming an assistance organization to provide for needy of all ages and formation of a communications network among civic organizations, churches and other groups assisting the community. All interested persons are welcomed.

along the county road, to request a 50 foot easement, which would be necessary for surfacing and ditching.

James Bonnell also made a request for surfacing of a county road on which his home is located. He said he felt surfacing would help confirm the fact that it was a county, rather than a forest road which would discourage trespassers from collecting wood on his property.

Bonnell was advised by Bryant to install "private property" or "no trespassing" signs on his property. The commissioners agreed they would look into the possibility of putting in a county road sign and surfacing the road sometime in the future.

Slight changes in roads in the La May Ranch Estates subdivision were also approved by the commissioners. Tom Ward, consulting engineer on the project, said the changes were made to avoid the removal of large trees in one area and to decrease the steep grade in another.

In other business, the commission: — Accepted a bid from the Carrizozo

Municipal Schools for three of 14 business machines being sold by the county.

— Heard a report from George Shoemaker on the current status of the proposed airport on Fort Stanton Mesa.

— Approved the development of bid specifications in preparation for a call for bids on the lease of a screening machine. The machine will be used by the county road crew.

— Tabled a grant application to the Emergency Medical Services office.

— Heard a request from Bud Payne for the purchase of two new ambulances, which would serve as backup vehicles for Carrizozo and Alto.

— Tabled consideration of appointments to the local Council of Governments.

— Agreed to reimburse the Bonito Fire Department for $215 in ambulance equipment, again pending approval of the DFA office.

— Approved the compilation of a print-out of landowners in the Bonito Fire District, making it easier for volunteers to solicit funds for the department.

OES Worthy Grand Matron visits Ruidoso

Adele Durnell, Worthy Grand Matron, Order of the Eastern Star, made an official visit to the Ruidoso Chapter #85 Friday, January 19.

The events began with a banquet at K-Bob's. A money corsage and package of seeds were presented to Sister Adele by Darla Lathan, Worthy Matron.

The head table was decorated with a ship representing the Worthy Grand Matron's theme of ships. Each one present had a ship favor.

Following the banquet, a special meeting was held at the Eastern Star Hall, where Sister Adele was formally introduced. Other special introductions were extended to Harriet Richardson, General Grand Chapter Committee Member; Rufus Stannett, Past Grand Patron and Carroll McCleary, Past Grand Patron.

Members of the grand family were introduced, as well as Worthy Matrons, Worthy Patrons and other visitors and members. Among these was Clyde Durnell, who is accompanying his wife on her travels throughout the state.

Cathy Norman was initiated, with Larry Norman, Worthy Patron, presiding.

A flower presentation, results of seeds presented earlier, was made to the Worthy Grand Matron as well as a check for special projects sponsored by the Eastern Star in New Mexico.

All were thanked by the Worthy Matron for their attendance. Many towns in the state were represented. Sister Adele made a speech concerning one of the pilgrims arriving on the Mayflower and the founding of the country.

Following the formal closing, a reception was held. It was sponsored by the General arrangements committee, which consists of Elva Smith, chairman; Bobbie Everett, Rose Norman, Mildred Parker and Kathy Edwards.

The theme of ships and pilgrims was carried out in the decorations. A ship's wheel was used in the chapter room.

Twenty-five Star members attended a breakfast held Saturday at Nob Hill Restaurant.

Little theatre to organize

A meeting to organize a little theatre group will be held at 7 p.m. Monday at the Elk's Lodge.

Persons interested in any facet of little theatre including directing, lighting, acting, set design and costumes are urged to attend.

The group will discuss "making a positive effort to get a production underway" by March, Joan Griffith said.

Anyone interested in participating but unable to attend the meeting may contact Mrs. Griffith at 378-4988.

Elks magic show coming Sunday, 4:30

The Ruidoso Elks Lodge will sponsor one of the largest traveling magic shows in the country for one show at 4:30 p.m. Sunday in the Ruidoso High School gym.

Magician Dennis Loomis, will include uncommon illusions such as the disappearing pony, the top shop, the sword cabinet and levitation.

"Each of the big illusions is presented in a story production... making use of props and settings not generally found on magic shows," a show spokesman said.

During the show, which also includes five assistants and 17 animals, Loomis will work in front of the curtain to do magic with paper, ropes and knots.

He also is a juggler, escape artist and fire eater.

Loomis simulated an escape by Houdini from a regulation strait jacket while hanging upside down, but with the quirk of hanging by his knees from a trapeze bar suspended 150 feet in the air by a helicopter.

Although Loomis has said he is pleased with the renewed interest in magic, he would continue making magic regardless of its popularity because "there's something which fascinates me about creating illusions, eating fire and escaping from strait jackets."

Tickets are available from members of the Ruidoso Elks Lodge or at the door.

MAKE-BELIEVE PRESIDENTS

by Nicholas von Hoffman

It was back in 1952 that Harry Truman, contemplating the problems President-elect Eisenhower would face on coming to office, said, "He'll sit there and he'll say 'Do this! Do that!' and nothing will happen. Poor Ike, it won't be like the Army. He'll find it very frustrating."

