RWS MIGHT NOT INCREASE TAX RATE

G.O. bond cost not known

In connection with the upcoming election to approve a $1.5 million General Obligation (G.O.) bond issue to finance a portion of the cost of the Regional Wastewater System (RWS), the question being asked by the taxpayers is: "How much is it going to cost me?"

The answer, by village officials, is: "At this time, we do not know."

There will be no way to estimate the effect the $1.5 million bond issue will have on the tax rate per $1,000 in assessed valuation, until the figures on Ruidoso are available.

County assessor Marion Schlarb advised The News Friday afternoon that the new figures on the assessed valuation for the village should be available the latter part of April, which should be just prior to the election.

The cost breakdown on RWS, to provide trunk lines connecting Ruidoso and Ruidoso Downs to the new treatment plant near Biscuit Hill, includes:

— Ruidoso: $1.5 million in G.O. bonds would defray expenses of the new trunk lines, including extensions to areas not served; and all other costs of land acquisition, legal action and related expenses.

— Ruidoso's share of RWS, over and

— Ruidoso Downs share of RWS is guaranteed by $300,000 in G.O. bonds and the interest accrued.

— The federal share of RWS will be $4,520,000.

— The state share will be $753,333.

— The estimate on RWS, by Daniel Engineering, Alamogordo, is $6,026,666.

IT IS THE NEED FOR NEW trunk lines, and to increase the capacity of existing mains, and the cost of land acquisition, that forced the village into the $1.5 million G.O. bond election.

In the opinion of village officials, the passage of the new bond issue might not result in an increase in the present tax rate of about $51 per $1,000 in assessed valuation.

This opinion is based upon the extent of new building as well as the fact that as the assessed valuation increases, the rate per $1,000 of taxable valuation decreases.

The tax figures for the past three years show a steady decline in the rate paid by Ruidoso taxpayers, per $1,000 of assessed valuation:

1976: Assessed valuation $25,160,115; rate $35.673.

1977: Assessed valuation $32,638,635; rate $34.634.

1978: Assessed valuation $31,682,412; rate $50.998.

The drop in assessed valuation in 1978, over 1977, is attributed to a reduction in the corporate taxes paid by utilities, resulting from assessment adjustments by the state.

The breakdown for the three years listed above, lists the actual rate paid to the state, county, school, village of Ruidoso and the hospital levy, per $1,000 of assessed valuation, is:

Year	State	County	School	Ruidoso	Hospital
1976	$ 3.931	7.550	18.147	22.620	.750
1977	$ 4.152	6.000	17.199	26.533	.750
1978	4.104	7.518	17.884	25.017	.750

All figures were obtained from the Local Government Division of the Department of Finance and Administration, Santa Fe.

Village officials are basing their opinion on a continuing drop in the tax rate per $1,000 valuation on the sustained growth being evidenced in Ruidoso and, based on the growth record, can see no lessening of residential and commercial building.

Another plus for the village is that a number of structures were in the process of completion last year, thus were not taxed at the full rate. This year these structures will be assessed at the value attached as completed buildings.

THE TAXPAYERS will be kept advised by village officials of the financial situation on assessed valuation, the tax rate and so far as can be determined, the actual cost of the $1.5 million G.O. bond issue as soon as that figure, or as close an estimate as can be made, is obtainable.

"We're going to level with the taxpayer in this election," village manager Jim Hine said, "just as we always have in past elections and as we get facts on the cost we can verify, we'll pass them on to the public."

Officer Cantu discharged by trustees

Ruidoso police patrolman Bill Cantu was discharged from the force at 4:15 p.m., Friday afternoon by an unanimous 4-0 vote of the village trustees present at the special closed meeting called for the purpose of personnel action.

During the three hour meeting, a trustee said, "witnesses were called, testimony taken, evidence examined and discrepancies noted, before the vote was taken resulting in patrolman Cantu's discharge."

Present at the time of the vote were trustees Sherman Atwood, George White and Frank Sayner with trustee Ab Gunter preceding as mayor pro tem. Mayor Lloyd L. Davis Jr., left the meeting shortly after 3 p.m., due to an appointment.

Friday's action terminating Cantu, nullifies the decision of mayor Davis, following Cantu's firing by Police Chief Paul Lukens January 12, reinstating Cantu "because of extenuating circumstances that I believe merited a reprieve."

Ski report

Sierra Blanca Ski Area reports a depth of 102 inches of snow midway on the mountain, with nine inches of new snow over the past four days. Surface conditions are described as packed powder.

The Ruidoso Ski and Recreation Area reports a snow depth of 40 inches, with new snow being manufactured nightly.

All trails are open, all lifts operating and chains are not required to reach the new area.

Sunday's high temperature was 54 degrees, followed by a low Monday morning of 7 degrees.

For skiing condition reports, call Sierra Blanca Ski Area, 257-9001, and Ruidoso Ski Area, 336-4211.

THERE'S LITTLE QUESTION but that the owner of this car has a sense of humor as well as the infatuation to silently proclaim his opinion of the heights to which inflation has soared in this nation.

Building, zoning meeting set

A special meeting, to discuss upgrading the quality of building in Ruidoso, will be held March 21 at 7:30 p.m., in the multi-purpose room of the Ruidoso Public Library.

At the meeting building inspector John Emde and zoning officer Emory Hatcher will outline procedures for future construction.

Attendance at this session is being requested by letters to contractors, carpenters, suppliers and others involved in construction. Also attending, in connection with problems of unauthorized cutting of streets, will be water superintendent Jim Goodman, sewer superintendent Blair Halladay and street superintendent Jack LaMay.

"We'll hold open discussion on the problems of contractors," Hatcher said, "and we really want their opinions. We also want to hear from the carpenters and suppliers of materials and want everyone to put their cards on the table."

— Where sewer is not available, to comply with environmental specifications, building lots must be at least 11,000 square feet for the installation of a septic tank.

— No metal buildings will be permitted, except where zoned for airport.

Emde noted that the ordinance restricting private builders to one residence a year for resale will hereafter be strictly enforced. This means only one such home may be built within a 12 month period.

Emde and Hatcher will explain the file system adopted to upgrade the quality of building in the village and outline the manner in which the building inspector and zoning officer will operate.

Hatcher said his presentation will include the following zoning points:

— Building not less than ten feet from the sides of property lines and 20 feet from frontage.

— Building lots must be at least 10,000 square feet.

Chamber sets insurance meeting

A special meeting to consider forming a Blue Cross and Blue Shield (BC) group to provide insurance to members of the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce is to be held Thursday at 8 p.m., in the multi-purpose room of the Ruidoso Public Library.

BC representatives Kenneth Tiker and Mary City of Roswell, Chamber executive secretary Ed Jungbluth said Friday, "will explain in detail the policy and how the benefits work."

"There is no time factor involved in Thursday's meeting and after the initial presentation Tiker and City will answer questions pertaining to the coverage offered under the proposed plan to serve Chamber members."

