The Ruidoso trustees Tuesday evening, by a two to one vote, upheld the decision of the Architectural Plans Review Committee (APRC), to table action on a request by Security Bank to erect a plastic, interior lighted, exterior sign at the bank's branch station near the traffic circle, on Main Road.

try to negotiate" a compromise on materials to be used and lighting employed in the sign's construction. White and Gunter voted "aye" on the referral action, with Sayner voting "nay." Trustee Sherman Atwood was absent.

adopted, in effect kills the application." Huckstep also said, "I think Security Bank is being imposed on. They have a contract with Tesco Signs of Roswell. The sign is built. This has been a long time in planning. I believe Security Bank is entitled to protection under present law. They are not slipping in under the wire." (This statement was in reference to the proposed new sign ordinance.) "I believe Security Bank is being denied their legal rights. You (the trustees) can't play games. Dangerous precedents will not be set: You have a law, Security Bank has complied with same." APRC member Mike Mulholland said the committee's recommendations, "would not increase the cost of the sign and that exterior lighting would probably cost about $5 per light." He also said APRC would not object to using "flat colors" on the bank's logo, even if plastic was used in the sign and that the supporting columns could be encased with wood, thus meeting APRC's major requirements under the proposed new ordinance.

Village attorney Ron Harris said that APRC "can table and withhold any decision on the new sign until the new ordinance is in effect. I don't believe Huckstep is right in appearing (before the trustees) at this time. APRC's final decision can be appealed to the council at a later date. Security Bank can also seek a writ of mandamus in district court to have the sign application approved." "Though we can, if we wish, declare a moratorium on all sign requests (pending approval of the proposed new ordinance), there is no moratorium (concerning Security Bank's application), it was just tabled for the next meeting of APRC." APRC in a special meeting Wednesday noon at village hall again tabled the application of Security Bank to erect a plastic, interior lighted sign at their branch office on main road.

NEED $500,000 FOR SEWER IMPROVEMENT

Downs planning bond vote

BY GWYNETH JONES
Staff Writer

To fully utilize the Regional Wastewater System's (RWS) facilities, the Ruidoso Downs trustees are proposing a half-million dollar general obligation bond issue to finance improvements in their existing sewer system.

RWS will serve Ruidoso and Ruidoso Downs, with the project to include new transmission lines, serving both communities as collection mains to the new treatment plant.

Ruidoso Downs has on deposit sufficient funds to pay their pro rata share of the cost of RWS, including installation of mains, land acquisition and the new Biscuit Hill treatment plant.

Village clerk Virginia Spall reported Monday night that $500,000 was needed for additions and improvements to the present system, and that no grants were available for funding such projects.

The date for the bond election was tentatively set for July 18.

The sewer improvements would include several subdivisions not covered by the original project plans, Spall said.

In approving the proposal for the election, the trustees concurred with mayor Norman Wheeler that the growth of the village was being hindered by the lack of an adequate sewer system.

Spall said she knew of several persons who had expressed an interest in opening new businesses in Ruidoso Downs, but had changed their plans when they became aware of the sewer problems.

"If we want the town to grow, we have to have the system," Wheeler said. "It's as simple as that." He said the village also could not attract new subdivisions without the improvements, and that property values would increase if the bond issue passes.

Spall also reported on an alternative method of funding, the securing of a Farmers' Home Administration (FmHA) loan. However, after some discussion, the trustees decided that the general obligation bond would be a fairer method of financing the project.

If an FmHA loan were obtained, new users of the system would be billed at a higher than normal rate to meet the monthly note payment of $3,500, Spall said. Under the bond, all property owners would share the expense of the system through increased taxes.

The bond, if approved, by the voters, would increase taxes by about $11 to $13 per $1,000 of assessed value, Wheeler said. The assessed value is 33 percent of the appraised value of the property, he added.

The trustees also proposed an increase in the water rates for the village as another means of revenue raising. If given final approval, the residential rates will be set at a minimum charge of $9.50 per month for consumption of up to 4,000 gallons, with an additional charge of $1.50 per thousand gallons over that amount.

The base commercial rate will be $11 for up to 4,000 gallons, with a fee of $1.50 for each additional thousand gallons. At the same time, the trustees proposed a total increase of one dollar per month for seasonal residents whose water is on a standby basis.

Those residents are currently charged three dollars for meter standby and $4.50 for sanitation. The proposal would raise the total to $8.50 per month.

According to trustee Ray Parnell, the increase, which is the first in five years, is necessary to meet a utility payment of about $30,000 due in a lump sum June 1, 1980.

Spall said the cost of the utility construction had been renegotiated by past councils, escalating the cost by about $15,000. The increase in water rates would eliminate the necessity of another such renegotiation and ensuing escalation in costs, she said.

Garner heads Downs police

Ray Gene Garner, 44, was appointed chief of police for Ruidoso Downs during the Monday night meeting of the village trustees. Garner was notified of his appointment about 10:30 p.m., Monday and was sworn into office by mayor Norman Wheeler about 1:30 p.m., Tuesday in a brief ceremony at village hall.

Garner had been employed as a patrolman with the Ruidoso Police Department just prior to taking over his new position.

A native of Fullerton, California, Garner has 18 years of experience in law enforcement. He served with the United States Air Force during the Korean Conflict and was discharged in 1955. He began his police career in Roswell in 1961.

He left the Roswell Police Department in 1975, with the rank of lieutenant, to open his own business, a private investigation firm. At the same time, he worked part-time for the district attorney, fifth judicial district.

Garner was employed by the Ruidoso Police Department for two years and by the Lincoln County Sheriff's Department before rejoining the force at Ruidoso January 11, 1979.

In addition, he has served as an instructor for two years at the New Mexico Law Enforcement Academy in Santa Fe and for about six years at the Roswell Police Academy.

Garner and his wife Ann have four children, Larry, 24, of Roswell; Athena, 21, who is married and living in Lubbock, Texas; Trey, 9, and Eric, 6.

Following the swearing-in ceremony, Garner said "I would like to thank mayor Wheeler and the trustees for giving me the opportunity to serve them and the people of the community."

Garner is replacing Lynn Martin, who had been with the department for five years. He had submitted his resignation earlier this month in order to take over management of the Chaparral Lounge.

Staff and salary problems in the police department were discussed by the trustees Monday night. Mayor Wheeler had recommended cutting the force to a total of three men, with the aim of dividing the fourth salary among the other staff members. He said that the village could not expect to find qualified personnel willing to work for the salaries currently paid, which are substantially lower than those of Ruidoso or the county Sheriff's Department.

However, on a motion from Ray Parnell, the board voted to leave the salaries as they are, with the stipulation that the council could start any qualified employee at a higher grade or step than the normal starting salary, as merited by experience and training.

RAY GARNER, left, being sworn in as Chief of Police of Ruidoso Downs Tuesday by mayor Norman Wheeler.

'ONWARD, O TIME IN THY FLIGHT' — The overt enthusiasm being displayed by John Neyland, sports writer for The News, over losing one hour's sleep come Sunday morning isn't necessarily true. However, just to be on the safe side, Neyland will, promptly at 2 a.m., Sunday, advance his clock to 3 a.m., so he'll be on Mountain Daylight Time and thus not be fishing too late to catch the early morning biting trout. The trout at Bonito, John claims, have a built-in time advance mechanism that alerts them to feed an hour earlier Sunday morning than they did Saturday morning, which just goes to prove just how smart our trout are.

Advance clocks Sunday morning

Ere the cock crows Sunday morning, if you want to get to church on time, or to tee off for a quiet 18 at 9, you'd best remember to move your clock ahead one hour, as Sunday marks the beginning of six months of Mountain Daylight Time in Ruidoso as well as all of New Mexico.

