"As a new Jaycees organization in Ruidoso," chairman of the board Jim Scott said, "we of the Ruidoso Jaycees wish to make our community the best community in New Mexico."

"We also solicit any ideas or suggestions from the community as to ways we can better serve you."

Scott added that suggestions or ideas can be mailed to: Ruidoso Jaycees, Box 4115, Hollywood Station, Ruidoso, New Mexico 88345.

Village street cutting crackdown coming

BY GWYNETH JONES

Staff Writer/Photographer

Village officials in Ruidoso are becoming concerned about the increasing number of illegal "street cuts" which are apparently being made by contractors and utility companies who have failed to obtain a permit to perform the work.

Street cuts are strips or squares of pavement which are removed to facilitate the installation of underground utilities or tie-ins with water mains. Village zoning officer Emory Hatcher said Friday that the major problem caused by such cutting is that the paving material is not replaced or properly filled. The resulting dips and holes are especially hard on vehicles traveling the roads.

The contractors are required, Hatcher said, to obtain a permit from Susie Edwards, secretary to village manager Jim Hine, at a cost of five dollars per square foot of pavement to be removed. The fee allows for partial reimbursement of the city for the necessary maintenance and hopefully will have a limiting influence on the amount of cutting.

Hatcher said the adverse effects to the streets are further aggravated by methods used by some of the contractors. The damage to the streets caused by the cuts is inevitable, but can be limited if the correct equipment is used.

The appropriate method, according to Hatcher, is to use a pavement cutter, pieces. He added that the village would be willing to lend saws to those who come in for permits.

However, the procedure being followed by some contractors is simply lifting or gouging out the pavement with a backhoe, Hatcher said.

"We have enough problems with our streets anyway," he said, "without having people hold us up with little things like this."

Hatcher said major paving or repaving projects, such as that scheduled for this summer for Hull and Cree Meadows Roads could be delayed by such small repair jobs made necessary by the cuts. "When we have to go fix things like this, we can't get anything accomplished," he said.

Street superintendent Jack LaMay echoed those sentiments when contacted by The News Friday.

"It's a terrible problem," he said, adding that the repair involved "going in and digging out the base core," followed by filling and covering with oil material. "It becomes very expensive," he said.

"Most of the contractors in town know, or should know, that they are supposed to come in to get a permit," he added, but so many are doing it, "we can't keep up with them."

Hatcher is currently investigating the illegal cuts which have been discovered to find out who the violators are. He said a "stiff penalty" is in store for the offenders, since he plans to take the matter to municipal court judge Sam Nunnally.

The judge said a specific penalty or fine had not been set for the offense, but that he would meet with building inspector John Emde, Hatcher and village attorney Ron Harris to determine a bond. He added that to eliminate the problem, "I'll do everything in the court's power to prevent it (from continuing)."

Hatcher said, "Some people are used to doing whatever they want," as far as ignoring some village regulations regarding construction. "That's going to change," he added.

THIS ILLEGAL STREET CUT causes a slight jolt to drivers on Hull Road. Although at this point, the cut is filled with dirt and gravel, Hatcher said that after one good rain, most of the fill would be washed out, much of it down the slope at the top of the photograph.

Village nixes hot mix plant

Ruidoso's village trustees, in a special meeting Thursday morning, voted to reject all four bids received for a hot mix plant for the village street department, and to call for bids on a used pug mill plant and related equipment such as tanks.

The action came on the recommendation of street superintendent Jack LaMay, who said the hot mix plant would prove unprofitable in this area. That type of plant could be used only six months of the year because of weather conditions, LaMay said.

He added that the asphalt mixture would also be ineffective for patching existing cracks and holes, since the hot mix tends to become extremely hard in comparison to the surrounding material, aggravating the cracking problem.

The pug mill was described by LaMay as similar to a concrete mixer, with blades inside which rotate to maintain the mixture at the proper consistency.

Raymond Kuehne of N.C. Ribble Company, Albuquerque, agreed it was not feasible for Ruidoso to purchase a hot mix plant to use just six months of the year and submitted a "ballpark" figure of $50,000 to $70,000 as an estimated cost for a used plant. He said additional monies might be needed to bring a used plant up to environmental and other specifications.

Kuehne briefly discussed the operation and condition of such a used plant available through his company. That particular plant, which is about 25 years old, is currently being used in Globe, Arizona.

Although the age of the machinery might necessitate some servicing to bring it up to specifications, Kuehne assured the trustees it could be made to work, and Ribble would bid the equipment at full cost, including any needed upgrading.

The board of directors were named in one of the best voter responses in Chamber history, according to executive director Ed Jungbluth. Jungbluth said 143 ballots were returned of the 300 mailed.

"This is better than a 50 percent voter turnout," Jungbluth said.

"I am very impressed with this turnout," nominating committee chairman Sunny Hirschfeld said.

The new board will not take office until May 1, which is the start of the fiscal year for the Chamber. Jungbluth said he is trying to organize a retreat for the outgoing and incoming board members to meet and exchange information. "This makes the transition smooth, when we can get it organized," Jungbluth said.

All will be new to the board except Coulston, who will enter his third year as a director. Coulston and Nickles will both serve one-year terms and the other seven

WARNING SYSTEM READIED FOR ACTION

Red Flag Alert set

BY CHARLOTTE FELLERS
Staff Writer/Photographer

The Committee For Insuring Ruidoso's Safety (ComFIRE) has received 150 large red flags and a substantial amount of small flags from the New Mexico State Forestry office. At a committee meeting Thursday, the group decided to begin distribution to cooperators to display the red flags.

The flags were sewn by inmates at the state prison and donated to the committee to be used during a Red Flag Fire Alert. Also received from the same source were magnetic fire alert signs to be placed on doors of vehicles and 10,000 flyers which will be distributed, telling the reason for the alert.

At Thursday's meeting, plans were launched to start finding key cooperators by presenting a short slide show and program to prospective cooperating businesses. Cooperators would display the large red flags outside their businesses and/or the small ones on vehicle antennas to alert the public to impending fire danger in the area.

Tapes have been prepared and are ready to use at radio station KRRR in Ruidoso. They are 15 second spots according to Bill Hirschfeld, a committee member. The spots will be aired on KRRR when an extreme fire danger exists.