Even before he gave any thought to Ike in the presidency, Truman recognized the limitations of presidential power. He once complained, "I sit here all day trying to persuade people to do the things they ought to have sense enough to do without my persuading them... That's all the powers of the President amount to."

Yet almost before we inaugurate a President we begin the rating process. Labels of "strong" or "weak" find their way into columns and articles. Our political preoccupation, focused on the occupant of the White House, is with his use of what we presume to be almost unlimited power.

In 1960, Richard Neustadt wrote a classic, presidential power, in which he pointed out the limits of presidential powers, arguing that the greatest power was "to induce others that what he wants of them is what their own appraisal of their own responsibilities requires them to do in their interest, not his." John Kennedy read this carefully and was sufficiently impressed to appoint Neustadt as special consultant during the transition of 1960-61.

Nicholas von Hoffman in make-believe presidents has taken a similar tack. Von Hoffman's thesis is that although political power has become more centralized since the 1800's, the presidency has itself become increasingly hemmed in by bureaus and commissions that, although he may influence and manipulate, he is unable to control. For example, commissions like the Interstate Commerce Commission have legislative, judicial and administrative functions controlled by men who, although they are presidential appointees, do not serve at the pleasure of the president, but rather for specific terms.

Von Hoffman takes us on a presidential journey over the past one hundred years and along the way lances a number of myths that have grown up around the presidents and their accomplishments. In this country we don't take too kindly to revisionist historians who shatter our most cherished illusions. But Von Hoffman, who enjoys administering shock treatments, deserves to be heard for his observations are significant and his research far from shabby. He argues that the men we elect to that highest office are creatures of their times and do not generally rise above them. Is it because we have an electorate whose ears have been trained to hear only one tune? And is this why politics in the United States seems so dissatisfying and indecisive? And is this reflected by the more than 50 percent who don't bother to vote? Von Hoffman sees only minor differences in presidential candidates and none at all in the two parties. When there is no difference, just as with soap and other commercial products, the selling takes the form of singing jingles.

Along this journey into the illusions of power, Hoffman digresses to take up a number of related subjects. All of them are thought-provoking. Some, such as the Palmer Raids and the McCarthy Era, point up that democracies are not immune from aspects of totalitarianism. The subjects are serious but von Hoffman presents his research with his famous wit and insight.

Nicholas von Hoffman is probably best recognized for his debates with James Kilpatrick during the early 1970's on television's "Sixty Minutes." He has also been a reporter and columnist for the Chicago Daily News and the Washington Post.

BLM files application to continue McGregor range

The Army Corps of Engineers has filed an application with the Bureau of Land Management (BLM) to continue to reserve 908,000 acres of public land in Otero County, New Mexico to be used by the United States Army Air Defense Center, Fort Bliss, Texas for artillery and missile firing, and related military training. The area, McGregor Range, would continue to be closed to the general land laws, including the mining and mineral leasing laws subject to valid existing rights.

This new application essentially extends the present withdrawal, with the exclusion of some 18,000 acres of national forest lands. This area will be managed jointly by the United States Army and the Forest Service rather than withdrawn as it has previously.

Persons who wish to comment on the proposal have until March 1, 1979. Comments should be sent to the Bureau of Land Management, Post Office Box 1449, Santa Fe, New Mexico 87501.

Carrizozo rabbit fever victim doing fine

A 13-year-old Lincoln County resident, who was the state's first tularemia victim of the year, is "doing fine" according to David Rouleau, M.D., of Capitan, who treated the boy.

Tularemia, or rabbit fever, is usually transmitted from an infected animal to humans through cuts on human hands. State epidemiologist Dr. Jonathan Mann said the boy had contracted the disease while hunting and skinning rabbits near Carrizozo last month.

The victim was treated and released from Ruidoso Hondo Valley Hospital. Rouleau would not identify the boy.

Tularemia is a bacterial disease that mainly affects wild rabbits, Mann said. An average of one case per year is confirmed in New Mexico, he added.

Though the disease can be "life threatening," Mann said that with antibiotic treatment, such a situation would be rare.

The epidemiologist advised hunters to wear rubber gloves when skinning rabbits. Sick or dead rabbits should be avoided, Mann said, and all rabbit meat should be cooked thoroughly, since the disease may also be contracted through eating undercooked rabbit meat.

"Dating Game" trip to area awarded Feb. 21

Air date for the skiing/Ruidoso promotion on "The Dating Game" has been set for 8:30 p.m. February 21 on KOAT-TV, Channel 7.

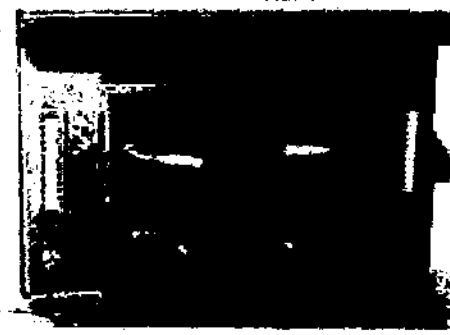

A couple will be awarded a trip from Los Angeles sometime in March courtesy of Holiday Inn and Sierra Blanca Ski Area.

