

Pathologist now serving Ruidoso

Drew Smith, M.D., has assumed his duties as pathologist at Ruidoso Hondo Valley Hospital and will also serve as a consultant for the Artesia hospital laboratory.

"Over a period of time," he said, "I will sort out procedures and square away the documents at both hospitals, so they will meet the specifications of all regulatory bodies."

Although Smith realizes there are fiscal limitations, he said he hopes to eventually develop a system to offer better and faster service to doctors in the two areas.

Smith has opened an independent laboratory in Gateway Shopping Center. "I will use these facilities," he said, "to speed up laboratory work on routine cases."

He chose Ruidoso, he said, "because I thought I'd enjoy living in a small community. I worked alone for about a year in the service and enjoyed it. Although there will be problems, I am looking forward to the opportunity of being a pathologist here."

Smith attended Pomona College, Claremont, California and is a graduate of the University of California medical school, Los Angeles. He interned at Madigan's Army Medical Center, Tacoma, Washington where he completed a four year residency in Anatomic and Clinical Pathology.

He moved to Ruidoso March 15 with his wife, Christa and children, Michelle, 9 and Sean, 6, after completing a tour of duty with the United States Army at Fort Riley, Manhattan, Kansas.

Mule Skinners trail ride set next Sunday

The first trail ride sponsored by the Ruidoso Downs Mule Skinners will be Sunday, April 22.

Upwards of 50 riders from New Mexico and Texas, riding either mules or horses, had registered by noon Friday.

Registrations will be accepted at Cowboy's Stables, Ruidoso Downs, headquarters for the riders, until 9 a.m., April 22.

Registration forms are also available at the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce and at Mundell's Western Wear, at the Y in Ruidoso.

The riders will leave from Cowboy's Stables at 9 a.m., and proceed through the mountains to the Mesalero Apache Reservation where tribal conservation officers will act as guides through the Indian lands.

The group, after the 10 or 12 mile ride, will meet at Lucas Wells, about two miles west of Hale Lake, for a noon pit barbecue and an afternoon of contest events.

A $2 entry fee will be charged for barrel, pole and balloon races. Other attractions include matched races, horseshoes and a pending challenge polo match, on mules, pitting the Mule Skinners against a group of riders from El Paso, Texas. Polo players will use brooms and beach balls. Dr. D. H. Hays, veterinarian, will accompany the riders, first aid will be available and radio contact with emergency medical technicians will be maintained.

The $7.50 registration fee includes the noon pit barbecue.

"We're anticipating a most pleasant ride," Mule Skinners president Ed Hyman said, "and remind all riders, whether astride mules or horses, that they are welcome to join us."

"Just sign up, pay up and climb aboard your mount for one of the most scenic mountain rides in the state, to say nothing of the afternoon of fun and games that should prove to be hilarious, if nothing else."

Local DECA in top eight nationally in Pepsi project

Eddie Parker, sponsor for the Ruidoso Distributive Education Clubs of America (DECA) has learned that the local chapter's "Pepsi Learn and Earn" project is one of the top eight in the nation.

The club submitted a Pepsi project last year and was eliminated in the fourth round of competition. This year, Parker said he hoped the club would end the year in the top eight with the Pepsi project, which they have.

Because of this honor, three people from the state will be guests of honor at an "invitation only" breakfast at the national convention. Those who will attend include project leader Steve Cox, Parker and Ray Gormley, State DECA advisor.

At the breakfast, each of the eight finalists will have a chance to present the project to those attending the banquet. Invited guests at the banquet will be two people from each state. "We feel really

Three die in plane crash

The bodies of three Albuquerque men, victims of a Thursday single-engine plane crash at the 8,400 foot level on 9,000-foot Carrizo Peak, were removed from the mountain Saturday morning.

The victims were identified by officials as Bob Rutherford, contractor, Tom Murphy and Richard Palmer, Southwest Air Rangers pilots.

The search for the plane launched Friday, was conducted by the Civil Air Patrol, White Mountain Search and Rescue (WMSR) and Lincoln County sheriff's deputies. The wreckage was discovered by a Forest Service employee, who saw the reflection from the downed aircraft.

Members of the WMSR were lowered to a point about 500 feet above the crash site by helicopter Friday evening and remained overnight to aid in removal of the bodies. Saturday morning the bodies were removed by helicopter, with the operation completed by 12:30 p.m.

Ruidoso Municipal Airport manager Tim Morris reported that removal of the plane's emergency locator finder, by order of the Federal Aviation Administration two weeks ago, delayed locating the downed aircraft.

The investigation into the cause of the crash, killing the three men at the scene, is being continued.

Airport squabble continues

Text by GWYNETH JONES

As a result of Friday's on-site inspection of proposed airport sites, still another meeting will be called in Santa Fe in the near future, so that all interested parties can attempt to reach a compromise on use of the Fort Stanton mesa land.

Jim King, deputy secretary of the state department of Natural Resources, said he had been instructed by Governor Bruce King (no relation) to see if he could bring the groups to a consensus Friday, but decided that was impossible after hearing arguments presented by members of the Sierra Blanca Airport Commission (SBAC), agriculture secretary Bill Stephens and New Mexico State University (NMSU) officials.

In addition to SBAC members Richard Hall, George Shoemaker and Wyndham Runningwater, the meeting at the Ruidoso Airport was attended by Ernest Corriz of the Commerce and Industry Department, Bob White of the aviation division of the Transportation Department, Ray Hampton of the Albuquerque office of the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA), Tom McCalmont, state planner, Earl Cook of Gordon Herkenhoff and Associates, engineering firm, Ben Harvey, representing FAA regional office and Arnold Nelson, head of the department of animal and range science at NMSU.

Also in attendance were Dave Wilson, president of the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce, and Ed Jungbluth, executive director of the Chamber.

During the two-hour meeting which preceded the tour of the airport sites, claims, counterclaims, arguments and rebuttals were hurled back and forth by the various participants, causing Harvey to compare the total lack of accord to a discussion of "apples and bumblebees."

Hall started off the discussion by restating that the SBAC was requesting only 300 acres for Phase I of the airport master plan. Developmental control over a total of 2,000 acres would eventually be needed for implementation of Phases II and III, but that acreage would be requested "only when the economics justify it," Hall said, adding that time

Animal ordinance draft readied

BY GWYNETH JONES
Staff Writer

The Ruidoso Area animal control committee Thursday reviewed a rough draft of the Ruidoso "dog ordinance," which included changes recommended by the committee members. The rough draft was drawn up by Al Jinge, who will next present it to village attorney Ron Harris. Pending Harris' approval of proposed changes, the committee will present the revised ordinance to the village trustees for their consideration.

Debate continued over several of the more controversial amendments being sought by some members. One major issue on which members disagreed was whether a clause should be included in the ordinance requiring the local animal shelter to, over an undetermined period of time, achieve compliance with minimum standards set by humane associations.

Most committee members agreed that the present facility already met most of the standards, while others attending said they felt the move would put too much of a burden on the animal control officer.

It was also suggested that the establishment of such requirements and the enforcement of them should be the duty of the future standing committee for animal control. The formation of such a committee, sanctioned by the village, is another change being recommended by the present committee.

Committee member Vicki Niederhauser gave a brief report on the actual minimum standards called for by the humane associations. These included regulations concerning methods of euthanasia and disposal, variety of equipment, vehicles used for impoundment, record-keeping, sanitation, heating, isolation of animals for various reasons, feeding and type of structure for housing the animals.

The committee deadlocked 2-2 on a vote to include the regulations, but Niederhauser and Alison Walstad were directed to look into the standards in detail and present a written report at the next meeting for further consideration.