Maps showing evacuation routes out of the area are still not available and ComFIRE does not expect to receive them for at least two weeks. A problem discussed was how to get the maps distributed to everyone in the area. It was decided to go through the schools and also ask various civic organizations to deliver the maps on a door-to-door basis.

Dave Parks, local businessman, has volunteered to be the Public Information Officer who would transmit information over the airwaves during a Red Flag Fire Alert.

Herb Brunell and Hirschfeld visited the educational television station at Eastern New Mexico University in Portales to invite a crew to come to Ruidoso and film a 15 to 30 minute segment explaining the Red Flag Fire Alert. A target date of April 1 was set for the film crew to begin working in Ruidoso, with filming expected to take about two days. A brief outline of what will be included in the film was presented by Hirschfeld. The film will be made free of charge.

Brunell asked for assistance in writing the script for the film and also said he hoped statistics could be gathered about the area, such as the number of homes, population and other information.

Kenneth Schein, State Forestry, said he contacted the state to request materials to construct collapsible signs which could be erected on the roadways. The materials are available, but will have to be bought. Schein reported that prison inmates will be able to paint the signs, at a cost of about 75 cents per sign. ComFIRE decided to order 1,000 signs painted with reflecting paint. The estimated cost of $750 will hopefully be collected through donations of civic groups in Ruidoso.

ComFIRE approved the appointment of Harvey Foster to the committee. He will represent local realtors.

FLAGS, SIGNS AND FLYERS arrived here Thursday to be distributed throughout the area and displayed during a Red Flag Fire Alert.

Ski report

Sierra Blanca Ski Area reports an undisturbed snow depth of 94 inches midway on the mountain. Four inches of new snow fell Saturday night. At the report time, skies were clear and surface conditions were described as powder and packed powder. Sierra Blanca Ski Area is open daily.

Ruidoso Ski Area is now closed for the season. Sunday's high temperature was 50 degrees followed by a low Monday morning of 19 degrees.

Les Olson resigning county manager post

Leslie Olson, Lincoln County manager since October 10, 1974, has tendered his resignation to the county commissioners, effective in mid-April.

Olson said to The News Friday, "I've accepted the position of Eddy County manager, and will begin my new duties at Carlsbad April 16."

During the next month, Olson said, "I'll be working with the commissioners and other officials on preparation of the budget and to ready my office for my successor."

He said his wife, Eleanor, who is teaching at New Mexico State University, Las Cruces, will complete her term before moving to Carlsbad.

"Lincoln County has had excellent commissioners," Olson said, "and it is through the efforts of our past and present boards that we've enjoyed tremendous advancement in our county. Programs underway and other consideration, insure that Lincoln County will continue its rapid economic development."

Chamber elects directors

Members of the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce elected a slate of nine directors Thursday: Ray Held, Robert Hayes, Tim Morris, Tommy Graham, Wayne Dacy, Bill Budens, Benny Coulston, Shella Harris and Bud Nickles.

The board of directors were named in one of the best voter responses in Chamber history, according to executive director Ed Jungbluth. Jungbluth said 143 ballots were returned of the 300 mailed.

"This is better than a 50 percent voter turnout," Jungbluth said.

"I am very impressed with this turnout," nominating committee chairman Sunny Hirschfeld said.

The new board will not take office until May 1, which is the start of the fiscal year for the Chamber. Jungbluth said he is trying to organize a retreat for the outgoing and incoming board members to meet and exchange information. "This makes the transition smooth, when we can get it organized," Jungbluth said.

All will be new to the board except Coulston, who will enter his third year as a director. Coulston and Nickles will both serve one-year terms and the other seven electees will serve two-year terms. Other nominees for seats as Chamber directors included Rita Chino, John Hall, Ernadair Jones, Bill Andrus, Kathy

Moore, Rich Seeley, Ken Moore, Dub Holt and Dr. T.T. Marquardt, O.D.

COUNTING VOTES to determine the newly elected directors in the Chamber of Commerce are nominating committee chairman Sunny

Residents warned of fire danger

BY CHARLOTTE FELLERS
Staff Writer/Photographer

With the onset of spring, many absentee property owners will be returning to the Ruidoso area to reopen summer homes in coming weeks. Charley Mook, Fire Prevention Officer at Smokey Bear Ranger Station, outlined precautions which should be taken by homeowners to insure a fire-free summer.

Chimney flues should be checked to make sure they have the proper spark arrestor screens attached to the chimney. Check the roof and clean off any pine needles or other debris which may have accumulated during the winter.

Clean-up of the yard, removing pine needles, trash and other debris is recommended. This trash can be disposed of free of charge at the Fort Stanton Mesa land fill. All materials which will burn should be removed from beneath porches, decks and free standing patios and stored in a safe place away from the house.

Pruning of trees, shrubs and grooming of the yard will keep a ground fire from spreading into trees, should one get started. Mook recommended pruning away from the house as further protection from a fire spreading as quickly to a building.

Plant a lawn and mow the grass that is already there.

Check the power lines and make sure the service and power lines are free from interference caused by dead limbs that may blow onto the wires. If the condition is unsafe, Mook advises property owners to contact utility companies and report the problem.

Secure an adequate length of garden hose which will reach completely around the home. Keep it handy for use in case of emergencies.

Around the exterior of the lot line, clear a fire lane or fuel break for protection. This break doesn't have to be a distinct line obvious to the eye, said Mook, but old brush and fuels should be removed. "This could save your property if your neighbor's house catches on fire," he said.

Inside buildings, check the wiring to make sure it is not faulty or damaged.

Don't use the utility closet for a storage closet; this is a fire hazard, Mook said.

Smoke alarms are relatively inexpensive and should be installed, if possible.

An investment of $30 to $45 in a home fire extinguisher could be useful in putting out small kitchen fires, and could save a life, Mook said.

"Make sure that everyone in the home knows where the fire extinguisher is and how to use it," Mook said.

Become familiar with all access roads to the property so if an emergency arises, quick evacuation will not be a problem.

Homeowners who rent their homes should be sure to show renters where the fire extinguisher and emergency telephone numbers are located.

A map showing access roads should be made available also.

Mook also had some tips for proper fire safety in the forest. One important precaution should be practiced both at home and away from home. When disposing of fireplace ashes or when killing a fire at a picnic site or campground, be certain the fire is completely out. When cleaning the fireplace at home, put the ashes in a metal container and let them soak in water several days. Dispose of the ashes in a hole.