The winning couple and a chaperone will be met at the El Paso airport by representatives of Ruidoso's Holiday Inn and the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce.

The stay in Ruidoso will include three days and nights at the Holiday Inn and transportation to Sierra Blanca Ski Area. Ski lessons, equipment, and lift tickets will be provided.

Cagerettes fall to rallying Bulldogs

The Ruidoso Warriors girls' basketball team couldn't hold on to a 12-8 first quarter lead Tuesday, losing 57-51 to the Weed Bulldogs.

Ruidoso came out firing and jumped to a 10-0 lead. It appeared Weed was going to be routed. But the shots they had been missing began to fall. At the end of the first period, Weed had cut the lead to one point at 16-14.

Weed stayed hot in the second period and broke to a 22-21 halftime lead. Led by Donna Lewis and Tami Van Winkle, Weed penetrated the Warriors' zone defense for easy layups.

Ruidoso failed to give up, however. Led by a balanced attack featuring the scoring of Tracey Shafer, Kristi Perryman and Lori Swain, the Warriors battled to within five points going into the final period.

Midway through the final period, a move that Warrior coach Sergio Castanon made prior to the game paid off. He started Shafer in place of Cathy Jones. Shafer responded with 12 points, most on 15 foot jump shots.

With under five minutes to play, Shafer tied the score at 43 all on a jump shot. The next time down the floor, Ruidoso tied the score at 45.

"Shafer gives us a little more quickness inside," Castanon said in explaining his move to start Shafer. "Her shots" were going in except when she rushed them. I'll probably play that five in district."

The key play in the game came with less than three minutes to play. Weed led 47-45. Ruidoso came down but failed to score. Weed scored to make the score 49-45. Weed stole the inbound pass and scored. The girl was fouled. She hit her foul shot. All of a sudden, Ruidoso was starting at a 52-46 deficit. It was too much to overcome in the final minutes. Ruidoso never got closer than the five points the rest of the way.

The loss was an encouraging one to Castanon. The past weekend, the Warriors had looked miserable in lopsided losses to Goddard and Clondorff. The performance against Weed was one of their best of the season. Castanon attributed the improvement to a team meeting held Monday.

"We had a meeting Monday," he said. "We decided to start showing a little more sportsmanship, not only to the other team, but to each other. It helped us play better as a team. We're getting our team together."

It couldn't have happened at a better

Four Ruidosoans win free throw shooting contest

Six kids aged 11 through 14 won first place honors in Saturday's Knights of Columbus Free Throw Shoot at White Mountain Gym.

Ruidoso's Leo Torres won the boys' 11-year-old class, edging Honda's Bernard Olaco. Tami Morales of San Patricio took the girls' 11-year-old title. She beat Tina Torres of Honda.

RUIDOSO'S KELLY COTHRUN (LIGHT UNIFORM) shoots over an unidentified Weed player. Helping out on defense is Weed's Donna Lewis (42). Cotherun tallied five points but the cagerettes were unable to hold on to a first quarter ten point lead. Ruidoso resumes play Friday at 2 p.m. at Warrior Gym.

time. Ruidoso opens district play Friday against Animas at Warrior Gym at 2 p.m. Saturday, Ruidoso plays Lordsburg at 2 p.m. That game is also set for Warrior Gym.

Ruidoso has met and lost to Animas this season. Castanon doesn't plan to alter his strategy for the contest. But he will add a few subtle wrinkles.

"Animas has two real tough guards," he said. "We'll have to adjust defensively or it will be no contest."

White Mountain salvages split against Holloman

White Mountain's Kody Taylor scored 19 points to lead the girl Braves past Holloman Tuesday 33-19 at Holloman.

The boys didn't fare as well, losing to the Falcons 27-24. Dion Salas led Braves' scorers in that contest with 12 points.

The Braves' next games are set for January 29 at Capitán. The boys' seventh grade team will also see action at Capitán.

Warriors upend Weed 64-54

Ruidoso rode Jeff Elliot's 22 points to a 64-54 upset of Weed Tuesday at Warrior Gym.

A crowd of 50 watched Elliot penetrate Weed's zone defense repeatedly in the first half to pace the Warriors to a lead they never relinquished.

Weed, the class A number one ranked unit, cut the lead to two points in the third period, but could never tie the score.

Besides Elliot, Ruidoso was paced by Stan Cape, who not only contributed 14 points, but several key rebounds. Borda Williams added 11 points for the Warriors. Most of them came in the fourth period when Ruidoso was fighting off various Weed challenges.

Rodney Thomason added seven. Tim Riley added six. Paul Kirkwood and Sean Monrad, coming off the bench scored two points each. More importantly to Warrior head coach Barry Nelson was their penchant for spelling the Warrior starters when they got into foul trouble.

"They did what they were supposed to do," Nelson said. "They took the pressure off the people in foul trouble. They helped us out."

Helping out was something the Warriors did with ease Tuesday. Before the game, Nelson voiced concern about Weed's star player, Kelly Lee. Although Lee scored 25 points he was unable to dominate the game. Ruidoso used a trapping defense that was effective in stifling the Weed attack. When the Warriors were building their first period lead, they coaxed Weed into several turnovers.

