

San Patricio men attacked

Marcario Chavez of San Patricio was reported to be in stable condition Monday morning in Ruidoso Hondo Valley Hospital (RHVH), where he is undergoing treatment for three stab wounds in the abdomen, suffered about 6:45 a.m., Sunday.

The incident occurred near the home of Pedro Chavez, the stabbed man's father. The Lincoln County sheriff's office has issued a felony warrant against the alleged assailant, a Mexican national, who had not been located by 9 a.m., today.

In a Sunday evening incident at San Patricio sheriff's deputies, while searching for Chavez' assailant, were notified of a serious beating suffered by Jerry Gutierrez of San Patricio.

Gutierrez was taken to RHVH by the Tinney Ambulance.

The investigation into both incidents is continuing.

Search on for missing skier

Members of White Mountain Search and Rescue were scouting the area surrounding Sierra Blanca Ski Area Monday morning after a skier, tentatively identified as Richard Spiegall of Albuquerque was reported missing.

The skier reportedly left the area at Apache Bowl Sunday morning about 11 a.m., headed toward the north fork of the Rio Ruidoso. Friends reported him missing at 5 p.m.

Preliminary searching was performed Sunday night, and tracks were found leading out of the area. Spiegall was wearing a sweater and light down vest when he left the area.

An aircraft manned by Charles Dille and Nick Griffin was continuing a search of the area Monday morning, along with some Sierra Blanca personnel.

Mule devotees meeting tonight

Devotees, exponents and fanciers of mules are to meet in the Ruidoso Public Library at 7:30 this evening to discuss plans for the development of activities being proposed by the Ruidoso Downs Muleskinners.

"We're beginning our membership drive tonight," Muleskinners president Ed Hyman said, "with dues set at $10 per year. However, we invite everyone, whatever their degree of interest in mules, to attend and state their position on developing mule events that will serve as an additional tourist attraction as well as attract large groups of trail ride fans from the entire southwest."

Hyman said tonight's agenda includes discussion of the Muleskinners' plans to produce an all mule rodeo, schedule a series of trail rides of from one to several days and the continuation and further development of mule racing here.

"There are riding clubs with large memberships in Texas that are continually looking for open spaces to ride in, as well as owners of racing mules from California and other points that will come to Ruidoso," Hyman said, "if we can offer them interesting rides and, for the racers, some substantial purses. A race purse of, say, $1,500 would bring plenty of mule owners here to run their animals for that kind of money."

DRIVERS URGED TO USE CAUTION IN AFFECTED AREAS

Springs ice village streets

BY GWYN JONES
Staff Writer/Photographer

Springs, flowing freely due to a rising water table, have caused residents to face an unusual water problem in Ruidoso: too much surface water is damaging public and private property.

Damage to roads has been extensive and affected areas are frequently icy, causing a driving hazard as motorists, driving on a section of dry road, come upon the glare ice unexpectedly.

Village officials are urging drivers to check the locations of springs listed below, and exercise caution when driving in those areas.

The springs are particularly bothersome during cold weather in sections of the village where they flow across roads. In such areas, the water often freezes, causing traffic hazards, severe erosion and cracking of pavement.

Frequent grading, at village expense, is necessary to clear the fresh accumulations of ice and snow.

The springs can also create swampy areas, and weaken the foundations of buildings, including the village hall, where the basement has been flooded for about two months.

Village administrative assistant Frank Potter is now in the process of identifying some of the springs, by name and location, with an eye toward finding some solutions to those problems.

Potter has assigned names to seven of the springs, as follows: Alto Crest and Forest Heights Springs, which feed Bogg Spring, in the airport area; Children's Spring, just west of the village hall; Warehouse Spring, east of village hall; Woodland Spring, which runs down Fifth Street; Wingfield Spring, which drains through the parking lot of the 7-11 store in midtown and Brady Canyon Spring.

According to meteorologist George Gregg, the state has had two to three times the normal amount of moisture in the last year. Ruidoso received 32 inches, compared with the average of 21.73 inches per year.

CITY CREWS have been kept busy this winter on this section of Fifth Street, where springs flow down the natural slope toward Sudderth Drive. Erosion is particularly bad here, too, with water and snow accumulations which freeze and refreeze.

The 32-inch figure has been exceeded only one time since records have been kept; in 1942 Ruidoso received 34 inches.

Potter said the village had received numerous calls from residents, complaining of broken water pipes. He added the callers expressed disbelief at being told the water source was a spring, where none existed in the past.

But, as Potter explained, "After it's been dry so long, with this amount of moisture, the water table is bound to come up."

Some of the springs flow into natural drainage areas, causing no difficulties. Potter hopes the others can ultimately be piped to the river, so that in the future, the water can be put to beneficial, rather than destructive purposes.

"We don't know what kinds of problems they might cause later on down the road, with construction, for example," he said.

Ruidoso's ComFIRE earns commendation

BY MARY WORMLEY
Staff Writer/Photographer

The Committee For Insuring Ruidoso's Environment (ComFIRE) received a singular commendation Thursday from the State Division of Forestry.

The only such citation to be issued this year in New Mexico, the award was presented to the group by Ray Polasky, state fire management director, on behalf of Ray Gallegos, State Division of Forestry director.

The citation was for "outstanding distinction in forest fire prevention activities...through the development and implementation of a fire prevention action plan in the community of Ruidoso."

In presenting the citation, Polasky congratulated the group, adding "Com-

FIRE has been very active in fire prevention...as I've watched you develop from an interest group to an action group."

After the presentation, ComFIRE members held a regular meeting where the chief items of discussion were establishment of priorities in various projects and appointment of a coordinator for each priority.

Listed as the project priorities were contacting the red flag cooperators or those who will have major roles in the red flag alert program, preparing an informational broadcast on KENW television station in Portales, distribution of evacuation maps, placing arrows indicating evacuation routes on street signs, preparing for the need for public information when a fire occurs and organizing a program in fire safety such as informing areas residents on the use of fuel breaks.

In efforts to achieve project goals, chairman Herb Brunell suggested establishing coordinators charged with the responsibility of directing a specific priority area's progress.

Ken Schain and Eileen Brink, State Division of Forestry, will be coordinators of the red flag alert project with the responsibility to implement the program on days of very extreme fire danger.

Joining ComFIRE as public information coordinator is Bill Hirschfeld, who is to devise a method to distribute committee

Drillers hit water!

BY JOHNNEYLAND
Staff Writer/Photographer

A vein of water producing 200 gallons per minute was struck at a depth of less than 800 feet early Friday in exploratory drilling on village property near Eagle Creek and adjacent to Ski Run Road.

Village administrative assistant Frank Potter said he hoped drilling would produce 250 gallons per minute, but indicated the village would proceed with the drilling and subsequent use of the water for village consumption.

The drill, operated by the Huey Drilling Company of Capitan, had reached a depth of 800 feet by mid-afternoon Friday. Village trustee George White and Potter agreed that drilling should continue to the 1000 foot-depth. However, the current contract authorizes a depth of only 800 feet. The 1000-foot level must be approved by the state inspector before Huey Drilling Company will continue.