"A big problem we have is that people will assume a fire is out and the coals are cooled. However, because of the dry winds and humidity, the coals may begin to smolder again and could cause a fire," Mook said. This is why he recommends use of the metal container.

When in the forest, dispose of charcoal briquettes in the same manner as other ashes. When building campfires, clear at least a 10-foot circle to mineral soil and build the fire in the center of the circle.

Don't abandon fires. Be certain that a fire is out completely before moving on. When camping, use a Coleman or propane stove when possible, to diminish fire danger.

Police up the area before leaving. Don't leave trash behind and don't bury trash. Animals can smell out the trash and soon it will be strewn everywhere.

When hiking or riding on horseback, stop and clear a small area if you wish to smoke. Don't throw cigarettes on the trail.

Fishermen or hunters who often build warming fires should be certain the fire is out completely before leaving it behind.

Mook said that if all these precautions are taken, chances that a fire will start are lessened.

DISPOSE OF FIREPLACE ASHES by placing them in a metal container and letting them soak in water several days. Don't pour them on the ground, as drying winds can sometimes cause the coals to generate another fire.

Airport group seeks public support

Members of the Sierra Blanca Airport Commission (SBAC) are seeking public support, through a letter writing campaign to Governor Bruce King, to gain his backing for construction of the Sierra Blanca Regional Airport (SBRA) on Fort Stanton mesa.

Commission member George Shoemaker said to The News Friday the SBAC's position is:

"About a month ago Governor King signed a letter endorsing Dr. Bill Stevens' idea that the SBRA should be on private land instead of on the Fort Stanton Airport. Stevens is with the Agriculture College of New Mexico State University (NMSU) and New Mexico's Secretary of Agriculture.

"The SBAC members are writing, and we need citizens to write, Governor King showing him that we cannot spend an extra six to ten million dollars to acquire land and do a lot of earth moving, when the Fort Stanton Airport is already there and only needs modernization.

"What we (SBAC) need is some cooperation with NMSU officials so that we can fence in 300 acres for an airport, and move whatever grazing experiments that now go on around the airport to a new location."

While in Washington, D.C. Tuesday, Shoemaker met with Department of Interior officials, regarding airport construction on the mesa. "We are hopeful," he said, "that a department official will make a personal visitation to the site in April and have a tentative commitment that this will be done."

Shoemaker, in noting Governor King's stand, said: "We might say if Governor King could take a position stating he would not be against our modernizing of the Fort Stanton Airport, if by cooperation with NMSU, the grazing experiments on that 300 acres could successfully be moved to another pasture without posing any undue hardships on NMSU, it would be of material benefit to SBAC in providing this new airport, so important to the economic development of Lincoln County."

LIONS DISTRICT 40M GOVERNOR Lowell Stephens, Alamogordo, made an official visitation to the Ruidoso Noon Lions Club at a ladies' night dinner at K-Bob's Wednesday.

Man sought on battery

Lloyd Absher Jr., formerly of Ruidoso, present address unknown, is being sought on warrants issued by the Lincoln County sheriff's office March 14.

Absher is sought on charges of aggravated battery in a March 14 incident involving his former wife, Beth Absher of Ruidoso and also on charges of custodial interference involving a minor, in Mrs. Absher's care.

Juveniles face larceny charges

Three Hobbs juveniles were apprehended at Sierra Blanca Ski Resort Friday, with three pair of skis in their possession that were reported stolen from the ski area that day.

Lincoln County sheriff's deputies have charged the trio with larceny, pegging the value of the skis at $750.

Coffee Cart Wednesday

The Wednesday Coffee Cart, sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, will be from 9 to 10:30 a.m., at Don's Pharmacy, 238 Sudderth Drive.

"Chamber officials attend these coffee carts," Ed Jungbluth, executive director, said, "to discuss current projects as well as any ideas the public may have to aid the Chamber in serving our area better."

Fire lookouts busy

Detecting fires in the Smokey Bear District of the Lincoln National Forest is the main job of 170 people hired each season to man the fire lookouts located on forest land.

There are only two towers in the district, the Ruidoso Area Tower and the Mon Jean Tower, located above Bonito Lake. At the elevations of 7,000 feet and 10,000 feet, respectively, the people watching from the towers can see all but the farthest reaches of the forest.

Jane Gackler, a four-season veteran as a tower lookout comes to the Ruidoso Area Tower from the nearby Cloudcroft Ranger District, where she gained her experience.

Gackler said she has never reported a false alarm but "I have convinced myself that I will probably call in a false alarm this year. There are a lot of fireplaces down there (in Ruidoso) and I will probably mistake the smoke from one for a fire," Gackler said.

The Mon Jean Tower lookout is Richard Cowles, who has spent three seasons manning that tower. His lookout is more isolated, with a drive to the tower taking nearly 45 minutes.

Fire Prevention Officer at Smokey Bear Ranger District Charley Mook said, "The Ruidoso Tower is a very important link in fire detection of the municipal area. Jane has a direct line to the fire dispatcher in Ruidoso."

He said that early detection, in part, has "literally saved the town in the past." The most important factor in fire suppression is to suppress the fire while it is still small.

The towers have personnel on duty seven days a week during normal working hours. In addition, an air observer is based in Alamogordo, and is used to spot fires following lightning storms and heavy use periods, such as holidays and sometimes during dry periods when fire danger is high.

Contractors to meet Wednesday

A general meeting for all local contractors, and others in the construction business, will be held at the Ruidoso Public Library Wednesday at 7:30 p.m.

Village building inspector John Emde and zoning officer Emory Hatcher called the session to "improve inspections and follow the code book a little closer."