Should you desire to savor Mountain Standard Time to the last possible moment, don't set your timepieces ahead until precisely at 2 a.m., Sunday, 120 minutes after the bewitching hour. In this event, hours before the cock crows, as 2 a.m., Sunday arrives, immediately set your time pieces to 3 a.m., 'cause that's the time it'll be.

'Course, should you choose to retire on the old time and arise on the new time, you'll have to dash madly around the house Sunday morning, setting all your timepieces ahead one hour. This maneuver will get you to church, or the tee, and keep you from keeping people waiting for your august presence, sleepy though you may be, 'cause no matter how you figure it, there's only 23 hours in this coming Sunday.

So... beginning this Sunday, enjoy that extra hour of evening daylight, during which the putts just naturally fall better and the trout fall prey to late evening snacks, if the offering is properly presented to appeal to their appetite.

And you'll gain that hour back come October 28, when, if you don't set your clock back, you'll be the early bird, by one hour, at church, the tee or the trout fishing hole.

Rotarians from India visit area

A Group Study Exchange Team from India's Rotary District 328, visited the Ruidoso area Monday through Wednesday.

The six Rotarians are spending six weeks in New Mexico and a portion of Texas comprising District Six, Rotary International.

"Our visit is a good will exchange," group leader Satish Chandra Anand said to The News Tuesday. "Our primary interest is to develop international understanding and promote good will."

"We're gaining our objective through a person-to-person contact, and by being guests of American families in their homes. Also, through addressing Rotary Clubs, we accomplish much in the way of mutual understanding of our country and yours."

Though disappointed that the New Mexico desert wasn't the sand and desolation they'd anticipated, Anand said they were "impressed with the scenery, the mountains and the vast open spaces."

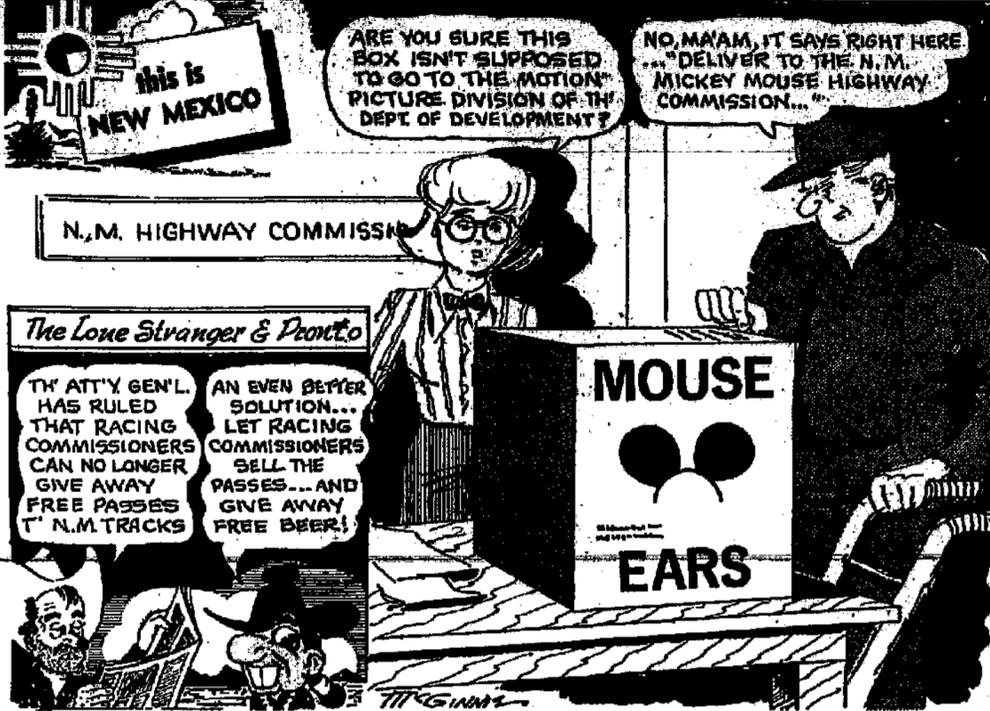

Anand stressed that all six were intensely interested in the reclamation projects they'd inspected, in the pilot work being done in the development of solar energy and particularly impressed with the irrigation systems "so abundant, they're seemingly everywhere."

The following biographical sketches of the visiting Rotarians show the diversified

Public hearings on the proposed new sign ordinance are scheduled at the Planning and Zoning Commission meeting May 2, with the final hearing scheduled at the May 8 meeting of the village trustees.

THE TRUSTEES APPROVED allocation of $8,000 in Lodger's Tax Funds "for advertising and promotion" of a June Pow Wow at Mescalero, as a joint endeavor of the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce and the Mescalero Apache Tribe.

Ed Jungbluth, executive director of the Chamber, said, "We've reached tentative agreement with the Tribe on the Pow Wow, with the Tribe to put up $5,000 and the Lodger's Tax Committee $3,000. All monies from admissions, meals and other revenues will go into a joint escrow account, which, after expenses are deducted, will be split 50-50 between the Tribe and the Chamber, with the Chamber's share going back into the Lodger's Tax fund." Lodger's Tax Committee member Ed Hyman advised the trustees that "the committee wanted approval by the council before final agreement with the Tribe to co-sponsor this Pow Wow," due to it being the first such advertising/promotion venture of its kind involving Lodger's Tax funds.

Chamber president Dave Wilson said, before the trustees voted, "The Pow Wow is something that will bring people to our community during a weak period of tourism, to provide added business in town."

Jungbluth said that the three day Pow Wow, with the dates yet to be set, "would be advertised extensively in the print media and on radio throughout New Mexico and Texas, which would be the first time any Pow Wow has been promoted to this extent."

The motion to approve the expenditure, with Jungbluth to "be active in the management of the Pow Wow" was passed on an unanimous vote, with mayor Lloyd L. Davis Jr., registering an "in favor" vote to be recorded in the minutes.

In other action, the trustees: —Accepted the low bid of Service Contractors, Ruidoso, in the amount of $49,803 on an equipment storage building and fencing at Municipal Airport. The Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) has approved the project at a total cost of $63,596, with FAA's funding to be $53,606, the state's share will be $4,995 with the village obligated for $4,995 in matching funds.

—With no recommendations being voiced from the public on the dispersment of approximately $126,000 in Revenue Sharing receipts for the next fiscal year, the funds will be deployed as previously, to the police department, animal control, street department and general governmental expenses.

—Accepted, as a report, the draft of the proposed animal control ordinance. Public hearings on the ordinance will be scheduled.

—Took under advisement an objection by John C. Winniford regarding the estimated cost of paving in the proposed special assessment district to serve Town and County North subdivision. Winniford was advised by the trustees that the figures used to determine a cost factor for improvements in the subdivision were "maximum benefits" and that no paving costs could be arrived at until the project was let for bids.

—Directed Harris to review the franchise of Community Public Service Company, relative to charges for pole installation to serve new customers, particularly in Town and Country North, to investigate the company's electrical charges and, if necessary, obtain rulings on the questions from the Public Service Commission.

—Were advised by Harris that Chaparral Drilling Company, Ruidoso Downs, through action instigated by Ray Parnell, is seeking an injunction against any further drilling or associated work on the village's water supply, on the basis that the awarding of the contract was void, as there was a violation of the statutes by waiving the bond requirements. "The bond requirement," Harris said, "was waived by request of Parnell."

—Directed airport manager Tim Morris and Harris to investigate easements and licensing of a fence gate on the Til Thompson property adjacent to the airport, with the FAA, prior to the fencing of the airport as an FAA approved project.

—Approved notification of local air charter operators, by letter, of details of the refueling system at Municipal Airport, spelling out a "flow fee" of six cents per gallon and other specifics, requested by Morris.