If drilling does continue, the 1000-foot level will not be reached before Monday or Tuesday. The current rate, Jerry Keeton, spokesman for Huey Drilling Company, said is approximately two feet per hour, due to encountering a layer of hard rock.

Should the village approve the usage of such water as Potter indicated, the next step will be for Huey to ream the well. That takes approximately six to eight days, Keeton said. After that, a pump will be installed to move the water into the pipeline taking it through the Alto Crest Water Treatment Plant. The next stop for the water would be the village of Ruidoso.

Also in the works are plans to drill another well near the reservation line in the Upper Canyon. Potter said the original plan called for an additional 800-foot well to be dug. Potter now thinks a well will not have to be that deep to suit Ruidoso's purposes.

There is a well in Upper Canyon now that, at 80-feet deep, supplies Ruidoso with approximately 40 gallons of water per minute. Potter thinks a well next to that one may provide the village with an additional 200 gallons of water per minute.

Ski report

Skiling at Sierra Blanca Ski Area is on packed powder with nine inches of new snow reported Thursday and Friday.

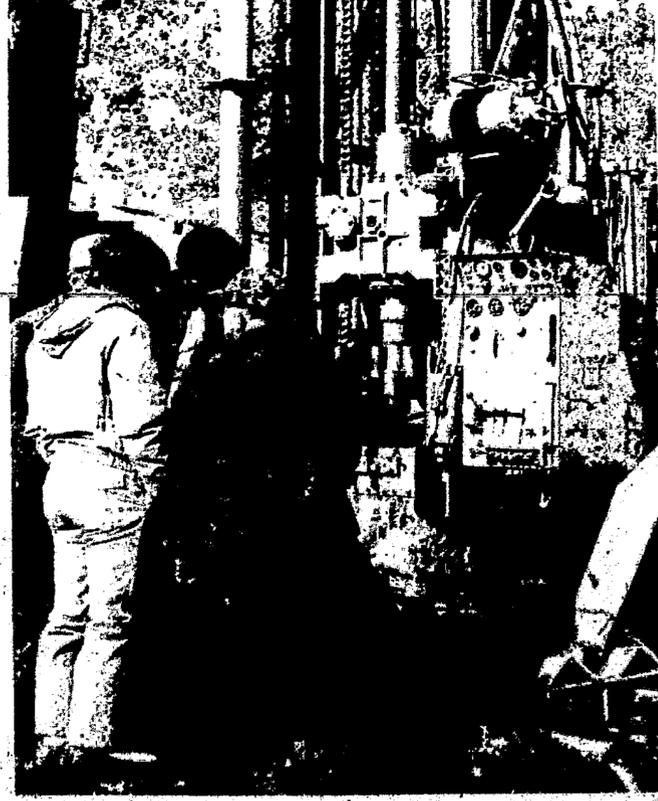

Undisturbed snow depth midway is 93 inches.

All lifts and runs are open at Ruidoso Ski Area, which reports a packed base of 45 inches with seven inches of new snow Friday.

No chains were required to reach either ski area Monday morning.

Monday morning's low was 16 degrees and Sunday afternoon's high was 53 degrees.

For skiling condition reports, call Sierra Blanca Ski Area, 237-9001, and Ruidoso Ski Area, 336-4211.

VILLAGE OFFICIALS Frank Potter (left foreground) and George White discuss the progress of the water drilling project underway near Eagle Creek. Confering with the two men are Huey Drilling Company's Jerry Reynolds (left) and Stubby Huey. The officials decided to drill to 1000 feet, 200 feet deeper than was originally planned.

'Dating Game' winners will be skiing on Sierra Blanca

At 6:30 p.m., Wednesday, Ruidoso's skiing will receive nationwide television promotion on ABC's "The Dating Game."

A segment promoting Ruidoso, Holiday Inn and Sierra Blanca Ski Area will be aired on the first or second half of the show, which is televised on KOAT channel 7, Albuquerque.

Sometime in March the winning couple and chaperone will fly from Los Angeles, California to El Paso International Airport, Texas where they will be met by representatives of the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce and Holiday Inn of Ruidoso.

They will be driven to Ruidoso where their rooms and transportation for the three-day, three-night trip will be provided by Holiday Inn.

They also will receive ski equipment, lessons and lift tickets from Sierra Blanca Ski Area.

The promotion was organized through the cooperative efforts of the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce, Holiday Inn and Sierra Blanca Ski Area.

Arson caused destruction of landmark Hondo Bar

A STARK SHELL of the building is all that remains of the Hondo Bar, a county landmark which burned to the ground in an early morning fire February 5.

Representatives of the State Fire Marshal's office in Santa Fe have determined arson as the cause of the February 5 fire which burned the Hondo Bar to the ground.

"I can't divulge what the indications were, but it was arson," D. G. Dabbs with the state office said Friday.

Owners of the bar, which has been a landmark since it was built in 1912, have offered a reward of $500 for information "leading to the arrest and conviction of persons responsible" for the incident.

Members of the Hondo Volunteer Fire Department were called out in the early morning hours of February 5 to extinguish the blaze which had been burning for quite some time.

They fought the blaze for about four hours but the building was a total loss.

Anyone with knowledge of persons responsible for the blaze are asked to contact Dabbs at the State Fire Marshal's office, P. O. Drawer 1263, Santa Fe, or 827-2357 or call Kathryn Taylor, 653-4758.

ARTISTS AT WORK, above, are members of Junior Troop Four Girl Scouts, preparing for the Kaleidoscope Girl Scout Art Show to be held March 3, 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., in the Multipurpose room of the Ruidoso Public Library. Senate Bill 195 supported by local Realtors

The Senate Corporations Committee currently is studying Senate Bill 195 introduced by Senator Les Houston (D-Albuquerque) which, if passed, will make it easier for New Mexicans to purchase homes by assuming existing loans.

According to Ruidoso Board of Realtors president John Hall, the measure will prohibit lending institutions from increasing interest rates upon the sale of property unless it can be shown the lender's security in the property is in danger.

"Presently, many lenders are not permitting homebuyers to assume low interest mortgages, Hall said. "Instead, the prospective buyer is forced to either accept the existing loan at a higher rate or not purchase the property. In many cases, depending on the size of the loan, the buyer will be forced to pay thousands of dollars more for the property, over the term of the loan."

"Many persons, such as retirees and young couples, find that qualifying for a new loan at a 9 1/2 per cent to 10 per cent interest rate, plus closing costs, is nearly impossible."

The Savings and Loans claim the higher interest rates are necessary because of the higher cost of mortgage money in the secondary money market. The secondary money market is represented by the large out-of-state investment corporations which purchase New Mexico mortgages and provide additional money for new construction. However, Hall said their argument is just not true.

"The original lower interest rate mortgage, which today's buyer is trying to assume," Hall said, "was sold to the secondary market years ago and has no relationship to today's secondary market."

"Furthermore, states such as California and Arizona, where court cases against 'due on sale' clauses have been successful, simply have not experienced any shortage of new mortgage money."