Another change proposed by the group stipulates the methods of euthanasia to be used. Dr. Lynn Willard reported that the method currently being used by shelter personnel (injection of muscle relaxant) is no longer legal and is now considered an inhumane method of disposal.

Willard said the death "appears to be painless because the animal can't move." The drug paralyzes the animal and cause of death is actually suffocation, he said.

Approved methods, to be written into the new ordinance include barbiturates, the drug T-61 administered by intravenous injection, chemical means such as carbon dioxide, carbon monoxide, chloroform and ether, or mechanical means such as a high altitude chamber or, in an emergency situation, shooting.

The committee generally agreed that carbon monoxide would probably be the most practical method for use here. Other changes proposed by the committee were:

- The issuance of city animal licenses by veterinarians, for which they will be paid one dollar per license.

- Establishment of staggered license fees for animals as follows: cats, unneutered, $5 and neutered, $2.50; dogs, unneutered, $10 and neutered, $5.

- Setting of a pickup fee of $25 plus boarding costs to be paid by an owner who retrieves his animal from the shelter.

- In the case of adoption of animals, a $20 deposit will be left with the shelter to be refunded upon presentation of proof of spaying or neutering within 180 days.

- Granting of direct citation power for the animal control officer.

- Definition of animals to be covered by the ordinance as "dogs or cats."

The committee made tentative plans to meet again Friday at noon at the Chamber of Commerce office.

Racing issue set May 10

The Ruidoso News will publish the special edition marking the opening of the 1979 racing season at Ruidoso Downs May 18.

The advertising deadline for this issue is Friday, April 27. Advertisers are asked to phone Carmen Edwards, advertising manager, 257-4001, to reserve space.

Subscribers desiring to send copies of this special photograph and feature issue to friends are asked to reserve the number wanted early. Orders and payment, 50 cents for each copy to be mailed, must be received before Thursday, May 10.

Chamber's Easter Egg hunt most successful

Saturday's Easter Egg hunt in Two Rivers Park, sponsored by the Retail Merchants committee of the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce, attracted so many children that hunting room, if not standing room, was at a premium.

The hunt kicked off at about 10 a.m., and within 20 minutes Easter Eggs were scarcer than hen's teeth, because the youngsters wasted no time in ferreting out the goodies from their hiding places.

"I'm overwhelmed at the turnout," Chamber president Dave Wilson said, "as there just has to be 500 kids, or more, here. And such enthusiasm. This is a turnout beyond our wildest expectations."

Photos of small fry, in the doldrums, along with the omnipresent Easter Bunny, appear on page 5.

Ray Clarke gunshot victim

The body of Ray Clarke, 45, co-owner and operator of Clarke's Chapel of Roses Mortuary, was found in a parked pickup on Gavilan Canyon Road early Saturday morning.

Death was attributed to a handgun shot, termed by investigating officers as apparently self-inflicted. The investigation is being continued today.

Mr. Clarke's obituary appears on an inside page.

Rotary's big enchilada feed here tomorrow

Ruidoso's Rotarians will be serving enchiladas tomorrow at the Ruidoso Elks Lodge, Highway 70 west, from 11:30 a. m. - 1 p. m., and from 5 to 8 p. m.

Tickets will be $3 for adults and $1.50 for children.

In addition to the Rotary-rolled enchiladas, the Rotary Anns will contribute homemade desserts.

"All proceeds from each Rotary enchilada feed," chairman Roy Jones said, "go into local projects. This spring, due to the service offered our community by the White Mountain Search and Rescue teams, the funds will pay for some expensive radio equipment, and other items, to enable these men to function better."

CONSTRUCTION OF A NEW CLUBHOUSE at Cree Meadows Country Club got underway Monday. Workers continued to work Tuesday, despite the snowfall. The clubhouse, which is scheduled to be completed in late summer, will include locker rooms, a lounge and a restaurant. The swimming pool, which is outdoors now, will be housed in the clubhouse so year-round swimming can be enjoyed.

DISCUSSING THE PROS AND CONS of proposed Airport Site A and Site B are Dr. Arnold Nelson, New Mexico State University Executive Director, center and Ben Harvey, Federal Aviation Administration attorney, right. A meeting was held Friday with more discussion but no conclusive steps were taken. Another meeting, to be called within two weeks, will be held in Santa Fe.

Forest Service to explain commercial use of lands

Representatives of all riding stables, riding operations, and businesses that rent camping equipment or other outdoor recreation equipment are encouraged to attend a meeting scheduled for April 27 at 9 a.m., at the Smokey Bear Ranger Station.

The meeting is being held to explain and define what constitutes commercial use of forest land in regard to outfitting and guiding operations.

According to Joe Spehar, lands and recreation manager at Smokey Bear Ranger District, there are many cases when various uses of the forest constitute commercial use. However, a fine line is drawn between commercial use and non-commercial use of the forest.

"If a commercial operation is using the forest, it is required to have a special use permit from the Forest Service," Spehar said. "According to our regulations, we have to charge for commercial use of forest land."

He said that many aspects of forest use are not commercial, and in order to make the distinction, Spehar called the meeting April 27.

"We will intensify enforcement of this rule this summer," Spehar said. He added that people who may not have licenses stand a chance of violating the laws determining commercial use.

Items to be covered at the meeting include the basis of fee calculation, which in general, is based upon the days of use, and what factors constitute commercial use of forest lands.

In addition, applications to apply for the special use permit will be available at the meeting, and a review of insurance requirements will be presented.

"If there is any doubt about your business or a segment of it being construed as commercial in this respect, we urge you to attend this meeting," Spehar said.

Spring is planting time

BY CHARLOTTE FELLERS

With spring nearly here, many people will be spending those nice days getting garden plots ready for planting. According to Wilber Conley, owner of Conley's Nursery, now is the best time to put in several crops and the growing season for many others will follow May 1.

Conley said the growing season in Ruidoso and the immediate area is rather short, between 100 and 120 days. "It varies but last year our last killing frost was May 18," Conley said.

Conley also said that it was important to plant only plants that were acclimated to the climate and altitude. "In other words, when you buy a plant, it needs to be for Zone 4 or colder," he said. The lower the number, the colder the weather the plant can stand, Conley said.

"Especially for perennial plants which will carry through the winter, like trees, shrubs and grasses, plants should be acclimated," Conley said.

Conley said that mid-April is a good time to do many tasks in the yard. Among them are to start watering and fertilizing lawns and planting lawns. He recommends, "If you haven't hosed down your evergreens by now, it's a good time to get that done." Conley said that dirt and insect eggs are often accumulated in evergreens, and by spraying them with a mild insecticide, possible damage to the trees can be prevented.

Anytime between mid-April and mid-September is an acceptable time to plant lawns, evergreens, shrubs and other trees. Mid-April is also a good time to put in flower bulbs, such as dahila and gladiolus. Those who plan to purchase Granola Maples and plant them should do that as soon as possible. According to Conley, "We will have to pot those in a week to ten days depending on the weather," so it's best to get them in now while they are still bare root, he said.

Some garden seed vegetables could be planted now, but most garden plants should be set out around May 1. These include onion sets, cabbage plants, broccoll, brussels sprouts and cauliflower plants. Because these plants are hardy, they can withstand another frost. The more tender plants like tomato and cucumber plants should not be set out until mid-May. "However, if you plan to plant starter plants for these, now is the time to do it," Conley said.

Strawberries and rhubarb grow well in this area, according to Conley and these can also be put out around May 1.