"We kept Weed from coming out and knocking a hole in the basket," Nelson said. "It's hard to keep Lee from scoring. I wish we didn't have to play them Thursday."

Playing them a second time in a week won't be an easy task for the Warriors. They open with Weed in the first round of the Dexter tournament.

"The Dexter tournament is probably one of the toughest we've ever been in," Nelson said. "Hagerman is in the field and they've beaten Weed. Hatch is in it." Hatch, a district opponent of Ruidoso's, buried the Warriors earlier this season.

The win Tuesday upped the Warriors' record to 4-2. Weed's record dropped to 13-

Ames hopes for change in Cobre match

The Ruidoso wrestling team entertains Cobre Saturday at 11:30 a.m. in a contest that "will show us where we stand", according to coach Gerald Ames.

Where the Warriors have stood recently is on uneven ground. After getting off to an encouraging 2-0 dual match record, the Warriors have experienced a drought.

In recent dual matches, Ruidoso lost convincingly to Roswell and New Mexico Military Institute. Last weekend, they finished seventh in a field of seven at the Goddard Invitational.

Despite the losses, Ames remained optimistic because his squad was getting what they lacked most, experience. Even in the losses, Ames' optimism has not wavered. If the Warriors could have won two or three matches instead of losing them, the results of a dual match would have been reversed, he said. In that regard, Ruidoso is gaining on victory.

But the match with Cobre Saturday will serve as a yardstick for Ames. He said it is a big match for his team. In the Goddard tournament, he saw encouraging signs of a Warrior turnaround.

"Dirk (Strassberg) wrestled with fire for the first time this season," Ames said.

And he also liked what he saw of Wes Atkinson. Atkinson has been a bright spot for the Warriors all season. Along with Strassberg and Ray Herrera, Atkinson forms the nucleus of the Warrior squad.

At the Goddard tournament, Atkinson was one of four wrestlers that garnered a third place finish for Ruidoso. Even more encouraging to Ames was the fact that Atkinson defeated Roswell's Mark McVay, to whom he had earlier lost, en route to his third place finish.

Another sign of encouragement to Ames was Greg Lane's performance. He was another wrestler who captured a third place finish.

The major disappointment was Ray Herrera's performance. Ames has counted on Herrera all season for crucial points. At Goddard, Herrera slumped badly in the 120 pound class. He was pinned twice before bowing out of the competition. Even so, Ames was not too disappointed. "Ray was real sick before the match," Ames said. "That's not an excuse. That's just the way it was."

Another performer that has been sick is Godfrey Enjady. He has missed most of the season with the flu. The addition of Byron Wright has diminished the loss somewhat. But Enjady's experience is sorely missed. Wright is in his first season of wrestling.

REPORTING REQUIREMENTS
Property which was valued in 1978 in this County by the County Assessor is not required to be reported or revalued for 1979 or subsequent years, EXCEPT FOR:
1. mobile homes,
2. livestock, and
3. land used for agricultural purposes.
If, for any reason, your property was not valued last year and it is subject to valuation this year, you are required by law to report it to the County Assessor on forms provided either by mail or at the Assessor's office. Reports for mobile homes, livestock, and land used for agricultural purposes and property not valued last year must be completed and mailed or delivered to the County Assessor not later than the last day of February.
If you made improvement to your real property and:
1. the improvements cost more than $1,000 and
2. a building permit for the improvements was not issued, you must report the nature of the improvements and their cost to the Assessor not later than the last day of February. These reports must be on forms provided by the Assessor.
If you believe your property decreased in value during the preceding year, you must report, on forms provided by the Assessor, a signed statement which:
1. describes the property affected,
2. states the cause and nature of decrease in value, and
3. states the amount you contend the value has decreased.
This statement must be filed with the Assessor not later than the last day of February.
Claims for veterans exemption must also be made by the last day of February, using forms provided by the County Assessor. These forms must be filed with the Assessor, accompanied by a veterans' certificate of eligibility.
If the head-of-family exemption was claimed and allowed in 1978, no new claim for the exemption is required to be filed. However, if that exemption was not claimed and allowed in 1978 and it is now claimed, filing must be made by the last day of February by filing with the Assessor the forms provided by the Assessor.

Occupations, employment Art, fellowship grants pattern study is available available this month

The second volume of a three year study of occupations and employment patterns in New Mexico, "Staffing Patterns for Manufacturing," is now available from the Employment Services Division of the Department of Human Services. Division Director Eric Serna said the report, which follows an earlier publication on employment in Federal government in the state, describes the types of jobs found in New Mexico manufacturing companies, along with a statistical breakdown by products and locations.

Serna said the report shows state manufacturing employment has been growing rapidly and now includes more than 32,000 workers. He noted growth is expected to continue as businesses are attracted by the state's growing population, improving transportation, available labor force, scientific facilities, and the efforts of private organizations. Electronics, computer related equipment, apparel, and transportation equipment were mentioned as particularly fast growing areas.