"Increasing mortgage interest rates via the 'due on sale' clause, contained in standard mortgage contracts, is a 'rip-off' of the home buyer and benefits the profit picture of the lending institutions."

Those who favor passage of SB-195 also point out that because of existing "due on sale" clauses, owners often must sell at less than the "market price" if existing loans cannot be assumed. Also, the new buyer's interest rate is unknown until the time of closing and the new monthly payments are so high few people can qualify. In addition they say, an owner's equity in his home, the great American savings plan, will be in serious jeopardy.

The bill is scheduled for a second hearing before the Senate Corporations Committee in Santa Fe, Tuesday, February 20, at 2 p.m.

"All homeowners will be vitally affected and should contact the members of the Corporation Committee and voice their support of SB-195," Hall said.

Flood disaster office at Las Cruces still open

With two weeks of operation under its belt, a spokesman for the Federal Disaster Assistance Administration (FDAA) field office in Las Cruces said a total of 71 families in the five-county December 19-22 flood area had applied for federal-state assistance through Friday.

The office opened February 2 when a "hot line" telephone - 1-800-432-3653 - went into operation. President Carter designated the five counties - Grant, Sierra, Hidalgo, Catron and Lincoln - as a disaster area January 29.

FDAA officials made the following breakdown: request for assistance from the Internal Revenue Service, 63; for help from the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Agency, 40; there were 18 inquiries concerning farm and home loans; the Small Business Administration received 38 requests for loan assistance and there were 8 requests for unemployment assistance.

In what the FDAA termed the public sector, federal and state engineers continued to make progress in their inspections of damaged roads, bridges, irrigation and other facilities.

FDAA declined to estimate when the Las Cruces office would close but suggested flood victims needing disaster assistance contact the office as quickly as possible.

material with Ruidoso's telephone and water bills, set up signs which will be raised on red flag or extremely high fire danger days and work with KENW on the telecasts.

Committee member Rich Sealey, who also is a Boy Scout leader, was named as map distribution coordinator. In addition to distributing the maps, which should be finished in the near future, he will use Scouts to insure maps are given to members of the Disaster Task Force, motel owners, the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce and Realtors.

A street sign coordinator and public information coordinator in case of disaster are yet to be named.

The street sign coordinator will work closely with Rotary Club and the village, who are preparing a major street signing project.

The public information person will work with KERR and Cablevision in case of fire or disaster and also work with the village in providing a multitone fire warning system which qualifies the village for civil defense assistance.

The entire committee will coordinate the continuing programs in fire prevention which include a study of village and county ordinances, study of fire wall regulations in condominiums with the planning and zoning commission, refuse removal, providing adequate water and studying the possibility of an alternate route from the Upper Canyon.

In routine business, the committee voted to renew their post office box for another year and discussed finding a replacement for Barbara Duff, who has moved to California.

The next meeting is at 4 p.m., March 15 in the library.

Two-county enforcement group begins fifth year

The Twelfth Judicial District Law Enforcement Association, comprised of over 100 individual members from municipal, county, state and federal law enforcement or judicial agencies in Otero-Lincoln counties, began its fifth consecutive year with the introduction of elected officers for 1979 at a January 31 meeting in Alamogordo January 31.

The association is the oldest (and only) such group in New Mexico and its chartered functions are to promote public interest in law enforcement, to further public education and information about law enforcement, to continue upgrading the education and training of law enforcement personnel and to serve as liaison among the law enforcement and judicial agencies in the Twelfth Judicial District of New Mexico.

Special Agent Dick Swenor, the current president, was quoted as saying, "The Twelfth Judicial District of New Mexico has the most outstanding inter-relationships between agencies I have ever experienced in almost 20 years in the law enforcement work, both in the United States as well as overseas. This aspect of our local law enforcement association has been lauded by professional peers in New Mexico, the Southwest and the Republic of Mexico, in recent years and we hope only to further enhance our professional and public image to the benefit of our own agencies and the citizens we serve in Otero and Lincoln counties."

The association, in conjunction with its member agencies, intends to emphasize public relations and education during the up-coming year to allow the citizens of Otero-Lincoln counties to realize that they are being served and protected by an efficient and dedicated group of men and women. The association will continue to host monthly meetings and training seminars for its members and guests throughout the District during 1979.

Community groups desiring to learn more about the association and its activities are encouraged to contact the president; other officers or individual members. Swenor stated he and other members would endeavor to avail themselves for any requested speaking engagements and may be contacted through the District Attorney's Office.

Fuel adjustment factor raises electricity cost

Cheap electricity is gone forever, but customers have been experiencing especially high electric bills due to a higher than normal fuel adjustment and purchased power factor, say officials of Community Public Service Company.

The factor, which has risen from $.0122025 per kilowatt-hour in December to $.027117 per kilowatt-hour in February, represents the increased cost of fuel used to generate electricity and the higher cost of power purchased for resale. Higher demand caused by the cold weather, short fuel supply and inflation have forced the price of fuel up, which forces the fuel adjustment and purchased power charge up.

Community Public Service Company recently experienced a rate increase from one of their power suppliers; Public Service Company of New Mexico, and this increase is being passed on to customers in the fuel adjustment and purchased power charge. The New Mexico Public Service Commission has allowed utilities to use the fuel adjustment and purchased power charge so that they will not have to go through the expensive process of filing for higher rates every time their fuel and purchased power costs jump. The charge is labeled "fuel adjustment factor" on Community's bill to customers.

Special courses starting

BY GWYN JONES
Staff Writer/Photographer

The first two courses have been scheduled by the Lincoln County Community Center, a group recently formed to promote community education.

The "Historical Round Table", a session featuring older residents of the county, will focus on remembered or "handed-down" folklore and history of the area. Those sessions will be held each Sunday in March (4, 11, 18 and 25) at the high school in Capitan.

At a Wednesday night meeting, the group also discussed the possibility of holding potluck luncheons in conjunction with the round table. Those attending the first class will be polled and a decision made on the luncheons at that time.

Running concurrently with the round table will be an income tax preparation course to be taught by Jack Cisco, possibly with assistance from others. Scheduled for March 6, 13 and 20, the classes will be held from 7 to 9 p.m., also at Capitan High School. There is no charge for any of the classes; expenses will be defrayed by donations and grants, which the founders hope to obtain in the near future.

President Betty Martin and public relations coordinator Lorraine Sanchez said they hope to be given a decision Tuesday on funding available through New Mexico State University.

They hope to receive up to $2,000 in the form of a mini-grant, plus other funds which may be used to publish a newsletter and pay for postage. The mini-grant would be used for training of leaders, such as center directors and teachers.

Those attending the meeting elected a five-member committee who will organize and carry out a survey within the county to determine the educational and other wants and needs of the people. The survey results will be used to establish overall goals of the center.

Members of the survey committee are Lorraine Sanchez, Katie Weaver, Gwen

Jones, Ann Buffington and Bill Allred. Allred was also elected temporary vice-president by acclamation.

The center will hold the next meeting at 7:30 p.m., Wednesday in the Capitan High School cafeteria.