Mid-May is the best time to set out bedding plants, which include a wide variety of flowering plants: marigolds, pansies, violas, petunias, delphinium, verbena, snapdragon, moss roses, daisies, zinnias and nasturtiums.

Other plants which can be put out in mid-May include ground cover plants such as ajuga, snow in summer, Japanese birch, dragon's blood and vinca.

Most fruit bearing trees grow well in Ruidoso and Conley said this includes everything from apple to plum trees. Most of the trees he stocks are dwarf or semi-dwarf which are acclimated and grow well here. These include red and yellow Delicious, Jonathan, Winesap and Rome apple trees, Bartlette and Clapp's Favorite pears, Stanley and Santa Rosa plums, Sun Gold apricot, and several varieties of cherries.

Conley's Nursery stocks most items mentioned above, plus a wide range of soil and fertilizers. Conley's is located three miles east of Ruidoso Downs race track.

GEORGE S. SISNEROS JR.

New deputy sheriff given valley duty

George S. Sisneros Jr., has been appointed deputy sheriff for Lincoln County, Sheriff Ernest Sanchez has announced.

Sisneros will patrol the area from Riverside to Glencoe to Lincoln.

He is a 1966 Hondo High School graduate and a New Mexico Military Institute graduate in 1969. He served with the Clovis Police Department until entering the Army in 1971, from which he was recently discharged.

His service as a Military Policeman included duty in Washington, D. C., Korea and Fort Sam Houston, Texas, where, for the past year, he served with San Antonio, Texas, police officers on regular patrol in the city.

Sisneros, son of Mr. and Mrs. George S. Sisneros Sr., of Arabella, will live in Tinnie with his wife, Laura, and daughters, Tonja, 5 and Wendil, four months.

ON-SITE INSPECTIONS of the two mesas where a new airport is proposed were conducted Friday afternoon following a two-hour meeting at the present airport. The "X" in the photo above shows where one end of the main runway would be at Site A.

A PROBLEM with site A is that if different plans have to be re-submitted and the end of the runway is moved back, expansion could extend into the low area in the photo above. Chairman of the Sierra Blanca Airport Commission, Richard Hall, said projected costs of leveling this area could be very high.

Airport squabble continues

would be far in the future.

He cited numerous reasons why Site A should not be considered for the regional airport. The lands are a combination of federal, state and privately-owned properties, making the cost of land acquisition prohibitively high, he said.

He added that residential and utility development was already taking place on the mesa at Site A. Engineering surveys, he said, had shown that 2½ million cubic yards of earthwork (fill-in and leveling) would be necessary on the site, and its closer proximity to Sierra Blanca Peak, as compared with site B, would make it more dangerous for jet aircraft. Another major disadvantage of the site, Hall said, was the unfeasibility of a crosswinds runway.

The presence of a sanitary landfill adjacent to site A would be in violation of FAA standards, because of the hazards created by scavenging birds, Hall added. "That's the key point," he said. "We've got to have that mesa de la Olla have an experiment." Experiments being carried out on site A, Nelson added, "are not of the critical nature of this one."

acquired in the foreseeable future.

Nelson countered Hall's statements by saying the key to the whole matter was the proportion of the mesa top which would be appropriated. Rotational grazing experiments are currently being conducted on the mesa, he said, with baseline data collection dating back many years. He said the information to be gained from such experiments was requested by federal and state governments, the Bureau of Land Management (BLM), the forest service and others.

Nelson added there was a "general lack of this information" available and a "continued need for it." He said the experiments could continue as long as 20 to 40 years, since "we need to provide information on long-term trends."

The proposed Sierra Blanca Regional Airport would, Nelson said, "take the middle and majority of land" on the mesa, "making the experiment worthless."

"That's the key point," he said. "We've got to have that mesa de la Olla have an experiment." Experiments being carried out on site A, Nelson added, "are not of the critical nature of this one."

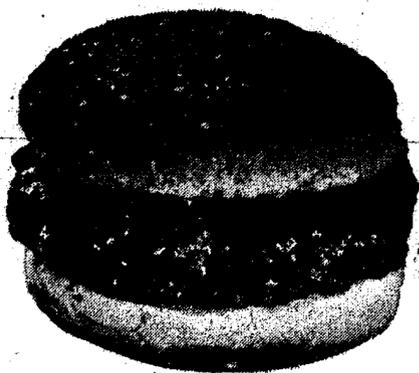

After listening to the various arguments, King asked whether the two groups had even been able to sit down together and work out a compromise with the aim of producing a minimum impact on the experiments.

Agriculture secretary Stephens reiterated Nelson's remarks and said he had made attempts to call such meetings, but "The only discussion I can get out of Hall is on Site B."

Hall countered by asking why he should waste up to $30,000 of the taxpayer's money for an environmental survey of that site when there was obviously no hope of getting approval for the location, because of the reasons he had already stated.

King said there appeared to be a need for "quantitative work" to determine the real impact of an airport on the experiments. Following the tour of the sites, King said the meeting to discuss the matters further would be called by him "late next week or the early part of the following week," in Santa Fe.

The date of the meeting will be "a function of how soon we can get all the information together," he said.

Ruidoso area teachers offered credit courses

Teachers in the Ruidoso area will get the opportunity to earn one hour of college credit when a class "The Child, The Teacher and the Law" will be offered May 5 and May 12.

The class is being offered by Eastern New Mexico University, (ENMU) Portales on the two consecutive Saturdays at the White Mountain Middle School library. Cost of the class will be the cost of one hour of tuition at ENMU and the format will include lectures by National Education Association representative Pat Fleming and Jay Miller, who is a juvenile probation officer, district attorney's representative and a private attorney. A discussion of the lectures will follow.

A field trip to the juvenile detention center and the Children In Need of Supervision (CHINS) program will take up the second day of class.

To receive college credit, both sessions must be attended, tuition must be paid and each person must provide his/her own transportation for the field trip.

Tom McNeil and Bob Palko, telephone 257-4674, can answer any questions or provide further information concerning the class.

RUIDOSO GARDEN CLUB members, Madeline Murray, left, was named director, and Ellen Miller, historian, of the New Mexico Garden Clubs at the District Five spring meeting in Roswell recently. Murray and Miller will serve two year terms.

Ruidosoans are state garden club officers

Madeline Murray and Ellen Miller of Ruidoso were elected to state offices recently at the spring meeting of District Five of New Mexico Garden Clubs.

The meeting was held March 27 at the Roswell Inn, Murray was elected director and Miller, historian. Both will serve two year terms.

Other officers elected include Alta Marvin of Artesia, assistant director;

Joyce Thompson of Hobbs, secretary; Evelyn Siegfried of Roswell, parliamentarian and Dru Cieszinski of Pecos, treasurer.

Miller also serves as president of the Ruidoso Garden Club, while Murray is secretary of the local organization. The Ruidoso club also took second place in the state for their scrapbook and tied with the Hobbs Morning Garden Club for first place in the yearbook division.

Siegfried presided over the Roswell meeting, which was attended by state president Charlotte Long. Ginny Neff, state president-elect, acted as installing officer.

Clubs participating were from Hobbs, Better, Patio, Home, Morning, Oasis, Pecos, Ruidoso, Yucca and Artesia.

Gifted child workshop held here

Approximately 30 diagnosticians and teachers from throughout New Mexico attended a workshop held last week at White Mountain Middle School. The focus of the workshop was identification of gifted children, and it was presented by the University of New Mexico in cooperation with the Ruidoso Public Schools.

Participants in the workshop administered portions of various evaluation tests to Ruidoso students who have been nominated by their teachers for the planned gifted program here next fall. Revised standards for educational services to the gifted stipulate that students included in the programs meet strict requirements in cognitive thinking, creativity, intellectual function and other specific areas.