—Were advised by Harris that existing ordinances provide that subdivisions must be brought up to standards, two years after completion. Should these standards not be met, Harris said, "the village can make the repairs and bill the subdividers." —Set budget hearings for department heads beginning April 30 in the office of village manager Jim Hine.

Ruidoso Thursday, the regular meeting of ComFIRE, originally set for 4 p.m., today, has been cancelled, according to Herb Brunell, committee chairman.

The two-man crew is in Ruidoso as a result of a meeting between ComFIRE members and ENMU officials, who met in March to discuss making a film about what happens during a red flag fire alert.

The film crew, along with ComFIRE members Brunell, Bill Hirschfeld, Steve Makowski and other interested persons, spent all day Wednesday taping segments of the film, which will be spliced together later.

"Videotaping went pretty smoothly today," Brunell said. Most of the time the crew was on schedule or ahead of schedule. They spent about an hour Wednesday morning near Eagle Creek Estates taping scenes of all fire equipment available for use in a red flag fire alert.

The afternoon saw the group taping scenes at Smokey Bear Ranger Station, the telephone office, radio station and police station.

Today the crew's schedule began with aerial shots followed by scenes at the Ruidoso Lookout and in the Upper Canyon.

Brunell said no date has yet been set to show the program on television and he is now uncertain how long the tape will run. It was originally set to be a 30 minute segment, but it could be longer, depending on the number of scenes.

Fort Stanton's students excel in Special Olympics

Fort Stanton students made an extremely good showing in the regional meet of the Special Olympics held in Artesia last weekend, according to coach Jeanne Culbertson.

The 28 students, participating in five different track and field events, took 16 first place ribbons, 19 second places and 18 third places, she said.

"In the running events, many of them bettered their times by two to three seconds," she said, "which shows how enthusiastic they were about the competition. "They did well and we're really proud of them," she added. Culbertson was assisted at the contest by ten other Fort Stanton employees who were tremendously helpful in making the trip and competition a success, she said.

A total of seven schools competed at the regionals. Culbertson and other staff members will continue with the training of the students in preparation for the state Special Olympics which will be held in Albuquerque next month.

Ruidoso to offer gifted child classes

BY CHARLOTTE FELLERS
Staff Writer/Photographer

A new special education program will become a part of the Ruidoso schools' curriculum beginning next fall, according to Karen Tillman, diagnostician/counselor at Ruidoso schools.

A program for gifted children was approved for funding at the school board's budget hearing April 16, and based on this year's enrollment figures, the new program will open many doors for a maximum of 24 students.

"There is a great push for beginning gifted programs in the schools and it starts at the federal level," Tillman said. She said the programs are badly needed in order to meet the needs of students who have a special gift.

The program for gifted children is under the guidance of the special education division of the State Department of Education. "We work under very strict guidelines," Tillman said, mostly because past performance has shown teachers want to take bright students and put them in a program for the gifted.

"There is a vast difference between being a bright student and a gifted student," Tillman said. The process used in determining which students are gifted is a laborious one, and many factors are considered.

The first step, and one of the most important, is determining which students can be classed as "gifted." Tillman described these students, in general, as having one or many of the following qualities:

- Student who hasn't done well in school;
- Behavior problems in and out of the classroom;
- Shows outstanding learning ability in one or more subjects;
- Catches on quickly, needing little or no rote learning;
- Is creative, innovative and curious;
- Shows leadership and/or research abilities.

Tillman said one reason many children are not doing well in school or have behavioral problems is because they are bored by their studies. "This isn't always the case, but if the child happens to be gifted, it could be very possible," she said.

Tillman said she has been working with regular classroom teachers in all four schools to spot students who may be gifted.

"I asked them for lists of students they thought might be gifted. I got a list of 200 kids," Tillman said. She added that each of these students will go through a series of tests which seem rather difficult to people with average learning abilities. The tests take eight to ten hours per student and Tillman said she will be testing through the summer in order to complete all tests.

The tests are designed to measure the student's creative, academic and cognitive skills. If they rank high, they are finally given an IQ test.

The program, in its first year, will be an A-Level program, which means that the teacher will split his/her time among the four schools in the district.

Funding for the program will equal 20 program units, but Tillman said projected costs of the program are going to be higher than what is budgeted. "This will not be enough money to fund the program and materials in the first year." She said the difference will probably be made up from the general fund.

In describing her plans for the program, Tillman said several people in the community have volunteered to work with teachers in the gifted program. One resident, a former college instructor, has volunteered to critique writing assignments.

Several residents who speak fluent German, French and Spanish have offered to work with gifted students to teach them second and third languages.

"We have found that one of the things gifted students do is pick up languages quickly when they are exposed to them. This is one thing we could do for the children that we can't offer them right now," Tillman said.

Another person who has formerly worked with gifted students has volunteered to help in the gifted classroom. In addition, the students will be taken on many field trips and will work frequently in the space laboratory at Alamogordo. Tillman has worked in the Ruidoso school system nearly three years. She obtained her BA, MA and Education degrees from Eastern New Mexico University.

In addition, Tillman has completed graduate hours at New Mexico State University, the University of New Mexico and the University of Southern California.

She worked ten years as the director of Special Education at Clovis and has done consultant work for the New Mexico Department of Education and the Texas Department of Education. She has worked as a consultant in several smaller school districts.

Tillman currently serves as a member of the National Title III Advisory Committee, the regulatory advisory committee for the state of New Mexico and is a member of the Board of Examiners for educational diagnosticians.

Any leftover funds will be placed in reserve for water system repairs. Several trustees expressed reluctance at raising the rates, but Wheeler pointed out that the costs of power used to produce the water had tripled and at the current rates, "We're practically giving water away."

In other business, the trustees: — Proposed the budgeting of $9,600 for the coming fiscal year for animal services. The proposal calls for full-time services in the village five days per week at a flat rate of $800 per month.

— Heard a proclamation by the mayor designating the week of May 13-19 as "Municipal Clerks' Week." Wheeler praised Spall's performance in the job saying "We'd all be lost without her."

— Accepted a budget increase of $10,200 in tax revenue from the racing commission.

— Heard proposals by Spall for the use of monies provided by revenue sharing, including funding for administrative operating costs, streets and a dispatcher's salary.

— Approved the appointment of Russell C. Pulver to the Ruidoso Downs Planning and Zoning Commission.

— Granted occupational licenses to Lincoln County Electric, Bob's Appliance Repair and Bonnell Sand and Gravel.

Staci Budd will attend metaphysical congress

STACI BUDD

Staci Budd, 27, of Ruidoso, will be traveling to California this week to take part in the First Metaphysical Congress being held April 27-29 in Buena Park.

Budd will be conducting a workshop entitled "Putting it All Together." The workshop will examine various metaphysical disciplines including Tarot, palmistry, astrology, psychometry, psychology and I Ching, to determine which "works best for you," according to Budd.

An acceptance of all the disciplines will be stressed in her lectures, she added.

Budd has had a lifelong interest in these subjects. She was taught to read tea leaves at a young age. As a student at El Paso Community College, she wrote articles on metaphysics for the school paper.

She has also studied for the ministry with Kay Baker of the church of Universal Harmony, which promotes universality, rather than particular religious beliefs such as those of Christianity, Mohammedism and Buddhism.

A student of psychology, she has headed an ESP development group for more than two years.

"My philosophy of ESP is not truly extra sensory perception, but extended sensory perception," Budd said. "It's a gift from God and just an extension of the regular senses."

She has a number of clients in El Paso who avail themselves of her astrological and psychic talents.

The theme of the congress will be "For the Love of Knowledge," and it is being sponsored by the Abundant Light Foundation.

Artist Mimi Jungbluth wins first in art show

MIMI JUNGLUTH

She placed first in the "Best Mixed Media" category.