John Hall, president of Sierra Development Company, was recently selected as the New Mexico representative to a nationwide realtors' legislative conference in Washington D.C., to be held March 18-21.

The representative is elected by the state Realtors Political Action Committee, of which Hall is a member. He is also a member of the realtors' state legislative committee and serves as president of the local board of realtors.

Cagerettes' loss to Lordsburg forces playoff for second

BY JOHN NEYLAND

Lordsburg took advantage of a warrior scoring lapse in the third period Saturday to come from behind to down the Ruidoso girls' basketball team 51-47 to move into a tie for second place with Ruidoso.

Lordsburg's win forces a one game playoff with the Warriors to determine second place in the final district standings. The game will be played Tuesday, probably in Las Cruces, Warrior coach Sergio Castanon said. The winner of the playoff earns a bye to the semifinals of the district tournament Friday and Saturday in Animas.

The Warriors also lost Friday to district champ Animas 57-35. In winning, Animas upped their record to 22-1. The Warriors fell to 8-13 with the loss.

As most teams have been this season, Ruidoso was simply outclassed by Animas. Animas jumped out to a 14-1 first period lead and coasted to victory.

Animas upped the margin to 25-9 at half. They led 43-15 at the end of three quarters. Although the Warriors scored 20 points in the final stanza, Animas was home free. Castanon was lavish in his praise of Animas.

"They have too many outstanding players," he said. "The only way we could beat them was if we played our best game and they played mediocre."

Senior Kristi Perryman led Ruidoso scorers with 15 points. Tracy Shafer added nine, Lori Swain had seven and Kelly Cothrun scored one.

"She's trying so hard to score," Castanon said of Cothrun. "If she'd relax, I think she'd do alright."

One of Castanon's grievances about his club is that there isn't any semblance of a balanced scoring attack. Perryman almost always carries the scoring load. For the Warriors to be tough, Castanon said, other players will have to add offensive punch.

"We need more scoring," he said. "We need to have three girls in double figures." He didn't get his wish in Saturday's loss to Lordsburg.

Perryman again led Ruidoso scorers with 29 points. Cothrun added six, Swain had nine and Shafer tallied three.

The Warriors started the game well, grabbing a 19-8 lead. Lordsburg cut the deficit to 30-27 at half. In the third period, Ruidoso went cold from the field, allowing Lordsburg to gain the lead. Ruidoso scored only four points while Lordsburg was scoring 11 to take a 38-34 lead. Both teams scored 13 in the final period. Castanon thought the difference in the game was each team's success on the free-throw line.

"We hit seven out of 16," he said. "They hit ten out of 14. That's where we lost the game."

Pair of weekend cage losses concern Nelson

The Ruidoso boys' basketball team fell into a tie for last place in district competition, losing twice over the weekend. They lost Friday at Animas 79-75 despite Stan Cape's 32 points. Saturday, Ruidoso lost to Lordsburg 60-57.

Both defeats came against teams that, on paper, are not as strong as Ruidoso, according to Warrior coach Barry Nelson.

"We should have won both games," he said. The downfall against Animas came in the third period when Ruidoso couldn't hold off Animas' rally. Led by Jody Eddy's 29 points, Animas turned a 33-32 deficit into a 57-51 third quarter advantage.

"They pretty much controlled the game from there," Nelson said.

The loss really galled Nelson: Ruidoso didn't play well at all, he said. He believed his club was 20 points better. But Animas merely wanted the game more than Ruidoso.

"We're a 20 point better ball club," he said. "But Animas just hustled more than we did. I don't think our kids want to win. It bothers them when we lose for about 30 minutes."

Besides Cape's 32 points, Jeff Elliott added 20 for the Warriors. Sean Mohnd was the only other player to hit in double figures with 15. Borde Williams added only two.

"That hurt us," Nelson said. Despite the loss, Nelson was pleased with the play of Paul Kirkwood, who hustled from start to finish, despite scoring only four points. Nelson plans to insert him into the starting lineup for next weekend's rematch with Animas and Lordsburg.

"If all the kids played like he did, we'd be alright," Nelson said. "He's the one I'm most impressed with. I think everyone is most impressed with him because he

Warriors' success parallels Cape's

BY JOHN NEYLAND

Stan Cape fits the Hollywood mold of the strong, silent type. He doesn't use flowery words to describe his feelings on a given subject. But when he does speak, people listen. His words are direct, to the point and confident.

Cape, a 6'2" senior basketball player at Ruidoso High School, is most confident about the basketball team's chances of a district title. To Cape, it is a foregone conclusion that Ruidoso will win it.

"We'll probably win district," he said. "I think we have a real good chance. After that, it's regionals and if we win that it's the state playoffs. I think we'll win a lot more games."

If Cape continues to play the way he has in recent weeks he's probably right. While the Warriors were wallowing in mediocrity for much of the season, Cape was their leading scorer, averaging 13 points per game. Since the early season woes, Ruidoso has come on like gangbusters to seize the lead in district play. It is no coincidence that during that streak, Cape began scoring in bunches.

He began the scoring spree with 19 points at Silver City in a losing effort. It was one of the Warriors' best games of the season. Against Weed, the number one ranked team in Class A, Cape tossed in 14 as Ruidoso won 64-54.

In the Dexter Tournament, Cape tallied 39 points in three games, leading Ruidoso to the finals of the tournament where they lost to Hatch. Cape was an all-tourney selection. In the district opener for Ruidoso against Hatch, Cape scored a season high 31 points, leading Ruidoso to an 82-63 upset.

During that span, Ruidoso won four and lost only two, raising their record to 7-1. It is no coincidence that Cape was a key factor in the team's success. But it wasn't always so for Cape.

"Before I was a starter, I looked for other people to make things happen," he said. "When I got in the game, I looked to the other guys to make the plays. Now that I'm starting, I have to do a lot of it myself."

Cape isn't being cocky. He hasn't forgotten that there are four other players on the court that make things happen also. In fact, Cape attributes the Warriors' recent success to those other four players, most of whom have been playing ball together for a long time.

"In ninth grade we all played on the same team that went undefeated," he said. "I was waiting for senior year so we could play together again. I knew we'd be good."

Being a team that played together before was one of the main ingredients for the Warrior's turnaround this season. Cape thinks being friends off the court has helped the Warriors regroup when things were going badly.

"We'd talk to each other," he said. "We would discuss what was wrong. We could talk things out."

Cape's family moved to Ruidoso from Hobbs when he was in sixth grade. Cape's first exposure to basketball came in Hobbs in an "organized thing" that existed in the summer. When he came to Ruidoso two men, Dub Williams and Dick Mound (both of whom have sons on the varsity), encouraged Stan to play basketball. It has been his love ever since.

"It covers all aspects of sports," he said. "It involves running and jumping. You have to stop suddenly. You have to be able to dribble and shoot. I like it better than any other sport."

He likes it so much, in fact, that he'd like to continue playing when he graduates this spring. But he hasn't had any scholarship offers, so his participation will probably consist of intramurals.

"I'd like to keep playing," he said. "At least on the intramural level."