The report lists several hundred job skills in the 25 manufacturing subindustries covered. The occupational skill group most often listed is production and maintenance, including such jobs as sewing machine operator with 2000 workers, electronic assemblers (1600), truck drivers (1600), inspectors (600), packagers (600), and welders (600). That category also includes twenty power barker operators in lumbering, ten sausage casing finishers in meat products plants, ten cage makers at brick and block companies, and thirty hand compositors still working in the state's not-yet-computerized printing plants.

Technical and professional occupations listed by manufacturing firms include electronic technicians (400), electrical engineers (200) and accountants (100). In other occupational categories, employers showed large numbers of secretaries, general clerks, shipping and receiving clerks, and guards.

The Occupational Employment

Statistics (OES) Program is a cooperative activity of the United States Department of Labor and the various state Job Service agencies. Other publications planned for New Mexico are State and Local Government and Non-Manufacturing Staffing, both scheduled for 1979, and Trade, which will be published in 1980. No publication is planned for Agriculture. When the survey is complete for all industries, data will be analyzed to provide extensive information on current and expected employment needs and opportunities for training, economic and manpower activities.

Serna said cooperation of employers has been excellent, with 85 percent of the manufacturing surveys returned and only two major companies, Albuquerque Publishing Company and Phelps-Dodge Corporation, refused to participate. Copies of the publication are available without charge from the Employment Services Division, Research and Statistics Section, Post Office Box 1828, Albuquerque, New Mexico 87103.

January 23 is the deadline for applications to the National Endowment for the Arts (NEA) for appointment to its Work Experience Internship Program for the summer 1979 term, which runs from June 4 through August 31.

The Endowment holds three 13-week sessions each year to assist in the training of promising arts administrators, acquainting them with the policies, procedures and operations of the Endowment itself and giving them an overview of arts activities around the country.

Interns are assigned to various program areas in the Endowment's Washington office, spending approximately two-thirds of their time as members of the professional staff, gaining knowledge of NEA programs, and the remainder of their time in meetings and seminars with NEA officers, panelists, artists, journalists, and federal officers.

Work Experience Internship grants include a $2,400 fellowship stipend, plus round-trip transportation to Washington, D.C. Candidates must be sponsored by an organization—a college, university, state arts agency, or any other professional nonprofit, tax-exempt group. Applications guidelines and forms are available from the New Mexico Arts Division, 113 Lincoln Ave., Santa Fe 87501. The Arts Division's phone number is 827-2061.

January 25 is the deadline for applications to the NEA for fellowships and grants in all areas of its Architecture, Planning and Design Program.

Design fellowships of $10,000 are available to practicing professional designers and planners of exceptional talent, who seek time for personal and professional development; fellowships not exceeding $5,000 are also available for designers or planners at the earliest phases of their professional careers, or who are returning to the field. Design Project Fellowships of $10,000 are also offered to assist individuals in pursuit of specific design, research or education project goals. Persons engaged in teaching are eligible in the Design Project Fellowships category only. Neither category of fellowship may be used to support an individual's formal professional education, however.

For organizations, the Endowment offers a wide range of funding for architectural and environmental projects. However, NEA funds may not be used for construction, renovation, or for capital investment.

The Livable Cities program, which encourages exemplary design in communities as an integral part of the planning process, will support projects for preservation of a city's architectural heritage, for improving, enlivening, and generally developing urban, suburban and rural areas in a manner most responsive to human needs—physical, social, economic, and cultural.

The Endowment offers matching grants to assist communities in the planning and design of exemplary cultural facilities to provide for increasing activity in the arts, and to encourage the commitment of local public and private funds to carry out projects. Funds are available for feasibility studies, planning, design, preparation of promotional materials, and technical research. Highest priority is placed on projects representing a compelling and immediate need and promising economic and social benefit to the community. The program is especially interested in proposals which show promise of creative design.

The Design: Communications and Research category encourages the exchange of creative design ideas between the public and the design professions, and assists in the development and dissemination of information about design. Matching grants in this category support research and development of new ideas by academic institutions and other nonprofit, tax-exempt organizations. It encourages public awareness through seminars, workshops, film, television, radio, publications and other media.

Complete information, guidelines and application forms for NEA Architecture, Planning and Design fellowships and grants may be obtained from the Director, Architecture, Planning and Design Program, National Endowment for the Arts, Washington, D.C. 20506. Information and application forms are also available from the New Mexico Arts Division, 113 Lincoln Ave., Santa Fe 87501. The Arts Division's telephone number is 827-2061.

Capitol Comment

by Ernie Mills

Santa Fe-Tell-tale Time: This week should determine just how successful the 1979 60-day session of the New Mexico Legislature will be—and we are referring, of course, to what unity strides are made in the House of Representatives.

Consistently, this reporter refrained from making any predictions on the outcome of the race for Speaker between Rep. Walter Martinez of Grants or Rep. Gene Samberson of Lea County.

In twenty years of covering State Government and the Legislature in Santa Fe, we had never seen the tradition broken that the Republican Party in either House would align itself with a faction of the opposition party to upset the majority sentiment of the majority party.

Of course, in the Senate, the Lt. Gov. presides over the upper house and committee assignments are determined by a committee-on-committees that has representation of both political parties.

In the Lower House, however, the man who holds the Speaker's Chair is much more powerful. He determines not only the chairmen and vice-chairmen of all committees, but determines who serves on each committee as well.