The evaluation instruments used by the workshop participants will help determine eligibility for Ruidoso's gifted program.

Mrs. Karen Tillman, coordinator of the workshop, commented on the degree of cooperation exhibited by school administrative personnel and by the parents of students participating in the screening process.

Evaluation of these students and others who have been nominated will continue through next fall, she said.

IDENTIFYING THE GIFTED student was the focus of a workshop held last week at White Mountain Middle School. Above, teachers and diagnosticians read through the information on potential candidates for gifted programs. The workshop was led by Dr. June Maker, a specialist in educational services for the gifted from the University of New Mexico.

HOW LONG SHOULD CARPET LAST?

On the average, as Americans, we spend thousands of dollars for a new car every 3 years. We take 35 months to pay for it, then do it all over again.

By contrast, we buy carpet much more frugally. We hope it will last a life-time, but instead of shopping for QUALITY, we shop for price. That's because we're misled to believe that all nylon carpets never wear out . . . or that any wool carpet is better than acrylic.

A smart girl like you should know better. All carpets wear out . . . some lots sooner than others, no matter what they're made of, and that's the truth.

It's also true that if you finance your carpet as you do your automobile, you can afford the kind of quality that will last longer in your home, no matter how active a house it is.

Of course, if your carpet isn't as important to you as a new car, none of this will make any sense. However, if it is that important, let us show you how easy it is to choose and really own good carpet. . . . STOP IN TODAY. AT

Eta Chapter visited by state president

At a March 31 meeting of the Eta Chapter of Alpha Delta Kappa (ADK) in Picacho, state president Virginia Tingley spoke to the group about state goals. She reminded the Eta Chapter they would be hostesses for the Founder's Day in October.

Following the opening prayer, led by Inez Pacheco, a pledge ceremony was held for Cathy Norman and Charlann Cooper. Leota Pfingsten reported on the state convention held in Albuquerque, where she led one of three workshops. The 1980 ADK state convention will be held in Las Cruces.

The recent meeting was held at the home of Elsie Kimbrell. Chapter president Greta Cabot presided at the business session.

The next meeting will be held April 28 at the Inn of the Mountain Gods. An initiation ceremony will take place following that meeting at the home of Carrie Godley.

Those present at the Picacho meeting enjoyed a luncheon prepared by Elsie Kimbrell and Lyndy Samelson. Elsie's daughters, Della and Ramona entertained the gathering with several dance selections common to the Hondo Fiesta.

Those present included Inez Pacheco, Hazel Arthurs, Maurine Leonard, Louise Ferguson, Louise Morgan, Carrie Godley, Kathy Weems, Darla Lathan, Greta Cabot, Elsie Kimbrell, Lyndy Samelson, Ofelia Salas, Leota Pfingsten and Nancy McCarty.

Guests were Virginia Tingley, Cathy Norman and Charlann Cooper.

Capitan FHAers at state convention

Members of the Future Homemakers of America (FHA) at Capitan received the honor of presenting the Honor Chapter Awards during the recent state FHA convention in Albuquerque.

The Capitan group also received the Honor Chapter Award, with Mrs. Angelina Provine, advisor, accepting for the members.

The Capitan FHA also promoted the state project, Generation of Alliance Program, with the theme being "Everybody needs a helping hand", a project urging members, as individuals, to extend a helping hand to anyone, whenever it is needed.

During the convention, the Capitan FHA members participated in General Alliance, A Great Project; Seniors are Special People; Tourism New Mexico Style and Women's World of Business and Energy workshops.

Nob Hill students hunt eggs

A very excited group of children at Nob Hill Elementary spend almost 20 minutes finding 800 colored eggs in the all-school Easter egg hunt.

The children tried every trick in the book to cross the line ahead of the whistle to find the most eggs, but teachers with wary eyes let no one get a head start.

Once the whistle blew, children scattered in a hundred directions to search for the eggs which were hidden across the street from the school, on a grassy hill owned by the Ruidoso Hondo Valley Hospital.

The eggs were hidden by parents and some students from Ruidoso High School. The adults who looked on agreed that it surely took more than fifteen minutes to hide the eggs. "It probably took a lot more thought, too," one teacher said.

In addition to finding a wide variety of designs on the eggs, one little boy found what appeared to be a diamond on one of his eggs. In addition, some children found packages of candy and one lucky youngster even found a old dollar bill!

Sierra Blanca concludes season

The Sierra Blanca Ski Resort reported Friday that the 1978-1979 season was the most successful season-to-date with two days still remaining in the current season.

Ski Area director Roy Parker said the total number of tickets sold, including season's tickets, numbered 185,000. That figure surpassed the previous record of 149,500 set in the 1976-77 season.

Parker cited a number of reasons as factors in the area's success this season. Most notably, he said, was the addition of a beginner's chair lift.

"The biggest single factor was the acceptance of the beginner chair lift we put in last year," he said. "It is so much easier to ride than the T-bar. We opened up the slope and made it a wide open slope. The T-bar is difficult to ride and beginners get discouraged. We didn't attract more skiers but we brought them back because they had a good time."

Another factor in the area's success this past season was its length. The area opened Thanksgiving weekend and closed Easter Sunday, despite a new seven inch snowfall.

"The parking lot had a bigger capacity," Parker said, "and that allowed us to accommodate more skiers. And the season lasted a little longer."

If the season lasts as long next year as it did this, Sierra Blanca could enjoy even more success. Parker said plans for next season include a triple chair lift on Capitan, which currently is chaired by a T-bar, that should entice more skiers to ride up Capitan as well as Deep Freeze. The skiers who ski Deep Freeze, Parker said, are afraid to ride up the T-bar because if they fall off, "they don't have any way to get down because it is so steep. We hope it (the new lift) will be accepted next year. You never know.

Inn of the Mountain Gods to host pro-am tourney

The Inn of the Mountain Gods will host the Sun Country Pro-Am Golf Championship April 17-18 at the Inn's golf course.

The two-day tournament will consist of approximately 30 teams, each made up of one Sun Country Section golf professional and three amateurs.

The format for the tournament will be two best balls with no handicaps. There will be a 36 hole low gross for the amateurs and a two day low total for the professionals. The tournament will have a minimum of $1,500 added purse and a new car will be given away for a hole-in-one on the 18th hole.

The Inn will host a cocktail party and dinner for all tournament players and their wives the evening of April 18.

The tournament will feature some of the finest amateur and professional golfers in the area. Spectators are welcome.

The winning pair in the doubles event for scratch bowlers was Wes Aldrich and Gerald Tully with 1,111 pins. The winning pair in the handicap division was Jim McGarvey and David Hoffer with 1,301 total pins.

Jack Kannady Jr., took the singles scratch title with 653 pins. Weaver Ballard won the handicap division with 692 pins.

Junior racers impress Coloradoans

After the Aspen Leaf Derby April 7 and 8, the Ruidoso-Sierra Blanca Junior Racers left no doubt that they can compete with Colorado racers, even on the Coloradoans' home turf. The fourteen racers that made the trip to Aspen brought home six top honors.

Jimmy Raudenbush, the oldest member of the team at 18, won the "B" slalom race. The Inn gave him the necessary points to advance to class "A", the first Ruidoso racer to achieve such a lofty perch in several years.

Mark Mobley and Lon and Don Nunley, also "B" racers, had some tough luck on their second runs in the slalom and giant slalom and were unable to finish in the rankings of those races.