At this point, Cape plans to enter the University of Colorado to study architecture. If he was offered a scholarship to play at a school with a lesser architecture program, he doesn't know if he would accept it or not.

"If I did (receive an offer) it would be a hard decision," he said. "I'd like to be an architect. It would be a hard decision to make."

An only child, Cape spends a lot of time hunting Cape.

Cape needn't worry about his future. There will always be decisions to make, some harder than others. But if worse came to worse, he could always go to Hollywood.

Dice captures third place with cup win
Kirk Dice of Breckenridge, Colorado defeated Boulder, Colorado's Scott Mackie when Mackie blew out on the second run to capture the Jose Cuervo-Sandia Peak Pro Cup Wednesday.
Mackie led after the first run by .324 seconds, but couldn't hold off the Dice's charge. By blowing into on the second run, Mackie was assessed penalty of 1.5 seconds, thus handing the win to Dice. The win was worth $350.
Gerald Heid of Avon, Colorado defeated Nestor Burgener of Winter Park, Colorado for third place. A total of 32 skiers qualified for the race.
Mackie, who finished third and second in the Yukon Jack-Sierra Blanca Pro Cup races here four weeks ago, moved into a tie with Ted Maroli for the Grand Prix standings with 58 points. Dice captured third place with 36 points.

SANTA FE — There is a difference between fact and fiction. Budgets ought to be the former, not the latter.

That's the two-sentence message greenhorn John Salvo, Governor King's old neighbor from down the road at Moriarty, got last Tuesday.

Salvo, named to head the important Department of Commerce and Industry despite a total lack of experience in the field or anything like it, was told that coldly by one of the Legislature's masters of the icy delivery, John Mershon of Cloudcroft, chairman of the House Appropriations and Finance Committee.

As one of Salvo's financial people told him in the hall after Mershon in effect ejected Commerce and Industry from the budget hearing scheduled for them that afternoon, "John, we're in trouble."

Source of the trouble is not hard to find. It's on the fourth floor of the Roundhouse, where neither Salvo's nor Mershon's offices are to be found.

On that floor, however, are both the Governor's office and the office of his nephew, David King, Secretary for Finance and Administration. From that floor came the phone calls that said, "You're going to hire so-and-so..."

And hiring So-and-So, with no place in the approved table of organization for such a one, is just what got John Mershon's dander up.

The meeting began with two financial-analyst types on the stand, partly because Salvo didn't have the good judgment to arrive on time for his own hearing. Basically the only question they were asked was to name the employees in Secretary Salvo's office.

They hemmed and hawed — never a good sign from a bureaucrat on the stand, and especially unwise if the chairman of the group before whom you are appearing is an Old Fox, a veteran of the legislative wars, such as John Mershon from Cloudcroft or Aubrey Dunn, his neighbor from down the road on the apple farm.

What the chairman eventually accused them of, in a non-crude way, was lying. "You tell me you know of no position of such-and-such kind," he said. "Suppose I told you it was there and I know who occupies it?"

At that point it would have been hard to deny that they knew what the chairman was talking about. The man who occupies the position, Ernie Coriz, was sitting directly behind them, at the right hand of the Secretary, John Salvo.

Coriz, a former high-ranker at Energy and Minerals, was, wittingly or unwittingly, the subject of one of those fourth-floor phone calls. Suddenly he found himself at Commerce and Industry in a position for which he has no more demonstrated proficiency than Salvo for his, occupying a position that officially doesn't exist and eating up, by his relatively high salary, bucks budgeted for existing jobs.

Only after such actions, the way the Kings have worked, are the budget people called in and told to find a way to make the whole thing legal.

Net result in this case was to put a very bad stumbling block before the feet of their friend John Salvo. He stumbled — indeed, he fell.

He will show the scars of that fall for a long time. It may take all the Kings' horses and all the Kings' men to put Humpty Dumpty together again.

CURBS ON FREEDOM

The catalogue of the Soviet government's injustice to those it governs is long, and contains many grave entries. The Communist regime is notorious for its assaults on human dignity and rights.

The regime also is petty, to the point of being ludicrous, in its many-faceted efforts to restrict free expression. It has often shown that it will stoop to anything to harass creative spirits who venture — or might perhaps venture, if given a little rein — to differ with the government. Lately we have seen two examples of this small-minded approach to thought control.

One episode concerns Mstislav Rostropovich's sister Veronika. It has been well publicized because of her brother's fame as a cellist, conductor and Soviet expatriate stripped of his citizenship. Though she has played in the Moscow Philharmonic for many years, she is being excluded from the orchestra's tour of the United States and Canada.

Rostropovich thinks his sister is being persecuted because of his persona non grata position after having spoken out against the Soviet regime. "Now she is like a hostage," he said in a Washington interview. "Maybe they think that I will not speak so openly, maybe I will speak a little 'dimeinendo.' But if I am quiet for one time, the Soviet government showed its pettiness in another incident. A number of prominent Soviet writers had hired a Moscow cafe as the scene of a reception to mark the launching of a new literary journal, 'Metropol'. The government's response was to order the cafe closed for a 'Cleaning day'. So much for the writers' reception.

Childish of the powers that be? Yes — in both cases. But then, there's nothing very mature about a powerful government cringing like a rabbit whenever someone threatens to say a discouraging word, is there?

EVERY PRECAUTION?

That shopworn, threadbare and otherwise hackneyed adage, "Accidents will happen," has in effect been applied to the disastrous explosion of a French oil tanker at a Gulf Oil terminal off Bantry, Ireland. No less a personage than Irish Prime Minister Jack Lynch, while pledging a full government inquiry into the blast which took 50 lives, told a news conference:

"Gulf Oil has taken every possible care to avoid oil spills and other disasters. I believe every precaution was taken."

This is reminiscent of what a rural "stringer" for a small-town paper years ago habitually wrote at the end of every death report: "All that medical science could do was done, but to no avail."

No doubt it is pointless to say, "Well, maybe medical science should have done more." By the same token it may be pointless to suggest, after a big tanker has blown up and 50 men have been killed, that "every possible care" is not enough — that more might have been done to avert disaster.

We recognize that it is vastly easier to make such a suggestion than to take steps which would all but guarantee against such an accident as that in Ireland. Still, one comes up against a stubborn fact: the explosion did occur, though according to Gulf Oil all standard safety procedures were put into operation upon the vessel's arrival at the Bantry terminal.

"Accidents will happen," all right. But when an accident as horrendous as this one happens, no good purpose is served by opining that everything possible was done to prevent it. Since the safety procedures did not prevent it, the question to address is: What more could have been done, and could be done in the future to prevent another such tragedy? — Alamogordo Daily News

editorial

Ruidoso's voters may soon be asked to approve a $1 million general obligation bond issue to build a new sewer system and replace about two miles of transmission lines demolished in the December flood.

The trustees could try to find a buyer for revenue bonds in that amount. Financial information available to the village indicates this would be difficult, if not impossible.

Either way, the $1 million must be repaid.

Based on the fact that Ruidoso's growth resulted in a four mill drop in property taxes from 1977 to 1978, and on the virtual certainty that the building boom will continue, it is possible that a $1 million general obligation bond issue would not increase the present tax rate.