Eligibility is restricted to Chamber members and the businesses or professions represented. Coverage will also be extended to all employees of Chamber members.

"Our membership can take a look at the package deal," Jungbluth said, "and, after considering the benefits provided and the cost, can take the BC coverage if they desire."

Airport location decision delayed

Action on the protest filed by the Sierra Blanca Airport Commission (SBAC) with the Department of the Interior (DI), on the refusal of the Bureau of Land Management (BLM) to accept the proposed site of the Sierra Blanca Regional Airport on Fort Stanton mesa, is being delayed pending DI investigation.

The BLM's land use decision, refusing use of public lands on the mesa for the airport, was handed down October 26, 1978.

At Thursday's SBAC meeting, chairman Richard Hall read a letter from DI secretary Cecil D. Andrus, stating in part:

"The (BLM) decision allowed until December 26, 1978 for the filing of comments; however, the Sierra Blanca Airport Commission requested and was granted until January 12, 1979 for the filing of information in support of its protest. During the allowed protest period, we have received numerous comments, both in support of and against the decision as issued. From the information received, there appears to be substantial controversy on the action.

"The next step in the process is a complete analysis of the proposal, decision, background information, and public comments with the subsequent issuance of the final decision of the Department of the Interior. The information received to date is varied and indicates a thorough review may take considerable time; however, it will be conducted as expeditiously as possible. A stay, as requested in your letter, is not necessary as issuance of the final decision will be made in the Department. Until the final decision is made the BLM State Director's decision is suspended."

Hall advised the commission that the Land and Water Resources Division (LWRD) of DI is making the evaluation for DI Secretary Andrus.

Hall was authorized to urge an on site examination by LWRD representatives, to aid in determining the impact the airport would have on the area.

"We feel that it is essential that a responsible person from LWRD inspect the airport site," Hall said, "and every effort will be expended to bring that person here."

February tops $1.5 million in building permits

Ruidoso's village zoning officer Emory Hatcher said Thursday that building permits issued in February indicated a "record month" in estimated costs of construction.

During the month, permits were authorized for 19 single family dwellings (SFD) at a projected cost of $726,520, one duplex at $88,000 and 34 multi-family dwellings (MFD) at $741,120.

Grand total for the month was $1,556,340. With so many permits being issued "in the dead of winter," Hatcher said he was looking forward to an excellent year for the village in new construction and growth.

Coffee Cart Wednesday

The Wednesday Coffee Cart, sponsored by the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce, will be from 9 to 10:30 a.m., at The Galleria on Sudderth.

The Coffee Carts, open to the public, are attended by Chamber directors and officials so that anyone can discuss any matters pertaining to Chamber activities with them.

"The more input we can get from the public at these Coffee Carts," executive secretary Ed Jungbluth said, "the better our Chamber of Commerce can serve the community."

Vandals wreak havoc at school

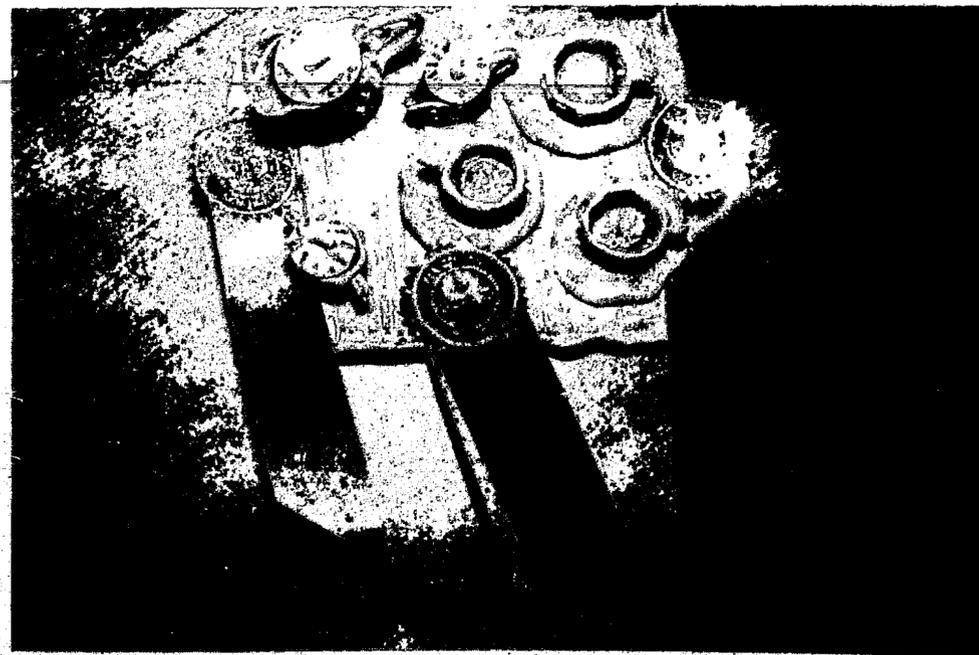

One or more incidents of weekend vandalism at Ruidoso High School resulted in more than $1,000 in damage to the buildings.

Principal Tom Hansen reported Monday morning that vandals were broken out of the art room, band hall and lobby of the East Wing near the counselors' offices.

In addition, two doors were totally destroyed and obscenities painted on the gym walls. Officials are unsure if two separate incidents Saturday night resulted in the damage.

Hansen said he had one report that witnesses had called the police about 11 p.m., regarding the breaking of windows. However, he said at the time the painting was done at the gym, the vandals also pulled the master electrical switch, stopping the gym clock at about 12:30 a.m.

Hansen appealed to the public for any information anyone might have about the incidents. A $100 "crimestoppers" reward is being offered by the school officials. Investigation is continuing by the Criminal Investigation Division of the Ruidoso Police Department.

Education Service Club display at Council seeking C-C affiliation

An educational display will be held Thursday from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m., at the Mescalero Community Center in conjunction with National Nutrition Week. The display will be composed of several booths, including one dealing with traditional Indian foods. Another booth will be operated by members of local churches in a cooperative effort. Films will also be shown.

Theme for the display is "B in fine feather with Nutri-bird," a slogan chosen from suggestions from Mescalero school children. The schools are also participating in the display. Children in the Headstart program will present a show at 1 p.m., and other school students will give a brief program beginning about 1:30.

Helen Wallace of the Food and Drug Administration in Dallas will also be present. No admission will be charged; however, a salad luncheon and orange juice will be on sale.

Mayor sets Your Save Vision Week

The week of March 4-10 has been proclaimed nationally as Save Your Vision Week, sponsored by the American Optometric Association and, in New Mexico, by the state's optometrists.

In part, a proclamation issued Friday by Mayor Lloyd L. Davis Jr., states:

"To increase awareness of the importance of good vision and of how to protect it, I, Lloyd L. Davis Jr., as mayor of Ruidoso join with the President of the United States in designating the week of March 4-10, 1979 as Save Your Vision Week."