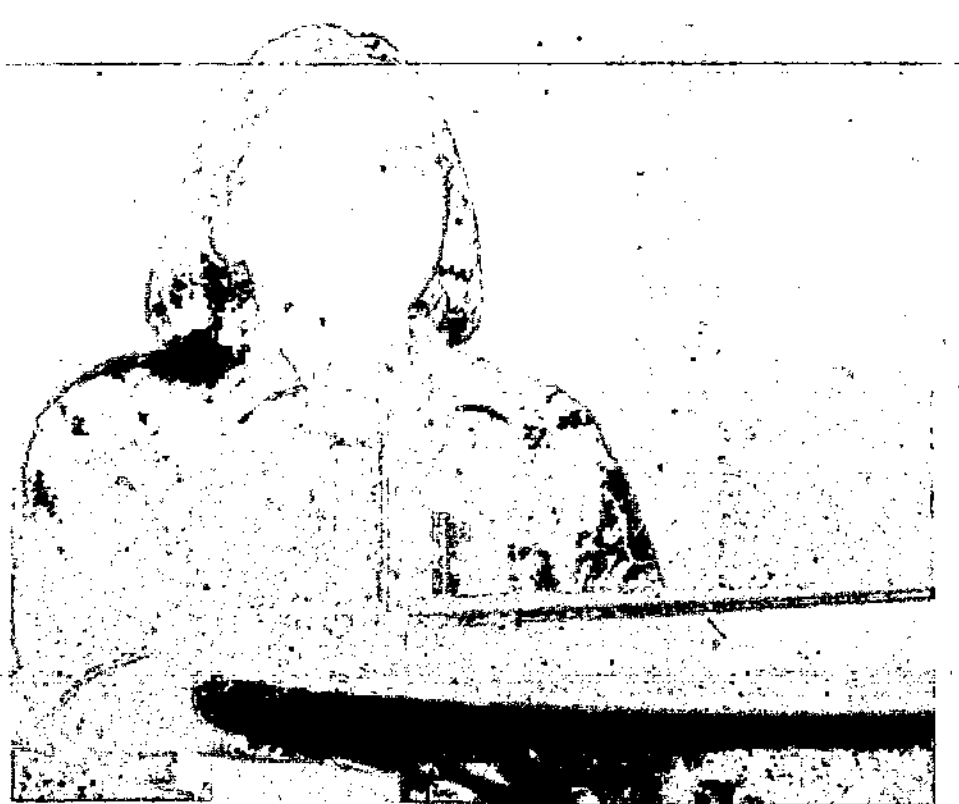

"We want the pros and cons of what the builders are thinking," Emde said, "and want to get their suggestions."

Hatcher said, "We want to help the builders, as well as the owners to comply with zoning and building regulations, which, in turn, will also protect the public from faulty construction and violations of zoning ordinances."

Nob Hill parent-teacher meeting March 22-23

Classes at Nob Hill Elementary and White Mountain Elementary Schools will not be held Thursday and Friday to allow for the second parent-teacher conference of the 1978-79 school year.

Parents of kindergarten through fifth graders will be assigned a time during the two days to meet with teachers and discuss "the children's work to let the parents know how he/she progressed throughout the year," Nob Hill principal Donny Weems said.

Samples of the child's work will be available to "show what he/she has been doing and how well it has been done," Weems said.

"This will be a time for parents to learn what they can do to help their child have a more successful school year," he said. "If their child is having difficulty in any area, parents want to know what it is and how to help."

Weems requested that all parents attend their conference as "we feel it is very important so we can better serve the children."

Regular classes for kindergarten through fifth grade and the regular bus schedule will resume Monday, March 26.

New counseling services now available in county

BY GWYNETH JONES
Staff Writer

"Counseling services are now available in Lincoln County."

Under the newly-elected leadership of a board of directors, the members of the Lincoln County Mental Health Association are attempting to inform the public about the different types of help available from the local counseling centers, which are located in Four Seasons Mall in Ruidoso and at the Zia School for the Developmentally Disabled in Carrizozo.

In a series of articles, the News will attempt to explain the educational and therapy programs carried out by the center staff. The programs include family, marriage and individual counseling, a 24-hour HELpline telephone service (1-437-8686), drug and alcoholism related services, a rape-crisis program, consultation and education, and after-care for Las Vegas State Hospital.

"Often when there are emotional stumbling blocks in life, one tends to ignore them and not seek help because of the stigma of being called 'crazy,'" according to a press release issued by the center Friday.

"Realization that a situation exists for which a person needs some professional help may be something that someone else points out to him," the Center's release stated. The other person might be a relative, friend, co-worker or doctor who feels the troubled person needs emotional support.

Others are referred to the center by local agencies, such as the schools, police and courts, who become aware of people's problems through their contacts with them.

In a few cases, counseling becomes mandatory as a condition of probation or parole.

"For whatever reason," the center's release stated, "we feel that each person's problems are unique and they should be accepted as individuals — not problems."

Counseling, carried out in a strictly confidential manner, is provided for all residents of Lincoln County, regardless of ability to pay. No one is turned away.

Fees are based on a sliding scale and consideration is made of the person's income, number of family members, regular monthly expenses plus any debts owed. The amount agreed upon is by mutual consent and may be raised or lowered if the circumstances change.

Even monthly billing for services can be kept confidential, if a family member does not wish others to know he or she is seeking counseling.

By such methods, the center insures that financial problems are not added to any problems the client may already have.

"Clients of the center are people whose problems at home, work or school or with themselves, have gotten out of hand, and they need some help and guidance. Accepting responsibility for oneself is an important aspect of good mental health, so the intake session is really the first step in therapy," the center's release said.

Programs at the center are funded by county, state and federal grants, with the major portion of monies supplied by a grant from the National Institute of Mental Health. The center is a non-profit organization and donations from the public are tax-deductible.

For more information, or to make appointments, Ruidoso area residents should call 257-5038. The telephone number of the Carrizozo office is 649-2168.

DeKorne, THE SURVIVAL GREENHOUSE. An experiment in self-sufficient living by one family, including the construction of a pit greenhouse, hydroponic gardening and aquaculture project.

Ewers, SOLAR ENERGY: A BIASED GUIDE. Presents applications of use of solar energy and prospects for further development.

Hand, HOME ENERGY HOW-TO. Upgrade your home insulation, save on your present heating and cooling systems, produce your own home energy from sun, wind, wood, water and biofuels.

Lucas, HOW TO BUILD A SOLAR HEATER. A complete guide to building and buying solar panels, water heaters, pool heaters, barbecues and power plants.

Schwartz, HARVESTING THE SUN'S ENERGY, A SOLAR COLLECTION.

Sunset, HOMEOWNER'S GUIDE TO SOLAR HEATING. Comprehensive introduction to solar energy for the layperson, includes solar heating and cooling for domestic hot water, pools, tubs and spas.

Van Dress, HOMEGROWN SUN-DWELLINGS. Design principles for simple solar-assisted dwellings built of materials native to the Southwest.

Van Dress, A LANDSCAPE FOR HUMANS. Case study of the potentials for ecologically guided development in the uplands of New Mexico.