Soon, the choice could be yours to force the village into trying to sell revenue bonds which, if sold, would result in an immediate increase in the cost of sewer service; or, take the chance that a $1 million general obligation bond issue won't raise taxes.

There doesn't seem to be much choice in the matter, especially if the general obligation bonds won't cost us any more than we're paying now. —CD

A HOLE WITH WATER

The Huey Drilling Company ... putting a hole into the ground at the point water witched by Jerry Keeton ... did Wednesday, at the tip of their drill ... some 300 feet into the earth ... strike a vein of water ... that ... on testing ... started producing 150 gallons per minute.

The figure I came up with ... after figuring all the angles I could come up with ... puts the 24 hour volume potential of this particular water hole at 230,400 gallons ... which'd fill just whole herds of crocks with ice tea.

But did this success cause the Huey crew to leap with joy ... and cease and desist in their efforts to find water ... not on your tinfole. What they did was stick another length of pipe onto their drill and proceed to keep drilling until they've reached 1,000 feet.

Seems they hope ... and so'd all of us best do ... they might find even more water per minute at deeper depths.

Furthermore ... once this determined bunch of well drillers gets all finished at the present site witched pretty close to Eagle Creek ... they're gonna crank up the diesel engine that moves the rig from one place to another like a lumbering truck ... and they're gonna dig a fresh hole ... 1,000 feet beneath the top of the soil in Upper Canyon ... somewhere across the street from Nolsy Water Lodge ... and they're hoping to find water, water, water ... like whole bunches.

What this means is ... if'n they find a seemingly endless supply of water at the Eagle Creek site ... and another in the Upper Canyon ... and if'n the two wells produce a half-million ... or more ... gallons every day ... that'll be that much more than we have now ... and should serve to slake our thirst for some time to come ... through innumerable ice teas.

Course ... now that water's been found ... and more might be ... the next thing the village dads gotta do is convince the right people that ... by jinkles ... Ruidoso's entitled to finder's keepers right on all that water ... which might take a smidgen of doing.

But ain't it comforting ... knowing there's water under the ground ... water that could some day be used ... for fighting fires ... and watering posies ... and driving four-year-old boys into hysterics by making baths plentiful? And if'n they can find a million gallon a day well ... who wanted to go boating on Eagle Creek Dam anyhow?

DOWN MEXICO WAY

Our Jimmy ... who's done himself proud abroad ... what with impressing the Poles with his wit ... the Arabs with his diplomacy ... and the Jews with his temerity ... did wind up holding a bag full of peanut shucks, when he went to try his hand at sweet talking Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo into jarring loose with a few billion barrels of Mexico's oil.

Seems ... cording to what I read in the papers ... that there are lots of Mexicans that don't like United States citizens ... and they've been vocal about it lately. They didn't say anything about not liking our devalued dollars ... and money-bearing tourists bearing same.

Our Jimmy's immediate problem seems to be a real poser ... like convincing Lopez that his turning down Mexican natural gas at a price of $2.60 per thousand cubic feet ... in 1977 ... really didn't mean what Lopez thinks it meant ... and that ... by jinkles ... bygones should be bygones ... and let's get down to business ... and sell us USNS oil ... and hang the expense ... as long as it's cheaper than we can buy it from those fellas as is gouging us plenty bad ... with no success in sight.

Could be though ... Our Jimmy's using the wrong approach. Maybe he should introduce Lopez and the remaining millions of Mexicans, to the delights of the goober ... and convince them they're healthier for them than nachos ... and then sell 'em more peanuts than we buy oil ... and keep us happier than the Mexicans ... but first ... he's gotta get his Spanish polished to the point if'n he can't dazzle 'em with his dexterity, he can't baffle 'em with his buffoonery.

Seems ... what Our Jimmy really needs ... from his text writers ... isn't so much someone to lubricate his words as someone to lubricate his texts for him. And it appears likely ... if'n he can woo Lopez into a 'friendship that'll benefit us ... that he'll soon have the Chinese and Russians playing ring-around-the-rosy in glorious, harmonious accord.

On the thumb hand size ... though ... Lopez' derogatory remarks about Our Jimmy ... more or less to his face ... might have raised the wrath of our man from Georgia ... and that can lead to interesting developments ... or aren't you still avidly following brother Billy's balderdash?

BRIEF BY: In case you don't happen to like the weather, remember that if'n there's no snow on Baldy we might all have dry pipes this summer ... CD

SIERRA BLANCA CABINS are owned by Marchand "Mac" and Sunny McDougal, above. At the cabins, located on the Rio Ruidoso, visitors can enjoy a secluded, yet central location, convenient to the downtown area. The cabins feature native rock wood-burning fireplaces and cable television and are equipped with firewood, dishes, linens and kitchen utensils. A children's playground, outdoor fireplaces and grills are also available, and fishing is permitted with a license. The McDougals have been members of the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce for 18 years.

THE CRACKED POT ceramics shop, at 1103 Mechem, was purchased in 1978 by Emadair Jones from Lucille McCarty. The shop features a large selection of greenware, bisque and gift items, along with color glazes and other ceramic supplies. Lessons in the craft are also available. With the exception of a period in 1977, Jones has been a member of the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce since 1945. She and McCarty were probably the first women directors, although there was a Women's Chamber of Commerce active before and during World War II. Jones holds a real estate broker's license and is associated with Sunshine Realty.

Library Laurels

by Kathy Moore

The Public Access to Libraries (PAL) bill known as S.B. 168 was introduced January 31 by State Senator John Morrow. It appropriates $1,476,000 to begin the establishment of a statewide computerized union list of library holdings and inter-library loan network.

For your information, I am reprinting the proposed summary prepared by Dr. Ralph Shoffner, consultant. The following reprint was sent to Ruidoso Public Library by Joe Sabatini, chairman of the Library Legislation Committee.

INTRODUCTION AND SUMMARY
A. PURPOSE

This report presents the results of a feasibility study analysis concerned with setting up a computer-based library network to improve the delivery of library services throughout New Mexico. This analysis was commissioned by the legislature of the State of New Mexico and was carried out under the aegis of the New Mexico State Library.

B. APPROACH

The librarians of New Mexico have been very active in the last decade: in establishing cooperative arrangements among all types of libraries and in exploring potential new methods of improving library service. Following extensive meetings and discussions throughout the State in 1977, they developed the outline of a statewide inter-library cooperative system. The present project provides a program definition to implement the recommendations of that task force. The program definition includes recommended organization, staffing and budgeting. The result, designated the Public Access to Libraries System, is compared with current operations to establish its likely costs and benefits.

Program costs were projected over a five-year time period. In order to assure that cost estimates were sufficient to carry out the program, the computer costs were estimated at new equipment prices. However, in practice, it may be possible to realize substantial savings by using equipment already on site that the Department of Automated Data Processing (ADPD) can release from current applications. Such possibilities may be incorporated before funding is requested.

C. SCOPE

In view of the time and funding available for the project, the analysis was based on available information that had been compiled in prior studies or could be obtained readily from the libraries. With the exception of a few small, limited samples, no independent data collection was carried out.