Stacey Rogers, a Cloudcroft skier who joined the junior racers for the trip to Aspen, earned a third place medal for his performance in class "E". He will compete for Ruidoso next season. Crystal Rogers, Stacey's sister, took a seventh place in the giant slalom and a fourth place in the slalom. She, too, will compete for Ruidoso next year. Jack Walsh and Gracie Rose, competing in boys' and girls' class "F" respectively, had good runs but finished out of the rankings.

Three junior racers, who competed this season in the age group races, made the trip to Aspen to qualify for next season's class races. Marty Rose and Keith Pipkin gained "G" class status for next season's races while Angela King earned a class "F" ranking.

Capple King continued her winning ways. She placed first in the age group giant slalom and a second place in the slalom race in the girls' 11 and under division. Bart Bowen, in the boys' 11 and under division, garnered a fourth place finish in the giant slalom and a tenth place performance in the slalom. Bowen's feat came in a class that numbered 40 boys, including teammate Kevin Behrens.

The Loveland Derby was an important event for the junior racers. They wanted to do well and prove to the Coloradoans that they could compete with the best. Based in part on their dedication and the coaching of Chuck Bent and Joe Bob McGuire, the junior racers succeeded.

Long tops trapshoot victors

James Long of Denver City, Texas was the big winner in last weekend's Inn of the Mountain Gods Trapshoot, winning four events. Long's first win came in Saturday's 16 yard event when he hit 91 of 100 targets to take the A title.

Pete Kazbe of Mesalero won the championship class in that event, hitting 94 of 100 targets. Bob Vaughan, also of Mesalero, won class B with a score of 92 targets. Donald McCullough of Lubbock, Texas captured C class with 91 targets and R.C. Camp of Belen took the D class with a score of 91.

In Saturday's handicap event, Robert Paine of Alamogordo won the championship division with 91 targets out of 100. Long racked up his second win of the shoot, hitting 81 of 100 targets to take the long yardage class of the handicap event. Kazbe and Vaughan also captured their second wins of the shoot winning the mid yardage and short yardage titles, respectively, with scores of 89 and 87.

Long won his third event in the shoot, hitting 93 of 100 targets to take the doubles championship.

In Sunday's first event, a 16 yarder like Saturday's opener, Donald McCullough won the championship class with 92 of 100 targets. Long won the AA class, hitting 90 targets. Vaughan won his third event of the shoot, hitting 82 targets to win the class A title. Clyde Hopper of Portales won the class B shoot with 88 targets. Richard Camp of Belen took C class honors, hitting 89 and 100 shots. Robert Campbell of Alamogordo won the D class with a score of 88.

In the handicap event, Richard Campbell took the championship event, hitting 93 targets. In the long yardage class, Long took his fourth title, hitting 85 of 100 targets. McCullough won the mid yardage shoot with a score of 89 and Merle Girard of Roswell took the short yardage shoot with a score of 89.

The next shoot at the Inn of the Mountain Gods is the Mesalero Apache Open, May 4, 5 and 6.

OGT investigates fishing violations

"If you get burned up when some guy finds a good fishing spot, catches his limit of trout, stashes it in his cooler, then comes back to catch eight more over the limit, you can break him of the habit by calling Operation Game Thief," says OGT coordinator Dan Pursley, of the Department of Game and Fish.

Operation Game Thief pays rewards of $50 or more for information leading to issuance of citations or arrests in fishing violations. Pursley reminded anglers, who will be out in increasing numbers as the weather warms and fishing improves.

"As in the case of big game violations a person might observe, we don't ask that the public take direct action or confront a violator," Pursley said. "The best thing to do if you see a violation is to contact the nearest Game and Fish officer or call Operation Game Thief as soon as possible."

The toll-free OGT number 1-800-432-4263, and callers are not asked to give their names or to testify in court. Information needed includes vehicle or boat license numbers, descriptions and names, if possible, of violators, time, date and location of the violation.

He said some of the things to watch for are overlimits on fish, such as in the scene described above, or people who catch their own limit, then catch fish for someone else.

"Illegal devices — nets, traps, explosives — can remove a lot of fish in a hurry," Pursley said, "and someone who locates them or sees someone using them should take immediate steps to relay the information to the Game and Fish Department."

He said information leading to arrest of persons using such devices, or illegally selling fish, could earn a caller a reward substantially higher than the minimum $50.

White Mountain students learning survival skills

BY GWYNETH JONES
Staff Writer/Photographer

Students in Bob Palko's Outdoor Living Skills class at White Mountain Middle School are learning some survival skills which could conceivably save their lives — and having a good time doing it.

Last week the students formed small groups within the class to construct several outdoor evaporation stills. The stills produce enough water each day, through condensation, to supply the needs of one person.

The method involves the digging of a pit about three feet square and three feet deep. A six-foot square piece of plastic is placed over the pit, the edges buried and the center weighted with a rock.

A can or jar is placed inside the pit at the center point under the weighted plastic, to collect the moisture. Heat from the sun causes water to condense underneath the plastic, and the drops slowly begin to roll down the sloping plastic into the jar.

According to a survival skills book being used as reference by the class, the still will be effective "even in the driest desert," although it is best to place the still "in old riverbeds or in deep rich soil at the bottom of gullies."

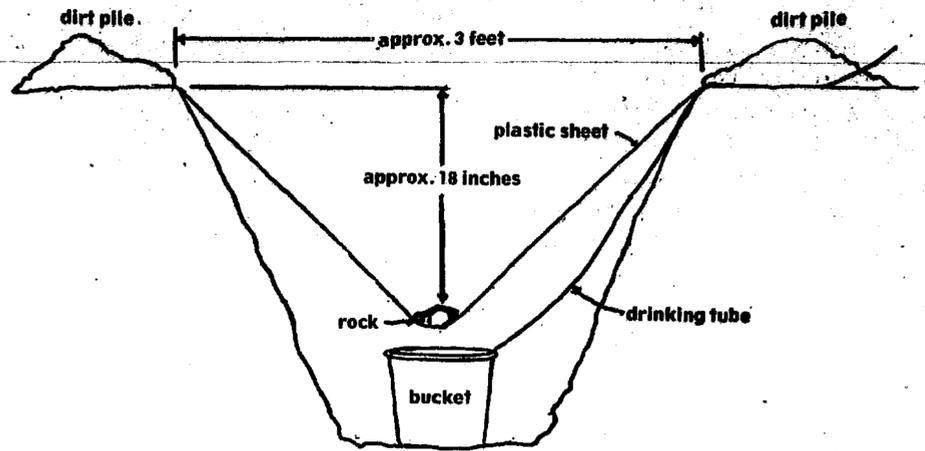

Green plants or sliced cactus placed in the pit will increase the amount of water, according to the text.

If the outdoor-type person has had the foresight to bring along a piece of hose or surgical tubing, that piece of equipment can be used as a siphon to siphon the liquid to the surface without disturbing the still.

The stills were left to operate overnight at the school, after which the water was collected and measured to determine the most efficient of the four.

The winning still was constructed by John Yang, Shaun Childress, Chris Woodul and Tim Roberts, whose efforts were rewarded with nearly a quart of water.

The most productive still was left in operation, while the others were filled in. The class is continuing to monitor the accumulations. Palko said Friday that the sunny weather had increased production of the still. However, he said that eventually the accumulations would decrease, which would mean that all the readily available moisture had been collected.

THIS SKETCH shows a cross section of a still like those constructed by the class. The still was developed by two scientists, Dr. Ray D. Jackson and Dr. Cornelius H.M. van Bavel.

THE STREAKS on the plastic shown above indicate where water is rolling down to collect in the can below.