Yanda, AN ATTACHED SOLAR GREENHOUSE. Bilingual pamphlet (Spanish-English) on the design, construction and maintenance of attached solar greenhouses.

Yanda, THE FOOD AND HEAT PRODUCING SOLAR GREENHOUSES. Prototype of attached solar greenhouses.

CARPET YOUR KITCHEN FOR STYLE AND UTILITY
Most homemakers are convinced of the many advantages of carpet in the kitchen... making it a very popular addition to many homes... Carpeting eliminates the chore of frequent mopping... scraping and waxing.
It cuts down on noise so common on hard surfaced floors... It prevents slips and cushions falls and helps to prevent breakage of glass and kitchenware.
Today's kitchen carpet can be tufted or woven of yarns that look exactly like conventional carpet... or it can be needle-punched with a flat... felted surface... With a tight, dense, looped pile texture, household spills normally remain on the surface where they can be quickly and easily sponged off.
Choice of colors... textures and patterns is as varied as carpet designed for other rooms in the home...
If you'd like to see how carpet would look in your kitchen... give us a call... We'll be happy to bring samples to your home... without obligation... of course.

Santa Fe—Wouldn't it be fun to brag to your friends that you serve on the state's Weather Control and Cloud Modification Commission?

Yes, we have such a group, whose mission sounds as likely of success as King Canute's was when he tried to beat back the tide with whips.

Imagine, controlling the weather and modifying the clouds. How poetic! How ethereal!

How unlikely. But not much more impractical than most of the things that went on here in the Legislature in the last 60 days.

Oh, yes, the lawmakers and gentlemen gave each of us back 40 bucks they had already taken away from us, for which, like obedient children, we should all be duly grateful. (Don't, as the saying goes, spend it all in one place.)

But by and large, they did what they almost always do: just more of the same.

The casual visitor happening into the legislative halls is impressed by the activity. Hurry, scurry. People milling about, some of whom seem important. Serious conversations in odd corners. A sense of pressure, of time elapsing: we must discuss, decide, act—now.

And what does the machine which eats up all this human energy turn out? Not much.

On one day, the Senate is acting on congratulations to a Clovis drill team and some kind words to Sidney Cutler, balloonist. The House is facing the gigantic question of whether to assign more study by Solar Research Institutes to its Rules Committee.

Action, activity, yes—but to what end? Almost every one of these scurrying figures in the hall is here for some selfish end. Legislator or lobbyist, their likeliest motivation is self-interest.

What results is what you should expect when so many interests are played off against one another: not quality legislation, but quantity legislation; not better law, just more law; not clarity, but confusion.

Maybe we need a special session which will pass no new laws, just repeal the meaningless ones already on the books. The trouble with the Legislature is its isolation. These men and women come here and are locked in together for 30 to 60 days. Because they are the kind of people who seek office, most of them are intrigued by being here. Like inveterate gamblers, they cannot take their eye off the pot, as long as the game goes on.

And a game is what it becomes, for many of them; played for its own sake. "Monopoly," with Park Place and Marvin Gardens—except that the markers they move around so lightly are real; they are human beings; they are you and me.

Late afternoon in the Senate Judiciary Committee. Everyone, around the table and in the audience, is weary. The air in the room is stale. Eyelids droop.

What are they doing on about? The death penalty, taking human lives—and they are bored!

What Legislatures need is a breath of air, a shattering of old structures, some healthy skepticism.

Above all, they need more oxygen from the outside world—their real world. Leave them to themselves, and in time they will gradually reshape the real world to their own image and likeness.

Letters to the Editor

Dear editor:

I hope that the school board will reconsider their decision to allow only one day a week for the gymnastics team to use the school gym, and further, to continue the program rather than having it only to the end of the school term.

As a parent, I feel very strongly that a gymnastics program would greatly benefit our children. A great deal is said about the United States' inability to produce able competitors for the Olympics. One reason may be that the opportunity is not offered where the youngsters might develop their athletic skills and discover their latent abilities.

This program would also offer an excellent opportunity for the children to have something constructive to work at during the summer months.

Let's have a gymnastics program—for our youth, for our future, and for a stronger America!

FAITH IN YOURSELF

It is often difficult to maintain faith. Yet, in today's fast-moving world, faith in our moral principles, in the future of our country, in the goodness within our fellowmen, and in ourselves is a most vital character asset.

For peace of mind, happiness and an understanding of life and what is to be accomplished with it, faith seems to be a key. If you have none, or very little, do something about it. — Santa Rosa News

SEARS: NO APOLOGIES

Affirmative Action programs aimed at increasing the proportion of women and minorities getting jobs and promotions or entering colleges have been hard to square with the principle of non-discrimination set forth in the Civil Rights Act of 1964.

The apparent contradiction has inspired the Bakke case and others like it, leaving the courts to decide whether or not white males are in fact becoming victims of "reverse discrimination."

Now, a suit against the government by Sears, Roebuck and Co. has entered this legal thicket from another direction. Sears is arguing, on behalf of itself and other retailers, that the government has no right to penalize employers for not meeting preferential hiring standards when the government itself has created conditions in the work force making it difficult if not impossible for the standards to be met.

The suit springs from a fact that is hardly arguable — that the work force in America today is dominated by white males. Indeed, that's what Affirmative Action is supposed to overcome. The point Sears is making is that private employers are being held liable for conditions that the government helped create and is even now perpetuating.

The suit cites laws and programs that range from the GI Bill of Rights, which has given government help for a college education to far more men than women, to the recent raising of the mandatory retirement age to 70, which is reducing the number of job openings for women and minorities.

The lengthy and complex Sears complaint paints a picture of federal agencies working at cross purposes, with employers caught in the middle.

Whatever the legal merits of the suit, it will certainly strike a sympathetic chord with employers who, like Sears, have added significantly to the number of women and minorities on their payrolls and are still under pressure to meet a statistical standard demanding much more.

The philosophical issue underlying this court action is similar to that raised by other lawsuits challenging preferential hiring practices. Any fair-minded person would agree that our society must try to right the wrongs which have denied women and minorities a place in business and the professions that their innate talent and potential should give them. But how far can that moral imperative carry us before it reaches practical and constitutional limits?

Sears has stuck its neck out as the plaintiff in a class action suit that could be misinterpreted as resistance to the aim of equal opportunity programs. As Sears chairman Edward R. Telling emphasized in announcing the suit, his company has no apologies to make for its hiring policies.