Ruidoso's Service Club Council voted Thursday to affiliate with the Chamber of Commerce as a standing committee. Those present agreed the move would benefit both organizations, by strengthening the Chamber through added membership and relieving the Council of some administrative chores.

The Council will continue to elect its own leaders and one of the vice-presidents of the Chamber's board of directors will serve as liaison between the groups.

A representative of the Service Club Council will go before that board March 21 to make a presentation for acceptance of the new status.

May 5 was set as the tentative date for the Council's annual spring cleanup drive. With the new Chamber affiliation, members agreed that some of the cleanup efforts such as trash and debris pickup, could be coordinated through the Chamber.

One of the most important projects during the clean up drive will be the raking and collection of pine needles, which can be a major fire hazard during the drier months, Betty Cuddy said.

Sally Avery, of the Garden Club, reported that organization had taken on Fort Stanton as a project. She and a group of others plan to continue visiting the students on a weekly basis, but she added that new volunteers and donated materials would be appreciated.

Especially in demand are purses, mail-order catalogs, magazines, greeting cards and recreational equipment such as balls, simple games and so on, she said.

Some club members are planning to "adopt" a student, which would entail sending letters and cards throughout the year, and possibly birthday gifts and similar remembrances.

Cuddy briefly reported on the Altrusa Club's latest project. Members are planning to write to the state Highway Department and to elected officials asking that the Alto Hill section of Highway 37 be improved. They hope to obtain accident statistics to back up their plea.

A discussion of the condition of the ski area road also took place. Ed Jungbluth of the Chamber of Commerce said he was in contact with the highway department about the deterioration of the road and expected to hear a reply in the near future on the department's plans.

Nominations for officers of the council were tabled, and a planned program on fire control was cancelled. Members briefly discussed the election of chairmen, so that all responsibilities would not fall on a single person.

The next meeting of the council will be held at 12 noon April 5 at K-Bob's steakhouse.

Community Center starting classes

The Lincoln County Community Center, which was conceived and created just two months ago, has progressed beyond the organizational stage to the point of scheduling free classes and other activities.

The group of organizers, which has been holding weekly meetings in Capitán because of its central location in the county, spent the weekend surveying members of the community to determine what kinds of activities and interests they should pursue.

Wednesday, beginning at 8:30 p.m., in Capitán High School the center will host a potluck dinner and film presentation to help inform the public about the plans of the center and to answer questions and receive community input.

Those attending are asked to bring a covered dish food item, plates, cups and utensils for their own use.

The basic goal of the center, according to the group's first newsletter, is to "encourage citizen involvement in community life." The letter also states four major areas upon which the center will focus: educational, recreational, social and cultural activities.

The first planned "course" is scheduled to begin Sunday, March 11. The "Historical Roundtable" will be a storytelling session by a group of older county residents about their lives and memories of the county.

The sessions will begin at 2 p.m., that Sunday and continue for several consecutive weeks, at the Capitán High School.

Also scheduled is a tax preparation course, which will be taught by Jack Cisco.

That course will be divided into two two-hour sessions, 7 to 9 p.m., on March 13 and 20, in the Capitán High School cafeteria.

A third course on first aid will be offered in three-hour sessions, 7 to 10 p.m., March 27, April 3 and April 17, at the same location in Capitán. Persons desiring to take the first aid course are advised to wear jeans or bring a blanket, since participants will be "getting on the floor" for part of the training. That course will be taught by a representative of the American Red Cross.

The group is also looking for people willing to teach courses. Teaching certification is not necessary, according to the newsletter, which states in part: "The ultimate program depends on the needs and wishes of the community, the talents and skills available to be shared and the interest shown."

"The idea is a sharing and exchange of knowledge and skills within Lincoln County. That is why the classes can be offered at no charge."

Fund-raising activities are currently underway, with collection of 300-aluminum cans for recycling as a first project. Donations are also being solicited. At present, the center is operating with a total of $50 in the treasury, a donation from Joseph Donahoe of Capitán.

All county residents are urged to attend the Wednesday dinner and meeting. Regardless of length of residency, all persons living in Lincoln County have an equal voice and voting privileges in the Community Center.

Health group sets nomination of officers

The nominating committee of the Lincoln County Mental Health Association will meet tonight at the Counseling Center in Four Seasons Mall to make a final decision on nominees for the center's board of directors.

The election of the board will be held March 12 at a meeting of the Association at the Fair Building in Capitán. That meeting is scheduled for 7:30 p.m.

 MARCH WINDS aren't just a fable... and the inclement or changeable weather that is so often a part of this season can be hard on things like carpets, when children and adults are making tracks from one end of the house to the other.
 It's nice to know your new carpet can be so carefree... if it's one of the handsome new acrylics, for instance, in a scrolled pattern or a happy tweed mixture... or perhaps a cropped shag in a tight, two-tone twisted nylon pile that is both hard-wearing and beautifully soil-resistant.
 Even a thick, deep and luxurious polyester shag in a bold solid color or a lively multi-color blend is a lot easier to clean and care for than its luxury look might suggest.
 The miracle, of course, is in the fibers... these great man-made fibers with natural soil-resistant characteristics and a ready response to cleaning. The selection is phenomenal, in fibers, textures and colors.
 March right into our showroom and see what's happening with carpets. Our selection is famous... and so is that "something extra" we offer in service and carpet expertise that's yours for the asking. Shop-at-home service, too!

Old shades save energy

One pane of glass may be standing between you and the fulfillment of your New Year's resolution to cut your energy bill. In fact, each year homeowners let billions of dollars literally fly out the window, Suzi Holder, Extension housing specialist at New Mexico State University, said.

Windows probably account for your home's biggest winter heat loss, next to poorly insulated ceilings, roofs or attics. However, scientific data show that by simply lowering your window shades on cold evenings, you can stop heat loss from your home by as much as 31 percent.

Based on these findings, the common window shade is emerging as an uncommon and unique performer in the home energy conservation story. They are inexpensive and practically maintenance free. In addition, they offer a long service life and require almost no human effort to play their important energy-saving role, Holder said.

Glass windows are an excellent conductor of heat and poor insulator. That is why indoor heat will pass through glass, and why heat intended for the inside of your home is lost to the great outdoors, Holder said.

Therefore, keep your shades drawn in the evening, at night, and throughout the early morning when the air outside is most cold. Much of the heat that normally seeps through your windows will "bounce" off the shades and stay inside the house.

During the sunny, daylight hours, let your shades up. You'll be letting in some of the sunlight which will help to warm the interior and cut your use of heating fuel, Holder said.

Researchers estimate that these simple shade-pulling exercises can save homeowners in moderate climates up to eight cents per heating dollar. This fuel saver tip could soon be even more valuable if fuel costs double as predicted during the next five years.