Thus, when Samberson overturned Martinez by a vote of thirty-seven to thirty-three, it meant a whole new ballgame.

Martinez, who had been chosen for the Speaker's chair in a Democratic caucus held earlier, already had released a list of his committee assignments and that included the names of those designated to serve as chairmen and vice-chairmen.

Utilizing eleven Democratic conservative votes and a big bulk of the Republican House members, Samberson was able to put together a coalition that squeaked out a four vote victory.

But, all you need to win is one!

It is only natural that emotions would run high at the outset and before the end of the week, the thirty members of the Democrat moderate liberal majority who had supported Martinez held a caucus and voted to exclude the eleven members who had supported Samberson—not because of their support of Samberson, but because of their alignment with the House Republicans.

Nobody, but nobody, is going to deny that tempers were running hot by the end of last week. In fact, when the Demos were trying to set a time and place for their caucus it took on the appearances of Government by multiple choice.

But, outside of the hot heads, there are plenty of guys in the Lower House who have a reputation for maintaining their cool. Walter Martinez, the man ousted as Speaker, is just that sort of guy.

He declined to make any immediate statements on his defeat or the subsequent expulsion of the eleven Demo conservatives from the caucus, rather than spill oil on already troubled waters. In effect, Walter took a raincheck.

The name of the game this week then is to determine just how successful the peace-making efforts have been, whether they are successful enough for the House to get along with some Legislation of tremendous magnitude.

And...whether the protestations of peace are sincere or lip-service.

Legislative Sidelights: A couple of items to look for once the furor dies down over the House Speaker's race.

Look for the House to propose rules changes that will provide for committee assignments in much the same form as that utilized in the Senate.

That will necessitate major rules changes and undoubtedly make some big headlines. Don't Say We Didn't Tell You.

If successful, the rules changes will mean that Republicans will get a say-so in just what major slots will be assigned on committees to members of their party.

And...that should make Republican minority leader Hoyt Pattison happy to no end.

More Sidelights: Also, when the smoke clears over the House battle between liberal-moderate Demos and Democrat conservatives, look for a move to be made to do away with the patronage system for the hiring of House Legislative employees.

In recent years, the bulk of the patronage chores have fallen to those lawmakers from the Northern areas, but our information says the move will be to make examinations mandatory for all those employed during the thirty and sixty-day sessions.

And Still More Sidelights: In the past, standing committees of the New Mexico House of Representatives have had their funding included in the big Appropriations bill considered by the entire House and then sent over in the closing days to the Senate for confirmation.

This go-round a move will be made to have each standing interim committee stand on its own feet... which means...the committee will be included in a separate measure with an appropriations request attached.

And...as the Veteran lawmakers will tell you...that could mean some changes in the cards for those committees that

Letters to the Editor

Dear editor:

As a result of our recent flooding in the Rio Ruidoso, Eagle Creek, and Nogal and Bonito watersheds, we sustained severe damage to several roads in the Ruidoso area. We have requested emergency funding through the Federal Highway Administration for restoration of these roads. As part of the eligibility of findings and federal disaster declarations, numerous clippings from your paper were submitted with our data. I wish to thank you for the accurate and thorough coverage of the flooding. If Federal assistance does become available, your paper has definitely helped in gaining funds for these repairs.

Sincerely,
Sidney P. Gordon

TWO SALARY FAMILIES

Money magazine, the fairly new Time-Fortune publishing venture, devotes most of its January issue to the two paycheck family, which it says is the "subtle revolution" in the American family in the past 25 years.

propose to meet between sessions of the Legislature.

And...again...the move to make the committee changes—if it comes—could make some big headlines.

Final Note: For some reason, we never can get too un-glued over headlines at the outset of a Legislative Session—'cause like the man said: "It's only the beginning!"

Money reports that working wives have now passed the 50 percent point, and this ratio is climbing.

The most obvious reason for mothers and wives to enter the formal labor force is economic. The price of a new home, for instance, has gotten beyond the reach of most solo breadwinners.

Money explores the finer points, however, and finds them significant. Many women are working for psychological satisfaction. It is just as important to their self-esteem that they prove their capabilities with a successful career. The income is frosting on the cake, but it's secondary to the cake.

All this is well and good we suppose — up to a point. Certain women have never before had the opportunities in business and industry that are open up to them now. Many of these opportunities have been unjustly denied them in the past.

The working wife brings new problems into the home environment; however. While her income produces a stabilizing factor, her absence has a definite negative effect. This is particularly true of working mothers, and more especially so for those whose children are young.

In small towns it's off to the babysitter on the way to work. In cities, Johnny and Janie are dropped by the day school. There are some wonderful babysitters in the world, and day schools can do amazing things in training preschoolers, but there is just no substitute for mother love. We suspect that there are parallel curves on the graph that would show an increase in working mothers and the incidence of troubled and broken homes.

The problem is that motherhood, in spite of the cliches, is not really held in the high esteem it deserves. As a direct consequence, women who have this vital responsibility often don't feel motivated to do their best at it. The external motivation is missing.