The purpose, he says, is to cut through "impossible conflicting regulations" and to force "a clarification of irreconcilables" in federal policy. — Carlsbad Current-Argus editorial

Aubrey Dunn, the state senator from Alamogordo who likes to be pictured as a fiscal conservative, says California's Proposition 13 was a "bunch of hokey." He said of Howard Jarvis, the Californian credited with the success of Proposition 13, "We don't need somebody from California telling us how to run things in New Mexico."

When a state collects taxes in such excess that after the legislative leeches are through and the bureaucratic pigs have slopped at the public trough all they want, Senator Dunn benevolently gives the leftovers back to the taxpayers, that's a bunch of hokey.

Where they're from makes no difference to me; somebody needs to tell the Senator Dunns of the state how to run things. —kg

HONESTY IN PRINT

Did you read the back of the little pinkish card that Community Public Service Company ... that's CPS (and that don't mean Cost Plus Service, though maybe it should) ... included with your last window envelope from CPS ... arriving in the mail to brighten your day?

Actually CPS brightens your nights more'n your days ... 'cause nights is lights on time ... unless you read by candle ... or kerosene lamp.

In the first paragraph ... after a bit of drivel about the energy crisis and fuel adjustment ... appeared this line about fuel adjustment: "In no way does it generate additional profit to CPS."

The next two paragraphs prattle on ... advising you that the more electricity you use, the more it costs you ... and the first line of paragraph four tells you that CPS is having to pay higher fuel costs in order to keep your electrical service dependable ... an astounding statement.

But ... then comes the gnitty-gritty ... in the last sentence: "The fuel adjustment charge is the most economical and fair way for us to recover these costs." ... And that's the attention grabber.

You see ... you, the customer, pick up the entire tab on fuel adjustment ... CPS doesn't care to share their ware cost with you ... but, by jinkies, they are honest about telling you.

Now CPS says they ain't making a penny outta fuel adjustment ... that didn't say it ain't costin' them nothin' ... though that's what CPS says ... and CPS and the stockholders don't want to include a share of their ware cost ... that's fuel adjustment ... with you as a part of the cost of doing business ... and ... if'n you'll reflect over that over a glass of ice tea ... you really can't blame them ... if'n they can make it stick ... and they are.

On the bright side ... that's when you turn your lights on ... there's just a whole buncha electricity in the wires leading to your house ... and you can use as much as you can pay for ... and never worry about running out ... and the lights really ain't off all that much ... with the bright side of being in the dark when the lights go out, the light meter ain't spinnin' ... meaning, when you're kept in the dark you ain't paying no fuel adjustment.

Yup ... if everyone in the world lit one tiny candle ... it'd be real smoky.

REAL FLYING SAUCERS

There's a feller out in Hayward, California ... by name of Stanton T. Friedman ... and he's a nuclear physicist-lecturer he is ... and that's according to him ... and there's no reason for him to lie about it.

Friedman is a believer in UFOs ... and, as a nuclear physicist, can't see real clear why there ain't real smart folks real far out there in space with real UFOs that they fly real well ... even to, around, over and across the reaches of the fourth planet from the sun.

Furthermore ... Friedman travels hither and thither ... as a lecturer ... lecturing on "Flying Saucers ARE Real" ... and he illustrates his lectures ... presumably with photos of UFOs ... and he's done same in over 400 colleges in 47 states and four provinces ... which means he's toted his poke of UFO info a far piece.

Anyhow ... Friedman's spending a lot of time chasing UFOs ... or people who've oled same ... including some military folks who said they saw 'em ... but wouldn't admit it officially ... 'cause there's these fuddy-duddys in the Aerospace Defense Command (ADC) who won't admit they're defenseless against UFOs ... 'cause they gotta stand in defense of their bailiwicks ... which includes those as has spied UFOs ... which incidents they claim ain't happened ... 'cause them ADC chaps can't understand UFOs ... 'cause they ain't as smart as them real folks from real far out who build and fly real UFOs ... ergo ... ADC says there ain't no UFOs nohow.

Now ... what Friedman wants is ... if'n you're really and truly righted a UFO ... he wants you to contact him ... 31828 Trevor Avenue ... that's Hayward, California 94564 ... or if'n you're a real hot sighting ... like in your back yard ... he's available 24 hours a day by telephoning him at 415-471-0162 ... and he'll tell you where to go and what to do ... and might even come and help you ... and that's a pretty good deal ... UFO or no.

Better call Friedman ... steeds them ADC guys ... 'cause Friedman's a believer ... and there ain't nothin' quite the equal of a real UFO believer.

WELDING WAX ring models onto a wax sprue provides a hollow channel through which molten metal will eventually flow. Above, Wishard uses a heated tool to perform the delicate task. The design of the ring can also be altered at this stage of the process.

Fine jewelry result of precision work and steady hands

BY GWYNETH JONES

Staff Writer/Photographer
A steady hand, a good eye and the patience of Job are three prerequisites to the goldsmith's profession, and Tim Wishard of Ruidoso and Meyers in Ruidoso seems to display all these qualities in abundance.

During an interview Wishard said most goldsmiths, including himself, are hesitant to reveal "trade secrets" which insure originality of their work. However, he was willing and able to describe the complex processes he follows in the creation of fine gold jewelry.

Wishard manufactures everything from bracelets to belt buckles, but the majority of his work involves casting or repair of rings.

At present, he has about 450 models for rings, some of which are cast in brass for more effective display. Completely original rings are also available, at somewhat higher cost.

The first step in the process is the filling of pure rubber molds with pressurized liquid wax. Once the wax cools and solidifies, the wax mold is "welded" onto a sprue, which is a hollow stem through which the molten metal will eventually flow.

While the ring is in the wax stage, the pattern can be altered to render a new design or provide a location for the mounting of stones. Wax is used, Wishard added, because it disintegrates completely at high temperatures, leaving no ash or residue which might become an unwanted part of the ring's design.

After using heated instruments to fashion the wax, the casting mixture, or investment is mixed. The investment has the consistency of plaster when mixed with water, and in its solid state, will form the final mold into which the metal will flow.

But before the final casting can take place, the investment must be poured into a stainless steel cylinder and placed in a vacuum device which removes bubbles of air. Such bubbles would cause beads to appear on the final product, Wishard explained.