Simulating midwest winter conditions with typical 20 degree to 50 degree F temperatures, researchers compared the heat-blocking efficiency of window shades to that of venetian blinds and draperies. Shades prevented up to 31 percent of normal heat loss through windows. While blinds and draperies saved only six to seven percent of normal heat loss. Drapes and blinds were only about one-fourth as effective as window shades.

Window shades help in the summer as well. They effectively shut out 63 percent of the hot rays of the sun and 25 percent of the hot outside air. This lowers the buildup of indoor heat which, in turn, reduces the amount of energy needed for air conditioning. Researchers peg potential cost savings around 21 cents per cooling dollar.

So let window shades help you with your energy saving resolutions. It's one easy, inexpensive step that could make a big difference.

Gas pricing controlled by regulations

The Dallas, Texas Department of Energy (DoE) office has released the formula used in the pricing of gasoline at the retail level.

Section 212.93 of the DoE Price Regulations sets the maximum selling prices for gasoline by retailers. Prices are controlled by limiting the current per-gallon markup of each retailer to his historical markup which existed on May 15, 1973.

Maximum prices are based on the actual selling prices charged for each grade of gasoline sold on May 15, 1973, plus any increases in the cost of the product incurred since that time. Additionally, a retailer may add any non-product cost increases incurred since May 15, 1973, up to a maximum of 3 cents per gallon.

Recently DoE has allowed retailers to add to their selling prices, the cost of vapor recovery equipment installed and any increases in service station rent.

A retailer may not exceed the maximum prices as posted, however he may sell below the maximums. Regulations require the maximum selling price and octane rating be posted on each pump.

Jogging in dark clothes dangerous

Jogging, walking and cycling in the early morning or late evening may be a great way of getting exercise. But traffic hazards you may face can endanger your life, Susan Wright, Extension clothing specialist at New Mexico State University, said.

Because half of all pedestrian fatalities occur after dark, it is important to make yourself visible if you jog, walk or cycle in the dark. Even in the daytime, it's wise to wear white, light or brightly colored clothing so drivers will be aware of you as they approach and pass.

White clothing is highly visible, Miss Wright said. Studies show pedestrians can be seen for about 180 feet at night when dressed in white. Yellow clothing is visible up to 120 feet. Darker clothing makes it extremely difficult for a driver to see you in time to stop safely.

An average car traveling 30 miles per hour under normal road conditions will travel about 72 feet after the brakes are applied before it stops. At 35 miles per hour it will take an average car about 185 feet to stop.

For added protection, joggers should consider attaching retro-reflective materials to your exercise clothing. This material is designed to reflect approaching headlights. The tape can be purchased at variety, drug, discount and fabric stores in both pressure sensitive and sew-on types. Some of these materials are washable; others must be dry cleaned. Read the label to determine the care required.

If you do not have regular exercise clothing, make elastic arm and leg bands and attach the reflective material. These can be slipped on an arm and leg as you leave home to exercise.

Finally, always jog and walk facing traffic. Cycle with the flow of traffic, Miss Wright said. Use crosswalks, jogging or walking paths, and bicycle lanes when available and obey all traffic rules and signs. Pedestrians and cyclists are as responsible to the law as motorists.

USDA makes proposals for roadless area usage

Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland has proposed wilderness designation for more than 15 million acres of National Forest roadless areas and proposed another 36 million acres of roadless areas for multiple uses other than wilderness.

Congressional designation of the 15 million acres as wilderness would almost double the size of the department's portion of the National Wilderness Preservation System.

Bergland also proposed that more planning be done on 11 million acres of the total of 62 million undeveloped acres inventoried by the Forest Service in 1977.

Included in the proposed new wilderness were 14 in Arizona totaling 400,312, and 17 in New Mexico with 497,265 acres. In Arizona 23 areas were tagged for further planning and 61 for non-wilderness multiple uses. The same categories for New Mexico included 15 areas for further planning and 69 for non-wilderness uses.

The proposals are the result of an 18 month Roadless Area Review and Evaluation (RARE II) which identified the roadless areas and proposed what future use should be made of them. A final environmental impact statement containing these proposals has been filed with the Environmental Protection Agency, Bergland said.

In announcing his RARE II proposals, Bergland noted that during the next 45 days he will seek the counsel of members of Congress and Governors. "After this time, I will make my legislative recommendations final and send them to President Carter. I expect that shortly afterwards the president will transmit the wilderness proposals to the 96th Congress with his recommendation that these areas be designated as wilderness," he said.

Wilderness areas must be designated by Congress. They include areas of undeveloped natural scenery where opportunities for solitude are retained. No machinery, roads or structures are allowed in wilderness areas except for certain emergency situations. The uses possible on the 36 million acres proposed to be managed for other multiple uses could range from extensive recreation use with minimal development to more intense activities such as skiing, motorized recreation, timber harvesting, intensive grazing, water development and wildlife habitat improvement.

Bergland said briefings will be held in Washington and at Forest Service field locations throughout the country to answer questions on the proposal.

RARE II was an accelerated land management planning process conducted by the department to identify roadless and undeveloped areas in the 187 million acre National Forest System and to determine the best use for as many areas as possible. The objective was to help accelerate the basic land allocation decisions and remove as much uncertainty as possible about what would be done with the roadless areas. With the aid of extensive public involvement, the process identified over 62 million acres of roadless areas.

In a draft environmental statement issued last June, the public was asked to consider a series of alternatives for allocating those areas. Comments were received from over a third of a million persons, more response than any ever received by the department on an environmental statement. A summary of the final environmental statement is being sent to those who commented on the draft statement.

Bergland said public comment was a major factor in developing the recommendations announced today.

"Most responses," he said, "focused on preferences for allocating individual areas. However, we also received a significant number of comments on what approaches we should be allocating the total roadless area inventory and what decision criteria we should use in developing our proposals.

"We feel we have been responsive to the concerns expressed by the public and we are especially pleased that this proposal settles the wilderness and non-wilderness question for the great majority of these lands. At the same time, we feel the lands proposed for further planning have been found to require more detailed consideration than was possible in the RARE II process.

"These areas earmarked for further planning do have wilderness values and we will continue to gather additional data on these areas through the Forest Service planning process, which includes substantial public involvement. Pending completion of forest, resource or project planning for these areas, these lands will remain undeveloped."

Bergland said no actions will be taken on the 36 million acres that are earmarked for multiple uses other than wilderness until 90 days after Congress is in session. After that, these areas will be managed for multiple resource uses other than wilderness if such uses are provided for in existing land, resource or special project plans. These plans are revised and updated through the regular sequence of planning, and a full range of options except for wilderness will be considered for the use of these lands.

"Of great importance," Bergland said, "are the 15 million acres recommended for designation as wilderness by congressional action. These areas were singled out through the RARE II analysis as lands which will add depth and diversity to our National Wilderness Preservation System, and are areas of particularly strong public concern. They have been tested against our RARE II criteria and found to have important wilderness values which, in each case, exceed their potential for other forms of non-wilderness use."