Prizes were also awarded for best oil painting, best bronze and best of show.

The winners were chosen by other artists who voted on all entries.

Jungbluth is now working on an oil which she hopes to complete in time for the Philipp Show in May, which is held in Phoenix.

She placed first in the mixed media category last year at the Philipp Show.

County rape-crisis center now operating in Ruidoso

BY GWYNETH JONES
When the New Mexico Task Force on Victims of Sexual Crimes and the sex crimes prosecution and treatment program made their first report to the state legislature in December 1978, they included what might be a "model" case history.

The history was that of a 30-year-old single woman, who was returning from a business trip late in the evening. Her vehicle stopped because of a mechanical problem and she accepted a ride from a passerby to a gas station.

After she purchased gasoline, the man offered to return her to her car, but turned on a side road, where he raped her repeatedly over a period of six hours.

Threatening to tear up her face with a screw driver if she refused to cooperate. After the assault, she was left on the road. When she arrived home, she immediately contacted her doctor, who in turn contacted the local rape-crisis center.

An evidence collection kit was brought by the rape crisis worker, who later accompanied the victim to the district attorney's office where she was informed of prosecution requirements.

The victim decided to prosecute and the police, while displaying great sensitivity to the victim's emotional state, allowed the victim ample time to give an extremely detailed statement.

The emotional support accorded the victim, the efficiency of the collection of evidence and the preparation of the victim for her court appearance four months later were all exemplary.

The trial resulted in the conviction of the accused on four counts of criminal sexual penetration, second degree, one count of kidnapping and one count of robbery. He was sentenced to 52 to 260 years in the penitentiary.

This case is indicative of one successful implementation of the "comprehensive approach" to sex crimes, which was the goal of the Sexual Crimes Prosecution and Treatment Act (SCPTA) passed unanimously by the state legislature in 1978.

The purpose of the act is to "promote effective law enforcement and prosecution of sexual crimes and to provide medical and psychological assistance for the victims of such crimes."

It was also designed to "assist existing community-based victim treatment programs, to provide interagency cooperation, training of law enforcement, criminal justice and medical personnel and to effect proper handling and testing of evidence in sexual crime offenses."

According to Carrie Raventon, coordinator of the rape-crisis program in Lincoln County, it is hoped that the ultimate result of the "comprehensive approach" will be a decrease in the incidence and prevalence of these crimes.

Raventon, who is employed as a psychiatric nurse for the Counseling Centers in Ruidoso and Carrizozo, said the New Mexico law is considered one of the most progressive in the nation, and thus is being used as a prototype for similar legislation in other states. Although the legislation will be of great benefit to the victims, Raventon said the general public should be aware of a few basic facts about the crime.

Rape is the fastest growing crime in America and affects victims of any age and either sex. Quite often, a rape has an adverse effect on the entire family of the victim, Raventon said.

Another widely misunderstood fact, she added, is that rape is more a crime of violence than of sexual desire. Rapists have an extremely high (about 70 percent) rate of recidivism, meaning they repeat the crime. There are also indications that the rapist becomes more violent with each assault, she said.

Because the physical and psychological effects of a rape are often compounded by the investigation and trial procedures, the crime frequently goes unreported. According to FBI statistics, only one in ten rapes is reported.

About 60 percent of rapes are planned and half of all rapes occur in the victim's home, Raventon added.

These were some of the issues addressed by the SCPTA. A total of $317,600 was appropriated, to be administered by the Health and Environment Department (HED) to fund a number of services. The monies provide for psychological services, medical services, criminal justice needs such as evidence kits, lab equipment and serologists fees, expert witness fees and funding for the state coordinator's office.

The local rape-crisis program, funded by SCPTA, began in September 1978. Nineteen such programs are in effect in

New Mexico, Raventon said, covering all major cities and towns, though not all were funded by SCPTA.

Specific measures were adopted as part of the SCPTA for the protection of the victim. One such measure is the "in camera" hearing. A victim's past sexual conduct has now been ruled inadmissible unless determined to be material to the case, and that determination is made in the judge's chambers (in camera) rather than in the presence of a jury.

Victims under the age of 16 are allowed under the new law, to make videotaped depositions for later presentation to the court, sparing them the possibly traumatizing experience of courtroom testimony.

An additional specific provision to aid the victim is the allocation of funds for the medical and mental health services. This eliminates the necessity of the victim's paying for recovery costs, Raventon said. Training in sensitivity for medical, legal and law enforcement personnel is also highly beneficial to the victim, she said.

Even if a victim decides not to prosecute a rapist, she may still be able to help others who have been or will be attacked, Raventon said. "Third person reports," made through the HELPLINE, can help with other investigations to increase convictions, she explained. These reports may be made anonymously, she added.

Lincoln County volunteers, who staff the 24-hour HELPLINE, are trained in rape-crisis intervention, and are prepared to deal with problems of incest and sexual child abuse as well, Raventon said. The HELPLINE number is 1-437-6680, an answering service in Alamogordo. Once a call is received, the caller's number is taken and he or she is contacted within minutes by a volunteer.

Although the crime of rape will probably never be eliminated entirely, Raventon feels that public awareness can contribute much to the prevention of rape, injury and/or death in cases of assault. A future article will deal specifically with these issues.

Anyone desiring more information on any aspect of the rape-crisis program or sexual crimes in general should contact the Counseling Center, Four Seasons Mall, Ruidoso, 257-5038, or in Carrizozo, the Zia School, 648-2188.

Socorro tabbed team to beat in annual 54 hole tournament

BY JOHN NEYLAND

The Ruidoso golf team hosts its annual two day, 54 hole event beginning Friday morning but to hear Ruidoso golf coach Leroy Gooch tell it, the team from Socorro all but owns the tournament.

"I'll take Socorro and give you the rest of the field for ten," Gooch said. "They go to class AAAA tournaments and win by 18 strokes. They threw out a 74. Their average is 71.3."

The tournament tees off Friday at the Inn of the Mountain Gods' course. Play then moves to Cree Meadows Country Club for the second 18 holes of the day. The final 18 holes will be played Saturday at Alto Lakes.

Other than Socorro, 11 other teams will be playing. Jal, which Gooch said is the only team he sees giving Socorro any trouble, Artesia, Lovington, Eunice, Portales, NMMI, Truth or Consequences, Alamogordo, Deming, Cobre and Ruidoso are entered in the event.

Despite Gooch's claim that Socorro will run away from the field, he foresees some tough competition taking place.

"I expect a real horse race for second place between Jal, Lovington and maybe the Institute," he said. "It'll be a horse race for last place between us and Eunice too."

If the conditions are good, Gooch said he expects a three day total of 938, 82 over par to win the tournament.

"Socorro might even beat that," he said. The only thing that could serve as an equalizer, Gooch thinks, is the wind. If the wind creeps up as it has the past few weeks, anything could happen.

"You can't tell," he said. "Socorro could get in trouble and blow the whole thing." As for the Warriors, Gooch doesn't think their familiarity with the area courses will help much.