Beyond that is the matter of managing the family's finances. While in many cases this is a shared responsibility at home, the fact is most husbands are more than glad to turn it over to their wives if the women will show they want the job and can handle it.

More than three-fourths of the income of the typical home is consumed in things that are essential to the family livelihood: food, clothing, shelter, medicine, and other necessities and near-necessities.

It is a challenge deserving of a Harvard MBA to balance the family budget in these volatile, inflationary times. Planning, selective shopping, and tight budgetary restraint are very demanding disciplines, and ones that are not practiced effectively in many homes.

Here is where the gals can shine. The only problem is, the whole woman's movement has put household responsibilities on a low shelf. Indeed, there is a stigma about them that makes them career untouchables.

We don't think the men are to blame for this. Most men would not only gladly acquiesce in this area; they'd be rooting on the sidelines when Mother showed she not only could meet the budget, but came up with a little nestegg in savings.

The idea that such a feat isn't challenging is hog wash. It's the most neglected skill in the country today. —Hop Graham, Livingston Daily Leader

editorial

Wendell Chino, president of the Mescalero Apache Tribe, said at the state of the Village luncheon that more inquiries come to the state about the Sierra Blanca Ski Area than any other ski area in New Mexico. Lift ticket sales are consistently higher here than at any other ski area in the state.

Taos Ski Valley, Santa Fe Ski Basin, and Sandia Peak Ski Area all have beautiful, safe highways leading to them.

If Sierra Blanca is the busiest, and the most popular, why do we have to put up with the roughest, most dangerous ski area access road in the state?

INFLATION FIGHTING ideas

Join with your Safeway Store in the FIGHT AGAINST INFLATION...

President Carter has asked his Cabinet officers to take aggressive action to slow the rise in consumer prices. They were asked for specific suggestions on what consumers themselves can do to cope with the problem of inflation.

The U.S. Office of Consumer Affairs has issued guidelines to help consumers minimize the impact of inflation on their daily lives.

Safeway pledges full cooperation with the U.S. Government in battling this number one domestic problem. As tangible evidence of that support, Safeway will publish weekly inflation-fighting ideas, suggesting ways in which you and your family can shop better for less money.

Some of the subjects to be covered are: Saving on "private labels" such as Safeway Brands; Making Unit Pricing work for you; Cooking from "scratch"; Seasonal produce bargains; Best use of your freezer; Advertised and unadvertised specials; Planning family meals, and many others.

Next week, #1 in this on-going series: "WHAT'S IN A NAME?"

together, we can be INFLATION FIGHTERS!

SAFEGWAY!

Best thing about saving money at Safeway is that there's never a worry about quality. To us, quality comes first. We make sure that everything we sell will deliver satisfaction. Then comes price. Low every day and lots of specials to bring you even greater savings. If ever a purchase should disappoint, you get your money back quick, without quibble. Save at Safeway to be sure!

In-s-i-d-e the Outdoors

by Gary Dollahan

At the close of the waterfowl and quail seasons January 21 and the crane season January 28, numerous hunters will be turning their sights toward a scurrying ball of fur, the cottontail rabbit.

The cottontail, the best known and possibly the most important game animal in North America, is hunted throughout its range from the southern swamps and eastern coastal marshes to sagebrush country, the high Rockies, and beyond to the rain slopes of the Pacific.

In New Mexico, the cottontail currently does not fall under the definition of a game animal, and therefore has no season dates nor bag limits on it in this state. Residents need no license to hunt it, but non-residents need either a non-game hunting license or any other valid non-resident hunting license.

The cottontails' esteem as a sport animal is exceeded only by its value as a table fare. Cooked in any of several ways, its white, tender meat makes for a mouth-watering meal.

Unfortunately, a number of people view the cottontail with a dark shadow over it, the shadow being forms of "rabbit fever," and "plague."

Since our Roswell office has received some recent inquiries from hunters as to what precautions they might take to avoid contracting such diseases while preparing rabbits for the skillet, I contacted the office of Dr. Jonathon Mann, the State Medical Officer in Santa Fe.

I first talked with Dr. Richard Hoffman, the State Epidemiologist, for a little history on rabbit diseases. Dr. Hoffman said the major concern with rabbits is "rabbit fever," or tularemia. "In New Mexico last year there were no cases of tularemia reported in this state, but nationally there are about 135 cases a year."

Hoffman went on to explain that tularemia is caused by a tiny bacteria called Pasteurella tularensis. "The disease is transmitted to cottontails by ticks, fleas, and other biting pests. He said that humans usually contract this disease by getting rabbit blood or other body fluids on their hands while cleaning rabbits, or by eating uncooked rabbit meat."

The bacteria does not necessarily have to enter by way of cuts or abrasions in the human skin, it can penetrate unbroken skin.

As for bubonic plague, Dr. Hoffman said, "Of the five cases of plague in New Mexico last year, none were contributed to rabbits as the cause. However, all five cases had been exposed to wildlife, and thus their fleas."

Bubonic plague is also caused by a Pasteurella germ of the species pestis. This form of plague is primarily associated to the rodents, such as rats, squirrels, and prairie dogs. Fleas are the transmitters, or vectors, of bubonic plague. An animal infected with the disease will die, and the fleas, carrying the disease, look for another warm bodied animal to attach to, including humans.