Fuel problems topic at Governor's Conference

A contingency plan for the possible fuel shortage will be one of the main topics of the upcoming Governor's Conference on Travel and Tourism. To be held April 18-19 in Albuquerque, this year's conference will also feature Governor King's first major policy speech on the travel industry.

A steering committee of travel industry representatives from around the state met with Travel Division Director David Santillanes Jr., February 15 to plan the agenda. Timed to coincide with Rediscovers New Mexico, a travel fair for New Mexicans at Winrock Center, the conference theme is "Travel Forecast."

In addition to the fuel shortage question, the meeting will focus on tour packaging, how to promote your package with tour operators and effective marketing of state attractions. A new feature of this year's conference will be travel awards to deserving individuals in the tourism industry. The winners will be chosen in a state wide ballot.

An announcement of the conference and registration materials will be sent out by the Travel Division March 1. Any interested New Mexicans are encouraged to attend.

Members of the steering committee are: Louis Whitlock, vice president of Baker Industries in Carlsbad; Carol Sue Jones of AAA World Wide Travel Agency in Albuquerque; Daniel Salas, Hispano Chamber of Commerce in Albuquerque; Connie Catsis with KIVA-TV in Farmington; Jim Trujillo with the Indian Pueblo Cultural Center in Albuquerque; Rose Marie Eiherton of Gallup; Buddy Ritter of the Holiday Inn de Las Cruces; Ed Delgado with Delgado Advertising and Public Relations Agency in Santa Fe; Ron Randel, president of Ski New Mexico Inc., from Albuquerque; Nolan Comora, director of the International Space Hall of Fame, Mary Kay Cline, manager of the Albuquerque Convention and Visitor's Bureau and Ray Sena of the Santa Fe Transportation Company.

PUBLIC NOTICE
The Federal Disaster Assistance Administration (FDAA) hereby gives notice to the public of its intent to reimburse political subdivisions of the State within Catron, Grant, Hidalgo, Lincoln and Sierra Counties, New Mexico for eligible cost of restoring the following described damaged facilities to their pre-disaster condition. The facilities involved are within the 100-year floodplain and will both span the floodway and may be, in part, structurally located within the floodway. The facilities involved are known as community irrigation ditches or acequias organized and operating in accordance with Sections 73-2-1 through 73-2-44 and 73-2-1 through 73-2-11, N.M.S.A. 1978, and so certified to by the Attorney General of New Mexico. These Community Irrigation Ditches are located in the Gila River, San Francisco River, Mimbres River, Rio Bonito, Rio Hondo and Las Animas Creeks.

In accordance with the President's Executive Order 11788 on Floodplain Management and Sec. 406 PL93-284, FDAA may require that the restoration of this facility incorporate certain measures designed to mitigate the effects of future flooding.

FDAA's proposed participation in this project, although located in the floodway, is based on the following rationale:

- (1) The irrigation systems are part of an existing network and cannot be economically relocated.
- (2) No known alternative sites are available.
- (3) There is no other known practicable way of restoring the previously existing irrigation function.
- (4) No long range adverse effect to the physical environment is known to exist.
- (5) Failure to restore the preexisting irrigation function would cause serious economic losses to the areas served by the systems and could have serious economic impact upon the entire trade area.

The above stated rationale for proposed participation in the restoration of the Community Irrigation Ditches, while not all inclusive, provides the basis for consideration of funding from FDAA.

Interested parties are requested to submit their views, in writing, to the Regional Director, Federal Disaster Assistance Administration, Disaster Field Office, 118 So. Main Street, Las Cruces, New Mexico 88001 by 5:00 p.m., March 12, 1979.

Timely comments will be evaluated and considered before a final decision is made.

The above stated rationale for proposed participation in the restoration of the aforementioned structures, while not all inclusive, provides the basis for consideration of funding from FDAA.

The Dreamer
BY DANNIE STORM

February Welcomes March with A Bright And Sunny Smile

This February has been full of snow, sleet, cold, and every kind of weather — and now here as I write to you on its last day, the glorious little birthday month has come smiling through with a bright and sunny day, welcoming in March, which brings us the first days of Spring.

Today is the birthday of our brother Joe, (Joseph Duffield Storm); and also, this year, Ash Wednesday falls on the twenty-eighth of February.

The day opened with the temperature down to twenty with a cold north wind blowing a wintry blast over the land. However, the sun kept smiling down through the morning, and by high noon, the north wind had slowed down and become still. The cold faded from the air under the rays of the golden sun. And now in the early afternoon, the day is warm and mellow with just a gentle breeze from the west.

Now the blue sky, the purple hills, and the golden fields all join in the world's smiling mood and there is a spirit of happiness breathing through the sunny air.

This is a specially sacred day, the beginning of Lent, the forty days before Easter; and it brings a special benediction to my soul that Ash Wednesday falls on the birthday of our brother, Joe.

At this season we remember the message of Our Lord to... "Lay up for ourselves treasures in Heaven." Joe, since early childhood, has always been of a devout and spiritual nature. I remember how he carried the cross and sang in the choir in the church. And I can hear his voice now, singing the words, "Lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven," while our Mother played the music on the little church organ that went with us twice to Alaska, to Mexico, and is here in the hour today. All the family joined in singing hymns to this Heavenly music played to our Mother.

Today, Joe and all our loved ones are fondly close to me, and the treasures laid up in Heaven are an ever-increasing eternal blessing.

Our treasures in Heaven, as we all know are the good deeds we have done for God and for each other — all our kindness and our compassionate thoughts, and deed and our prayers for those in need of help; these are our Heavenly treasures. We are reminded of Shakespeare's words on the quality of mercy that "... It blisseth him that gives and him that takes."

On this last day of wonderful February thank you for so many treasures you have brought into my life to be cherished forever; and I pray to God that I may be inspired and guided into being a blessing to your life. Let us remember that our acts and thoughts of kindness are an ever increasing and eternal blessing to us all and rejoice in thankfulness to God.

We Wish Ralph And Rosalie Dunlap All Good Fortune

There is a certain individual that holds a warm spot in the hearts of the American People all throughout history; and that our county agent. In a thousand and one ways, he is an ever-ready friend in need and the creatures under our care.

I hardly realized that Ralph Dunlap has been our county agent for twenty-six years. It seems only yesterday that he took over this position in which he has been most valuable helper and friend.

Perhaps we do not realize he has been with us so many years is that he has aged a bit. He looks just the same as I always has, his friendly smile as bright as ever. The same for his charming wife Rosalie; the same sunshine and helpful lady as always.

I know that this well-beloved couple will be a blessing to the folks over in Tularia as they have been to us in Lincoln County. We wish them all success and God blessings, and we'll be glad to see them when they come back home.