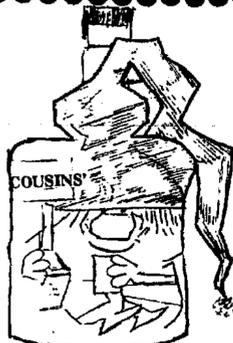

SOMEONE HAD TO jump down into the pit to extricate the can containing accumulated water. Above, Sherrle Hamilton prepares to measure the water.

REMOVAL OF PLASTIC had to be done carefully to avoid dirtying the water collected.

Above, their classmates watch as Sherrle Hamilton and Robin Mook uncover the still.

THE PETER PLAN
 by Laurence J. Peter
 William Morrow and Co., 1976
 Some men see things as they are and say why,
 I dream things that never were and say why not?

In an earlier book, The Peter Principle, Laurence J. Peter offered explanations as to how individuals move on up to their respective levels of incompetence. This amused many people and a cult of finger-pointers emerged, identifying what they saw as products of the Peter Principle. It was a fun exercise but I doubt if the criteria for promotions has been radically altered.

In The Peter Plan the author is once again instructive, this time telling us how to protect our planet. He begins by showing us where we are today and how the choices for tomorrow are clearly either disaster or a state of well being. Secondly he opens the curtain on what the world would look like in 1990 if only we would make the correct choices. Finally, Dr. Peter presents a strategy to bring about a new civilization.

The plan the author presents is based on our ability to apply a systems approach to the major problems facing mankind. He argues that the capabilities do exist, we need but make the choices. This may be a small book, but the message is written large. We must clean up our act. As long as our natural resources seemed plentiful and not too expensive, we overlooked the consequences of what our way of life - and the technology necessary to maintain it - was doing to our environment. Only in the past decade with the energy squeeze and the startling decay of our cities have we given any thought to where we went wrong. Dr. Peter tells us not only how we strayed, but he does offer alternatives.

Throughout the book Peter has inserted quotes showing us what others have thought regarding the topic being discussed. My initial reaction was that these interruptions were distracting, but on second look I recognized how supportive they were of the text and the force they added to it. For example in a chapter on Peace, there are quotes from James Madison and Bertrand Russell among others; included also is that infamous quote of the not so peaceful Colonel George Patton the Third who during Vietnam was quoted as saying, "I do like to see the arms and legs fly."

Not being the bright optimist which is Dr. Peter, I question whether our ecological consciousness has been sufficiently raised. Even now a television commercial boasts a razor with a hollow handle. After shaving you can discard not only the blade but the handle too. The manufacturer is so puffed with pride having created another throwaway for our convenience that he blows into the hollow handle.

But what seems to me to loom as the greatest obstacle to a national change in direction may simply be with the common perception of the word "plan." Although we have no problem with it as an ingredient in attaining a personal or a corporate goal, when the word is applied to government it strangely becomes unAmerican.

Well, regardless of the degree of sanguineness with which we can look to the future of our planet, we cannot argue with Dr. Peter's basic premise -

There is a past which is gone forever, But there is a future which is still our own.

The World Is Bright
With Easter Blessings

Day by day the world grows brighter, and our souls more filled with joy as the sacred benediction of the Easter season fills the world with the happiness of Heaven.

This message is being written to you on April eleven, Wednesday before Easter, and these words will reach you on Monday in Easter week. The Easter season lasts many days after Easter Sunday; and the blessing of Eastertide remains with us all the year and always.

The day before yesterday, the tenth, Winter paid us a little visit here in the early Spring, right in the beginning of the Easter season. It seems that all my life, there is a little cold and windy spell just before Easter Day. Then on Easter Sunday, the world becomes still and quiet, and all the flowers that have been blossoming through the wind come smiling through and the sun bears its golden blessing from the blue sky.

Yesterday, the west wind blew rain and snow all down the vale all day, and there was a wintry chill in the air. Surely, you thought, this is the "Easter spell" the old timers have always told us we are sure to see every year. First the wind, then a cloud of rain drops, then snow and then sleet and some small hail.

And today, the eleventh, the west wind has blown its hardest all day, and you can see a bank of clouds lingering up toward the mountain to the west. And the wind's blast is cold with Winter's breath — blowing from the new snow on the mountain.

And yet the spirit of the Easter Spring time is ever more bright and cheery all through the mountain land. One after the other messengers of this happy season arrive joyfully among us.

The cheery notes of the robin and the song sparrow resound through the glen, rising above the loud voice of the wind. The blossoms of the pear are bursting forth in crystal white among the new green leaves.

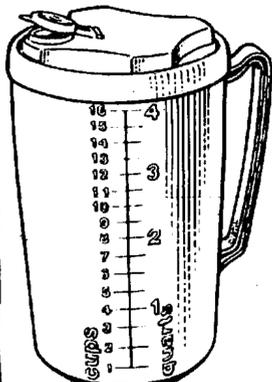

In the lower reaches of the valley the peach trees are out in purest pink, a bright touch of color amongst the green of the weeping willow, and the Cottonwood leaf buds. The incense of new leaves of the Elm, willow, and cottonwood blend on the wind with the perfume of plum, pear and peach blossoms. The apple blossoms at the lower end of the valley are just beginning to show their bright red color in the early buds, ready to bloom forth and add their touch of glory to the blossom parade. The bright spring flowers of the mountain meadows, hills, and glens are blooming, showing their pure colors — smiling through the windy blast.

The wind calls forth the blossom and the leaf, by swaying the tree and awakening the life force of the tree at the roots. Here in the yard the new leaves on the yellow rose and the wild roses have appeared in new green, promises of precious flowers later on. The little peach tree planted from seed by our Mother has a pink blossom bud with more to follow. And our Mother's blessed spirit is here rejoicing with me during the sacred Easter Spring.

During the windy weather our attention is taken up by the flying rain, the sleet, and the wind's loud singing voice. Then when the wind suddenly calms down, a magic touch is felt throughout the land. We are in a new world of wild flowers and fruit blossoms and new leaves that have been struggling forth, all through the storm, to greet us and bring us Spring-time Joy.

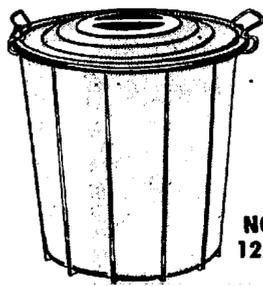

May the Easter blessing of our Lord and Saviour abide with us and bring us Heavenly happiness now and always.

Inside The Capitol

by Fred McCaffrey

SANTA FE — For most of Ed Mahr's adult years, he has been affected by New Mexico's government. Now, understandably, he wants to turn the tables and begin to affect it.

If you don't recognize that name, Ed has been Corrections Director for the state. His resignation becomes effective today.

He came to the Corrections Department by an unusual route — not from training as a penologist or social worker, but from a position as a working newspaperman.

He was a good one generally, maybe a little too flip, too fast on the up-take sometimes and a little more intrigued by human failings than by successes. But those can be good qualities in a man sent to dig out stories, especially about government, which he covered for some years for the Albuquerque Journal.

Then his paper kicked him upstairs to an editorial position.

That's a habit papers have, turning good reporters into paper-shufflers. Sometimes it works, and sometimes it doesn't. Somebody has to shuffle those papers, but Ed seemed to chafe under the assignment. Finally he announced he was leaving to become court administrator for the Second Judicial District.

That's where Jerry Apodaca found him when the state needed a new, firm hand at Corrections. Penology is a profession which can become as inbred as any other, and Mahr's very lack of previous experience may have made him a likely candidate for the job he was given.