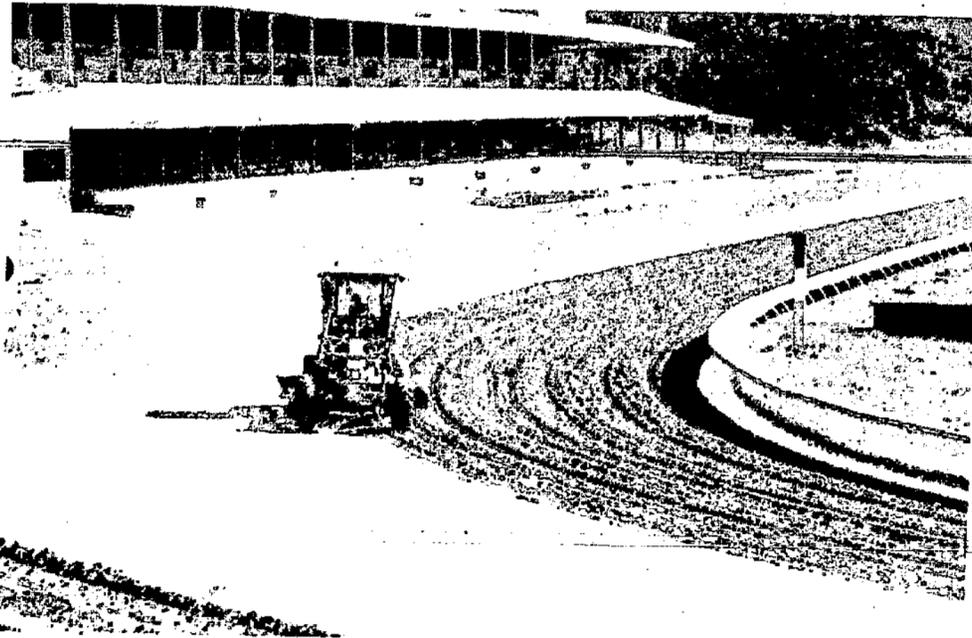

"Playing familiar courses should help a little but not much," he said. "I'd be pleased if we could average a 375 (90 over par). We've been practicing pretty good. If we could average 350 that would be a heck of an improvement. I sure would like to see them shoot that. It would mean they were going somewhere instead of standing still."

Tee time is set for 7:30 a.m., Friday at the Inn. Saturday's tee time at Alto is also 7:30 a.m.

WORK CREWS ARE CURRENTLY making final preparations for the upcoming season at Ruidoso Downs Racetrack. Maintenance workers are pictured here redoing the surface of the track because of slick spots on last year's track.

Rested thinclads aim at Rose Relays

The Ruidoso High School girls and boys track teams return to action Saturday at the Rose Relays in Tularosa, with the week layoff due to spring break a source of concern for both coaches.

"Some of them came back in better shape than others," boys' coach Darrell Stierwalt said. "The layoff is bound to hurt us some. We just hope we can be ready for the district meet. That's what we're still pointing toward."

Girls' coach Sergio Castanon was concerned about the layoff, particularly with his long distance runners.

"The layoff will hurt us more in the distance runs than the shorter ones," he said. "I worked them hard Monday. They're beginning to get back in shape."

Both teams will be making their second appearance in Tularosa for a track meet this season. The girls placed eighth in the first Tularosa meet. The boys finished in the "middle of the pack" out of 16 teams, according to Stierwalt.

Both teams will use the same basic lineups they have used most of the season. The girls will count heavily on senior Kristi Perryman in the sprints, Tammy McCulley in the discus and Ruta Bob in the distance runs, among others. One intangible the girls have going for them heading into the meet is confidence. They won their last meet before spring break, the Lincoln County Relays, and Castanon said the carryover from that meet is visible.

"The girls have a very good attitude," he said.

The boys will rely on senior hurdler Stan Cape, Mark Dutton, Joe Almaguer and Craig Sullivan for the bulk of their points. Stierwalt hopes he'll get some point production from the field events.

The Warriors do have a problem entering into the meet. Saturday is also prom day. So that they may make it back to Ruidoso in time for the dance, Stierwalt said the team may have to leave Tularosa a bit early, which would force the Warriors out of the mile relay.

The meet is scheduled to begin at 8:30 a.m.

Fish hatchery in good supply

Trout hatchery inventories of fish are very high and growing steadily, says Richard McCleskey, assistant chief of the Game and Fish Department's Fisheries Division.

McCleskey, who heads the fish production, or hatchery, section, said the department expects to plant more than 1.4 million catchable-sized trout this season. The bulk of the fish are planted during the spring and summer, the most popular times for fishing.

"The hatcheries are operating at maximum capacity, and we have tremendous numbers of fish on hand to stock this spring and summer," McCleskey said. "The total number of catchables may reach 1.5 million, depending on the size of the fish planted and other factors."

The department will also distribute several million trout as fry and fingerling fish, he said, putting them out to grow to catchable size in the wild.

Disinfection operations at Red River and Lisboa Springs hatchery buildings have sharply reduced mortality rates among the newly hatched fry, he said, and will contribute to the high number of fingerlings and catchable-sized fish available for planting.

The department increased hatchery production within the past several years after completing renovations and additions at four of its six fish-rearing facilities, McCleskey said.

IN PICNICKERS' FAVOR

Campers to be turned away at Cedar Creek

Campers expecting to set up house at Cedar Creek campground during the racing season this summer will be in for a rude awakening. Picnickers will be overjoyed.

Because of a conflict with some of the commercial campgrounds in the Ruidoso area, the Forest Service has decided to disallow overnight campers to pitch tents at Cedar Creek. Instead, the area is being prepared to accommodate picnickers, according to lands and recreation manager Joe Sphear.

"Because of the conflict with commercial campgrounds like KOA and Circle B, we aren't going to accept overnight campers," he said. "It's not right for people to back up their trailers and stay here all racing season. Cedar Creek never was meant to be an overnight campground; it just kind of evolved over the years."

Sphear said, however, plans were underway to establish three overnight campgrounds at Cedar Creek. These would be accessible to small groups by reservation. All three would be within 200 yards of one another but their seclusion is assured by the density of the forest.

"Schools groups or family reunions could use them," he said.

The sites would be on a reserved basis only and a fee would have to be paid. At this stage of the planning Sphear said he couldn't even guess the possible fee.

While this portion of the campground won't be ready for another year or two, Forest Service employees are preparing the grounds for the onslaught of picnickers. There are 23 picnic sites at Cedar Creek for the picnickers. Each site has a table and fireplaces for outdoor cooking.

Deerslayers

From Connecticut come some interesting statistics on the sporting life there. During 1978, hunters succeeded, presumably on purpose, in killing 948 deer; motorists accounted for 1,054 deer in the same period. Can it be that the automobile has superseded the shotgun and bow-and-arrow as the deer-hunting weapon of choice?

Dutton inks letter of intent with Western State College

Senior placekicker/punter Mark Dutton of Ruidoso High School will spend most of his summer working on what most graduated seniors will have forgotten: football.

Dutton signed a letter of intent Tuesday with Western State College of Gunnison, Colorado. Dutton will be granted free room and board at the college for the first two weeks of football practice. If he earns a spot on the top 40 players of the roster, he will then be offered a scholarship, he said. "I'll work out this summer," he said. "Either on my own or maybe Coach Darrell Stierwalt will help me some."

Dutton will be waiting this summer for a letter from his new coach, Bill Noxon, to find out when he must report to the school for fall workouts.

If Dutton's past is any indication, he won't have much trouble making the team. In his first high school game ever last fall, Dutton surprised everyone but his coaches by drilling a 41 yard field goal against Carrizozo. He added a 21 yard field goal in the second game of the season against Animas. In a later game with Hatch, Dutton drilled a 32 yard field goal. Dutton also booted five extra points for the Warriors. Dutton earned a spot on the class AA all state team as a punter as well as kicker.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank each and every one who helped and stood by us through the loss of someone we loved so dearly and to thank Father Loughery and church members, also the Chapel of Rest. We'd like you all to remember that he is among us all the time.

his life, and came through wide areas where he could see just the tops of cars. Alligators were everywhere, washed out of their quiet waters and swamps, up beside the higher stretches of the highways, waiting to hitch hike a ride back to their home bayous, I guess, after the water settles down.

It was wet enough when he left, Pappy says, and yet when he telephoned back down the road that just after he left there fell a rain of four inches in one hour.