Energy Saving Techniques

A series of articles by the New Mexico Energy Conservation and Management Division of the Energy Extension Service

"THE TOTAL HOME CONCEPT"

The State Energy and Minerals Department has developed the Total Home Concept — a way you can save energy. It presents a guideline for looking at each sub-system which interacts in ways that make up the total pattern of energy use in your home.

The Total Home Concept also points out that smart energy conservation is careful management of a number of activities, not just a single action such as insulating. It emphasizes that a family's everyday living habits influence energy use more than any other single factor.

A home's natural system includes the terrain surrounding the house. This involves the basic house arrangement in relation to the sun and prevailing winds. For instance, an evergreen tree placed at the northwest corner of the house can be an energy saver by deflecting winter winds. If it is placed on the south side, it may contribute to higher heating bills.

The physical system includes the building envelope, which is the walls, ceiling and floors, the heating and cooling systems and the hot water. The emphasis should be placed on making the envelope as weathertight as possible to stop leaks. This is among the most cost-effective measures you can take in energy conservation. You should try to stop leaks around window and door frames, cracks the walls and around electrical outlets and hose bibs.

A family's energy use habits determine how well the human system is working. energy conservation. A significant improvement can be made if the family remembers turn off lights, reduce the use of hot water and dress appropriately. You should control the lighting and temperature manipulating drapes, shades, window and thermostats to get the most benefit from natural systems.

The Total Home Concept has been made into a twenty-eight page booklet called "New Mexico Homeowner's Guide." It is available at no cost. It contains technical information and gives suggestions on low-cost and no-cost energy saving tips. Call the Energy and Minerals Department at the toll-free number 1-432-6782.

"GREENHOUSES"

Historically, most forms of energy have been inexpensive for dairymen. Recent price increases have changed this and have fostered a need for energy-efficient management and technology. Some dairymen feel that they are already as efficient as possible. But, opportunities exist in every operation to save energy and money.

It is possible to save energy in water heating and still maintain high sanitation standards. Some dairymen are using solar heat to preheat water before it enters the water heater. Others are utilizing waste heat from bulk tank compressors and vacuum pump motors for preheating water.

Some dairymen use two water heaters; one for udder washing and general use and another for sanitizing milking utensils and pipelines. This saves energy by reducing heat loss in the distribution lines and through the sides of the heaters.

Drain and flush the water heater every six months. It accumulates solids that prevent efficient transfer of heat to water. These deposits can be removed by flushing the sediment out of the heater. To do this, open the drain valve and drain two to five gallons of water from the tank until the water runs clear.

Milk cooling may require ten to fifteen percent of the energy used in a typical dairy operation. It deserves close attention since it uses the most expensive form of energy — electricity. Two kinds of refrigeration equipment are used by dairymen to cool milk. They are called ice builders and direct expansion coolers. Direct expansion coolers generally require a large compressor, but use less energy. Ice builders need more energy because extra motor is needed to circulate the water. Also, a compressor must operate intermittently to keep the ice bank built. The disadvantages of the ice builder may be offset when lower rates for electric are offered. It may actually be more economical if used during off-peak demand periods such as early morning and evening.

SANTA FE — Dealing with arts and artists often leaves the ordinary layman in a state of headscratching befuddlement. It has even been known to lead to a sharp onset of pain in the head.

Some of us expect these people to be gentle missionaries of beauty in an un-beautiful world. Why, when contention arises, do they turn into such intense, shrill, gut-fighting viragoes?

Case in point: the current tempest at the Museum of New Mexico, complete with surreptitious and anonymous packet of accusations against the regents of that institution, with all the emotional charge of the barons facing down King John to extract the Magna Carta.

Reading it, a simple soul might well ask, "Why do these people care so much?"

Well, for one thing, they often feel lonely. Here they are, devoted to something of great import, and the unaring majority shrugs its shoulders and, when they have a fight, walks quietly away.

(You'd never guess that to be true from the letters column of the New Mexican, through which artistic battles swirl like gunsmoke; but Santa Fe is untypical of the rest of the world.)

If artists and museum staffers sometimes feel beleaguered by the Philistines, it is because they sometimes are. No test in esthetics is required for election to the Legislature, yet legislators' hands are on the faucet which controls the flow of funds. Regents, who control their destiny, have on occasion been named more for social élan than for their firm grasp on museum philosophy.

So those who complain, like voices crying in the wilderness, may well have reason.

What matters more, though, is what good it does or doesn't do to complain. The plains around Santa Fe are scattered with the bones of museum directors (seven — count 'em — seven) who resigned under fire in the last two decades. (One piteous passage in such a letter of resignation refers to one who "left only to have a heart attack shortly thereafter, and another (who) was warned by his physician to leave or suffer a stroke or heart attack.") It leads you to suspect that in this war the Philistines may be winning.

If one has suggestions in such a situation, one makes on tiptoe and all a-tremble. Caught in the crossfire is a no-good place to be. Hesitantly, then, we submit these:

— COOL IT. From both sides, arguments as dispassionate as a legal brief would beat fishwifery.

— Clear the air. As in the last administration's Great Highway War, a governor can contribute more as a peacemaker than as a general. Resignations from everyone whose passions outrun logic may be required.

— Let the Lord have the vengeance. The museum is too important to New Mexicans — and most of them know that — to punish it in the process of getting even.

— Those don't help much, do they? Common sense never wrote a successful treaty, and what we have here is a minor war.

— And there is one more memorable fact: The arts have never been peaceful, as any art historian can prove. There may even be arguments for why they never should be.

— But this battle is over power, not art. That is what makes it less than editing and why it should be brought to an end.

Letters to the Editor

Dear editor:

Well now this month I was charged for fifteen thousand gallons of water because they read the meter. The previous two months I was charged three dollars each month because they did not read the meter.

By the use of the telephone I learned the going rate for water is three dollars for the first thousand gallons and one dollar per thousand thereafter.

So then I asked why my three dollars had not paid for a thousand gallons of water the preceding months and I was told the three dollars was a "stand by charge", but I was not standing by I was using water.

But that is the way we do it. We have the "stand by charge".

Now why couldn't my three dollars have paid for a thousand gallons of water I was using while the meter reader was "standing by"? Then I would have had two thousand gallons paid for and they would only have had to charge me for thirteen thousand gallons when they did read the meter.

Dear editor:

"Adjustment". According to Webster's 1953 edition, "a reducing to just form or order". How come the utilities "adjustment" my bills and add it on, instead of subtract?

RIGHTS FOR EVERYONE

A person convicted of perjury certainly should be subject to a fine, jail or both — but we seriously doubt the court has the prerogative of telling that person he cannot participate in the political process.

This is what the courts have ruled in the perjury conviction of Rio Arriba Democratic boss Emilio Naranjo. Naranjo apparently plans to appeal the conviction and it is conceivable an appeals court will reject that portion of Naranjo's sentence.