But the job is tough — very tough. Asked why he is leaving, Mahr talks about "24-hour pressures" and how they turned him into a man whose behavior "was not pleasant." As he says, "That bothered me" — and no doubt his wife and children.

The trouble is that the man at the top is always responsible for everything. Eddie had applied that principle when he was a reporter; now he was the recipient of its benefits.

Responsibility marks you, in more ways than just the lines it puts in your face and the gray it puts in your hair.

Mahr was an effective lobbyist for what he wanted to achieve; the old newspaper training helps some people there. He upgraded education for younger prisoners and improved conditions for incarcerated women. He even got a court declaration that conditions in our prisons are not too bad, at least compared with other states — a relative decision, but a satisfying one.

But it's the kicker at the end of the story which makes it interesting.

What is Mahr going to do after those years of digging into the dirt of state government and then turning around to help operate it? Now walking away, to a totally different line of work. He's going to stay around and try to change it — one hopes for the better.

How? As a lobbyist, one of those "guns for hire" so many people are uncomfortable about. Mahr has seen them operate and knows his own potential. He obviously believes lobbyists can do some good, and make a few bucks in the process.

So Ed Mahr, ex-newspaperman, ex-prisons boss, will still be around, urging legislators to see the light, as he has done in one way or another for so many years. An unusual culmination for an interesting career.

HOW INFLATION WORKS

Awareness of inflation is so prevalent that the problem has almost established itself as a normal condition. "Those are the days we live in," most people now say with a shrug.

The result of this attitude is to discount inflation on everything that is done. Ask for more than you expect to receive; inflation will catch you anyway. Spend all your income; the goods are more valuable than the currency. Go into debt; you can pay it off with depreciated dollars.

There is an undeniable logic in these responses, and the average person can hardly be blamed for adopting them. After all, he feels virtually powerless to do anything to stop inflation.

People have a tendency, also, to think that inflation adjusts itself out so that nothing really changes. Coffee that used to cost $20 a pound costs $2.00. The consumer used to make $20 a week, now he makes $200. Did anything really change?

At first glance, the answer is no, but there is more to it than that. Catch 21 is that graduated income taxes throw the ratios out of whack. Most people are now aware of that sad fact of modern life.

Catch 22 is less apparent. It is the disappearance of capital formation — savings, if you please — that the psychology of inflation brings about.

When capital is not stored up by somebody, somewhere, to provide jobs and economic activity, the $200 salary can't be earned and the $2.00 coffee can't be sold. — Hop Graham, The Lovington Daily Leader

Sense & Nonsense

U.S. Sen. Pete Domenici

WASHINGTON, D.C. — As we're all well aware, the prevalent trend these days is "Heads, the government wins; tails, you lose."

When the average citizen decides to fight "city hall," has a good case and wins it, he still loses because he must bear the attorney fees and court expenses if that fight has culminated in the court system.

I believe something can be done about that and I have reintroduced my "Equal Access To Justice" bill in the Senate again this session. Although passed by the Senate last year, this bill was defeated in the House.

The "Equal Access" legislation would mandate the government reimburse a citizen who has successfully brought suit against the government, returning to him all expenses incurred.

But the bill will accomplish more than just monetary reimbursement to businesses or individuals who buck the system and win.

Government agencies will realize that arbitrary regulations and capricious enforcement of them will be challenged more frequently by the public.

Hopefully, then, those regulations will be enforced with more common sense and forethought than has often been the case.

On Saturday, April 21 at 10 a.m. in the Albuquerque Public Library, field hearings on this bill will be conducted before members of the Senate Judiciary Subcommittee on Improvements to Judicial Machinery.

Arizona Sen. Dennis DeConcini will chair the session and testifying will be New Mexico's Chief Judge of the Federal Bench, Harold Bratton; businessman Bruce Hertzler of Tijeras; Mike McKeivitt, a former Colorado Congressman now affiliated with the National Federation of Independent Businessmen; and other business and professional people from New Mexico.

Uncle Sam has heavy clout when he fights you with your tax dollars.

It's past time to equalize the clout somewhat and give Americans stronger incentive to seek redress when they feel Uncle has wronged them.

Last week I introduced legislation in the Senate that hasn't endeared me to many colleagues and fewer Capitol Hill staffers.

That bill would eliminate free parking for Senators and their staffs, a prerequisite maintained for many years on the Hill, while denied those in the private sector in the District of Columbia.

However, when belt-tightening must be accomplished, I feel it must begin with those who are at least perceived to be the worst diet offenders, Congress in this case.

Although I can't prove it, I've heard rumors that many people on the Hill are purchasing vast amounts of tar and feathers, ostensibly for a party in my honor.

If that be true, I've at least contributed to the growth of two segments of our economy.

editorial

The impending resignation of Chief Lynn Martin from the Ruidoso Downs police, hard on the heels of the resignation of Lieutenant Fred Bernard, has left the village trustees with a police department headache all the aspirin in the world can't cure.

The facts are: the village can't afford a police pay scale to attract qualified officers; they can't afford a larger staff than four; they have trouble enough paying two certified men, plus two that are non-certified; they have trouble paying good personnel enough to keep them.

Four men, working about 60 hours a week, can handle the policing of Ruidoso Downs adequately, if not efficiently, from October to April.

It's during the racing season, mid-May through Labor Day, that real problems arise, not only in traffic volume but in traffic violations; putting a burden on the Ruidoso Downs police that is difficult to realize.

We fully realize the economic impact the racing season has on our community. Ruidoso and Ruidoso Downs profit from the racing and the operators of the track must also show a profit.

In the interest of promoting traffic safety, to keep race track fans from becoming so dissatisfied with problems of getting into and out of the track in anything approaching a reasonable time that they may riot return; in the interest of keeping accidents at the lowest attainable level, we believe everyone would benefit if the officers and directors of Ruidoso-Sunland Inc., would see fit to budget for "special deputies" to bolster traffic control on race days. — CD

WEASEL WORDS OR JUST ENIGMA?

Now that Congress and the Carter Administration have generally agreed to characterize this country's interest in Taiwan's security as a matter of "grave concern," we wish someone could tell us what this language means. We intend no cynicism. The "grave concern" of one of the world's two superpowers is a serious matter. And this particular expression of policy with respect to China and Taiwan leaves us, and the world, wondering.

Suppose China should choose to wage economic war against Taiwan by formulating a Chinese version of the Arab boycott against Israel. Does the United States "grave concern" for Taiwan's security mean we would resist such a boycott?

The language of the Taiwan Enabling Act provides no answers to any of these questions. It is, in fact, purposely vague.

The purpose is to suggest to Peking that the United States retains a continuing interest in Taiwan's well-being while leaving the mainland government face-saving doubts about what the United States would do if Taiwan were attacked or otherwise subverted.

But by purposely creating such obfuscation, the United States leaves the basic questions of Taiwan's security and the nature of the U.S. commitment to Taiwan unresolved. The security section of the legislation says nothing. It can be made to encompass the whole range of options from direct military intervention to abandonment should Peking attack Taiwan.

It may be that this enigmatic language best suits the policy needs of the moment. After all, an invasion of Taiwan is more unlikely for at least the next several years. China's military capabilities are too limited and, in any event, Peking is preoccupied with modernizing its primitive economy and organizing against the real menace of the Soviet Union.

Given the complexity of the Washington-Peking-Taipei diplomatic triangle, a certain ambiguity in the United States' commitment to preserve Taiwan's security is probably unavoidable.