Hoffman explained that the plague can be contracted from the fleas themselves, or by skinning an infected animal and having the tissue and muscles of this animal come in contact with a cut or abrasion in the skin.

Two of the plague cases last year were associated with the skinning of coyotes, probably flea infested.

The plague is a serious disease which certain forms of are extremely contagious and fatal. Symptoms are primarily tender, red, swollen lymph glands (called buboes, thus the name bubonic) under the arms or in the neck and an accompanying high fever.

I also talked with Dr. O. J. Rollag, the State Veterinarian. Dr. Rollag confirmed Hoffman's statement—that—the—most probably concern with rabbits is tularemia. He added that this disease of "rabbit fever" is for the most part a "mild" disease that is only about 5% fatal when it goes untreated.

Apparently, thanks to modern medicine, tularemia is no longer an important disease in this country.

Dr. Rollag did provide some precautions hunters should take when preparing rabbits for the table, or skinning predators for their fur, which will help reduce the chances of contracting tularemia or the plague.

1) Since the cold days of winter do help to drive the fleas and ticks off of animals, hunters should wait until after the frosty days to hunt. Cold weather often takes the lives of the sick rabbits as well.

2) If an animal shows no natural wariness or no inclination to run, leave him be, as infected animals often appear sluggish, or "lame."

3) When dressing rabbits, or skinning predators, wear gloves, preferably rubber, even in the winter months. Avoid getting rabbit blood on your hands.

4) Upon finishing your dressing and skinning of the animals, wash your hands with soap and hot water. Cleanse and treat with antiseptic any cuts and abrasions on your hands.

5) Rabbit hunters, cook your rabbits thoroughly. Do not eat raw or undercooked rabbit meat.

Even if tularemia and the plague are infrequent in this state, the precautions to help avoid contracting these diseases are simple and should be practiced.

Now, go cottontail hunting and enjoy one of America's greatest sports and table fares.

Calling our federal tax code "a national disgrace," President Carter had set major tax reform as one of his high-priority Congressional issues. In the waning hours of the past Congressional session, he got a tax cut bill.

It was a far cry from what he had asked for, but it does provide some substantial tax breaks for the average taxpayer. It also gives home sellers an unprecedented advantage when the time comes to dispose of their final home, according to the National Association of Realtors and the Ruidoso Board of Realtors.

During the marathon 30-hour-plus closing session of the 96th Congress, H.R. 13511, a compromise tax-cut bill, was passed overwhelmingly by both houses. While it doesn't come close to the major reform the President asked for, nonetheless he signed it into law.

Congress once again demonstrated its ability to get a huge volume of legislation back on track when it wants to go back home and mend fences. Earlier, the Senate, under the whip of Finance Committee Chairman Russell Long (D-La.), had passed a $29.1 billion version, almost guaranteeing a Carter veto. Under deadline pressure, House/Senate conferees found a way to trim this to $18.7 billion, well under the $21 billion limit the President had set.

Here's what's in it for individual taxpayers: The average taxpayer will see a 7.2 percent reduction in his tax deduction starting next year. This amounts to $13.1 billion, or about 70 percent of the total.

In addition, there are major new breaks for home sellers. Under past law, 50 percent of the capital gain on the sale of a home was excluded from taxation, and the balance was taxed as ordinary income. Starting November 1, 1978, 60 percent of the gain may be excluded.

But the real bonanza, contained in the House bill and accepted by the Senate, is a once-in-a-lifetime exclusion from taxation of the first $100,000 of gain on the sale of a house. The owner must be at least 55 years of age (or, if the home is jointly owned, one of the owners must be), and he must have lived in the home for three of the previous five years. That provision applies to transactions after July 26, 1978.

For years, the law has provided a "rollover" feature. This says that if the seller buys another, more expensive home within 18 months after the sale, his capital gains tax is deferred. Thus, millions of owners periodically have traded upward into higher priced homes over the years without paying any tax on their profits.

But the day of reckoning comes when the last house is sold. At that point, under the previous law, the owner was liable for taxes on the entire profit he realized over the years; i.e., the difference between what he paid for his first home and what he received for the last one. This usually amounts to many tens of thousands of dollars, and paying tax at his regular rate on half of the total was a painful job.

Now, if the owner is 55 or older, and if the total gain is no more than $100,000, he is relieved of all tax liability. At most, he will pay taxes only on the amount that his total profit exceeds $100,000.

A further break will help those who must move for employment reasons. Until now, only one "rollover" and deferral of gain within any 18-month period was permitted. Under the new law, more than one will be allowed during the period if the seller's employer requires him to move.

The remaining $9.6 billion of the total tax cut goes to business. Corporations will have their maximum capital gains tax rate cut somewhat, and the first $100,000 of their income taxed on an upward sliding scale. In addition, the current temporary 10 percent investment tax credit was made permanent and liberalized.

All told, the American taxpayer got a break from Congress. What remains to be seen is whether the loss in federal revenue these reductions will produce can be offset by a tightening of the federal belt, so that even more severe inflationary pressures than are now being felt can be avoided.