I began wondering about brother Mark, down in Houston, wondering if his home and studio were flooded. His wife, Fern, answered the telephone and said there was no flooding in their neighborhood.

Brother Lynn, down at Dripping Springs, near Austin is on high ground. Still there was flooding on some of the streams down in that neighborhood.

It is always well to notice the rains in Texas, because generally some of their rain drifts in this way, after a few days. I see the clouds gathering over the hills to the East, and the air is a pleasure to breathe, so laden with the pure life-giving breath of April rain.

Leaf and Blossom Parade Moves Along

New members in full festive spring colors are joining day by day in the leaf and flower parade marching in joyful triumph up the valleys. The pink and white apple blossoms, the latest to join the festival of fruit blooms, are in their queenly prime now in the upper reaches of the San Patricio Area and the vale of Glencoe. Their fragrance, rich with a light flavor of the apple itself, is sweet upon the air. What a nourishment to body and soul to inhale this essence of life flowing through the air from the blooms of our long-beloved friend, the apple tree.

How marvelous it is that we recognize the many blossom aromas the minute they reach us. The rose, the lilac, the honeyed Algerita bloom — they all have a joyful message of fragrance all their very own.

The apple has a heart-rejoicing fragrance message all its own, carrying us back to childhood days, and beyond into days of our forefathers. The message of the apple blossom comes from away, way back in our lives; and yet it is always new and more beloved each Spring.

All the blossoms have their special charm, and each one is precious to us: the cherry, the plum, peach, and pear and all the rest.

Texas Rains

Speaking of April showers, the other night, Pappy Johnson of Ruidoso Downs, telephoned.

There is an old saying, "He heard about the grass fire and hit out for the high ground."

It was not the grass fire that made Pappy glad to reach high ground. He had just returned from a visit to Houston. He said he had never seen so much water in

by Fred McCaffrey

SANTA FE — If state employees sometimes feel unappreciated, they may be right.

Almost everyone who isn't employed by the state has groused and grumped about them sometimes. Few of us pay the compliments that some of them at least deserve.

But their grips just now has more meat to it than just being unloved. They're talking about the same subject which plagues us all: How am I expected to keep on eating when prices go up and up, and salaries hardly move at all?

When it comes to the topic of money in the pay envelope, it doesn't matter much what you or I think; what matters is how legislators vote.

And this year — not to put too fine a point on it — they voted pretty shamefully on the question of pay for those who work for the state.

Let's take a look at the arithmetic. There are about 13,800 people on the state's payroll. The Legislature, urged by the King administration to stay within President Carter's recommended guidelines and not give raises that went beyond 7 per cent, voted them a 5 per cent "merit" increase, plus a 1.9 percent cost-of-living raise.

That's not overly generous, but it was something most employees could scrape along on.

Trouble was, the same Legislature increased what state employees pay into their retirement fund by 1.5 percent, thus eating up all but .4 percent of the cost-of-living raise.

What's more, not everybody gets to collect that 5-percent "merit" increase. Almost one out of every four state employees — 2,860 of them — are at levels and in job positions to which the "merit" increase doesn't apply by law.

So all these poor souls got was the 1.9 percent jump, of which 1.5 percent was taken away for increased contribution to the retirement fund. Their pay raise, if it is noticeable at all, will hardly be enough to put in your eye.

You can see why some folks are a little restive.

What to do about it all?

It does little good to say now that the Legislature ought to have understood what it was doing to the people the state hires. There is no proof that it didn't understand, and mean to do exactly what it did.

There doesn't seem too much real benefit to be gained by mumbling about strikes. That would get the public's attention, but it would also lose any sympathy the state employees may have earned.

What Governor King is asking these folks to do is to stay calm and rock along from July to January on the extra pittance most of them will be getting, in the hope that the 1980 Legislature will make some moves to take care of the situation. That sounds practical enough, but during six months a lot of resentment can grow — and grow and grow.

A special session of the Legislature could correct the situation in a matter of hours — if it had a mind to, that is. But who knows how it would feel? It could arrive in Santa Fe and turn every proposition down.

So, for now at least, it looks like the state workers are stuck, unless somebody shows some leadership which has so far not been forthcoming.

Meanwhile, with each pay period, state employees will probably grow poorer and more resentful. That doesn't make for a very good year.

NOT A WORTHY CAUSE

The other day, a fuzzy-haired kid appeared in the office with a tray full of potted plants.

"Will you buy one of these to help our church's education projects for young people?" she asked.

The price was $10 for the sort of plant that one purchases for about $1 in any large grocery store. We assumed the remaining $9 would go to education projects for young people, a worthy cause. Thinking perhaps it was the representative of a local church group, our hand was already reaching for the billfold. But something stopped us.

"What church? What projects?" "The Unification Church," was the sweetly-intoned reply.

"Get out." It was an answer she had probably heard 100 times before; she left smiling, without a word.

The Moonies have come to Raton. Actually, Police Chief Jay Finch said they have been soliciting here at least since last summer. But he says there is nothing the city can do about the problem unless the young people asking for funds enter a business without permission, interfere with commerce, or use pressure tactics in their solicitations.

Why is it a "problem" when young people come asking for money for a church? The problem is, the Unification Church is not a "church" in the ordinary sense. It is a cult. And at its center is one Rev. Moon, a Korean national who has hundreds of young people throughout the United States collecting funds for his "educational projects."

An old friend of ours joined the "Moonies" several years ago. He had heard a lecture by a representative of the Unification Church which he said outlined "a plan for perfect living." He went to New York, where he heard more lectures, was drilled in Moon's philosophy and underwent a rigorous physical exercise program — "educational projects" — at night, and begged for money by day on the streets of New York City. In the evening, he returned to the compound where dozens of others like him were staying and gave an official there everything he collected.

One day, he and a half-dozen others were taken to Rev. Moon's expansive home and called to attention on his lawn.

"See those dandelions?" he was asked. "They are evil. They destroy the harmony of living things on this lawn. And so they, in turn, must be destroyed." Seven young people dropped to the ground and began feverishly plucking away.

"What am I doing here?" our friend thought. "He's just using us to weed his lawn." That night, he went over the wall, running scared, leaving his girlfriend behind with Rev. Moon and his followers.

His girlfriend rose through the ranks of Moon's organization and holds an administrative post in Florida. She wrote him a letter — a sort of farewell — and told him she had fallen in love and wanted to marry, but Rev. Moon had forbidden it, at least for the time being.

Eight years after the fact, he still has guilt feelings over leaving.

Three New Mexico cities — Alamogordo, Grants and Los Alamos — have ordinances requiring groups to have a permit before they can solicit. The Unification Church has challenged these ordinances in court, contending they are unconstitutional because they restrict First Amendment rights.

The church has also successfully challenged bans on its solicitation in Denver and in cities across the nation. Because of constitutional protections, it seems that cities will be unable to keep them out.

We wouldn't advocate changing the laws here to disenfranchise the Moonies. But we would encourage residents here to deal firmly with solicitors. We warn them against giving money out of pity.

The Moonies are a pitiful lot, it is true, but the money you give them is controlled by a very wealthy, plump — and very contented — Korean cult leader. And his educational programs for young people are about as substantial as the wispy crowns of the dandelions which once spread evil across his lawn. — Raton Range

MILITARY REVIEW NEEDED

The Pentagon's failure to meet recruiting quotas for all four military services during the fourth quarter last year underscores the need for a thorough congressional review of the all-volunteer military.

Until now, substantial increases in both enlistment bonuses and recruiting advertising have enabled the services to keep their noses above water, but just barely. Even so, their supposedly encouraging statistics are misleading. Wash-out rates for first term enlistees range up to 40 percent. And some special-skill categories, such as that for physicians, are chronically unfilled. Moreover, reserve and national guard units are badly understrength.