This country, no less than Taiwan, must hope that China is never tempted by the haziness of U.S. policy to test Washington's "grave concern." — News-Bulletin, Belen

WOOD SIGN RIPOFF

Someone ... or maybe two or six someones ... has a yen for fancy wooden signs ... double faced ... painstakingly beautified with burned letters ... and these signs have been purloined from Fred Segal's property ... and ... by jinkies ... Fred's a mite disturbed at the culprits.

Fred, you see, is ramrodding a free camp ... for underprivileged children ... by name of "United World of the Universe" ... and he sees to it that everything's shipshape on his acreage, pending the arrival of the first contingent of guests ... later this summer ... providing everything he owns don't get ripped off.

Some of the stolen signs read: Please no Trespassing ... United World of the Universe ... Look, See, Feel, Be Love ... and ... by jinkies ... good old Fred'd like to have them returned ... all whole and pretty ... so they can be of benefit to his guests ... who'll enjoy a few days in the beautiful mountains overlooking Harmony Valley ... at absolutely no cost to the guests.

"Course ... Fred admits ... these signs'd add to the decor of most any room ... being's they're unique ... and stuff ... but Fred doesn't think it quite right ... being's what he's got in mind to help these kids might possibly be the greatest thing in their lives up until the time they leave ... that his signs are getting ripped off ... and, can you blame him?

Should anyone kinda have a need for $500 ... to pass on a bit of knowledge about what might have happened to these signs ... a discreet phone call to Keith Mills 257-4038 ... will bring that kinda loot ... and no names will be mentioned ... and ... what with the 4th of July impending ... $500 ... cash ... ain't to be sneezed at ... no? Besides ... who'd want a buncha kids hotfooting around these hills without no signs ... be they inspirational ... or leading toward guidance?

ARTIST LEFT OUT

In an article in Thursday's News ... listing artists with works on display at The Bear Claw Gallery ... our own Mimi Jungbluth ... that's portrait artist Mimi Jungbluth ... our own Mimi Jungbluth of Ruidoso ... that's Harmony Valley's Mimi Jungbluth ... didn't get no mention ... and ... by jinkies, Mimi Jungbluth ... it was one of those slips that pass in the type ... and we're right ashamed, Mimi Jungbluth, that Mimi Jungbluth got left out of that list of artists ... 'cause Mimi Jungbluth paints right pretty.

SCHOOL BOARD JUNKET

Seems there was a bit of misinformation finding its way to The News about the school board goin' to New Orleans for a national convention of school board members.

"Tain't so ... they ain't goin' to New Orleans ... no way ... 'cause the meeting's in Miami ... or Miami Beach ... anyhow ... that posh area of Florida's east coast where people like to spend the winter ... not visit early in the spring ... or summer ... or whenever they're goin' ... 'cause Miami ain't no place to be when it's hot ... 'cause a big blow might come up ... so, as you can plainly see ... Miami in the spring definitely means that this'll be a business session ... between meals of seafood.

And there's another benefit of Miami over New Orleans ... they won't have to guzzle none of that Louisiana Creole coffee made of chicory ... which, no matter how it's whopped up, don't compare to a cuppa good Miami style Cuban Java.

OUR GOOD OLD BOYS

Seems ... along about just before 5 a.m., Thursday ... a buncha law officers down Alamogordo way up and busted 55 ... more or less ... drug dealers ... roustin' them outta their warm beds into the confines of a cell ... or wherever they done up and hustled 'em off to.

Now, this bust is newsworthy for us folks here in Harmony Valley 'cause members of our police force and sheriff's men and state patrolmen were called down to assist them ... which means our guys gotta be good guys.

ICE TEA BREAK

About 3 p.m., Tuesday, at the Municipal League meeting, someone announced an ice tea break ... 'cause some of the people were mighty tired of coffee.

So ... who but our local officials ... from here and Downs ... raced madly to the serving line for a glass of refreshin' ice tea ... being's of 'Stuph & Junker's been toutin' ice tea's virtues for a spell ... and ... by jinkies ... 'twas the real stuff gettin' served ... and ... just for the record ... it was received with mixed emotions ... mainly because the ice tea wasn't mixed to Stuph & Junk's specifications ... which is a loyalty of such dimensions as to immediately call for an ice tea break ... to meditate upon the evils of rsatz ice tea.

BRIEF BIT: If'n all the streets in town get paved, some drivers'll have to go out or their way to use getting stuck as an excuse for being late ... CD

Falling Stars—Perhaps one of the TV season's worst programming blunders was made recently by CBS. Lorimar Productions, a burgeoning TV and movie production company who struck paydirt with its 'Eight Is Enough' show for ABC, sold a 'limited' series entitled 'Married: The First Year' to CBS. The program, which starred Leigh McCloskey and Cindy Grover, detailed the ups and downs of teenage marriage. But CBS program executives slated the program opposite 'Eight Is Enough,' thus insuring its quick divorce from the prime-time schedule. Said a perturbed Lorimar spokesman, "It's very unfortunate that we weren't able to control the placement of the show. It was suicide."

CHEERLEADING CHAMPIONSHIPS

The 2nd Annual National Collegiate Cheerleading Championships, a 90-minute special featuring competition and entertainment, will be presented Monday, April 16 on CBS-TV. The special, starring Suzanne Somers, with Joe Namath (pictured) as master of ceremonies, features five collegiate cheerleading squads competing for the national title.

Lola Falana and Donny and Marie Osmond are special guest stars with Ricardo Montalban and Herve Villechaise as special honored guests. Sports figures Terry Bradshaw, Joe Frazier, Bobby Hull, Parnell Jones, Robyn Smith and Lynn Swann will make guest appearances.

The squads will demonstrate their abilities in the areas of music, cheerleading and gymnastics while competing for the national title and a total of $25,000 in scholarship monies. The finalists are the squads from the University of North Carolina, University of Southern California, University of Tulsa, University of Mississippi and Michigan State University.

Profile

Mary Tyler Moore
started show-biz early

By the time Mary Tyler Moore graduated from high school in Los Angeles, she was already on the road to success. As a professional dancer, she appeared first in television commercials and later in chorus lines on variety shows.

But it was her role as Sam, the secretary with the sexy voice and beautiful legs whose face was never seen, on the 'Richard Diamond' television series that first aroused national attention. Attention, though, was not all Mary wanted. Thirteen frustrating weeks later, she asked to be released from the series.

After many television guest-starring roles, she was chosen to play Laura Petrie in 'The Dick Van Dyke Show.' During its five-year run, she received two Emmy Awards for best actress. After the series had run its course, she appeared in the film 'Thoroughly Modern Millie' and with Elvis Presley in 'Change of Habit.'

Single and in her thirties, the exuberant, bright-eyed actress sparked a new trend for television's leading ladies. Throughout the highly-acclaimed seven years of 'The Mary Tyler Moore Show,' she won Emmys in 1973, 1974 and 1976 as the Best Leading Actress in Comedy, as well as the Emmy as Actress of the Year in 1974 and 1976.

In 1975, she was named 'Woman of the Year' (actress category) by the Los Angeles Times and received the Silver Satellite Award from the National Chapter of American Women in Radio and Television. The People's Choice Award named her Favorite Female Television Performer and Female Entertainer two years in a row ('75 and '76). In April 1977, the TV Critics Circle presented her with the award for Achievement in Comedy (Female).

During the 1977-78 season, Mary starred in the musical variety special, 'How to Survive the '70s and Maybe Even Bump Into Happiness,' and co-hosted the seven-night CBS 50th anniversary program, 'CBS: On the Air.' More recently, Mary starred as newscaster Betty Rollin in the dramatic special film, 'First You Cry.'

Mary still has her own show, of course, Sundays on CBS, and she lives with her husband, television producer Grant Tinker, in Los Angeles.