The program definition is limited to that which is necessary to establish the program's recommended organization, staffing and budgeting; it is not an exhaustive program plan.

D. PRINCIPAL RESULTS AND RECOMMENDATIONS

1. The general goal of libraries in the State of New Mexico should be to aid in the development and continuing support of a literate and competent population.

RATIONALE: Compared to the rest of the United States, New Mexico has a higher level of:

- illiteracy than the average (50% higher);
- people with advanced degrees (20% higher);
- unemployment (40-50% higher).

The state must mobilize all of its resources to develop a competent population capable of producing a viable, competitive economy. Such a population is the ultimate non-diminishing resource. The libraries of the state — academic, public, special, etc. — are the only organizations established to provide the broad spectrum of needed information to all of the population. Their capacity to fill this role should be called upon.

2. All the libraries of the state, regardless of type, should be connected in a computer based network in order to provide immediate Public Access to Libraries.

RATIONALE: This PAL System will improve the knowledge of the material available in libraries, regardless of the location of the library or of the person. The system will deliver material to the patron via inter-library loan. Just as there is an imbalance in the distribution of the demand for medical services and the availability of those services, so too, there is an imbalance in the distribution of library services. Albuquerque is the most information-rich area in the state and has 39% of the total library holdings in the state. On the other end of the spectrum, 24% of the population has no local library service and is served only by the State Library's bookmobile and books-by-mail programs. The PAL System can provide on-line video display terminals and microfiche catalogs distributed throughout the state in order to improve library access at all levels — for the information-poor as well as the information-rich. In 1980, the PAL System will contain entries for 780,000 titles — more than is held by any library in the state.

3. The PAL System should be organized immediately with a core group of 53 libraries having on-line video display terminals (NOTE: S.B. 168 will fund approximately 30 terminals) and all other libraries and high schools having a microfiche catalog of all holdings placed in the system. The group should be selected to represent 30 of the largest libraries and 23 others providing special subject coverage and geographic distribution.

RATIONALE: The libraries with the on-line terminals will be able to maintain their catalogs in the PAL System, available for the use of others. The speed of access will significantly improve the ability to make use of materials located elsewhere. Over five years of operation, the PAL System interlibrary loan volume will build up to 730,000 loans per year. Although more expensive than current library services, the system will supplement and improve those services.

4. It is feasible to have the PAL System in operation within one year of beginning the implementation.

RATIONALE: The computer programs necessary to operate the system are available from elsewhere, so they need not be developed. The system will operate under the aegis of the State Library, with computer processing provided by the State's Automated Data Processing Division, so an organization need not be established; staff and equipment will be needed, however. The projected total costs for the system are $1,476,000 for the first year of operation and, allowing for a 7% per year inflation, building to a level of $3,054,000 in five years.

5. The PAL System will be useful in other areas of support to library operations.

RATIONALE: The system will aid in unifying library automation efforts. When stabilized in the support of public access, the system has the potential of supporting acquisitions, cataloging and circulation control.

6. In implementing the PAL System, New Mexico is not initiating a reckless new venture.

RATIONALE: Computer based library networks that is taking place nationally. It will be obtaining computer programs and equipment that have been developed and proven in operation elsewhere. New Mexico's unique contribution can be the marshalling of its resources from all types of libraries to make them available to all of its citizens.

THE TRUTH WILL OUT, as George Washington might have said when his father saw the cherry tree. In home interiors, being true to yourself is one of the best rules of the day.

Individual lifestyles are very much part of today's scene. Families have their own way of living, their own way of expressing themselves in clothes, activities, attitudes and hobbies. They can and should find ways to individual expression in their home environment.

That includes furniture, artifacts, art and carpeting... because your carpet says a great deal about you. It's a way of making a personal truth about yourself and color, for instance... be it a subtle softness to go with those new Chinese pieces, or a bold bright color blend to complement your modern art or that great new catfish you like to relax in.

With so many colors and textures, prints and patterns to choose from in new carpets and colorful area rugs, being true to yourself is easier than ever in your home environment.

That's true even if the budget is honestly short... as you'll see when you look over our carpet displays. We offer quality and value in every price range... along with the personal style that's just right for you. Come in!

The Dreamer

BY DANNIE STORM

The First Colors Of Early Spring

Some time well into the half-way ground of Winter every year, if you look closely, you can see by the wayside the first faint colors of the approach of Spring. Or maybe we should say, the first colors that give us a sign that Winter is loosening its hold upon the land, just a little.

The apple trees in the orchards turn a brighter shade of purple with a dark red, or maroon tint all through the branches, limbs and twigs. And along the bank of the stream, you can see the willow bushes turning from light brown to a bright orange-vermillion color. Then the cottonwoods begin to show a silvery brilliance on the light grey of their winter branches. The whole graceful shape of the giant tree seems to put on a quiet glow, signalling to the world that it may soon begin to open its buds.

All of these signs appeared along about the eight of February, just before the latest warm spell moved in.

Now, today (this is being sent to you on February fifteenth) the cedars on the hillside are taking on fresh colors that let us know they had heard the whispered voice of "the Queen of Seasons." All the green of the hills seems to have taken on a brighter tone, and some of the larger cedars have a golden-bronze color. They turn this shade when they begin to show their pollen. Later on, you will see what looks like a burst of dull brown-golden smoke or dust spring from one of these trees all in a cloud, blown from the tree by the western winds of Spring.

Speaking of winds, the last two or three days have been something like March with some brisk west winds; but today, the fifteenth, there is not the slightest breath of wind and light grey clouds form a soft ceiling for the mountain world. The air is warm and mild with just a breath of moisture floating in the vale.

Hardly a sign of snow is to be seen on the hillsides to the south, and the oak brush, one of the most cautious of all the mountain dwellers to leaf out, is showing hardly any trace of change in its soft pink winter color.

The First Leaves

When you see the weeping willow turning golden then you know that the leaves are ready to show their pure, light new green. This happens in the late winter - always a pleasant surprise - all in just a day, it seems, when all the other trees are still deep in winter sleep.

Down towards Glencoe and San Patricio if you look out across the orchards and fields you will see among the cotton woods and orchard trees - still in their winter dress - the weeping willow suddenly appeared in the first of its brand new green leaves.

The leaves are long and slender, and following the rounded contour of the gracefully-bending slender branches reaching low towards the earth - these leaves look like a magic flowing fountain of the first delicate green of Spring.

So now the first leaves of Spring have appeared on the graceful and beloved weeping willow letting us know that the glorious pageant, the colorful parade of leaf and blossom has begun, pointing to the splendid days ahead of the world's joyful awakening to happier and the world's joyful awakening to blessed days of Spring.

Each day now will bring forth new pictures on earth and in the sky, and the world will become more beautiful each day and more filled with the wondrous blessings of Our Lord.

I-n-s-i-d-e the Outdoors

by Gary Dolehan

Prior to, and continuing through each hunting season, New Mexico Department of Game & Fish personnel are subject to a multitude of questions from concerned persons regarding season dates, bag limits, and regulations.