The judge did, admittedly, give Naranjo a choice. If he doesn't want to get out of politics, he can go to the state penitentiary. But as one of Naranjo's supporters points out — politics is not a crime.

Removing Naranjo as Democratic county chairman is the decision of the Democratic central committee and we are unaware of any party rules that say a convicted felon cannot serve as a county chairman. If so, several others in the state might start looking over their shoulders.

If Rio Arriba county wants Naranjo removed from its political scene it should do it through the electoral process — vote him out. We should not expect the courts to do that which we apparently lack the guts to do.

And those among us who wave the banner of civil rights, should remember the same banner represents all Americans. — Rio Grande Sun, Espanola

TAJ MAHAL FATE

More than 300 years ago the Shah Jahan erected the Taj Mahal at Agra as a mausoleum for his favorite wife. For generations this elegant white marble structure has been considered one of the most beautiful in the world. It is among India's greatest tourist attractions.

The Taj Mahal also has come to symbolize the harm done by uncontrolled technological development. Like the ancient temples on the Acropolis at Athens, it is a victim of airborne pollution.

This was first observed in the 1930s, when brown stains appeared on the gleaming marble. Little has been done to correct the situation, and by now an environmental engineer who heads a Save Taj Mahal campaign is saying the structure "will crumble down in 30 years" unless an oil refinery being built in the area is removed to a more distant site.

The refinery is the last straw, so to speak. Though it is situated 60 miles to the north, environmentalists fear that winter winds will bear corrosive sulfur dioxide fumes from its stacks to the Taj Mahal. The government, claiming that half of the refinery's $250 million cost already has been spent, balks at halting work on the project.

That is only part of the story, however. Small iron foundries, a railway yard and two thermal power stations in the vicinity have thus far been the main causes of pollution. And though a government committee has recommended that existing industry be moved away from Agra, this has not been done. The Taj Mahal stands as a corroding symbol of what can happen when governments do not insist on adequate pollution safeguards. — Alamogordo Daily News

A HOUSE: $59,400

Our society's claim to making available certain basic elements of the good life is tarnished by the enormous rise in housing costs in recent years. The family that bought a new house in 1978 paid 14 per cent more, on the average, than it would have paid in 1977. That was the greatest annual increase since 1963, when the federal government began keeping such statistics.

Average figures are somewhat deceptive, of course, since they include extremely expensive houses far beyond the reach of the usual family. Even so, it is instructive to find that, on a nationwide basis, the average sale price of a new house in 1978 was $59,400. Not so many years ago some rather lavish, well-situated houses bore that kind of a price tag.

In spite of all this, house sales are brisk. But for many a young couple with children, the dream of a place of their own must be deferred. — Alamogordo Daily News editorial

Ruidoso's voters, within the next 60 days, will be given the opportunity to approve a $1.5 million general obligation bond issue, to insure the completion of the Regional Wastewater System.

The new system includes a treatment plant near Biscuit Hill, a few miles east of Ruidoso Downs. The new plant is designed to treat four million gallons of raw sewage daily, with methods to materially increase its capacity incorporated in the plans and specifications.

The $1.5 million will pay for Ruidoso's share of the treatment plant, new trunk lines throughout the present system and trunk line connections to subdivisions and areas of the village presently without sewer service. Ultimately this means sewer service can be offered throughout the village.

Some $800,000 of the bond issue will be spent for land to bury the trunk lines and all associated costs, including plans to enlarge the system to serve the needs of our rapidly growing community.

The present sewage treatment plant is operating at full capacity and it cannot be enlarged. Many of the existing mains are too small to handle the normal flow, much less the seasonal peak demand. The damage to existing mains during the December flood was extensive enough to require replacement. These situations alone dictate the need for a new sewer system, without taking future growth into consideration.

Due to the constant and rapid increase in assessed valuation, resulting from the continuing building boom, village officials have determined that the $1.5 million bond issue might not increase taxes above their present level.

There appears to be no alternative to passage of this bond issue; mainly because it's doubtful that environmentalists will approve the use of three-holders. — CD

NO VALID EXCUSES

The New Mexico Highway Department striping crew has taken all the fun out of driving on our main drag ... 'cause they up and painted yellow and white stripes on said road ... and they look beautiful. The only drawback apparent is that drivers can no longer indulge in the chicken game ... 'cause there are once again lanes to drive in.

ON HOME BOX OFFICE

Not being a boob tube addict ... HBO was on the air a spell 'fore I up and sat me down to watch the commercial free presentations ... and I must say that last aspect has appeal ... at least to me.

Now one or two films I viewed weren't no skin games ... though there coulda been a time or three when there was plenty of skin in evidence ... with it all kinda fitting into the plot ... which might be stretching a point ... what I meant, I guess, is that it was part of the action. The residual effect of peering at this action was that those concerned seemed to be having fun ... which might explain the acting, 'cause if n't the acting's fun ... and the action's fast ... it sorta tends to make the acting better ... which just has to be strictly a personal opinion of the actors acting out the fun.

I hear tell there's voices being raised ... about some of the HBO movies ... some even sound as though the speakers mighta been viewers ... 'causing me to wonder two things ... no one has to pony up the monthly HBO fee ... and there's two controls ... one to change channels, the other to turn the tube off and conserve energy ... it's kinda like walking into a legit book/magazine store ... operated by a friendly cooperative person, with a desire to please ... and asking what's under the counter.

Sorta reminds me of my own tastes ... take, in sandwiches ... nothing like a peanut butter sandwich ... literally oozing butter and peanut butter ... with gobs of thin sliced Bermuda onions ... with the peanut butter being a great agent to hold the sliced onions in place ... besides the onions add something to the flavor that can't be duplicated by strawberry jam ... and it ain't nearly as messy.

And ... for the uninitiated ... it sure makes for a very tasty conversation piece. All breaks down to ... if n't you haven't tried it, don't knock it ... if you try it and don't like it ... don't never try it no more.

BY THE RIVER SIDE

I sat me down by the river side the other day ... by the side of the Rio Ruidoso ... and I spent a spell listening to the gurgle of the rolling, pulsating and bubbling Nolsy Waters.

Sat down in the general vicinity of Joe Dryden's more or less secret trout holes ... where fat and sassy rainbows await ... await all kinds of goodies ... includin' even, many times, Joe's barbed offerings.

I sat as still as a field mouse trying to hypnotize a bull snake ... with baleful and glittery eyes ... but nary a trout did I espy. It's possible there were no trout for me to grab a furtive peer at ... 'cause they coulda all been washed down to Roswell ... and beyond ... in the flood.

Anyhow ... I finally bestirred myself to wander bank side for a spell ... and it gets mighty confusin' ... 'cause ... in some for instances ... the banks don't contain no water ... and, a spell away, there's the rushing Rio Ruidoso's Nolsy Waters gushing gurglingly along between what didn't use to be banks ... afore the flood, that is.