The investment is allowed to solidify around the sprued rings, at which point the cylinder is heated in a "burn-out oven" to a temperature of 1,400 degrees. This stage of the process takes about four to five hours, Wishard said.

The temperature of the oven is then allowed to drop back to about 1,000 degrees. The cylinder removed and placed in the centrifugal caster. It is in this device that the gold or brass is heated with a torch to the molten state.

Wishard is experienced enough in his profession that he doesn't bother to gauge the temperature of the molten metals specifically, relying instead on a visual check of its appearance.

The gold has a "mirror-like finish" as it reaches the correct temperature for casting, Wishard said. When it "looks right," the caster is activated and it "slices the gold" into the investment cast. Steam clearing is then necessary to remove traces of the investment and to prepare the ring for final polishing and mounting of stones, if any.

Wishard said he and most other goldsmiths work primarily with 14 karat gold, which is 58.5 percent gold. With higher percentages of gold, the metal becomes too soft to be really durable, he said. Because of rising costs, some jewelers have recently begun to use more ten karat gold, which in the past had been used primarily for such items as class rings.

Wishard holds a diploma in diamond appraisal and is receiving training to become a certified gemologist. He is equipped with a complete lab for appraisal and identification of precious stones.

Before coming to Ruidoso last June, Wishard did "trade work" (repair and manufacturing) for other jewelers, in addition to managing jewelry stores in Albuquerque and Denver, Colorado. The Ruidoso goldsmith said he got started in the business almost by accident.

"I was working at a dairy," he said, "when I dropped by to see a friend who was manufacturing jewelry in Roswell." The friend urged him to try his hand at the craft.

"I started polishing castings, and before I knew it, it was quitting time. That's when I realized I really enjoyed it."

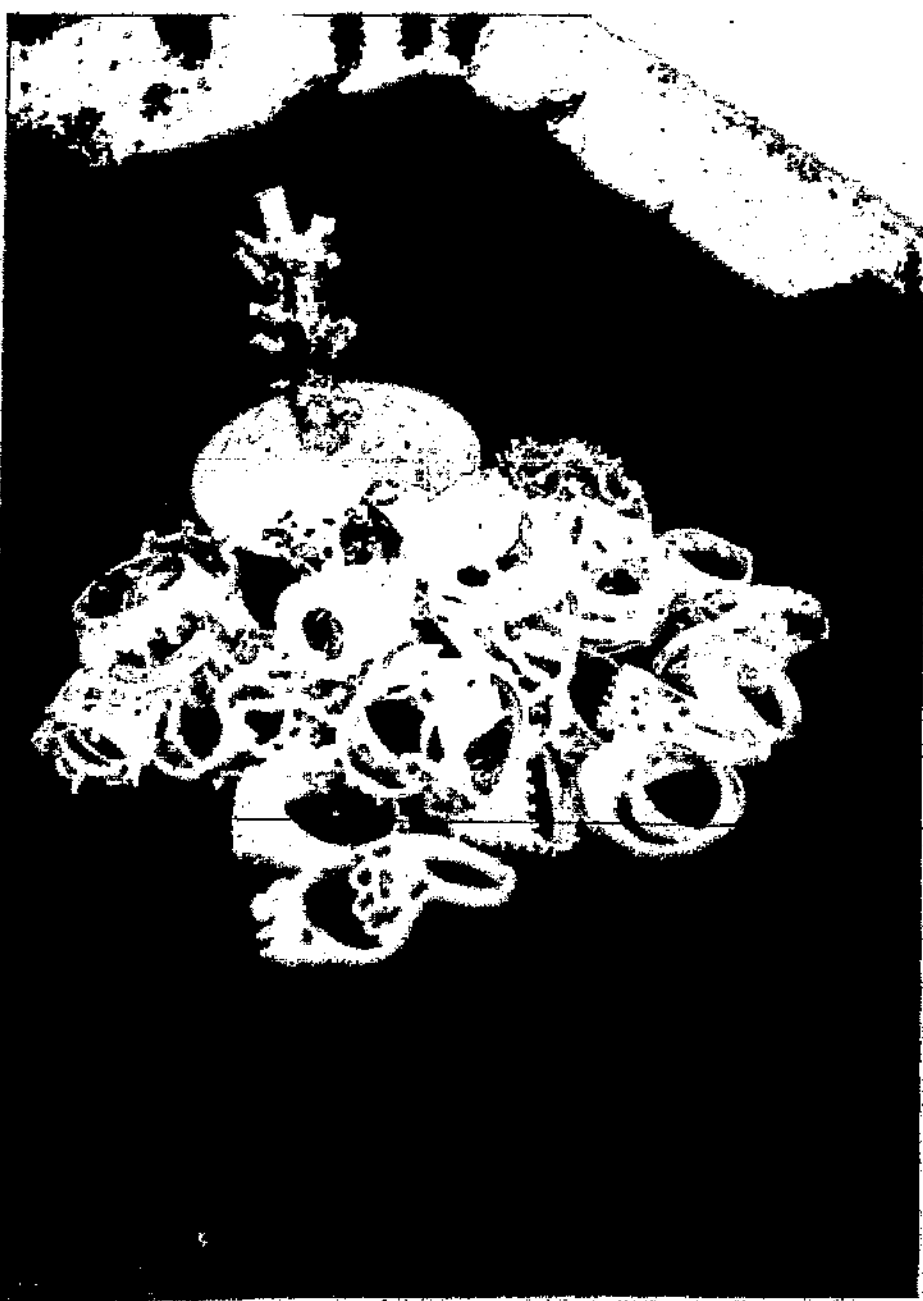

Wishard glanced around his display room and spoke with pride of his plans for expansion. After ten years in the unique profession, that first day's fascination with his work seems to have diminished very little.

WEARING ASBESTOS GLOVES is a necessity as Wishard removes the stainless steel cylinder, containing the final investment mold, from the burn-out oven above. The hardened plaster mixture is heated to 1,400 degrees, at which point the interior wax mold completely disintegrates, leaving no ash or residue.

MOLTEN METAL glows in the interior of the centrifugal casting machine above. When the caster is in operation, centrifugal force moves the metal into the mold contained in the cylinder shown in the upper portion of the picture.

CUT FROM the sprue, these rings are ready for display and mounting of stones.

The Dreamer

BY DANNIE STORM

In Its Last Days Winter Welcomes Glorious Spring.