Some ask why they have to choose between different hunt dates, and others why they have either-sex seasons on and on.

Although the questions are quite simple grammatically, the answers are relatively complex biologically.

Shortly after the deer season each year, winter deer counts begin and continue through February. The goal of these counts is to establish an idea of herd structure, or the ratio of bucks, does, and fawns.

Such surveys are executed usually by two means, from the ground and from the air.

District conservation officers cover deer areas by horseback, foot, or vehicle, and record all their observations and classifications.

However, the most efficient and accurate surveys are conducted by helicopter. Helicopters are used for counting deer, elk, bighorn sheep, and barbary sheep.

The information obtained from these winter surveys will provide population structure as well as a good indication of the present population status.

In addition to the winter counts, field personnel conduct pellet and browse transects.

A pellet transect is an index system based on a research finding of the homely fact that deer defecate an average of slightly less than thirteen times a day. Therefore, researchers have established the concept of counting the number of groups of deer pellets in an area and putting this information in a formula to serve as a means of estimating deer populations.

These transects are pre-determined, randomly selected areas that are "read" each year. The information from these transects indicates the amount of use the area receives on a year to year basis.

Therefore, the pellet transect is a valuable tool for indicating population trends for yearly comparisons in a given area.

The browse transects are a cooperative effort among the game department, Bureau of Land Management, and the U.S. Forest Service.

The browse transect involves reading randomly selected forage plants and recording browsed versus unbrowsed twigs.

An experienced reader of browse transects can recognize whether the browsing was done by rabbits, deer, elk, or cattle. This information indicates the impact of animals upon their habitat.

Additional data of importance comes from annual random card surveys. These cards pinpoint the number of game taken, the number of hunters afield, and the distribution of hunting pressure.

All of the information obtained from these various surveys, when put together, form the foundation for the fall and winter big game seasons.

CONFIDENTIAL REPORT: Although Donny and Marie Osmond smile and act happy on TV, in real life they're shaking with fear. A band of armed lunatics, bent on "rubbing out those hypocritical, moralistic do-gooding Mormons" has threatened the lives and property of the Osmonds, insiders reveal. The family has managed to keep the threats secret, fearing publicity would only encourage them. But this much is known: criminals have broken into the Osmond complex in Utah, threatening guests of their TV shows (like Cheryl Tiegs and Olivia Newton-John) and have terrorized Donny and Marie, demanding they be paid off to leave them alone. Donny's wife Debbie has received threats and annoying phone calls, as has Marie's beau, Dirk Benedict of 'Battistar Galactica.' ... Robert Hegyes, who plays Epstein on 'Welcome Back, Kotter,' must be the busiest guy in Hollywood. He was seen recently with his wife Mary (whom he's divorcing) and actress Lisa Hartman (TV's 'Tabitha') at an ERA fund-raising party. Bob has also been dating his 'Kotter' co-star Marcia Strassman. "What can I say," Hegyes shrugs. "I get around."

THE EAGLE HAS LANDED

Michael Caine (pictured), Donald Sutherland, Robert Duvall and Larry Hagman star in 'The Eagle Has Landed,' a World War II suspense drama about a Nazi commando plot to kidnap Winston Churchill. The adventure, based on a novel by Jack Higgins, will be colorcast on NBC-TV's 'The Big Event,' Tuesday, Feb. 20.

Caine stars as Col. Kurt Steiner, a German paratroop officer who leads a raiding party—disguised as Free Polish troops—to a quiet town on the coast of England, where they await a weekend rest visit by Churchill.

The group hopes to kidnap the British Prime Minister and carry him back to Berlin, where Hitler's planners feel they will be able to force the Allies into a peace pact negotiated in the Nazis' favor.

Duvall portrays Col. Max Radl, the officer who conducts a feasibility study of the raid, and Sutherland plays Liam Devlin, an intelligence agent who assists the intruders.

SOUND COUNTRY

by Doug Davis

Roy Clark was recently honored by the city of Skiatook, a Tulsa suburb, when it renamed its airport the Skiatook Roy Clark Municipal Airport.

"I've piloted planes into and out of airports all over the world which makes this honor so special to me," Clark said.

Roy Clark

Clark, who owns a Mitsubishi prop jet that he pilots from his home in Tulsa to his 200 annual concerts, was recently voted 'Instrumentalist of the Year' by the Country Music Association.

During a recent traveling session, I ran across something you might be interested in. It's a 134-page country music cookbook that contains the favorite recipes of some of country music's biggest names—Merle Haggard, Barbara Mandrell, The Statler Brothers and dozens of others. The country artists tell you just exactly how they prepare their favorite mouth-watering meals.

The cookbook includes a full-page biographical story

Copies are available for $7.95 each—postpaid. To order, write: Claudia's Country Cookbook, 50 East 41st St., Number 86A, New York, N.Y. 10017.

The Statler Brothers kicked off the first half of their 1979 tour with two sellout shows. A capacity crowd of 7,500 was on hand at Knoxville's Civic Auditorium to view the Statlers' first show of the new year.

Breaking records has almost become a Statler Brothers trademark, and Knoxville was no exception. Their appearance there marked the quickest sellout of a country concert in the auditorium's history.

The Statler Brothers

The following night, the Statlers played to 5,400 fans in two shows at the Municipal Auditorium in Charleston, S.C., which broke that auditorium's record for the highest-grossing show.

EDWARD THE KING

Edward's extramarital affairs jeopardize the monarchy as his marriage to Princess Alexandra (Helen Ryan, pictured) in 'The Invisible Queen,' the sixth episode of the 13-part Mobil Showcase presentation of 'Edward the King,' airing Wednesday, Feb. 21. (Check the listings for the station in your area.)
 Award-winning British actress Annette Crosbie stars as the reclusive Queen Victoria and Timothy West as her flamboyant son, Prince Edward.
 When Sir Charles Mordent's wife names Edward as one of the men with whom she has been having an affair, the news curdles Victoria's royal blood. "It has taken 30 years to restore confidence in the monarchy, and you threaten to destroy it in a week," she chides her son. "We are like a city set upon a hill. People delight in believing the worst about us."

SILENT VICTORY: THE KITTY O'NEIL STORY

Stockard Channing (pictured left) stars as Kitty O'Neil in "Silent Victory: The Kitty O'Neil Story," the real-life account of a deaf girl's courage in becoming one of Hollywood's premier stuntwomen and holder of the women's world land speed record, a new motion-picture for television on "The CBS Saturday Night Movies," Feb. 24.

Also starring are James Farentino (right), Colleen Dewhurst and Edward Albert. Guest starring is Brian Dennehy.

The inspirational story traces Kitty's battle with adversity, from a difficult childhood helped by her mother's determination to conquer her handicap by encouraging achievement on the piano and as an Olympic diving hopeful, to her ultimate success in the hazardous Hollywood stunt world.

In the film's final, exciting moments, Kitty earns acclaim as the "world's fastest woman" by driving a rocket-powered racing car to a new world record of 512 m.p.h. for a two-way run and achieving an incredible top speed of 600 m.p.h.