But the village dads are taking the matter to hand ... even if n't they ain't standing in mid stream handling the water ... and, by jinkies, that hunka machinery with that diggin', swingin' steel-toed grapplin' gadget that up and scoops rocks outta the creek as easily as a toddler scoops sand with his play shovel, has just got to get the debris outta the river ... and it's gonna be like mighty purty again once the river's all clean and stuff.

There'll be some challenges comin' in this cleanup ... and that'll be to take the Rio Ruidoso outta it's present channel ... and put it back where it was gurgling noisily along before the flood changed the course of things ... resultin' in the creek flowin' in front of some homes it usta be back of ... and vice versa ... which don't exactly make the river dirty.

Anyhow ... three hurrahs for the village dads ... for pitchin' in and gettin' the river clean ... and where it used to be ... and stuff ... and ... for giving the home owners concerned something to be happy about ... of which some, since the flood, ain't had very much to be so over.

BRIEF BIT: $1.5 million for part of a sewer system's a lot of moneys ... but it wouldn't sound like much if n't we wind up without any system ... CD shining through their thin, delicate petals, beginning the blossom parade all through the mountain valleys.

The Silver Lining

BY DANIEL AGNEW STORM

The Apricot blooms in February down at Tularosa, Roswell and other places at the foot of the mountain, and then leads the blossom parade up the valleys into the pines and fir and quaking aspen on high. Following the Apricot comes the plum, peach, cherry, pear, and last—the Apple.

Saint Patrick's Day

By the time this message reaches you, we will be just one day away from Saint Patrick's Day on the seventeenth; and five days away from the first day of Spring on the twenty-first.

Today, the twelfth, the sky is purest blue, and the west wind is just barely moving; there is a breathing, humming happiness all through the mountain air, as the world feels its pulse quickening to the song of Spring.

Down at the historic little community of San Patricio, all through the vale, you can see the beginning of the celebration of Saint Patrick's Day. The new green of the weeping willow shines forth here and there, set off by the pink Apricot blooms, and the faint touches of golden green on the cottonwood leaf buds just beginning to open. The perfume of the blossoms mingles with the incense of the opening leaf buds to bring you a breath of Saint Patrick's Day and Spring.

Let us all remember the good Saint of Ireland on the seventeenth by wearing something green; and sending up a prayer of thanks for the Irish and the happiness they have always brought into the world.

All the world is Irish on Saint Patrick's Day, and the Good Saint of the Emerald Isle will send his blessing throughout all the earth; and hearts everywhere will ring to the joyful music of Green Ireland, the land of the shamrock and the harp.

Brother Miller

Celebrates Birthday

Elger E. Miller, lifelong native of Lincoln County, will celebrate his birthday mid way between Saint Patrick's day and the first day of spring — on the Nineteenth of March.

Affectionately known as "Brother" by his countless friends, he was born where the Elk's Club now stands, March 19, 1903. Brother and his wife Maudie were two of the first people we met when we first came to the valley in 1925, and we have been good friends ever since. As I remember Brother, memories come back of the days of Jim and Grace Jackson and the times when we raised cabbage in the Ruidoso Valley. Brother was hardly changed with the years, still the same friendly, helpful fellow, always with a happy smile.

Brother and his wife had the post office in Hollywood from 1933 till 1946. The building which was their home and also the post office still stands just west of C. and L. Lumber company. The giant blue spruce trees were just two feet tall when they moved into the house. They lived here till 1958.

Brother has been a rancher all his life, and served as mayor of Ruidoso Downs. We congratulate our good friend, Brother, on the happy time of year in which he celebrates his birthday; and we wish him many happy returns of the day. And we wish Brother and Maudie all happiness and God's blessings.

GOLD OF THE AMAZON WOMEN

The action film is about adventurers in search of a treasure in gold who discover a primitive society of statuesque women hidden deep in the South American jungle.

Svenson stars as Tom Jensen, a well-traveled safari guide and adventurer who has returned to New York following a near-tragic outing. At an explorer's club, a series of mysterious events culminate in his receiving a map to the El Dorado treasure in South America.

Accompanied by Luis Rodriguez, Jensen sets out for the city along the Amazon River where he will begin his trek inland. When the two discover poisonous spiders in their hotel rooms, they begin to suspect someone is attempting to sabotage their expedition.

Profile

Victoria Principal

Victoria Principal, who stars as Pamela Barnes Ewing in CBS-TV's 'Dallas,' hopped around much of the world before she was 18. She was born in Fukuoka, Japan, to Sergeant Major Victor Principal, of the Army Air Force, and the former Ree Veal. Three months later, she and her family were whisked to Albany, Ga., in the first of a number of transfers. At age five, she was enrolled in a London public school. In the years that followed, the Principals lived in Puerto Rico, on the Warner Robbins Air Force Base in Georgia, and Massachusetts and Florida.

Miss Principal began her dramatic studies with Max Croft and Al Sacks, a former Actors Studio member, in Miami, Fla. She entered Miami Dade Junior College with the notion of becoming a chiropractor ("in the event I wouldn't make it as an actress"), but was forced to drop out when she was injured in an automobile accident. After she recovered, she travelled to New York for her first serious try at an acting career, earning her living as a model. Eventually, she decided to try her luck in Hollywood.

STUDS LONIGAN
 'Studs Lonigan,' James T. Farrell's once-banned classic American trilogy of novels about the boyhood-to-manhood struggles of an Irish-American lad in rough-edged Chicago following World War I (the story was considered too racy for the era in which it was published), will be telecast on NBC-TV as a three-part miniseries beginning Wednesday, March 7, and continuing Wednesdays, March 14 and 21.
 The characters are raw reflections of their ethnic backgrounds and the triumphant, yet tragic, times in which they lived. The people—proud, bigoted, often profane—are a passionate and realistic echo of urban America as it used to be. The trilogy has been generally acknowledged as a superb portrayal of the times.
 Harry Hamlin (pictured) stars in the agonizing title role of the youth who spends his life in the melting pot that was Chicago following World War I and through the Great Depression. Charles Durning and Colleen Dewhurst star as Lonigan's parents.

DEATH WISH

Outraged when his family is attacked by hoodlums, a law-abiding citizen turns into a one-man vigilante squad in "Death Wish," starring Charles Bronson (pictured) to be rebroadcast on "The CBS Saturday Night Movies," March 10.

Three hoodlums attack the wife (Hope Lange) and daughter (Kathleen Tolan) of a New York architect (Bronson) in his home. His wife dies and his daughter is confined to a mental hospital as a result of this outrage.

The architect, a pacifist and a believer in working through the system, is moved in his grief and anger to launch a one-man war on street crime. Using himself as a decoy, he lures the city's muggers into attack and then shoots them.

A detective (Vincent Gardenia) is hot on the vigilante's trail, but the authorities have mixed feelings about their quarry. His activities have cut down the crime rate, propelling him into a status as a popular hero, but he is also breaking the law himself.