The figures for active duty recruits enlisted during the last three months of 1978 disclose shortfalls ranging from five percent for the Air Force to 15 percent for the Navy.

Granted, the inability to meet quotas for a single quarter is hardly definitive proof that the all-volunteer policy has failed. But considered together with the chronic deficiencies already documented and directly attributable to the reliance on voluntary enlistments, this latest recruiting deficit is indeed worrisome. Should it continue for any length of time, the readiness and combat capability of essential units could be seriously affected.

The time to conduct a comprehensive congressional study of the all-volunteer military is before, not after, present deficiencies have crippled this country's armed forces. The time for such a review has arrived. — News-Bulletin, Beles

editorial

Two proposed ordinances, in essence revising existing ordinances, now in the process of being submitted to the village trustees for adoption, are of prime concern to owners of signs and owners of cats and dogs.

The public hearings on the new sign ordinance will be May 2 at the regular meeting of the Planning and Zoning Committee; and May 8 at the regular meeting of the village trustees.

Public hearings will be announced on the new animal control ordinance.

The proposed ordinance governing signs in the village gives the Architectural Plans Review Committee (ARPC) powers to control all signing within the village. In addition it provides for a Sign Administrator, who must approve all sign applications. ARPC's approval, or rejection, of proposed signs, as well as a section amortizing existing non-conforming signs within five years after the ordinance is adopted, is subject to appeal action to the village trustees.

The animal control ordinance specifies license fees of $2.50 for neutered cats and $5 for unneutered cats; $10 for unneutered dogs and $5 for neutered dogs. Numerous changes in the holding, vaccinations, injection, reclaiming, adoption and other procedures involving cats and dogs are incorporated in this ordinance. In addition, this ordinance calls for the formation of a standing committee to oversee and supervise the Animal Control operation.

We feel both proposed ordinances were drawn with the best interests of the village in mind by those charged with the responsibility.

We also feel that persons to be affected by these ordinances should study them carefully; then attend the public hearings to render their approval, or disapproval, of the ordinances generally, as well as specific portions delegating authority, to the end that there may be harmonious development of business interests in Ruidoso as well as control of the cats and dogs. — CD

RE-ENLISTMENT BONUS

The Army's hurting ... hurting for people fluent in Arabic, Korean, Mandarin Chinese, Russian and Czechoslovakian ... and for those proficient as cryptologic Morse and teletypewriter interceptors ... and, if you're qualified, and wanna re-up for four years of such duties ... the Army'll be so glad to see you they'll hand you a $2,500 bonus to sign on.

That figures out to $625 a year for the four years ... such sorta as loose pocket change ... which might not be too bad ... though the Army didn't say the bonus was tax free.

Anyhow ... if you're qualified ... the line's forming at your nearest recruiting office ... but it might pay you to offer to re-up in English ... 'cause it's doubtful if the average recruiter's familiar with all those lingos ... and chances are they're not cryptologic experts ... and ... if they were ... they probably wouldn't be recruiting ... no?

Wonder why the announcement didn't tell the volunteers where they'd be stationed ... and why.

Maybe there's something brewing in those countries besides the home brew being brewed by the brewing natives ... yes?

AN ARMY SPECIALIST

Back in my WW II Air Corps days ... in France ... speaking of the Army's use of trained personnel ... we had a Lieutenant who spent his time getting dogfaces out of the clutches of courts martial boards.

Now this Lieutenant ... who was 45 at the time ... was not only an attorney ... but he'd graduated from a law university in Japan ... had practiced law in Japan ... and, as a patriot, had signed up for the Air Corps, so he could serve his country as a Japanese interpreter.

So ... the Army promptly sent him to Europe ... where he defended GIs who'd goofed ... and, to add insult to injury, they didn't even give him any food that he could eat with his chopsticks.

'Course that was a different era ... one populated with draftees who were there to fight for their country ... or some other motivation ... like keeping out of federal prisons ... and, at least in my outfit, the reward given to those serving their guardhouse stint was to make cooks out of them.

'LESS THAN LOYAL'

It'd be the gentlemanly thing to do, if State Police Chief Martin Vigil'd spell out just exactly what he means by his statement that demoted Deputy State Police Chief Steve Lagomarsino has been "less than loyal."

If it's because Lagomarsino favored Joe Skeen for governor ... and not Bruce King ... that's a far instance of Vigil being picaresque ... 'cause, by jinkies, how a person votes is strictly private business ... and if'n Lagomarsino's only "less than loyal" action happened to be his liking for Skeen over King ... that's mighty small potatoes to discredit a man upon his impending retirement ... if'n, in the performance of his duties with the State Police, Lagomarsino has fulfilled same in the highest tradition of the force.

It'd seem that King and Criminal Justice Secretary Charles Becknell should be able to get together with Vigil and let Lagomarsino retire with dignity as deputy chief ... if this "less than loyal" business is strictly politically motivated.

Besides ... such action might do wonders for the esprit de corps of the State Police ... if'n Vigil cares a whit about that.

INCOME TAX SCAM

According to the Internal Revenue Service there's those as is perpetuating scams ... them's no-ones ... against taxpayers by claiming to be IRS reps ... and collecting ... in cash ... money from honest, IRS fearing taxpayers ... supposedly 'cause the taxpayers owe Uncle Sam money they ain't paid.

Seems the IRS has made it clear ... when tax is due ... that the taxpayer isn't to remit cash ... and, by jinkies, anyone approached by perpetrators of this scam should be most agreeable ... and stall 'em off ... and have a policeman there for the payoff ... which'd have a deterrent effect ... at least on the one nabbed in the act of representing an IRS official.

With the main thought being ... any such payments are deductible ... from the payor's pocket ... with the payee paying no income tax on same. BRIEF BIT: It's a little early to smell the roses in Turnberry Valley ... which shouldn't stop you from getting pricked by last year's thorns. — CD

Blue chip quarter horse stallions keep dying off

BY DICK ALWAN

The quarter horse breeding industry caught a couple of haymakers recently with the loss of numerous blue chip stallions.

"Horses have the damndest way of getting hurt," said Bed Hudson, co-editor of Quarter Horse Track Magazine in Ft. Worth, Texas and one of the industry's closest observers.

As we stressed in previous articles, the more valuable a stallion the more likely he'll find a way, no matter how obscure, to rid himself of this mortal coil. Oddball mishaps and prattfalls have taken a stiff toll among the nation's elite quarter horse sires. Disease and old age have also been doing their ugly work.

Many top stallions — perhaps a dozen or so — found their numbers coming up within the past year.

The most bizarre and costly losses, as we noted, concerned My Easy Credit, a stallion with a street value of perhaps $2 million, and the thoroughbred Heisanative, who was inclined to produce both quarter horse and thoroughbred stakes winners. My Easy Credit slipped on some ice while frolicking in his paddock and broke his neck against a pipe fence. Heisanative got a hoof caught on an idiot-proof fence, wrecked his leg while frantically trying to pull it loose, and later had to be killed.

"It's tough on the breeding industry when you lose stallions of this magnitude," Bed Hudson said. "There may never be another horse like My Easy Credit. But I would say the loss is more of an individual one — not one that will materially affect the industry as a whole. There's always X number of mares, and they'll be bred to one stallion or another. When the industry loses a star like My Easy Credit, then you'll take your mare to another stallion — one who could do the job, probably not as well, but perhaps better."

From an overall viewpoint, the loss of My Easy Credit and Heisanative is immense, and Hudson points out some other stallion will eventually fill the gap. But the losses to Harold Burford, the owner of My Easy Credit, and Ed Baker, owner of Heisanative, are severe economic jolts.