Winter, after a long and pleasant stay among us, is "welcoming" flower and fragrant Spring, here during the last few days of the season of Snow.

Today, on the fourteenth of March, with Spring just one week away, the North wind is blowing briskly through the vale; and you can feel the snowy breath, all through the air, of the snow-capped peaks in Colorado, Wyoming, Montana and all the other lands to the north.

And yet, with the wintery air all through the mountain land, here in mid-afternoon, the temperature is fifty-four under sunny skies with billowy white clouds over the mountain horizons to the west and south. The welcome sight of the fruit buds of the little apricot tree flowering into bloom before your very eyes just outside the window in the little sun room—the pink and white buds in all stages of opening, and the full blown snowy white blossoms make your heart rejoice. They bring you a fragrant message of Spring time in the air.

Now the north wind in a playful mood brings in a rushing blast. The bud-and-blossom-laden branches of the little tree whip and toss, thrashing and whirling in the northern gale. And the bees, beside themselves with joy at the arrival of the first fruit blossoms after a long winter—these happy little workers keep right on gathering their first blossom honey of the year.

Now the wind slows down again and the world is in a little lull between the winter and the Spring, with both seasons bringing their charms harmoniously through the land.

The flag is floating and rippling against the blue sky over the green mountain, its beloved colors pure and bright in the afternoon sun. A western blue bird with the same colors as the flag flies proudly by close by the waving banner, singing joyfully, dancing through the air. And I feel thankful to Ken Green, Mel O'Reilly, and Pete Wood for the flag pole and Bones Wright for the flag. Hardly a day passes that someone does not tell me how glad they are to see the flag flying across the valley, from the highway.

The sight of our flag fills our heart with gratitude, and we send up a prayer of thanks to God for his blessings through the years to all of us.

Brother Miller's Birthday

Today, March 19, is the birthday of our good friend, Brother Miller. Let us all wish him many happy returns of the day and all God's blessings.

On the twenty-first the world will celebrate the first day of Spring. And the messages and signs are everywhere that this will be one of the most beautiful Spring seasons we have ever seen.

A Message from Jack Frost

Dear Friends of Lincoln County,

Just a word to tell you I am doing my best to hold back the warm weather so as to keep the fruit blossoms from coming out too soon. This, and also to keep the snow on your mountain from melting too fast. I want to bring you the best Spring and summer season you have had in a long time. I will have a longer visit with you next time. Until then, keep smiling and God bless you.

Yours ever the same,

Jack W. Frost

RED SUN

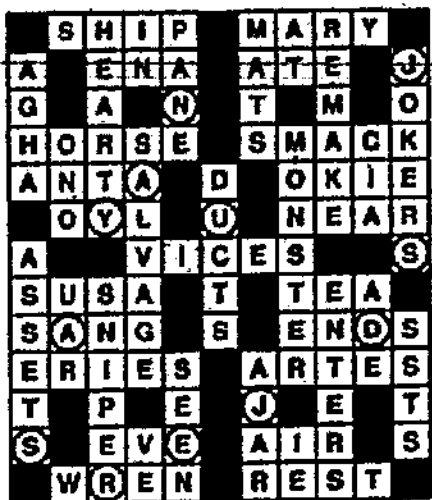

Charles Bronson fights his way out of outlaw treachery, risking his life to pay a debt of honor, in the western adventure tale 'Red Sun,' also starring Ursula Andress (pictured), on 'The CBS Tuesday Night Movies,' March 20. Also starring in the film are Alain Delon (pictured with Ms. Andress), Capucine and Toshiro Mifune.

A jeweled sword is the prize sought by Link (Bronson) and his partner Gauche. Together they ambush a train carrying the Japanese ambassador, who plans to present the treasure to the American government. Link, double-crossed by Gauche and left for dead, is saved by a Japanese samurai, and Link and his rescuer go after the sword—one to save the honor of his country and the other to avenge his partner's treachery.

When the enemies finally meet, they find themselves facing a common enemy and join forces to fight for survival against bands of Indian raiders.

Profile

Jan Smithers

She grew up aspiring to be an artist. But for Jan Smithers, who stars as Bailey Quarters in CBS-TV's "WKRP in Cincinnati," a stroke of luck changed her plans.

At age 16, while she was spending a day at Malibu Beach with some school friends, she was photographed by Newsweek magazine, which was compiling a story on teenagers across America. Later, the blue-eyed, auburn-haired teenager was singled out by the magazine's editors to appear on the cover. She admits the incident "turned her life around." All of a sudden she was being inundated with offers from agents, producers and casting directors.

Still not sure she wanted to be an actress, she took an offer to do some television commercials while she continued her art studies at Chouinard Art Institute in Los Angeles.

Four years later, she decided to give acting a try, and in 1971, undertook her first professional acting job in a movie, "Where the Lilies Bloom."

After that came marriage and more studying, then divorce and more studying. Several years ago she made a movie in Europe, "Trick or Treat," with Bianca Jagger. It was never released.

She recently made another movie, "Our Winning Season," which was released in the spring of 1978.

ANGIE

Lovely Donna Pescow stars in the title role of the ABC-TV hit new comedy series 'Angie,' which airs Thursday, March 22. Robert Hays stars as her husband, Brad.

'Angie' is the story of a young waitress who meets, falls in love with and marries a young pediatrician who is a member of one of Philadelphia's wealthiest families. Angie may lack sophistication, but she has an abundance of warmth, understanding and straight-to-the-heart honesty.

Brad loves all of those qualities, but for his friends and family, especially his bluenose sister, it's too much earthiness to take.

THE WIZARD OF OZ

"The Wizard of Oz," the classic motion picture which once propelled a relatively unknown teenager named Judy Garland (pictured) "over the rainbow" and "down a yellow brick road" to stardom and has since reached landmark status in film history, will be rebroadcast Friday, March 23 on CBS-TV.

The famous and continually popular MGM masterpiece, which also stars Ray Bolger, Jack Haley and Bert Lahr, is as well received today as it was when it opened in August 1939 and was hailed as "a delightful piece of wonder-working which had the youngsters' eyes shining and brought a quietly amused gleam to the wiser ones of the elders."

The musical fantasy about the young girl from Kansas who, with her dog Toto, takes a cyclonic trip into the land of Oz and finds herself off on a yellow brick road paved with adventure, will have among its viewers a whole new audience, many of them with parents who had not even been born in 1939.