Another major stallion who recently strolled into the great paddock in the sky is Easy Six, a million-dollar property owned by a syndicate. He banked some $200,000 in his running days, thanks to conquests of the Sun Country Futurity at Sunland and Kansas Derby at Ruidoso Downs. He was headquartered at the Wells Ranch in Alex, Oklahoma when he suddenly became sick, then appeared to snap around, then got sick once again. Finally, he took a really nasty turn, and was hurriedly shipped to the veterinary sharpshooters in Ft. Collins, Colorado and submitted to numerous treatments, and was confined to a water bed, and one thing and another, but still died. Several autopsies were performed. "I talked to one of the girls who worked in the laboratory in Ft. Collins, and they still aren't sure what Easy Six was suffering from," Hudson said.

The death of Some Kinda Man resulted from a freak and idiotic prattfall — the sort which took My Easy Credit and Heisanative. This is the thing which makes you think a valuable stallion shouldn't be trusted in his own company — even if you decked him out in a bullet-proof vest, put mattresses against the windows, padding on the wall and foam rubber under his feet.

Some Kinda Man, who once set the world record for 440 yards at Sunland Park (and won Sunland's Fall Derby), later sired winners of nearly $1 million. He was stationed at Weatherford, Texas last December when he was taken out of his stall to get some hair trimmed around his head.

As the barbering was about to be done, Some Kinda Man decided to lunge forward, slammed his head against a pole and keeled over dead.

Perhaps the run of bad luck in the breeding industry first got underway last summer when Megahertz, the brilliant colt who'd made the finals of the Kansas Futurity, Rainbow Futurity and All-American Futurity, came down with colic — a severe intestinal problem. The colt, who'd banked some $161,000 and had every right to become a major stallion, was unable to shake colic's cold grip. Shortly afterward, Chuck Stewert's brilliant Azure Three was taken by colitis-X, a deadly viral infection. The disease came on suddenly, just after Azure Three had won the Vessels Maturity on the West Coast and hardly before Stewert had dried the ink on a million dollar syndication pact. Azure Three had earned $210,000.

Turf's Best, a two-time champion who'd made $167,000 about eight years ago when greenbacks were much fatter, had the misfortune to break a leg while cavorting in his paddock. He was sent to the Texas A&M where veterinarians (unlike the movies) were unsuccessful in healing the break. The stallion, about 11 years old, had to be killed.

Another loss was Talent Bar, who's won the Rainbow Futurity, and later sired Saily Talent — winner of the Rainbow Derby. Talent Bar died at Colorado State University, but in this case it was normal disease. Such was the situation with War Chic, the 1958 national running champ who produced many good runners. He died in California. You can also put an X beside the name of Fleet Kirsch, the thoroughbred who sired Some Romance, the filly who recently picked off the Bay Meadows Futurity. Colic got him while he was standing at stud at Purcell, Oklahoma.

So what this all amounts to is the fact a lot of five star names have been rubbed off the slate in so short a time. For my money, My Easy Credit and Azure Three were the stuff of dreams. But Ruidoso Downs is nearly ready to open again. Before the summer is out, we'll most likely have a handful of new superstars, industry heroes and potential breeding sensations.

Race horses win by split seconds

By Mike Magda

In quarter horse racing where a mere .01 of a second can determine a qualifying berth in a prestigious futurity or derby, precise and split second timing is an absolute necessity.

Horses in increasing numbers are entering trials and purses are now the highest in the world. It follows that since the field races against the clock in the qualifying trials, the timing equipment must be the finest available.

Sunland Park now employs a system born out of the Olympics that can boast as being "world class."

"I would say we have the best and most reliable timing system in the world," Cy Leland, who co-ordinated the photo-finish and television replay equipment for Sunland Park and Ruidoso Downs, said.

The top 10 qualifiers who advance into the $1,280,000 All-American Futurity, the $1 million All-American Derby or a prelude such as the upcoming Sun Country Futurity at Sunland, may be separated by only a .01 of a second over those who fall back into a consolation race.

Last fall at Ruidoso Downs, 249 two-year-olds went through the day long qualifying rounds for the All-American Futurity. When the card was completed, the difference between Osage Juana, the top qualifier, and tenth fastest Oh Shiny was a slim .28 of a second. Oh Shiny's time was a heartbreaking .01 of a second faster than Geep Creeper, who eventually won the first consolation.

The key to timing a full day's racing down to a hundredth of a second is an electronic timer used in conjunction with the photo finish camera. As the field crosses the finish line, the camera records the order by means of a moving strip of film that passes by a slit only .005 of an inch wide. The narrow slit is focused on the finish line from atop the grandstand.

As the film moves through the camera, the timing is recorded by means of a light emitting diode that exposes the film with indication marks precisely underneath the camera slit. A digital readout is made every .20 of a second and the indicating marks are made every .01 of a second.

After the race, camera operator George Taylor pulls out the film, which has already been developed, and places it in an enlarger for the stewards to view. A sliding hairline is used to determine winners as well as line up the time indicators.

The electronic begins when a pair of electrical contacts, positioned on the starting gate, is closed by the opening of the gates.

Leland, who works for Criterion Films, Incorporated—a company under contract to Sunland Park and Ruidoso Downs—uses two cameras in the daily operation. One is a backup that uses a finer grain of film for picture reproductions. The system was put into operation one year ago and Leland has yet to rely on the backup.

"Since we first began timing races at Sunland, this equipment has never failed and the two cameras have never disagreed," Leland said.

The cameras and timers are manufactured by the Switzerland based Omega Company, and are duplicates of the equipment used to sort out winners in the 1972 Munich Olympics. Omega also designs timing systems for almost any kind of sporting event but horse racing. This was changed by Leland when he sought to improve on the previous system.

Leland had been scanning the country for a system with a "precision timing base."

"We tried all kinds of equipment but couldn't find anything that was appreciably more accurate," he said.

One afternoon, while watching ski racing on television, Leland noticed the Omega trademark on the timing equipment.

"I undertook this long, drawn-out correspondence with the company in Switzerland," Leland said, noting there were complications in communicating with non-English speaking technical writers.

Leland was talking with a United States based Omega agent, who suggested the use of the Olympic equipment and remembered that the company had over 10 units in storage.

"As far as I know, we were the first to contact Omega about these cameras for horse racing," Leland said.

The Omega timing system uses a quartz crystal time base, which is accurate to "one part in a million," or about one second a year. All of the equipment is battery powered, removing it from the pitfalls of unpredictable household current.

"The whole reason we pursued the Omega equipment is because we realized we needed the most reliable timing system available," Leland said. "Even in day-to-day racing, those times are important because the horses are given a speed rating based on those times."

Most important, though, is the accuracy the equipment provides for those super rich quarter horse stakes.

A Safeway service in support of suggestions from the U.S. Office of Consumer Affairs

INFLATION FIGHTING ideas

"What's in a Name?"

The U.S. Office of Consumer Affairs states: "Most large supermarket chains sell private label foods and household products. These private label or house brands are usually less expensive and equal in quality to national brands. In many cases supermarkets purchase their house brand goods from the same companies that manufacture nationally advertised brands."

Because of various cost savings, including lower promotional cost, house brands can be sold for less.

Safeway generally prices its own top-quality (S) Brands lower than national brands of comparable quality and you can always depend on their consistently high quality. Every (S) Brand is unconditionally guaranteed to please.

Each product in the entire (S) Brand line is identified with the red (S) and the words "FINEST SAFEWAY QUALITY." Rigid quality specifications must be met before the familiar (S) goes on the label. Customers acquainted with (S) Brands know the products are comparable to top national brands... but they cost less.

Get to know Safeway's family of (S) Brands, including Town House, Bel-air, Lucerne, Edwards, Safeway, Mrs. Wright's, and many others. They're your staunch allies in the battle against inflation!
